Chapter 1

Author's Note:

This is the finale of the titular "Sexy times with Wangxian" trilogy.

A collection of short stories set in the same universe as "It was a dark and stormy night" and its sequel "It is a clear and sunny day". The stories may be read as standalone or inter-connected with each other - it doesn't really matter, and don't take things too seriously.

As this will hopefully be an eternal work-in-progress as long as Wangxian is alive, do check back often for updates. Also, some chapters may be edited even after posting to keep the stories in line.

Please put in a Kudos if you appreciate the existence of this fic!

Please refer to Chapter 1's Comment Box on the latest announcements and FAQs!

Thank you for taking the time to read, and please enjoy Wangxian !

Dinner at the Lan's has always been a quiet affair, and tonight is no different.

Lan Wang Ji watches intently at how Wei Ying uses his hands to tear a steamed chicken thigh into two, and literally inhales the succulent meat off the bones. The older man picks up a wing daintily with chopsticks, and places it into Wei Ying's bowl (which is still half-filled with rice and suspiciously-untouched bittergourd slices), to which the younger man grunts in appreciation through a mouthful of food.

He goes back to his bowl of rice and finishes off the dwindling plate of mixed stir-fried vegetables containing chopped cabbage, sliced eggplants and potatoes. He takes the last piece of tofu, dips it into a saucer of blended chilli with soy sauce, before taking an elegant bite. Wei Ying continues to slurp on chicken wing bones (and later, his fingers) noisily in the background. Wei Ying occasionally spots a larger chicken bone on the table (it doesn't matter whose), nonchalantly grabs and cracks it to suck out the marrow with even more unsavoury sounds.

Wang Ji then takes a spoonful of the lotus root pork rib soup which Wei Ying specially prepared for their meal. They had already tried eighteen iterations of the dish courtesy of Wang Ji's excellent cooking skills and his carefully-curated collection of recipes – all were good, in Wei Ying's opinions – so, the ninetieth would be the first that Wei Ying made, and is now the subject of evaluation by Wang Ji's discerning tastebuds.

He sips the light brown broth and savours the simple yet flavourful liquid. There is a richly sweet meatiness to it, and is well-infused with the refreshing nutty taste of lotus and a slight hint of salt. A bite from a slice of freshly-harvested lotus root that had simmered and softened in the soup for at least four hours – is good, to Wang Ji's judgement. He looks up to say a few complimentary words about Wei Ying's handiwork, but when he sees the younger man engrossed in downing a bowl of the soup in record time (Wei Ying even raised his bowl high above his head and tips it to let the last drops roll into his waiting tongue, no less), he smiles and shrugs wordlessly.

Wei Ying scoops another bowl from the main pot and Wang Ji notices the younger man's greasy fingers. The cutlery, tableware and the ladle are probably covered with oily fingerprints, he notes. It is a fair price to pay (for the one who will be doing the dishes) to watch his younger lover enjoy a satisfying meal after a long back-breaking day. They had spent the morning harvesting the last batches of crops before winter arrives, so that Wei Ying can quickly sell them off to Old Merchant Zhu in the afternoon, while Wang Ji hurried to Huang village to stock up with herbs, spices and other provisions. The trails leading out of Burial Mounds may be buried during snowstorms, so they needed to be prepared for the worst.

Lan Wang Ji stared at his bowl, then carefully picks up a cube of lean pork meat with the spoon to take an experimental nibble off it. He usually keeps to a vegetarian diet, although ever since they started living together, he had been increasing his consumption of fish (his favourite, so far), freshwater shrimp and limited amounts of chicken and eggs from their modest farm. He wrinkles his nose at the peculiar taste of the meat. It is gamey and stronger than usual – though he would be hard-pressed to find the right description since he doesn't eat such meats frequently enough to tell the difference. He pops the rest of the meat into his mouth and takes another bite of lotus root – the taste balances out perfectly and he thinks no more about it.

“How is it? It's delicious, isn't it?” Wei Ying asks from across the table, breaking into a brazen grin. He leans back and pulls one leg up onto the chair.

“Mn. It's good.”

“Of course it's good! Yiling Patriarch has unrivalled skills in every known discipline, including the art of cooking!” He laughs cockily and points a thumb at himself.

Lan Wang Ji nods lightly, curving up his lips a little.

Wei Ying reaches for a clean bowl from the kitchen's drying rack and proceeds to fill it with more soup (Wang Ji notes the oily fingerprints on the new bowl). Next, he recklessly dumps more pork ribs than lotus root into the bowl, probably for wanting to clear out the pot sooner (Wang Ji notes the amount of spills Wei Ying made). Then, he places it in front of the older man (Wang Ji notes how the new bowl is carelessly pushed against the one he was still having, causing more spills) and gestures him to, "Here, have more! Have more!"

"I've made a big pot just for you, so you have to finish it, Lan Zhan!"

"Mn."

"Drink more, drink more!" Wei Ying chants encouragingly, as he goes for another meat-laden serving.

The ruckus and excitement eventually die down, and both men tuck into their soup peacefully to their (mostly Wei Ying's) satisfaction.

There are no jars of wine on the table tonight; just a simple brew of oolong steaming inside a teapot.

“Ah.. Lan Zhan, I’m going for a stroll outside,” Wei Ying said as he stretched with a pleasant “Nnnh” and patted his tummy.

“Mn. Come, wipe your mouth and hands first,” Wang Ji instructed. He obeyed, leaned forward, and let the older man gently dab a clean damp washcloth over his lips and wipe the grease off his hands. Wei Ying gazed lovingly at Wang Ji, causing the older man to shyly avert his eyes and blush with the slightest tinge of pink on the tips of his earlobes. Wang Ji made sure to scrub clean each of Wei Ying’s fingers and nails, before taking the washcloth back to the kitchen sink.

“Go now,” Wang Ji said. Terse, concise, to the point. Wei Ying nodded and headed out from the kitchen. There were rustling sounds of him rummaging through their workroom, of putting on a thicker layer of robes and outdoor shoes, of hopping-skipping out of the entrance of their home – before silence finally befall their home.

Lan Wang Ji squeezed soapy water from the washcloth and resumed his kitchen clean-up. He felt a bit warm on the cheeks and opened the kitchen window to let cool evening air in. From where he stood, he could see the younger man rushing past with a freshly-plucked lotus seed pod in one hand, a bag of equipment in the other, and disappear to the fruit trees beyond their vegetable garden.

Wang Ji began to clean each bowl and plate. When he reached Wei Ying’s bowl, he noticed the leftover rice and some pieces of bittergourd. The warmth in his cheeks had spread slowly down his throat, and for a moment, he thought he might be coming down with a fever or a common cold. He took a piece of half-eaten bittergourd and popped it into his mouth, half-hoping that the cooling effects would help along with other medicinal herbs he'd just procured earlier that day.

Dinner at the Lan's had always been a quiet affair, and that night was no different – yet.

Notes for the Chapter:

This chapter was posted on the day the poster and details about "The Grandest Farewell" Nanjing concert for the Chen Qing Ling / The Untamed tv series was announced. *tears*

I've had a wonderful Summer of 2019 with the live-action drama that strengthened my budding romance with the Mo Dao Zu Shi universe.

Thank you to CQL Untamed team for the hard work and unforgettable memories,

Thank you to Xiao Zhan and Wang Yibo and everyone else for bringing the characters and story to life,

Thank you to the fans for making this an experience of a lifetime. You guys rock!

A grand shout-out to friends in NovelUpdates Founder of Diabolism forum for exchanging information, engaging in lively discussions, and helping me out when I have (silly) questions about MDZS. This one's for you!

p.s.: As of Chapter 15, I've decided to name the chapters and include the timelines, in case anyone wants to avoid getting confused from navigating through timeskips! However, due to the increasing number of plot elements and characters added in, it's best to read the chapters sequentially, rather than chronologically!

Chapter 2

Notes for the Chapter:

Includes: Raising our Farm Animals, Prologue (Present year, Summer/Autumn)

Not too long ago on one balmy summer afternoon, Wei Wuxian made an unexpected announcement while resting on his throne (actually, just a plain wooden bench) in the shade of fruit trees which surrounds the expansive courtyard of his grand built-to-last-for-a-lifetime fortress (just a cavernous hole in the mountains, really).

With a proverbial lightbulb blinking above his head, the much-maligned and infinitely-feared His Royal Highness Yiling Patriarch decreed: that as long as he rules the Burial Mounds (no, he doesn't rule the Mounds, it belonged to no one), the resident family of wild rabbits accused of encroaching his (actually, the husband's) remaining soon-to-be-harvested carrot patch, would be spared from eternal hellfire (read: made into tasty barbeque). Instead, considering the recent string of events:

- Of two carrots gone missing from the vegetable garden, the hour of the day of its occurrence unknown, however there is damning evidence of fleet-footed prints found all over the ground at the scene of the crime.*
- Before any punishment could be meted out to compensate for the economic losses and related aggravated damages (which in reality, the husband didn't really care for, because it was only a mere two sticks of carrots; Wei Ying was just getting his rocks off by making a mountain out of a molehill – just another Wei Ying-ness), Gusu Lan Sect Rule #5501 was enacted by the highly-esteemed Royal Advisor (again the husband) which forbids the hunting and killing of rabbits.*
- The Rule is applicable to all persons of familial or marital relationships with Lan members (and therefore the Patriarch as well; the Patriarch himself does not openly speak about such relationships in broad daylight because he would die from sheer embarrassment and* prefers to keep such intimate conversations to the bedroom. The husband, on the other hand, simply said “We’re already married”. End of discussion).

- The Royal Advisor furnished a timely reminder about how rabbits are revered and kindly treated in his homeland, and he strongly advised His Royal Highness to follow suit (actually, he just tells his Wei Ying about Gusu Lan’s rabbit-keeping traditions and expects the latter to obey. End of discussion).

After evaluating all available options, and to avoid wasting time on unintellectual discourses about furry four-legged denizens, His Royal Highness Yiling Patriarch hereby unequivocally agrees with his Royal Adviser’s words: namely, to trap the rabbits and—

“—raise them with our chickens. What do you think, Lan Zhan?”

Lan Wang Ji opens his eyes, startled. Well, that was unexpected.

“They’ll keep the birds toasty and warm during the cold blizzard-y winter nights. It’s a win-win for both animals!” Bubbly laughter fills the air, as the younger man waves his arms energetically above him.

Images of cute rabbits armed with their thick, luxurious winter coats, surrounded by fuzzy little yellow chicks and their cluck-clucking parents — flash across Lan Wang Ji’s mind.

His face immediately breaks into an un-Han Guang Jun-like grin. Well, that was an extraordinarily pleasant thought.

“Pfft.. Ha ha! Lan Zhan, you’re smiling!” the younger man exclaims.

Lan Wang Ji catches himself and quickly sets his face back to one of Han Guang Jun-like quality. He clears his throat, closes his eyes, and gently nudges Wei Ying’s tummy with the back of his head, with a rather indignant-sounding “Hmmp” that seems to say “You’re talking nonsense. Get back to work”, wordlessly.

“Ah.. yes, yes, yes,” Wei Ying murmurs, mirth evident in his voice.

Wei Wuxian resumed his late afternoon duty (whenever they’re together and have plenty of time to spare – such as this particular balmy afternoon) of tending to his partner’s favourite pastime. He gave Lan Wang Ji a loving ear-cleaning with the latter’s favourite bamboo earpick (because it was of the precise length, and had the perfect angles and curves to reach his favourite spots; even the blunt edge of the scoop had the perfect degree of wear-and-tear that gave a flawless balance of abrasiveness, friction, relief and comfort simultaneously; along with how his partner caresses away stray strands of hair, how the fingers glide along the shell of his ears, down to the earlobes, warmly rubbing skin-to-skin all the way).

[It is said that the sight of Wei Wuxian twiddling a well-used earpick like a miniature-sized Chen Qing, could make Han Guang Jun go weak in the knees and become unusually docile and willing.]

Lan Wang Ji remained motionless as he lay down on the same wooden bench and rested his head on Wei Ying’s lap. Soft, appreciative sighs and nnnhs escaped from his lips, as Wei Wuxian meticulously scraped and scratched away, leaving no surface of the ear untouched.

Wei Wuxian did not stay quiet for long, and soon he talked (mostly to himself) in great lengths about his ambitious plans to house the rabbits with the chickens. The young man was that sort of person – whatever he promised, he will deliver. He detailed about how they could rear both animals together and kept them well-fed, expand the coop to accommodate additional residents, strengthen the structure in preparation for snowstorms that would make landfall in a few months' time, fence-up the surrounding area with sturdier materials, and even recited a list of things he needed to buy from Liao's General Store in Yiling City for these plans. The costs came up to—

“—twenty silver pieces, in total. But, if I salvage some scrapwood from the garden and chop down a couple of trees from the ‘Mounds, I think I can save a bit and get everything done with fifteen. What you think?”

A particularly nice spot is scraped repeatedly in slow, languid up-and-down motions, despite being cleaned out moments ago. Pleasurable tingles trickle from the neck and down the spine. He shivers.

“Nnnh. Tomorrow, we go,” Wang Ji simply states. His mind is hazy, and he finds difficulty not to mix unintelligible sounds into his very brief instructions.

“Huh...?” It seems Wei Ying didn't quite grasp what he said.

“Tomorrow, we catch the rabbits... then go to Yiling City together... to buy... the materials you need,” he explains with much effort. The earpick scrubs the passageway in circular motions. He hnnnhs audibly, back stiffening into an arch. Barefoot toes curl (he prefers to leave the muddy boots and sweat-soaked socks on the ground to keep their wooden bench clean; he'd been busy harvesting their crops the whole day under the hot sun, and frankly speaking, his body did smell a little ripe), fingers clench into fists (because fuck, that feels so good – did he just swear?).

“Ah.. AHH! Lan Zhan, you really surprised me!” It seems understanding finally dawns on his partner. Surely, he knows by now that all requests can be granted, especially in the presence of a particularly favourite earpick.

“So, does the Royal Advisor agree with a budget of fifteen or twenty silver pieces?” He can feel eyebrows wiggling at him. Shameless.

“Twenty fff—fi—five,” because oh fff—f—fuck, did he just use one hand to massage and comb through his hair above the same ear where irresistible circles are being drawn inside, at the same time? It felt so incredibly good, that he mis-pronounce and stuttered the last word.

“Ehhh? Ehhhhhh? Did I hear correctly, that the Royal Advisor is generously offering twenty-five? Really, twenty-five?” The curious reply comes a little too excited and quick. Really shameless, also greedy.

“Mn. Twenty-fff-five. For... the Royal H-Highness.” He makes sure to lace the last few words with a hint of sarcasm. He would match with Wei Ying in terms of delivering promises in earnest, despite knowing that he was somehow tricked into doing this.

The tender ministrations on his ear and scalp picked up speed. Loss of sanity was imminent.

“The fff-five... extra silver p-piece...s are for fff-five jars... of Laozu’s S-Smile,” he struggles to find the right words, before succumbing to Wei Ying’s merciless onslaught.

The earpick finds its way to Wang Ji’s weakest spot along the canal, and it vibrates with savage, skilled shallow thrusts. Waves of numbness and tingly pleasure spread from head to toes, his back curves like a bow (but Wei Ying’s grip on his forehead and jaws is strong enough that he doesn’t roll over and fall off the bench), he moans nnnghhs and aaaahs loudly, fingernails scratch the wooden surface, legs move restlessly and kick weakly into empty air — and could say no more.

Wei Wuxian whees and yays in response, interspersed with singing praises of “Er gong-zi, you’re really good to me. I like you so much!” to the half-paralyzed-half-struggling older man on his lap. He peppered chaste kisses on the forehead and cheeks whenever possible (really, the mere mention of Laozu’s Smile has that kind of brazen effect on Wei Wuxian even during the day; and Lan Wang Ji happily indulges the younger man, because he knew what follows when night falls).

The couple continued to enjoy each other’s company into the sunset. Lan Wang Ji, at some point between Wei Ying-style of ear cleaning, relaxing scalp and shoulder massages, and a plate of lotus seeds served with a pot of oolong tea — pointed out that there was no such thing as “Gusu Lan Sect Rule #5501”, because to his knowledge, there were only 4,859 when he copied the scriptures last summer in the Jingshi.

“S—Stop! I... I haven’t taken a b—bath... Unnh! Mmmh!”

Wei Ying continued to tend to the angry-looking slick-shiny red engorged shaft with the same zeal as his infamous brand of ear-cleaning. Quick shallow thrusts down into wet encircling tongue, careful not to bite but generous in gentle grazing with edges of teeth against the fragile blood-filled veins lining the hard flesh, and when he felt the underside of the length quiver with successive rolls of muscular contractions, he goes down deep until the slick cockhead bumps to the back of his throat and swallows very, very hard.

Wei Ying raked his fingernails along the quaking inner thighs, then caressed the older man’s sides, up the ribs, down the spasming lower back muscles, until his hands settled on holding down the hips against the wooden bench so that his lover could not escape, and kneaded clenching ass muscles in time with the spurts of day-old thick potent semen pulsing down his throat. He breathed in deeply with his face full of fine pubic hair while his throat muscles continued to massage and milk the twitching organ to the very last drop, and he inhaled a pungent mixture of sweat, sandalwood and the sweet musky scent of a man who orgasmed twice in a row.

Lan Zhan continued to moan weakly from where he sat on the bench, head lolling helplessly from side to side, breath heavy and strained, upper garment clinging tightly onto his pecs and abdomen that sweated profusely, and his pants pulled down to the ground with Wei Ying kneeling between his spread, smooth muscular legs. He covered his lower body with his wide sleeves and shielded the delicious view of Wei Ying giving him an incredible blowjob from the outside world, protecting what remained of his dignity and the younger man's (because Wei Ying said he would die of sheer embarrassment if they were caught doing naughty stuff in broad daylight; though no one is watching).

Later, somewhere during his third post-orgasm haze while Wei Ying busied with playful tonguing with his balls and continuously pistoned hardening cockflesh between cum-streaked lips towards his fourth climax, a fleeting thought crossed his mind: he really should consider increasing Wei Ying's spending allowance to thirty silver pieces.

A fortnight later, to their amusement of the couple, not only was Wei Wuxian's theory proven to be correct; in fact, the presence of clucking feathered friends calmed down the captured rabbits enough and allow their human handlers to safely play with them, just after a couple of days in captivity. This was especially delightful to Wang Ji, because he missed holding his favourite animal since he left Cloud Recesses the year before, and could not resist touching the scurrying balls of fluff every time he passed by the coop between doing farm work and hanging out laundry (plus numerous bedsheets) outside their home.

The downside though, was that the increased activities, sounds and odours naturally attracted local predators such as foxes and eagles.

On one occasion, they spotted an unusually large and hulking form on four legs on a faraway cliff, partially hidden by shadows from drifting rainclouds. At that time, Wei Wuxian anxiously gripped his partner's wrist, while Wang Ji clutched Bichen a little tighter than he was used to.

A mountain wolf, twice the size of any normal specimen and as massive as a bear, stared back at them with glowing crimson eyes. Dark spiritual energy not unlike the signature black aura from the long-gone Stygian Tiger Amulet, overflowed from its body and blends into the dark clouds blanketing the hills in the horizon.

The two men, alone in their estate nestled deep within the Burial Mounds, quickly made their way back to their cavernous home.

Chapter 3

“Lan Zhan! Lan Zhan! I’m back from my evening walk!” Wei Ying shouted gleefully with a wave of hands and a bag slung over his shoulder as he approached the entrance of their cave-home. He had just returned from a routine security check on the boundaries of their little estate nestled within the vast expanse of Burial Mounds. Every spiritual defensive net hidden amongst fruit trees lining their garden was correctly positioned, and every paper talisman correctly glued to strategic locations throughout their little estate.

“Mn. Is everything alright?” Lan Wang Ji asked when he emerged from the shadows with a towel and a change of clothes. He looked slightly damp, hair still wet though neatly tied with a couple of white ribbons to the back, and he was already wearing his satin-white nightgown. Wei Ying noticed that Wang Ji’s complexion was a healthy rosy colour – probably warmed from soaking in thermal spring-waters of their outdoor pool after dinner. Temperatures around the Burial Mounds tended to plummet after sunset these days, so hot baths were a necessity.

“Yeah.. although we didn’t lose anything from the fox intrusion last night, some of the energy threads had to be fixed because of the disturbance,” Wei Ying explained as he gladly took the change of clean clothes from Wang Ji’s hands and handed his bag of magical tools in return. “The chickens and rabbits looked a bit wary, so I doubled up the barrier’s strengths around the coop,” he continued with a wink, “the hens should be feeling safe tonight and will continue to happily lay eggs for us!” and gave a toothy grin.

There was a soft golden glow in Wang Ji’s eyes, as he looked at his smiling younger lover: a ball of pure-hearted sunshine although covered with dirt, sweat, grime and dried autumn leaves.

The older man cleared his throat after realizing he had stared a bit too (uncomfortably) long, and nodded as he held Wei Wuxian's bag of tools. He turned to walk over into a small workroom inside their home. It was filled with growing piles of unused furniture and an assortment of magical and non-magical tools, contraptions and half-finished inventions (and somewhere, a small indistinct partially-completed compass lay hidden-but-not-forgotten inside a drawer). "Well done, Wei Ying," he complimented, as he placed the bag on the floor along with other tools.

Wei Wuxian absently tapped his boots against the foot of the entrance to knock off small pieces of dirt and gravel from the soles. "Right? This is how Yiling Patriarch puts his awesome magical arts to good use, and everyone should appreciate this," he huffed in response to the praise, thrill evident in his voice, and his grin grew wider.

Lan Wang Ji re-appeared at the entrance to their home. "Mn. Very good use," he said. Then, he made little shoo-ing gestures with his hands. "Go now, and clean up," he said crisply.

Wei Wuxian opened his mouth to retort at being dismissed so quickly. He closed it back though, when he noticed something different about Wang Ji. He leaned closer to the older man, an indiscernible glint in his eyes that spoke of inquisitiveness mixed with caution. He sniffed the air around the sides of Wang Ji's face and towards the jawline.

Wang Ji stepped back immediately and caught a hand that was about to touch his forehead. He glared at Wei Wuxian as he gripped the younger man's wrist and pushed it down.

“Bath. Now.” There was a hint of warning in the low gruff voice.

“Ahh... okay, okay,” Wei Wuxian yielded and nodded repeatedly, before backing off. He adjusted the pile of towel and clothes in his hands, scratched the back of his head out of habit, and headed towards the bubbling heated pool just around the corner of their cave-home.

Wei Wuxian was quite certain that Lan Wang Ji looked a bit more flushed than before, and his breathing was imperceptibly heavier than usual. He shook his head, and thought nothing more of it as he merrily skipped his way towards his much-needed bath.

Back at home, Lan Wang Ji sighed heavily, dutifully took a broom from the closet, and began the task of sweeping off dirt and gravel that his partner left on the cave's entrance.

He laughed heartily, breathless, panting, body thrumming with sexual energy and he was close, oh so close to the edge. But he still laughed despite his cock demanding and protesting for release with angry twitches.

Wei Ying lay on the bed, drenched in sweat, hips lifted and supported by pillows, with a very agitated-looking equally sweat-drenched and panting Lan Wang Ji situated between his legs. The older man's penis, deeply sheathed inside his young lover, was still steel-hard, massive, pulsing and wanting.

“You... you came... twice? Already? In less than five minutes?” Wei Ying fell into another fit of childish giggles.

Lan Wang Ji looked absolutely devastated and red-faced; neither knew if it was from his embarrassingly lack of sexual control, or if he was just too flushed from the exertion.

“I.. I..” Wang Ji could not find the right words to fill their sparse conversation. His head was still abuzz, his limbs were quaking, his lower body still burning with unquenched desire, and his sexual qi energy levels were off the charts – exceeding all of his previously-known limits. It was beyond his mortal comprehension of what led him to this dire state.

He was still, very, incredibly, unspeakably, terrifyingly – horny.

“Was I that good? Hmm?” Wei Ying teased seductively, then bit his lips sexily (with a strand of hair from his bangs between his teeth, no less). “Has this Yiling Patriarch finally vanquished the great Han Guang Jun with his sexual prowess and make him weak in his knees with desire? Hmm? What do you say... Lao goooong?” he purred and swayed his hips sensuously to emphasize the sweet nickname.

Wang Ji blinked off another drop of sweat that rolled down from his forehead. He usually used his golden core to quell any unwanted burning desires, but it had long depleted from overuse in the hours after dinner and before bedtime. Internally, he was exhausted, spent, emptied, yet lust was building up again from within, and this time, threatening to spill and take over his consciousness.

“Lao gong, your wife isn’t satisfied here yet,” Wei Ying cooed provocatively and whined at the same time, bouncing his ass on the pillows to shake his own weeping erection to prove his point. Wang Ji felt his lover sucking him in deeper with every tantalizingly squishy cum-slicked slide and every captivating squeeze of flesh and muscles around his cock.

“You shameless...!” The older man was beyond disbelief at the outrageous act but could not finish his sentence; tendrils of pleasure entwined his insides, and spiralled its way dangerously from below the belly to the tip of his erection. He finally caved in when the arousing sensations became too unbearable, threw away all caution to the wind and any remaining self-restraint, and proceeded to plunge into his lover, hard.

Wei Ying mewled happily when his body was lifted higher with inhuman strength, and fucked deeply at a very precise angles (the prostate the prostate oh yes that special spot mmmhhh!). He started to ramble nonsensically about how he (the wife) wanted to feel good, how only Wang Ji could make him feel really really good, how he wanted to be knocked up and have many babies with Wang Ji, and described in great detail how the older man’s seeds were swimming and making their way to impregnate him.

He used the analogy of their chickens and pleaded for his Gong ji to inseminate all the eggs inside him, because as the Mu ji he wanted to lay many, many warm eggs for his dear husband. He described vivid depictions of eggs sliding out of his buttohole from his heavily pregnant belly, of how he would lay gently on the eggs and incubate them with his love, until they hatch into little Wei Yings and Lan Zhans.

And then, he talked on and on while being drilled, about how he was a beautiful yet vulnerable flower blooming in their vegetable garden patch. His pretty petals spread open and invitingly to any passers-by in broad daylight, and how he became surrounded, constantly assailed and pollinated by swarms of eager bees. He prattled on about how their furred winged bodies and legs caressed and excited him, causing him to leak out sweet nectar for them to feast, and how fertile male seeds were ejected in exchange, deep, deep inside his bloom that would eventually ripen into delicate tasty fruits like Caiyi Town's pipa.

Lan Wang Ji moaned weakly with each obscene story, having totally succumbed to his desire, and utterly helpless against such vulgar words from his younger lover.

Wei Ying licked his lips hungrily, then locked his legs around Wang Ji to draw him closer, until there was hardly any room for the older man to pump his hips. Lan Wang Ji became desperate for any form of friction for his wildly pulsating cock and resorted to tight grinding motions against wet fleshy folds coiling and tightening around the entire shaft. Wei Ying continued to spout dirty descriptions of their lovemaking playfully, and worked his inner pelvic muscles with such vigour to give the imprisoned cock extremely pleasurable rolling massages from the base to the tip of the arousal, coaxing out more of the thick milky liquid out of it.

Within minutes, Lan Wang Ji orgasmed again in a splendid display of a contorted look on his face, eyes glazed and unfocused, lusty groans rumbling from throat that was raw from too much grunting, quivering limbs barely holding up, rhythmically-contracting muscles from his arched back to his hips in repeated undulating motions, his potent white seed spurting deep and coating another layer to his lover's insides.

Wei Ying finally found his own release during Wang Ji's third magnificent effort to breed him that night, somewhere between his lover's second and sixth ejaculate, if he recalled correctly. In total, the results of their performance that night: Wang Ji – 3, Wei Ying – 1. It was enough. Wei Ying slumped bonelessly to the mattress with a satisfied sigh. He closed his eyes and smiled widely, welcoming the looming post-orgasm haze. He wiped off his cum off his belly with a ragcloth, and waited expectantly for Wang Ji to lie atop of him and hold him in a blissful embrace to sleep the night away.

Instead, the pillows supporting his hips were thoughtlessly yanked away. He yelped in surprise when Wang Ji grabbed his body and hoisted him up with their bodies still connected. The older man impatiently settled to a kneeling position on the creaky bed, and Wei Ying was crudely forced to sit on his lap. Wei Ying instinctively wrapped his legs around his lover's waist to keep himself from falling.

“L.. Lan Zhan?? What.. what are you doing?? Didn't you get e—enough??” Wei Ying stammered in astonishment. Lan Wang Ji held tightly to Wei Ying, his lips found the younger man's nipples at eye level and he began to bite and suck feverishly.

“Ow... not... not so hard,” Wei Ying groaned. His lover suckled like a hungry newborn and moved his body back and forth; Wei Ying felt his lover's cum-lubricated hard-on sliding in and out with the gentle rocking motion.

“Wei Ying,” Lan Zhan whimpered into the younger man’s chest; there was anguish in his voice.

Wei Ying caught on, and his face softened to one of pity and concern. “Is everything alright, Lan Zhan?” he asked, ignoring the throbbing pain of a swollen right nipple as his lover moved to abuse the other. Strong fingers roamed up and down his sides then to his back. Lan Wang Ji was trying to devour, and at the same time he was staving off the growing hunger with the act of feeding on his lover’s breast.

“Wei Ying, did you really cast a terrible spell on me tonight?” the older man asked directly, needy of the truth, face still buried in the younger man’s sparse bosom.

“No, Lan Zhan. You know I will never use my magical arts against you,” Wei Ying replied, cradling his lover’s head in a warm embrace. He began to move in tandem with the rocking motion, causing Wang Ji to break into moans of pleasure.

Lan Wang Ji reached up and pulled Wei Ying down into a scorching kiss. “Then, Wei Ying, did you put anything into my drink tonight?” he asked this time, between open-mouthed kisses, breathy gasps and tongue licking along the jawline. He was begging for an answer to his predicament, in which Wei Ying responded with equal fervour by plunging wet saliva-coated tongue into his.

Wei Ying rubbed soothing circles into Wang Ji's scalp, lips still locked with one another. "No, Lan Zhan. We only had tea with dinner, and I'm not drunk tonight," he breathed out between kisses.

Lan Wang Ji paused when he replayed the last few words in that sentence. His thinking process was clouded with delicious sparks of lust and pleasure dancing between his groin and brain, and he couldn't process their meaning. But those words, those words that weighed heavily and echoed so loudly inside his ears—

"Lao gong, I know what you've been up to," Wei Ying whispered breathily into those said ears, causing Wang Ji to shiver inwardly as frisson of unexpected excitement ran down his spine. "I know you like to make me drunk on some nights, and have your way with my body when I'm defenceless – but tonight," he placed a finger on Wang Ji's lips to seal off any attempts by the older man to explain himself, "tonight, my conscience and thoughts are clear, and I have no intention to drug anyone's drinks."

"I just wanted to have sex with you once, and rest for the night. Who knew that you would be up and willing for so many more rounds?" Wei Ying's voice dripped with honey and mischief. He ground his ass against Wang Ji's groin in suggestive circles. Wang Ji groaned again, and bit into Wei Ying's collarbone. The younger man hissed in response, and raked fingernails down Wang Ji's back, leaving behind fresh rising welts along with the old scars of Gusu Lan's punishment whips.

"Then, tell me, Wei Ying.. am I being punished for what I've done?" Lan Wang Ji pleaded with raw emotion and lust in his hoarse, trembling voice. His body felt like it had been set into flames that licked everywhere and especially along his impossibly hard arousal, a thousand needles' worth of sexual poison filling his bloodstream, an infinite thirst for release that could never be slaked. Wei Ying continued to squeeze and milk his lover with impressive finesse, eliciting pained cries from a man who desperately needed to rest and could not cum any time soon, but felt another wave of pleasurable contractions welling up from behind his tightening balls.

“Mmm... I might have added a little extra something into the lotus root pork rib soup in tonight’s dinner,” Wei Ying whispered and gave a little peck on Wang Ji’s feverish forehead. The latter gasped hard for air, his heart pounded excruciatingly strongly against his ribcage, as excitement mounts and surged towards his next climax.

Then, without warning, Wei Ying pushed Lan Wang Ji down to the bed and pinned the older man down with strong arms. He kissed the older man hard, tongue lashing against one another between locked lips, and his hips rose up and down at a back-breaking pace with a rock-hard spasming cock in between butt cheeks. “Please forgive me, Lan Zhan, because I did not intend this to happen,” he murmured between the kisses, and felt another wave of liquid warmth swelling from his bottom. He smiled as Lan Wang Ji orgasmed the fourth time inside him.

“What is done is done, and I’m taking responsibility,” he whispered louder this time, both compassion and malice coating his sugary sweet voice. Wei Ying continued to ride his lover in earnest. Wang Ji struggled weakly beneath him, pleading for mercy with incoherent moans and groans.

“Let me make love to you tonight to your heart’s satisfaction, my dear Lao gong.”

Wei Wuxian has always been, and still is, a man who helps the needy and the needful. During one of his daily trips to town, he ran into a hunter struggling with a net trap by the forest trail. When asked about what happened and whether he could be of assistance, he learned that the hunter was from the nearby Huang village and he had trouble untangling the trap after it caught a small wild boar.

Being an former resident of lakeside Lotus Pier, Wei Wuxian is no stranger to handling fishermen's nets, and is a master with the intricacies of setting, tying and of course, untangling complex structures made of ropes. He quickly solved the hunter's problems and the hunter was grateful for the help.

After skinning, gutting and cutting up the wild boar, he offered one of its legs as a token of thanks, along with tips on how to catch such creatures. The old bearded man pointed to Wei Wuxian's satchel containing packed lunch, and said that with the correct trap, bait (such as flatbreads and dumplings) and patience, one could catch these elusive but meaty creatures to sustain hungry family members for the winter. Wei Wuxian appreciated the hunter's gifts and after a short exchange of pleasantries, they parted their own ways.

On the way back, Wei Wuxian contemplated the many ways to cook the meat. There were countless ways – as many recipes as there are cookbooks in Yiling's Library Pavillion – and with each idea and the accompanying mouth-watering images, he became increasingly hungry and impatient to reach home.

There was a catch, though. He wasn't sure if his partner would like such wild gamey red meat, or if he even tried it before. He knew such meats could cause qi deviations for the uninitiated and the untested, with unknown consequences. The best option would be to boil away the blood and taste, however that would be a waste for such a precious and highly-prized meat.

Then, he remembered that his partner had made 18 versions of his favourite soup. He had watched and learnt how the soup was made in their small kitchen, memorized the ingredients used and techniques for preparation and cooking.

The picture of Lan Wang Ji, majestic in his silver-white inner garments, glowing ethereally in the golden evening sunlight that filtered through their kitchen window, standing in front of a bubbling pot of soup on the stove, one hand holding ladle of lotus root pork rib soup to his lips, the other resting on his back – is a memory that Wei Wuxian would forever cherish in this lifetime.

Having made his decision, he walked faster and soon broke into a sprint towards home. He felt accomplished for the day's work and for the single slab of leaf-wrapped wild boar meat hanging from his belt. He would make a dish that both he and his partner can enjoy for dinner.

The results surpassed his expectations, to say the least.

Notes for the Chapter:

I had loads of fun imagining their domestic bliss and the occasional Qi deviation.

Chapter 4

He woke up with an audible snort, drool pooling into (an unfortunate) someone's collarbone, and his sleep-tousled long hair spread everywhere – even on that said (unfortunate) someone's face. Ahhh, he dreamt of catching jungle fowls and bringing the fat ones back home when he heard rolling thunder from darkening cloudy skies behind him. He ran, and ran, two fattest chickens in tow, but couldn't go fast enough, because his aching hips were killing him, he was limping as painfully as being skewered by his indomitable lover every night, and the mighty roar of countless thunders started to wreck his hearing and crescendo into.. the tune of snores...?! Heavens forbid, how could there be snoring thunder; even the darkest of magical arts could not conjure such a horrible-sounding weather phenomenon – at which point he was rudely awoken by that (unfortunate) someone's loud snore, and he involuntarily added his own snort.

It took nearly a minute for him to regain his composure and calm down his breathing. Just a dream, just a dream, he chanted to himself. He stretched quietly like a cat and let out a satisfying nnnngh (the hip joints seem to pop and crackle in protest), before nuzzling (more like, rubbing his sleepy face all over) into the warm wide muscled chest beneath his cheeks where he felt strong heartbeats against the skin. It was re-assurance, contentment, happiness and relaxation all rolled into one. Just a dream, just a dream.

A cool autumnal breeze blew through their bedroom's window, and Wei Wuxian shivered a bit. He snuggled deeper into the thick blanket covering his back, and pressed his body closer to the hot water bottle-warmth beneath him. He liked being sandwiched between blanket and boyfriend (or more aptly called, husband).

Before long, he settled into the crook of that someone's neck (his sleep-hazed brain refused to even give a name to this "someone"), and scooted his hips downwards so that they lay snugly between that someone's thighs. He took comfort that this nicely-intimate position wouldn't cause any bodily strains from weird sleeping postures that he was prone to. Both his hands and legs hooked to that (unfortunately) someone's torso and legs into a tight embrace, like a spider catching and holding onto its prey.

Lan Zhan made an adorable "Mmmh" sound when squeezed (more like, trapped) by Wei Wuxian, turned his head slightly to the side with a constipated look of discomfort on his face, and this was followed by an unadorably rude snore. Morally righteous Han Guang Jun slept very well, it seemed, after what Wei Wuxian thought was a night of immoral and absolutely un-righteous acts of wild animalistic rutting in their love nest.

Wei Wuxian shut his eyes tightly, silently begging the snores to go away. The sun wasn't up yet, though by this hour, surely Lan Zhan would already be busy with his morning routine of cleaning the house, feeding the animals and toiling the garden. Has Lan Wang Ji ever slept so well that he forgets his five-o'-clock? Does the noble Han Guang Jun, life-bound by the over-4000 rules of the Gusu Lan sect, even oversleep?

Another loud snore answered his questions.

Too early, too early, he berated those annoying throaty rumbling sounds. Nnnh, let me sleep. Five more minutes, please? He rubs the both his heels into Lan Zhan's foot arches in sensual circles, a gentle unspoken request from the younger man which elicited a soft moan from the older one. That didn't help, though, as Lan Zhan resumed his lullaby of disconcerting sounds (at least from Wei Wuxian's perspective).

Wei Wuxian felt his lower body slid down when Lan Zhan moved a bit in his sleep. He wriggled up and started to draw sweeping, arousing circles with his crotch against his lover's, making sure that their cocks and balls rub each other's thoroughly. To Wei Wuxian, the act felt like scratching an itch behind the balls, though he wondered how his lover felt. Lan Zhan's member hardened noticeably.

Still, another snore tore through the air in the quiet bedroom.

Finally, unable to stand the sounds drumming right into his ears, Wei Wuxian roused himself up, eyes still half-open and face plastered with saliva (mixed with bits of sweet-sometimes-tangy-pungent flavoured cum that he thought belonged to Lan Zhan, maybe his, or both). He let the thick blanket slip off his body, and then he carefreely pulled up his legs so that he sat cross-legged on Lan Zhan's groin (because Lan Zhan is that strong and has no problems holding up to his Wei Ying's weight with just his hips or better still, just with his erection).

Out of habit and still half-asleep, he picked up one of Lan Zhan's lovely locks from the bedspread, and started braiding absently into a messy-looking twist of hair. He grinned and snorted again at the ugly-looking thing, because it reminded him a little of Jiang Cheng's.

One more snore, this time a really loud one. Wei Wuxian's frustration was creeping up on him, and he wanted to yank the braided hair to stop the noise.

Wei Wuxian nearly woke his lover with a strong ass-grind into his lover's crotch and loud whiny "Lan Zhaaaaaan", when he felt something slippery and warm trickle out from his bottom. The disturbing sensation jolted his senses fully awake and stopped him in his tracks.

Wei Wuxian quietly hopped off the bed in a single leap and bounded for the exit of their bedroom. He grabbed some clothes on his way out, though he didn't notice that he left a small sticky unmistakably white-coloured pool on his lover's fine pubes where he sat just moments ago.

Three layers of thick robes and pyjamas off, pants pulled down and carelessly flung far, far away (he hoped the silky-white apparel would catch on top of one of the bushes so that he didn't have to look far to find it, later), the boots somewhere in-between – he "brrrr"s when wintry-cold temperature hit his skin like an electric shock, and quickly tip-toed to the stream. Foggy clouds hung heavily on ground level like steam puffing out from a kettle. Dawn was approaching and he could see slivers of a cloudy sunrise in the far, far distance beyond the Burial Mounds' mountains.

He hugged himself tightly to ward off the chill; his body was entirely covered with hard and prickly goosebumps. He was lucky to find a shallow spot along a stream near their home within the first few minutes. His toes gingerly touched the clear running waters, and when he is assured that it was warm, he slid one foot in and "ahhhh"s in sheer satisfaction. At that point, he thanked all 108 known local gods for supplying the valleys in the Burial Mounds with Qishan's volcanic thermal springwaters. The sound of insects continued to drone on in the background, with morningbirds' chirpings added intermittently, as he finally (and gratefully) steps into the soothing mineral-rich currents.

Soon, he was squatting in knee-deep waters until his head and shoulders bobbed above the surface. He wasn't there for skinny-dipping (he wasn't the sort of early riser who willingly starts the day with healthy work-outs) or to catch the sunrise (there wasn't much to see beyond their little cave home, the lotus pond, the vegetable gardens and the surrounding fruit trees – plus, the inhabitants of the chicken coop were still asleep). Instead, he busied himself with the first priority of his daily personal hygiene routine.

On this fine autumn morning, Wei Wuxian forced himself up at the crack of dawn, and fingered the crack of his ass while wading in a stream of hot-spring water. He reached behind to wash away streaks of cum that had crusted on the cleft of his buttocks, and tried valiantly to scoop out mostly-dried clumps of semen from his butthole.

Who would have thought that the almighty Yiling Patriarch Wei Wuxian – once feared as the scourge of Mankind, whose name still invokes fear and reverence amongst the realm of cultivators, and whose (greatly-altered) portraits continue to line the homes of the rich and famous to scare away thieves and potentially otherworldly visitors too – would be the lone figure hidden in the shadows of the wee hours of the morning, hunched in a small river trying to wash off evidence of intense love-making from the night before? Notorious reputation surely preceded him!

He winced at the twinges of pain that danced across his bare back, when the waters gently lapped at numerous bitemarks and fingerprint-bruises which decorated the skin, especially near the neckline and shoulders.

Wei Wuxian proceeded to prod through the sensitive puckered hole between his butt cheeks and reach deep inside. It was neither sexy, ticklish nor uncomfortable, rather, it was a very familiar sensation – though not one that he would like to perform on his own. One fingertip grazed the rather tender entrance and hit a particularly pleasurable spot. He moaned and started to blush lightly from the mix of cool morning air against his cheeks and from feeling embarrassed with the open-air (and under-water) display of ‘anal masturbation’, if he followed the descriptions of the textbooks correctly about such obscene acts of playing with one’s butt.

Ooh, last night was so, so wild, he sighed dreamily to no one in particular.

He remembered riding Lan Zhan wildly last night, splattering his own semen and other bodily fluids all over his lover’s waist with powerful ejaculations that spanned across the length of their bed. He remembered watching through hooded gaze: those lovely six-pack abs tensed up in unison and relaxed repeatedly, as he was lifted up and down while riding waves of jerking hip muscles. Lan Zhan’s furrowed eyebrows, a sheen of sweat on his forehead where the Lan family’s headband used to be (long, long ago), his long lush sweat-glistening hair carpeting their bed, Lan Zhan’s fingers gripping his ass so hard that he knew it would instantly leave tell-tale marks for many nights. Oh how Lan Zhan looked in the dim moonlight, spread-eagled underneath the great Yiling Patriarch and totally at Wei Wuxian’s mercy, naked skin glowing with silverlight as ethereal as his silk-white garments, eyes shut tightly with pain-pleasure, lips parted trying to restrain lusty grunts through gritted teeth, breathing heavily as he gasped for air because he was straining so hard, so hard, deliciously thrusting as fast as their quickening heartbeats, sheathing himself balls deep right to the hilt, as he erupted into climax after climax. Lan Zhan lovingly filled young Wei Ying a little more, but he didn’t stop there, and continued to couple with his lover like rabbits in heat.

Wei Wuxian moaned softly, lost in his reverie, as one finger dipped again into his ass, scraping out the stickiness and caressing the flesh that had been thoroughly pounded and stretched not too long ago.

His ass clenched involuntarily when he recalled memories of Lan Zhan plunging his oil-lubricated iron-hard cock endlessly into him. Lan Zhan slammed in deep from above him, while he, the great Yiling Patriarch, was forcefully pinned down on all fours underneath the older man on semen-spattered bedsheets, clinging onto his dear life as his ass was deliciously drilled, his prostate lovingly abused from six different angles to the point where his entire lower body became a shuddering mess of numbness, tingles and shocks, his insides stretched and shaped by the invading organ, his whole body was hammered into the bed, and he came, came again, consecutively, definitely more than six times that night because he lost count after that – without even touching himself, because Lan Zhan was that good at making him climax with just his ass alone.

Wei Wuxian curled, swirled, and scissored with two, then three fingers. There was a brief stinging sensation from stroking the abused passageway.

Just a few hours before, amidst his hoarse cries of Slow down Lan Zhan Ohgodplease Slow down, he remembered listening with his heart to Lan Zhan's sex-dripping groans into his reddened ears, in time with the maddening pace of relentless fucking, occasionally his teeth nipped the earlobes, alternating with gentle bites along his jaw, his sex-flushed neck and shoulders, Lan Zhan's fingers intertwining with his, his thin waist quaking with exhaustion from holding up against Lan Zhan's merciless pounding force from above, the wet sounds of flesh slapping against flesh as Lan Zhan penetrates balls-deep before pulling out, and then diving in again. He couldn't breathe, couldn't make sense of the bedroom rocking wildly in his vision, he felt so full, yet he wanted more, wanted to scream, orgasm fast rising, another wave of toes-curling pleasure riding from the base of his spine and spread through his loins like wildfire, coiling up his tired dripping twitching cock until –

Wei Wuxian sighed again, this time with a droplet of drool hanging off his lips, as more delectable, mesmerizing images flashed across his mind; of Lan Zhan pressing him down to the bed (and probably leaving a visual imprint into the well-tortured furniture), squeezing his muscular ass muscles rhythmically, every muscle and fibre in the limbs taut, his face twisted in pained, ecstatic agony, his deep growls echoing off the bedroom walls as natural instinct takes over and he tries to breed Wei Ying by planting warm virile seed deep side the younger man, some even spilling out of the swollen asshole because it was already overflowing, the sticky stains on bedsheets growing in number and volume with each passing hour into the night, and Wei Wuxian himself moaning wantonly for his lover, “Lao gong... Lao gong...”. Every breathy seductive call for Lan Zhan spurs the older man’s sex drive further, and not even five minutes passed after his last ejaculation, that he became hard again and pummelled Wei Wuxian deeply towards their next orgasm. Leaks become gushes as the night wore on, when Wei Wuxian’s ass becomes too full and spills onto the bedsheet, joining the growing pools of his own liberally oozing cum, and Lan Zhan drives his hips forward then sheathes himself completely into the younger man, loins burning with desire, balls and cock pulsing, sending fresh waves of semen flooding into Wei Wuxian.

Wei Wuxian sees everything. He had placed paper talismans all over their home and the surrounding areas. They look for intruders, monitor every living creature’s movements, eavesdrop to conversations and detect changes in spiritual energy levels; they also give Wei Wuxian the most intimate viewing angles of their nightly love-making and transmit juicy sounds that accompany the vulgar acts of men copulating with one another.

One particularly large dollop of dried semen was scraped out, and he caught a glimpse of gooey milky white rising up the water surface being carried away by the flow. He flicked his hands to make sure nothing stuck to his fingers. Eeew, he gagged internally.

He chuckled as he imagined the stringy chunky remnants of their wild passionate sex float along the stream that connected to their lotus pool, before dissolving away and disappearing into one of the tributaries leading to the major river system surrounding the Burial Mounds. He wondered if the fishes and shrimps residing in their pool actually fed on the extra protein; he also wondered if that explained why the fishes grew and fattened up exceptionally fast despite the cold weather, to the point where they were able to harvest at least one good-sized fish every few days. Wei Wuxian fell into a fit of childish giggles at such juvenile thoughts, leaving water rippling outward from his hunched form.

Then, revelation struck.

Lan Zhan loved eating boiled fish served with Yiling’s famous tofu and plain stir-fried vegetables from their garden. Oh merciful Goddess Guan Yin... the fish, the fish!

This time, Wei Wuxian broke into a guffaw of laughter and he lost his balance. He slipped into the shallow edge of the stream, continued laughing, choked when he breathed in water, nearly drowned, splashed helplessly with flailing limbs, surfaced for air, couldn't keep his laughter down, drank more water in loud gurgles, and choked again.

“Wei Ying..?”

Wei Wuxian swallowed two more gulps of water before answering in-between laughs and coughs, “I’m here, I’m here!”. He waved energetically from where he sat on the riverbed, and splashed water around rather playfully.

Lan Zhan stood stiffly by the stream, clothed in layers of thick robes, a broom clutched in his right hand, his lover’s carelessly-abandoned robes, pants and boots already collected and arranged neatly on his left arm, and a very concerned look on his face.

“Ah.. hahaha.. I was just (cough) washing my face... when I slipped a little (cough),” Wei Wuxian managed to explain hesitantly as he tried to catch his breath. He would die of sheer embarrassment if his lover had found out what he was doing out in the open just moments ago. He rose out of the water and intended to make a quick grab for his clothes from Lan Zhan’s hands before running off.

Lan Zhan’s eyes widened at the spellbinding sight of Wei Wuxian standing stark naked – a lean slightly built figure, pale skin pockmarked with countless faded bitemarks and kiss-reddened spots (mine, all mine, he growls inwardly), yet tinged with gold from the glow of daybreak against the still-dark cloudy skies, hair and body wet with rivulets of water dripping down like sweet juicy nectar from deliciously ripe fruits. He stumbled a step back, and marvelled at the entrancing banquet that was displayed before him, and he feels a kind of sexual hunger gnawing, desire rising, slow fire burning up, starting from his loins.

“Gimme my clothes,” Wei Wuxian ordered nonchalantly and reached out with one arm. Rather than the expected handover of garments, Lan Zhan dropped everything he held to the ground in a single thud, and Wei Wuxian stammered, “H—Hey! What are you doing?”

Wei Wuxian followed his lover’s stare and realized belatedly the state he was in. Hands flashed across his chest and downwards to his crotch in a useless attempt to cover whatever dignity he had left (really, are male nipples considered dignified, and why cover yourself when he’s already seen you naked a thousand times, an unheard voice said).

“Ahh! Don’t look! Pervert! Don’t!” he shouted, aghast, as he turned his back against Lan Zhan. Wei Wuxian’s face turned into six shades of crimson-red and he was internally dying six times from that aforementioned sheer embarrassment. He couldn’t stand being sexually harassed by his lover in broad daylight (is this really harassment, that unheard voice asked), let alone tolerate a kiss on the lips in public (but really, there is no one else watching you right now except for that guy, said that same unheard voice accusingly).

Wei Wuxian’s eyes widened in surprise when he heard rustling sounds of the older man disrobing and undressing in record time. Within a few heartbeats, Lan Zhan walked determinedly into the stream with such force, that it felt like the running waters parted to give way for the man in the nude to embrace Wei Ying passionately from behind.

“Lan Zhan! What... fuck, get off, you horny animal! Didn’t you have enough fun last night?” The younger man struggled and splashed water everywhere, but he was unable to escape from Lan Zhan’s strong grip across his abdomen.

“You tempt me from bed to the bathwaters here. You should control yourself better,” hot air blew into his ears, followed by nips at the earlobes and down the throat. Wei Wuxian shivered. One strong hand gripped his left thigh and lift it up abruptly. He nearly lost balance and fell back, only to be pillowed by Lan Zhan’s muscular chest as he teetered on one foot. A slimy warm throbbing meaty stick (yes, yes that’s how Wei Wuxian imagined it) jabbed gently at his exposed butthole.

“Stop rubbing your dick into my ass! I’m still sore!” The raging hard-on forced its way through the resistant ring of muscles, aided by traces of slick semen that still oozed out from his earlier attempt to clean up. The rather uncomfortable penetration was followed by a string of curses from the younger man; even Merciful Goddess Guan Yin’s name was not spared.

“And I’m still hard. Be fair to me, please,” Lan Zhan whispered hungrily and heavily into Wei Wuxian’s ears, and started to pump his hips. Wei Wuxian was quite horrified to see his reflection in the waters beneath him – of how his naked body was shamelessly displayed to the world outside their home, and how his half-hard penis dangled and shook with each thrust in broad daylight.

Lan Zhan let out a dangerously impatient growl, and with admirable strength he lifted Wei Wuxian’s other leg. The younger man cried out at the unexpected move, as his body braced against Lan Zhan’s upper body and became completely in the latter’s mercy. Lan Zhan continued his steady pace of fucking his spread-eagled partner, held only by his arms and his impossibly hard erection. He made sure to fill his lover thoroughly with each thrust, and at times, thick white foamy seed from their love-making the night before was pushed out, trailed down the underside of his pistoning cock, before finally dripping into the rippling waters below.

“No one will see,” Lan Zhan answered, panting. Wei Wuxian’s angry shouts dissolved into rambling unintelligible moans, punctuated by soft cries every time the pulsing shaft slides in at different angles and generously assaults the quivering prostate.

“This.. this is... r– rape... nnnnh....” Wei Wuxian weakly protested, before succumbing into another wave tingly pleasure running up from the base of his spine to the tip of his pre-cum dripping cock.

“And last night wasn’t?” Lan Zhan voice became hoarse with lust; accusing too. He was sweating and his body trembled at the first signs of a rising orgasm. He loved how his Wei Ying continued to clench his inner muscles involuntarily every time he pushed deep to sheathed himself completely. Wild imaginations of breeding rabbits crossed his mind, and fuelled the burning desire to inseminate, and impregnate the man in his arms. To Lan Zhan, the pleasure that comes from Wei Wuxian's body is both indescribable and divine.

“Fuck... you.... nggahh...” The younger man's final feeble verbal attempt to fend off Lan Zhan was commendable, though ultimately futile.

“Mn. Maybe next time.” Lan Zhan gently bites the back of his lover's neck, adding another ring of teethmarks to the many others lining the same place. He was very close to his first climax of the day, and he knew his Wei Ying isn't too far away – judging from how the younger man's back arched, toes curled in mid-air, fingers clawed and clutched at his forearms, the copious amounts of slippery drops trickling from the now-erect arousal, and how the breathy moans turned into a keening cry as he slammed his hips harder against Wei Ying's ass.

Wei Wuxian thought that he should try hunting wild boars. The meat is versatile and suited many types of cooking, and makes many filling meals for the coming winter season. He salivated and his stomach growled at yummy mental images of spicy braised pork, stir-fried ginger pork, wild boar curries, and countless other recipes that the Yiling Library Pavillion holds within its numerous bookshelves.

Lan Wang Ji thought that he should really avoid Wei Wuxian's lotus root pork rib soup, or red meat in general, for the time being. He couldn't fathom what really happened that night, but he suspected a particular kind of meat, at least. Boiled fish sounded better. After careful consideration, he nods to himself and plans on making more fish-based dishes for dinner in the coming days.

Dinner at the Lan's will never be boring again.

Notes for the Chapter:

That's it, for now. I've just completed a re-watch of CQL Untamed, and writing up to this point has totally drained the smut out of my system.

A nice NovelUpdates forumer mentioned about Lan Zhan eating 'boiled fish', so here it is. Enjoy!

I may write more chapters in the future, depending on interest and mood - also since I did promise that this is an eternal work-in-progress *winks*. I've left enough plot devices for future chapters... and if anyone is interested in this 'universe', please feel free to take up anything from these fics and expand on your own.

Chapter 5

After the mind-blowingly incredible (but embarrassing) open-air sex in the stream at dawn, Lan Wang Ji avoided all physical contact and kept a safe distance from Wei Ying, for fear of triggering another bout of uncontrolled carnal desires. Despite their seemingly endless sex marathon the night before, Wang Ji still looked in the pink of condition - his complexion was rosy, his skin practically glowed, and well-defined outlines of muscles were visible even through thick layers of clothes. Wei Ying, on the other hand, looked worse for wear due to the lack of sleep and a numb arse, but more importantly, from neglect from his lover since that morning.

The younger man looked unkempt and even a little haggard. No one helped to comb his hair, and subtle day-old stubbles began to show on his face. His clothes were in disarray - mismatched colours of white and dark browns, unbuttoned and wrinkled, and so were his footwear with each boot from a different pair. He had relied far too much on his lover for the morning routines, that he had forgotten what it meant to take care of himself.

The only indication that Lan Wang Ji still thought of Wei Ying was that the younger man found a bowl of wheat noodles steaming in meat broth, topped with two hard-boiled eggs, chilli peppers and vegetables, waiting for him on the dining table. Wei Ying ate breakfast quietly on his own in the absence of his lover - his first time having a meal alone at home since they moved into the cave-home over a year ago. He found his appetite lacking although there was nothing wrong with the food - it tasted just fine and the presentation was flawless, as usual. In the end, he gulped down as much as his queasy stomach would allow, and disappointedly left the bowl of then-chilled noodles on the kitchen counter.

For the next couple of hours, Wei Ying was left to wallow in his own remorse in their home, alone.

“Brrr... It’s getting really cold! Maybe we should just forget about going ou-ou-ou... Achoo!!”

Wei Ying sneezed, before pulling his winter robes tightly around himself to conserve whatever that remained of his body heat. He crouched close to the bare vegetable patch and looked like an oversized turnip that grew from the ground. He was fully prepared for what he thought was his final trip to town for a while - a couple of empty sacks and a bag slung over his shoulder, ready to be filled with a day’s worth of purchase.

He looked up dejectedly at the horizon. The morning turned out to be much grayer than expected. Ominous-looking nebulous shapes billowed down the hills and blanketed valleys with chilly temperatures and thick mists, leaving behind the first signs of frost in their wake.

“Ahhhh,” he groaned to the murky skies, “Would it be too much to ask for another day of fine weather? Can’t the heavens grant this young man one last safe passage to town?”

Freezing winds picked up in intensity, sending whistling sounds screeching through barren fruit trees around the garden.

Wei Ying pointed a handmade bamboo flute at an enormous mass of snowy cloud approaching his line of sight. “This Yiling Patriarch offers two - yes, TWO - jars of Laozu’s Smiles from Yiling City, in return for this life-changing request! What do you say?” he shouted at the direction of the flute.

Lightning struck, followed by a deafening thunderclap. Wei Ying cringed, quickly put away the bamboo instrument, and shrunk back to the ground.

He grumbled inwardly about bad luck. The first heavy snowfall forecasted later the day meant that mountain passes and trails would become impassable for at least a week.

Wei Ying had planned to make a quick trip to Liao’s General Store at Yiling City that morning. He needed to buy some metal tools from for some home improvement projects, so that he could keep himself busy and wouldn’t become bored during the bleak winter. He had procrastinated and sat on ideas for many months, and forced himself to finally do something when he realized that he’d passed their first anniversary of living together without much fanfare - because their cave-home and its dull and scant interior looked somewhat the same as when they first moved in.

Really, what would SiZhui say when both he and Wen Ning visit during the next Spring Festival?

In Wei Ying' mind, there was already a list of things that needed to be done, and he proudly thought he excelled in labor-intensive crafts that Lan Wang Ji usually avoided, such as carpentry, plumbing and general maintenance work for their cave-home (yes, Wei Wuxian always thought of himself as the Handyman Of The House) :

- First, repairs on the furniture; because the chairs, tables and especially the creaky king-sized bed bought from second hand stores last year has seen better days, and he thought putting on a few lotus-themed timber carvings could add a more homely touch to their humble abode's atmosphere. Also, he needed to build a new wooden bench to replace the one next to their lotus pond, because the last time he gave Lan Zhan an incredibly satisfying outdoor blowjob (which left the older man moaning and trembling in the throes of four consecutive orgasms without any breaks in-between), the structure finally creaked its final crack, gave way to the passionate strength of the couple's oral lovemaking, and shattered spectacularly into numerous pieces with a resounding, climactic bang.
- Secondly, digging a few more ditches to irrigate their winter crops of kale, peas, radishes and other root vegetables; because the latest batch refused to sprout after a couple of weeks in the cold earth. He thought the scenario resembled the time when he tried to plant lotus seeds at his former home in the 'Mounds, sixteen years ago - perhaps all that was needed was patience, tender loving care, and blessings from Qishan's mineral-rich warm waters. Also, he had some vague ideas about building an elaborate bamboo piping system along the walls and underneath their home to ensure the interior is adequately heated all-year round (it is a great pity that Wei Wuxian did not patent this home geothermal energy-harvesting concept, otherwise his name would have gone down in history as a brilliant inventor ahead of his time - actually, he never thought about this, because all he wanted was to be able to laze around at home and have plenty of sex with his lover without needing to get out of bed every hour to put more firewood into the stove.

- Thirdly, the number of half-finished contraptions in their small workroom had finally spilled into the rest of their cave-home; in fact, Lan Zhan's guqin was already buried somewhere inside a small mountain of crafted wood and rocks, and he felt guilty for being the root cause of the owner's distress whenever the latter wanted to play a calming instrumental piece to soothe frayed nerves (in which Wei Ying obligingly offers "happy hour" sex to a frustrated Er Ge ge, and makes sure his lao gong stays inside him long enough to drain and tire the latter, until the older man falls blissfully asleep snoring, and peace reigns in their household for yet another night). Most of the inventions still lacked some critical parts or a reliable energy source, and he thought that having the metal tools would at least solve part of the struggle to complete anything worthwhile.
- Finally, he thought he should put more effort to enhance and extend their living space, such as:
  - Upgrading their cozy three-room home, including installing more lantern fixtures in the workroom because he needed more light for his crafting work (and to find stuff underneath the piles of more stuff), a wider kitchen to accommodate a new oven (so that he could finally convince Lan Zhan to bake those tasty spicy-sweet treats that he craved, after reading some interesting recipes from the Library Pavillion's cookbooks), and adding a few more chambers to their cave-home (the dream of owning a spacious towering fortress in the heart of the 'Mounds, fit for a Patrich, has to start somewhere, right?).

Somewhere at the back of his mind, he also thought of trying out sex in different locations of their home, because he didn't want to confine their lovemaking within the four walls of their bedroom. His mouth watered at delectable mental images of Lan Zhan mounting him frenziedly in various obscene positions and places, witnessed by many watchful eyes from every imaginable angle by Wei Ying's voyeuristic paper talismans.

- Expanding the storage cellar which was a small covered hole in the ground at the moment, because he calculated that their food storage space requirements would increase exponentially in the coming months from their crops and animals (rabbits were still off the menu, however they might start rearing goats and pigs if they could buy some young animals from other farmers - maybe at Huang village too -, and not to forget, the population of domesticated fowls in the coop were set to explode come next Spring since Wei Ying trapped a few more hens from the surrounding forests not too long ago).
- Making better use of their vast, sprawling estate in the desolate Burial Mounds, by building tool or working sheds, or even a proper outhouse. So, having the right tools in hand would help him clear the land, take measurements, plan the construction work, and make preparations for a busy season of stone and woodwork.

However, everything on Wei Ying's list described in great length and detail would be for naught, if only he could find that little notebook hidden somewhere in the workroom. It contained all the plans, drawings and ideas he'd jotted down during summer; proof that he did not idle his time away by daydreaming or loitering around Yiling City for quality wines. He remembered stowing the book along with the guqin and its manuscripts - therefore, his first priority for the coming winter season was to equip himself with the said metal tools, then perform the much-needed spring cleaning to extract the crucial book from the mountain of stuff (also, to finally return guqin to its sex-satiated owner), and lastly, start working his ass off because his reputation of being the Handyman Of The House was truly at stake after a year's worth of dawdling.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Wang Ji's heavy footsteps jolted Wei Ying from his reverie. The older man too, prepared to set out for a journey through the woods despite the worsening climate. He adjusted fur-lined sleeves, secured a few more button knots, and stood up straighter than ever. Clothes and long lush hair flared and flowed (almost elegantly, regally) every time the winds picked up. Seen from afar, Lan Wang Ji was an indomitable towering figure set against the gloomy, windswept landscape.

"I'm going now," he said coolly when he trudged past Wei Ying.

"Ah... L-Lan Zhan?" the latter called out with uncertainty. "Do you really need to go to Huang village again? That's about two hours' walk from here... in this weather!" the younger man exclaimed, "and we've already stocked up with enough provisions to last the whole winter!"

The older man stopped in his tracks. He pursed his lips, turned his head slightly to give an icy glance, before his visage returned to its expressionless mask.

Wei Ying pouted sadly, disheartened at being ignored.

“Lan Zhan, I know you’re upset. I already said that I was sorry...” he whined as he sat on his haunches. He picked up a pebble and absently rolled it between his fingers.

“You can stay if you want,” Wang Ji offered, without an ounce of emotion in his voice.

“But I want to go to Liao’s hardware store.”

“Then go,” came the harsh reply. The pebble dropped, soundless.

“Lan Zhan!” he called out twice, in vain, when Wang Ji marched ahead.

It wasn’t really about who wanted to go, or to where.

In desperation, Wei Ying rushed forward on bended knees and managed to grab one of Wang Ji’s legs. “Can’t we talk about this?” he pleaded with his face buried into the older man’s garments.

“Please?” he clutched and shook the limb with a death tight grip, despite the owner’s unyielding struggle threatened to kick him in the jaw and slam him to the ground.

“Let... go! You can do whatever you want, and you don’t have to follow me anymore!” Lan Wang Ji shouted back in a rare display of fury. His patience wore dangerously thin at Wei Ying’s childish demeanour and uncharacteristic thigh-grabbing antics.

“No! Please, don’t go! Not like this!” Wei Ying begged, his voice shrill and frantic. He tugged hard, and Wang Ji stumbled a few steps when he lost his balance. The older man let out an exasperated growl.

“Get. Off.” Wang Ji’s voice was dangerously low and seething with anger. For the first time since his return to the living world, Wei Ying felt immense fear and helplessness. He instinctively released his grip and stared at his own hands in horror.

His fingertips throbbed with lingering warmth from Wang Ji’s clothes. His robes fell open when his shoulders slumped, and he shivered as wind swirled around the quiet courtyard. The tension between him and Wang Ji was as thick as winter’s deepest snowfall, and he could almost taste the bitterness in the air with his tongue.

Lan Wang Ji glared at the pitiful kneeling form for a full minute.

“Don’t leave me,” Wei Ying’s wavering voice broke into a sob, and a single tear rolled down his cheeks.

No response. Another gust blew, sending clouds of dust and dry gravel rising into the air.

Wei Ying sniffled loudly, uncertain whether from the raw emotions that choked his throat, or if his nose itched from the dusty air. The silence was deafening, and he needed to fill the void with something, anything; a thousand words to cling to his lips, of begging for forgiveness and compassion, yet he was terrified to speak any of them lest he infuriates the Er Gongzi and destroy whatever that was left of his happiness.

“If... If you don’t care about me, then... there’s no one else in this world who would...” he cried softly and his voice faltered. Fingers clenched into fists by his side, and he dared not look up because he was afraid that he might lose everything if he sees his lover.

“Xian Xian is wrong, please... please forgive this fragile, flawed man,” he whispered, and then shut his eyes. He held his breath and waited on aching knees; here was a man whose fate hung by a thread, and he hoped that judgement would be swift, either in the form of the kindest or cruelest words, or of Bichen’s cold unforgiving blade going through his heart - the result would still be the same, anyway.

Wei Ying had to sniffle another time to hold back the tears running down his eyes and nose. He swallowed, hard. Saltiness mixed with bitterness, becoming sour when his stomach tightened with severe anxiety, and he felt the acid rise.

It seemed an eternity had passed, before Lan Wang Ji finally spoke.

“Promise.”

It took a moment for Wei Ying to figure out what the older man said. Countless possibilities raced across his mind, he didn't know and couldn't choose the right ones, and so he did not hesitate to utter everything that he had held back with bated breath. Words spilled and poured through, unbridled and overflowing as chaotically as his panicked thoughts.

“I promise! I promise! I will not repeat the same mistake ever! I promise not to do it anymore! I swear if it happens again, then the Heavens can take my life immediately and throw my soul back to the dead, never to resurrect, not in a million lifetimes! I promise to be good, I promise to be a better person, I promise--”

He didn't realize that he held up a three-finger salute as he declared his promises, until he felt the other man grasping those three fingers. At that moment, he opened his eyes in shock, only to be greeted by the wonderfully heartwarming sight of thick broom/Bichen-calloused fingers clutching his hands and a soft, concerned expression on his face.

His resolve to face his worst fears crumbled needlessly with the forgiveness reflecting in Wang Ji's eyes. When Wang Ji intertwined his fingers with the same hand that held the salute of spoken promises, Wei Ying cried .

Lan Wang Ji knelt and embraced Wei Ying with his other arm, shielding the latter from the cold with his wide sleeve, and at the same time enveloping both of them in a cocoon of relief and warmth. As the younger man heaved and shook with ugly bawling and hiccupy sobs, Wang Ji soothed Wei Ying by rubbing circles and patted on the back, softly whispering “Don’t cry, don’t cry.”

When Wei Ying finally calmed down enough, Wang Ji said, “Promise me that you’ll never do things behind my back.”

Wei Ying nodded fervently, not letting go of their locked fingers. He looked like a mess - puffy red eyes and swollen eyebags, a face covered with tears and snot, his long bangs blew wildly in all directions along with the dishevelled ungroomed hair, and his rumpled clothes were smudged on the knees where he had knelt on the ground for too long.

“Promise me that you’ll be truthful, and there will be no secrets between us.”

Again, Wei Ying nodded.

“Promise me that you’ll never say to the Heavens that they can freely take your life away,” Wang Ji exhaled loudly as though in defiance, and his gaze hardened visibly, “because you’re worth so much more than that.” The older man leaned closer, until Wei Ying could feel hot breath caressing his flushed cheeks.

“Don’t forget, Wei Wuxian, that you belong to me,” Wang Ji growled, golden-specked eyes stared straight into brown ones, glimmering brightly with intent and determination.

Wei Ying shivered at the last word, felt his earlobes turning pink and his heartbeat thundered instantly. He wanted to scream his answer, surrender to his lover’s gentle demands, to be enslaved to Wang Ji’s whims in exchange for the hard-earned forgiveness and a brighter, more fulfilling future for their blossoming love.

However, yielding like that would be too little, too easy.

Wei Ying edged closer to his lover. “Then.. Lan Er Gongzi , make a promise that you belong to me too, and that you’ll stay by my side,” Wei Ying whispered back, heavy lidded eyes closing, knuckles relaxing, first coils of desire and want rising from within, as he embraced back the older man - and finally, finally captured Wang Ji’s lips in a hungry, greedy kiss to seal their vow.

“Mn. Forever.”

Notes for the Chapter:

A page of hurt/comfort drama in draft turned out to be a monster of a chapter to write auugh!. I just needed to get this out of my system, so that the story can move along and I can fill it with more porny scenes soon.

I've added more plot devices so that the story can hopefully evolve and grow more naturally than just two men fucking all day in their cave :-p

I wanted to give Wei Wuxian a birthday fic, and have considered writing more porn (which I'm feeling kinda meh now), or give him something material like expensive glittery stuff or some kind of power-up (which feels a bit cheap, I guess)... so I've settled on this: a vow by Lan Wang Ji to stay by your side as your soulmate :-D

Wishing Wei Wuxian an early Happy Birthday!
May you and Lan Wang Ji find lots of happiness and love together!

More chapters are in the works. Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-) p.s. I made a small correction, for consistency of plot with the other fics of the same universe "It was a dark and stormy night" and "It is a clear and sunny day". My apologies!

One of Wang Ji's favourite pastimes is to spend some quality time with his new pets - a growing family of wild white and dark grey rabbits that Wei Wuxian caught after the fluffy denizens raided their vegetable patch. The price of two lost juicy carrots was well-compensated, at least for the owner of the patch, who fell in love with those undeniably cute creatures at first sight, and surely, at the first touch.

He loves to feed them with surplus fresh herbs foraged from the forests, leafy greens from their garden, a few carefully-selected fruit slices, and unsurprisingly, chopped carrot tops too - because all harvested carrots are entirely destined for either their cooking pot, or to Old Merchant Zhu's market stall.

He also loves to keep them clean by cuddling each animal to keep them calm, use a moist ragcloth dipped into Qishan's thermal springwaters, and rub dirt away from their plump rumps to flicking ears. As the rabbits were housed together with a flock of domesticated jungle fowls in a simple coop and its enclosure of loose gravel and grass, it is not uncommon to find feathers or bits of soil stuck to their fur. Wang Ji has the privileged pleasure of grooming the squirming warm masses with fingertips, occasionally getting a friendly warning nibble when he secretly lets his fingers roam and dig deep to caress the soft flesh underneath luxurious woolly coats.

When no one is looking (there never was), Wang Ji would act out his innermost fantasies of utmost perverseness allowed by his Gusu Lan-bound discipline. He would hold up a struggling rabbit, and at the most opportune moment, he would steal a lick to its nose, and deftly avoid lightning-quick swipes of angry paws. When the rabbit becomes tired, he would nuzzle and rub his face into the squealing animal's belly, and enjoy a few minutes of a face full of warm rabbit fur.

He is usually too absorbed with the rabbits as he sits cross-legged by their outdoor pool with piles of those animals around him, that he forgets his worries for the day, and becomes unaware of his surroundings - such as of a figure hidden in the shadows of trees, silently watching him from a distance with great interest.

“Lan Wang Ji, please lewd the bunnies!”

The dry ragcloth that brushed against warm, moist fur, stills.

Wang Ji spins around with wide-open eyes at the person who started this blasphemous conversation, and his facial expression speaks of unrestrained incredulity, horror, shock (and a slightly gaping mouth) - all rolled into one.

Suddenly, there is a bright explosion and a loud “Poof!”, and Wang Ji squeezes his eyes shut from the blinding light. The still-wet rabbit in his arms scampers away, terrified, and the ragcloth drops to the grass.

When he opens his eyes and smells acrid smoke, he is bewildered by the sight that greets him; Wei Wuxian, face blackened from soot except for a wide toothy grin and a piece of handkerchief-sized cloth in his hand covered with bits of smouldering paper ash.

The younger man shakes the ash off from the cloth, and he proudly reveals his handiwork - there is a slightly blurred and ash-smeared, but clearly identifiable monochrome image of His Eminence, Han Guang Jun, holding a rabbit in his arms against a backdrop of forests and thick grass by the pool - and to the older man's unspoken dismay, the dumbstruck stare paired with a gaping mouth on the not-so-handsome-anymore face, is etched into the cloth as well.

Wei Wuxian hands the cloth to Wang Ji with glee, and the latter grabs it in a heartbeat. He examines it with great interest and scrutiny, marvelling at how his portrait was captured so accurately (though fuzzy around the edges), touching what looks like dried burnt ink on the surface, and periodically sniffing the material (he wrinkles his nose at the scent of scorched pinewood). The details are astoundingly fine - including his facial features, the folds of his robes, the furry outline of the rabbit, the numerous blades of grass in the foreground, the way sunlight gleamed and reflected from the pool at the side, even each tree trunk could be counted, and he does not miss the mountains and clouds at the back. Such an impossibly detailed masterpiece could never be created by the mere hands of man, not even the most gifted artists in the Middle Kingdom of their era.

He couldn't fathom how the picture could be drawn or printed on the cloth, so he tilted his chin upwards, curious, wordless and in askance of the manner of such sorcery.

Wei Wuxian had already rubbed off most of the powdery soot from his face with his sleeves, and smudged his clothes in the process (Wang Ji tells himself that he should remember to wash them soon when he does the laundry that night, because he doesn't like to see black spots dirtying the pristine-white robes that used to belong to him). Then, Wei Wuxian reaches into a pocket in his garments, and Wang Ji stares unmovingly, eager to learn the secrets of the mind-blowing act.

Curiosity gets the better of him, so Lan Wang Ji quickly rises from his seat and leans closer to study them. Wei Wuxian enjoys the attention from the older man, and he reciprocates to close the distance until their foreheads nearly touched.

“See, the red one is a modified Eye Talisman,” the younger man explains when he holds up the first piece. Wang Ji nods; there are plenty of such talismans glued to the walls of their cave-home and on the surface of nearby structures such as the chicken coop and fruit tree trunks. These talismans, made by Wei Wuxian and which bear the mystic writing of “eyes” above a hand-drawn diagram of a stylized eyeball, serve as all-seeing monitors around their estate to detect intruders or provide visual live feed to the caster. He notes that the sketch of the eyeball on the talisman in Wei Wuxian's hand looks different - it was a crudely-drawn cat's eye, and not a human's.

As if he read Wang Ji's thoughts, Wei Wuxian adds smugly, "Yes, this one sees the finest details regardless of distance, and works well even in the dark. It can focus and hold onto an image, and reflect it outwards as light, which brings me to the second one--" and flips up the second piece.

"... Fire Talisman?" Wang Ji murmurs, questioningly.

Wei Wuxian lightly shakes the yellow-coloured paper. "Correct. I took some from the kitchen since they're not used anyway when we've got enough firewood for the stove," he said and grins sheepishly. "I know I've made a little too many of these last year, so they're a bit aged and dog-eared by now... but the reduced power is exactly what I needed!" he exclaims.

Wang Ji gives Wei Wuxian a dubious look, then down to the latter's smudged sleeves. Wei Wuxian tries to hide his hand and sleeve behind his back from prying eyes, and his grin grows awkwardly wider.

"Ah.. I still need to lessen the fire's intensity, so that it doesn't blow up... like what you saw just now."

Wei Wuxian clears his throat. He pulls out the last piece of paper. It isn't a talisman, rather, it's just plain paper coated with a thin layer of black, sticky substance-- "That's actually the usual lampblack with a special glue added to it. I ordered the customized glue from Liao's Store, and it contains some gunpowder," he points at the shiny, glazed surface of the flapping paper. Wang Ji smells a strange mix of fragrant pine resin and the unmistakable chemical pungentness. He mulls over the three pieces of paper, as tendrils of ideas start to connect with one another.

Suddenly, Wei Wuxian plucks the cloth from Wang Ji's hands and takes a couple of strides back. "Stop thinking too much, and let me show you how this amazing invention works!" he shouts with glee, and throws the talismans and cloth into the air. Wang Ji's heart nearly panicked at the loss of his (first ever) portrait; despite the ugly mugshot, he still treasures whatever Wei Wuxian gifts to him with his own hands.

The younger man quickly chants something mystical under his breath, and points two fingers at the fluttering pieces. Wang Ji realizes that an altered version of Binding Spell has been cast, and watches fascinatedly at a bright blue thread drawn out from Wei Wuxian's fingers, and penetrates through the centers all four pieces of paper and cloth. They float in mid-air, stitched and held tightly by the spell.

Wei Wuxian makes loud whooping sounds as he spins on his heel, and the talismans swivel around him as wildly as the caster's movements.. He curls his fingers into a fist, and they move closer his face; he relaxes his grip, and they move further away. To Lan Wang Ji, it seems that the younger man has mastered the finer controls of the spell.

"You know, Lan Zhan, I could never understand why cultivators around the Middle Kingdom stick to using one talisman at a time," he nods upwards haughtily, and gestures towards the hovering arranged pieces - first, the Eye Talisman, followed by the Fire Talisman, then the black piece of paper and finally, the reverse side of the cloth that held his (precious) picture. "Was there ever such a Magical Law enacted by the gods, or are we all just at the whims and fancies of stubborn sages who spend all day drawing up useless rules on the Council's desk?" he asks with a mocking tone.

Lan Wang Ji is speechless. To think of breaking a sacred rule of the Grand Cultivation Council - was impossible even for the venerable Han Guang Jun, and yet Wei Wuxian is doing just that , right in front of his eyes. (note: his final act of kissing his lover in front of the Council on the day he resigned as the Chief, was in essence, not a taboo although it did cause an uproar among the bearded wrinkled old men - because same-sex couples do exist in the cultivation world).

“We used to spend hours making kite-trains for archery practice in Yunmeng, so this is really child’s play for me,” Wei Wuxian continues, and he wiggles his fingers, causing the talismans to follow suit. “It’s amazing that I’m the first person on earth to have thought of this - to use multiple talismans simultaneously !” he laughs heartily.

“And... when everything is in place,” he opens his palm and the arranged pieces rise higher. Each piece strains against the thread that binds them, and the cat’s eye in the Eye Talisman twitched as if to focus its other-worldly gaze on Wei Wuxian’s face, “I just need to say the magic phrase...”

Wei Wuxian turns midway, so that his back faces Wang Ji and the Eye Talisman stares at both of them.

Lan Wang Ji holds his breath, tormented by the long-awaited reveal of a grand miracle.

“I, Wei Wuxian, hereby...

... LEWD THE BUNNIES !!!”

The older man chokes and coughs, Wei Wuxian snaps his fingers while laughing jovially, and the bright blue energy thread breaks. The Eye Talisman flashes and disintegrates into a pinpoint of focused light, and immediately activates the Fire Talisman, which in turn, explodes (with a “Poof!”) and literally dissolves the lampblack-soaked paper behind it into a terrifyingly-expanding fiery blazing ball that threatened to swallow both men. Wang Ji had to squint his eyes as his world was illuminated, for a very brief moment, with brilliant golden incandescence as bright as Wei Wuxian’s mischievous smile.

Lan Wang Ji clutched the cloth with trembling fingers. Here was the most beautiful picture he had ever seen and silently, he swore to all 108 known local gods that he would cherish this masterpiece for a lifetime. A joyful image of his cute laughing Wei Ying was printed on the cloth. The picture was taken at a high angle such that his lover’s handsome youthful face, framed by lush long hair, occupied nearly the entire piece of fabric, his sparkling eyes crinkled with happiness, with a perfectly-formed nose, his luscious lips barely masking a row of shiny flawless teeth, and that small but very clear mole just underneath those same lips (he nearly wanted to kiss the cloth on that spot).

There was a small and goofy-looking flabbergasted face at the back of Wei Ying at the top corner of the cloth, which he tried to ignore - and of course, that annoyingly ugly mugshot on the reverse side of the cloth; these disgraceful and tasteless aspects of the ‘masterpiece’ will not be spoken of, for the rest of this story.

Wei Ying emerged from the thicket with a small basket containing two large napa cabbages. His sleeves were dirtier after he wiped off more soot off his face; he bore the brunt of the dazzling explosion which fortunately didn't burn anything or anyone, but left a whirlwind of smoke and ashes from the destroyed papers in its wake.

“Aren't I a genius? I can make more of such pictures, so you don't have to hold onto it if it's not that good—”

“No, I want to keep it,” Wang Ji interrupted, a little too abruptly and anxiously. He quickly pocketed the cloth into his inner garment, determined not to let go of his latest Wei Ying-branded treasure (among his growing collection of many others).

Wei Ying laughed cheerfully before settling down with the heavy basket to sit next to the older man. The sight and smell of freshly-harvested cabbages attracted the rabbits, and within minutes, they crowded around the couple. Wang Ji continued to clean and groom (and cuddle) the rabbits by the pool, while Wei Ying fed their constantly-nibbling mouths with bits of cabbage leaves. Both men relaxed under the shade of trees during the peaceful, clear and sunny afternoon.

“Lan Zhan! Look at me! Look at me!”

Wang Ji was used to his lover's antics, and calmly released the last rabbit he had cleaned from his arms. The little puffball sprinted away as fast as it could on all four legs. It squealed when Wei Ying stepped a little too close, and with a mighty leap, it bound into the surrounding bushes and disappeared.

The older man sighed. He would have to find the rabbit while wading through the thick grasses around Burial Mounds, later.

“What is it...” and stilled when he finally looked up.

Two pieces of broad, long napa cabbage leaves, each skewered by a stick, were stuck loosely on Wei Ying's hair on both sides of his face and roughly above the ears. Wei Ying posed with two loosely clenched fists like paws, one raised higher than the other, and he blinked several times adorably.

“Do I look like a rabbit?” the younger man chuckled. Dressed in his white clothes, yes, he did look like one, Wang Ji told himself.

Lan Wang Ji could not control his own inner squealing and broke into a very rare and delightful smile. “M-Mn..” he struggled to stop his lips from curving upwards further.

Wei Ying looked around as if to see if there was anyone around - of course there were none, except possibly the presence of scampering rabbits. Assured that no one was looking, he turned around and went down on all fours. Amazingly - and this time Wang Ji grinned - there was a tuft of rabbit fur, rolled into an orange-sized ball, stuck on his clothes on his butt.

Wei Ying looked back to gauge the older man's reaction, and he was pleased.

"I collected them while you were busy grooming the bunnies, and coincidentally, there was enough to make this," he said with a sultry voice and swayed his hips in a very suggestive humping motion. Wang Ji stared transfixed at the improvised rabbit tail, mesmerized by its pure-white softness and the way it moved. He felt a stir in his groin, and for a moment he was unsure if it was due to Wei Ying or if it was due to the white ball of fluff dancing in his line of sight.

"Do... I look like a rabbit?" the younger man whispered huskily, tail and hips calling the older man to come closer, come closer, you know you want it, it cooed wordlessly.

"M...Mn..." Wang Ji swallowed hard and he crept towards his lover. He stumbled a little when Wei Ying pushed his robes to the side, raised his hips, and pulled down his pants in one swift move. Naughty Wei Ying did not put on any underwear that afternoon, and his exposed pale bare bottom soon rubbed the underside of Wang Ji's hardening arousal. Wang Ji did not hesitate to squeeze the inviting buttcheeks with both of his hands, spread them apart and dry-humped his clothed cock against the puckered glistening entrance. Wei Ying moaned with profound desire, excitement rising in tandem with the anticipation of the afternoon's first lovemaking.

“Lan Zhan, please lewd this bunny?”

Wang Ji's heartbeat thundered in his ears, rivulets of sweat rolled down from his forehead, his breathing picked up in intensity and speed, and he felt his blood boiling from liquid desire that rose from within his body. He did not waste time and hurriedly pulled down his own pants, kicking them off clumsily to the side.

Wei Ying growled lustfully when his lover placed his warm, broad hands over his, quivering, muscled thighs on both sides of his own, and felt his whole body embraced, captured, enveloped by Lan Wang Ji - the sounds of throaty grunts and heavy breathing, the sweet scent of a man intent on fucking him deeply into the ground, and the heated desire between them to mate endlessly into the sunset.

Wei Ying cried with pleasure when Wang Ji finally mounted him.

Notes for the Chapter:

This can be read as a oneshot, independently of the main storyline. I'm still recovering from the Nanjing Concert finale, and torn between being having a sense of closure versus being heart-broken that all good things had to come to an end... *sigh*. So, until I get back to my feet, this series will probably slow down and won't be as racy as the preceding chapters. Thanks for your understanding and patience...!

I've been an absolute bjyx shipper and XZ fangirl in the past few months... so saying goodbye to Chen Qing Ling or The Untamed will forever be truly bittersweet moment in this lifetime. Thank you Xiao Zhan for bringing Wei Wuxian alive on screen! The story may have ended, but memories of our dear little Wei Ying and his real-life actor Xiao Zhan will forever be cherished !!!

As usual, please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Tap, tap-tap-tap, tap, tap...

Lan Wang Ji flicks wooden beads nimbly up and down an abacus, and when he completes a particular sum, he writes out the total on a particular page. Feeling satisfied that the calculations are correct, he closes the book and sets it aside. Then, he pockets the few pieces of silver lying on the table top, and proceeds to pour a cup of pu'er tea from a steaming pot he had prepared earlier.

With utmost Gusu-style decorum, he first appreciates the fine quality of the brew by taking a deep breath of its rich woody aroma, before taking a delicate sip. He smiles imperceptibly; the well-aged tea has been steeped at the right temperature and time, and the earthy taste is perfect for washing down the small plate of crispy shrimp and lotus root fritters he had made as a snack.

Mild cluck-cluck sounds softly calls for his attention. He nods knowingly, and drops a few crumbs. The hens happily peck on the ground for the tasty morsels, and soon a few more birds join the growing flock surrounding their human owner.

As Wang ji takes his second sip of tea, he relishes the constant breeze that provides some respite from the unusually warm afternoon heat. He leans against the backrest of the bench built using deadwood from the 'Mounds, and enjoys the view of the courtyard under the shade of peach trees.

Wei Wuxian, dressed in a simple commoner's light blue tunic and a pair of dark trousers, hummed and danced gracefully by the side of the lotus pond. He wore a makeshift hat made of a single large lotus leaf and tied by a handwoven string, probably to shield himself from the sun - but as he twirled delicately on his heels and his hands made intricate, sweeping movements, Wang Ji thought the younger man with his face partially hidden in the shadows, looked beautiful, demure, and mysterious.

Then, Wei Ying looks up to bask in sunlight, spreads his arms, and begins to sing. His voice is as clear as day, sparkling, bright. When he reaches the high notes, he shifts to Peking opera-style falsetto. Wang Ji closes his eyes in concentration, fully absorbed in the powerful, luxuriant and rounded timbre, and the raw emotions described within each syllable. He feels his heart beat and eardrums vibrate in tune of a heart-rending, tragic story - it describes a young man who told no lies and did no wrong, but was nevertheless widely misunderstood and persecuted by the people around him, despite his promise to loved ones that he would always uphold justice with an undying, loyal heart.

As Wei Ying's melodic tale eventually comes to an end, Wang Ji opens his eyes and breathes in deeply to hold back a multitude of feelings that could not be described by mere words nor be categorically coloured in shades of black, white, even grey. He raises his cup to toast to this man's journey through life, death and resurrection, who now finds joy living with newfound freedom in a world that has largely forgotten his face, but not his name. Storytellers continue to spin wild tales of his past deeds, though Wang Ji knows a few truths that endure the passage of time - that this man continues to live a care-free life, often seen playing the flute, and accompanied with a cup of wine.

With sixteen years gone by in a blink of an eye... was everything just a dream?

He downs the third and final sip. The remnants of pu'er leaves, soaked for too long at the bottom of the ceramic vessel, leaves an unpleasantly bitter aftertaste.

Wei Ying made a courteous bow at his one-man audience, and wiped sweat from his brow and the sides of his face; the little entertaining gig he'd just performed made him pant from the heat and exertion. He had composed the song on his own, and learnt the beautiful moves from watching dance troupes that routinely perform in Yiling's restaurants and teahouses. He enjoyed observing Wang Ji's enthralled reactions, and secretly, he hoped to do an encore in the near future with a few additional passages of flute music.

He noticed the food and beverage laid out on the table, and had an idea. He trotted back to their cave-home, and along the way, managed to mischievously snag an innocent hen off the ground. She shrieked in terror and flapped her wings in vain, while she was swung high into the air, accompanied with obnoxious laughter from her (much-maligned) owner and "Did you enjoy my song? You did? Of course you did! Then, please lay more eggs for me tomorrow morning!". The poor bird was fortunately, gently returned to safe grounds, after which she ran for her life towards her other (so much more beloved) owner.

(...and still, to this day, Wei Wuxian complains that animals tend to avoid him, while Lan Wang Ji has no problems to pick and play with any of them.)

The gratuitous spectacle was amusing, though Lan Wang Ji remained unfazed.

After a few minutes of searching the kitchen, Wei Ying emerged from their home with a small clay jar. As he neared the table, he saw that Wang Ji was busy tying his hair (again) although there were (always) a few errant strands that kept sticking out in odd directions and to his skin (which looked ticklish and uncomfortable, even to a passer-by). It was indeed a hot afternoon, and the older man had spent the better part of the day with cooking, household chores and back-breaking farm work, so he was fairly covered in sweat and grime.

Wang Ji automatically moved a little to the side of the garden bench when he heard Wei Ying's crunching footsteps. The hens that had crowded around Wang Ji's legs made frightened warning calls and fled instantly. Wei Ying sighed at the loss of company as he sat next to his partner. "Lan Zhan, how's the tea?" Wei Ying casually asked and placed the clay jar next to the plate of snacks.

Lan Wang Ji nodded with a calm "Mn", which caused a few more locks to slide away from the ring of white ribbon in his hands. The older man groaned in faint frustration, and Wei Ying nonchalantly reached out to help. He was pleased when Wang Ji relaxed and allowed him to take the ribbon without any form of protest or feelings of embarrassment. He remembered how Wang Ji combs and ties his hair every morning, so he had no difficulty to reciprocate the simple act of keeping his lover well-groomed.

“Liang laoban said his pu’er tea leaves are sourced from the Yunnan hills to the south, and are of the highest quality that five silver pieces can buy, weight for weight, when compared to all other types of tea,” he said and then chuckled, “I think he’s just bragging and trying to make a sale, but I got a better deal off him.”

He nudged the jar towards Wang Ji, and continued tying the latter’s hair. It was quite a monumental task to bunch together heavy, waist-length locks of hair into a ponytail.

The older man stared at the innocuous-looking container for a while, before carefully lifted its lid. He saw a clump of inedible-looking brownish red paste inside, and with an unnoticeable look of disdain on his face, he started to close the jar.

“Ahh.. Lan Zhan! Not so fast! This is plum sauce from Liang laoban’s teahouse. He offered it when I said that his tea wasn’t as good as his rival’s. Apparently, I was the ‘lucky customer for the day’, and with the purchase of a pack of pu’er, I could get a jar of sauce at half its cost for a rock-bottom price of just three silver pieces,” Wei Ying explained, excitement evident in his voice. Of course, he also intentionally omitted the fact that for three silver pieces, the amount of plum sauce that one could buy should, by all reasonable accounts, fill more than a clay jar. Liang laoban was a shrewd businessman, so he couldn’t pass up an opportunity to play at his game too.

“Wei Ying, the tea leaves used at Liang and Hu’s teahouses are sourced from the same merchant,” Wang Ji simply stated and raised an eyebrow. The container of the now-identified sauce looked more assuring than before, so he left it open although he still eyed it suspiciously.

The younger man snickered. “Exactly! So I told Liang laoban that if he continued to offer inferior free products just to draw in sales, he will eventually lose his customers and wind up his business within the next few seasons.”

Wang Ji sighed tiredly with a soundless, “You have the gall to call the laoban’s products ‘inferior’. How bold and shameless can you be.” (it was a statement, not a question).

Wei Ying lightly pulled a final loop of white ribbon and put the finishing touches on his partner’s hair. The longest locks from above Wang Ji’s temples were woven into twin loose braids to hold up nearly the entire length of hair, and where they intersect, Wei Ying placed a bow-tie ponytail to keep them together. It looked refreshingly neat.

“Lan Zhan, you don’t have to worry, I just wanted to provoke him into taking... err, positive action..., and turn his misfortune to work in both our favours, that’s all.”

Wang Ji snorted, with an unspoken, “At his expense, of course. How outrageous.”

“You know me too well, Lan Zhan,” Wei Ying quipped at their mostly one-sided conversation with a short laugh, and waved a hand dismissively, seemingly able to read his partner’s mind. He smoothed down the older man’s lush hair, and admired his latest creative design - especially the cute and extra-large ribbon bow.

Then, Wei Wuxian lightly tugs at the hem of his partner's light brown shirt, wordlessly signalling the older man to "lift it up". Wang Ji obliged and rolled up the back of his garment.

Lan Wang Ji enjoys being in the limelight of Wei Ying's eyes. The younger man had fished out a bottle of oil from a pocket, and started to apply liberally on the old scars on his back. He catches a whiff of therapeutic herbs blended with floral perfumes, and relaxes into Wei Ying's soothing touch.

"So, I took the jar of sauce and said to him, 'Look at this, your sauce is so plain and flavourless, how can you even think of giving this to your patrons?'" , Wei Ying remarks and he even raises his voice to mimic the expression of an upset customer. Next, he switches to the low gruffy voice of Liang laoban .

"Oh, Young Master, what should I do? My tea is never as good as that bastard Hu's, and now my latest product offering is bound to fail too!

Rest assured, Liang laoban , because I know what your plum sauce lacks. I have a secret recipe handed down from generations that can make the sauce extremely tasty that I can guarantee you will have many return customers! Let me help you, in recognition of our long-lasting friendship and the many visits I've made to your humble establishment!

Thank the gods, Young Master, I am eternally grateful and owe you for saving this failing business! Pray tell, what will you do with my plum sauce, and what can I give to you in exchange for your kind deed?

Ah, Liang laoban , you flatter me too much! I cannot divulge my family's secret but I can tell you at least this: something spicy, something tart, and something very flavourful can be added - and these ingredients can be found in most kitchens, although surely, you must understand that the exact amounts of each, and the techniques used, must remain forever with me. Let me use your kitchen and I will let you sample the results of my efforts within the hour!"

While Wei Ying skillfully and humorously alternates between the hoarse voice of Liang laoban and a shrilly version of Wei Wuxian in a monologue not unlike a classical crosstalk performance, Lan Wang Ji entertains himself with images of the young man gesticulating wildly behind him. He does not mind Wei Ying's overdramatic theatrics, since the latter was doing wonderful things on his back.

As Wei Ying continues to narrate his fantastical story and unabashedly reveals how he improved the sauce ala Yunmeng-style, he draws circles, verticals, horizontals, diagonals, and squiggly lines, writes the names of the ingredients on his back (nnggh, scratching harder over there, yes over there), even prods, pokes and lightly digs into the skin to emphasize his conversation with the laoban (yes, yes, a little more to the left, please). The healing oil rub soothes muscle aches from labour-intensive farm work, and alleviates pain and swelling from insect bites because he was often shirtless when temperatures rise in the late morning. Broad sweeping movements of fingernails up and down the expanse of his well-muscled back elicit soft, satisfied nnnhs from the older man, as the day's discomforts and itches are grazed away, tenderly and lovingly.

At some point, Wei Ying's fingers trace along reddened welts on his shoulder blades; five tight lines on each side. They prickled and Wang Ji is reminded of how bold and dominating his lover can be, after downing just two jars of Laozu's Smile over dinner. He couldn't remember much in the aftermath, though he was convinced that he was probably coerced - no, forced - to stay inside Wei Ying for hours without any breaks in-between, as evidenced by the lingering feeling of being pleasantly emptied upon waking up, and a throbbing, numb waist.

The alcohol did wonders to Wei Ying's aggressiveness and libido, and apparently, loosened his inhibitions even as their lovemaking spiralled uncontrollably downwards into extremely taboo and depraved acts.

At least that was what Lan Wang Ji thought.

- The night before -

Shortly before nine o' clock, Lan Wang Ji huffed and groaned when he dutifully pumped at a calm, steady pace into his lover's pillow-padded ass, missionary style. Wei Ying giggled drunkenly as he was drilled into the mattress by the pistoning shaft, then lifted up and fucked deeply again. He happily wrapped his legs around Wang Ji's hips and grinned widely, "I caught you! I caught you, you naughty boy!” It seemed harmless at first, like lovers playfully rolling and tumbling on the bed after an exciting foreplay of mutual masturbations and sexy blowjobs.

Wang Ji thought Wei Ying’s thighs and calves were especially strong in holding his hips, despite the latter’s shorter, leaner stature, as it became increasingly difficult to pull out after each vigorous thrust. He closed his eyes, jaws slacked, back arched, as pleasure mounted and he felt the first tendrils of an incoming climax. It burned a trail from tightening ballsacks and grew into delicious contractions that danced along his melting, pulsating arousal. He moaned involuntarily as he was squeezed and milked rhythmically by fleshy folds of tight ass-muscles, which sent electric blazing through every nerve ending along his spine and spread gloriously throughout his groin.

Wei Ying seemed to sense this pivotal moment, and gracefully lifted his lower body so that the next, final plunge reached into the deepest recesses of his youthful body. Lan Wang Ji was held immobile on all fours on top of his lover, as he erupted into a powerful rippling orgasm inside his lovely Wei Ying.

Is it good?... Five. Surely, it must be good.

Filling me up just like that, does it feel like you've died and reached the heavens?... Six.

Lovely, lovely little boy, drowning in your own pleasure... Seven. My, my you're still going strong.

Do you know how defenceless you look right now? Exposing your naked self to the moonlight, your pale throat looks so vulnerable, and your shuddering body is ripe for the taking ... Eight.

Mine, mine, mine. Your body, your soul, your essence... Nine. Can you still give me more, even as I drain every single last drop?

You cannot escape. You're mine.

Ten.

The number of times you release your seed, is the same number of marks I shall claw on your heated skin and scar your back. From this point onward, memories will forsake you.

These ten marks bear witness to our intimate love. Remember that, if nothing else.

Lan Wang Ji took a full minute to regain his composure. Their bedroom was silent, tranquil, save for the sounds of two men trying to catch their breaths. He felt a twinge of pain on his sore back; Wei Ying clawed well with his fingernails, and he tried to raise his body to arch his back in an attempt to straighten the cricks from spine to rear, and also to lessen the discomfort radiating from ten rising welts.

He froze in surprise - he couldn't move, couldn't pull out; Wei Ying continued to hold him in a death grip with his legs. The skin where their bodies joined felt sticky and sweaty; the air was still, warmed by their exertion, and began to feel suffocating. He struggled against what seemed like mountains pressing down on his limbs.

By the time he realized he was locked in an inescapable warm, wet sexual prison, it was too late.

His eyes widened when he noticed yellow paper talismans clung on his hands and legs. Rustling sounds told him that a few more fluttered and landed on the small of his back, and he was immediately paralyzed by their massive weight.

Stunned, he could only turn his head helplessly to face Wei Ying, and was greeted by a sight he hadn't seen in more than sixteen years - the unmistakable vengeful sneer of Yiling Patriarch on the night he emerged from his birthplace, high above rooftops and the unforgettable inhuman crimson glow behind his eyes.

Lan Wang Ji's blood ran cold.

Yiling Patriarch Wei Wuxian grins cruelly, and whistled.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Good boy, such a good boy, you didn't even scream as my little creations emerged from the shadows of the night. Were you scared speechless? Has terror muted your cries for help?

The first whistling note, clear and ear-splitting, opens otherworldly doors for evil, vicious spirits to come forth.

Do you feel fear or disgust at the thick stench of their bloodlust, when the cold, slimy tentacle-like wisps crawl and slide all over your defenseless, quivering body? They pause at all your unguarded meridians, relentlessly attacking and leaving behind multiple bite-marks on your vital areas, where copious amounts of sexual poisons are injected into your bloodstream, thus flaring your lust, and control your haze-pleasured consciousness.

Your will weakens, and you surrender to my sadistic desires. You growl like a beast driven mad by the need breed and unload your potent seeds deep inside me.

The second note, shrilly and screeching, summons those who remained in the afterlife with lingering twisted, perverse intentions. They materialize from thin air, whisper seductive, vulgar words into your ears until your face flushes with unimaginable perverse scenes playing inside your mind. Do you fantasize of a young, sixteen year old Wei Ying spread-eagled beneath you, desperately and obscenely begging to be fucked harder and deeper, even as your adult self brutally screw into that nubile and immature body? Do you fall for his nonsensical rambles of being raped and impregnated repeatedly, despite your reputation as the infallible Han Guang Jun, until young, fertile Wei Ying truly grows a belly and gives birth to many babies, twins and triplets too?

As you try to purge such filthy thoughts from your head, are you afraid, or are you secretly delighted, when those blood-red spirits greedily seek, prod, stretch, penetrate, and violate every orifice they could find on your body, and imbue them with the aphrodisiac-laced fumes and nectar, further blurring your fantasies with the physical pleasures that your body experiences?

The third and final note, sharp and piercing, is a cry that mirrors my forbidden desires for you, moulded into the form of those repulsive-looking spectres who now surround and encircle your trembling figure.

Oh how your arms shiver and your exhausted thighs quake above me, and look at how your entire body seize with each bodily rapture, even as you are trapped by my talismans while my creations explore and find your deepest pleasure spots; invisible fingers caress, squeeze and vibrate the little gland inside you; a hundred tongues lick along the pulsating tube and its surrounding muscles within your sweet, sweet erection, coaxing and pushing bubbles of tasty seed out like a never-ending flow of ejaculations; ghostly lips kiss and suckle heatedly from plump balls, then along the rock-hard length and upwards to the cockhead, gently yet constantly assault the sensitive oozing slit at the tip; your thick liquid fire spurt sporadically when you become too excited and you cry out in agonizing ecstasy with each peak; as you become overstimulated and begged for a moment's reprieve, phantom hands grip your convulsing cock nestled comfortably inside my clenching passageway, stroke firmly at a merciless pace, until you shoot again, repeatedly, inundating and feeding the growing pool of your life force inside me.

Your wordless, tortured pleas tell me that you are fatigued, shrivelling up, wrung dry to the bone, and close to succumbing to a lust-filled demise. I easily flip our connected bodies over with the help of my tentacle-like wisps, and soon, I eagerly ride you to your next climax no matter how much resistance you put up, no matter how many "There's nothing left, there's nothing left" you soundlessly try to convey with your weak struggles.

I am angered. You cannot lie to me.

The number of undead spirits in the room multiplies exponentially, and they roar in unison; a blood-curdling warcry to destroy those who I choose, and I point my forefinger at the helpless dying man straddled between my thighs.

They rush at once in a hurricane of screeching wind, invade your body, permeate your insides, and molest every nerve and muscle fibre until everything tingles, swells and burns. Wraith-like ghosts clamber to your groin, dissipate through the skin and congeal into a living, viscous mass that swirl around the emptied testicles, force-filling them with until both fragile sacs fill to the brim. Then, invisible fingertips playfully squeeze and dribble the twin juicy ripe fruits, and your body quivers uncontrollably as they eject in extremely pleasurable-painful pulses through the tubes that lead towards a bulging, abused prostate lapped by many phantom tongues. Your mind fades each time those tongues glide with hot friction along your cock, propelling you closer towards the edge and your frayed nerves are set on fire once again. You cum inside me, yet you still feel full, and like an insatiable savage beast, you try to ejaculate a few more times with increasingly diminishing intensity, in a fruitless attempt to rid yourself of this endless curse.

I am merciless. I command a thousand wet lips and tentacle-like tongues to rain upon your nether regions, leaving you in a shaking, squirting mess.

Do you not know? That my wrath is sweet and addictive.

Open your eyes. Look at me.

Do you see this? I hold your precious golden core in my palms, after I effortlessly reached through and into your chest with incorporeal fingers and pull out the throbbing sphere of energy. You watch with riveted gaze and a mortified look on your face, as I whisper endearing but immensely cursed incantations at the pipa-sized orb held by my thumb and forefinger, thus shattering its final barrier and becomes no more than a sumptuous treat for me to freely devour.

My tongue slowly licks its glowing glassy surface, and I begin to indulge in its complex flavours by absorbing vapours of its essence through lips and nostrils. When I grow bored of playing with it, you stare helplessly as I let the orb slide and roll into my mouth - still connected to you through energy threads emitting from your heaving chest.

Every time I suck on your golden core erotically like a piece of honey-coated candy and draw out your life energy, I let my sexual poison-laced saliva infuse into it, colouring the dimming light with slivers of wispy black; your body becomes overwhelmed with unfamiliar sensations, and you lose your mind even further.

Your body shakes, your mouth slacks, your eyes roll backwards, your fingers grapple feebly at the bedsheets, and I can feel fluids shooting inside of me from where we are joined, soon overflowing with warmth, and leak out generously when I could physically hold no more. You eventually fall unconscious, but I continue to make sensuous love to your immobilized body, by roughly gyrating and undulating my hips around your confined arousal for many more hours, so that you continue to jerk your hips and quiver from head to toes, as multiple dry-orgasms build, crest and wash over you. Dreams of our carnal passions continue to haunt you even during your restless slumber.

By the final hour, you look no more than a pale corpse with very flushed skin on the cheeks and on the chest. The only signs of life left are the periodic, reflexive, orgasmic tremors that run along the length of your still-hard arousal, lovingly encased inside my flooded love cavern.

Good boy, such a good boy, never once did you scream throughout your ordeal.

As a reward, let me kiss you. When our lips lock as tightly as how our bodies entwined during the sacred mating ritual from midnight until the break of dawn, I release your golden core and all the life force that I had taken earlier, and you instinctively swallowed. It is purified after I took only the venomous toxins caused by exposure to the air in the Burial Mounds for too long. The darkness nourishes me, and my hunger is sated, for now.

Lan Wang Ji woke up shortly before five in the morning. He sat up on the bed, dazed, his mind amazingly clear and qi energy pleasantly refreshed, though he felt sore and twinges of mild pain all over his body, particularly on the back - yet he couldn't remember much of what happened after the first orgasm. He did feel emptied and lighter 'down there' - in a good way, and figured that Wei Ying must have done something wonderful to him during the latter's inebriated state.

Several images flashed across his foggy memory, but he couldn't piece together the full picture of the night's events. Some were suggestive, some were downright pornographic. He felt his morning wood rise against his will when more fuzzy, indecent pictures tumbled into his mind, uninvited. Wei Ying slept soundly on his side, and feeling rather lonely in bed, Wang Ji leisurely stroked himself to full mast to relieve the rising urge. The younger man was blissfully unaware and (un)fortunately missed a mouth-watering spectacle next to him, instead, nuzzled into a pile of sleep-warmed pillows and slid his arms under them, and he looked absolutely like an angel swimming in a sea of messy blue bedsheets.

It was still dark outside and the roosters had not started crowing. Wang Ji unhurriedly snuggled back into the blankets, and proceeded to embrace Wei Ying's slender waist from the back to spoon him. He rubbed his swelling hard-on against the crack of Wei Ying's ass, and occasionally reached down to splay his fingers over springy butt cheeks to massage them. Wang Ji grunted in appreciation when Wei Ying lazily curled inwards into a semi-fetal position and allowed full access to the older man. With a satisfied moan, Wang Ji slid in fluidly to the hilt into the tight, slippery passage. Some leftover seed from the night before leaked out at the intrusion, which he gladly pushed back in with his engorged arousal, and soon he started humping into his lover with a relaxed tempo and murmured soft mmmhs.

Lan Wang Ji did not manage to complete his first round of morning sex after such a strenuous night. He fell asleep soon after, contented and snoring, his softly-twitching cock left soaking in a mix of seed and other lewd love juices deep inside his Wei Ying.

Notes for the Chapter:

It's Singles Day! Not much to celebrate, though I hope those who watched the Hunan TV event and all the other goodies going on had a good time. It's probably the last time I'll get any Untamed-related wangxian/bjyx content. So, to commemorate this final of finales... enjoy this chapter :-)

A week after Nanjing concert, and I'm well on my way to recovery from my Summer 2019 addiction. The Untamed came and blew me away, and I will cherish all the experiences and crazy love I have for the series and MDZS in general, especially anything related to Xiao Zhan and Wang Yibo. Thank you and Xie xie to those two superstars for making my world a brighter, happier place! peace sign.

Things should calm down a lot after this, since I'm no longer actively looking at MDZS or Untamed stuff. This chapter started as a plotless sub-arc on about plum sauce... but look where it ended up :-p There's still more to come, so... "To be continued"!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 8

“... and so, in the end, this jar of improved sauce was given to me for free - yes absolutely free - together with promises of royalties from future sales. Liang laoban agreed to a ten percent cut, as long as I visit his shop on the days of the new and full moons to make new batches of sauce. Talk about getting paid employment! Can you believ— Lan Zhan? Lan Zhan?”

The mind-numbing and sleep-inducing scratching on his back stopped.

Lan Wang Ji blinks and is jolted from his daydreaming. He valiantly tries to clear away immoral recollections from events earlier that day. He adjusts his sitting posture on the bench in a futile attempt to hide his rising arousal under layers of cloth.

“Ah... I talked too much again, didn’t I? Here,” and then, Wei Ying unexpectedly reaches over Wang Ji’s shoulders, picks up a small shrimp fritter from the plate and dips it into the jar. Wang Ji’s heart is not ready for what comes next.

(At this point, Lan Wang Ji’s inner-self reacted in horror, because Wei Ying had been careless and his fingertips actually touched and scraped the surface of the gel-like paste for a full second, only to emerge from the jar when he held the crumbly edge of the snack between oil and sauce-slicked fingers. The fritter suddenly looked convincingly lethal to him, being contaminated with herbal oils that touched his grimy back just seconds ago.)

Wei Ying easily slips the sauce-dipped fritter between Wang Ji’s slightly-parted lips.

(Oh god.)

Before the older man could spit out and protest about the ill-treatment of his appetite, his eyes widen in amazement; as the sauce mixes with half-chewed shrimp, tiny bursts of fragrant tart fruits including plum, zesty citrus and pineapple, engulf his tastebuds, balanced with the perfect levels of saltiness from the sea and sweetness of brown sugar, packed with an extra punch from fresh chilli peppers. The taste of the snack is drastically enhanced and becomes a culinary delight for his bland Gusu-trained palate.

Lan Wang Ji obeys without a second thought, dips another piece of fried snack into the sauce, and pops it into his mouth. He nods earnestly, relishing in his awakened sense of taste as he chews a little louder than necessary.

“Ha ha! Er gong zi, look at how you’re enjoying your food. It’s so unlike you!” Wei Ying laughs from the back, in between licking (eww, contaminated) sauce off his own fingers. Lan Wang Ji ignores the younger man, and reaches for his third piece of snack. No one is watching, and he does not need to mind his manners in their world of two (really, in self-defence, he could justify this act by saying that Wei Ying’s crude way of thinking is rubbing off on him, after living as a couple for more than a year). He mentally makes a note to himself that he should increase the size of the snacks in the future - at least three bites’ worth each - otherwise an entire plate may be gobbled up within minutes.

He pours a cup of tea for himself and another for Wei Ying in between satisfied chewing and hard swallows.

His lover resumes the back-scratching session (Wang Ji no longer cares if there was any sauce involved), starting from a tension-releasing nape to shoulder massage, followed by ten fingernails raking marvellously downwards, repeatedly, with the right amount of abrasion, pressure and speed, followed by ten fingernails scratching in glorious circles thoroughly over his entire oil-glistened back, leaving no inch of skin untouched; sometimes Wei Ying intentionally slides to the sides to graze the skin along ticklish ribs, and occasionally, with a mischievous giggle, he leans forward to reach the front in a loose embrace, then playfully flicks moistened fingertips over the older man’s sensitive pinkish-brown nipples, in which the latter stiffens and rumbles out mildly-annoyed nnnnhs.

Lan Wang Ji remains unperturbed. With a tasty sauce-dipped fritter on one hand, a warm cup of pu'er tea on the other, and his mind becoming a ball of pleasurable fuzz with Wei Ying's wonderfully tender loving care on his back - he tilts his chin towards the afternoon sky and closes his eyes; another breeze blows against his face, gently taking away the hot, humid afternoon heat. He feels at peace with the universe, does not have a care in the world.

By the third hour after midday, Lan Wang Ji knew he should be practising his daily cultivation routines to build and maintain his strength. The light would not be terribly bright to the extent of burning one's skin, and performing energetic graceful movements at that time yields maximum benefits to one's complexion and qi energy levels, similar to how Nature's greens flourish and thrive under such ideal daytime conditions.

His prescription for one's health and well-being is simple and practical - three half-hour sessions of cultivation per day, usually once in mid-morning, another in the afternoon, and the last round at dusk, preferably before dinner or if not possible, then shortly before bedtime (which results in better and higher quality of sleep, according to the highly-regarded medical books in Gusu's Library Pavilion).

However, in the past months, he had managed only up to two sessions a day; the evening bout was frequently replaced by the couple's nightly intense lovemaking that often leaves him exhausted though exceedingly satisfied (which wasn't too bad, considering that he rests very well after that, if Wei Ying's complaints about his snoring are to be believed). He is keen to keep his two remaining precious cultivation sessions - however, Wei Ying is an avid fan of disrupting his routines.

It usually starts with light, disarming banter, and the deal is sweetened by something that captures his attention.

Wei Ying had gotten up to grab a satchel by the lotus pond, while Wang Ji slumps on the bench in a post-coital, no, post-backscratch bliss (the after-effects are the same, nonetheless). Three sizable gold pieces roll onto the table, and sleepy Wang Ji opens one eye.

“A troupe of entertainers from Chang’an performed at Liang laoban’s teahouse during lunch, so the place was packed with a full-house. I couldn’t help but to use my awesome salesmanship from months of selling paper talismans and magical gadgets, and charm those housewives to part with their fat purses for bottles of my plum sauce!” he points at himself smugly.

Wang Ji’s eyes glint and he picks up a piece and bit into it. It is real. Each is worth ten silver pieces, and his mind races to do the simple math - that’s around two day’s worth of spending money on the table.

Wei Ying takes his seat at another bench opposite of Wang Ji. He faces the older man, props his chin on his hands, and grins. “Liang laoban was very pleased, even after giving my cut of today’s profits. He also let me take back some side dishes from his lunch menu - Liang’s famous fried chicken wings, fried tofu and spring rolls. So we only need to add some rice and vegetables, and have a sumptuous feast.”

Lan Wang Ji smiles, a rare sight for a man who constantly maintains a neutral expression unless something good happens to his lover, himself, or his household (in this case, their dwindling finances and when he gets some time-off from gruelling housework).

“Oh, apparently one of the housewives told me that my plum sauce goes very well with your favourite tofu,” he murmurs as he scratches the side of his cheek.

Wang Ji’s smile broadens.

“Ah.. and the chicken wings too. Sweet-sour flavours paired with fried foods is a heavenly combination, as they say.”

“M..Mn.”

“The spring rolls too. In fact my plum sauce is the perfect condiment all of our meals.”

“Tomorrow morning, I’ll help you to make more fritters. Liang gu niang said they’re selling like hot cakes at their teahouse especially during brunch. She ordered two hundred pieces. That’s fifty more than today. What do you think, Lan Zhan?”

“Ah... hnnn... Yes,” Wang Ji groaned. He was having difficulty controlling his breathing, and his cheeks are flushed. He rests his forehead on the tabletop.

“Oh, before I forget, there’s a small tear on my shirt near the armpit - can you fix it for me tonight?” Wei Ying nonchalantly lifts up a sleeve, ignoring the older man’s distressed looks.

Wang Ji nods weakly into the table surface. He yields, and pants hard.

“Hmm... Er gege , Liang laoban first offered to sell his plum sauce at half-price of three silver pieces each. And I ended up earning three gold pieces from selling an improved version of the sauce. So, how many bottles were sold today?”

Wang Ji tried to reach for his abacus with shaking fingers, but his hand fell down to his crotch, nearly knocking off the now-empty snack plate, and he moaned loudly.

“Er gege , you disappoint me. I thought your maths were better than mine. You should be punished.” The sly, mocking tone in Wei Ying’s voice is unmistakable.

“Nnngh!”

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Somewhere during their meandering conversation, Wei Ying's socked feet playfully slid between Wang Ji's legs. Heels rubbed erotically against ankles, and toes glided their way up clothed thighs to reach their prize. Eventually, Wang Ji found his hardening erection deliciously rubbed in many directions. He clutched the offending feet with both hands in a futile effort to peel the limbs away, but Wei Ying seemed to know how to caress and massage at the precise tempo, speed and pressure; Wang Ji melted into a puddle of moans and trembling muscles under Wei Ying's touch too fast, too soon. The younger man's clothed soles stroked the throbbing flesh firmly at a very enthusiastic pace, and his toes rubbed along the underside of the heated, engorged length repeatedly until a growing sticky, wet patch formed where the tip tents at Wang Ji's pants.

Wang Ji missed his afternoon cultivation session - again.

During Wei Ying's home-cooked dinner:

“Lan Zhan, Liang laoban said that as founder of the recipe, I could give this plum sauce a special name.”

“Mn.” followed by loud chewing, because the fried Yiling tofu dipped in sauce is Just. So. Good. Those housewives weren't kidding with their claims about the deadly-delicious combination. He didn't even bother to tell Wei Ying to eat his meal silently - because in Wang Ji's mind, sauce-dipped tofu has been elevated above Gusu Lan's over-4000 rules.

“It's such a grand honour, to be able to name this precious baobei (treasure) ... what should I call it? Liang laoban said that his family name brings prosperity, and also, everyone in Yiling will be able to recognise and remember it.” Wei Ying twiddles his chopsticks in the air, before absent-mindedly biting into one of them.

“...” because Lan Wang Ji was busy stuffing his mouth with rice and another spring roll. Liang laoban 's tea may be ordinary, but the food is definitely extraordinary - with the sauce, of course.

“I want to add my name to it too. I shouldn’t use my family name, because it may attract unwanted attention from marauding Lanling Jin guards and those troublesome street brats. The second character of my name doesn’t have any useful meaning. So... maybe I should use... Xian?” Wei Ying asked himself with a smile, and rubbed his nose.

“Xian sounds good,” the older man replied briefly, as he gulped down a spoon of Wei Ying’s stir-fried mushroom and seasonal vegetables from their garden. It was actually quite tasty, especially when the spiciness was toned down.

“Liang... Xian. LiangXian? LiangXian’s Special Plum Sauce?”

The kitchen-cum-dining room fell silent.

“ NO. ” Lan Wang Ji stilled and glared at Wei Ying. A piece of spring roll skin hung from his lips.

Wei Ying froze and shrunk into his seat, his lips pursed and unspoken shock gleamed in his eyes as wide as saucers.

After two full minutes, Wang Ji wheezed out his breath (he had been holding it in, amazingly). He slowly picked up his chopsticks and plucked out a juicy fried chicken wing from a plate. Internally, he was beating up himself for displaying such an uncalled-for reaction, but he couldn’t find a plausible way to explain himself.

After all this time, he still had not told Wei Ying the name of their song. It was always “the song” or “our song”, but its name remained elusive to the person it was dedicated to.

“Ah.. m-maybe I should name it after myself only, right? S.. Since it’s my creation and all that...”

Wang Ji looked away and tried to busy himself with pulling out every last strand of meat from the chicken wing held daintily by the tips of chopsticks.

“... but you were my first true taste-tester and food critic, and I’m really grateful for your opinions. I wasn’t sure if those housewives bought the bottles just because of my selling skills or otherwise.”

“You look like you’re really enjoying my plum sauce. So I should devote part of this naming ceremony to you too. Which part of your name should I use? The Lan family name has good and noble connotations, and--”

“W.. wang” he whispered, almost fearfully, and stared hard at the half-eaten wing until he imagined that it could light up and disintegrate into ashes anytime.

“W.. what? Say that again?”

He cleared his throat, and looked straight into Wei Ying’s eyes. “Wang,” he repeated, clear and confident this time. He placed his chopsticks and the wing on his bowl.

Outside, the evening air was quiet and still. A rising moon against cloudless sky heralded the start of a long autumn night.

Lan Wang Ji worded the precious name, with as much passion and clarity as his lips and vocal chords could muster - two syllables etched into his deepest memories, that were sung and praised in his heart whenever he played it on the guqin or hummed its tune at night, but never mentioned in daylight even though his entire soul pleads for Wei Ying to hear, to recognise, to cherish the eternal love written in “their song”.

This time, it was Wei Ying who dropped his chopsticks. They clanged emptily on the kitchen floor. Wang Ji noticed something was amiss and quickly understood what had happened. He quickly rose from his seat and rushed to Wei Ying’s side. Immediately, he pulled both of them into a crushing and very warm embrace.

“A... Ah. My eyes, are they tearing up? I... don’t understand. I... the name... I think I remember now. Sixteen, no seventeen years ago, at the Xuanwu Cave... did you...?” Wei Ying couldn’t form coherent words as his mind became momentarily confused, jumbled up with thoughts of the past and the present, and felt the heartbreaking pain of finally finding the last missing piece of his life. His mind struggled helplessly at torrents of long-lost memories unleashed at the recognition of the name and its significance. He couldn’t grasp it all at once.

“Lan Zhan, all this time, have you waited for me...?” Wei Ying broke down into sobs before he could finish his sentence. Wang Ji held the Wei Ying as tight as he could, with the same determination and strength as his timeless promise to protect the only man he loves in this lifetime.

“Mn. I always have, and I always will.”

Not long after, Yunmeng Jiang's sect leader was seen holding a bottle of plum sauce that recently found its way to the shores of Lotus Pier, through merchants who frequent the trade routes between cities in the central parts of the Middle Kingdom. Servants gossip among each other, and some say that Jiang Wanyin had a very angry, seething look on his face and he gripped the bottle with such ferocity that even his knuckles turned white.

They couldn't understand what caused his dismay, as there was nothing particularly special about the sauce, other than that it had some familiar Yunmeng-style flavoured chilli in it, and on the bottle's label there was a cute picture of a black and white rabbit printed on top of its odd-sounding brand name.

Notes for the Chapter:

The Plum Sauce arc is done. I'm kinda surprised it ended this way, and I'm glad. Now we can get back to the regular scheduled programming!

It seems my love for bjyx will continue for a while longer, since there are more events lined up for these two superstars (especially Xiao Zhan who appears on my country's national newspapers quite often! yay!), and fans continue to create yummy and cute content for our consumption. Thank the heavens for a wonderful 2019 with Xiao Zhan, Wang Yibo, and everything Untamed and MDZS related... Amen!!!

As usual, please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 9

Notes for the Chapter:

Continued from Chapter 5, in case you're lost and wondering where we are on the GPS :-)

Thank you for letting me blow off some steam with the side-arcs.

And now we're back to our regular scheduled programming...

Lan Wang Ji pecked a kiss on Wei Wuxian's forehead. "Feeling better?" he rumbled lowly, soothingly, at the younger man lying with his back against his chest and between Wang Ji's bent legs. The ground was cold - a stark contrast compared to Wang Ji's protective cocoon of warmed breaths, fur-lined sleeves and thick winter robes. He smoothed Wei Ying's wildly-swaying hair to easily tie it into a neat ponytail. He adjusted the younger man's messy clothes; despite being mismatched by colour, at least he looked more presentable after all his buttons were properly knotted. The younger man eventually stopped hiccuping in tears, and eased himself to an upright sitting position.

Wei Ying nodded hesitantly, still rubbing his eyes and face. He took a couple of breaths to calm down.

Wang Ji sighed. So much had happened, but there was no time to dally. "Daylight grows shorter. We should make a move soon," he stated.

Wintry winds picked up in strength, signalling the arrival of a snowstorm. The first specks of ice began to appear, fluttering across the grey, gloomy and sparse landscape of their courtyard and empty vegetable patches.

Wei Ying hummed in agreement, quickly stood up with a renewed sense of purpose and straightened himself. He dusted off his clothes, and finally put on the correct pair of footwear. He even handed Wang Ji the older man's satchel of rice dumplings and a bamboo flask of water, thus conveying his intention that he would at least cheerfully see him off, while he planned to stay back because the trip to Yiling was too far and unbearable in the worsening climate.

"Stay warm and come back soon, okay?" Wei Ying murmured, eyes gazing downwards, as he brushed off unseen snowflakes off Wang Ji's shoulders and sleeves. His fingers lingered a little longer than intended on Wang Ji's, before he released their hands with a loud exhale. Wei Ying looked up with his bright, trademark grin and his eyes crinkled up until they became narrow slits.

Wang Ji felt a little shaken by the sudden change in the atmosphere between them, and felt he needed to explain himself. After all, he had just patched their shaky relationship with promises of being transparent to one another, and not to hide anything behind one's back.

"I- There's something important I need to pick up from the Huang outpost before they close for the rest of the year," he replied in a neutral, composed voice. He was cryptic and tight-lipped in his intentions, and unexpectedly Wei Ying did not probe further.

Wei Ying waved a hand dismissively with a few nods, "You're right, Er Gong Zi . We should stock up with a few more packs of herbal medicines for coughs and colds during winter. I might need a couple more jars of healing salves, when I start with the woodwork to expand our home. Also, if you come across this month's edition of Cultivation Times, buy a copy so that we can work on our cultivation techniques while we're snowed in."

"Mn. The order I made a few months ago will arrive today. I will buy those too," Wang Ji replied cautiously, being rather surprised at the younger man's polite interest in all things within their home, "though there are no bookshops that sell that magazine. I could get some reading materials related to the hunting, farming, or cooking."

"Cooking ones sounds good. I might as well start upgrading the recipe for my plum sauce, before someone copies it and I lose my employment at Liang's!" Wei Ying laughed light-heartedly, hands on his hips.

Wang Ji opened his mouth to retort about how slim chances were for anyone within Yiling to copy a Yunmeng-style recipe, but he decided to let go of the conversation. He relaxed his shoulders and clasped his hands behind his back, with Bichen in his grip.

From a distance, a thunder roared. The weather was becoming bleaker by the minute.

Huang village is an isolated farming community located at the westernmost edge of the Burial Mounds and generally, the Qishan province. Beyond the village lies vast tracts of uninhabited wasteland, sand dunes, and volcanic mountain ranges that extends from Qishan to the fabled Far West.

Conditions are extremely harsh, and the area continues to be plagued by marauding wild beasts, resentful spirits from those who died trying to cross the land, and the occasional surviving fierce corpses from events that happened sixteen years ago.

The village also serves as a resting stop for the legendary Silk Road merchants and their highly sought-after goods, including rare herbs and spices, exotic perfumes and fragrances, precious stones, fine embroidery and textiles, and other treasures brought from the Far West. A few shops became outposts for these merchants - they receive orders from anyone willing to pay extraordinary sums for such wares, and with luck, the merchants would deliver their cargo on schedule for pick-up by hopefully satisfied customers.

Wei Ying hoped the special order Lan Wang Ji made wasn't another set of jewelled accessories as another "proclamation of their love" (would this be called an anniversary gift, he wondered). That expensive mistake from last autumn sat in their bedroom's closet in wooden box, never worn, and best forgotten. Wei Ying thought that the set of shiny hairpins, forehead jewelry, earrings, necklace, bracelets and anklets, despite bearing the signature of (suspicious-sounding) famous artisans, looked rather tacky in their colours and designs. They were too bright, too loud and simply too big for his tastes (the pipa-sized ruby earrings looked horrendous, as an example).

Wang Ji was at the edge of their estate when thunder struck again. He stood and stared ahead at the rolling clouds with uncertainty, fingers clutched at his thick winter robes as tightly as possible. He looked as if he was having second thoughts about a two-hour walk to Huang village; the snowstorm seemed to come in increasingly vicious wind-whipped blasts, and falling ice was starting to seep into the ground, turning the scenery into muddy white and browns.

Wei Ying shrugged and rose from his haunches at the sheltered entrance of their home. His booted feet were becoming numb from the cold ground, so he made little side-to-side hops. Out of habit and in need to fiddle with something useful, he pulled out two yellow paper talismans from his inner robe's pocket, and wrote mystic words on them with his index finger. Both immediately burst into a ball of flame each, and floated closely to their creator. They burned for a while, though the warmth that emanated was comparable to a kindled matchstick held against a blast of icy blizzard.

The younger man sent one of the balls of flame to Wang Ji's side. The effect was immediately obvious; although it did not warm the air significantly around the older man, however a clear bubble surrounded him; neither snow nor wind was able to pass through, and they bounced harmlessly at the invisible barrier. Fire Shield was cast.

Wei Ying's gaze inadvertently landed on his partner. The soft golden glow cast by the flames painted an intimate yet enchanting picture of his Han Guang Jun, and he couldn't help but to be mesmerized by the beauty and kindness reflecting in the eyes of his soulmate. He realized that he had been self-centered at times and yet, since his return to this world, Lan Wang Ji has always been by his side, as a caring and supporting lover, and they worked things out together whenever possible. It felt right and timely to reciprocate his feelings towards his lover despite sometimes discouraging circumstances. Wei Ying felt his heartbeat quicken, his love and desire for the other man grew with eventual intensity; so, he made a silent decision to man up and solve their problems even if it meant making some personal sacrifices.

head, and a proverbial lightbulb was lit. The younger man easily trudged through a growing layer of ice that seemed to melt upon contact with his shield; he literally mowed a path from their cave-home through a lawn of snow towards Wang Ji within seconds.

“Ahh... Lan Zhan! Why don't you use Bichen to get to the village? I'll tag along and help clear the way with my magic so that you don't have to face the snowstorm during flight. I'll also help to carry all the stuff, so that you can get around faster,” he suggested as he tugged at Wang Ji's sleeve. “Lao gong , let me be useful to you this time!” he added with a cheerful outburst, which left little puffs of white clouds that faded as fast as they blew away.

Again, those smiling, crinkled eyes, Wang Ji noted.

Bichen vibrated faintly, eager to be of service.

Lan Wang Ji turned to Wei Ying, with a gentle expression on his face that spoke volumes of gratitude, understanding, affection and tenderness - barely noticeable, yet as clear as day for the younger man.

The older man nodded and then stared thoughtfully at the sword in his grip for a moment. He bent down to carefully place it on the ground, but hesitated slightly when he released the hilt. Bichen fell with a heavy thud.

Wei Ying watched intently at a frowning Lan Wang Ji as the latter squeezed his eyes shut in concentration, and directed an open palm towards at the blade, willing it to rise.

Wei Ying scratched his head with a confused look on his face. Was something broken? Could the built-up of negative energy in the 'Mounds be hindering Bichen's response? Does magicks such as the Fire Shield interfere with Bichen's ability? Is Lan Zhan alright? At times like this, oh why did the silly Wei Wuxian leave Suibian at Yunmeng Jiang's family home? Is there any other way for Lan Zhan to reach the village in such a short span of time? His thoughts escalated haphazardly with the prospect that his heroic plan to save the day was foiled by a stubborn blade that refused to lift off.

"I... I used up the energy from my golden core last night. It will take... some time... to recover," Wang Ji whispered slowly, spelling out his own dilemma, and his face hardened imperceptibly with anger and shame. His arms dropped to his sides, no longer calling for the sword.

Wei Ying blinked a few times, tried to connect the wildly passionate events from the night before to the scene before him. Bichen seemed crestfallen, and quietened down.

"Lan Zhan... I- I'm sorry!!" Wei Ying nearly wailed suddenly, his voice full of regret when he realized what had happened and the gravity of the situation. He grabbed one of Wang Ji's forearms and shook it desperately to convey his sincerest feelings. "I didn't know it would come to this! It's my fault, it's all my fault... I'm so sorry...". He shook his head and mumbled to himself, “What should I do? The outpost will close after today, the snowstorm is already here, a two-hour walk at a time like this will be impossible...”

The mask over Wei Ying’s face disintegrates, revealing the true fear and anxieties that had gripped the young man’s heart since daybreak. Wei Wuxian is indeed a fragile, flawed man; one who is easily scarred by events from the past, overly sensitive to the pain and suffering of loved ones to the point of tormenting himself with self-blame and self-sacrifices; and yet he stubbornly continues to put on a brave front, alone, soldiering on even after others have praised, thanked, apologized or forgiven him - until there is no more path to walk on.

Words stuck to Wang Ji’s throat when understanding dawned on him. He knew that Wei Ying does not need comforting words. Promises are for tomorrow and the uncertain future; action has to be done, now , as proof that he lives up to his worth as Wei Ying’s Han Guang Jun .

In a flurry of furred robes, Wang Ji pushed away Wei Ying’s grip on his wrist, and intertwined his fingers with the latter’s.

“Get on Bichen,” he ordered, his face remained expressionless.

Wei Ying was caught surprised. “W- W- What?”

Wang Ji pulled Wei Ying onto the sturdy blade so that both of them stood along its length. Wei Ying's muddy boot smeared the shiny surface, but the older man remained unfazed.

“We... We’ve been... dual-cultivating... for more than a year. Your spiritual energy level should be strong enough to raise a sword, and...” Wang Ji struggled to explain his thoughts without embarrassing himself with such shameful descriptions, and had a hard time to verbalize each word, “... by now, there’s enough of me inside your young golden core.”

Wei Ying stared back in disbelief and wonder, and held his breath. The air around them was warm, though not necessarily from the fireshield. The mere mention of “dual cultivation” had coloured Wang Ji’s cheeks into multiple shades of red.

“Wei Ying, Bichen recognizes you as much as it recognizes me as the master.”

Wei Wuxian was at the verge of discovering a brand new world with cultivation and swords. He squeezed his eyes shut and concentrated on his budding golden core to call upon the fabled blade that is said to remain dustless for eternity.

The legend seemed to be true - Bichen hummed with living, sentient consciousness and glowed with spiritual energy. All forms of dirt and dust, including Wei Ying's muddy footprints, disintegrated from the luminous, pulsating steel.

Wei Wuxian had blushed terribly at Lan Wang Ji's sudden idea of using the sword to solve their problem. As Bichen started to rise into the air while carrying both men in a fireshield, Wei Wuxian's face too, coloured in as many shades of cute pinks and reds.

"Ah... Lan Zhan... m- maybe SuiBian would be a better choice for me, if it was here..." Wei Wuxian sheepishly said, trying to change the subject. They were at least as high as the barren treetops, the world beneath them started to look scary from their dizzying height, and soon, they started to inch forward - slowly and carefully, at first. In the world of cultivation blades, SuiBian could be described as an agile and light vehicle, while Bichen was notoriously as heavy and sturdy as a tank.

"Nnnh. My ride's bigger. Come on, let's get going," Wang Ji replied casually. He tightened his grip with Wei Ying and nudged the latter to focus ahead. He helped Wei Ying to steer the bulky blade's direction and within minutes, both were on their merry way, zipping through the snowy skies at an incredible speed.

At one of the cliffs along the cold, parched mountains of Burial Mounds, a black wolf engulfed in dark spiritual energy turned its head upwards. Its muzzle twitched with interest as it sniffed the air.

Suddenly, there deafening "Ya-hooooooooo...!!!" that echoed in the surrounding hills and valleys. A tiny pinpoint of flying sword and its two passengers streaked through the skies, leaving behind a faint, misty white trail. The wolf growled as it recognizes the telltale signs of a Fire Shield spell vaporizing falling snowflakes along its journey.

The wolf instinctively responded, against its will, with an equally resounding howl that chills the hearts of all Men, including the two humans on their way to the village.

Notes for the Chapter:

This one's short, because I had already written the draft while working on the side-arcs. Nothing spicy, just cute.

The next one's going to take a longer time, since I'm writing from ground zero.

I share the same wishes as many other people who think that Wangxian dual-cultivates - not just out of necessity, but also for "papapa" fun too... haha!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 10

Like a doting husband teaching his wife how to drive for the first time, Lan Wang Ji felt nervous every time Wei Ying tilted their ride too much to the side, or if Bichen sputtered and lost its lift temporarily, sending them both free-falling a few centimeters and Wang Ji's panicky heart went crashing to the ground in as many times . He struggled, but managed to maintain his near-expressionless visage as the highly-esteemed Han Guang Hun, and stood as straight as he possibly could on their unsteady ride. Fortunately, Bichen's ivory-white scabbard did not crack from the stress of its owner's iron-hard grip (who was equally stressed as well).

“Ahhh! Lan Zhan! Your Bichen is too heavy! It's hard to steer it to where I want to go! And it's too bulky! My legs are cramped from pushing through enormous amounts of spiritual energy to get it to move !” (actually, his knees and calves were aching from self-inflicted strain by stooping low on tensed muscles.)

Wei Ying, on the other hand, was too busy and excited with his new toy, especially after he started to get the hang of maneuvering the sword. “Ahhh! Look! Look! If I lean to the right, it really follows me! Oh! If I relax and wiggle my toes a little, it seems to pick up speed! Oh no, are we going too fast?”

A wild pigeon flew past and deftly avoided them.

“Mn. Our speed is alright. Focus, Wei Ying,” Wang Ji assured the younger man, and held him closer. He enjoyed having his cheeks tickled by Wei Ying’s wind-blown hair, and nuzzled into the ponytail, inhaling its heart-warming scent. Through their touch, he was able to send miniscule amounts of his own golden core energy to help propel Bichen forward at a comfortable pace.

They flew through the snowy skies for a while, before Wei Ying shouted (because he thought the stormwinds swirling around them were deafening, but Wang Ji could hear him just fine), “Lan Zhan! We need to stop! I have to re-cast the Fire Shield spell!”

Wang Ji noticed the balls of flame that accompanied them had dimmed into flickers. He nodded, and pressed his body weight against the younger man. Both of them leaned downwards, and Bichen descended. They found a small clearing in the bushes to land. While Wei Ying set another yellow paper talisman ablaze, Wang Ji handed over his bamboo flask and Wei Ying gratefully drank a few gulps because his throat felt a little raw after all the excited shouting and screaming in mid-air.

The couple took off and made a few more pitstops, before reaching the outskirts of Huang village.

Lan Wang Ji pointed towards a pine forest glade - a rare patch of green in a vast landscape of grey-white. A small bubbling brook ran through it; its water still flowed despite the freezing weather, which easily identified its source as Qishan's thermal springwaters. Wei Ying expertly landed Bichen on the snow-covered ground; he seemed to have mastered the basic skills of handling the sword in flight.

Wei Ying began to check his remaining inventory of talismans in his garment's inner pockets, and Wang Ji proceeded to re-fill their bamboo flask. Boiling water churned from the streambed near certain banks, so he collected steaming water from those spots and dropped a pinch of pine needles to make a refreshing beverage.

The last Fire Shield had winked out of existence, and snow began to cover their clothes. Cold began to seep in; Wei Ying did not have a thick fur coat and began to shiver while counting the number of remaining pieces of coloured papers in his grasp.

Wang Ji thought for a moment. The young man had certainly redeemed himself by making good on his promises and showed surprising adaptiveness and ingenuity by delivering both of them to Huang village, safe and sound. As he approached Wei Ying with his decision, Wei Ying surprised him yet again -

“Lan Zhan! Lan Zhan! Look at this!” the bright smile was unmistakable - Wei Ying had discovered (or done) something again .

A train of talisman was proudly raised up to his attention. Between Wei Ying's open arms was a complex layered arrangement of papers including Eye, Memory, and Fire talismans - bound by a bright blue line of Wei Ying's Binding Spell. A dripping brush ink pen dangled from his fingers.

"Guess what it can do!" and the talisman train was jiggled enthusiastically.

Wang Ji frowned as he capped the flask and stowed it into the satchel. He would humour Wei Ying's interesting question, because it was about possibilities as bright as younger man's toothy grin - and possibilities is what they are after, in order to succeed in their race against the clock to complete their shopping mission, and return home before the snowfall became too heavy and buried all routes around the Burial Mounds.

He stroked his chin thoughtfully. "Mn... first, write and transform the simple Fire talisman into its modified version, the Fire Shield. Then, the Eye talisman will record this mystical writing into the Memory talisman, so that the action can be performed again when it is laid upon the Fire talisman. This transformation can be repeated as many times as necessary, since the Memory talisman does not disintegrate like any other spells," and then he gestured at an unfamiliar-looking dark blue piece of paper, "but what does that do?"

Wei Ying pulled it towards Wang Ji, stretching the paper tightly against the Binding Spell's thread until it threatened to tear. Wang Ji's eyes widened in amazement - there was a nearly-unrecognizable mystical symbol of "Time" on it, and a crude, hastily-written "five minutes" ( 五分 ) underneath. "Does... this work?" he inquired, astonished.

One does not simply create and write on talismans without proper consultation with the Grand Cultivation Council's exhaustive 1,151th edition of 'List of Allowed Symbols and Words' and its hundred-page binder supplement titled 'Official Procedures and Sequences for Writing Mystical Words And Symbols'.

Legends handed down from generations of cultivation grandmasters, when inscribed onto books and paper scrolls, became holy scriptures and enforced as the Laws of Absolute Truth by the Council a thousand years ago. The laws decree that every mystical word and symbol must be used with utmost care and respect, and in particular methods as prescribed by the sacred texts. Certain divine elements must remain beyond the realm and reach of mortals, for obvious reasons. "Time" is one such forbidden word; the consequences of meddling with such a fundamental concept of the Universe were inconceivable and therefore, its usage was prohibited by the Council at the same time when the first laws were enacted. There are very few known examples of what a "Time" spell can do; such unlawful knowledge is limited to only those within the elite, such as the ex-Chief Cultivator Han Guang Jun - including but not limited to: instilling a time-bound element to an object, or worse, to manipulate the passage of time itself.

To break the taboo by creating a "Time" spell was unthinkable, and Wei Ying had just done that!

"I counted the duration between each Fire Shield spell during our trip here, and five minutes seem just about right. The whole cycle of spell-casting should repeat itself every five minutes..." Wei Ying muttered to himself. He looked up and simply asked with sparkling, curious eyes, "Lan Zhan, do you think five minutes is enough? Or should I reduce it to four? I don't want to risk being blinded by snow while flying through those nasty clouds! But I have very limited pieces of paper left, so I don't want to waste them unnecessarily!"

Lan Wang Ji's gaze became gravely serious and he opened his mouth to say something harsh - but then, he closed it back.

Wei Wuxian would never intentionally hurt anyone. His bravado and resourcefulness goes so far as not even to question the permissibility of using such a spell, but instead, he was a step ahead by thinking about how to use it for their benefit. He is driven by his stubbornness to help in good faith, and Lan Wang Ji swears by Wei Wuxian's good faith to pursue their lifelong promise, since more than sixteen years ago.

So, Wang Ji broke into a faint smile.

"Mn. Five minutes. Will... this... be alright?" he gestured at the same words written hurriedly on blue paper that designated the period between activations.

Wei Ying scrutinized at the writing, and even traced fingertips on each stroke to make sure that he didn't miss anything. "I guess so. You know, this isn't an answer sheet to one of your Uncle's examinations back in the Cloud Recesses... so I won't be graded for the messy calligraphy," he replied and giggled. He lay lightly on Wang Ji's shoulders and exhaled, reminiscing about the time they spent together during their youth while playing with his newly-created train of talismans.

The older man adjusted his thick outer robes so that they partly cover the younger man too. Wei Ying muttered a word of thanks as he snuggled deeper against Wang Ji's chest, enveloped by warmth and nostalgic memories of studying in the sterile classrooms, being scolded by Gusu Lan's elders, throwing crumpled paper messages at classmates, and magically slapping portraits of turtles onto Master Lan Qiren's back.

Then, Wei Ying's stomach rumbled.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei Wuxian was deeply embarrassed. How could the unexpected hunger interrupt such a precious moment with his partner!

"Um... I didn't properly finish this morning's breakfast, so..."

Lan Wang Ji sighed and planted a feather-light kiss on his forehead. Then, he took hold of Wei Ying's wrist, and led both of them deeper into the glade. He made sure Wei Ying sat between his legs, still wrapped by the fluffy warmth of his outer robes, sheltered from the falling snow underneath one of the pine trees. He took out the contents of his satchel and offered a tantalizing-looking rice dumpling, which Wei Ying gratefully accepted.

Wei Ying gazed in wonder at his partner's simple, wordless, yet affectionate act of kindness, while chewing noisily at the sticky rice. After a hard, dry swallow which immediately satisfied his hunger pangs, he found himself staring at an open bamboo flask.

Wei Ying did not need to wait; Wang Ji gently tipped the flask to his lips, and soon he was enjoying a warm sip of pine needle tea. He made some happy mmmh noises while washing down the meal with the minty refreshment, and he leaned back into Wang Ji's welcoming cuddle.

Lan Wang Ji pondered at his predicament while running his fingers languidly through the younger man's hair, tucking a few stubborn strands behind the ears when a chilly breeze blew.

Huang village was just a short walk from the glade; he needed to collect his special order from the outpost; snowfall was getting heavier; and he knows that deep in Wei Ying's heart, the young man still wished to go to Liao's General Store to buy much-needed tools for his winter home-improvement projects. There was nothing of suspect in Wei Ying's intentions - so, could he somehow grant his lover's desires?

His special order was supposed to be as described by its namesake - special, secret, and a surprise. In spite of his earlier promise not to keep things behind each other, this was an exception he was willing to make for his cause, as selfish as it sounds. So, how could he somehow procure his coveted prize stealthily, away from prying eyes?

Wei Ying licked his fingers clean one by one, after devouring the dumpling.

“Wei Ying, I have an idea. Do you still want to go to Yiling City?”

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

“Mister Lan (蓝先生), will that be all?” the portly shopkeeper asked, and pointed her abacus on the pile of purchases. Packs of dried herbs and medicinal roots, clay jars of ointments and a couple of magazines were neatly arranged on the payment counter. The outpost, which also doubled as a sundry store, was quiet except for two other browsing customers from faraway provinces, dressed in ethnicwear of distant western origins.

The shopkeeper cleared her throat, and Wang Ji focused on the task at hand. “Um... Lady Shopowner (老板娘), can you add two blank notebooks too?”

Wang Ji nodded hesitantly; he wasn’t sure. All he knew was that he needed to buy two.

The shopkeeper carefully maneuvered her round body around the payment counter, and stepped into the stationery aisle. She tiptoed to reach a stack of blue-covered stitched bound books which Wang Ji had not noticed before.

There was an assortment of paper materials in all shapes and sizes on the shelves, and it seemed only the shopkeeper knew where to find what her customers wanted.

“No cooking ingredients for your wife this time? Spices from the Far West?” she asked, as she added to his orders on the countertop. She absently scratched a large mole at the bottom of her double-chin.

He blushed and vaguely shook his head. Although he remained as inconspicuous as possible, the shopkeeper had a keen eye on all her customers and learnt that he always bought household and kitchen-related goods - and always for two.

The shopkeeper started to pack the goods into a cloth bag. Wang Ji could not help feeling disturbed by the bright-red fingernails that scratched the countertop's surface, as much as how the excessively glossed rosy lips moved when she talks. She wasn't a friendly business owner, and exuded a rather overbearing demeanor - but she was professional enough to manage some light banter and be acquainted with her customers (and to keep them from running away). The outpost had a feeling of being a cozy family-owned business handed down from generations - bright and clean enough along the main narrow aisles but cob-webbed and dusty around the dim corners, boxes of stocks stacked up to the ceiling at the sides, and a mismatched collection of antiques, yesteryears' paintings, and dog-eared poem calligraphies adorn the walls and atop dull, paint-chipped furniture. Incense smoke from a family altar permeate the air. It felt appealing especially to the rural folk and those who have a nostalgic taste for eras of the past.

“You should bring her here someday. We take pride in getting to know our customers and their families. I can recommend some good products and services that I’m sure all housewives are interested in,” she said with a solemn face, obviously trying to attract more sales, sans the persuasive smile needed to seal the deal.

He shrugged, and looked undecided. “Some... day,” he repeated her words, then murmured, “S-She (他) prefers to shop in the city.” He kept his gaze to the floor as the last items were inserted into the bag.

“Today too? In this weather?” her voice rose, incredulous.

“Mn,” came the curt reply. Wang Ji wanted to quickly pay for his purchases and leave the shop before his earlobes became too visibly red under her steely eyes.

“I see. Be careful, the snowfall is forecasted to be heavy this afternoon and all the mountain passes will close. We’ll be closing at lunch because of that,” the old lady said with a hint of concern in her voice and raised a fat open palm expectantly. “Including your special order, that will be two hundred, please.”

Wang Ji took out his money pouch. It contained his life savings, and he felt conflicted that he will miss the comfortable weight hanging from the sash around his waist.

The shopkeeper noticed something was amiss. “Where’s your sword, Mister Lan? You’ve always carried it with you.”

“I... I didn’t bring it with me today,” he replied reluctantly and handed over the two jade-lined gold bars that he had kept close to him since leaving Jingshi last summer.

She snatched the pouch, tossed it a couple of times and weighed it with an experienced hand. She could confidently feel through cloud-patterned silk for the jade dragon sculptures and Imperial Reserve markings on the surface of the precious metal. She didn’t need to peek into the pouch to be sure; these are hallmarks of an astute tradesperson who has mastered the fine art of counting money without needing to actually see or touch any. She did not even say a word of thanks before pocketing it away - it was just one of the many daily transactions for the outpost.

“Hmm. You know, it’s not in my position to question about your plans for the day, but I hope you will stay safe especially on your way back. The snow will be nearly impassable, and only the Heavens know what kind of denizens will come out to play,” she stated matter-of-factly.

Wang Ji grunted a short "Mn" and picked up the cloth bag. He didn’t want to trigger further topics for discussion, so he remained silent. His purchases weren’t too bulky, and he managed to pack everything into his satchel. He consoled himself that the contents of the bag was worth the hefty price paid, and that his heavy, loaded satchel should feel equally comfortable on his shoulders as the two gold bars previously hanging on his sash. He bowed and impatiently rushed out of the shop.

The lady shopkeeper felt uncomfortable seeing one of her favourite (and handsome) customers hurrying out to the icy streets, alone, so she followed him out of rare concern. At the doorsteps, she called out, “Mister Lan! Be careful and watch out for the wolves and bears! We hope to see you again when we reopen in three months’ time!”. She watched the man in his mid-thirties timidly bow again, and head off into the snow-clad street.

Just then, a figure clothed in a white tunic and brown trousers hurtled from the sky on a shiny, shimmering sword.

Wei Ying narrowly missed a stack of barrels, and thankfully, he managed to skid and pull into a complete stop right in front of Wang Ji without tumbling over unceremoniously from the fabled blade. Two full sacks, each tied to Bichen’s hilt, lay on both sides of the sword. If it had been SuiBian, Wei Ying would have never managed to get a lift off - he finally appreciated Bichen’s heavy-duty design and its impressive innate strength.

“I-I couldn’t find the glade, so I c-came straight to the village - j-just in the nick of time as you w-walked out of the s-s-shop,” he said through chattering teeth and plumes of frosty breaths. His face was pale and chilled, his hair was a little wet from melted snow, and his body shivered. It seemed his last Fire Shield spell was exhausted during the (second) journey to Huang village.

Wei Ying sniffled and sneezed. Snot ran down his nostrils, and interestingly, a couple of bird feathers too. They looked suspiciously like wild pigeons'.

Lan Wang Ji swiftly took off his outer robes and hung it around Wei Ying's shoulders. The younger man gratefully settled into the lingering heat and pulled the garment close around his quaking form.

Fortunately, the street was deserted and only a few curious onlookers hung around from a safe distance after Wei Ying made his grand entrance. Soon, even these inquisitive stares disappear behind shuttering doors and windows as businesses closed one by one towards lunchtime. Huang villagers were quite used to seeing cultivators displaying their prowess with swords and magic; being on frontier lands meant they had seen plentiful of strange men flying around on even stranger looking things including weapons such as axes, halberds, quarterstuffs or whips , and magically-enchanted instruments such as plus-sized guzhengs, erhus, pipas or gigantic hulus.

"I've bought all the tools we'll need," he chirped gleefully, patted one of the bags and his feet nudged at Bichen; a heavy shovel was tied to the blade for ease of transport, "and Liao laoban was so happy for being able to clear his stocks before closing time, that he gave me a discount!" He pulled out a receipt from his sleeve and passed it to the older man. Wang Ji hnn'ed when he eyed the total written at the bottom of the slip of paper, thumb-printed in red ink by Liao laoban - thirty silver pieces, which was the amount he gave to Wei Ying as (extra) spending money for the day. It was quite a good deal; which is generally true for all last-minute Winter clearance sales. He pocketed the receipt; he would need to record the day's expenditures into his account books when they return home.

While Wei Ying excitedly opened each bag to show Wang Ji what he bought - mostly crafting and construction tools made from bronze or iron (which the latter wasn't too interested in - home improvement projects were Wei Ying's forte anyway), another shout rang out from nearby.

"Young Master Lan! It is really you! Ai-yo-yo... What a small world we live in!"

An old bearded man dressed in a hunter's get-up and a bow strung to his back trudged through the snow while pushing a wheelbarrow full of hunting gear. His hood was covered in white, and his smile had as many missing teeth as the number of wrinkles on his cheerful, wizened face.

The hunter shook Wei Ying's hands energetically, and Wang Ji tipped his head downward in a respectful greeting towards the elderly man. He stepped back to let Wei Ying exchange pleasantries while he busied himself with tying the bags from Liao's store, keen to blend into the background as much as possible. Till to date, he remained uncomfortable in crowds and noisy conversations.

"Young Master, how was the wild boar meat from yesterday?"

Wang Ji's eyebrows twitched, and he pretended to check the knots around Bichen's hilt.

"Ah...ha, ha... the meat... was really good! We finished it in one go." Sweet innocent laughter. A little too forced, a little feigned. Wei Ying's shadow fidgeted.

“I really cannot thank you enough, Young Master. People say that it’s difficult to teach an old dog new tricks, but look what I have done this morning!” he exclaimed and pulled off a canvas top to unveil a heap of trap nets inside the wheelbarrow. “Using the techniques you’ve taught me yesterday, I repaired and strengthened all the nets I have. These will improve my catch and feed my family in the coming seasons!”

The old hunter reached into the heap, pulled out a net and chucked it into Wei Ying’s arms. “Young Master, please take this. All my nets are in great working condition now, and I have more than enough. Please use this to catch wild boars, deer and other creatures around the ‘Mounds that we’ve talked about yesterday. It’s a time-honoured tradition for hunters like us to keep the hunting spirit going!” The old man gave an encouraging thumbs-up to emphasize his point.

While the net was politely shoved back and forth with plenty of “No, no it’s alright!” and “Please take it, young man!” in between, the shopkeeper walked up to their side. She carried a bamboo umbrella and shielded the hunter from the falling snow.

“You! It’s about time you came back from the woods! We’re leaving soon, so pack everything up and let’s go!” she admonished at the old man, who mumbled something but bit his tongue when she stopped him with a deadly glare.

The big-sized lady shopkeeper looked at Wei Ying with appraising eyes from head to muddied boots. Her gaze settled on Wang Ji's robes on the younger man's shoulders and she hmms loudly, almost suspiciously. Wei Ying took a step back, unsure of what that raspy sound meant, and promptly bumped into his partner's chest, who had decided to finally emerge from the background.

"Young Master Lan , it's a pleasure to meet you," she greeted Wei Ying with a rather haughty voice. Wei Ying clutched the net and nodded back politely, still shocked by the old lady's sudden appearance and fierce outburst. "I see you've been busy shopping in Yiling ," she stated and gestured at the two large sacks that bore large prints of the seller's family name. "Liao's store is an affiliate of the Qishan Merchants' Guild which we're also a member of, and all of us have agreed to close at noon today." She took hold of the old hunter's wrist and bowed slightly. "Please accept my apologies that I have to drag away this useless husband of mine before our caravan leaves at the scheduled time," she added with a businesslike tone.

Lan Wang Ji stood beside Wei Ying, who was clearly intimidated by the woman's presence. He loosely put an arm behind Wei Ying's back to steady the younger man. With utmost Gusu etiquette, he made a bow with hands folded in front, and said, "Thank you for your concern, Lady Shopowner. We will take leave too."

Thunder rumbled in the far horizon, and snow started to drift and swirl around them from icy winds. Heavier snowfall was imminent.

"Have a safe trip back home on your sword , Mister Lan. And... take this with you," she passed the umbrella to Wang Ji, and pressed its handle into his palm. Wang Ji was caught off-guard by her offer, and before he could respond, she walked off with her whining husband in tow. Just as she passed by Wang Ji, she whispered softly but clearly that only the latter could hear, "Take good care of your wife , Mister Lan. Come back when we re-open for business," and gave a sly wink.

Both the old lady and the hunter waved their goodbyes and disappeared behind the shopfront.

Wei Ying was happy that they finally had some shelter from the snow, and he started to dust off ice from their clothes. "Lan Zhan... is everything alright? That lady was kind of scary, but she was also kind of nice to give us her umbrella, don't you think so... eh? Lan Zhan?"

Wang Ji's cheeks burned with six shades of red. He wondered how we would face the Lady Shopowner in the coming Spring.

As Bichen put-puts its way back home with two big sacks dangling from its hilt, and two passengers standing firmly on its blade, Wei Ying tore yet another page from one of the notebooks that Wang Ji bought from the outpost. He appeared confident in casting magic while piloting the sword, and hardly wavered in his stance - his skills increased greatly with the additional practice between Huang village and Yiling City.

Wei Ying wrote a very fancy mystical word with his fingers which left an indelible glowing blue mark - a never-seen-before combination of the

“These fog lights are better than the white ones, don’t you think so, Lan Zhan?” he shouted to the back as they traverse through thick snow clouds.

“... Mn.” Lan Wang Ji made a delayed response as he mind was still busy trying to process Wei Ying’s ingenuity in using talismans; the latter had again broken millenia-old rules on Cultivation Arts, one by one, without batting an eye or hesitate at breaking such taboos.

First, he wrote multiple mystical words on one piece of paper , rather than forming a train of talismans - which made so much more economical sense, given that a piece of talisman usually costs up to a silver piece each. And it worked! If knowledge of such discoveries reach the general populace, it could practically turn the profitable talisman-making industry upside down, literally, and many paper mills would go bust. The only downsides were that the trick was limited to a few, perhaps up to a maximum of three or four characters depending on the size of the paper, and the lack of sequential activation which meant that the spells had to be cast simultaneously.

Second, and this one takes the cake: Wei Ying wrote the mystical words on plain xuan paper - the same ones used by children and scholars - instead of the standard Council-sanctioned, colour-coded and (awfully thin) enchanted ones. Even during his short tenure as Chief Cultivator, Lan Wang Ji did not manage to crack the secrets of making talisman papers, other than the fact that a vast, complex network of temples, shamans and paper mill companies with vested monetary interests was involved.

He grasped the bundle of net gifted by the hunter close to his satchel, and watched closely as Wei Ying used all five fingers to write tiny words of “Sparkles” on an edge of the following page. He carefully ripped five small squares (because they were flying through the air and he didn’t want to lose any of the written words) and handed them to Wang Ji.

Lan Wang Ji had given up on trying to understand what Wei Ying was doing, or the science (or maths) behind his creative use of magic. He obediently took the paper pieces, each no bigger than the size of a fingertip.

“Here, cast one of these every time you see wild pigeons flying by. I was smacked in the face by a few on my way to the village, and had this idea of shooing those birds away with Sparkles. These pieces are small, so they don’t hurt and they last long enough to get the job done,” he said nonchalantly. When he noticed Wang Ji’s curious stare at the fistful of tiny scraps, he laughed and added, “Lan Zhan! Don’t look at them like that! I was so desperate on my way from Yiling and I ran out of talismans... so I had to make many Sparkles out of one receipt from Liao’s! It really works despite the size!” and patted Wang Ji’s shoulder to assure the older man.

(At the back of Wang Ji’s mind, an alarm sounded - on dear, Wei Ying burnt away one receipt! He would have to ask the younger man about it later, so that his books are balanced by the end of the day.

However, the conversation about Sparkles eventually made him forget about it.)

As Wei Ying continued to fly the sword back to their cave-home through snowy skies, he casted Fire Shields from carefully-rationed pieces of paper to keep them out of blinding snow, while Wang Ji threw Sparkles at passing flocks of birds. The start of Winter was a busy time for migratory birds, in fact.

Wang Ji fingered the trapping net in his grip. “Wei Ying, that old hunter... did he really give you some wild boar meat yesterday?”

Wei Ying stilled for a moment, and kept his gaze forward. “Er... yeah,” he muttered. He’s avoiding the subject .

Wang Ji sighed. A Sparkle chased away a crane from ramming into them (thus saving them from another roadkill). “Wei Ying, let me do the cooking from now on. Especially when making soups with pork ribs,” he stated. There was no room for negotiation.

“Uh... okay. I-I’m sorry for last nigh--”

The older man leaned into the Wei Ying and wrapped an arm around his waist. He gave a peck on the younger man’s cheek. “You did well, by helping the hunter. You didn’t know what the meat could do to me, and--,” and Wei Ying silenced Wang Ji with a tight embrace around the shoulders and a kiss in return. It was a shy but sweet, thank-you touch on the lips.

Wang Ji had to send additional miniscule amounts of his greatly diminished golden core energy to keep Bichen afloat, because Wei Ying was losing focus - which was all right.

The older man smiled faintly into the kiss. As he nuzzled and rubbed noses with his lover who was murmuring his name repeatedly, he thought of something.

“No more pork ribs for now. We’re having boiled fish tonight.”

“Ahh... Lan Zhan... again?” he whined as loudly as he could. He shook the older man’s wrists and pouted like a disappointed child. They just had that a few days ago. Sure, they were enough freshwater fish swimming in their lotus pond... but still...

“Boiled fish. Gusu style.” Inwardly, Wei Ying gagged. Bleargh.

Then he snickered. And snorted. Boiled fish! Oh the boiled fish! Goddess Guan Yin, have mercy!!

“What.”

He waved his hands dismissively. “Nothing...”

A few minutes later, when their home was in sight, he asked, “Lan Zhan! How about one boiled fish... and one fried fish? There’s plenty of them from the pond, after all.”

“...”

“It goes well with my special plum sauce, you know.”

The grip on Bichen’s scabbard tightened with a clear clinking sound.

“Nnh,” and the deal is sealed.

Notes for the Chapter:

Totally weaned off from the crazed phase of the fandom now, phew. But I still wish Wangxian and BJYX an eternal happiness!!

We've reached 10 chapters!! Wei Ying gets a power up from the last couple of chapters, because he's just SO MUCH MORE. Lan Zhan is a very lucky man!!

Let's see how their blissful domestic happily-ever-after story will continue to pan out.

I made a little correction in the last chapter to align with the other stories in this head-canon universe. Expect more tie-ups and easter eggs from with the other two pieces "It was a dark and stormy night" and "It is a clear and sunny day".

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

p.s. made a small correction due to facts. The number of times I have to consult wikipedia and other websites about Chinese history, culture and other stuff.. is incredible..!

Chapter 11

Notes for the Chapter:

includes: Prologue - The Exodus (The year before, Summer/Autumn)

“The year before”

It was shortly after the highly revered Han Guang Jun left his coveted seat at the upended Grand Cultivation Council last summer, that they started looking for a more, say, ideal home as newlyweds - and away from angry, hostile family members (including the in-laws).

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

His departure from the Council left a sour aftertaste, and this strengthened his resolve to completely sever all relations with those cultivators and their labyrinth of dirty politics, money laundering with ill-gotten gains, and conspiracies with outside forces to control the world of cultivation. He received an ample dose of the same bitter medicine that Wei Wuxian had to swallow for most of the younger man’s past life - that every individual, even those that bore little or no relation to the Second Jade of Gusu Lan, had something unpleasant to say or harbored selfish intention, towards his simple act of submitting a resignation letter and leaving the hall of upset bearded old sages right after the scandalous passionate kiss to his lover (now, “wife”).

Scores of wise men accused the ex-Chief Cultivator of many false, distasteful sins that “could have” led him astray. Gossips within the hallways are pervasive, including unbelievably wild theories about how he lured and slept with a hundred beautiful young men and women on lonely nights during his tenure (because he was always the last one to turn off the lanterns in the Council office, and jealous/lazy servants couldn't find any other ways to tear down their fiercely disciplined employer from his throne); or how he secretly corrupted cultivation magic behind closed doors and summoned fierce corpses since attacks on people have almost become commonplace in the Northern regions; or how a thousand gold bars had gone missing overnight from the Council's coffers, and so on. There was no evidence, other than the cryptic words of "I once heard..." and "People say..."

(The truth is, the Council members wanted the general populace to focus on the cultivation-superstar that had fallen spectacularly from grace, instead of their ineptness in filling the gap that Lan Wang Ji left).

Rumour-mongering became rife in every teahouse in the Middle Kingdom, and every peasant, scholar, tradesperson and cultivator-kin joined the bandwagon:

Han Guang Jun is too young and inexperienced, so he must have surrendered his title after feeling humiliated that he couldn't complete the investigation into the new invasion of fierce corpses, said the jealous cultivators queueing up for candidacy as the next Chief.

He must be forced into doing this because he's found out some murky secrets about the Council and he was threatened to vacate his position (such as impenetrable secrets of the talisman-making industry), cried a group of business owners that supported him to break the monopolies involving key persons in the Council.

The story of Jin Guangyao's web of treachery must have reached the eyes and ears of the Emperor! The fall of Han Guang Jun is the first of a series of steps carefully planned by spies from the Imperial Court, and soon, we will all suffer from His Majesty's wrath!, postulated the scholars who have studied countless history textbooks and are well-versed with the eternal struggle between the Imperial Cultivators from the Heavenly Palace in Chang'an and the world of ordinary cultivators backed by the surviving Four Great Clans - Lan, Jiang, Nie, and Jin.

On the other side of the fence, multitudes of females from all age groups mourned the loss of their much-worshipped male god(dess) and manifested their sadness in various crazed, depraved acts ranging from: organizing mass gatherings where people sang praises and songs to hyperventilating and screaming audiences, re-enacted memorable events of Han Guang Jun's life (which left many heartbreaks, sobbing and fainting), and cry together in an unsettling but extraordinary display of sisterhood in times of crisis; crowd-funding enough to buy up all advertisement space along the main streets of major cities, to prominently display banners, calligraphies and huge building-sized portraits of their beloved idol; ensuring that every product that was ever mentioned in the same line (or breath) as Han Guang Jun's name, including his occasional product endorsements, would go out of stock for many months (he was once seen using a skin cream that helped to protect his angelic complexion from the damaging effects of summer's sunrays, and that brand of skin cream went on to become a best-seller); and making sure that his eminent name would top the charts of competitions, awards and various other avenues of showcasing one's talents (at one point, he ran a class for young aspiring cultivators and taught them some of his iconic martial arts moves - which eventually took on a life of its own and became "cool dance moves", much to the delight of scores of adoring teenage boys and girls). Despite their support, such fanatic acts led to tarnishing the remaining good reputation of Han Guang Jun, for obvious reasons.

(Perhaps, if one were to live long enough into the next millennia or two, one will see that such trends would evolve into an every occurrence of pop culture - but that is for another story.)

Nothing good ever comes out of being too famous and for the wrong reasons. All clans distanced themselves away from him at the height of the unsavoury events. Master Lan Qiren is said to continue to spit out blood at the mere mention of his nephew, and Jiang Wanyin would crack Zidian at anyone who dares to bring up the sullied name of this “troublesome” brother-in-law.

The successor, a rich member of the Jin family, eventually bought his way to the seat of the Chief Cultivator. He made sure to erase the mention of the Han Guang Jun’s name from all official records and texts (which pleased the bearded wrinkled old sages of the Council); generously paid off damages caused by disruptions in supply and demand for talismans and other magical goods as claimed by tradespersons - coincidentally, totalling up to a thousand gold bars (which turned the tide for support from business owners towards the new Chief Cultivator); made a few changes to the history books (which left scholars fuming and then retaliate by taking sides with the Imperial Court - with far-reaching consequences); created and spread new cultures to enthrall artisans and citizens, such as organising concerts, roadshows and live appearances with talented, beautiful young celebrities, thus garnering their votes and support with catchy extravagance-themed slogans such as "gold is in vogue" - thus wiped out the last dissenting voices about his bribe-laced appointment; and finally, he downplayed the fame and achievements of the Second Jade of Gusu Lan in the last sixteen years, which led to the current prickly state of affairs between the Lan and Jin clans (a cold war between these neighbouring clans was brewing, and either side was ready to raise a battle cry at the slightest provocation; unexpectedly, the Nie clan continues to feign ignorance).

Interestingly, the name of Wei Wuxian, once feared as the Yiling Patriarch, was hardly mentioned at all and has been largely forgotten.

With Lan Wang Ji's name taken out from the books, his fate would follow soon enough.

They've pored over many maps of the Middle Kingdom, talked to a few well-connected estate agents, and tried to imagine spending the rest of their peaceful marital bliss in regions as north as the bustling Imperial capital city of Chang'an or icy-cold Heilongjiang, somewhere closer to the sea and Gusu's roots in Suzhou, towards the blistering hot tropics of Yunnan in the south, along the fertile valleys of the Long River (though a bit too close to Yunmeng for Wei Ying's comfort), or maybe just somewhere more isolated and peaceful in the volcanic deserts and grass plains just a stone's throw away from the Xinjiang plateaus, where the mountains of Qishan resides.

In the end, it was a call from their old friend, Mian Mian, who helped them find their new home. She sent a Fairy Messenger spell to Wei Ying who happened to be around Yiling City at that time, busy meeting with prospective landowners and property agents in teahouses (and getting them to pay for his meals and drinks while having meandering "serious" discussions that never bore fruit), and hunkered down in cheap inns because he was always short on funds. Mian Mian was indebted to the couple's good deeds and she did not forget their kindness and generosity towards her family; years later, her daughter would still recall their chance meeting with a handsome "rich" gege in white, who seemed vaguely together with another chatty but forgettable gege dressed in black - so, as soon as she heard about a piece of vacant land being put up for sale by the local town council, she just had to make the call.

The Burial Mounds, as the name aptly describes, is a place avoided by the living, and favoured by creatures of the night - gruesome horrors told by mothers to scare their little children to go to bed by nine. Surprisingly, and probably due to the lack of human encroachment, there is an abundance of wildlife, dense grasslands and forests that harboured plenty of fruit trees abandoned by past generations of farmers, and a well-hidden network of springwaters from Qishan.

Still, nobody wanted to move in, although technically, the land was free for public use - until one day, the Mayor of Yiling City became desperate enough and decided to peruse a great marketing strategy. A price tag was put on the 'Mounds and a fancy land title was drawn up - for formality reasons. Mian Mian was the first to hear the news when her husband went to the city council's office to settle some tax dues and saw the proclamation posted on the noticeboard.

Mian Mian's family lived on the fringes of Yiling and in fact, closer to the 'Mounds, so she happily told Wei Ying that they could be good neighbours if he took up the offer - just a hundred gold pieces for the land title that spans across several hills, valleys and a cavern complex at the center.

A Fairy Messenger spell from Wei Ying and two days later, Lan Wang Ji rushed from Caiyi Town on a blazing Bichen with their modest possessions in tow. Without a question, he gladly paid with a gold bar from his money pouch at Wei Ying's insistence. Although Wei Ying did most of the paperwork and negotiations with the Mayor (because he wanted to be friendly with the city's most powerful political figure and also get free lunches at the city council's cost, while waiting for his lao gong ), the land title was issued to Wang Ji's name.

As the couple walked out of the city council office, Wei Ying started talking about furnishing their new home, having a simple outdoor barbeque house-warming party (because it's always cool to have parties outside during the hot summer), and inviting Mian Mian's family as well as Wen Ning and Sizhui. Wang Ji, on the other hand, started listing down the groceries they needed to stock up, and for a brief moment, he stole a worried glance at his money pouch.

There were four gold bars left in there.

After unloading a basket of summer berries, fruits, and wild mushrooms foraged from the forests at Old Merchant Zhu's shop, Wei Ying headed off to Grandma Li's clinic to drop off a fresh batch of herbal candies and collect his dues.

"You're such a hardworking young man, already up and about at this hour!" the sweet old lady praised him. The sun had just risen, businesses were opening up for the day, and people started to crowd at Yiling's markets to buy their daily groceries and have breakfasts of congee, fried dough sticks and dumplings. The clinic was conveniently located next to one such morning market, and close to Old Merchant Zhu's vegetable stalls.

She handed him the sales proceeds from the week before, a meagre but reasonable amount of twenty silver pieces. Wei Ying bowed in thanks, and sheepishly said, "It's only right that I work hard... I have to feed the family and pay the bills."

Grandma Li gave a serious, hard look at the younger man for a minute, before letting out a tired sigh and placed a palm on her forehead. "How I wish my son has half your character and none of his father's arrogance and laziness! Just because he is a certified doctor and works in a clinic inherited from his parents, doesn't mean he can turn up for work at any time of the day."

Wei Ying shrugged. He had met Doctor Li on a few occasions while delivering homemade medicinal confectionery made from herbs sourced from the 'Mounds and other ingredients such as flour and sugar from Liao's General Store. The doctor was a young man in his twenties, has a modern short haircut unlike most ordinary men in Yiling, always dressed smartly but unfortunately did not have a friendly, welcoming demeanour for a person practising the healing arts, unlike his mother who also worked as a dispensary nurse in the same premise.

Wei Ying scratched the back of his head. "Well, I used to sleep in late until my spouse said that I had to earn my keep," he joked to diffuse Grandma Li's agitated mood, "because if I didn't, I'd get kicked out of the house!" He continued cheerfully, "I'm sure someday, your son will find inspiration to work hard and commit to living up the Li's family name as well-respected medical practitioners in Qishan," then pointed at the storefront, "such as when it's time for him to officially take over the family's business," then thumbed at himself, "or when he settles down and realizes that he has other mouths to feed other than his!"

The old nurse sighed again and nodded in agreement. She took the fresh batch of herbal candies from the young man's hands. "You're married for a year already before moving here, and you're still so close and loving towards your wife. I wished it was the same as for me and my husband... our relationship cooled off by the following Spring Festival after our son was born... and now I'm ranting non-stop to a man half my age who delivers goods to my clinic every week. Ah, please forgive this old aunty!" she sighed again, exasperated.

Wei Ying wasn't an expert in matters of the heart, so he could not give her any better advice. He was very grateful for his current married life - he wakes up early every morning to a full breakfast on the table, his clothes neatly folded by the bedside, his mind alert and body fully energized for the day. He lives with purpose and there is a sense of fulfillment in everything he does.

Eventually, their conversation turned towards business affairs. Wei Ying took note of customers' feedback passed from the old nurse, such as an increase in requests for candies using summer fruit flavours, and in smaller sizes because children really liked them and the clinic usually sells out when large families drop by for their medical check-ups.

He thanked Grandma Li after taking next week's orders, and before he left, she gave him a few books, journals and magazines from the clinic "since the doctor doesn't need them anymore" and she doubted if the illiterate patients would be interested anyway.

Lan Zhan would be thrilled to read the latest editions of Middle Kingdom Geographic and Cultivation Times.

"Magics! Miracles! Mysteries! All for a silver apiece!"

"Three talismans for the price of two!"

"Fame and untold riches await those who wish to see their future! Have your fortune-telling done today!"

"Having a headache? Or a heartache? Step right in for a quick, relaxing acupuncture session! Free foot reflexology and palm reading, for a limited time only!"

Business is always brisk on clear, sunny days. People from all walks of life, especially rich housewives, thronged to his small cart for offers that few other street peddlers can beat. Wei Ying's A wesome S elling S kills and his sweet, charming personality made his customers buy more than they had intended, and return another day for more.

He usually starts by offering simple elemental spells, made easy by his self-named “Yin Tech patented technology” of putting a big red circle on each paper talisman. Housewives only needed to press the red mark to set off the spell, and no longer had to rely on their husbands to figure out the intricacies of spellcasting.

"Beautiful gu niang ! I see you've worked hard all day to make good meals for your family!"

"Oh? How would you know, young man? Don't try to sweet talk me into buying your cheap stuff!"

"Ah, of course not! I'm helping people by solving their problems, and all I'm asking in return is a small fee to feed my poor family. My wife also works hard with cooking and she's enjoying an easier life now with these talismans!"

"... What do you mean by 'easier'? How can cooking be made easier? Men like you probably never step into the kitchen!"

"That's very true, and I admit that my wife does all the cooking. But here," a Fire talisman is waved tantalizingly in front of the woman, "is something that helps to start fires in the stove, and these," three pieces are waved seductively, "will make sure your meat roasts are fully cooked, and your soups are kept warm throughout dinner. Surely you wouldn't want your children to complain about eating cold, undercooked food during mealtimes, would you?.... And, and,... Oh dear, did you sprain your wrist from fetching water from the town well?"

"How did you know?!"

"Look, there are ugly rope marks on the forearms. I will not be a dishonest seller and try to sell useless beauty creams here; so, please visit Doctor Li's clinic for the correct medication and any other minor ailments you may have. And while we're at it, please consider getting a few of these," a piece of Water talisman is flashed, "so that you don't have to fetch so many buckets of water the next time. Each will yield half a bucket, at least."

"You seem to be a sincere, kind-hearted person. I wish more street peddlers are like you, young man," the woman remarked, as she scrutinized the talismans with interest.

"You can always find me in the weekend morning markets. If there's anything that you're not satisfied with, you can address your grouses directly with me, the owner of the Yin Tech enterprise!" And he points at the odd-looking rabbit-themed company logo on each talisman. "If you don't mind me asking, does your shoulder hurt from carrying water or even that heavy-looking basket of vegetables? You can rest here," he pulls out a low chair and gives it a couple of wipes from a cloth, "and I can give you a nice acupuncture session. Your husband can wait a bit longer ."

A sly wink. That caught the customer's attention.

"Hah! I'll take your offer and these," she points at the various stacks of talismans on the cart table, before proceeding to sit on the chair with a huff.

"You're a smart boy, how did you know my husband is waiting on the other side of the market?"

Wei Ying smiled brightly. Whenever they visited the evening markets in Yiling, his lao gong would try to stand at the sides or keep to a couple of well-acquainted stall owners whenever possible, while Wei Ying would happily hop from one stall to another. Lan Zhan always commented with the succinct words, "Too crowded".

As Wei Ying proceeds to prep the customer's stiff shoulder muscles with a nice oiled massage while taking out his acupuncture equipment, he whispers to the housewife's ear with a rather sweet, seductive voice: "Of course I know what husbands do in the markets... I'm a married man too. "

Fifteen minutes later, Wei Wuxian pocketed another gold piece into his pouch.

Wei Ying keeps a small notebook with him and he jots down useful ideas whenever they surface from his hyperactive creative mind. He knows that sometimes, he carelessly leaves the book in their home and Lan Zhan will pick it up for him - after reading it, of course; so Wei Ying intentionally puts some comments and questions for his lao gong in case Lan Zhan could contribute a few more suggestions to his train of thoughts.

The cover was plain blue in colour, which was the norm for every notebook found in any bookstore. Wei Ying decided to customize it according to his colourful personality, by cutting up coloured papers and using rice glue to stick them onto the dull cover. He formed the letters which became the name his little notebook; for the time being, since he was a peddler of all sorts of magical charms, talismans and trinkets, he named it “A wesome S elling Skills”.

Flipping page after page, A wesome S elling Skills is a treasure trove of messily scribbled ideas on how and what to sell to supplement their meagre earnings. There are also unusually neatly-written comments on the sides of the pages - they almost look like prints, except for the rare telltale ink smudges in some pages. An excerpt of a page from the notebook:

- Be polite, courteous, and always SMILE.
- Relate to the customer's problems. LISTEN. Put yourself in their shoes.
- Always ask yourself, what else does the customer want and need (Wei Ying, please differentiate these two terms. Focus more on the wants)
- Each customer must leave with at least THREE items. Helpful list for talismans:

Lao Gong please fill.

(Wei Ying, please start a new page for this section. There are endless uses for each talismans, and I listed a few here.)

Wood: cooking, substitute for firewood, quick fix for chipped furniture, fix wooden tools and instruments such as guqin and flute.

Fire: cooking, light up lanterns at night, reading in the dark, useful for chasing away wild animals.

Earth: potted plants, gardening and farming, quick fixes to stone sculptures or earthen floors

Metal: quick fixes on weapons, knives and metal kitchen ware. Wei Ying, don't ever make silver and gold pieces with this spell. [Later, Wei Ying drew a turtle next to this comment]

Water: cooking, watering plants and farms, convenient for travel use, quick showers

Wind: cooling air during summer, fresh air, less sweeping required, drying laundry

Sparkles: entertainment such as fireworks, useful for chasing away wild animals

Shield: protection from external elements such as rain in case someone forgets to carry an umbrella, holding elements within a small area such as heat - good as heater when casted underneath blankets. Note: We should do this again during winter.

Binding: Keeping things tied together, laundry line, quick fix on tears in clothes. Note: It's your spell. Think of something useful yourself, Wei Ying.)

Lao Gong - Your ideas are too boring, too repetitive. Need more ideas outside of the kitchen and the house. I will try to mix these up and come up with newer spells. Please write more ideas. Buy another notebook when this one fills up.

(Wei Ying, please refer to the Laws of Absolute Truth by the Grand Cultivation Council. Combinations are prohibited, according to Law no. 201) [Later, a second turtle was drawn next to this comment].

Later the year, Wei Ying's A wesome S elling S kills was eventually filled up. Lan Zhan bought another notebook for Wei Ying during his last trip to Huang village before winter closed in, on a snowy day while travelling on Bichen with dreams of having his favourite boiled fish and fried fish dipped in the lip-smackingly delicious special plum sauce for dinner.

Notes for the Chapter:

I wrote this while waiting for my flight in the airport, so I couldn't put any sexy scenes... cries. Anyway, I'm consoling myself by saying that the time is well spent in expanding and elaborating about this fic's universe by pulling certain events and timelines together.

My early drafts for future chapters have grown into an enormous monster and I am DYING to write more cute and sexy scenes... ahhh!!

After a week's hiatus due to work, I'm slowly weaning off MDZS, Untamed and even bjyx stuff - which helps a lot because I can finally focus on the more important things in life other than scrolling down endless pages of twitter, forums and whatnots for fan-content; and also put serious effort into writing this fic :-)

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

p.s.: Edited to correct some cities' names, coz my Geography and knowledge of China kinda sucks lol

Chapter 12

The days are peaceful, fulfilling yet busy for Lan Zhan. Sometimes he misses the calm in the Cloud Recesses, where he could meditate, read his books or play the guqin for many hours, uninterrupted. However, he has abandoned his previous lifestyle when he left Jingshi last summer, along with his past pursuits of becoming a bachelor cultivator, a scholar and a devout practitioner of Gusu Lan's sacred rules within the protected mountains of the Cloud Recesses.

He tells himself again and again, that he is now a married man, that he lives for two , and that he is far away from home.

The path forward remains clouded in uncertainty, with little or no guidance from Gusu Lan's over-4000 rules that he had memorized in heart, a lifetime ago. He knows that as he treads ahead, he will face new challenges, and will be forced to break new grounds; he also knows there is joy in discovering about himself and living a fuller life with his significant other, and that there is pain from despair when plagued with mistakes and troubles with no one around to help, not even his missing older brother or any other clansmen.

He tells himself that walking the path shrouded in murky darkness of the Burial Mounds - together with Wei Ying - is not too bad.

It was shortly before six when Lan Zhan woke up - a late start for him. The first amber rays of sunlight filtered through curtained windows, bright enough to gently rouse him from sleep. He felt too comfortable to fully wake up to his senses; Wei Ying's soft snores continue to entice him back to dreams of lovemaking and intertwining bodies; and the sweet, musky all-too-familiar scent of Wei Ying's body odours and morning breaths are heavy on sleep-warmed pillows and blankets, that he wished he could bury himself deeper into the bed mattress and have his "five more minutes, please".

The sounds of birds and insects chirping filled the chilled dawn air, accompanied by a stronger, sharper smell of sandalwood incense pervading the bedroom's atmosphere; Wei Ying's modified "slow-release" Shield spell seemed to have lasted the whole night, he thought, and silently he uttered a word of thanks to his lover - by lighting up incense resins and then casting a few modified Shield spells around their cave-home, they were able to hold some of the smoke in (just barely) and keep out pesky mosquitoes and other biting insects that are prevalent during nighttime.

The couple had slept in, for justifiable reasons. He stayed up late (beyond his usual nine 'o clock) to fix Wei Ying's clothes and sew a new pair of trousers from rolls of cloth. Under the same flickering lights of lanterns and Fire spells that Wei Ying casted over their heads, the younger man busied with mass-producing paper talismans in the workroom. He worked hard, crouching beside the workbench and squinted against the dim light to write out top-selling elemental spells by hand (his handwriting is still messy, even sixteen years later). An hour after Lan Zhan's bedtime, when the older man gratefully climbed into bed, he saw Wei Ying putting the finishing touches on an assortment of knick-knacks to be sold in the markets. The constant sounds of hammering, carving, painting and tinkering that echoed from the workroom lulled him to sleep. Before midnight, he was jolted awake by an intrusive presence (Lan Zhan's defensive instincts kicked in regardless of the time of day), and he was greeted by the sight of his lover, dark circles under his eyes, sitting up on his haunches on their bed while writing out ideas into a little notebook (annoyingly titled A wesome S elling Skills, but Lan Zhan knew it contained more than just that because he's seen drawings about new gadgets, fixtures and home improvement projects between the pages).

Wei Ying was particularly active during some nights when the proverbial light bulb sparks inside his mind, but Lan Zhan was adamant that both of them get enough sleep - so, after calling out Wei Ying's name twice with terse instructions of "go to sleep" from where he lay on his side of the bed, he promptly plucked out the book and ink brush from Wei Ying's fingers. He ignored the younger man's protests and pulled him down to lie against his chest, so that his heart beat hard against Wei Ying's cheeks. He hummed their song in a soft, soothing but deep baritone voice. The struggles eventually died down and Wei Ying finally found slumber in Lan Zhan's snug embrace.

"Nnnnh. Don't eat... my eggs."

Lan Zhan's eyes flew open and he blinked at the nude sleeping form in front of him. Wei Ying is the undisputed champion of moving around during sleep; the younger man usually changes his sleeping position at least six times during the night (Lan Zhan knows this, because he is often rudely awoken by a leg sticking into his face or a hand slapped across his chest; like clockwork, he patiently re-arranges his lover back to his side, tucking him neatly under their blanket, before going back to sleep). Somehow, the younger man's sleeping garments had been flung to a far corner of their bedroom; this happens frequently especially during balmy nights. Wei Ying lay on his stomach atop the older man's torso, face nestled against Lan Zhan's crotch, butt high up in the air and legs tucked into Lan Zhan's armpits. The younger man's arousal was hard and heavy against his collarbone, and he felt it jerk with excitement; Wei Ying was probably having another lewd dream.

Lan Zhan remembered that both of them missed their nightly quota of lovemaking, and the welcoming sight of spreaded springy ass mounds thrust in front of his face - was truly a sight for sore (and hungry) eyes. His cock began to rise in his pants and called for urgent attention.

Soon, Lan Zhan tenderly licked and sucked at twin plump balls that jiggled invitingly with each swipe of warm, wet tongue. Muscles contract, retracting them close to the base of the younger man's erection, but Lan Zhan refused to let his delectable prize go. He used his lips to gently retrieve each one into his waiting mouth, and continued to massage the delicate organs with flicking and rolling tongue until they quiver involuntarily in their sacs.

(Sometimes, after a hot bath, Wei Ying complains that one of his balls always hang lower than the other although there is no pain. Lan Zhan hmms, because this is perfectly normal in any adult males, according to the medical texts from Yiling's Library Pavilion. He also hmms again, because he has a tendency to pay attention to one of the two during their oral lovemaking; so he tells Wei Ying to "lie down and let me check, just in case" like an in-house doctor. When Wei Ying obediently spread-eagles on their bed without his pants, Lan Zhan hmms again because he "thinks one of them looks suspiciously bigger than the other, so let me feel it, just in case", he would gently squeeze and milk the targeted, vulnerable testicle with his fingers while giving Wei Ying a wonderfully satisfying post-bath blowjob with lips and tongue. He does not let go until Wei Ying hnnghs and aaaahs repeatedly and jerks his hips wantonly into the waiting throat and ejaculates thick, heated spurts. He ends the medical check-up by saying that "now, both of them look about the same," in which a flushed, post-orgasmic Wei Ying responds with tantalizing sways of raised ass, and sensuous whispers of "Hmmm, Doctor Lan, there's something itching inside here, can you take a look and give me some medicine too, just in case ?")

“Tang...hulu...?” Lan Zhan panted, as his fingertips worked vigorously to stroke and graze the swollen prostate, which was filling up quickly with the milky nectar that he craves so much in the mornings; his other hand continued to cup and caress the trembling, contracting heavy scrotum, sending shivers running up and down the younger man’s spine; if there was ever a medical condition called ‘testicular orgasm’, Wei Ying was certainly having one. (Lan Zhan mentally noted this for his next trip to the Library’s medical section.)

Wei Ying responded in kind by fondling the pulsating rod in tandem with Lan Zhan’s lavish treatment on his bottom. He sloppily kissed the saliva-slicked engorged glans in his grip, tongued the tip persistently until pearls of clear liquid oozed out in copious amounts, and his fingers traced lovingly along veins that throbbed beneath the foreskin. Even in his sleep, Wei Ying seemed to have memorized Lan Zhan’s sweetest spots and had no trouble edging the older man close to completion.

“... it tastes like you,” he dreamily murmured into a mouthful of cock, and then, “I like it,” before swallowing the twitching flesh and the bountiful trails of viscous, slippery pre-cum that covered it.

Lan Zhan became harder than ever, and was very close to cumming into the inviting moist, warm cavern. He clutched at the bedsheets until they threatened to tear, and his knuckles turned white.

Then, from a distance, a jungle cockerel crowed.

It was one of those strange, unforgettable mornings for Wei Ying.

There was a flurry of activity, lots of noisy clanging and pounding sounds, of clothes being thrown onto him with shouts of “Get dressed!”, a flustered (!!!) and sweaty Lan Zhan running back and forth the kitchen. The older man was half preparing breakfast for them, and half machining boiled dumplings (jiaozi) from blurred hands that moved faster than the eyes could see (because he could move his limbs at inhuman speeds - yes, believe it).

Lan Zhan had prepared the dough and kept it moist overnight, and quickly tore the lump into many smaller round balls of equal sizes, arranged neatly on a tray on top of the dining table. Wei Ying quietly munched on a fried pancake (jianbing) at the edge of the same table; he was afraid to say anything that may upset his agitated-looking (!!!) partner. The sight of a rolling pin slamming those round balls in a whirlwind of flying flour, until they formed into perfectly-shaped circles of flattened dough-wrappers, reminded him of how Lan Zhan swatted his springy butt so terribly hard that he was rudely woken up from tasty dreams of eggs and tanghulus.

Next, Lan Zhan walked to the kitchen counter where a large bowl of meat filling waited for assembly. Wei Ying could smell the meaty mixture of tender fatty pork, flavored with fresh ginger, garlic, chives, shredded cabbage, pepper, sesame oil, soy sauce and other condiments - he was thankful that the jianbing in his hand had the same luxurious contents. It was delicious.

Wei Ying obediently scooted his chair to the far end of the kitchen, a half-chewed jianbing hanging from his mouth. He watched intently as Lan Zhan scooped a spoonful of meat filling, and with impressive accuracy and dexterity, he flung it over his shoulders and the dollop landed precisely on the center of the first dough-wrapper, which was less than thumb’s length in diameter. Wei Ying unconsciously clapped his hands at the marvellous display of Lan Zhan’s cooking skills (in which Lan Zhan is secretly pleased and he hmmpfs with pride). Soon, the kitchen was filled with flying meaty projectiles and wet splats of each perfect landing on every wrapper on the tray. Along the way, Lan Zhan also managed to heat up a skillet on the stove, and made two silky-smooth sunny side up eggs for Wei Ying.

As Wei Ying finished his hearty breakfast with a warm cup of soy milk, Lan Zhan too, finished pleating each half moon-shaped dumpling (perfection at its best - not a single pleat or fold out of place!) and he set them into a pot of boiling broth. While the dumplings were being cooked, Lan Zhan took the time to quickly comb and tie Wei Ying's hair and adjust his light-coloured robes, and reminded him of the day's instructions: he must reach Hu's teahouse before nine in the morning, as there was a local wedding ceremony held at that time and the newlyweds had ordered two hundred pieces of jiaozi for their hungry guests. Wei Ying had less than an hour, and he could still reach on time if he walked briskly. (Running was out of the question, considering the delicate nature of the delicacy bouncing in the basket on his back!)

Lan Zhan calmed down when the steaming jiaozi pieces were finally packed into bamboo racks and placed into Wei Ying's basket. "Careful, they're still hot," Lan Zhan advised, as he raised the heavy basket so that Wei Ying could tie the straps to the front of his body and ensure a safe, stable journey for the precious cargo. At the same time, Wei Ying slung his satchel of talismans, acupuncture equipment and a packed lunch over his shoulder. He was ready to dash off when Lan Zhan bent forward to give an unexpected light kiss on the younger man's cheek.

"Have a safe trip, Wei Ying."

Wei Ying stammered Mmm's, Errr's and Y-yes'es, and blushed into bright crimson like a teenager hopelessly in love. Then, he left the courtyard in a rush, wordless, with a swirl of dry dust trailing behind him.

~~~@#@~~~@#@~~~

Lan Zhan wiped sweat from the sides of his face and his neck with sleeves that smelled of meat and cooking oil. He sighed and silently prayed to the 108 known local gods that Wei Ying will succeed in delivering the goods on time.

He also berated himself to be more disciplined, to correct his flaws, and not to indulge too much in morning sex when there was work to be done. Honestly, he had forgotten about the jiaozi order from Hu's teahouse, until the crow of jungle fowls told him that the sun was up and it was very, very late. He wondered if this was a sign that perhaps, they should consider rearing some chickens and especially roosters to wake them up on time. He would talk to Wei Ying about it later that day.

Lan Zhan heaved another sigh. He still had some gardening to do during the morning, and he hadn't started on the laundry yet. Their vegetable patch was ruined after their first harsh winter in the 'Mounds; fierce winds and icy blizzards destroyed every wooden structure he had erected in the gardens, frozen and wiped out most of their surviving root-vegetables, and the worst of the winter season had fallen a good number of fruit trees surrounding their home. He had spent most of early Spring ploughing and shovelling the thawing soil, and replanting the lost greens. He had learnt some good lessons in farming, and he was determined not to make the same mistakes the following year - by reading up on magazines on agricultural techniques (Huang village had plenty of those), and making sure that everything in the gardens will be stronger, healthier and sturdier to withstand the extreme weather conditions of the 'Mounds.

As he returned to the cave and into the bedroom, and started to pull away the soiled bedsheets for washing, he soundlessly uttered a word of apology to Wei Ying. He had robbed the younger man of his first morning climax when he realized they had no time to spare (curse the cockerel's crow!). He had swiftly cast a red-hued Numbing spell straight into Wei Ying's nether regions to kill off all desires and sensations (a useful side-effect of the local anesthetic magic), followed by his standard bright-blue Healing spell so that

Wei Ying felt relatively comfortable despite the turmoil within his body, and a soft-green Calming spell to send adrenaline and blood from the lower body back to the general circulation. He used up most of his own golden core energy to snuff out his own swelling lust - which is why he wouldn't want to risk using Bichen to fly Wei Ying to Yiling, because he could not guarantee he had enough fuel for the trip to town and back home.

Lan Zhan promised (with the 108 known local gods in witness) that he will pay back the debt to Wei Ying at night.

With lots of interest, of course.

Wei Ying was, frankly, still half-asleep when he walked through the fruit tree orchards that lined the edge of their estate. The slap marks that burned on the springy globes on his rear were clear reminders that Lan Zhan had been upset at himself for waking up late, and felt wholly responsible at the ensuing drama to ensure the jiaozi reached their destination safely. There were questions running through his sleepy head, but he decided to dismiss them because he was kind of lazy to think too much, first thing in the morning.

His lower body ached and felt rather heavy . He wondered if this was due to not having their quota of “everyday” the night before - because he was very productive at that time of the day, especially when spring comes and summer looms ahead, and there is an abundance of business opportunities in Yiling, with plenty to see, to experience and to cherish in a lively sea of hustle and bustle typical of city life. Wei Ying hoped that they will have double the fun in the bedroom at night, and he smiled brightly at the prospect of riding both of them to multiple orgasms (and recording Lan Zhan's exquisite facial expressions during sex, because every one of them is jaw-droppingly precious, and he has enough Eye talismans plastered all over their bedroom walls to "catch 'em all").

The heat from the steaming jiaozi started to burn his back. As he lowered the basket on the ground with a frown and a palm rubbed the reddened skin just above his buttocks, he contemplated about his immediate problem. He didn't want to end up with blisters, but he had a cargo to deliver. He could carry the basket by hand, but the steam will still burn his palms and the unwieldy load would tire him considerably; fatigue would slow him down - he might miss the crucial food-serving event of the wedding ceremony!

Minutes ticked by, and finally he decided to throw the towel and unveil his trump cards. He looked around to make sure that nobody was around or watching. He took out a Fire talisman from his inner pocket and magically erased the mystical word on the yellow paper. Then, he pointed both second and third fingers to it and carefully wrote an ugly, inverted version of the same word that was deleted earlier. As he wrote, the strokes began to quiver and move - they slither, smear and bleed all over the paper like a living serpentine creature. Wispy black smoke floated off the surface, and the stench of curses and malaise fill the air.

Wei Ying wasn't sure if this idea would work, but he was willing to bet a basket of valuable jiaozi for it to succeed.

Elemental spells are intended to create, modify or transform Nature's elements, to a limited extent, but they do not take away . The act of inverting a spell is considered to be an extreme aspect of the dark arts, and forbidden at all costs - because such acts defy the divine laws of Creation and of the Living.

The talisman becomes sickly dark-purple in colour, and the hardly-visible blackened word “Cold” is formed. Wei Ying shivered as he held the piece of paper; he could feel his body heat seeping out from his fingertips where they touched the talisman. The young man rapidly cast the cursed spell into the basket and in a stunning display of freakishly dark luminescence, the bamboo rack containing the dumplings ceased to steam.

Wei Ying heaved a sigh of relief that his experiment went well, and he was emboldened by the results. He knew he had wasted enough time and there was one last thing to do.

He took a deep breath and hauled up the cooled basket. “Forgive me, Lan Zhan, but I’m doing this for the both of us,” he announced to the surrounding woods, and to no one in particular. He prayed that the 108 local gods and Merciful Goddess Guan Yin were listening to his pleas, that they understand his circumstances, and ultimately, be compassionate to his cause.

Five off-tune and ear-splitting whistles later, a terrible corruption emerged. To the naked human eye, it would seem an anomalous cloud of ash-black smoke appeared from thin air; in fact, in Wei Ying’s vision, there was a swarm of summoned demons and monstrosities of unspeakable names, invisible to the Living, tearing through the fabric of Space, devouring a path for their Master, consuming absolutely everything in their way with insatiable hunger - all life, matter, sights, sounds, even intangible elements such as feelings and thoughts, and everything else connected to the world of Living.

Eyes glowing in unnerving evil-red, long hair flowing eerily with unseen breeze in the deathly silence of the woods - Yiling Patriarch Wei Wuxian's grin became twisted as he stepped through the portal, with the basket of jiaozi in his arms.

Notes for the Chapter:

COCKBLOCKING COCKEREL! (I always wanted to say that.. haha! eats KFC)

This feels like another side-arc from the recent past. I might as well flesh out the couple's story a little more, before the end of the year. Ahhh.. it was supposed to be a couple of paragraphs about their life in Early spring/summer but look what happened, and it turned into another monster to write sobs

At least I'm glad to give Lan Zhan a power-up too - yay! And more reveals about lovely little Wei Ying!

Chapter 13

Lan Zhan throws another bundle of firewood tied by a Binding Spell (which he has learnt to cast by himself) onto another two tidy bundles already stacked atop his broad shoulders. One hand holds the firewood firmly yet precariously in place, while the other grips Bichen, ready to fend off any approaching wild animals. His body sags at the weight of dead branches, each as thick as a man's thigh, and he heaves forward with two baskets tied to his back, brimming with the morning's foraging from the forests.

He shakes his head, blows errant locks of lush hair away from his face, and hopes his loosened ponytail will hold until he gets back home. Wei Ying had teased that he should get a haircut, especially with hotter summer days looming ahead; the younger man had trimmed off a few inches of unruly curled ends with Lan Zhan's help (just with a pair of regular scissors purchased from Liao's store, not Bichen, because it is a terrifying experience to have the gigantic blade swing between one's nape and the carotid arteries).

Lan Zhan wipes off a few beads of sweat with his sleeve and he frowns when he realized he had probably added a few more smudges of dirt and grime on his forehead - his clothes are a bit muddied and scratched from climbing steep, rocky cliffs to reach the rare herbs for his best-selling medicinal candies, and from walking through dense, dew-covered bushes to pick native fruits, wild mushrooms and tasty roots. Most of them will end up in Old Merchant Zhu's market stalls, but he makes sure to set aside the best ones for their dinner plates.

His daily foraging routines are carefully planned using renowned Gusu-trained cartography skills (he made mental maps of the 'Mounds, but still needs practice because miles and miles of featureless, rolling grasslands and stonefields can easily confuse any amateur navigator), and calculated according to the passage of time and the seasons (Lan Zhan does not just "stargaze" at night - although the sight of a handsome man in his thirties watching the night sky under the golden glow of a crescent moon does look quite romantic; he is a self-taught practitioner in the field of astronomy, starting shortly after venturing out from the Cloud Recesses. Plus, the 'Mounds offer spectacular opportunities to study the celestial bodies due to the lack of light pollution often seen around larger cities).

He secretly taps into Wei Ying's vast network of Eye talismans scattered throughout his estate to locate fruiting trees, valuable ginseng plants or shrubs of edible greens. He makes sure to visit each part of the land at the precise date to maximize his yields with the least amount of time and effort, and he also safeguards future harvests by planting new seeds at every stop (a valuable lesson learnt after the heartbreaking loss of his vegetable gardens last winter). Watching new seedlings sprout into young bushes and trees always put a faint smile on his face - this is the highlight of his morning walkabout around his estate.

Lan Zhan had deliberated on investing in an easier mode of transportation around his land. Unfortunately the rocky, uneven and unstable hilly grounds aren't suitable for travel by donkeys and horses, and without proper man-made trails, wheeled vehicles such as wheelbarrows and carts were out of the question. However, the extreme geography proves to be a blessing in disguise - occasionally, Lan Zhan stumbles upon veins of precious minerals on mountain slopes or rock faces, exposed by centuries of abrasive dusty winds. These sell well at the local blacksmiths and metal-crafting shops in Yiling City - especially after Wei Ying uses his Metal spell to transform the shiny bits extracted by pickaxes into convenient lumps of pure metal.

(Lan Zhan continues to strongly forbid Wei Ying to forge silver and gold pieces out of the extracted metals, because any currency that does not bear the mark of the Imperial Reserve was essentially a fraud, and if caught red-handed, they will be thrown into the darkest dungeons beneath the Heavenly Palace in Chang'an. Wei Ying would stick a tongue out at the older man in defiance when he gets an earful from the older man, to which Lan Zhan will tell a tale about the biggest, meanest and ugliest canine waiting behind those impenetrable prison walls; and Wei Ying would promptly shrink back and cower instinctively with fear; which to Lan Zhan's unspoken delight, he will promptly apologize about his far-fetched descriptions [the presence of a canine was true, though], and cuddle a quaking Wei Ying in his lap).

As he climbs over a small hill and grunts at the tremendous weight on his aching back and shoulders, thoughts about silver, gold and their financial situation came to mind. He left Jingshi the year before with five bars of gold, equivalent to five hundred pieces of gold. One was used to purchase the land title for their home, and two was spent - to his utmost disappointment - on an expensive set of jewelled accessories. It was an impulsive buy when a passing-by merchant from the Silk Road caravans showed him some shady wares while he was looking for exotic spices in Huang village to make his soups tastier. He was told that any lover would fall "deeper than ever in love" when presented with the "once-in-a-lifetime, match-made-in-heaven, complete and unique set of rare jewelled pieces to adorn a loved one from head to toe - a perfect gift for one of unparalleled beauty worthy of praise from the gods and goddesses". He didn't think much of the convoluted product description, other than how he would lose out if he didn't get his hands on that jewelled set at that moment because "there's another interested customer, so you better buy it NOW". The infallible Han Guang Jun fell easily for the ruse, and effortlessly parted with two gold bars.

Later, Wei Ying would tell him that a plain-looking bamboo flute that he could play together with his guqin music, was worth more than any sets of jewelled accessories that the older man could gift to him. At that point, Lan Zhan learnt a valuable life lesson - that Wei Ying's love for him was immeasurable, and incomparable to any amount of silver or gold.

Lan Zhan's thoughts are interrupted when he hears a panicked, shrill squeal from the direction of their cave-home. With superhuman strength, he dashes towards the source of the sound with full cargo in tow.

Wei Ying patted his hands against his hips to rub away colourful residues on his palms and fingers; he didn't like how the Council-sanctioned talisman paper were coated with a layer of fine coloured dust, which when handled too often by sweaty fingers, would leave the skin painted in an assortment of reds, yellows and sometimes icky greens and blues. He hoped the Council used safe food-grade colourings, and not some kind of synthetic substances that could cause toxic dermal side effects in the long term. Just one of the usual hazards of my profession, he scoffed inwardly.

After stowing his tiny wooden cart and the two low chairs at the back corner of Li's clinic (the owner was generous to let him use the storeroom for free, in return for guaranteed timely deliveries of medicinal products from the 'Mounds), he hoisted up his basket and then bid polite goodbyes to the doctor and his nurses, before walking out to the East Market Street.

Yiling City continued to bustle and thrive throughout the day. Although the lunch crowd had thinned and men returned to their workplace, people from all walks of life continued to mill about with their daily businesses, particularly in the shades of storefronts and inside noisy teahouses. Excited laughter and shrieks echoed the streets when children finished their classes, and ran towards waiting carts of snack sellers outside the school gates.

Wei Ying's stomach rumbled loudly to remind the young man that he hadn't taken his lunch yet - he had been busy all morning delivering jiaozi in a hurry, then, without taking a break, he demonstrated his A wesome Selling Skills to the delight of the guests at the wedding ceremony, which both entertained them as well as to lighten his satchel of handmade lucky charms and trinkets, in exchange for a few extra silver pieces. Later, he made his way to the morning market to compete with magic and talisman sellers from other religious denominations to peddle his wares and services. Sometimes, he reminisced the good ol' times when he and Wen Ning would find a comfortable spot on streetside kerbs or on a flight of stairs in front of somebody's store, and station themselves for hours doing nothing except selling radishes (Wen Ning did most of the work anyway). These days, Wei Ying had to trudge the dusty streets alone, pushing his tiny cart from from one market to another, then, further away, from store to store, and when he reached the residential areas at the outskirts, from house to house - while painstakingly belting out catchy advertising jingles until his voice became hoarse.

After circling the fairly sizable city on worn-out shoes, he returned to the marketplace where Grandma Li kindly offered a cup of cooling chrysanthemum tea with honey at her clinic. He also picked up his purchases at the market, when businesses wind down by midday, and sellers desperately gave out discounts to get rid of their merchandise as fast as possible. His basket was filled with leaf-wrapped minced pork, a bag of flour, condiments and spices, and some household tools from Liao's store. Meat was generally expensive and considered as a symbol of wealth in this day and age, consumed mostly during auspicious events or by the middle class; however, since it was the key ingredient to Lan Zhan's dumpling recipes, therefore most of the day's proceeds went to Old Butcher Niu's stall. Wei Ying also noted, with slight despair, that everything in the basket was either for their fledgling food business, or for their household consumption - but there was none for himself.

Lan Zhan was truly fastidious and thrifty in their spending, especially after disaster struck their orchards and vegetable gardens over Winter, and they really had to tighten their belts in the following Spring - so, the older man made sure everything monetary piece counts. With all transactions completed, by noon, Wei Ying pocketed twenty silver pieces into his inner garment for safekeeping - this was the day's net profit, his spending money for the next trip to town, and more importantly, the amount Lan Zhan expects to see on the dinner table at sundown - and also five additional pieces of silver jiggling in his palm, attributed directly to his A wesome Selling Skills and their ability to charm the purses off rich housewives.

As Wei Ying pondered on how to spend the precious five silvers, he adjusted his straw hat when he walked by the Kitchen Of Prosperity. It was one of the larger and grander restaurants at the end of the North Market Street and near the city center, whose exorbitant prices were as unbelievable as the lavish dishes that its army of master chefs conjures on a daily basis, strictly to the rich and elite of Yiling's society. He squinted through the bright afternoon sunlight and watched forlornly through porcelain-lined windows at boisterous crowds shouting " Gan bei! (Cheers!)". He was tempted to follow the mouth-watering smells of banquets, free-flowing wine, and the music of loud entertaining conversations mixed with echoes of hired opera singers permeating the air, all served in richly-decorated rooms lined with fine tapestries from the Far West. Sixteen years ago, he didn't have the luxury to patronize such unaffordable establishments; sixteen years later, he had tea with the mayor in that restaurant - just once - while negotiating the purchase of their estate in the 'Mounds. At that time, he had a glimpse of the life of Yiling's super-rich and famous, and promised to himself that someday , when he has earned enough, he would take Lan Zhan on a date and have dinner in that place.

Eventually, after turning a few corners and junctions, he reached the city square where he found empty benches under the shade of large, twisting century-old trees. There, he finally sat down with a heavy thud and a loud “Mmmh!” to his aching legs, where he unwrapped his lunch of two jianbing s (the same as breakfast’s, because Lan Zhan had no time to make anything else), a bamboo container of chrysanthemum tea (Grandma Li insisted she had a huge jug of it) and a juicy peach from their orchard (which he plucked on his way out of their courtyard earlier that day).

A few people walked past but they paid no attention to the dust-covered street peddler dressed in a simple dark-coloured commoner's attire. With the large straw hat that hid his face from the world, Wei Ying was able to enjoy his food in undisturbed silence while looking down disinterestedly at the floor, taking in every detail, such as at the cracks on surfaces, lines of black ants crawling by, and common weeds that grew at the edge of the city square.

One particular stray calico cat approached and rubbed its body sweetly against Wei Ying’s legs, softly meowing and probably begging for scraps. Based on its ease around people and how easily it became friendly with his dusty shoes, he thought the cat was probably abandoned by its owner.

“Are you hungry, little one? This is the last bite of my jianbing . Here, you can have it,” he chirped and made smoochy sounds with his lips. The feline ate the meat filling and purred happily. Wei Ying took the opportunity to run his fingers along the cat’s back and patted its furred rump. It was calming and therapeutic experience, and he needed it after such a chaotic morning.

He continued to stroke the feasting cat until he noticed one particular shadow on the ground in front of him, and lingered for far too long.

A family of squirrels scurried on the floor of the kitchen, littered with dropped cutlery, broken clay jars and dishcloths painted with paw-prints, and they darted between clanging bowls and baskets of fruits to dodge the dangerous broom. Outside, a pair of foxes barked and hopped excitedly, trying to snatch the rodents when one of them edged too closely to the windowsill. The chaos was maddening, and in the heat of the moment, Lan Zhan threw the broom out the window to chase the foxes away, followed by the shrieking squirrels when the coast is finally clear of the predators.

When peace finally returned to the kitchen, he sighed heavily and began to pick his way through the clutter that was left behind. His hair was already in disarray and his clothes needed a good washing - and he had a kitchen to clean, re-organize and tidy up.

I'm out of the house for just over an hour, and this happens, he told himself in a condescending manner. At times like this, he missed the days in the Cloud Recesses where wild animals were non-existent and there were plenty of servants to keep an eye out for intruders. He picked up a broken piece of clay, and noted sourly that it came from one of Wei Ying's wine jars. A pool of liquor spilled carelessly on the floor, wasted. A few apples and peaches lay in disarray on the dining table around a tipped-over fruit basket, with bite marks on most of them.

When he regained his composure (after reciting a few Gusu Lan's rules about keeping calm and maintaining one's sane mental condition in times of crisis), he went out of the cave to collect the broom. "Ah," he muttered, when he realized its handle was broken. He had thrown it with such unbelievably inhuman force, that the wooden bar splintered when it hit the courtyard grounds.

From a distance, crows nesting on the branches of fruiting trees started cawing, laughing at his predicament in horrid-sounding cackles. He gave them an evil eye, because those birds were extremely annoying and were known to steal his laundry clips and smaller pieces of clothing (including their underwear). He waved the broken broom head to shoo them away, but the useless gesture did nothing to the blackbirds, some of which were as big as cats. The birds were probably descendents of those who fed very well on corpses during the Wens' reign, and they did not fear men.

Lan Zhan decided not to squander another minute on the pests, and he marched back into his home with a very loud "Hmph!". He still had a basket of goodies from the 'Mounds to sort through.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

“ Xiao meimei (little girl), do you feel better now?”

She sniffled and rubbed her snotty nose while munching on a peach.

“ Xiao meimei ... do you have a name? Are your parents around? Where do you live?”

She shook her head, intent on eating the fragrant fruit and ignore everything else.

Wei Ying gave her some of the chrysanthemum tea when she finished the peach. Correction, his peach.

He couldn't leave the hungry girl alone when he noticed her staring at his lunch with teary eyes. He had finished the jianbing s by then (correction, the cat finished it) and only had his dessert to offer. She looked like six or seven years old, and her clothes were dirty and mud-speckled - but she did not look neglected nor unwashed, so she must have separated from her family and gotten lost. Wei Ying was relieved the child wasn't a beggar or an orphan like one of those street brats; he wouldn't know what to do if that happened (because he knows it takes a village to raise a child like A-Yuan, and he had no means to do it again, now).

People walked about the city square and minded their own business. No one spared a concerned thought or a rude stare at the sight of a dubious-looking (but quite handsome) young street peddler crouching in front of a young child, in broad daylight.

Just then, a snack seller passed by and Wei Ying quickly bought a stick of tanghulu with a silver piece - he knows the sugary-sour treat will win the hearts of any child, and true enough, the little girl smiled when the tanghulu was waved at her face. He handed it to her, and she took it in a heartbeat. She started to lick and chew on the first glazed fruit.

“See? This gege is a good person. Do you want to go somewhere? Do you want to see someone? Gege will hold your hand and we can walk together,” he said with his brightest grin. He offered her a welcoming, open palm.

Suddenly, a twig hit his face.

“It’s him! It’s him! The hei gui (Black Ghost) is over there!” childish laughter and shrieks filled the air.

Wei Ying rolled his eyes with a vexed expression, muttered “hide behind that tree” to the little girl (and she obeyed without hesitation and ran for cover), then rose up with dangerous determination, and stomped angrily towards the fleeing boys. He rolled up his sleeves to show that he meant serious business (to the kids, no less).

“How dare you! Come back here! And stop yelling hei gui just because I’m wearing dark colored clothes today!” he shouted irately and started chasing the brats around the city square.

“The hei gui is very fierce today! Run for your lives or he’ll eat you up!”

“He says that the Yiling Patriarch was a good guy! Can you believe it? He’s crazy!”

It was midday and Lan Zhan finally smiled after the disaster in the kitchen earlier the day; he had taken a quick shower, the bedsheets and blankets were cleaned, fluffed and folded, and so were the numerous articles of clothing (including squirrel-paw-printed dishcloths) that were hung out to dry since morning. Everything in their house, including the foraged food, had been put in order. His universe has once again returned to its perfect, balanced state; and he strives to maintain this balance as much as he can.

The herbs were laid out on a wide canvas in the courtyard to bake under sunlight, and every hour, he would use a rake to spread and turn the shrivelled leaves over. His recipe for medicinal candies requires bone-dry herbs; any signs of moisture would result in a soggy batch that would spoil faster than usual.

As he contemplated on what to make for a simple, quick-to-cook lunch (because he had to keep his vigil over the drying herbs, lest unexpected winds blow them away or the cursed crows return to wreak havoc), he noticed a tear on a pair of trousers that he was about to fold.

“Ah,” he murmured to himself. Wei Ying sure wears down his clothes pretty fast, he thought. All the walking and the rough-and-tumble of his (nearly) daily adventures in Yiling must be quite tough on the young man, another voice added inside his mind.

Lan Zhan made a mental note to send Wei Ying to buy more rolls of cloth in his next trip to town. He gripped the pair of torn trousers tightly and looked up to the sky with a renewed sense of purpose, a vivid sparkle in his golden-hued eyes. He had a mission to fulfil for the coming days - one that consists of making new garments and trousers for his lover.

Notes for the Chapter:

Welp.. this is now a side-arc and it's another growing monster to write! I had so much fun fleshing out more plot elements (and adding a few more too!). I hope this helps to build a richly-detailed world where there's plenty of stuff that Wangxian can do!

For those who have been reading the preceding two stories of the trilogy, I hope you're able to connect the dots for certain plot elements.

No sex this time, but I hope the cuteness and fluff helps a bit.

“Ah!!! The hei gui caught me! Help! Help!”

“Stop calling me that, you stinky rascal!” Wei Ying growled when he held up one of the street boys by the collar. He really hated to be bullied by those kids, and like a child himself, he couldn’t resist taking revenge on them whenever opportunity presents itself.

“Eh...?? There are no candies in here today!”

Wei Ying turned around in shock to see another boy, around ten years of age and as filthy and dust-covered as the others, stick his greasy hands into Wei Ying’s basket. Packages of meat, flour and other groceries were rudely hurled to the ground; some of them were left opened and spilled their contents.

“Get away, you thief!” he hissed, and then realized too late that his grip somehow loosened, and the boy that he had caught just a moment ago managed to wriggle free. He reached for the fleeing child, but abruptly pulled back when an assortment of hard, unripe fruits and tree nuts flew at him. Snipers behind tree trunks used crudely-made slingshot and attacked from all directions.

Wei Ying was extremely flustered, having to deal with multiple brats at the same time, and raised an arm in defense from the aerial bombardment. Before he could react further, another boy ran past and kicked him behind the knee. Poor Wei Ying grimaced and fell flat on all fours to the ground with a painful thud. A couple of smaller boys scrambled behind some bushes and continued to pelt him with more twigs and rocks.

“Hit the hei gui ! Everyone wears white, gold and bright colours, but he always wears black! He must be dirty and smelly, like a really black ghost!”

“Yeah! Hit him! He says really strange things about the Yiling Patriarch, so he must be a mad man! Crazy old man!”

Then, two Jin guards appeared at a distance in full (and outrageous) regalia - they wore gilded armour with a magnificent white peony symbol imprinted on the chest plate, with flowing golden cape and equally shiny metallic boots. Both carried huge swords on their belts, and wore menacing looks as they approached the source of the commotion. People at the city square began to take notice of the scuffle with the boys, and politely (even apprehensively) dispersed to make way for the fierce-looking bearded brutes in their blindingly-bright outfits.

“Woof! Woof!”

“Yeah! Nobody likes you! You think you can waltz in here and boss us around?”

“You’re not the police! You can’t catch us!”

“Woof! Woof!”

The noisy shouts from the street brats faded; the boys scattered at the arrival of the guards despite their brazen taunts.

Wei Ying didn't realize he was holding his head down to shield himself from the brats' projectiles, until both guards marched dangerously close to him. With each dreadfully heavy footstep, he felt his stomach tightened and his throat constricted with unease. He remained as still a mouse, and prayed that his identity would not be discovered - especially since a fair number of Jin soldiers recognized the much-maligned face of the rogue-cultivator, Wei Wuxian, who ran down the steps of the Carp Tower not too long ago with their arch-enemy Han Guang Jun, who killed many of their brethren.

A glaringly shiny boot stopped next to his cheek with a sickening crunch of metal against gritty sand, and a bead of sweat rolled down from his forehead. The air smelled acrid, and he wasn't sure if it was from his rising fear, or from the plated boot.

"... what is this?" The tip of the sharp-edged boot painfully cut into his shoulder as one of the guards nudged him with his foot.

"... he's wearing black and covered with dust. Must be one of those poor peasants," the other guard replied gruffly.

Wei Ying squeezed his eyes shut and couldn't really grasp the conversation above him; all he could hear were the alarmingly fast thumps of his heart against its ribcage and the roar of adrenaline in his blood.

“Tch, what a useless fellow, to be knocked out by those street brats,” the first guard spat, and ruthlessly stepped on the back of Wei Ying’s head. Wei Ying winced when his lips and the tip of his nose scraped against the sand.

“Ahhh, shixiong ! (elder disciple) It’s so boring to walk around and do nothing all day! I want to fight! I want to rough up people!” followed by swishing sounds of fists pumping into the air, “I want to shoot fireballs from my hands and burn things down! If only.. If only our General didn’t sign that treaty with the mayor, things would have been more interesting!” Wei Ying’s face and hair became covered with more sand when the first guard kicked up a storm of dust at his direction. The sound of footsteps became more and more distant, and Wei Ying finally heaved a sigh of relief.

The guards left as soon as they appeared. The city square remained deserted and very few individuals dared to venture to have a curious look, before scurrying off.

When he was sure that it was safe to move, Wei Ying got up hesitantly to his knees, and started to dust away sand from his face and clothes. “Ahh..” he muttered, when he saw an ugly rip on the upper part of his sleeve. He had a lot of explaining to do when he gets home, he thought grumpily.

Wei Ying was disappointed to find that the four remaining silvers he’d kept in the sleeves had disappeared; the street brats probably pickpocketed him during the tussle - again . He patted his chest and was relieved that the twenty silver pieces intended for Lan Zhan were safe and secured within the inner garment's pocket. Still, he was sad that his extra hard work from the morning was for naught, his basket of goods was ransacked, and he was even beaten up by bratty kids, and stepped on by the adults. It was turning out to be a miserable day for Wei Ying.

“ Hei gege (Black elder brother)...?” a soft, timid voice called out from above, and he realized he had been frowning for the past few minutes.

Wei Ying looked up and was greeted by the sight of a tanghulu. The little girl waved the stick a little, inviting him to take a bite. He began to shake his head to refuse the offer; a sugary-sour treat wouldn't make any difference on the ache he felt in his body - and his heart.

The girl was persistent, and pushed one of the glazed fruits to Wei Ying's lip, until he had no choice but to nibble the juicy surface. It was really sweet.

“ Hei gege is a good person,” she said. He was quite surprised to hear her talk, as she did not speak a word earlier. She used her sleeve and tried her best to wipe a smudge of dried dirt from his cheek. Wei Ying smiled, albeit wistfully, at her kind gesture. Xiao meimei is like a shining beacon of light during these dark times, just like how Shijie used to be, he thought. He felt a twinge in his chest at the girl's actions, which resembled Shijie 's comforting pats and wipes on his face when he fell down during his childhood days.

The little girl seemed to be able to sense his pain. “Don’t cry, gege ,” she whispered and wiped non-existent tears from his lower eyelids. Wei Ying couldn’t help but to make a muffled, choked sound when a wave of nostalgia hit him.

“Does gege want to go somewhere? Is there someone gege wants to see?” she asked, compassion and empathy in her voice.

Wei Ying took the girl’s sleeve and pressed it against his entire face. He didn’t want the world to see him cry.

Lan Zhan stretched his back with a satisfied nnnngh and a couple of creaks of stiff joints.

The afternoon sun was beating down on their home’s compound and he stayed within the cooling shade, on the benches by the lotus pond. A few pieces of cloth were strewn on the pondside table and on his lap; he was cutting and sewing up some fabrics in preparation for his next project. He had a few scraps that could be repurposed, but he would need a fresh new roll of cloth to make new robes for Wei Ying. The bright sunlight was ideal for doing any work that required his total visual concentration.

However, he’d spent nearly an hour hunched over the pieces of cloth after a filling lunch of Gusu-style plain porridge with plenty of garden vegetables and tofu; he thought it was time to move around a bit, and get his blood circulation going.

Lan Zhan folded his handiwork into neat stacks on the table, and then took off his top. Wearing only his pants and shoes, he began his warm-up exercise under the shelter of the dense foliage of fruiting peach trees. Minutes later, he shifted his feet to a ready stance, and began to perform easy, graceful movements with his hands akin to the basic tenets of martial arts. He had learned all physical aspects and the multiple levels of cultivation arts by heart, and could effortlessly progress to more advanced and complex movements, kicks and punches with his limbs.

Soon, his naked upper torso was covered in sweat, he panted from the exertion, but he felt energized and refreshed. A healthy flush appeared on his cheeks and taut muscles on his body, and spiritual qi energy thrummed along his meridians. His golden core energy was replenishing at an admirable rate - a sign that his performance was flawless. However his cultivation hit its ceiling when he tried to take things to the next level - the psychological realm.

Images of eggs, tanghulus and Wei Ying's undulating plump ass continued to flash in his mind. As he recharged, so was his sex drive - and the fact that he didn't manage to cum the night before, and earlier that morning, worsened his inexcusable mental state. Lan Zhan was pent up, and couldn't drag his mind out of the gutter.

He steeled himself for an afternoon of abstinence, and continued to cultivate as much as his body will allow - by executing every swipe of hands and sweep of feet exactly as dictated by the books he had memorized from the Cloud Recesses, and made every effort to perfect his form - except for the annoyingly erect tent in his pants that refused to back down.

“... tian,” the girl murmured into Wei Ying’s ear, as he gave her a piggyback ride towards the marketplace while hugging his basket of groceries at the front. It was a little awkward to walk with unwieldy loads on both ends, but Wei Ying managed to stride ahead at a reasonable speed. His heart felt light and he wanted to take the girl to her home in return for her kindness at the city square; he gladly ignored the curious stares of passers-by too, because the sight of a dodgy-looking young (don’t forget, handsome) man in his late teens or early twenties and carrying an innocent-looking six or seven year old girl, and both didn’t look alike at all - leaves a trail of noisy gossiping and suspicious stares among nosy housewives who endlessly speculate the nature of their relationship.

“ Tian (sweet)? ” he repeated in askance. He wondered if the girl was asking for another sweet snack.

“My jie jie (elder sister) calls me Tian Tian (sweet sweet, literally),” she replied.

Wei Ying was glad to know her name, finally. Her namesake precedes her, given her love for juicy peaches and tanghulus. “Ah, Tian Tian! Where do you live, Tian meimei ? I was thinking of bringing you to the marketplace, where some nice shushu (uncle) over there will be able to help,” he remarked. Tian Tian bounced on Wei Ying's back when the younger man picked up his pace.

"Mmm.. jie jie is in the big red shop at Fragrant Blossoms Street. She was doing a delivery there, but she talked and talked to the customers. I got bored and walked around... and became lost, and hungry because we hadn't eaten," she explained carefully. Wei Ying was impressed at her grasp of vocabulary; most children at her age were still illiterate and wouldn't know how to use some of the mentioned terms; he guessed that she was probably raised in a rich, educated family.

Then, realization hit him. He stopped in his tracks unexpectedly, and Tian Tian was also startled; she grasped at his collar to prevent her from falling over.

"Err... Fragrant Blossoms Street? Did you say.. Fragrant... Blossoms... Street?" He repeated each syllable, uncertain if he had heard her right. He stared warily at a westerly direction. They were actually quite close to her destination.

"Yes, gege . Can you take me there? Jie jie is probably waiting for me, and she will be worried," Tian Tian answered.

Wei Ying swallowed with a hard gulp, and nodded hesitantly. He took a sharp turn and started to walk towards the aforementioned street.

Wei Wuxian had spent a good portion of his life sixteen years ago, and sixteen years after around Yiling, and he pretty much knows the ins and outs of the sprawling city - he knows the names and locations of the bustling main roads, the windy streets and the vibrant shops that line them, and the dingy narrow alleys in-between; and of famous business owners and their establishments - both big and small. There was one particular district where he really wanted to set his foot into, unfortunately didn't have the chance because of his notoriety and lack of funds in the past, and now - a lifetime later - he could , but he really shouldn't .

Lan Zhan checked the bamboo water clock near the entrance of their home. He filled it with a bucket from the lotus pond to make sure that it continued to function throughout the day. It was three hours past midday, and Wei Ying should be back soon, he thought.

The herbal leaves were almost done, and were as dry as the dust swirling in the afternoon breeze. So, Lan Zhan began to rake them into tidy piles, where later, he would pack them into convenient, measured bundles with paper; each paper package will be used for making a batch of medicinal candies.

As he started to arrange the leaves in long horizontal and vertical lines (it was a strangely calming and therapeutic experience for him), he contemplated on how to fill the remaining of his afternoon before Wei Ying returned. He had the options of meditating (after such a harried morning, why not?), playing guqin (he should brush up on his musical skills), reading a book or this month's Cultivation Times magazine (it's always good to keep one's mind active, keep learning, and improve continuously), or have another walkabout around his estate (maybe he will find something of value, such as more edibles for tonight's dinner or chance upon a mineral rock that could be worth several gold pieces - but what if the squirrels return?).

Ah, so many choices, and there is plenty of time to think through them, he thought.

Notes for the Chapter:

This particular arc continues. Let's bring in some comedy and drama!

I don't really know what else to say, except that my drafts aren't shrinking - in fact they keep expanding with more, wilder ideas. If anyone's missing the sex, I apologize in advance and promise to make up for it later. I'm really hoping to build Wei Ying's character and his post-canon story, and let's not forget that Lan Zhan is waiting for him too!

Chapter 15

The fate of Wei Wuxian's heterosexual virginity hung perilously by a thread, as he stepped into the mother of all nests of hungry, sex-crazed females waiting to pounce on him. He imagined himself as a piece of fresh, juicy phallic-shaped meat being dangled enticingly in a sea of open jaws from various legendary depictions of sexually-deprived females, ranging from the Spider Demoness that seduced Tang Sanzang from the Journey to the West, beautiful huli jing (fox spirits), to vengeful nu gui (succubi). In his younger days, he had heard wild stories from boasting peers, and read erotic graphic novels with enough sleazy and sordid details to fuel his wild imaginations of what might happen to a man that dared to walk into a street lined with red-hued brothels and constantly seduced by prostitutes plying their trade on the side.

At least that was what he believed.

Ironically, he wasn't devoured on the spot, let alone draw more than a couple of curious stares from the occupants along the street.

At mid-afternoon, when business opening times were still a good few hours away, Fragrant Blossoms Street was more deserted than most of Yiling. Most of the shops (likely prostitution houses, dingy bars, gambling dens, massage parlours and stores selling illicit drugs) were closed and few plainly-dressed women lay on reclining lazy chairs at the storefronts, fanning the heat away with enormous bamboo fans. Their browless pale faces weren't attractive, there was no make-up, their hair looked like messy bunches of tangled birds' nests - and were absolutely nothing compared to the alluring courtesans portrayed in PeiNan magazines (陪男; "Accompany the Male"; read as PlayBoy (sic)). A tumbleweed rolled by silently.

Wei Ying took in as many details of the street as his wide googly-eyes could capture, despite the shockingly quiet entrance - he felt like a naive teenage boy who had just graduated into adulthood by walking into the red-light district. The roadside lamps, the benches that dot the storefront walkways, the few trees and flowering bushes that colour the dull browns and greys of aging buildings, the side alleys between shops, and the kinds of trash that litter the ground - everything was interesting to him.

Tian Tian led Wei Ying to the biggest, most impressive-looking structure located in the middle of the street - an imposing triple-storey red-bricked mansion that occupied more land than four teahouses joined together. A closed grand wooden door decorated with dragon and phoenix motifs, nearly fifteen feet in height, was framed by strings of lanterns and cloth-strips that hung from the building's balconies and window ledges; Wei Ying could only envisage the beauty of the building and its surroundings at night, when the skies turn dark and the area is patterned with seductive glows of dim lights and the shadows of moving bodies seeking the pleasures of the flesh. The words “ Tian Mi Mi ” (甜蜜密; Sweet Honeyed Secrets (sic)) were written on a dust-covered plaque at the side of the door, which was partly hidden by aged jujube trees that grew around the building's compounds.

Wei Ying's throat instinctively tightened, but he couldn't swallow because he was very thirsty from the brisk walk in the dusty air, and from the heaving and huffing of carrying twice the load that his body was used to. He crouched to allow Tian Tian to hop off safely, and the little girl excitedly rushed forward to the door. She gave it a loud knock while holding Wei Ying's hand.

Lan Zhan settled into one of the chairs in their bedchamber with the latest edition of Cultivation Times magazine in hand. Just when he opened the first page, a ball of amber light drifted through the window like a firefly. A silvery thread trailed behind it.

He raised an open palm and cupped the fluffy-looking luminescence when it approached, and it immediately vibrated repeatedly with audible buzzes. Lan Zhan waited until the third buzz, then he closed his palm around the ball to give the immaterial substance a squeeze. There was a faint ‘click’ sound, and two seconds later, the Fairy Messenger spell connected.

Wei Ying had never bowed so many times in his life, and really, he wasn't in the wrong.

A horde of young women - escorts and prostitutes of all ages, all in the process of putting on their (bawdy) make-ups and buttoning up their (revealing, nearly bare-breasted) dresses - hounded and clamoured around him in the dimly-lit entrance. The unwelcomed entry caused a furore of angry “Who the hell is this guy? Who let him in?”, stirred further with accusations of “Why is there a strange man holding hands with a little girl? Pervert!”, shaken with the shrilly screeches of “Who are you to this girl? Are you a kidnapper? Are you trying to sell her?”, and finally, topped with blood-curdling cries of “Get him, sisters!” when they saw him releasing Tian Tian's hand (big mistake; a sign that he was on the verge of running away). Wei Ying became surrounded by angry, shouting women in the dark, each of them waving deadly-looking hairpins, heavy bottles of perfumes and skin creams, and finely-sharpened crimson-painted long fingernails. Someone closed the door behind him with a resounding 'thunk', and everything turned pitch black in the spinning, ear-deafening madness.

For a second, he truly feared for his life; he started to deny every accusation hurled at him, apologized repeatedly, and pleaded the threatening masses in the shadows to "please listen to me". Few ghostly lanterns began to light up in the darkness, casting dusky rays on his trembling form, and he felt as though he was at the front of Hell's gates, awaiting judgement. He kept bowing lower and lower, which to the other side, looked like he was admitting his guilt to a terrible scandal - and this riled up the women further.

Then, a lady in her early twenties in a satin-white dress, stepped to the front and raised a hand. Everyone stopped what they were doing, and Wei Ying, who was almost kowtowing to the ground at that point, froze in shock and swore he could hear a pin drop at the sudden silence.

Wei Ying's saviour turned out to be Tian Tian's sister, who promptly introduced herself as Liang gu niang, and she asked what was the commotion about. Wei Ying gasped - this is the eldest daughter of Liang laoban ! Her father owns the largest, oldest and the most successful of the three teahouses in Yiling, and people say that he runs a slew of other side businesses - not discounting the possibility of a few shops along Fragrant Blossoms Street. Wei Ying gazed at her and realized that the stories about her striking beauty, grace and intellect are indeed true. Liang gu niang's reputation precedes her as a magnet for men seeking a desirable woman's hand in marriage; there are many tales told over titillating teahouse conversations about the lines of suitors that wait daily outside the Liang's Summer Resort, seeking for an audience with the head of the family. Wei Ying could not believe his stroke of luck, and he was both in awe and humbled by her presence, which by the way, represented an epic business opportunity - if he could strike a deal with her family while the iron is hot.

Liang gu niang burst into tears when she recognized Tian Tian who was left standing in the middle of the entrance hall next to the (handsome) cowering dark-clothed young lad. She dropped to her knees and pulled her little sister to her ample bosom, and then without hesitation , she proceeded to hug Wei Ying while thanking him profusely in a strangely comforting threeway embrace (Wei Ying noticed that the gu niang did not have any make-up, because there were no ugly tear-streaks and her porcelain-smooth skin glows naturally. She smells of sunny warmth and summer blooms). Wei Ying felt relieved when tension finally diffused from the atmosphere, and he kept murmuring to Liang gu niang , “It’s alright, it’s alright.”

Later, when the situation calmed down, Tian Tian gave an abbreviated and exaggerated account of her ordeal - of how she was kindly given food to stave off hunger, and how the heroic Hei gege saved her from a gang of bullies and led her to escape from the watchful eyes of Jin guards (at this point, Wei Ying fidgeted nervously because clearly, the child had a very colourful imagination compared to what really happened). While narrating her story, Tian Tian held and lightly shook Wei Ying’s hand, and she even hugged his leg in gratitude, while smiling at her jie jie . Wei Ying’s lips curved up in response when he remembered about A-Yuan.

Liang gu niang apologized to Wei Ying for the troubles that Tian Tian caused. Her story mirrored what Tian Tian had said earlier - that she was caught up in conversations with the owners of Tian Mi Mi , that she did not realize the little girl had walked off on her own. She was supposed to deliver lunch to the shop and return promptly, and in fact, she had to leave soon, now that her little sister was found.

“But.. pardon me for asking, why did you bring your meimei (little sister) to... such a place?” he gestured at the main hall of the building. He realized belatedly of his reckless question, when scores of women started to chatter and complain about his choice of words. They remained in the background to give the elegant lady some space, clearly as a sign of respect for Liang gu niang and her teary reunion with her lost little sister.

“ Hei gongzi (Young Master Hei; black - Wei Ying had a nickname now), we’re very short-handed at the moment, so I can’t leave my little sister at the teahouse. There aren’t any servants with time to spare to care for her. So, she has to follow wherever I go. Besides,” she waved at the crowd around them, “these ‘sisters’ are really good people if you get to know them,” and Wei Ying heard a few cheers of “Yeah!” and “You’ve said it right!”.

Wei Ying steeled himself when he saw his opening, and made a dash for it, ignoring the loudmouthed and nosy women of Tian Mi Mi . “Ah, Liang gu niang , can.. can I ask for a small favour? Please, even if it's just to hear me out. You don’t have to agree if it’s not to your favour,” he politely asked.

She nodded, and wondered about the change of subject. “Of course. Please, Hei gongzi , go ahead and speak about your request. Tian Tian and I are indebted to you for what you did today.”

“My... spouse... and I run a small, modest food catering business. We have products and services that your teahouse could use, such as supplying some ingredients, side dishes, or even an extra platter of fried snacks in case the workers haven’t enough time to make them. Or, I could offer a quick delivery service for the teahouse to alleviate the immediate problem your father is facing, for a reasonable fee,” he explained and gave his most professional grin. Wei Ying had done his homework, knew the full menus and offerings from the teahouse, knew the kinds of people that hang out within its four walls, and what kinds of products sell like hot cakes (Liang’s fried foods are to-die-for!), and he’s also heard about the troubles bogging down the business due to having too much demand and too little manpower to manage them; a victim of its own success, as people say.

Liang gu niang paused and gave a thoughtful look. “I... could ask my father about it. He couldn’t sleep last night because one of his biggest customers will have a birthday party in the teahouse next week, and one of our chefs is on a long sick leave. He said he’s having trouble to fill an order for fritters and spring rolls for that event... would you or your spouse be interested to take up this order, under our teahouse’s name?” There was a hint of a business-like tone in her voice; certainly she was learning to take after her father when it came to matters on negotiations and franchising their business.

Wei Ying bowed with thanks and exclaimed, “Yes! I’m sure she (他) can do it! You would need to give us the details, though...”

There was a sharp rip of paper, a quick swish of a ink-brush pen, and Liang gu niang handed him a slip containing some mystical symbols. “If you can cast a Fairy Messenger spell and input this coded script,” she pointed at the symbols which contains the character for the Liang’s family name, “you will get in touch with my father. He’ll give you the recipe, the exact numbers, the flavours required, payment terms and any advance payments as needed, and other necessary details. I’ll talk to him tonight, so you can contact him tomorrow.” She handed the paper to Wei Ying, which the latter gratefully accepted.

“Yes! Thank you, Liang gu niang !” and he bowed again spiritedly.

Lan Zhan nodded at the shining ball of amber light in his palm, although he knew very well that the other side of the line couldn't see his actions.

“Mn. Stay safe. Don't venture out tonight. I will be there tomorrow morning,” he pronounced his words as clear as the instructions being given out.

A muffled but emotional “thank you” emitted from the Fairy Messenger spell, and it flashed brightly, before fizzling out. The silvery thread that connected it to the other receiving end, dissipated too.

Lan Zhan calmly put down the Cultivation Times magazine on the dressing table, and walked to a small bookshelf next to it. He rummaged the shelves for a while, and picked out another book. The big bold words “Wild-life and Wild-deads of Burial Mounds - 2nd edition” were printed on its cover.

He had some serious reading to do, and he hoped Wei Ying would return home soon.

After Tian Tian and her jie jie left, Wei Ying was invited to stay for a bit, as a gesture of apology and a showcase of Tian Mi Mi 's hospitality. He didn't dare to refuse the offer, when seven pairs of eyes keenly watched his every move.

He easily changed his mask and slipped into the role of a meek underling begging for a piece of the pie owned by Yiling's grey underworld overlords (or, lordess). His theatrics were on-point that he convincingly mimicked greasy shopkeepers' behaviors such as agreeing to everything that was said, constantly rubbing his palms as he talked, nodding excessively until his back ached, and grinning so broadly until his eyes became mere lines. He tried his best to assure Tian Mi Mi 's owners that he was harmless, merely curious, and like everyone else along the Fragrant Blossoms Street, wanted to earn a quick buck for a living.

Over a pot of pu'er tea and a plate of roasted peanuts, sunflower seeds, and haw flakes, Wei Ying was secretly exhilarated and at the same time, feared for his life (again), to learn about the businesses behind Tian Mi Mi . Seven beautiful young women of different ethnic origins form the backbone of what is actually an extremely efficient, profitable, and well-oiled organization thriving in the underbelly of Yiling. Interestingly, each of them dressed in unique, colourful (also, revealing) costumes, with various levels of exposures of bare shoulders, generous cleavage, silky-smooth thighs and unsurprisingly, their pantyline too. When they stood in a line across the table, Wei Ying thought he was staring at a kaleidoscopic band of female adventurers taken straight out from the covers of fantasy novels.

All are capable leaders, fighters and magic-users, and have admirable cultivation skills, based on how they introduced themselves, and frighteningly, the manner in which each demonstrated at least one of her martial arts skills (one of them introduced herself as the nth sister, and after a short, emotionless description about her background - including a brief stint as the notorious "Demoness Scorpion of Chang'an" from two decades ago -, in a blink of an eye and a knee into his belly, Wei Ying was painfully pushed up against the chair with three daggers pointing at his throat. A hawk flake that he was eating was cleanly sliced into two, and he was millimeters from having his jugulars done the same way. Wei Ying dared not spit out the food, and instead, he quickly and obediently swallowed the remaining half of the tart snack that lingered on his lips; the other half fell uselessly to his crotch.)

Each individual sister had their own unsaid stories and unmentioned circumstances - but fate led them to chance encounters with one another, forming bonds thicker than blood-relationships that established a powerful ruling class within the district of Fragrant Blossoms. Tian Mi Mi attracts the most and the richest customers, and dictates how much businesses go to the other shops along the street. Its clientele is as diverse as the kinds of merchandise and services that are passed behind the closed doors of its numerous guest rooms - whether the pleasures of the flesh, dealings with contraband such as illegal drugs, prohibited substances, unapproved weapons and magics, trafficking of exotic animals and plants, even unsavoury jobs that involve spying, assassinations, casting curse spells, and slipping poison into an enemy's wine jar; and anything else that the Imperial Court deems punishable by jail, a fine, the loss of limbs, or at worst, instant beheading.

After such a brief but enlightening presentation about Tian Mi Mi, Wei Ying thought that it was too dangerous to get involved with the sisterhood of strong, influential and frankly speaking, deadly women. He started to excuse himself with explanations that it was getting late, and his spouse was probably waiting for him to get home. He also thanked the sisters for the gracious hospitality and the afternoon snack.

Just as he rose from his seat to take leave, two pairs of hands pushed him back down. He yelped and struggled, but the Second and Fourth Sisters were very strong, and effortlessly held him in place.

The eldest, strictly addressed as Tian da jie (Big Sister Tian), also the tallest and the most voluptuous of the seven, leaned over the table and purred, “Hei gongzi ... or should I say, Hei didi (little brother), it’s not nice to bid goodbye to your new sisters right after you’ve gotten to know them. Tell us about yourself.” She fluttered her eyelids demurely, and despite her attractive, exotic looks derived from mixed East and Western bloodlines, she exuded a terrifyingly dominatrix air around her.

“A-Ah.. what.. what do you mean? I’m just a h-humble delivery man. I really should leave, o-otherwise my w-w-wife will be worried,” he stammered. Suddenly, his right shoulder felt heavy with the weight of porcelain-white, ample breasts. Wei Ying’s eyes grew wide as saucers as he stared at those milk jugs. “You always talk about your wife at home... such a sweet husband you turn out to be... mmm I can taste her presence in your life just by touching you,” the Second Sister said with a drippy voice and slithered a hand over Wei Ying’s right forearms. He flinched away; her fingertips seemed to bite his skin.

Fourth Sister, determined not to lose to the Second Sister, followed suit and rested her chest in the same manner. “You’re a clever liar, Mister delivery man! I’ve seen you selling magical talismans at the marketplace. I can smell everything, and can sense powerful magic underneath your clothes!,” she sniffed behind his ear and hissed as she started to grope Wei Ying’s chest.

Panicked, Wei Ying swatted the invading hand away. He had a pouch of twenty silver pieces to protect with his life, in his undergarments' pockets!

“Fourth Sister, don’t be rude and call him ‘Mister’, and get your hands off him. He’s a part of our family now, alright?” the Third Sister emerged from the shadows and embraced him from behind. Wei Ying blushed and gasped when twin mounds and a rather muscular set of abs pressed hard against his back. He was becoming trapped and couldn’t decide to remain docile (remember the three daggers!) or to flee (and have his jugulars sliced!). “F.. Family?” Wei Ying stuttered uncertainly, confused.

Fifth Sister, about the same age as Wei Ying, chirped childishly on his left, “Don’t you know? Once you sign a contract with the Liangs, you’re pretty much a part of the extended family - like us! Hooray!” She knelt next to his left leg and excitedly pounded his thigh with her fists (which was both painful and ticklish; he grimaced and tried not to make any weird sounds).

“But, I haven’t agreed.. unnnff! (the youngest of them, Seventh Sister, in her early teens, scrambled out from beneath the table and hopped onto Wei Ying’s lap; her scant, frilly dress was too inappropriately thigh-revealing, he thought) I haven’t even signed anything with the laoban !”

Hot-headed and pouty teenager Sixth Sister growled out from the right, “Details, details, who cares about details! Anyway, you saved our little Tian Tian. Didn’t you realize how different she looked from her elder sister? Or how her name resembles ours? Stuuuuupid old man!” She knelt beside Wei Ying and slapped his right thigh, looking rather exasperated at Wei Ying’s grasp of the situation at a frustratingly slow snail’s pace (when did she appear, he wondered).

Wei Ying was becoming dizzy from being surrounded by seven feisty females, and their thick perfumes and powder make-up almost made him gag. "Tian Tian... is one of you? But... how?" He was having a hard time to digest the new information, especially when the Seventh Sister started nuzzling his neck like a precocious ten-year old. Her soft hair tickled his Adam's apple.

“She is actually one of us, but adopted at an early age by Liang laoban . Do you want to know why?” Second Sister whispered seductively into his ear. He shivered when hot air was blown into the ear canal. He couldn't give a definite answer.

Little Seventh Sister bounced on Wei Ying's thighs, annoyed at being ignored despite the ongoing conversations. “Hey, Tian Tian is also my younger sister. Since she called you gege , she must really like you. Can I call you gege too?”

Third Sister cooed into Wei Ying's nape, “Silly girl, of course you can. We all should, since he’s already one of us. But I prefer to call him didi because he’s definitely younger than me. Just listen to him, I can tell from his voice that he’s dying to be loved and become the cutie-pie of our family, ” Her hands crawled to tickle his navel, close to where Seventh Sister's crotch rested. He let out a shrill "Hieeee!" sound.

“Ninth didi ! I like the sound of it!” Sixth Sister squealed with delight as she managed to push and dislodge her younger sister from the man; it seemed the girls were wrestling each other atop poor Wei Ying. Seventh Sister squeaked and with trained, lightning-quick moves, managed to grapple and hold onto his upper torso (owww, don't scratch my ribs, Wei Ying whined inwardly). In revenge, she kicked both Fifth and Sixth with a graceful split that sent both older girls tumbling to the ground unceremoniously with facefull of socked feet and bruised nosetips. Seventh Sister stuck out her tongue at Sixth.

Wei Ying was extremely unnerved by the turn of events and he gripped the edge of the chair anxiously. Something didn't quite make sense in the last comment he'd heard. "Ninth...?"

Tian da jie walked around the table and stood next to the man helplessly swaddled with clambering females. Her shapely curves and ripped muscular body gleamed in the light of flickering lanterns, and Wei Ying gulped.

"Ah, we should have told you earlier... Tian Tian is the eighth in line of our family," she whispered sultrily, and bent forward. Wei Ying arched his back as much as he could to avoid the looming boobs and curvaceous hips. "Sorry, but you're the runt of the litter, didi ," her lips twisted into an sugary-evil sneer and she patted on Wei Ying's cheeks lightly. He deftly avoided being scratched by her long, red fingernails.

Fifth Sister scrambled onto her feet and with enthusiastic sparkles in her eyes and a disturbingly wild grin etched on her face, then she grabbed onto Wei Ying's left thigh and shook it crazily. "Oh, I've always wanted a little brother! This boy is so cute! Too cute! I want him!" Wei Ying gritted his teeth at the agony - she was incredibly strong and he prayed she didn't shake any of his hip joints out of their sockets.

With that, the hall erupted into burst of activity and noise. Shouts rang from above, “Fate has smiled on us, sisters. Let’s welcome our new little brother!”; somewhere from the kitchen, “Bring out the celebratory foods! The sweets! The candies! Tian Mi Mi cannot be Tian (sweet) without those!”; and somewhere from the basement cellars, “Servants! Where is the wine? We must have it for this occasion!”.

Tian Mi Mi ’s women rushed around him; lighting up the entire interior of the building with red-amber lanterns and Fire and other light-based spells (Cultivators! There are scores of cultivators within the premises!); assembling and laying the table with an extravagant spread of food in all kinds of shapes, colours and textures that he’d never seen before.

Wei Ying really started to panic and he struggled to escape the clutches of these crazed women . He managed to push through a tide of moving bodies and take two steps towards the closed entrance doors, before Tian da jie ’s long limb closed around his waist - he choked on his breath when he realized the arm was inhuman, elongated and scaly, and with gleaming turquoise and aquamarine specks on its five foot-long claws . Wei Ying instinctively shouted “No!” and “Help me!” although he knew he cannot be heard within the fortified walls of Tian Mi Mi , especially when the street outside was deserted during the afternoon.

Wei Ying reached for his bamboo flute, but realized that it was gone from his sash - curse those street brats! They must have stolen it when they pickpocketed his silvers away! He used his hands and legs to push against the seven sisters who grabbed and pulled him back to the table. Some of the sisters started to grow non-human body parts - revelations that their origins were not as simple and straightforward as narrated before - somewhere among the moving masses, he saw horns, fangs, spider legs, carapace shells, and even a shiny, raised scorpion tail. He squeezed his eyes shut as fear and terror gripped his heart.

Something cold and hard touched his lips.

“Take a sip of this wine and then we’ll share the same jar to celebrate this wonderful siblinghood!” He pursed his lips defiantly and clawed at unseen assailants that threatened to drown him with the alcohol, but strong fingers gripped his mouth and managed to prise his jaws open. Sweet aromatic liquor flowed into his palate, and straight into his lungs when he tried to breathe and cough simultaneously.

“Drink! Drink! Drink!”

The flow of wine, flavored with honey and other unidentifiable tastes, continued to stream down his throat even as he choked, spit and swallowed. A fair amount spilled onto his face and down his neck, and he couldn’t open his eyes because of the stinging liquid.

Wei Ying pleaded for release in between hiccups and coughs, and he raised a hand. “I’m... really, I’m a married man! I have a lovely wife! I love her very much and will not cheat nor disobey her! I have to get back home! I can’t stay--”

One last hiccup, then Wei Ying felt a sharp, painful sensation shoot up his spine and into his head, and he immediately lost control of his senses. His vision spun and blacked, sounds and shouts from the hall became distorted and rose in volume until they became an ear-ringing drone, then his body slumped forward and he slammed his forehead onto the table’s surface. His right hand still held a three-fingered salute.

The entire hall (and the building) fell into murmurs, horrified gasps and eventually, deathly silence.

“Oh my.”

“What happened?”

“... Sixth Sister, what wine did you serve?”

“What?! Are you suspecting me?! It’s just a regular blend of our magical Mi (蜜; honey) and a jar of Mimi miji (秘密米酒; Rice Wine of Secrets). What’s wrong with that, da jie ? I wanted to spend our first night together learning all about our new didi ’s secrets. There’s no problem with that, right?!”

Wei Ying giggled in his awfully drunken, near-slumbering groggy state. He hiccuped and then hummed the sounds “mi, mi, miii, miiii, mii, mi...” into the table.

“Tee hee hee... Didi ’s totally lost it! He’s so adorable, I wanna keep him like this, jie jie . Can I? Can I? Pretty please?”

“(sigh) It didn’t work as you described. Tell me exactly the question you casted into the Mi , before mixing it into the wine. And no, Fifth. You cannot keep him like a pet.”

“Huh?! Third Sister, I casted the questions: ‘Tell me your name’ and ‘Tell me about your wife’. There’s nothing wrong, alright?!”

“Sixth, don’t lie to your Third Sister. I can hear the truth even through your raised voice. And don’t shout at your jie jie . It’s disrespectful.”

“... OKAY! I wanted to know how he has sex with the girls, because... he’s my type, ALRIGHT?! I wanted to find out more about what makes him tick, which part of females make him horny, like whether he’s a boob-guy or a butt-guy, what’s his favourite sex position in bed when he’s with the wife, and all that stuff! ...FUCK!”

Wei Ying rolled over in his seat and fell to the ground in a messy heap. He mumbled something unintelligible, and snored softly.

“And if he falls dead drunk - like this?”

“I... don’t know, da jie . I really don’t, and it’s not my fault! It just means he cannot answer the question and the Mi spell failed miserably. That’s all I know! Argh, this is so embarrassing!”

“Oh! Oh! I know!”

“What, Seventh?”

“Something like this happened to me before. Fifth Sister, do you remember the time when we caught a stalker who spiked my drink at school?”

“Yeah! The mayor’s son! He knows how to use the Mi spell and tried those sleazy ways to find out about you! And I think he asked similar questions too...!”

“Mm-hmm! But it didn’t work on me, and I fell into a drunken sleep - just like what is happening to didi . Because I’m a virgin ! The spell couldn't ask me, a virgin, about a question related to sexual experience... so it failed!”

“What?! Really? A virgin?! Even though he has a wife?! I can’t...”

“Slow down, Sixth. Breathe. Just listening to the sound of his heartbeat, I can tell that he’s a really loyal husband, and very loving to his spouse. There is definitely someone special in his life, and he’s living just for this person.”

“Ohhh, such a sweet man, yet still a virgin despite having tied the knot for more than a year. I can taste just by touching his hands - he’s not alone and there is definitely a lover living with him for at least that amount of time.”

“Huh... I don’t smell any other women’s scent on him. Are you sure, Second and Third Sister?”

A full minute passed in silence, as each sister mulled about the mystery of Wei Ying's virginity.

“Fourth, our senses never failed us. Didi didn’t lie when he said he’s a married man and that he has a loving wife . I’ve figured it out.”

Six sisters looked up expectantly to their eldest - confusion, curiosity, and bewilderment clearly expressed on their sweet angelic faces.

“ Didi is in love with another man, and the spell failed because he’s never done it with any woman.”

Then, Tian da jie added, "I've seen it in his eyes the moment he stepped into our shop. There is a reflection of a handsome man in white, and it's always there.

Wei Ying mmmhhs on the floor and scratched his tummy, before letting out a satisfied snore.

Six soft “aaaahs” chorused in the hall.

Just rushing through regular plot before reaching the sex and porn. I hope this is an amusing read because for me, this significantly expands the story's universe for the future. I think we've got enough, and after one, two or few more chapters, then we're done with this so-called 'still in the present year' arc.

I've had loads of fun writing Wei Ying's interactions with the fairer sex, and after this, I really want to wrap him up and send him home to Lan Zhan! Poor baby needs a hug from his man!

Congratulations to Zhan Ge for winning numerous awards and making many live-event appearances. I wuv you Xiao Zhan!!! (fangirls)
Not to forget Yibo didi still going strong with plenty of product endorsements and starring in all those tv shows!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 16

Lan Zhan calmly stirred a pot of boiling soup with a ladle. He watched quietly as diced root vegetables and dried dates swirled in the clear, aromatic broth with some chicken bones. Next, he added a few cut wedges from apples salvaged from the morning's squirrel attack; surprisingly, he carelessly dropped one onto the kitchen floor.

Just as the soup bubbled, so did the turmoil he felt inside him. The sun was setting and he hadn't seen nor heard anything from Wei Ying. He looked out with worry through the window (an expression that he seldom showed); the air was getting cooler and the forests surrounding their home had turned into an impenetrable mass of dark shadows beneath fiery orange skies.

He deliberated on whether to burn up an expensive Fairy Messenger talisman that costs four silvers, start up Bichen and rush over to the police station in Yiling, or simply wait a little longer. He looked longingly at bowls of seasoned chicken meat, freshly picked vegetables, wild mushrooms and sliced peaches (also rescued from the squirrels' invasion) arranged neatly on the kitchen counter, ready to be turned into a tasty sweet-savoury stir-fry on the pan at a moment's notice.

The aroma of steaming rice filled the air. He decided to prepare dinner first.

Seven women surrounded an angelic sleeping, albeit sloppy-looking Wei Ying, who lay on a wide couch-bed made of high-quality hardwood and lined by richly-embroidered pillows. He was covered with dust and dirt from a day's work under the hot sun, reeked with the stench of alcohol that spilled onto his face and clothes, and he drooled endlessly onto the furniture. Seventh Sister tried her best to wipe her snoring didi using a wet cloth soaked in a shallow bucket of florally-scented water.

Fifth Sister munched absently on the celebratory foods the servants had prepared earlier - good stuff should not go to waste. These included candies, snacks and sweet breads and rolls. She picked up a bread roll spiced with cinnamon, a specialty from the Far, Far West, but localized to use ingredients found within the Middle Kingdom.

Third Sister sighed and brooded over their didi. "Oh, what should we do? Will he be alright? Do we find out who he is and where he lives? Do we tell others? Do we hand him to the police and file a Missing Persons report? Do we let him stay the night?"

Sixth Sister, the most determined, impatient and stubborn of the lot, plucked the food out of Fifth's grasp. She swung it high in the air and announced, "We have to help him find his way back, jie jie s.

He's a precious cinnamon roll that must be protected at all cost!" she harrumphs.

Everyone in the room agreed.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

A couple of hours after unwillingly inducting the young man into the sisterhood, the owners of Tian Mi Mi were in a quandary of how to locate his home and send him back safely with ample compensation for the inconveniences that stemmed from the huge misunderstanding.

Tian da jie is brilliant in strategizing solutions to the problem, and ruthless in delegating responsibilities to the sisters to execute her instructions with utmost proficiency. With a wave of the Heavenly Dragon's Spear of Twelve Blazing Summers, one of the numerous enchanted weapons that she fluidly weaved out from thin air, she wrote the word 'Heaven' (天; Tian) in an impressive display of shooting lights, exploding fireballs (and awesome thundering sound effects), and channeled incredible amounts of qi energy to her sisters, to enable them to complete their tasks with divinely perfection as much as the Heavens would allow.

Tian dalaoye (天大老爷; Tian Great Grandfather) was understandably indignant when harassed by scores of such lowly deities while on his summer vacation, and thought it was time to have a pep talk with his rebellious great grand-daughter.

Ordinary inhabitants in the Qishan province of the Mortal Realm were blissfully unaware of the drama unfolding in the clouds above them, except for an unusually loud thunderclap that usually heralds the arrival of mid-summer storms after weeks of dry, hot weather.)

Seductive Second Sister was assigned to visit the Mayor's office to investigate all records and registers - both public and confidential - on any individual by the family name of Hei . She made sure to charm all officers on site, and compelled them to check over a thousand pages of documentation in a span of less than an hour. Qishan's provincial administration came to a standstill that afternoon, and all government-related businesses became disrupted. Ordinary citizens queueing to pay their taxes and to settle any city council-related matter complained, but there were used to frequent delays anyway.

Motherly Third Sister was in tears when she saw the woeful state of the contents inside Wei Ying's basket, and remembered the story of his heroic fight with the street brats, which she overheard when Tian Tian was in their shop earlier. The opened wrap of minced pork had footprints all over it and didn't smell fresh anymore; the bag of flour was torn, contaminated with sand, and spilled into the basket; packets of spices, salt, sugar and flavoured pastes lay crumpled, ripped and dirtied at the bottom; even the broom and dustpan set sold at her old friend's store, Liao's, was found bent and crooked. She immediately contacted all her friends in the Qishan Merchant Guild and spent some time lamenting about the pitiful, bullied young man, just as how mothers gather together for mommy-talks and to amass social and emotional support within their circles. The matriarchs of the Niu, Zhu, Liao and many other families responded without hesitation.

Fourth Sister only needed to sneak a peek into Wei Ying's satchel to confirm her initial suspicions about the man's occupation as a street peddler of all sorts of basic magics and useless handmade knick-knacks. She gladly replenished it with stacks of first-class talismans, finely crafted charms, bottles of healing salves, an assortment of potions jars, and actual, working magical gadgets (including alternate versions of Compasses of Evils) from her own inventory. It didn't cost her anything, since she was one of the co-founders and owners of the top-selling Magics 'R Us brand that is widespread across the Middle Kingdom, and known to every cultivator (they've always advertised on the front covers of every magic and skill-related magazines, including Cultivation Times). She noticed the satchel's leather strap to be worn out, so she handed it to Fifth for repairs.

Fifth Sister is amazing with artisanal works. Despite her childish behavior and speech, she demonstrates skills that put some of the Middle Kingdom's greatest artists, craftsmen, and smiths to shame. She mended Wei Ying's torn garments and his satchel within minutes, and strengthened the material so that they could last a lifetime, if used with care.

Sixth Sister is the darling of the young, enterprising, innovative and creative. She may be going through a rough phase in growing up, and act cranky and moody at times, but she is the most gifted in that she can see and do things that others would not, or could not.

When Second Sister came back empty-handed because there was no one with the surname of Hei that matched Wei Ying's description, Sixth became upset and started swearing and throwing things around due to the seemingly futile attempt to help her (secret crush) didi. Third Sister advised her to "just calm down, and breathe". She did, stopped her tantrums, and closed her eyes to meditate. Within the noisy murky darkness inside her mind, soon, a spark lit up and burst forth; her mind opened up to boundless possibilities and solutions (Tian da jie calls this phenomenon "ascending into infinite states of the mundane mind"; Sixth calls it "mindblown").

She took an identification-related spell from Fourth's arsenal, and casted it on the basket in Third Sister's hands to locate its origins. Then, after staring into her da jie 's eyes to see captured image of the 'handsome man in white' (she felt a twinge of jealousy at that point), she plucked out the exact pages from binders titled "Burial Mounds" that Second Sister brought back, and found this man's records written in a copy of a land title - indeed, a portrait of him was drawn on the document, although it was difficult to match it to the actual person. She asked the Fifth Sister to magically weave and modify a Fairy Messenger talisman that her Fourth Sister offered, and under her careful, detailed instructions to disassemble and re-code the spell, the piece of yellow paper was transformed into a Reverse Fairy Messenger spell. (Essentially, the sisters could "call the caller", despite not knowing the receiver's mystical call-code or symbol - a twisted and prohibited version of the common spell.)

Fortunately or unfortunately, Wei Ying continued to drift into a restful slumber, and missed the remarkable spectacle of seven human and non-human females fussing over him.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

The softening peaches crackled and simmered in a bath of oiled chicken broth, and he stirred it slowly to thicken the liquid into a tasty, appetizing sauce to accompany fillets of chicken breastmeats and cooked greens. The mushrooms added a nice earthy taste, and helped to enhance the meaty flavours so that they balanced the sweet-sourness of the tart fruit slices.

In the background, the pot of apple chicken soup continued to boil at low temperatures and gurgle contently.

A ball of amber light floated through the kitchen window, with the familiar silvery thread trailing behind it. He wondered exasperatedly who would call at this hour, partly annoyed at getting more than a Fairy Messenger a day, and partly excited-worried that it could be about Wei Ying. He moved the pan away from the fire so that the dish would not become burnt. Naturally (and not really required), he wiped his hands on a dishcloth from oil and sticky fruit juices, before grasping the vibrating fluff of light. By the time he closed his palm into a squeezed fist, it had already buzzed eight times.

He was startled when the first sounds emerged from the pulsing light - a cacophony of explosive high-pitched female voices, all muddled into bursts of incoherent dialogue lines.

“... Hello? Hello! No one’s in, let’s try-- wait, Hello?!”

“I hear the sounds of something bubbling and sizzling.. is that someone cooking?”

“What? Did we mistakenly call a takeaway or a restaurant?”

“I hear someone’s breathing! That whooshing sound... ooh! There! There!”

“Wait, I just thought of something.. How do we address him?”

“Holy shit, you’re right! Should we call him meifu (妹夫; younger sister’s husband)? But it’s didi ’s...”

“No... and we can’t use dixi (弟媳; younger brother’s wife) either. Then.. di ... fu (弟夫; younger brother’s husband)?”

“Jie jie , I’ve never learnt that in school.. What’s difu ?”

“Hello? Difu ?”

Lan Zhan was shocked and horrified, and instinctively hurled the ball of light into the kitchen sink (of course, it was not possible to actually toss it anywhere, because it was immaterial and did not have physical mass). As soon as the ball of light left his palm, it merely floated a bit more, and fizzled out. The spell was disconnected.

He grabbed the kitchen counter to steady himself. It must have been a prank call, he thought. A very terrifying one, indeed.

Two minutes later, another ball of amber light drifted through the window. He tried to swat it away with a ladle and when that did not work, he used his sleeves. However, the fluffy luminous globe easily penetrated through all sorts of material, and merely trailed towards him. He rushed out of the kitchen and it followed him wherever he went until he was outside their home at the courtyard. The ghostly yellow-orange sphere lazily hovered closer him (it's like the stuff of nightmares!), and Lan Zhan knew he could not escape.

He forced himself to calm down. It's only a Fairy Messenger call... if it's another prank call, you can always disconnect again, he assured himself repeatedly like a mantra. He accepted it with a courageous heart.

Lan Zhan cleared his throat when the spell connected, and clearly, calmly greeted the other side, "Hello. This is Lan's residence."

There were some unintelligible chatter in the background, and barely audible hisses of "sshhh, quiet down!". It sounded playful, and a nuisance.

"Hello? Is that you, Wei Ying?" he asked, voice firmer than before, and he sounded slightly annoyed. "Who is this?" he asked again, when the other side refused to identify itself. He reminded himself that the great Han Guang Jun stands above juvenile pranksters.

Finally, a female voice answered, "Wei... Ying...? err... Lan... ah! Is that you, Er gongzi ?"

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei Ying woke up with a snort and found himself sitting cross-legged on bumpy ride. The strong winds against his face was biting cold and he slowly blinked open his frost-lidded bleary eyes to a marvellous sight of a starry night sky and a dazzling, bright half-moon. He stretched and yawned loudly, felt his muscles and joints pop, and realized that his throat was dry.

"Young Master? Are you awake?"

Wei Ying was surprised to hear another man's voice, and he looked up to see a bearded middle-aged cultivator dressed in a pristine-white robes. He stood on a broadsword and - goodness! - they were really flying through the air! Wei Ying became fully alert, and surveyed his surroundings anxiously. They had just entered the Burial Mounds and he could see Mian Mian's house on the fringes, the endless hills, grasslands and pockets of forests, and not too far away, the familiar sight of his cavern complex-turned-home.

“Young Master, please do not be alarmed. Let me inform you your current situation - a customer by the name of Tian gu niang contacted us at FeiEx (飞; Fei; Fly; for FlyExpress (sic)) to pick you up from Liang’s Teahouse, and instructed us to drop you off at your home. All expenses for this service have been fully paid. You’re in safe and good hands of Qishan’s most reliable and premium air transportation service, and we have plenty of experience in shuttling passengers in... various states... to their destinations. If you need any further assistance, please let me know and I can contact our ground crew to be on standby.” Wei Ying thought he felt a wink at the word “various states”, but he couldn’t see because he was facing the back of the cultivator.

Wei Ying grabbed the broadsword’s blade tightly, which was specially blunted and sheathed in soft, cushiony velvet, to steady himself on the ride (he wished someone would invent a safety belt or rope so that less able-bodied passengers would not accidentally fall off - another idea for his notebook). There was turbulence in the wind, and each time the sword hit a bump of rough air currents, Wei Ying feared that he would be thrown off from two hundred feet above the ground. He still felt dizzy from the alcohol, and remained sitting on the comfortable velvet surface, as motionless as possible, throughout the journey.

He wasn’t able to think clearly - the pounding headache was still there -, but he started patting his body and looked for his belongings. Fortunately, to his relief, his satchel was on his lap and he could feel the precious twenty lumps of silvers in his undergarments’ pockets. “Shifu (师傅; Master / driver), have you seen my--” he started asking.

“Oh, please do not worry, Young Master! Your baskets are safely secured at the back!” the cultivator shouted through the din of whistling frigid winds. The shifu focused on piloting the sword and did not look away from the direction ahead. His back was straight, his booted feet was stable despite being near the narrowed tip of the blade, and he looked very professional and well-trained in carrying out his duty - so Wei Ying felt he could trust the man's words. Wei Ying turned around and true enough, he saw his good ol' basket dangling securely from a rope tied to the hilt. There was another, more brightly-coloured bamboo basket tied to the hilt which he didn't know whom it belonged to. His curiosity piqued.

“ Shifu ! This other basket... whose is it? Are you delivering it to another customer after this?”

“Oh no, Young Master. We've checked-in both baskets under your name for this flight. The lady who sent for us said that you might not remember this when you wake up, so this is her message: one is your basket, and the other is a “Sorry and Thank You” gift from her establishment. It was given around the time you passed out from having too much to drink at a party, so you may have no recollection about it.. Young Master, I hope this makes sense? If you need more details, I could conjure a Fairy Messenger and connect with--”

Wei Ying waved a hand dismissively. His head throbbed at blurred memories of the horrors that transpired inside Tian Mi Mi . “It's alright, shifu , I think... yeah, I guess it's fine,” he grunted. He wasn't sure how he got out alive, and he didn't want to dwell on that, for the moment. He pinched the bridge of his nose.

“If it helps, your luggage was scanned with the Aviation Council's spells prior to departure, which is a standard procedure for all FeiEx flights. There are certainly no contrabands or anything of that sort in those baskets, in case you're wondering what's in your luggage. According to the forms, your luggage was declared as containing foodstuff and common household items, which are not subjected to any tax. Rest assured, Young Master, we handle plenty of (inebriated) customers who are not able to complete the proper check-in procedure before their flights, so we go the extra length to do things for them - including paperwork, luggage checking and handling, and completing passengers' preparations for launch on their behalf."

Wei Ying nnnghs in vague agreement. He believed that FeiEx's employees had at least gone through the meagre purchases inside his basket, and they must've been disappointed at the contents - for such a premium flight. As for the other basket - if there were only 'foodstuffs and household items', then it's a safe guess that Tian Mi Mi didn't put anything dangerous or illegal in it. He wondered if they also packed some of the colourful and yummy celebratory foods he'd seen on the tables in the mansion... maybe as an apology? (he hoped so, and his stomach rumbled a bit - he was reminded of how late it was.)

He started to piece the jigsaw puzzle of the day's events (oww, oww, the headache), and at the back of his mind, a screeching warning blared about how the 'Tian gu niang' knew where he stayed... but considering he was being air-lifted and nothing seems out of place - it sounded as though Tian Mi Mi sent him to Liang's Teahouse for a safe and unsuspecting pick-up and was sincere in letting him go with no strings attached, he was all fine and dandy, and all his belongings were still with him, with an extra reward for his troubles. Fate certainly works in mysterious ways, he thought.

The shifu seemed to sense the shift in his passenger's mental state to more calming qi vibrations. He called out with a deep, smooth and assuring voice, "Please sit back and enjoy the ride, Young Master. We're almost there."

Fifteen minutes later, Wei Ying stood unsteadily on his feet on the familiar courtyard while staring mesmerized at the sight of a silvery-white sword and its pilot lifting off into the night sky. He noticed that FeiEx's name was clearly carved on the underside of the blade - it looked elegant and sophisticated, befitting its (probably) pricey fee, exceptional guest service, and comfortable seats (his butt was starting to warm up to the velvet, but he had to get off too soon). He wondered briefly if someday, he could try his hands in running a ride-hailing service - it looked like a profitable venture (there are plenty of drunken people that needed to get back home when the day is late), only needed a nice big sword as initial investment (easily available to order at the many weaponsmiths in town), and more importantly, Wei Ying imagined being able to zip through the air with a fancy blade that has his name splashed across it in bright red and black... and still earn a big buck (that would be so awesome !).

Then, he heard Lan Zhan's voice. He turned around and felt his face light up into the brightest smile in the world - at the sight of his dearly-missed lao gong . All the pains, problems and worries from the day dissipated; he felt like he was walking on air, and his heart was tremendously relieved that he was finally, finally home to where he truly belonged.

Lan Zhan rushed out of their home's entrance when he heard the telltale whooshing sounds of a sword in flight. He wore his white nightgown and had put on a thick outer robe for the chilly night. "Wei Ying!" he shouted at the top of his lungs as he dashed across the courtyard. Several gusts of swirling dust blew, but that didn't deter him.

Wei Ying lumbered on wobbly footsteps as he dragged two baskets with both hands. He stopped when Lan Zhan stood in front of him. The older man automatically reached out and easily hauled both baskets with his left hand, while he put his right arm around Wei Ying and nudged the younger man to walk faster, because the night was quite cold. Wei Ying had hoped his spouse would say hello to him with hugs, flowers and fireworks - but he knows the aloof and reserved Lan Wang Ji too well, and that the man did not fancy such mushy or romantic kinds of greetings. In fact, he seemed preoccupied to get both of them safely into their home with the luggage in tow.

Wei Ying's smile remained during the short merry walk back to the cave. "Lan Zhan, I'm back (我回来了)," he murmured, and shyly gripped the satchel's strap around his shoulder, while leaning closer to his partner; he's grateful for the simple and kind warmth that Lan Zhan wordlessly offers with the embrace from his right hand.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Lan Zhan was surprisingly patient with Wei Ying. He was calm, composed, and did not throw a barrage of questions as expected - in fact, he behaved the same just as any other day, except that it was past eight in the evening, and he was still serving up dinner. Wei Ying watched closely at his every move, and tried to determine if the unusual demeanour was due to an infinite amount of affection and understanding from his partner (he hoped so), or a 'silent treatment' that belies the feelings of disappointment and frustration (he really hoped not). Occasionally, Lan Zhan stole glances at the younger man, and sometimes he leaned a bit too close for comfort when he walked past; Wei Ying interpreted these as signs that the older man must've missed him a lot too.

Wei Ying gratefully slaked his thirst with half a jug of herbal tea waiting on the dining table (the kind that soothes hangovers and helped him to recover from his drunken state - did Lan Zhan know?), while the older man reheated portions of chicken, rice and soup (still in his nightgown - he looks really pretty, Wei Ying thought). He thought very hard and mulled over his beverage about how to break the news of his daily adventures in Yiling, and was distracted when his socked feet kicked something solid. He bent down and retrieved a detached broom head.

Lan Zhan sighed as he gently stirred the pot. While taking tentative sips to test the temperature of the soup, he gave a condensed account of his rather peaceful day. He gripped the ladle uncomfortably hard and seethed unnoticeably (Wei Ying could still sense the change in his voice, albeit very slightly), when he recounted about the squirrels that terrorised their kitchen, which contributed to the night's fruit-laden menu. Wei Ying ahhs and hmms almost disinterestedly, though he was actually listening (and comparing notes with how he managed to survive Yiling to live another day ).

The most exciting part of Lan Zhan's day was when he received a call from Mian Mian. “Mian Mian! We met her two weeks ago at the evening market. How is her daughter?” Wei Ying interjected happily before taking another gulp of the tea, “Did she call to tell us about how her little girl passed an exam with flying colours?” and giggled a bit. Mian Mian's daughter is smart, and has always been a top scorer in class; her mother always beam with pride whenever she talks about her daughter's education.

There was a thoughtful pause. Outside their home, the sounds of crickets and other nightly insects were deafening. Lan Zhan shook his head, unsmiling, and continued to heat the soup. "Her neighbour's staying over at her place, because they spotted a snake in their garden. She has her hands full with caring for an additional family, so she's unable to do anything. I will visit them tomorrow, help to find the snake, and keep the families safe."

"Hnnn..." Wei Ying hums. He didn't know that his partner was running a local pest control service. However, given his perceived hatred for pests, it was not a surprise. Wei Ying didn't comment further on his partner's plans.

By the time Lan Zhan finished his story (which was very brief, since the man lives on brevity, spoke in short sentences, and each word carries the worth of at least another ten; unlike Wei Ying), he scooped out a steaming bowl; he made sure it contained balanced amounts of carrots, radishes, softened apple wedges and chunks of bony meat.

"Actually... Lan Zhan, I bought a set of broom and dustpan from Liao's store. It's a bit... crooked, but it'll work fine. Here, let me show you," he started to rise from his seat with an intention to reach the baskets at the dark, far end of the kitchen-cum-dining room, but Lan Zhan gently tapped on his shoulder in an unspoken instruction to 'sit down'. A bowl of soup was placed on the table, and Lan Zhan hnnns at him with a nod. "Oh.. (哦)" and Wei Ying sits back, fully understanding that he should just enjoy the soup and let Lan Zhan do the work (at this point, Wei Ying's heart melted a little more from his partner's sweet gestures).

He observed attentively as the older man walked to the baskets, crouched in front of them, then opened each one to unload the contents. Wei Ying couldn't really see much despite his high vantage point due to the dim lanterns, and he was starting to feel hungry as he slurped the warm, tasty soup; the slight savoury-tartness really whet his appetite!

“Ah, Lan Zhan, the other basket is actually a gift from... err... I'll tell you later. It's alright, you can open it, it contains only foodstuff and household items for us. I haven't seen it yet, though. Anyway, about the broom - do you know what happened to me today? Those street brats again, I tell you! They were all over me and I tried to fight back! I lost the extra silver pieces I earned from my A wesome S elling S kills because they pickpocketed me again... ahh! It's so frustrating! Ah, don't worry, I still earned the twenty silvers after delivering the jiaozi and buying all the groceries according to your shopping list. See? (pat, pats the pocket) They're right here. Hey, if you see something weird in that other basket, don't touch it. I'll handle it later. By the way, the jiaozi s were really good, and the guests at the wedding ceremony ate them all! The jianbing that you made too - I actually fed a stray cat with some, and he loved it so much that he rubbed himself all over me! That was so cute... Lan Zhan, we should get a cat someday, what do you think? And.. where was I? Ah, the broom. So, I was saying...”

The dining area eventually settled down to become a comfortable hubbub of Wei Ying's perpetual babbling. Once he started to relate his view of his own adventures , in his own messy but endearing ways, with plenty of boasting, self-gratification, and a good dose of superfluous and exaggerated details, he became an enthusiastic and excitable box of non-stop chatter. It had been a day of tensions, bursts of panics and awkward silences, so being able to openly talk to Lan Zhan - felt akin to soothing his soul with a warm bowl of chicken soup; which incidentally, he just had one, and Lan Zhan wordlessly filled a second serving for him.

(He deftly avoided the story of saving a little girl and delivering her to a brothel, where he met a celebrity and became ambushed by ravenous prostitutes. Lan Zhan would murder, if he even broached that sort of topic. So he skirted around it and portrayed himself along the lines of graciously helping someone in need, and ended up getting drunk at Liang's Teahouse after "winning an afternoon lucky draw for a basket of grocery goodies". A few white lies wouldn't hurt, he told himself.)

Lan Zhan methodically picked, inspected and put the contents from the baskets to the correct places. He started with the smallest parcels of groceries that were clearly written in the shopping list, such as the packs of spices and condiments, and slowly worked up to the bigger ones. As he shuffled back and forth between baskets and replenished the cabinets and shelves of their kitchen, he impeccably served Wei Ying's dinner without the latter even realizing it. Wei Ying was lovingly pampered as he talked on and on, having bowls of rice placed in front of him and the accompanying set of chopsticks (Lan Zhan nodded, mmms and muttered yes'es occasionally to signal that he was still listening to Wei Ying's convoluted tales). Lan Zhan seemed to be busy ferrying such a paltry amount of provisions, and for a moment, Wei Ying wondered if he really should stop eating and help out his partner (but he was really hungry thanks to the appetizing soup, and it's way, way past dinnertime!).

While he dined on Lan Zhan's peach-marinated grilled chicken and a vegetable-mushroom stir-fry - when the older man held up not one, but three packs of wrapped minced pork (were they ever that big?), and assembled perfect lines of stuff on the kitchen floor and in the order of increasing sizes (Lan Zhan worked fast to lay out the baskets' unexpectedly extensive amount of contents on the floor, spreading them out like a carpet - wait, what? When did he buy so much stuff?! ) - ranging from all sorts of bags of food, sacks of rice, kitchen supplies, household items, new rolls of cloth (what?!), and unearthed a mind-boggling stacks of talismans, magical equipment and bottles of whatnots from his satchel (but it didn't feel heavy when he was carrying it...!) - Wei Ying's facial expression became very grave and serious; he pulled out a half-chewed chicken bone from his mouth; and lowered his legs back to a polite sitting posture (his favourite [obnoxious] sitting position at home was: to bend and pull his left leg up to the chair, while leaving his right leg on the floor; and he would rest an arm on the left knee and lean backwards to a kind of manspreading, because he would look like a laoban and that felt good ).

Lan Zhan looked up questioningly at Wei Ying, resulting in the younger man nervously swallowing down a mouthful of meat that suddenly tasted very dry.

"Wei Ying, these were not in the shopping list," Lan Zhan stated the obvious. He also held up the broom apparently promised by Wei Ying - which, to the younger man's horror, looked very different from the (cheap) straw broom he bought at Liao's store with just three silver pieces. Lan Zhan gripped the much-touted, latest model of Dasheng 's Dustless Six-way Magic Cleaning Stick ( dasheng ; 大升; Dyson (sic)) (Dustless; equiv. to 避尘; Bichen ), which looked exactly as advertised in numerous flyers handed out in the markets!

"And Liang's teahouse closes in the afternoon once a week, which is a day like today," the older man added and pointed at a calendar that hung on the kitchen wall. Wei Ying to clutch his chest in fear at that emphasized word, and when he realized he had marked on that same calendar the dates when teahouses closed - in red circles, no less -, his stomach turned queasy. Bad luck and busted .

“I... I can explain,” Wei Ying stammered, and stood up from his seat, hand on his heart.

He was at a loss for words, and then, he shook his head, “No, in fact, I can’t explain. I... I don’t know what happened!”

“Talk (说),” the older man’s terse instruction echoed in the kitchen. There was no room for nonsense. Lan Zhan pressed a button on the handle of the Cleaning Stick, and with a whirr of spinning gears and moving mechanical parts, it transformed into a solid, majestic-looking broom .

“Lan Zhan, you have to believe me! I didn't steal anything!” Wei Ying cried out in desperation. The older man appeared visibly livid, and Wei Ying felt himself shrivel under the sickeningly hard stare.

When Han Guang Jun slammed the edge of the Dustless Broom onto the hard kitchen floor, disappointment and frustration evident on his face, there was a bone-shaking boom and everything in the kitchen rattled. He looked like the incarnation of an angry, smouldering Guang Gong about to deliver his judgement.

The colourful basket (“not Wei Ying’s”) tipped over, and more stuff spilled out. A stack of racy magazines slid noiselessly to the ground. Among the titles include PeiNan’s, PeiNu’s (陪女; “Accompany the Female”; read as Play Girl (sic)) and - for the third time that day, Wei Ying feared for his life, when he saw PeiNi’s (陪你; “Accompanying You”; read as Peni’s) with uncensored pictures of homosexual men and women embracing each other in extremely indecent manners.

“ Wei. Ying. ”

Notes for the Chapter:

I swear, this arc started with the good, innocent intention of having Wangxian make a few more friends, have some fun adventure in their little world, and explore beyond their cave-home. I typed this mostly during lunch hours, and I think the extra carbs made my imagination run wild! *lol*

The dramatic bit at the end was unexpected, because I wanted fluffiness, though fluffiness doesn't fluff all the time, right?

I'm starting to take some leaves from work and hope to spend some quality time with family and friends during the year-end holidays. Wishing everyone happy holidays, Merry Christmas and may you have a awesome start to the new year!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 17

"You come home late, reeking of alcohol and women's perfume." No! I worked hard today! I was forced to drink wine in broad daylight! I don't know why I smell like florally-scented water! (... can I really tell him that these happened while I was in a place with an unsavoury name as 'Tian Mi Mi'?...)

"... with love-bites on your neck." Wha-- this? It's those street brats! They fired nut shells at me and I was pelted all over! Look, my skin is pockmarked with bruises! (... but Lan Zhan doesn't really believe in the existence of these 'street brats', because whenever he's in Yiling, he only comes across cute children obediently holding their parents' hands while in the markets...)

"... and a torn sleeve that was perfectly sewn back." I know you're disappointed that you weren't the one who fixed the sleeve. And I know you're jealous because judging from the perfect stitching, you know a girl had done it. (... What do you want me to say to this? How can I convince you that 'it's not what you think'?...)

"... with baskets of unexplained goods, and what more... THIS." (The older man picks up the PeiNan's, PeiNu's and PeiNi's, because the sight of any reading materials lying haphazardly on the floor somehow triggers him) No, no, it's not what you think. I didn't buy these. Someone put them in the baskets. It wasn't me. Wasn't me. Please.

"... And a story that doesn't make sense, nor match with the facts." Lan Zhan... don't you trust me anymore?

Wei Ying stooped in front of his fiery (!!!) partner, face pale and grim, head lowered until his neck creaked, hands stiff on his side, and remained very quiet except for his heavy breathing. He had so much to say, but he quelled the desire and instinct to talk back because he knew he'd only be digging deeper into his own grave. The atmosphere in the kitchen was sombre, tense, thick, and tasted unpleasant to the senses.

“... and finally, the owner of a brothel called to say that they were sending you home. A Tian gu niang had to assure me that you're alive, safe, still in one piece, and untouched . Because I couldn't even think of what to say at that time.”

At that moment, Wei Ying's knuckles had gone white, and his body trembled. A million thoughts went through his mind - thoughts of being angry at himself for not telling the truth in the first place, which would have spared both of them from this heartbreaking outcome; of being distraught for not knowing what happened between falling unconscious in a sea of women, and waking up on the flight back; and of panicking on whether the nature of his relationship with his partner had been divulged while he was in a drunken state - the presence of the PeiNi's was too convincing to refute the possibility - and, alarmingly, what else he could have revealed to the residents of Tian Mi Mi during that time. There was too much at stake for their home, their well-being, and their lives. Lan Zhan needed to know.

The older man sighed very heavily, and Wei Ying's stomach dropped into an ocean of sinking, dreadful feelings.

"Wei Ying, we're husband and wife, a couple, and soulmates for life. We're working hard to make a living together, each in our own ways and for one another. Tell me, Wei Ying... have I done something wrong to deserve this?" His voice was solemn and steady, but towards the end, there was a quiver and an exhale of shaky breaths.

There are the unspoken implications in that last question.

Do you still trust in our relationship?

Do you still trust me ?

Do you still love me?

Wei Ying realized how vulnerable Lan Zhan was - his perfect man, the strongest hero, the laogong who devotes and sacrifices himself to the cause of his spouse, never putting his own concerns above anyone else's. It seemed so wrong for the entire world, including Wei Ying, to blindly admire and take advantage of the infallible Han Guang Jun's infinite patience, compassion, and even his love , without understanding what drives the man to act, behave, embody and value such virtuous qualities.

Lan Zhan is a selfish man. He gets jealous, and becomes needy. He experiences greed, lust and gets possessive at times. He has his ego and pride, wants to be praised, and doesn't voice out his suffering. He can also be immature, emotionally volatile, and sometimes he doesn't know how to handle situations that matter to the heart - not because of how he was raised in Gusu, but because he is just an ordinary man, with his own set of flaws and imperfections. He can become weak, confused, and disappointed, which leads to a vicious cycle of self-blaming and self-harm. He needs to be cared for, and he wants to be assured.

Lan Zhan really needed to know.

Wei Ying looked up, having finally seen the light, and he was determined to patch things up for the two of them. He takes a deep breath.

“Lan Zhan, I was wrong (我错了),” Wei Ying admitted openly, with a soft, soothing but unwavering voice. There is guilt, and also the promising hope that he was taking the first step to mend Lan Zhan’s broken heart.

The younger man bravely reached out both of his hands and held his partner’s closed fists. He gazed deeply into his laogong ’s eyes, and fervently wished that his message was coming in loud and clear. “Can you give me another chance to redeem myself?

I’ll explain everything (我说).”

Lan Zhan nodded. His shoulder stopped shaking.

“Mn. I will listen (我听).”

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

There are times when Wei Ying laughs at his own silliness, and at other times, he swears using filthy words at his misfortunes.

He swings his fists up proudly at his victories, he thumbs his nose when there is mischief, he tucks one of his long bangs behind an ear when there is discomfort, and he shrugs and droops his shoulders when he is helpless.

Then, there are times when he stutters nervously because he can't think of the proper words to use, he blushes because of embarrassing moments, he pauses because of confusion or because of something that doesn't make sense, and he grimaces because of pain, fear and disgust.

Listening to Wei Ying is as exhilarating and frightening as experiencing his incredible day fraught with danger, surprises and emotional roller-coasters.

Lan Zhan listens with his heart, and throughout Wei Ying's colourful storytelling, he did not let go of his gentle grasp of the younger man's hand.

When Wei Ying was done, Lan Zhan understood the reasons that compelled his lover to take such drastic actions and weave layers of white lies into the truth.

Wei Ying rubs his teary eyes. Lan Zhan embraces him, and pats the back to comfort the younger man who struggles to hold back his emotions.

He whispers, "You've done well, Wei Ying. You've done well."

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei Ying was fully awake, giddy, light-hearted and and he hummed favourite pop tunes as he soaked in their outdoor pool. The thermal springwaters soothed the day's aches, washed away dirt, grime and the bad smells of dried liquor and nauseous perfumes, and kept his body warm after a filling dinner in the chilly night.

Qishan province has many active volcanoes, and it is not uncommon for minor tremors to strike the 'Mounds intermittently. Sometimes, these mild quakes result in small cracks on surfaces - and where bodies of water are involved, tiny streams of bubbles and jets of heated (but not scalding) water spout out from unexpected places - which instantly transforms their bath into a jacuzzi pool that entertains (because one can get surprise massages) as well as causes distress (because one cannot predict when and where the fountains of water will hit).

Wei Ying was scrubbing his back with a hand towel when he felt his nether regions tickled by pressurized, swirling waters, and he nnnhs involuntarily. He was reluctantly reminded that he hadn't done it for two days, and the ticklish bubbly waters tenderly fanned the fire in his loins. He reached behind and down towards the rear, but abruptly yelped when his shoulders twinged in pain; he must've pulled a muscle when he struggled to escape from Tian Mi Mi earlier that day.

After reviewing his options, Wei Ying decided to climb out of the water to the tiled poolside, lay the hand towel on the ground, and knelt on it. He used his fingers to draw the mystical symbol of "Water" with a few modifications, and casted three of them. Bright blue Water symbols appeared from thin air and they floated around him, eager to unleash their magical powers.

He gingerly bent down on all fours (he wasn't sure if he'd strained any more muscles), and then proceeded to control the spell's movements in the air by flicking those same fingers that created them. As soon as he had all three floating symbols align perfectly behind his raised ass, he snapped his digits and the spell began to work. Tiny waterspouts spun out from the pool and weaved through the shiny blue symbols into three water fountains that gushed straight into his asshole. Wei Ying wiggles his butt, mmmhs satisfyingly, and made twirling movements with his forefinger to dial up and down the speed and volume. He loved to alternate between powerful sprays to the butt crack, gentle sprinkles on his heavy balls, and when nnnh it's not enough, he turns all three streams into a powerful torrent to hose his insides (but sadly, not deep enough to hit the prostate), also, when he feels naughty, he rapidly taps his fingertips and he ngggaaahs at the sensations of wildly-pulsating water hitting his genitals.

After some time, his biceps ached from holding up his weight for too long, and he grudgingly rose back to his knees. Unfortunately, his thighs gave out from a sudden attack of pins-and-needles, and he unceremoniously slipped on the wet towel. The three Water spells followed suit, and swung to the front just as his ass hit the ground, and rained powerful torrents directly onto his crotch. His half-hard penis was deliciously assaulted by pressurized jets on its hardening length and the swelling pinkish tip. Wei Ying moans No's, Stop's, and plenty of Aaaahs, as he lay spread-eagled on the ground and started to pump his hips into a churning vortex of surging water that threatened to suck and stroke his dick ruthlessly to completion, because he had lost control of the spell the moment his fingers frantically clawed and deliriously grappled the towel beneath him.

Lan Zhan had just finished washing the dishes and arranged them on a drying rack, when he heard a soft cry from their pool. He peeked out from the kitchen window and observed with a hungry gaze of how Wei Ying played with the water (or rather, how the water played with Wei Ying). He restrained a smug smile at his lover's clumsy mischief.

Later, an hour after Lan Zhan's predetermined bedtime, he was still awake and lay on the bed to read up the last few pages of a chapter titled "Snake Ghouls" from his favourite book about the wild-life (and wild-deads) of the 'Mounds. His nightgown rested inside the laundry basket after he discovered splatters of peach sauce on the sleeves, and since their bedroom was quite toasty (the cave's walls are good for holding in summer's daytime heat), he decided to remain topless and only wore a pair of loose-fitting sleeping trousers. At times, he started to drift off to sleep, however, he forced himself to stay awake, at least until the last page. He scooted higher and adjusted the pillows behind his back for a better, more comfortable reading angle.

Wei Ying sauntered into the bedroom barefooted, with only a cotton shirt as the sole piece of garment on his thin frame. Lan Zhan raised an eyebrow but said nothing; it could've been worse and the younger man often spend his nights in the nude anyway. Earlier, Wei Ying complained that he couldn't find any other pairs of trousers because the ones he wore was dirty, and his other one had a tear which hadn't been fixed yet. Lan Zhan replied that the younger man could wear his, if he didn't mind, because there were at least two new pairs still in the 'production line' and unfortunately, those weren't ready for use yet (Lan Zhan had quite a number of on-going sewing projects, including new clothes, outer robes, bedsheets and fabric covers for the furniture).

(Arousing images of Wei Ying catwalking with his pants and without any other undergarments flashed by - he salivated and swallowed at those raunchy thoughts, especially if he had creamed in those pants before and Wei Ying's loins unknowingly rubbed against the same spots. It's like licking your secret love's washed spoon.)

Wei Ying stood at the entrance and continued to dry his hair with a towel. His cheeks were rosy-pink from the heated bath waters (in one way or another). Lan Zhan squinted his eyes and tried to spy on the younger man's groin in-between flipping pages about pythons and rattlesnakes; to his dismay, the shirt was long enough to cover (just barely) Wei Ying's lower regions. He sighed audibly to acknowledge Wei Ying's presence. The bedroom was pleasantly scented with sandalwood incense and Wei Ying's floral shampoo, and they were cocooned in a Shield-based spell to drive out any mosquitoes from their home.

“You know, Lan Zhan, I still find it hard to believe that Tián (甜) dajie is actually one of the Lan brothers' shijie (elder sister disciple). We didn't recognize each other when I walked into Tian Mi Mi .”

Lan Zhan flipped a page. “She was my elder brother's classmate and a few years older than him, so logically, both of you didn't become acquainted during our student days within the Cloud Recesses. Given the number of times you skipped class, and your lack of interest to learn about my clan, naturally you didn't get to meet every Lan clan-member,” he responded matter-of-factly.

"In addition, both of you used different names, so that complicated the situation," he added, and diligently underlined a particularly useful fact about undead snakes with an ink-brush. Wei Ying nearly wanted to lash out a stream of complaints about street brats and their ugly tastes in name-calling, but he held back his tongue when he realized how futile that would be (Lan Zhan still did not believe that a bunch of bratty kids could bring down the much-feared Yiling Patriarch; so they agreed to disagree on this particular circumstance).

Lan Zhan was barely acquainted with his elder brother's peers due to their different age groups, interests, and his natural tendency to keep to himself despite Xi Chen's persuasive "come, come, let's make new friends" to a tiny Wang Ji who often hid behind his brother's robes.

Tian shijie , whose actual family name is derived from Heaven (天; Tiān), was from an ordinary merchant family that ply the North-South trade routes along the Great Eastern Coast. Despite having such a prestigious family name, the family's fortunes did not fare as well and were forced to move with the passing seasons and migrating animals, growing and selling seasonal produce, milk and cheese, livestock meats, goatskins and other commodities. According to his uncle, they had stopped by Gusu nearly four decades ago when shijie 's father fell ill en route to the Yunnan hills to the South, and sought treatment from the Lan's family doctors. Master Lan Qiren did not elaborate on the details about the family, or the nature of the illness that afflicted the father, as Gusu Lan's rules dictate that one should not to pry too much into another's personal matters. One thing led to another, and the Tians were welcomed into the folds of the Lan family as peripheral members. Shijie was born shortly thereafter.

Lan Zhan further explained that the Tians had been operating mostly in the background due to their background as humble merchants and nomadic farmers; they shied away from disputes involving the cultivation world and political or military issues affecting the main Lan family branches, such as the Wens' invasion and the following inter-clan conflicts, sixteen years ago - again, another reason why Wei Ying had not heard of this family even when he was still living with his foster parents; and why Lan Zhan barely kept up with the Tians or with this shijie in particular.

Wei Ying had asked, how did Tian dajie know Lan Zhan and eventually figured out his voice from the single call? The older man pondered and tried to piece together his earlier memories. He surmised that she must have been part of the crowd that attended the ceremony in Nightless City led by Jin Guangshan sixteen years ago - the night when all hell broke loose when Wei Ying broke the Stygian Tiger Amulet and later, fell off the cliff to his death -, because that was one of the biggest inter-sect congregations known in the history of the cultivation world, and all Lan family branches had been requested to send representatives to attend that ceremony. Lan Zhan remarked that he would have shouted Wei Ying's name many times during the course of that unforgettable night (especially their final moments); Lan Zhan is adamant that any one would have easily remembered their faces and voices, and made the connection about their relationship. Wei Ying scoffed at the last sentence and hmms knowingly. He bent over their dressing table and busied himself by combing his unruly curls in front of a silver mirror.

Lan Zhan could no longer focus on the book, as he watched his lover groom himself while the latter's shirt rode up and exposed the springy ass. His fingers twitched with an innate desire to pinch and molest Wei Ying's smooth skin.

“And you say that the entire Tian family disappeared after the incident in Nightless City, and was never heard from again. Then, sixteen years later, I chanced upon Tian dajie as one of the owners of Yiling's biggest brothel, under a new family name that sounds alike her first one. I also found out, to the expense of my health and safety, that she and the other co-owners can magically transform into monsters when a tasty morsel like me walks into their sleazy dungeon, and tried to imprison me using familial means,” Wei Ying said, while applying night cream to his face (because all that walking around in Yiling under the hot sun was bad for his skin), and simultaneously tried to crack a witty joke about himself but failed miserably. Lan Zhan licked his lips when he caught a glimpse of balls between Wei Ying’s lovely tight thighs - he remembered his unfinished mission from the morning.

His nightly make-up ritual was completed, Wei Ying turned around, folded an arm and stroked his chin with the other, and he looked deep in thought without batting an eye to his partner. Lan Zhan inwardly whined with disappointment when the shirt fell back, and he mourned the loss of the tasty morsels from his line of sight.

“And then, you say that somehow, she found the mystical code for our house, calls and tells you that she’d found me in her establishment with vague details of how I landed there in the first place, or why she’s even working in a brothel. Also, she very convincingly tells you that she remembers the good ol’ days with you and your brother, and even happily congratulates you because she knows about our relationship... which makes me terribly suspicious, because I didn’t know her, you barely knew her back then, and there is no way she’d know about us living together now,” Wei Ying started to pace the room, and emphasized each finding with a wag of his forefinger to the air, at himself, then at Lan Zhan, before making a big circle for the both of them. Lan Zhan, on the other hand, had already put the book down, and he calmly placed both hands on his stomach - portraying a holy visage of a man in white pants lying in wait for his lover to come to bed - while scrutinizing how Wei Ying’s shirt accentuated the curves of his waist and hips as the younger man padded back and forth in front of him. Sexy Wei Ying literally slow-burns his golden core energy.

Wei Ying seemed ignorant of the other man's hungry gaze. "She asks for our house address, which you conveniently gave to her, and she uses the information to buy an expensive FeiEx ticket, for the purpose of sending me back together with baskets full of valuables and goodies as 'souvenirs from an old friend of Lan da ge ', which as we know, landed me in hot water," he raised his voice and gestured at the opened, half-read PeiNi's on their bed; Lan Zhan had come to friendly terms with the smutty contents because he quickly learnt that by disregarding the vulgar (and irrelevant) pictures of men and women groping others of the same sex, there were actually informative, scholarly articles and nuggets of wisdom to help enhance their sex lives, including drawn pictures and descriptions of sex positions to try, technical tips and recommendations on lubricants and other assistive tools used during sex, guides on relationships, dating and romance, questions and answers from other readers, and so much more.

When Wei Ying realized that Lan Zhan hadn't spoken for a while, he finally looked at his partner. "Lan Zhan, are you even listening?"

There was a hesitant pause. "Mn. What you've said... is factual and correct. There is no fault in your line of thought, however, as we've already discussed - I disagree with what you think of Tian shijie when you said that she turned into a monster along with the other owners of Tian Mi Mi . It's not possible for a human to do this unless with intervention from the dark cultivation arts, and I'm sure shijie is not one of those - otherwise, we would all be in the know. It's disrespectful to think of her that way, Wei Ying."

Wei Ying shrugged with his palms up and conceded. He didn't want to argue with Lan Zhan; he had enough for the day. "Yeah... maybe you're right. It was chaotic back then and I didn't feel well with the dizzying sights and smells of a seedy brothel. I might have seen something that wasn't there."

Lan Zhan nodded, pleased with Wei Ying's effort to reconcile their relationship, despite having different perspectives and opinions on certain subjects.

"But I still don't like her, though. She spells trouble," Wei Ying added.

"Touché."

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

When his hair was dry, Wei Ying turned off the lanterns and crawled to bed. It was just an hour before midnight, and both of them were, rightfully, exhausted from a very long day.

He lightly tapped on Lan Zhan's left forearm, and the older man automatically raised his hand. Wei Ying slid through, lay on the right side, and pillowed his head on the older man's shoulder. Lan Zhan lowered his hand and encased his lover in a loose embrace. Wei Ying took a deep breath and gratefully inhaled his partner's scents with happy nnnhs coming from the back of his throat - there is sandalwood everywhere, faint floral soap in the armpits, and the comforting natural body odours when his nose rubs against Lan Zhan's chest. He could feel faint thumps of a strong, steady heartbeat against his cheeks, when he shifted his body and rested his face on the pectorals. Lan Zhan tightened his grip, and Wei Ying felt the older man nuzzle into his hair and the occasionally craned his neck to reach down and nibble on the tip of his left ear.

Wei Ying couldn't sleep yet. His mind continued to buzz and process the day's events and mysteries, and a list of things to do for the coming days. Thanks to the generous gift of Magics 'R Us talismans, magical items and potions, he would not need to work on making new ones for a long while, and instead, he could rely on selling them (or using them up, whichever comes first). The twenty silvers in his undergarment pocket was unknowingly exchanged into twenty gold pieces , to the couple's delight (and suspicion). Together with the bountiful groceries and upgraded household goods, they could take things easier for the next few weeks. He would still continue the food delivery business - because customer relations need to be maintained -, but there was less urgency to take up new orders. His thoughts eventually circled around the beautiful Liang gu niang , the desire of every man of marriageable age, and at the back of mind, he wondered if he will have the chance to meet little Tian Tian again.

Lan Zhan seemed to be able to read his mind. "Wei Ying, I'll make the call to Liang's Teahouse tomorrow."

"Eh? Why? I can discuss and negotiate the payment terms and details of the order."

"I'll do the talking this time. From chef to chef."

Wei Ying sensed a hint of possessiveness sprinkled with a bit of jealousy. It was the older man's way of saying End Of Discussion, in a more subtle way.

“Sure, Lan Zhan. You’re the boss.”

“Mn.”

Notes for the Chapter:

Again, rushing this through because I'm kinda wrung dry from the drama and heavy plot involving females in my Happy Gay Wangxian story *laughs*

We're coming to the end of this arc, and I think we'll be done in another chapter, or two at most. More arcs to come, so stay tuned for more Wangxian sweetness!

By the way, after Chapter 15, I've added proper titles and included the timelines, so you can navigate through the fic chronologically - but I would still recommend going through the chapters sequentially because characters and plots elements are introduced in that order.

I love reading news about Xiao Zhan and Wang Yibo receiving awards, getting live-appearances and interviews, endorsing products ranging from female perfumes to handphones and detergent powder *lol*, performing new songs, and soon, they'll be starring in new dramas and movies. Their world has moved on, but MY LOVE FOR YOU ESPECIALLY YOUR WEI WUXIAN AND LAN WANG JI WILL ALWAYS BE ETERNAL !!! *fangirls, and screams BJYXSZD in the background*

Congratulations to the superstars Zhan Ge and Yibo didi, and I wish them more success, good health and happiness in the future!

Chapter 18

“Lan Zhan, what are we doing tomorrow? We don’t have any food delivery orders to fill, and I can take a break from selling stuff on Yiling’s streets... so... can I tag along for the snake hunt? Can I?” An invisible doggy tail wags excitedly, though given Wei Ying’s everlasting fear of canines, the said wagging tail would have to remain - invisible.

“Mn. First thing in the morning, I will cut some bamboo to weave a basket -” Lan Zhan has a list of things to do in his mind, meticulously arranged, planned, and sequenced chronologically - but high-spirited Wei Ying is all too happy to jump ahead.

“For the snake? You’re gonna find it, and put it into that basket, right? Right? Your baskets are strong enough to even hold a deer !” Wei Ying likes to rush in blindfolded and make wild guesses, and even more if all of them hit the targets - just like those archery events he used to participate during his younger days.

Lan Zhan nods sagely, and he appreciates Wei Ying’s praise about his basket-weaving skills. He’s strong enough to turn tough bamboo trunks into tools, while Wei Ying does not have the brawn but has the dexterity to make smaller, more delicate versions using smaller bamboo stems - these are quite hot commodities in the marketplace too, since housewives use them to carry their groceries, and teenage girls adore those that resemble cute purses and pouches to show-off to their friends while going on an all-girls shopping spree. “Catch it. Bring it to the other side of the ‘Mounds to hide it. Let it live in its natural habitat,” Lan Zhan completes Wei Ying’s answer, and gives a thoughtful pause. “Maybe I will take a few more bamboo from the clump... Wei Ying, will you help to make some traps and set them around the house to catch those squirrels? They’re becoming a nuisance.”

Building something with mechanical triggers and delicate moving parts is Wei Ying's forte, not his.

Wei Ying looked hyper-excited to be able to team up with his partner to do something useful, and it looks to be an exciting day ahead - one that does not involve having to work his ass off to earn a couple of silver pieces, alone . “Of course! We'll do all that, and then walk down the hill to Mian Mian's. Right? Right?”

“Ah... you know me too well, Lan Zhan,” and he scratches the back of his head and grins sheepishly, “I guess it feels like I'm finally taking a well-deserved vacation to visit our friends. Mian Mian said she'd show us her rice fields, and the chickens, ducks and goats in the barn, the next time we stop by. We could ask for some more vegetable seedlings, especially those chillies - they looked gorgeous last year with a bumper harvest. What do you think?” Again, that twinkle in those lively eyes.

The talk about farming and raising farm animals made Lan Zhan pause again. “Mn. And I would like to ask her husband about rearing chickens....” It's time for him to invest in a clock that wakes him up on time . “... and we should bring a gift for the family too.” He owes a lot to the ex-Lanling Jin clan-member. During last winter, when fierce snowstorms hit the ‘Mounds, decimated parts of their estate, and rendered their cave-home temporarily uninhabitable (because snow and water kept leaking through, and they hadn't completed the renovations back then), she was kind enough to let them stay at her home while her family moved south to live with her relatives. She said that since her family always moved out for the winter, so she had no qualms to let the couple house-sit and take care of the farm animals. For Lan Zhan, having a straw roof above their heads on snowy days, a warm blanket to cuddle in during blizzardy nights, and enough steaming hot food to last the crucial few icy-cold months - was a godsend. He makes it a point to always treat Mian Mian and her family well, and also gives his gratitude and thanks when he prays at Yiling's Merciful Goddess Guan Yin temple during the weekends, in conjunction with a visit to the bustling evening markets just a stone's throw away.

Lan Zhan thought about the surplus minced pork in the underground pantry. They've been preserved with marinades and spices, however there is still too much for consumption by two persons. "I can make some meat dumplings," he offered.

Wei Ying taps on his forehead, thinking. "Ah, I have some lucky charms left, and I saw many fruiting trees on my way out earlier today. I can put everything together to make a gift basket before you can say Alibaba! (阿里巴巴)" A wink and a bright smile.

"A.. ling.. de.. baba? (啊令的爸爸; A-Ling's father; reference to Chen Qing Ling :-))"

"Haha! It's just a saying from the Far West. I also want to show Mian Mian's daughter my latest composition; it's a cute and cheerful folk song from Yunmeng... but..." the young man pats his waist instinctively, although he wears nothing except a shirt while lounging on their bed and unconsciously rubs his naked thighs against Lan Zhan's - it drives the older man horny, but his golden core keeps it in check.

“... It is alright, Wei Ying. I’ll just take another piece of bamboo, and make a flute for you.” He knows Wei Ying is always delighted to see him carve out perfect tiny holes on a stick.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

He stared at the hypnotic rise and fall of broad, muscular chest muscles, but sleep evaded him. It didn’t help that Lan Zhan’s left arm - the one that currently embraced him - caressed the thin expanse of his back in increasingly wide circles. The older man’s hands were larger than his, with better muscle tone, stronger bony knuckles, and nicely calloused with daily use of household cleaning equipment, Bichen and in the near future, Liao’s Dustless Broom. Wei Ying sulked when he was reminded of how much bigger and better Lan Zhan was compared to him in almost every physical aspect; if Wei Ying was a narrow bean sprout that needed more nourishment, Lan Zhan would be freshly plucked snow peas - broader, with more defined beans (or muscles), worth a lot more per jin , and of course, tastier to the palate.

The older man was slightly taller, but his body frame filled out much better than Wei Ying’s; the younger man was essentially skinny, has less muscles, and if he stretched upwards, his ribs, shoulder blades, pelvis and other bony protrusions were agonizingly visible. Furthermore, the older man was well-endowed compared to Wei Ying; he'd measure Lan Zhan's penis with an Imperial Court's ruler (to rule out any inaccuracies), and found that his partner was always two inches longer and significantly thicker regardless of his arousal state. The only aspect where Wei Ying was superior to Lan Zhan was the amount of body hair, as evidenced by his hairier legs and the treasure trail that led to rich, dense curls in the groin, but he wasn't too keen on that kind of comparison.

Seemingly irritated, Wei Ying purposely reached out and tweaked the older man's left nipple in apparent revenge against the gods who bestowed all the goodies to his partner instead of him. Lan Zhan's lip twitched but he paid no attention, and instead, he focused on reading the last few pages. He was doing his homework to read up on the kinds of snakes they might encounter at Mian Mian's neighbouring gardens - whether living snakes or malevolent spiritual or undead ones -, and made adequate preparations beforehand. Wei Ying, on the other hand, lives to disturb the older man's routines, and nipple-tweaking was just one of the usual things he often did, because Lan Zhan's chests were obviously meatier, more visually attractive, and therefore, more prone to molestation by the younger man.

In response to the nipple attack, Lan Zhan's fingers crawled down Wei Ying's back and slithered into the butt crack, and the younger man nnnnhs when he lets an invading digit tickle the puckered entrance.

"Lan Zhan...." Wei Ying purred, not out of boredom (he should just go to sleep) or in need of attention (Lan Zhan is always on standby to respond to Wei Ying's wishes), but because he was wide awake (he had slept enough during the FeiEx flight) and just needed to do something (because... just because). He cupped the older man's pectorals, jiggled it and ran fingernails across it - for no particular reason other than the fact that those lovely muscles were the closest and most convenient thing to play with. Wei Ying squirmed and buried his head deeper into a cradle of armpits and biceps, and pouted. When he found no peace of mind in doing that, he restlessly sat up cross-legged next to Lan Zhan.

“Lan Wang Ji, Lan Er Gege, Han Guang Jun, Wang Ji Xiong... Lan Zhan, Lan Wang Ji, Lan Er Gege...” he started to chant his lover’s name in all manners of iterations - a habit he’d carried over from spending many nights with Lan Zhan at the silent, sterile Jingshi the summer before, and he still remembered rolling around on a giant study desk with nothing else to do, but to playfully annoy the older man and disrupt his routines all the time. Each time he chanted a name, he taps and slaps the pecs with both hands, and then drew circles and squares along the six-pack abs, and flicks the nipples in tandem. For a short while, Lan Zhan’s body became a guzheng (or a DJ’s turntable in modern times) for naughty Wei Ying.

The older man sighed and finally surrendered the unfinished book to the bedside drawer. The coast cleared, Wei Ying happily climbed on top of Lan Zhan, scooted his ass, and straddled his helpless partner at the hips. The latter gave a mixed stern and quizzical look that wordlessly asked, What do you want to play tonight, Wei Ying?

He lets his lovely Wei Ying freely do all sorts of precious, adorable things to him - the incessant smooching along the jawline, nibbling his earlobes and blowing hot air into his ears before sticking a wiggly wet tongue inside, then sucking on each other's mouths with sloppy wet kisses, making noisy mmmh sounds to exchange breathy moans, fingers raking and squeezing everywhere on his muscled torso, writhing and gyrating his nubile young body so that their hardening cocks rolled and rubbed together flesh-to-flesh. Wei Ying picks up his pace in desperation, hungry for Lan Zhan to reciprocate his seduction.

Lan Zhan, on the other hand, was infinitely patient throughout Wei Ying's ordeal to excite and pleasure his partner. He responds only when needed, such as returning the sweet kisses, and paying particular attention on the mole near Wei Ying's lower lip, because he is tempted to peck repeatedly on that irresistible-looking dot; running his fingers along the younger man's sides to encourage him to do more, yes mmm more ; pulling him closer so that despite losing the crotch-to-crotch contact, he could finally bring each of Wei Ying's nipple to his lips where he tenderly tasted, abused, kneaded and sucked feverishly, until they look like little puffed erect brown-pink nubs on the flat chest, and a tell-tale sexual flush is slowly spreading on the heated sweaty skin; and fondling, massaging and spreading his favourite set of springy ass (because his hands are wide enough to entirely cup each of the glutes with all five fingers; he has no trouble to extend a third finger through the inviting rosebud; and he hmmmms with a faint smile when he realizes that he could prod and probe rather easily, with no complaints from the owner whatsoever, the fleshy folds inside is satisfying pliable and soft, already generously slippery with warmed massage oil.

Mischievous Wei Ying had prepared himself during his bath, and now he is ready for a night of intensely hard fucking. Lan Zhan did promise to pay his debt of love-making - plus interest.

Instinctively, Lan Zhan feels his rock-hard penis twitch, a pearl of pre-cum oozing out, fuel being tossed into the raging fire that burned from deep within his loins.

(He licks his lips in anticipation.)

Wei Ying senses a change in the bedroom's atmosphere. He scoots downward along Lan Zhan's legs. Wei Ying maintains a coy look on his face, picks up one of Lan Zhan's hands and begins to lick and suck each thick digit suggestively, while stroking himself with a free hand. Lan Zhan's breathing becomes slightly erratic, his qi is deviating, as he treats himself to a sumptuous, visually-stimulating banquet of Wei Ying performing oral sex on his hand while the younger man masturbates vigorously and bounces on the older man's thighs.

Wei Ying moans sexily, as though he imagines self-sucking himself; his fisted palm tugs at his own throbbing cock in tandem with the speed of sucking Lan Zhan's fingers from base, through knuckle to fingertips.

"Mmm... it's all covered with my saliva," he murmurs with an alluring whisper, when he's done with all five digits - slightly reddened from the passionate sucking. He directs Lan Zhan's drool-coated hand to wrap around his own cock, and gently yanks the fisted grip up and down - Lan Zhan understands that Wei Ying wants him to stroke his own cock, mimicking the masturbatory act by the younger man just moments ago, and Lan Zhan willingly obliged. Soon, the older man strokes himself, intentionally slowly, and lets Wei Ying enjoy the sight of the older man's foreskin generously covering the weeping cockhead, before pulling back to fully expose the entire engorged purple-red glans, and Wei Ying takes the opportunity to dip his head to flirt the oozing slit with his tongue, like a shy maiden trying to cajole a lover with a game of hide-and-seek. Wei Ying even bashfully tucks his bangs and some errant strands of hair behind his ears, and this further excites Lan Zhan. The next time Lan Zhan pulls down his foreskin, already moistened and lubricated with Wei Ying's saliva, Wei Ying lowers his head again and give the twitching slit an endearing kiss of puckered lips. Another drop of clear, syrupy nectar dribbles out, which Wei Ying happily sucks up with little fits of giggles.

Lan Zhan strokes himself, but he doesn't want to cum just with his hands. Wei Ying seemed to read his mind, and leans forward to press his chest against the underside of Lan Zhan's twitching penis. He slides up and down, lathering liberal amounts of pre-cum over his nipples in tune with Lan Zhan's increasingly excited breathes.

"Ah, this big snake is biting my breasts! It's sucking me like a goat udder!" Wei Ying mocks, and nipple-fucks the cockslit. Lan Zhan groans at the incredulous display, and edges closer to climax. Wei Ying giggles and continues to pretend-play with the massive organ; Lan Zhan's erection is well over six inches, bulging with impressive girth, and lined abundantly with thick throbbing veins.

"Lan Zhan, at the wedding ceremony earlier today, I overheard someone saying that if you smear semen over the breasts, they'll grow larger," he coos and makes sure the snake-like member devours each of his nipple, as he alternates between each side of his chest. Lan Zhan could only respond with a pained moans of "shameless", "ridiculous" other accusational two-word iterations, because he was too busy trying to jerk his hips to relieve the surging pressure within his nether regions. Then, Wei Ying grips the pulsating arousal and slides it down to his navel.

"Lan Zhan, another person at the ceremony said that the belly button is the doorway to the womb. Ah, you bad boy, why are you violating it? Do you want to spray your seed in there? Ah, you're going to inseminate me! Such a naughty boy, I'm going to have many babies growing in my belly!" Wei Ying continued his loathsome incessant babble. Lan Zhan curses under his breath at the ludicrous thoughts, telling himself that Wei Ying was being nonsensical and he should be banned from joining such vulgar conversations during alcohol-infused wedding parties - however he also unwillingly enjoys plunging his spongy cockhead into the shallow, elastic dip on Wei Ying's waist, and brush and scrape the insides in an illusory attempt to dig in. Wei Ying reaches down to caress and gently squeeze Lan Zhan's scrotum, whispers sensuous the words of "mmmm fuck me, Lan Zhan, fuck me...", and the older man knows he wouldn't last much longer.

Wei Ying seizes the spasming rod just as Lan Zhan begins to shudder, arch his sweat-covered back, eyelids fluttering, mouth gaping. He teeters on the edge, fingers gripping the bed sheets, toes curled until they start to cramp, waiting for the impending climax that never came. He grunts out a cuss word when he realizes that Wei Ying managed to stop him in his tracks with an acutely firm grasp at the base of his cock. He growls Wei Ying's name in a dangerously low voice - but is unnerved when Wei Ying smiles sweetly in return, leans forward, and drags Lan Zhan's choked penis down a matted trail of hair from navel downwards to his lowermost regions, leaving strings of leaked pre-cum seeping through the bushy pubes. He pauses when the older man's cock pokes in between the testicles.

Wei Ying whispers into Lan Zhan's ear, "Lao gong , you found my eggs . Does your snake want to swallow them one by one?" he shakes the hot, heavy, and extremely agitated erection until it slaps each ball alternately with sticky sounds, like a swinging pendulum. "What happens if it swallows the eggs... oh, it could end up looking like a tanghulu... lao gong , do you want to eat my eggs and tanghulu?" the younger man continues to seduce Lan Zhan with depraved, perverse images; as if there wasn't enough pervading inside his lust-drunken mind. The older man moans and quakes his hips in a desperate attempt to rub anything to generate enough friction to shoot out his seed. The maddening pressure builds up inside his steel-hard cock, forming volleys of thick, heated seed ready to gush out in rapid-fire bursts, delicious tendrils of pleasure course through his spine, causing muscles all over his body to twist and convulse involuntarily.

The impulsive movements around his scrotum served to provoke Wei Ying into unleash another barrage of extremely lewd and utterly preposterous descriptions, “ Lao gong , do you know what happens if you ejaculate at my balls? Ah, you’re a bad husband, you’re raping my eggs! Your seed will vanquish mine, I will have to surrender in defeat! Lao gong , do you want to fill my eggs so badly with your seed? You’re a terrible man, what happens if you ejaculate and flood my eggs? I will have to become your sex-slave, and carry your seed inside these eggs! Ah lao gong, lao gong, stop attacking my eggs, your snake will devour them!” Wei Ying undulates his hips and lets Lan Zhan fuck along the folds of wrinkled skins of ballsacks and silky-smooth surfaces of the underside of his excited arousal. He makes sure to roll around the cockslit and the special spot underneath the glans, and makes sure Lan Zhan feels his testicles quiver and contract in delight.

Wei Ying finally releases his stranglehold on Lan Zhan’s madly-twitching penis. The older man heaves an agonizing, dying sigh, mutters a silent prayer to the Merciful Goddess Guan Yin, and explodes brilliantly until he could only see stars in a sea of blinding white.

Wei Ying giggles, laughs, hiccups, guffaws, coughs, and gleefully chokes when he accidentally inhales dollops of rich, warm creamy semen that dribbled from his nose down into his wide-open mouth. His body shakes and bounces on his lover’s thighs with pure mirth, he smells of his lover’s essence, and his entire upper torso, neck and face is covered with thick opaque-white streaks that launched and blasted through the air in an incredible aerial display of a six-way eruption. Some gracefully peaked and nosedived like a bombardment to the floor, a few splattered at the ceiling and started to drip on Wei Ying's hair and the bed sheets, and some forcefully shot into Wei Ying's nostrils, mouth and coated his eyes too. He looks totally debauched, caked with crusting, drying cum, but he is also a bundle of pure joy, happiness, recklessness and playfulness.

Lan Zhan is grateful that his manhood is still intact, and he is still trying to catch his breath after such an astonishing burst of exertion and qi release. He feels invigorated, and his cock is still hard.

There's still plenty to go around after two days of abstinence. His member twitches in agreement, and yearns for more.

Chapter 19

Lan Zhan lounges in the nude on the bed, his long untied hair falls freely and gracefully down his nape, with pillows propping his back, and he settles down for a comfortable read. As he flips through a PeiNi magazine under the soft glow of their bedside lantern, his thoughts linger on what (sexually exciting) activities will be in store for the remaining night. It is close to midnight, their home and surrounding courtyard and gardens are quiet, save for the sounds of chirping insects and the occasional frogs' mating calls.

He yawns, but knows he will not get a restful sleep immediately, especially with the pitter-patter footsteps of a fully-awake Wei Ying in their house; the little gremlin is surely up to no good, again .

As he turns to the centrespread and ogles at objectionable pictures of men having sex (ironically, he methodically checks off which positions he has tried, and mentally notes down those that he hasn't), he hopes his lover will let him off this time , and (in the name of Merciful Goddess Guan Yin, please) stick to their favourite sex position (honestly, he isn't too keen on trying new things at this late hour). He doesn't mind lying down and have Wei Ying ride him to climax after climax; at least he can get some sleep with minor interruptions of brief wakefulness when he orgasms, and he is easily lulled back to slumber while lovingly encased by Wei Ying's inner warmth and snugness.

Naked Wei Ying emerges from the dark with a tray of tea set, and a paper bag in hand. Oh no, he sighs inwardly, and his flaccid penis twitch-nods in agreement.

“Lan Zhan, here, have some chrysanthemum tea. Grandma Li advised that we should take more fluids, especially with the peak of summer approaching,” he says, as he places the tray on the bedside table and pours two cups from a jug. Lan Zhan daintily takes a cup, gives it a good sniff, and when he is quite sure it is plain tea (the fragrant floral smell wafts through the air; yes, it’s definitely chrysanthemum), he murmurs a word of thanks.

He feels thirsty after a bout of sex marathon earlier that evening, which consisted of (1.) a grand opening with a spectacular six-way ejaculatory fireworks display (the aftermath: Wei Ying cat-licked semen off his hands and face; a stunning blended imagery of cutesy plus eroticness), (2.) getting deep-throated (Lan Zhan was caught off-guard when Wei Ying purrs ‘nom-nom’ and swallows him in one go, and he pleasantly erupts not long after that), and (3.) a standard fare of Wei Ying going down on all fours like a kitten in heat, butt grinding against Lan Zhan’s groin, while egging the older man to mount him with seductive whispers of ‘take me’, ‘i’m yours’, ‘breed me’ and ‘impregnate me’ - and he generously indulged this young lover’s request by plowing that familiarly hot, tight passageway until he emptied himself several times in rapid succession, because horny, nubile Wei Ying knows how to continue milking him using clenching and gyrating ass muscles with such exquisite finesse; he lost count after his fifth climax, that night.

Lan Zhan gulps the tea appreciatively, and watches Wei Ying down a few. “Ahh, this tea is so good! I walked the streets of Yiling under the hot sun today, and I still feel dehydrated!” he cheerfully remarks with smacking lips. The older man hmms in agreement and is secretly pleased that Wei Ying takes care of himself even as he works hard to put food on their table.

Wei Ying sits down beside him, opens the paper bag and pours its content onto the mattress. An assortment of wooden objects roll out; they come in a variety of shapes including spheres, ovals and elongated forms; have plenty of curves and protrusions; and are very smooth to the touch - hallmarks of fine craftsmanship, unfortunately wasted on making such bizarre and meaningless sculptures. Some are as small as a thumb's tip, others are larger than a palm.

"I found this lying on the kitchen floor next to the trash bin , and I'm going to make a smart guess that you don't know what these are," he says with a rather serious tone of a teacher examining one of its students. He holds up a pear-shaped object and gives it a light shake.

Lan Zhan, feeling refreshed after the tea, sits cross-legged, and plucks the item from Wei Ying's grasp. He peers and scrutinizes it intently, before returning the object to the younger man. "It looks like a fruit carved from wood. This one's a pear, with a stem growing out of the wrong end," he answers, sensible and straightforward.

Wei Ying snorts and puts down his cup on the table's surface. He picks another, and gives a questioning look with a raised eyebrow.

Lan Zhan wasn't sure; the level of difficulty was ramped up and he hazards a rather reckless guess. "... A chicken drumstick? The trunk is distorted and swollen, or I could be wrong," he responds after some hard thinking.

Wei Ying cackles, and Lan Zhan starts to feel annoyed at playing the childish game without answers being revealed at the end. Next.

"... This one's clearly a cucumber or an eggplant. The tip is deformed, though. Whoever made this clearly has an eccentric taste in art and life." Lan Zhan states nonchalantly, and puts his own cup back to the tray, his thirst quenched.

The younger man keeps snickering. Another piece.

"... A string of... grapes? Or prayer beads. There's two of them, one is smaller, and the other has bigger beads... Wei Ying, why are you showing me these things from Tian Mi Mi? There's nothing good coming out from that establishment, and I planned to throw these ugly food replica when we've sorted through the baskets' contents," he complains, impatience evident on his face and his rising voice.

Wei Ying becomes bug-eyed, immediately grabs all the wooden objects and holds them dearly to his chest. He gives Lan Zhan a how-dare-you look. "Lan Zhan! These baobei s (babies; treasures) cost a bomb! They're worth at least a gold piece each!"

The older man could not possibly fathom the value judging from looks alone. So, he picks out the first item that was presented to his attention, from the bunch of others that Wei Ying cradled in his arms. "Wei Ying, we can get three fresh pears for the price of a silver piece at Zhu's stall, why would you want to keep an inedible wooden model of it in our house?" Lan Zhan asks - patient but stubborn -, and rolls the fruit-shaped piece in his palm. He is the voice of logic and reason (also economic sense) in their relationship, and he stands firm on his position. (at the back of his mind, he also thinks of the consequences of hoarding collectables or garbage in their tiny abode - doesn't Wei Ying realize who is actually doing the dusting and cleaning work at home?)

“Lan Zhan... why do you think it’s a pear?” Wei Ying questions in return, a mix of amusement, bewilderment and disbelief shining in his eyes.

There is an audibly silent “What?” from the older man’s scandalized facial expression. He starts re-analyzing the wooden sculpture in his hand and matches with all known objects he’s seen in his entire over-30 years in life. A minute of gear-spinning and database-crunching inside his head, and he still came up with the same answer. To the great His Eminence Han Guang Jun who has visited most of the Middle Kingdom, solved some of the greatest mysteries that afflicted the Grand Cultivation Council, and faced perilous dangerous and monsters both living and undead - it’s just a model of a pear carved from wood, with its stem sticking out on the wrong end of the fruit; clearly done in bad taste.

Lan Zhan gives his lover a knowing and smug smile, and shakes his head. I’m still right, you can’t make me say otherwise, it is what it is , his confident, wordless expression speaks volumes.

Lan Zhan’s smile turns into a frown and he raises his eyebrows in increasing frustration. It’s very rare that he gets his answers wrong... but Wei Ying has a valid point, he acquiesces, as he had been evaluating the thing visually thus far without validating his assumptions using his other senses. He gives it a good squeeze (it’s hard, like wood), sniffs it (smells like wood), shakes it (it’s solid wood), and at last, gives it a good thorough lick (doesn’t taste at all). He suspects it could have originated from an exotic hardwood - which may show subtle textures or aromas if examined closely enough - so he sucks on the pear's tip to extract any sort of information that his senses could gather.

Wei Ying finally breaks into a loud, obnoxious guffaw.

“Lan Wang Ji-ah (啊)-Lan Wang Ji, I really admire your scholarly wisdom and vast knowledge about the world, but this,” he points at the offending pear-shaped thing, and starts rolling all over the mattress like a madman, “is not a fruit. It’s the classic P-Cool (屁股; pigu ; buttocks) butt plug, which is an anal sex toy , and you’re sucking the tip that goes into a man’s ass ! AH HA HA HA HA!”

The older man stills for a full minute, and when realization and understanding dawns upon him, in the form of an angry tide of sheer disgust and embarrassment that colours his face into six shades of deep tomato-red, Wei Ying’s armful of sex toys was confiscated in a single furious sweep.

Poor Wei Ying was pelted with an assortment of sex toys as he rolled around the bed, then off the bed, thudded painfully onto the floor, and then continued rolling around the floor in circles - while laughing so heartily and uncontrollably until he nearly died of hicuppy suffocation and almost peed between his pantless legs.

Lan Wang Ji received an intensive crash-course on sex ed that night.

He learns about P-Cool's branded butt plugs (anything that looks like a fruit, such as the cursed pear), prostate massagers (the appalling-looking chicken drumstick), dildos (vegetables, including cucumbers and eggplants), and beads for the penis, nipples and also for the ass (the grapes - Lan Zhan refuses to associate them with any religious or prayer objects because there is absolutely nothing sacred about those beads).

Lan Zhan picks up a small bead and asks with a poker face, "How does this work? One cannot simply just place it on a part of the body and feel pleasurable."

Wei Ying laughs again, his voice hoarse after coughing-choking too much from the hysterical farce earlier. "Lan Zhan, how did you even rise up the ranks to become a Chief Cultivator?! Use your magic, of course!" he jokes light-heartedly, and shows the older man how it's done.

Wei Ying casts a generic Energy spell to imbue tiny quantities of qi into the wooden objects on the bed, and they take on a soft whitish glow. He expertly twirls, points, wags and circles his fingers, similar to how he handled the modified Water spell at the bath. The objects begin to vibrate, spin, roll and shake - mimicking the movements of excited living, breathing beings, ready to fulfil their mission.

Lan Zhan is all too familiar with the effects of an Energy spell, because Wei Ying's favourite Paperman spell is derived from the same class of magic. However, the sight of a handful of vibrating beads and worse, a dildo, inching towards his naked crotch in the tune of a constant droning, buzzing sound, is extremely unsettling.

He squirms away from the toys, but not before his fingers touched the edge of what looks like a slightly bent, cylindrical stick about the length of an outstretched palm. The stick was out of range when Wei Ying casted Energy, so it remained un-vibrating. He holds up the stick inquisitively, and had a gut feeling that it was the most harmless-looking object amongst the collection of sex toys. It was also pretty - there were some shallow bumps and delicate ornate patterns on its smooth surface; the other toys were plain and had no such decorative markings. He could probably like the stick a little more than the rest of its brethren.

"Ahh... Lan Zhan, give me that..." Wei Ying starts to reach for it.

He knows when Wei Ying wants to snatch something, so he instinctively pulls away with a petulant No! on his face.

"You... probably don't know how to use it anyway, and it doesn't have any... beneficial purpose..." Wei Ying's voice becomes hesitant, even shaky, as he valiantly tries to make a quick grab for the stick, which Lan Zhan deftly avoids.

The older man's stare hardens to a don't-you-dare. Wei Ying yields by withdrawing his hand to scratch the back of his head, feigning innocence.

"Explain." A single word and his voice booms .

Wei Ying stammers something incomprehensible.

" Wei Ying ." No more second chances. The younger man sighs in defeat.

Lan Wang Ji gets a side lesson about urethral sounding, and the secret of the bent stick is revealed in all its perverse and obscene glory. Physically, it feels comforting in his palm, because it resembles a tiny, deformed Bichen that could use a little more love, respect and recognition (he is partial to long, solid things, as opposed to short, rounded, squishy or lumpy ones). He grips the stick with a silent Mine! and holds it close to his chest endearingly.

Wei Ying swallows nervously and bites his lower lip.

Wei Wuxian has a few regrets in the past and current lifetime, and one of them is to try and outsmart Lan Wang Ji without thinking too far ahead of the possible consequences. What started as a ploy to humiliate the holier-than-thou man by enlightening him about the existence of sacreligious sex toys, and revel in a once-in-a-lifetime, exquisite selection of mortified looks, horrified gasps, simmering scowls or a pure, unadulterated crimson blush appearing on a deathly-pale face (he got the last one right, at least) - backfired, and he was now on the receiving end of the joke, and he was literally dying .

Lan Zhan used (and misused) the knowledge of such things , together with an unexpected awakening of his arsenal of Healer's spellcasting abilities, and Wei Ying was dying again, and again, everywhere in their bedchamber.

Lan Zhan had, with seemingly good intentions , ambushed Wei Ying with a medley of calming, relaxing and numbing spells that left the young man semi-paralyzed on the floor, and the latter was forced to watch his lover prepare, with painstaking care and detail, for another round of sex (which Wei Ying didn't really mind) that involves the toys (which Wei Ying really mind, because he was the victim in this case - oh poor Wei Ying!). Lan Zhan first casted Clean on all the toys to disinfect them, slathered their favourite massage oils, and with scholarly rigour, tested each one on (and in) the younger man (of note, the prostate massager felt really good with its vibrations, but Lan Zhan didn't want to feel lonely, so he rudely took it out and shoved in the anal beads instead).

During the seemingly sterile surgical procedure, Wei Ying caught glimpses of toys being used on him, dipped into him, then taken out, and switched with another. In the end, Lan Zhan was satisfied with having a string of large anal beads inside Wei Ying's ass, a dildo tied to the underside of Wei Ying's erection with the string of smaller beads, and horrors of all horrors, the young man had to stare at a bent stick sliding through his cockslit; he wanted to scream NO NO NO, but the Numb spell left his throat gurgling, and his penis simply twitched in discomfort at the unnatural strain and stretch of delicate muscles that threatened to tear (because all his nerve endings had been de-sensitized as well). Wei Ying didn't die at that time; he was caught between feeling terrified at getting hurt, and in a twisted way, very excited to try something sexually novel.

Then Lan Zhan casted a mild Dispel Magic to remove the Numb effects, and abruptly Energized the toys inside Wei Ying, and all hell broke loose.

Wei Ying thought he'd died and gone to heaven to meet Merciful Goddess Guan Yin to seek forgiveness for all the sins he'd ever committed, but he was dying again and again on Earth with excruciatingly mind-numbing and soul-sucking pleasure, that he would soon go mad.

Lan Wang Ji mmmms in satisfaction as sexy Wei Ying arches his back and bows his hips; the younger man's asshole sucks his dick along with the beads with inhuman muscular force, and succeeds to draw out another orgasm from the older man - again . Lan Zhan doesn't have much left, so only a couple of globs, probably diluted and rather clear in colour, pulse out weakly from his convulsing member. The rippling pleasurable waves that wash over his lower body still feels exceedingly good, though. Lan Zhan has taken a liking for the beads - the ones vibrating strongly inside the younger man; they roll around his arousal and provide added friction and pressure that spikes his lust like never before.

He only wanted to take a bit of revenge over the juvenile prank that Wei Ying (always) played on him - however, it seems Wei Ying has completely lost to the pleasure, as evidenced by eyes that roll back, slackened jaws that hold a drooling, lolling tongue, trembling limbs, quaking hips, incoherent speech and thought, and ah , the stick is sliding out when Wei Ying's penis quivers and squeezes repeatedly; so, he gently pushes it back in with his fingertip and Wei Ying nnnghs loudly with (probably) another dry orgasm coming from his (man- and mis-handled) prostate; clear sexual fluids are leaking generously from his stuffed pee hole but Lan Zhan makes sure to cast minute amounts of Numb into the younger man's nether regions to make sure that he doesn't ejaculate yet (because if Wei Ying goes soft, and then the party's over); and to mete out an additional punishment for being naughty, Lan Zhan tightens the vibrating dildo against Wei Ying's crazily-twitching dark-red cock, and elicits a prolonged, desperate uuuuunngh from the younger man.

Lan Zhan groans as his over-sensitive cock is again assaulted by delicious contractions and jiggling beads. He continues to fuck Wei Ying into the floor, hard and raw, missionary style; and when the younger man tires, he pulls him up and slams him from behind into the dressing table, his hands rake Wei Ying's chest and ribs to leave scratches and bruising fingerprints, and he generously bites and licks the sweaty shoulders and defenceless nape, because primal lust and burning pleasure drives his facial expressions to involuntary half-snarls, half-yawns, and half-grimaces and he needed to chew on something, and Wei Ying is the tastiest morsel in front of him; when the urge to plunge and rut into Wei Ying rises, he grasps the latter's slim waist, pushes him against one of the stony walls, grabs and lifts one of the thighs, and continues his relentless mating following a timeless rhythm, and he thrusts so deep, too deep, and he cums again into a flooded, sticky mess because there was already a bulging pool of warm seed inside Wei Ying's breed-worthy belly.

During the entire sex-crazed episode, Wei Ying continued to talk gibberish and moan unintelligible words, and Lan Zhan could only make out tasty high-pitched "ahhhn, uuuhn", "feels so good", throaty lustful "more, more, please more", "harder deeper faster", low growls of "fuck me until I die", and sobs of "I'm melting, I'm melting" and "I'm dying oh god I'm dying" in six different dialects, no less. Wei Ying couldn't ejaculate, couldn't reach his climax, because that accursed stick blocked all exits and Lan Zhan continuously weaves Numb spells into his lower body. Wei Ying's stiff, engorged cock fills up, his balls fluttering and quivering from being over-massaged by the shaking dildo, liquid pressure and lustful urges swelling inside him, driving him mad, and he humps anything - the floor, the wall, any surface, the thin air - and try futilely to gain enough traction to flick those pleasure spots and launch his orgasmic reflex, and to shoot far, far away to relieve the boiling heat in his loins - which never happened.

At one point, Wei Ying mewls and pleads “pee... I need to pee”, because he drank too much tea and his bladder was throbbing from being overstretched with liquid, and the string of large beads found their way up in his rectum and pushed-pounded hard against the bladder’s walls until the loss of muscle control was imminent. It doesn’t help that his vulnerable prostate was attacked with equal ruthlessness (every time a bead rolls over the walnut-sized lump, Wei Ying gasps and loses a breath, he loses a little more voluntary muscle control, while Lan Zhan gets a shockingly delightful squeeze and he pumps his hips deeper; from the sensations and shape, Lan Zhan could, with medical precision, gauge the condition of the delicate gland - it is probably swollen with unreleased fluids, inflamed from being lovingly pummeled for hours on end, and irritated because it throbs and itches from the inability to eject and satisfy its orgasmic reflex). Lan Zhan indulges in Wei Ying’s cries (he was nearly in tears then), and lifts and spread-eagles both of the latter’s legs while still embracing the younger man from the back, and his cock still gently drilling in and out of the angry-red rosebud crammed with both cockflesh and beads; there is abundant wet, squishy sounds of leaking massage oil and occasionally, dribbles of cum mixed with love juices, when Lan Zhan carries Wei Ying to the outdoor bath and walks to the center until he was knee-deep in the swirling thermal springwaters.

“Shhhhhh... let it go here, no one can see us in the dark... Shhhhhh...” he makes these familiar whispery sounds into Wei Ying’s ears and licks into the shells and suckles the fleshy earlobes; the younger man shudders, protests, struggles weakly, because he is absolutely aghast at such an embarrassing display in open air (although there is no one watching). Lan Zhan persists and with some physical effort, manages to hoist Wei Ying while one of his heated palms presses below the navel, and moves in circles . Wei Ying cries again, discomfort mounting to critical levels, muscles flexing in agonizingly painful-pleasurable ripples all over his groin as he tries with his life to pee - when the tip of the sounding stick finally peeks out (and he breathes a sigh of grateful relief; it feels like giving birth through the cock), Lan Zhan hmms thoughtfully, reaches out and pushes the slippery tip back into 'where it belongs', and Wei Ying wails . He starts swearing filthy words, calling his partner "a horrible husband", "a terrible monster", and "go to hell", then plenty of "you rapist", "you asshole" and "fuck you"; but Lan Zhan is used to Wei Ying's antics and simply enjoys sliding the stick in and out of the pee hole, while lovingly fucking the ass, one hand massaging the about-to-breach bladder, and the other found its way to caress and gently roll Wei Ying's scrotum (Lan Zhan is actually capable of mischief; he presses both heavy testicles against the vibrating dildo strapped onto their owner's cock, and Wei Ying almost shrieks ). At long last, after a few minutes of absolute torture, Lan Zhan relents and pulls out the slick, vibrating stick with a satisfyingly wet plop.

Lan Zhan whispers the Shhhhs again and again; Wei Ying finally surrenders, and lets loose.

At the last second, in a cruel, ironic twist, the older man grins in the dark (it is a profoundly bone-chilling evil grin - the most Lan Zhan can muster - but nobody can ever see), then commands the rest of the toys to burst into life with enthusiastically-twirling and tapping fingers, before stroking the madly-twitching arousal with fist-pumps, and polishing the swollen cockhead with a chokingly strong finger-grip - using inhuman lightning-quick speeds as used to make jiaozi s. Wei Ying's impending orgasm skyrockets , and his cock melts , figuratively speaking.

Wei Ying's plumbing is thoroughly abused. He pees forcefully, then ejaculates so hard that Lan Zhan could feel all pelvic muscles contract simultaneously (because his cock inside Wei Ying's ass is given the Greatest Massage Ever at that moment), and pees again because muscles were fluttering out of control, and soon, a frothy, semi-viscous mix squirts out in erratic, spectacular arches into the moonless night sky, which eventually fades to a duet of watery trickles and thick, wet splats into the bathwater. His keening howl, tormented sobbing, and shaky hiccups goes unnoticed, and Lan Zhan finally sets his young lover down to the ground, where he releases all the toys, tenderly strokes Wei Ying's sweat-matted hair, rubs soothing lines on the trembling back, and coos to the dying man, "Good boy, good boy."

It was getting cold and Lan Zhan didn't like to stay out in the chilly night. He bridal-carries an exhausted, sex-and-shame-flushed, softly weeping Wei Ying back to their home, and to their bed.

Lan Zhan is determined to show Wei Ying what their relationship looks like, in its purest form - without playing jokes and pranks on each other, without feelings of ego, arrogance and fear, without using fancy toys and spells, without any presumptions, mistrust and ulterior motives.

He makes sweet love to his Wei Ying one last time, that night.

The bedroom is quiet, tranquil, except for the sounds of bodies joining passionately in a mating-press, accompanied by shuddering moans and faint sighs, interspersed with whispers of words exchanged between lovers.

(The mating-press is depicted in PeiNi's centerspread, which Lan Zhan has not tried before but is extremely interested in. After this session, he makes sure to put a checkmark next to it; there are at least another ten other positions that he wants to try in the future.)

“Mmmm... lao gong, lao gong, lao gong ...” Wei Ying murmurs affectionately, eyes closed and body thrumming mildly with the last leg of his sexual qi energy, as Lan Zhan continues to pepper light smooches on the forehead, cheeks and then gently locks lips with his, their tongues tenderly slide, swirl, encircle, entice one another, evoking feelings of warmth, of being loved and giving love, of being intimate and intertwining with a soulmate until two bodies meld into one - the same way as Lan Zhan lovingly pumps his hips with long, deeply satisfying downward strokes into Wei Ying’s sweet, drenched hole, then moves in toe-curlingly good circles so that every fleshy fold, every nook and cranny, every hidden corner is tenderly stretched and massaged by the hard, massive and throbbing arousal in the tempo of heavy balls slapping gently against the glutes. The couple embrace each other on the bed with such intoxicating closeness and with so much skin-to-skin contact, that they could feel their breaths on one another in the same way as they could with each other’s heartbeats.

Lan Zhan reciprocates Wei Ying by lavishing sweet words into his lover’s ears that sends Wei Ying’s heart soaring to breathtaking heights. He tells Wei Ying that he’s the only one for him, that he is the most beautiful and graceful, the most desirable and the only one he needs, that his love for him is eternal in this lifetime and by god’s grace, in all other lifetimes as well, and that he truly loves the man named Wei Wuxian and no other. He grunts with pleasure and slides his cock as deep as he can with each incantation of love, and restrains his climax as much as possible. Wei Ying mewls and bends his flexible body a little more until his legs could hook around Lan Zhan’s neck, giving full penetration access to the older man into his deepest recesses.

“Lao gong, lao gong ... if you say you love me so much, then swear upon your words by writing it out with our lovemaking,” Wei Ying says with a wink and a smile that makes his eyes crinkle.

Lan Zhan gaze becomes unfocused, because he is trying hard to figure out what his lover means, and because Wei Ying suddenly moved his ass in a cock-squeezingly pleasurable square movement, and his twitching member brushed and slid in all four directions against Wei Ying's slick, cushioned walls. "For example, this is 'mouth' (口)", followed by, "... and this is 'rice' (米)." Lan Zhan's plump testicles pull up with sudden excitement and he nearly ejaculated when his heated, pulsating cock and the entire crotch grinds in six different directions against Wei Ying's inviting ass; the exquisite friction and pleasure is nearly too much to bear.

Lan Zhan had to steady himself for the task at hand. Wei Ying waits with an expectant, but fond smile. He takes a deep breath and starts to move his hips to write Wei Ying's courtesy name (魏无羡). Truthfully, Wei Ying's ass-writing was quite messy and sloppy, and Lan Zhan aims to perform his best to convince Wei Ying that his written word is as good as the love from their joined bodies. His movements are extremely three-dimensional, dynamic in shifts of force, widths and depths, and mirrors the powerful strokes of calligraphy masters of the Middle Kingdom.

He trembles at the brink when he is done; his cock aches and springs painfully against its warm, fleshy prison, denied of release despite being ready to unleash a torrent of hot seed freshly made during their passionate lovemaking for the past hour. He pants heavily, and his whole chest flushes red with sexual excitement.

Wei Ying kisses Lan Zhan's lips, "Mmmm.. lao gong , you wrote my name first, and you wrote it correctly. Next..."

Lan Zhan grunts and heaves forward. He summons the remaining strength from his tired, quaking limbs to write his name (蓝忘机) using his hips. At the last word, when he makes an impassioned downstroke with a cock that was fast melting as orgasm closes in, he suddenly stills. His mind blanks, his breath hitches, his entire body seizes and convulses; a powerful shiver rips through the spine, crests over and spread like wildfire into the heavy loins in rippling, rhythmic contractions, and he finally falters with a dramatic HNNNGH.

“AH HA HA HA HA...Lan Wang Ji-ah (啊)-Lan Wang Ji, how old are you? You cannot even write your name! Ahh... ah... my stomach hurts from laughing, my butt is sore, I’m so sleepy...” Wei Ying lay quaking and curled on the bed, rambling and giggling almost nonsensically, then yawned, before resuming another fit of tired giggling. He let out a rude fart in the midst of the body-shaking laughter, and he started to roll over and guffaw across pillows strewn haphazardly on the bed.

“HA HA HA HA HA... look what you’ve done, Lan Wang Ji, tonight you fucked me so hard and for so long, I have become loose,” another rude sound erupted from the ass, and Wei Ying nearly suffocates again that night because he couldn’t catch his breath anymore, “Ah, you’re a bad husband! Your wife is now ‘damaged goods’ because you used too much force, so you have to take care of me for the rest of this life... HA HA HA HA HA!”

Lan Zhan stares at his lover with an ever-stoic expression; there is infinite patience and love in his heart for his Wei Ying. He is used to his lover’s annoying, naughty, vulgar, and sometimes distasteful behaviours - but it is what makes Wei Ying the person he cherishes most, the person he’d sworn to protect and love, and the person who will stay by his side for this and many lifetimes to come.

Precious seed trickles from Wei Ying's inundated, twitching and exposed asshole, and Lan Zhan contemplates his next move. It is a little after two in the morning, and they really should get some rest because they have a snake-catching mission the next day. He tries his best to wipe the bedsheets with a small ragcloth from the bedside table, and rearranges the pillows so that giggly Wei Ying lies comfortably on his side of the bed with a pillow under his head, and a few more cuddled against his chest; Wei Ying likes to curl up and hoard the pillows during sleep (he still rolls a bit in his laughter, but Lan Zhan easily and gently puts him back to one of his favourite sleeping positions - lying on the side). Then, when he is sure he'd done everything he could, he turns off the bedroom lanterns and crawls to bed.

He embraces Wei Ying from the back and spoons the now-quivering Wei Ying, who manages to muffle his mirth into a pillow. Their bodies are a bit sticky from sweat and other love juices, but Lan Zhan is sure that the chilled night air seeping through the window will cool and comfort them. He easily slides his half-limp cock into the well-lubricated and stretched hole, and by tightening his embrace on Wei Ying's waist and locking his groin hard against the springy ass, he is sure that his seed will stay warmed and soak inside his lovely Wei Ying until sunrise.

Lan Zhan starts to hum some old Gusu lullabies, and eventually lulls both of them to a peaceful, well-deserved slumber.

Three whistles sounded; distorted, resentful, with evil intent.

The bedroom becomes misty and murky as a swarm of malevolent black-coloured ghosts and crimson-red bloodthirsty spirits circle the air, while more continue to pour through the open window. The bodiless forms seep into furniture and every object, and through the body of a naked sleeping man on the bed. He squirms and frowns as though he is having a nightmare, but he doesn't move from his coffin-like sleeping position.

Yiling Patriarch Wei Wuxian leans down until his face nearly touches Lan Zhan's neck. He gives it a lick with a saliva-coated tentacle-like tongue, and a poisonous purplish bruise appears on the skin where it touched, near the older man's Adam's apple. Lan Zhan coughs lightly and wheezes, still trapped in his dreams, and the bruise spreads in vein-like patterns down the shoulders and fans out to the entire upper body.

Wei Wuxian's eyes glow red; his hair has grown longer and falls unfurling upon the older man's body, like spilled black ink over pure white snow. He follows the purplish-black veins, smells the sweet scent of a healthy man that was slowly being poisoned, and when the vein-like patterns reach the heart, they congeal into a living, quivering mass of dark hues under the pale skin. He observes the rise and fall of the sleeping man's chest and his smile twists into a sneer. Lan Zhan begins to sweat and murmurs deliriously in his restless slumber.

Wei Wuxian chants something extremely forbidden and evil, so corrupted and warped in its meaning that any Living being cannot comprehend what is said. Black wisps emerge from almost every inch of Lan Zhan's body, and Wei Wuxian inhales them through his mouth and nostrils. He licks his lips, apparently enjoying the taste and having his appetite sated, for the moment.

He kneels between Lan Zhan's legs and spreads them with ease; there is no resistance nor response from the still-sleeping man. He lightly rakes the inner thighs with his long, claw-like black fingernails, and the same bruising colour appears in their wake - the scratch marks grow and spread along the blood capillaries and flow into the older man's genital area. Lan Zhan moans and raises his hips; his body is reacting to very sexually disturbing dreams.

Wei Wuxian takes out and holds his own arousal - hard, wanting, throbbing, moist and alive ; it looks inhuman , monstrous, with grotesque and writhing parts and protuberances that growl and hiss. He presses the tip - a living, breathing head of a demonic creature - at the entrance, and savours the sensations of opening up the defenceless ring of muscle.

At the same time, he bends down and puts soft kisses on Lan Zhan's darkening chest, close to where his heart is - now covered by the swirling dark clouds that crawl and slither beneath the skin. The skin easily peels open on its own, without blood and without pain. Parts of flesh, muscles and bones seem to dissipate into the gathering dark masses that infect the entire upper body, revealing a radiant, shiny golden core.

He plans to have a taste of it.

Notes for the Chapter:

That's it for this arc. I'm totally drained for now, but I really had fun writing this long chapter of smut and the evil twist at the end.

My Zhan Ge fangirlism continues to wobble with glee every time I read news about his latest performances and songs. Go Xiao Zhan Go! And I'm so grateful to the BJYX fans who continue to keep the flame alive by making really awesome videos and pictures at every opportunity.

I'm hope to catch the year end gala when we can (maybe??!!) see Zhan Ge stand on the same stage as Yibo didi. Hooray!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Like clockwork, Lan Zhan wakes up drowsily to find Wei Ying lying face up, and diagonally across the bed, with his springy rear resting atop Lan Zhan's crotch. There are a few snores, and he notices the younger man's toes wiggle (one of Wei Ying's legs carelessly lounges on his shoulder, while the sloppy young man's head is hopefully not breathing against Lan Zhan's foot) in sync with the twitches of the owner's cock - it stands proudly from a nest of pubes, beautifully lit by silver moonlight that filters through the curtained window, slightly curved in shape, and unsurprisingly, dribbling pre-cum in its excited state. Lan Zhan lets out an involuntary moan as the base of a vibrating prostate massager inside Wei Ying's rear buzzes pleasantly against his own rigid arousal; he nnnnghs when Wei Ying gyrates his hips in lazy circles and catches that same rigid arousal in the butt crack. The captive penis is soon wiping circles against a vibrating sex toy.

Lan Zhan is close to cumming, but he doesn't want to waste his seed on the exterior of his lover's silky smooth ass, at the same time, he doesn't want to pull out the toy either. (They've been experimenting with the toys lately, and he knows that Wei Ying gets plenty of wet dreams when things are stuffed into his bottom; the sight of rich, gooey cum spurting gently from a sputtering cockslit, trickling its way through the tuft of curly pubes and downhill to the dip of a shallow navel where it forms a milky, viscous pool; while the owner moans, thrashes on the bed and sometimes jerks his hips upwards in an illusory attempt for fuck something in his dreams - is impossible to resist. Lan Zhan succumbs to the temptation and laps at the offered liquidy sticky banquet, without Wei Ying's knowledge [it is willingly offered , so there is no need to ask for permission, Lan Zhan reasons]. Wei Ying thinks that inserting beads, butt plugs or prostate massagers and leaving them inside makes him feel “lighter and so much more refreshed” in the mornings due to some kind of “mechanical stretching and massaging that helps to circulate the Male qi flows and counter-flows [pure nonsense, really]; Lan Zhan doesn’t tell him that at precisely 10 o’ clock at [every] night, he quietly Energizes the toys inside a snoring Wei Ying.)

The older man sighs and slides off from beneath his lover. Alone, Wei Ying starts to squirm and hnnngs on the bedsheets as the toy starts to dance and spin wildly inside his rectum; hitting all the good spots on his quivering, swollen prostate. The base of the toy has a long, curled stem which presses deeply on the perineum, giving the abused gland more torture than it deserves. Wei Ying sweats as much as his heart begins to race while being imprisoned by an extremely pleasurable wet dream.

Lan Zhan stifles a yawn, returns with a jug of water and a couple of cups, and places them on the bedside table. He sits on the bedside and strokes his dick languidly so that he doesn't lose his hard-on, while observing his lover continue to pump his hips into the empty air. The droning buzz from the prostate massager is comforting; no longer a nuisance in the nights.

He admires how Wei Ying can easily ascend towards climax without any physical contact on his wildly-twitching leaking penis. When Wei Ying’s pelvis starts to convulse uncontrollably and a low, muted keening “ahhhnn” escapes from his throat, Lan Zhan moves in to properly spread his lover’s legs and kneels between them. He grasps the shuddering cock to keep it still. His other hand waves an intricate pattern, and a urethral sounding rod sloooooowly peeks out from the fluttering cockslit, which was already nicely coloured in a shade of angry-purple-red due to the prolonged invasion of a foreign object. The silver-white rod grows longer, and extends a few inches out from the tip of the erection.

(P-Cool's latest models of sounding instruments are made of high-quality, medical-grade metal - not wood. They have a variety of functions, which can be accessed, commanded and executed with tiny amounts of Energy spells. Lan Zhan is already accustomed with movement-related functions, such as vibrating, spinning and sliding. Just a few nights ago, he discovered a set of next-tier functions when he increased his Energy outflow into the rod - such as the ability to extend both edges, to hollow out into a tube, and much more.

To Lan Zhan's pleasant surprise, when he tried to extend the edge that goes into the urethra and eventually to the prostate [yes, it can grow that long], the rounded tip unravelled beautifully into multiple fine hair-like extensions, like a blooming flower. He recalled seeing a diagram from a book on human anatomy from Yiling's Library Pavilion, and he thought the way the hair-like extensions unfurled looked similar to a cross-section of the prostate gland and its surrounding areas - including ducts, delicate tubules, vesicles and all.)

Lan Zhan bends down, then wraps his lips around the extended edge. Another twirl of fingers, and the rod hollows into a tube. He sucks and enjoys a light midnight snack of fresh unejaculated milky-white seed, direct from source.

(It doesn't have any of the typical bitter or pungent odours, and actually tastes rejuvenating, faintly sweet, full of Wei Ying-flavoured proteins.)

Wei Ying groans desperately in his sleep, as his sexy dreams become increasingly twisted and distressing. The massager continues to stimulate his tired prostate, forcing it to contract and squeeze out its remaining juices into the straw-like tool. He experiences several consecutive dry orgasms in a matter of minutes, to Lan Zhan's delighted palate.

Lan Zhan does not stop massaging his lover's testicles, and continues to caress and lightly squeeze the springy glutes and inner thighs, just as how a youngling goat sucks and coaxes its mother's udders for more, please give me some more .

Having thoroughly drained a shuddering Wei Ying, Lan Zhan decides to deactivate the sounding rod-turned-tube. Suddenly, just as his fingertips touched the metallic surface, he involuntarily burps (because he swallowed excess air bubbles while enjoying the exquisite beverage), and accidentally channels extra qi into the instrument.

He watches, mesmerized, as he hears soft whirr from within Wei Ying's groin, followed by agonizingly pleasurable cries of "ah, ah, ahhhn" and muscle spasms ripple and undulate erotically across the young man's pelvic region.

Lan Zhan successfully activates the instrument's Level Three functions (as advertised, but never attempted, until now). Fine, microscopic hair-like extensions penetrate and violate every structure, duct, tube and vesicles around the shriveled prostate, and tiny electrical currents run through them in quick, rhythmic bursts. Wei Ying's breath hitches, his entire lower body seizes, sweaty ass clenches, and after a few seconds of toe-curlingly powerful quaking muscle cramps, a droplet of clear fluid finally emerges from the tip of the tube. Lan Zhan darts his tongue to sample the divinely nectar.

Mmmmm, crystal-pure, seedless, one hundred percent intensely Wei Ying-flavoured essence , he concluded. He postpones his plans to switch off the instrument, and instead, opts to extract a few more precious drops from lovely Wei Ying.

Wei Ying, on the other hand, experiences nightmares of having frenzied sex while desperately wanting to pee and trying to give birth to baby Wang Jis via his cock, then getting electrocuted by raging lightning storms straight into his loins. He never really achieved any ejaculatory release.

Lan Zhan is absolutely certain that there is nothing left inside Wei Ying. He inhales, sucks and hollows his cheeks through the straw-like tube, and comes up empty.

The tasty episode left him tremendously turned on, and in a heated moment of sleep-deprived lapse of (rational) judgement, driven by primal, lustful instincts to dominate and breed his young lover, he strokes his cock furiously until he feels the onset of an incredible orgasm. Then, he growls when he is momentarily overpowered by a streak of possessiveness (my Wei Ying, mine, all mine...), and sticks the open end of the tube into his twitching cockslit. Lan Zhan arches his back and groans loudly as he rides his climax and ejaculates to his heart's content. He continues to rub the pliant foreskin along his twitching member, until every single last drop is milked out and oozes into the tube.

Lan Zhan makes sure to extend and retract the finer parts at the other end of the tube repeatedly - pushing, mixing and stirring as much of his warm, thick seed deep, deep into Wei Ying. After finally pulling out the sounding rod and switching off the vibrating prostate massager, he generously kneads Wei Ying's stiff, over-sensitive penis from tip to the base . The older man diligently massages every bit of his still-warm semen through the abused stretched urethra, and onward into their new home . (It's like squeezing out toothpaste, but in the wrong direction.)

Wei Ying shivers and goosebumps all over from the uncomfortable sensations of being violated and forcefully filled. He dreams of baby Wang Jis crawling and diving into his bulging, stuffed genitals.

Shortly before one in the morning, Lan Zhan drifts into slumber, cradling a squirming Wei Ying in his arms. He also dreams, with very kinky images of sperm cells (as seen illustrated in medical textbooks) swimming through the aforementioned cross-section of the prostate, and towards a set of testicles. He wishes, as impossible as it may sound, that his virile seed will find Wei Ying's prized defenceless eggs and fertilize them soon.

4:30 am

On generally good days, and his intuition tells him that today is one of such days - Lan Zhan wakes up a little earlier than usual, feeling a little more refreshed than the norm, stretches and yawns a little to get the blood flow going, his eyes open a little, and he's greeted by a mass of sweet-scented sleep-messed unruly hair. Wei Ying slept soundly in Lan Zhan's embrace; Lan Zhan lies on his back, while Wei Ying snuggles into his neck while lying atop his broad, well-muscled chest. He is reminded of the first night they slept together shortly after Wei Ying's return to the world of living.

He spends a minute watching his young lover rise and fall with his deep breathing, like a delicate leaf floating upon the ocean's waves; in terms of bodyweight, Wei Ying is a feather compared to the other things he'd carried before, and with only one hand - coffins and corpses, stone statues, bundles of firewood heavy enough to crush an average person, and so on.

Lovely Wei Ying has been unusually obedient since midnight, and hardly changed sleeping positions at all - probably the young man was too occupied with the discomfort churning inside his genitals.

Out of habit and due to an urgent ache in the bladder, Lan Zhan slips away into the dark and relieves himself in the outdoor bath (which is conveniently connected to their bedchamber), before tip-toeing back to the bedroom. He drinks another cup of water and feels revitalized in the silence of their home; even the chirping insects have gone to rest. He smiles imperceptibly when his gaze lands on Wei Ying's raised ass - his lover lay prone on the bed with all four limbs tucked under the body; like a little ball of kitten trying to keep itself warm. His cock twitches fondly in agreement.

Lan Zhan carefully approaches the slumbering form, and pulls out the prostate massager with a squishy pop (he is pleased with the results of a night-long stretch - the succulent rosebud looks inviting, moist and deliciously supple). He crawls on top of Wei Ying, his limbs encircle the smaller man in an intimate embrace from the top, and proceeds to mount him with a well-lubricated erection (he silently thanks another small bottle of massage oil, sacrificed for this morning's conquest). He nuzzles into Wei Ying's neck and dives for the nape. He uses his nose to part the long uncombed hair, until the tip of his nose bumps into a patch of exposed warm skin, and he inhales deeply a breath of earthy, musky, and homely Wei Ying. He peppers light kisses, and lets his teeth graze on old bite marks left from previous wild lovemaking sessions.

His hips busy with clumsy attempts to insert his heavy, excited arousal, dripping with pre-cum, into Wei Ying's entrance; maneuvering without looking, and relying solely on his sense of touch. At the first plunge, he slips past the tantalizing target, and Wei Ying mmmhs at a twitching cock slapping against his butt crack. A little to the left. Lan Zhan tries again and presses down blindly, greedily, but his glistening cock slides at an off-angle and is too slippery, and pokes at one of the glutes instead; Wei Ying hnnhs unconsciously in his sleep. A little more to the right, please. Increasingly frustrated and needy of friction, Lan Zhan decides take his time; he prods along the exposed anal cleft, inch by inch, until he finally finds the coveted ring of muscles. Wei Ying aaaahs as though he celebrates Lan Zhan's victory as well; Lan Zhan gently pries open the entrance with the bulbous head of his cock and slips into welcoming warmth and rows upon rows of tight fleshy folds, until he is fully sheathed inside his lover. Wei Ying is fully relaxed (after a night with the massager), and happily moans when Lan Zhan drills into him at a slow, unhurried pace, typical of pre-dawn lovemaking that the couple knows very well.

Lan Zhan makes sure to plant at least two rich, full loads deep inside Wei Ying to warm up the younger man's tummy - his first gift to his love for the day.

When Wei Ying nnnnhs audibly and signals that he also needs to find release, Lan Zhan turns him around and continues to fuck him, missionary style. He watches, hypnotized, at how his erect and lively member continues to slide in and out with moist squishy and frothy sounds, covered with his creamy seed and his lover's juicy fluids. He proceeds to jack off a mewling, floundering, still-sleeping Wei Ying, and the latter, at long last, squirts out abundant shots of whitish gel-like volleys high into the air. Lan Zhan was a little disappointed at the spillage - because that was his seed being flung recklessly away - and tried to scoop up with his fingers as much as he can from the bed sheets, pillows and all over Wei Ying's trembling body. He deposits them into Wei Ying's half-gaping mouth, and instinctively, the younger man swallows appreciatively with cat-licks. Lan Zhan becomes aroused again, and eventually works towards his third orgasm inside his lovely Wei Ying.

(Later, Wei Ying would complain that there's a strange, but not unpleasant nor unfamiliar, taste in his palate.)

Shortly after half-past five, Lan Zhan dons his garments - a simple attire of a white top (modified from one of his old Gusu Lan robes), and a pair of dark brown trousers (because he plans to take a walk around the gardens, and the path may be a bit dusty or muddy), combs and ties his hair, and takes a final look at the silver mirror to check himself out - he hnnns in satisfaction when everything is prim and proper, without a single strand of or a button out of place.

Before he leaves the bedroom, he leans over the bed and gives Wei Ying a sweet "good morning" kiss. Wei Ying mmmhs with a precious, shy smile, and snores away.

The laundry is done and the laundry line is full of hanging clothes, robes, washcloths, towels, bedsheets and underwear too. (Lan Zhan managed to lift Wei Ying's prone sleeping form with one hand, changed the bedsheets with the other, gently placed his lover back on the bed and tuck him under a fresh blanket without any problems). The sun has just risen into a glorious golden-hued sky with little cloud cover, and it looks to be a sunny, bright day ahead.

Dustless Broom made cleaning breezy and effortless; the floor looks exceptionally spotless, shiny and waxed, the furniture dusted and stainless; and it feels comfortable and safe to walk barefoot inside the cave-home. The courtyard still needs to be swept using a traditional straw broom (because of larger debris such as twigs, dried leaves and pebbles); Lan Zhan has this in his daily to-do list.

A Magics 'R Us modified Water talisman makes a gardener's life so much easier. Lan Zhan only needs to channel a tiny amount of qi, then snap his fingers, and tiny waterspouts appear to draw water from the lotus pond and sprinkle their vegetables and fruit trees. He twirls his fingers, clockwise, to dial up the volume of water, especially for the water-hungry trees, and spins his index finger in an anti-clockwise direction to give the chilli plants a lighter shower. Mian Mian's chilli seedlings grew very well, and Lan Zhan suspects the mineral-rich waters from the pond enhanced their development; it usually takes a few seasons for the plants to reach maturity and grow chillies, however their crop is unusually healthy, reaches waist-level heights within a few weeks, and starts fruiting within the same season. It will be a bumper harvest for the Lan's, and Wei Ying will be happy with more home-cooked chilli dishes.

He also feeds and changes the drinking water for their farm animals at the chicken coop. A kind-hearted farmer gave him surplus bags of grains when he purchased some wheat and corn in Huang village, after he briefly shared his story of trying to raise a family of chickens (the farmer does not speak much and seemed a little aloof at first glance; Lan Zhan finds an instant connection to people of similar character - he only needs to say a few words, and a fruitful conversation and friendship is born among introverts). The chickens love the grains, and have learnt to recognize Lan Zhan as their favourite owner; the hens crowd around Lan Zhan's legs the moment he enters the fenced compound with a bowl of their favourite meal. Lan Zhan also carried a bundle of wildgrasses and other natural vegetation cut from a neighbouring swathe of lush green meadows and pastures (actually, he just stands on a rocky outcrop overlooking their vast estate, ties an open sack to Bichen's hilt, and sends the blade flying through the hills and valleys. With his high mastery of cultivation, he is able to remotely control the blade, and it easily slashes and mow through the fields with lethal efficiency; the cut grass collects into the open sack, and Bichen returns with a full harvest. Lan Zhan credits Wei Ying for this ingenious use of the ivory-white sword). The skittish domesticated wild rabbits are well fed with the grass, and their diet is supplemented with fruits and other seasonal vegetables from their garden; the chickens take their fair share as well.

Breakfast is a big bubbling pot of meaty pork ribs simmering in a richly-flavoured broth of herbs and spices. Wei Ying picked up the recipe from one of Hu's customers while making a delivery of meat dumplings; he'd wander around the teahouse and try to be friendly with those who didn't mind sharing a jar of wine with him (and Hu laoban doesn't mind, because a chatty charming Wei Ying attracts more business for the establishment at no extra cost). That customer spoke at length about his hometown from Fujian, a province south of Gusu, and he talked a lot about life in lively coastal cities. The required ingredients were easily available, especially from the farmers' markets in Huang village where trade in common and exotic herbs and spices with Silk Road merchants is widespread.

Lan Zhan notes that the pork ribs needed to stew for another hour, so he starts cooking the rice, and prepares a plate of simple stir-fried fresh greens, tofu, mushrooms, and some fried dough sticks to accompany the mouth-watering porky-flavoured broth. He does not forget to lightly roast a few handfuls of mixed nuts and seeds on a hot pan; Wei Ying loves to snack on crunchy food later during the day, and Lan Zhan insists on healthier choices - he includes a generous serving of pumpkin seeds with known beneficial properties for prostate health.

It is a relatively free day for the couple - today is Wei Ying's twice-a-week 'home improvement project' day, so he will stay at home during the daytime (and hopefully, start clearing out their increasingly-crowded workroom - something that the younger man procrastinates a lot). Lan Zhan calculates the contents in the pantry, and knows they have enough groceries and provisions. There is no need to forage, harvest or shop for more, at least for a few days. A bag of medicinal candies lie at a corner of the kitchen, waiting to be delivered to Grandma Li's clinic after the weekend.

He's completed his morning reading of thought-provoking philosophical texts, magazines on cultivation and agriculture, and the week's printed periodical containing news from the local province and beyond. He takes note about: the upcoming mayoral election (he thinks he'll place his vote for the current Mayor, because he is somewhat indebted to the politician for letting them have an estate within the 'Mounds'), the on-going spat between two of Yiling's largest teahouses (Wei Ying's plum sauce has a hand in it, and he finds it disconcerting that their favourite song's name is mentioned in the same article as a drawn cartoon of two wrinkly old laoban s locking horns with one another); and advertisements about the latest discounts and offers from the marketplace and other businesses (he zooms in for the weekly coupons offered by Qishan Merchant Guild, which he happily cuts out, and keeps them in a rice-paper album for future shopping sprees).

Interestingly, there is a report from officials from the Imperial Court denouncing the current Jin member heading the Grand Cultivation Council, condemning him and the entire council for the poor performance and mishandling of the general affairs of the cultivation world. There are scathing remarks of how the current council office "prioritizes populist actions rather than putting their Jin (gold (sic)) to where it really matters", accusations of misappropriation of funds in running "useless, irrelevant activities, such as pop concerts, roadshows, and meaningless investments in cultural and fashion-related programmes (including changing the colours of city banners to gold)", and the inability of the current council to stem the tide of fierce corpses' attacks still coming from the North. The report is accompanied by drawn pictures of Cultivation scholars protesting in front of the Lanling Cultivation University for the "shameful and humiliating" acts of the current council which "degrades the standards of the Cultivation World". The commentaries that follow, written by a prominent Jin General, simply says that the Imperial Cultivation Council (who serves the Imperial Court in Chang'an) knows nothing about the changing times, and that "Grandmaster Gao should just retire and let the young ones lead the Imperial Cultivators".

Lan Zhan is glad that he no longer holds office during such chaotic times at the council.

After reading, Lan Zhan busies himself with drawing up the schedule for the next seven days. Immaculately drawn horizontal and vertical lines (without the use of any ruler) form the columns and rows of a table on a wide sheet of rice paper. With a fine ink brush, he delicately writes - actually, prints - short, concise descriptions of activities planned for both of them. He intends to hang the paper on one of the kitchen cabinets for easy reference (Wei Ying probably doesn't look at it, let alone the calendar on the kitchen wall).

A soft rustling sound comes from the bedroom. He smiles, barely visibly, and puts down the pen.

It takes a long time for Wei Ying to finally emerge from their bedroom. He comes out (with a welcoming 'pop!' that signifies the breaking of the Shield spell that had kept the nocturnal insects at bay) but rather than a cheerful, squawky greeting of Lan Zhan's name (usually twice), he appears sulky. He shuffles barefooted to the kitchen-cum-dining room with a frown, wearing only a light brown cotton shirt (only), and his sleep-tousled hair sticks in various directions. One hand scratches his tummy absently, while the other seemed to grip the crotch barely covered by the shirt.

Wei Ying complains that when he woke up and went to pee, he felt a strange swelling sensation obstructing the flow, and couldn't completely empty his bladder. Worried, he drank the whole jug of water at the bedside table, waited, and went to the outdoor bath again. Once more, even after dribbling out as much as he could, there's always "a little bit more" that he couldn't push out.

Lan Zhan becomes anxious - was last night's spur-of-the-moment decision too excessive? He lets Wei Ying sit down on a chair, legs splayed open, then he wipes down the genitals with a towel soaked with warm water, and crouches to inspect his lover's penis.

"Lan Zhan, is there something wrong with my wee-wee?" Wei Ying whines with pouty lips. Lan Zhan closes his eyes in concentration, and casts a series of comforting light blue Healing spells and a green Diagnose spell into the half-hard member. He cups Wei Ying's balls to test their weight and gently rolls them to feel for any abnormal lumps; he also presses into specific points around the groin area to check for any other unusual signs - around the lymph nodes, blood vessels and meridian points.

He opens his eyes, and looks relieved. He tells Wei Ying that there are some globs of sticky substances inside the urethra that needs to be removed - other than that, there is no injury, no infection, no growths and no other medical concerns for the perfectly healthy adult young male. He proceeds to pour another jug of water, and adds some powdered herbal tea - the diuretic type - and instructs Wei Ying to drink. The younger man whimpers disgruntledly at the mammoth task to down a second huge tank before breakfast, but Lan Zhan insists; and Wei Ying relents.

As a reward, Lan Zhan gives Wei Ying a mind-blowingly wonderful blowjob; one that involves plenty of tongue action around the glans beneath the foreskin; flicking rapidly on that special spot beneath the glans with the foreskin fully retracted; delicious suction along the throbbing length when he deep-throats; and he does not forget to use his fingertips to massage circles to the underside of Wei Ying's arousal to "push out the globs of sticky substances". Wei Ying starts to not enjoy the treatment when his bladder fills up to the point of bursting; he squirms and protests, "Stop, stop, I... I need to pee again!". Lan Zhan releases with a plop! sound of wet lips, then nonchalantly leads him to the outdoor bath even as the latter struggles to walk with shaky steps; his hands never leaves Wei Ying's arousal during the short trip to the pool.

He continues to lovingly stroke the twitching rigid flesh with one hand even as Wei Ying grimaces and orgasms-squirts explosively, alternating between trickling pee and spurting seed; then spurting pee and trickling seed. He kisses Wei Ying's cheeks and earlobes and nibbles on them affectionately, his other hand runs fingernails in broad circles around the younger man's trembling back and quivering naked ass as he rides his climax, before reaching to the front to knead on fluttering muscles between the navel and the base of the penis, in an endearing attempt to coax the entire genitourinary system to flush everything out; from bladder to prostate and everything else around them.

When Wei Ying is done, completely exhausted, he remarks tiredly that he feels completely and pleasantly emptied - Lan Zhan's treatment worked. Wei Ying's legs gave out, so he sits on the tiled floor and tries to catch his shuddering breaths. Lan Zhan sits next to Wei Ying and acknowledges the success with a "Mn". As another reward for Wei Ying's good behaviour, he gives Wei Ying a five-minute penis-polishing session, which leaves the younger man shuddering uncontrollably and absolutely breathless.

The couple finally has breakfast together at nine in the morning. Lan Zhan casually picks out well-stewed and nutritious pig's offals - pork liver, stomach and intestines - and multi-layered pork cuts, and puts them on Wei Ying's bowl of rice, which is already drenched in tasty brown broth flavoured with spices such as star anise, cinnamon, cloves, dang gui, fennel seeds and garlic. Wei Ying gobbles everything up noisily, spoonful after spoonful, and doesn't take a break even as he tries to crack the rib bones (it's an impossible task, really) and suck the marrows out. Lan Zhan partakes his meal politely, mainly with the vegetables, and helps to polish off tofu and mushrooms that have nicely simmered in the pot and absorbed the meaty flavours.

Lan Zhan finished his bowl of rice first, and helps to fill a second bowl for Wei Ying. There are still plenty of pork ribs in the steaming pot, and Wei Ying is hungry for more (after such a strenuous night, who wouldn't?). Lan Zhan realizes that Wei Ying is still in his shirt, and pantless underneath. Lan Zhan doesn't mind oogling at the younger man's dangly bits and the swaying springy ass, but he really needs to know why; the warm morning doesn't exactly translate to a plausible reason for Wei Ying to do this.

In between bites, Wei Ying says that he couldn't find a fresh clean pair of trousers to wear. Lan Zhan replies that he's already working on a new pair using the roll of cotton cloth bought from Yiling City just the day before, and it'll be done shortly after breakfast. Wei Ying interjects that the new pair, when completed, needs to be washed "because all new cotton fabrics feel hard and rough to the touch, and there are chemical dyes and stuff on the cloth that makes my skin itchy". Lan Zhan acquiesces; it does need to be washed at least once in warm water, and freshened by drying in the sun, before it can be worn comfortably. Lan Zhan tells Wei Ying to put on one of his older pair of trousers first - the ones with Gusu Lan's patterns -, so that his legs are at least protected and "bugs will not bite you down there". Wei Ying sticks out his tongue, and tells off Lan Zhan that he will simply put on a robe if he really needs to go out (the image of Wei Ying with an inner shirt and a robe, pantless - the horror, and the delicacy!).

Lan Zhan stills as he hands the bowl of rice to Wei Ying. What do you mean by "if I really need to go out", he asks.

Wei Ying cheerfully answers, between loud chews, that he plans to stay at home during the daytime, pantless. He winks at the older man, as he daintily plucks out the bowl from Lan Zhan's hand.

Lan Zhan swallows and nods. His heart starts to beat a little faster, and his mind tingles at the possibilities of an exciting morning ahead. He turns to the kitchen stove, heats up a pan, and picks out some eggs from a basket on the counter.

They'll need all the protein they can get.

Notes for the Chapter:

I decided to loosely continue the story from the previous arc into this one. For those who are extremely sensitive to minute details - yes, chronologically, it makes sense at least. Let's hope it'll work out, somehow.

Also if you've been following this fic, you'll notice that I've taken liberties in looking up, extracting and taking info out from Wikipedia and other sites recommended by google, when it comes to cuisines, recipe, history, ancient China culture etc. Not gonna lie, this fic has been a steep learning curve for me despite my roots being Chinese as well, but I have absolutely zero knowledge in some of these aspects! So, my apologies for copy-pasting stuff, and I hope that you can appreciate that I'm trying to bring an interesting real-world historical or cultural spin to Wangxian.

In case anyone's wondering where this arc will go... well, it's only nine in the morning... so there's definitely more to cum lol

Ah, I'm so happy to see Zhan Ge's picture gracing the local newspaper today about being one of the most iconic fashion celebrities of the year! throws confetti

Congratulations to Xiao Zhan for making more appearances in international media! kisses the newsprint

Chapter 21

To celebrate Wei Ying's "No Pants Day", he offers to help Lan Zhan cook some eggs as a side dish for their hearty breakfast. He daintily swats away Lan Zhan's hands from the pan, and gingerly swipes the bamboo spatula from his grasp. Lan Zhan gives way, brimming with amusement at the younger man's amateurish demonstration.

"Stand closer, lao gong ," he says, "because I want you to observe and pay attention to my cooking skills."

Lan Zhan is very well aware about their proximity when his chin rests on Wei Ying's shoulder, and obeys his lover's instruction to study how Wei Ying's eggs are cooked (no pun intended); his rising erection pokes out of his trousers and practically rubs against Wei Ying's naked butt crack. Wei Ying is cognizant as well, and happily gyrates his hips in sensuous circles to signal to his man that, yes, yes, he wants it too. He mutters something about the inconveniences of having oil, sauces and stuff spilling onto clothes, such as "a fresh, clean pair of trousers"; Lan Zhan takes the hint, and has no trouble to untie and drop his pants to the floor. After that, he continues to hump against the springy ass, occasionally steals a dip between them to graze his length on the inviting rosebud - and is pleasantly surprised to find that it's still moist, slippery and streaked with lubricating cum; naughty Wei Ying hasn't washed himself yet since their pre-dawn lovemaking; his mind is filled with perverse images of an inundated love canal soaked with his fertile seed, and kept lovingly warm at body temperatures for hours. He feels an overwhelming sense of intimacy, and starts kissing, gently biting, smooching, licking Wei Ying's ears, neck and down to the shoulders, while his hands busy themselves on Wei Ying's chest, nipples, and at times, rub his tummy in sexy circles around a ticklish navel.

Wei Ying hnnns and tries to focus on the task at hand. He delicately picks two large brown eggs from a basket on the countertop, then cracks them into a bowl; at the same time, he bows his legs a little, captures an excited rigid penis between his thighs, and squееееees it between them. Lan Zhan had to embrace Wei Ying from behind to steady himself against the exquisitely tight sensation. As the younger man whisks the eggs, he mimics the movements with his thighs; the slick, squashed arousal gets an incredible massage between smooth taut flesh, and Lan Zhan gets a taste of how it feels to ascend to the heavens. Soon, his member grew exceptionally long and hard, and he starts to rub between Wei Ying's balls and the base of Wei Ying's hardening length. Delicious groany sounds escape from the older man's throat, as he envisions himself fucking the tight channel and straight into Wei Ying's 'eggs'. Wei Ying's arousal twitches and dance in rhythm of their swaying hips, skin-to-skin, and soon, he wants more.

Wei Ying adds some seasoning into the bowl, and pours the well-beaten egg mixture to the heated, oiled pan; simultaneously, he raises his hips and shifts his legs apart, and makes a cute wiggly, come-hither motion with his ass. Lan Zhan does not need to be invited; he instinctively makes a beeline and dives into the welcoming entrance with a loud, satisfied mmmmh. Wei Ying trembles as he tries to spread the egg-mix on the pan with a shaky spatula, flip it around and again; while Lan Zhan ruts into his lover, further aroused by the fact that the warm, encasing and tight passageway is painted with gooey stickiness, and every time he screws in deeply, he can feel folds of flesh compress, and pressurized, squishy thick juices backflows, trying to wring itself out. However, since his massive arousal fills up Wei Ying completely to the point of being airtight, he concludes that with every passionate thrust, his seed gets propelled even deeper into his lover.

It goes without saying that Wei Ying gets a marvellous massage to his (still throbbing) prostate. A contractile shiver runs along his cock and balls, and he ejaculates onto the egg omelette still steaming on the pan; he shouts swear-words when he peaks and makes noisy, lewd groans, with a smile etched on his blissful facial expression.

Later, Wei Ying murmurs that he's cooked Lan Zhan's portion, so the latter should reciprocate in kind and make one for the younger man. Lan Zhan mmmns in (distracted) agreement while still diligently pumping his hips. Then Wei Ying suddenly pulls out, leaving the older man grieving at the loss of contact. Before Lan Zhan could raise any complaints, Wei Ying turns around, kneels down, and starts stroking the cummy goo-covered angry-red iron-hot penis with one hand, and plays with the tightening scrotum with the other. He happily cat-licks pre-cum off the spasming cockhead everytime it peeks out from its rolling, veiny foreskin sheathe, and in between tender grazes of teeth over exposed glans, he challenges Lan Zhan to fulfil his side of the bargain now and cook an omelette for him now.

Lan Zhan actually succeeds in making an appetizingly tasty two sunny-side up eggs, to Wei Ying's disgruntlement, while getting a cock-meltingly skilled handjob - but not before being forced to make muted rhythmic, agonized, hnnngh-y grunts as he climaxes between Wei Ying's puckered lips and a curved tongue thrusting into his fluttering cockslit, welcoming fresh spurts of seed into the younger man's waiting mouth. Waves of pleasure washes over him, and his limbs quakes uncontrollably - but he manages to turn off the stove (with a Dispel Magic to the Fire spell) before the food starts to smoke.

In the end, The couple gets an additional side dish for their breakfast. Pantless Wei Ying's sunny-side up eggs are slightly burnt. Lan Zhan enjoys an omelette with an extra dash of crusty Wei Ying-flavoured creamy white sauce.

9:20 am

It's official - Wei Ying has stolen Lan Zhan's pants, and the older man is forced to go pantless too.

In a moment of post-orgasmic bliss clouding his judgement, Lan Zhan felt too comfortable resting his naked butt on the chair and enjoyed his side dish without his trousers on, that he'd forgotten about the significance of keeping one's decency - even at home. (Then again, with Wei Ying around - nothing is decent nor sacred anymore). Lan Zhan was too relaxed and was caught off guard when Wei Ying pretended to put dirty plates into the kitchen sink, where he sneakily picked up the abandoned rumpled dark brown garment from the floor, slinked away to somewhere within their tiny cave-home, and returned to take his seat at the dining table.

"Wei Ying, where are my pants," Lan Zhan orders rather than asks, in a very scandalized manner, when he realizes that his rump feels drafty, and sees no signs of the said garments anywhere in the kitchen.

Wei Ying gives an innocent wide-eyed "Huh?" look, before breaking into giggles and snorts - because he could never hold back a joke -, then falls off the chair in hiccupy cackles, and rolls around the floor. Lan Zhan is slow to grasp the situation, but eventually he understands what is going on inside the younger man's twisted mind.

It's not the first time they've played such naughty games. He steels himself for a monumental task ahead.

9:30 am

Just as Lan Zhan deposits the last of the dirty bowls, pots and plates into the kitchen sink, Wei Ying rushes ahead and stands between Lan Zhan and the items that direly need a good washing.

Lan Zhan gives an annoyed “What are you doing” look. Wei Ying grins back with a “tee hee hee” giggle and wiggles his hips to signal a playful “You’ll have to get through me first”. The older man sighs in feigned weariness.

Lan Zhan reaches from behind Wei Ying, takes a sponge and soaps it up with one hand, then scrubs the plates in his other hand. At his tall height, he has no trouble overlooking Wei Ying’s unruly hair to see what he’s doing in the sink. It doesn’t take long for Wei Ying to expertly maneuver his ass so that Lan Zhan slips in from behind and soon, Lan Zhan finds himself pumping his still-sensitive penis deep into his lover with squelchy sounds (they had just done the deed fifteen minutes earlier - and Lan Zhan has to perform, again - poor Lan Zhan!). The older man works painstakingly from one plate to another (while multitasking to gently fuck Wei Ying’s ass), and lines the cleaned ones tidily on the drying rack. Wei Ying’s body shudders repeatedly and he couldn’t stifle his moans, because Lan Zhan knows all the sweetest spots and does not hold back in attacking the (always throbbing, and much abused) prostate.

Wei Ying nnnghs as he splatters the remaining soapy bowls, pots and cutlery in the sink with his semen; Lan Zhan’s perverseness peaks a little more at the sight of runny milky seed coating their eating utensils, and he ejaculates a little - just a couple of small, excited spurts into lovely Wei Ying; a mere fraction of the burgeoning load welling up from his loins - at the same, he squeezes the foamy sponge too hard and squirts detergent onto the kitchen's walls. His legs tremble a little from the pleasurable release of pressure from his balls, and he tells himself that he really needs to stay focused and keep going.

It is futile to try and avoid staring at Wei Ying's exposed ass. In the workroom, where Lan Zhan mistakenly thought it would be the least sexually attractive place to hide (due to the amount of piled-up unfinished wood and stonework), the young man purposely pulls up his shirt, then trots around while swinging those springy glutes. Wei Ying randomly bends down to pick some discarded half-carved wooden sculptures from the floor (oh that inviting, well-lubricated rosebud!), and randomly performs stretches on the worktable, and deliberately thrusts his crotch towards Lan Zhan's face; Lan Zhan salivates at the mouth-watering sights of dangling, plump genitals and an increasingly erect penis; he swallows hard, mentally slaps himself, then promptly shuts off by chanting Buddhist scriptures. When Wei Ying does not get the response he wants, he sits in front of Lan Zhan - his crotch at Lan Zhan's eye level -, spreads his legs, grabs his own dick and starts masturbating furiously and moans sexily. Lan Zhan's recital of the holy verses drones into incoherent mumbles.

The moment pantless Lan Zhan looks away out of sheer refusal to submit, the equally pantless Wei Ying takes the opportunity to reach down and touch him - a playful pinch on Lan Zhan's naked butt, hands sensuously roam the exposed thighs, a quick grab on Lan Zhan's delicate genitals, and when Lan Zhan is too slow to react in defense, Wei Ying grabs hold of the prized half-hard still-sensitive penis, and fiddles it with his fingers for a few seconds. Lan Zhan's face flushes onto shades of tomato-red and he groans and jerks his hips once. Wei Ying abruptly releases his hand, turns around and saunters off, leaving the older man panting, wanting, lustful.

Wei Ying's dominating, frisky side feels unnerving. Lan Zhan is constantly lured by Wei Ying's raunchy acts, then he struggles to escape, before being wheeled in further with the promise of more risque fun. The couple plays a cat-and-mouse game; Wei Ying being the horny predator and Lan Zhan being the prey.

They shuffle between the rooms, and Wei Ying happily tails, molests and seduces Lan Zhan in all kinds of unthinkable titillating manners:

Lan Zhan stands by the kitchen counter and takes a drink to calm down. Wei Ying creeps up from behind, runs a hand over the nude ass, gives it a good spank and a painful nip on the firm butt-muscles, and glides down between the legs, where he gives Lan Zhan's balls a tender loving squeeze. Lan Zhan chokes on the water, Wei Ying walks off;

Lan Zhan squats and opens the trapdoor that leads to their underground pantry (the hole in the ground). From his vantage point, he counts the number of leaf-wrapped spiced meat on the shelves (it's not just to take inventory; it's also like counting sheep to cool off his head). Wei Ying passes by and crouches as well - behind him. The younger man blows hot air into Lan Zhan's right ear, then slides both hands underneath the old Gusu Lan shirt, and tweaks the vulnerable nipples - hard. Lan Zhan nnnghs and tries not to react (because any response will provoke Wei Ying to do something wilder- and weirder). Wei Ying's hands move to Lan Zhan's crotch to find that the nipple-tweaking had its desirable effect; in the form of a hardening arousal. He fluffs up the fine patch of dark pubic hair with his fingers, before letting his fingertips play a game of 'draw as many circles and flowers' with Lan Zhan's cockhead and the dribbly cockslit. Lan Zhan growls a warning when the first delicious rolling contractions run up the underside of his cock, and he really doesn't want to shoot his load into the pantry. Wei Ying lifts his hands away, and disappears like a shadow in the night, to the older man's about-to-burst frustration;

Wei Ying managed to snag a couple of large juicy summer peaches from the pantry; each as big as his palm. He casually tells Lan Zhan that he's making a quick dessert. Lan Zhan huffs and puffs on the dining chair, head resting on the table and he wills his burning desire to stand down . Wei Ying asks if he wants the peaches cut into slices or wedges. Lan Zhan had no mental energy left to tackle such a trivial question. Slices or wedges, Wei Ying asks again, this time more impatiently, and he nudges and rubs a peach fruit's 'cleavage' against Lan Zhan's fully-erect penis. The older man groans when tingly peach fuzz tickles his erection and he unwillingly coats the fruit with a trickle of pre-cum. S-Slices, he wrestles internally to make the choice.

Wei Ying uses martial arts to pit the peaches; he pokes a finger through a fruit, and the seed flies out from the other end. He cuts cross-section slices that look like perfect yellow juicy rings. He places a plate on the table and tells Lan Zhan to "eat up, otherwise they'll turn brown".

Lan Zhan struggles after his second mouthful. Wei Ying sneaked under the dining table, placed the remaining peach rings over the twitching cock, and relishes in the sweet fleshy fruit topped with syrupy, colorless Lan-Zhan flavored pre-cum. He continues to lick and nibble long after the rings have been consumed, and makes sure every penile vein, every inch of heated foreskin, and the entire throbbing length, does not go untouched .

For the nth time as he rushes head-on towards a spine-tingling, explosive orgasm, Wei Ying withdraws and watches with amusement at how the desperately-angry penis jerk and pulsate in the empty air. This time, Lan Zhan grunts out Wei Ying's name audibly;

Agitated, hot and bothered, Lan Zhan marches out to the entrance because he knows Wei Ying will not follow him out of their home without his pants on (Wei Ying is shy of public displays of affection - or humiliation, in this case). Wei Ying is drunk with playful giddiness; he sticks close behind his lover and follows his every heavy footstep; he continuously gropes Lan Zhan's buttocks and jiggle the defenceless balls and cock at every opportunity. When the older man stands firmly with arms akimbo at the open entrance, and faces Wei Ying, (his smooth butt moons to the outside world in broad daylight - but there is no one around), the younger man remains unfazed and simply kneels down. "Stop this," Lan Zhan says with a rather upset tone.

Wei Ying proceeds to give a vigorous handjob at the leaking cock jutting out proudly into the air. Lan Zhan repeats his words but falters at the last syllable. "Lao gong , if you want me to stop, then please be a decent man and put on your pants. Otherwise, I'll say that you're tempting your lover by strutting around the house naked, so you cannot blame me," Wei Ying cheekily replies, and continues to stroke the weeping rod, and he adds tender licks to the shuddering cockhead and Lan Zhan's breath hitches then his back stiffens, his hips surges forward because the fiery liquid is overflowing, sending mind-numbingly pleasurable electric shockwaves rippling from balls to prostate to the tip and begging for sweet, sweet releas-- cockhead and its semen-loaded urethra, because it got too excited and squeezed just once, before that same excitement dies down with the loss of delicious friction and pressure. Wei Ying swipes the droplet and licks it off from his fingertip, and mmmms at the rich musky taste. He rises, then walks off with swaying hips, and calls out with a dismissive wave of a hand, “Blame yourself for losing your pants!” and his clear hearty laughs echo off the walls of their dimly-lit cave-home.

Lan Zhan had to remain standing for a few more minutes to regain his composure (because he was afraid that any bodily movements may unintentionally trigger another wasteful spurt from his fried nerves and twitching muscles). His pale-white but muscular buttocks warms up in the morning sunlight, and a breeze tickles his dangly bits.

An exasperated, flushed Lan Zhan sits on the bed and reads out holy scriptures from a paper scroll; he thinks that by physically holding the reading material, he is more capable of fending off Wei Ying’s seduction. Wei Ying peeks out from the bedside, then crawls onto the bed and creeps between Lan Zhan’s legs. Lan Zhan knows it’s pointless to cross his pantless legs or kick the intruder away, so he concentrates on his reading.

“Xiao Wang Jis (Little Wang Jis), xiao Wang Jis, do you want to come out to play?”, Wei Ying murmurs into a face full of fine dark pubic hair, balls and cock. He breathes hot air to the throbbing wrinkly balls, each the size of a small chicken egg. He bathes the scrotum with liberal amounts of warm saliva, and flicks his tongue into every ridge, every fold of skin, and relishes in the textures of smooth firmness, lumpiness near the top of each testis, and the muscular cords and fibres that hold the Lan Er Gongzi 's family jewels together. The balls convulse repeatedly and rise until they are snug against the immensely swollen erection.

“Ah, ah, don’t be shy, come back here,” Wei Ying softly calls out, and uses his lips to suck on each cute chubby testicle and gently tugs them down. Lan Zhan moans at yet another prolonged oral sexual assault; his reading is thoroughly disturbed. Wen Ying rolls each juicy plump ball inside his welcoming heated mouth and makes little indents with the tip of his tongue - he kneads, presses and massages, in the hopes of coaxing xiao Wang Ji to find their freedom.

Lan Zhan drops the scroll and lets his hands hang carelessly to the sides; he lies down tiredly the bed, squeezes his eyes shut and he sweats profusely in anticipation-preparation for another onslaught from the cursed incubus . Wei Ying giggles in a small victory at the sight of Lan Zhan yielding, and climbs up to his lover’s waist. He straddles a trembling Lan Wang Ji, and starts sliding his butt clef along the achingly stiff, pre-cummy cock.

“Uncle Wei wants to take xiao Wang Ji to his sexy fertile tunnel of love,” Wei Ying leans down to kiss and hum into Lan Zhan’s lips, and the older man reciprocates (because he really, really could not hold back anymore). As Wei Ying rides along Lan Zhan’s polestick, he makes sure to let the cockhead poke at his cum-lubricated rosebud, tease it by letting it peek through the pliant ring of muscles - just enough for the cockslit to feel Wei Ying’s body warmth -, before slipping out and robbing the organ of a good healthy fuck. Lan Zhan breathes hard, intoxicated by the sweet unspoken promise of carnal pleasures waiting inside his young lover, and starts to thrust his hips in quick successive intervals, driven by primal instinct to dive, plunge, plunder, and shove into lovely Wei Ying.

The couple sucked and slobbered at each others' faces like lovers in the throes of passionate lovemaking. Wei Ying's hands busy themselves in many ways to excite and pleasure the older man; he plays with Lan Zhan's ears, runs his finger into the long lush hair and massage the scalp; he tweaks the sensitive nipples repeatedly and cups the muscular breasts until they swell up a little; he tickles the ribs and mmmms when he caresses the quivering, contracting abs covered with a sheen of heated sweat.

When their lips separated for a much-needed breathy break, Wei Ying coos, "... or, does Lan Er didi want to make new friends with my baby Wei Yings?" He scoots backwards, rests on Lan Zhan's thighs, and gyrates his hips in so that Lan Zhan's crying arousal is wiped, squashed, swabbed, flattened, deliciously moped against Wei Ying's crotch. Then, without warning, Wei Ying lifts one of Lan Zhan's muscular legs and fits his crotch snugly against the other's, in a scissors sex position. Two pairs of jiggling balls kiss, touch and roll over one another. Wei Ying squeezes his pelvic muscles playfully, and let's Lan Zhan know that his testicles are as excited as his own.

He whispers sweetly, "My baby Wei Yings want to play with your xiao Wang Jis too."

Lan Zhan shivers.

11:00 am

At eleven o' clock sharp, the postman arrives with a basket of written letters, parcels and junk mail. He honks rudely outside the Lan's residence.

Notes for the Chapter:

I'm so happy and giddy to read that Zhan Ge and Yibo didi will stand on the same stage at a year-end event! Hooray! my BJYX soul is healed!

Anyway, this chapter has been a blast. I only wanted to write about a day where Wangxian stays in and cuddle up at home... and look what it's become lol

Wishing all readers a Merry Christmas and have a wonderful holiday season ahead!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

p.s. Made a small edit at the end about the Scissor Sex Position. I had that in mind, but didn't know what to call it! Haha!

The postman is actually a magical Postbird, in the form of a large, majestic white crane enveloped in a cloud of white wisps, and it wears a large light blue sash across its body imprinted with the words “Qishan Postal Services - Airmail - Do Not Shoot”. Fundamentally, the bird works and behaves similarly as the magical blackbirds used by the Wens to spy on their enemies, long ago. Such birds are created from spirits of dying feathered creatures, where their souls are exchanged with a magical power source - such as a tiny piece of Yin Metal, or a drop of the spellcaster’s blood - and they are bound to serve their masters’ commands with limited sentient intelligence.

(These days, the younger generation of cultivators prefer more coveted, money-making, and glamorous jobs such as acting in theatres and singing in pop concerts to the welcoming screams of delirious fangirls and fanboys, piloting fancy sword rides sponsored by FeiEx, going on exciting, much-advertised and well-rewarded night hunts, or simply serve as highly-paid guards to rich old politicians without really having to lift a rock, much less to swing a blade at an opponent. Menial tasks such as being sent to the frontlines of battles, manual labour, or even using flying swords for various boring, un-glamorous services - are increasingly relegated to the kinds of sub-humans and beasts of burden.)

The beautiful red-crowned crane lands gracefully near the vegetable gardens, where it gently drops its cargo and starts to honk like an angry goose.

Lan Zhan pulls out with an excruciating, flustered groan after his sixth seed-laden spurt inside that heavenly sweet tight love canal, and continues to shoot wildly on his lover's crotch and streak across the belly until the tenth twitch, because his cock is still too excited and bulging with unreleased seed after the build-up from the flirting and teasing since that morning's omelette fiasco. He is terribly disorientated, his mind is in a cloud of sex, lust and mantra-like whispers of "little Wang Jis playing with baby Wei Yings", and it takes a few extra seconds to untangle their limbs from what started as scissoring crotches that morphed into flailing legs that locked around each other's hips and torsos until it's hard to tell whose curling toes belong to whom.

The honks become louder, impatient.

Sweat-drenched Lan Zhan, still remarkably pent-up, fully drunk with pleasure and flushed from a half-ruined orgasm, drags his heaving leaden body off the soaked bed. He distantly remembers something that Wei Ying said about putting on a robe "if I really need to go out", so he grabbed one of those from the wardrobe before stumbling through the bedchamber's doorway. The loathsome Postbird keeps honking and honking so loudly that surely, anyone standing next to it will go deaf, and Lan Zhan has never been late in receiving his mails, and that damn ear-splitting honking continues and grates on his nerves so badl y, that he actually yells through gnashing teeth, "Coming!" as he ties the belt to the flaring robe while marching through with virtually bloodshot eyes and a vein about to pop on his forehead; and then he shakes, ruffles and runs his fingers through his long hair so that hardly any strands fall out of place, he does not forget to adjust his hairpiece, and uses his sleeves to wipe off sweat and any traces of bodily fluids from his face, and finally, finally, amidst the obnoxious honks - he takes a deep, deep breath at the main entrance's doorsteps, straightens his facial expression,

huffs out in a polite, restrained sigh, and looks up to the sunny blue skies with one hand at the front, and another at the the small of his back.

He looks one hundred percent, gorgeously, perfectly, the Han Guang Jun - minus any footwear.

The Postbird falls silent.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Wei Ying is left on the bed, eyes wide open, alone, panting, his asshole still stretched, the anal sphincter muscles loose and visible through the o-ring muscle, leaking cum and other sexual fluids, his bent legs quivering with ruined aftershocks, and his fingers frozen like claws on the bed sheets.

The young man screeches an exasperated, agonizing “Auuugh!”, rolls over on the bed into an infuriated ball of “Lan-Zhan How-Could-You” mumbles, and lets off a rude fart when his thoroughly-abused ass couldn’t hold back any longer.

Wei Ying sits behind the doorsteps, half-hidden in the shadows inside their dim cave-home, and watches the outside world, disinterested. He’d found a plate of lightly toasted mixed nuts from the kitchen and brought it with him to munch on, accompanied with a cup of herbal tea. He picked mostly the pumpkin seeds, and out of sheer boredom bordering kinkiness, he scoops up the crusting cum on his chest and belly-button with each seed, before popping into his mouth with a satisfying, squelchy, crunch. He does not even bother to wipe a small pool of thick, molten-hot whitish liquidy mix forming between his thighs where he sat.

Lan Zhan makes a respectful bow with hands folded in front to the crane, which was as tall as a man, before it flew off. Wei Ying snorts, he actually politely greets and bows to a magical servant - a postbird, no less! The young man observes how the older man effortlessly carries a big, loaded basket with just one hand, and when he strays from the path towards the billowing bedsheets and other laundry pieces, his other hand easily picks off some of the smaller, sun-dried garments.

Suddenly, a look of shock and anger flashes on Lan Zhan's face, and he neatly puts everything to the ground in an orderly pile, before rushing off through tall grassy bushes while waving both hands like a madman. Wei Ying perks up, and squints to see his partner trying to shoo away a flock of crows on some of the laundry lines. A summer breeze blows, carrying with it the sounds of a daily quarrel between man and the mischievous birds.

The birds flutter away, but not before one of them snagged a bright red underwear (Wei Ying's favourite boxers) from the ground and dropped it onto the treetops. Lan Zhan pats his right hip, looking for Bichen (and probably thinking of flying himself up to the trees with the sword to rescue Wei Ying's precious garment - but since he's pantless beneath the robes, he didn't have it with him. Lan Zhan's shoulders drooped in apparent disappointment, and he stooped down to collect some of the nearly-stolen laundry clips off the ground.

Wei Ying shrugs, wiggles his fingers and an invisible hand picks up the red underwear among the dense foliage. He swishes his index finger delicately to lower the floating flapping undies, and when he snaps his fingers, the garment drops onto Lan Zhan's head with a pfff (and graciously covers the metallic hairpiece and the high top-knot; from an angle; he looks like a beautiful bride with a red veil on her head).

The younger man chuckles, Lan Zhan looks astonished and mutters a word of thanks to the Wind deities.

Lan Zhan was surprised to find Wei Ying waiting for him at the doorsteps.

“You rotten man, you’ve come back (臭男人, 你回来啦),” Wei Ying mutters in a mock-condescending manner and stares at him. His erection has wilted and grown cold long ago.

Lan Zhan responds with a polite “Mmn” without looking back, while scrubbing his feet on the doormat to get rid of as many pebbles and sand off as possible, before stepping inside. One hand holds the heavy basket, and the other cradles a pile of sun-dried laundry - mostly the thinner bedsheets and washcloths are done, and the others should be dry in the next couple of hours.

“Leaving your spouse in the middle of sex when a mail-order arrives, you’re worse than the shopaholic housewives I’ve met at the marketplace!”

Wei Ying chides, and absently scratches a red, raised bump on his outer thigh. Sometime during their earlier sexcapades, summer insects have invaded their home and bitten the hot-blooded Wei Ying, despite having multiple sandalwood incense-pots permeating mild smoke throughout the cave.

“Mn. I know. I was wrong (知道了. 我错),” Lan Zhan openly admits, and bends down to place a soft kiss on Wei Ying’s forehead to soothe any indignation in his lover’s heart. “Some of the purchases are perishables,” he tips the basket to let Wei Ying see a jumble of stuff inside - fresh produce, meats, breads, dry provisions, kitchen goods such as a set of cutting knives, pots and pans, and a new chopping board, spices and condiments, shampoos and soaps, writing supplies, packaged goods and more packages, both big and small, “and if I didn’t receive the delivery, then it would be sent back. The goods will spoil, and we will be charged for re-delivery services.”

Wei Ying hnnns in understanding, because Lan Zhan is a logical, rational man who does not act frivolously without reason. “I used one of the Merchant Guild’s coupons when ordering these via a Fairy Messenger spell to their call-centre. We’ve saved at least twenty percent,” Lan Zhan adds with a faintly-noticeable smug on his face.

The younger man hnnns again and nods, a little disinterested (because he doesn’t really read the printed periodicals, so he has never set foot into the wonderful world of couponing). Then, he points out, “Ah... whatever. You better get inside and sort out the goods. Your robe is untied and you look like a flasher in the dark alley with your dick hanging out like that.”

Lan Zhan’s smugness falters, and he blushes six shades of red when he realizes that Wei Ying is right. He doesn’t have any extra hands to pull the opened robes together, so he shuffles quickly to the kitchen, pantless, his still-hard and leaky cock jutting proudly in the air.

Wei Ying snickers, and whispers fondly to no one in particular, “You rotten man! (臭男人)” (“you jerk!”)

11:15 am

Wei Ying walks into the kitchen while applying some ointment on the insect bite near his naked rump. Lan Zhan had disrobed (and wearing just his shirt), and finished casting some Preserve spells on the meats, leafy vegetables and other perishables. He opens the trapdoor leading to their underground pantry to start stocking up. Wei Ying makes a “wow” sound, and is impressed at the organized assembly of stuff laid out on the kitchen floor - goods are grouped according to their respective categories, lined up according to names, sizes and uses; there are still more stuff inside the basket (how much exactly did Lan Zhan buy?!). Even the dried laundry has been folded and stacked up in neat piles on the chairs.

The younger man knows his lover has an unhealthy obsession “to uphold righteousness and what is right”(so no lying, cheating, harmful pranks or sick jokes are allowed in his vocabulary), “to put things in order” (the balance in his universe must be preserved at all costs), and “to where they belong” (despite their tiny living space, everything is arranged and packed so perfectly that there’s plenty of room for more stuff and mail-orders - except the workroom which has become a nightmare of hoarded trash, and is placed under Wei Ying’s supervision, unfortunately). Wei Ying is aware that the dysfunctional behaviour worsened when they started living together after leaving the Jingshi last summer, particularly in a secluded life in a small home. Good and bad - whatever that came with the package after he brazenly kissed the Han Guang Jun in front of the Grand Cultivation Council and declared their married, bonded status - Wei Wuxian will take it all in stride, and love his Lan Wang Ji as the person he is, and will become.

There are some exceptions to the bizarre behaviour though, such as their bedroom games and the playful (naughty) antics between lovers being madly in love, in which Lan Zhan will happily take liberties and twist the rules to his favour - such a selfish man! - but so far, everything has worked out well for their domestic and marital bliss. (Wei Ying crosses his fingers and prays that this happiness will last for a long time, if not forever.)

Lan Zhan points to a few groups of stuff and a stack of fresh clean bedsheets, pillow covers and some towels, and mutters, “Bedroom”. Wei Ying takes the hint, and follows his partner’s instructions; no questions needed to be asked.

Wei Ying isn’t as perfect as Lan Zhan, but he knows which items go where, at least. Even if he’s not sure of the order (from smallest to biggest? By use? By name?), he will deposit them as a bundle nearby, and let his partner sort it out later - they’ve worked out many mutual agreements after a year of blissfully wedded life together. Wei Ying also changed the bedsheets (he’s getting better at housework!) with a fresh one, but knows that they’ll probably need another before night time.

He wipes off some sweat from his forehead and exhales; housework is quite a strenuous chore which requires Lan Zhan-sharp focus, impeccable management skills, and a good memory of what goes where; he considers this to be vastly different from his usual profession of crafting talismans and charms, befriending laoban s and prospective customers, peddling in the streets or simply delivering goods on time - which require little or no brain power, for him at least. He takes off his light brown shirt, which is already soiled and sweat-soaked, and destined for the laundry basket (he's completely in the nude; fortunately it's summer so it's not cold).

Suddenly, he spots the rescued pair of strawberry-red boxers, and makes an excited whooping sound (and conveniently forgets about putting on a new shirt). He gingerly wears them, and nnnnhs at the soft, velvety material rubbing his private parts. Tendrils of forgotten pleasure start to tickle his loins, subtly reminding him about what had transpired earlier in the morning, and what should happen next, for many hours to come.

Lan Zhan has done his part, and realizes that Wei Ying hasn't come out from the bedroom. He sighs; Wei Ying takes as much time to handle one room's worth of stuff, as the duration needed by Lan Zhan to re-organize their home. He doesn't blame the young man for sloppiness or tendencies to procrastinate; it's just Wei Ying being Wei Ying, and he's come to love this man and vowed to stay by his side forever - juvenile pranks, unbelievable kinkiness, warts and all.

He walks to the bedroom but stops in his tracks when he is greeted by the sight of lovely Wei Ying, wearing only the exquisitely appealing (and revealing) red underwear. The young man consciously caresses his own ass and crotch, while checking out the snug curves, and when he thinks he sees something smudgy on the fabric, he pulls up the waistband to get a closer look. Lan Zhan's blood pressure spikes because he spies twin cute plump balls in a nest of dark curls peeking out from the bulging front side of garment, and the back side rides up enough to show the lovely firm arch of springy glutes.

"Ah, Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, look - there are some muddy patches on the hem," Wei Ying says as he pulls up the edge of the boxers. Lan Zhan blinks and focuses on the offending spot - indeed, there is a splotch of caked mud, which probably happened when the crows tried to steal the garment, then dropped it to the ground (which was moist from previous rain showers), before picking it up again when Lan Zhan appeared with vicious intent of making roasted birdmeats out of them.

"It's dirty," Wei Ying's voice lowers, a hint of seductiveness in there. Lan Zhan exhales a shuddering breath when his own arousal responds instantly because there's still a warm aching, itchy throb in his cock that softly demands for release. He steps closer to Wei Ying, and the couple's gaze fall on each other's groins.

"I'll wash them," Lan Zhan murmurs, not really paying attention to his words or his line of rational thought. His fully-erect, cum-stained cock touches the bulging fly on Wei Ying's boxers (a wet patch is forming on the apex), and he could see the younger man's tantalizingly half-hidden erection from the open, stretched vertical fly of the pants.

"Lan Zhan, it's very dirty..." Wei Ying repeats, his sultry voice thick with need and lust. He lifts the fly with a finger and opens it wider, and Lan Zhan slides in with a hungry groan, and nearly jerks his hips at the sensation of gliding against the smooth, veiny surface of Wei Ying's heated foreskin. Merciful Goddess Guan Yin , he pleaded, as he violates and fucks through the fly and his mind bursts with many lewd pictures of Wei Ying taking out his penis through that same hole to pee, to masturbate, or to reach in and scratch his balls.

"If it gets too dirty, I'll have to wear this sticky, smelly underwear for the whole day. Ah, Lan Zhan, can you imagine, my cock and balls will be covered and soaked... what if some of it gets in?" Wei Ying coos with sweet, syrupy temptations filling up Lan Zhan's increasingly smut-filled mind. The younger man sways his hips gently, and pulls Lan Zhan's twitching member deeper into the tightly-packed underwear, letting the older man's slide over and around his own like fleshy snakes trying to fuck and devour each other.

Wei Ying tip-toes a bit and whispers into his lover's ear, while hugging them both in an embrace, "Little Wang Ji, baby Wei Ying is waiting for you,"

Lan Zhan shivers (for the second time that morning).

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei Ying goes wild with being fucked non-stop around their home. Lan Zhan seals his golden core, so that he does not even think about holding back at all.

The couple rutted like a pair of breeding rabbits, from bed mattress to the walls of their cozy bedchamber, then over the dressing table. For every ten or so thrusts, they switch to another sex position and start fucking again. Lan Zhan has memorized countless drawn erotic pictures from the PeiNis, and has no problem maneuvering their bodies to his whims and desires. They fucked all the way to the workroom - with Wei Ying walking with his hands while the older man holds his legs up and pistons non-stop into his ass without taking a break, like pushing a wheel cart - and in that dingy-looking crowded room, there's plenty of flat, wide, protruding, smooth, textured and bumpy surfaces to lie on, rub against, roll their hips on. Next, Lan Zhan carries a moaning, sweaty, breathless Wei Ying in his arms while the younger man embraced him with all four limbs, happily bouncing on the cum-dripping polestick, while they moved to the kitchen and the dining areas, and continued to fuck against the table and kitchen counter.

Poor Wei Ying is pinned between his lover and the furniture, bookshelves, tables' edges, windowsills, even the floor; he becomes desperate to grab, clutch, and claw anything to hold onto his dear life as he is ravaged, slammed and drilled so hard and fast and deep, that he cries and pleads and screams from "Wait! Be more gentle! You're too rough!" to breathy chants of "Yes, yes, harder mmm I'm cumming oh god I can't aaaahn uuuuh ooooh... w-wait, wait I just came ah ah ah OH GODDESS GUANYIN STOP STOP I'm cumming again HNNGH GGGHK HHHGK", drowning in pleasure and being screwed even as his swinging cock sputters out dribbles of increasingly watery cum almost continuously, and when he's emptied he squirts out pee because his entire lower body contracts and spasms and spirals out of control when the nerves have short-circuited and the muscles and all sorts of organs, ducts, glands are thoroughly abused and squeezed and pounded mercilessly by Lan Zhan's pistoning massive over-six inches of pulsating throbbing cockmeat sweetly grinding against that shaking walnut-sized fleshy lump that sparks more than joy and electricity when it contracts from the endless assault.

Wei Ying is as noisy as Lan Zhan is silent. The older man does not say much, preferring to save his energy to perform his husbandly duties to mate, breed, impregnate (in his fantasies) his lovely, and stubbornly mischievous Wei Ying. He makes sure Wei Ying's ass is totally wrecked when he draws circles, squares, stars and write each other's names inside that sweet cum-drenched cavern with his mighty cock-pen - and he gets a generous share of pleasurable sensations too being encased inside his hip-jerking, thrashing, writhing lover, and he loses count of how many times he's released inside Wei Ying, because after the fifth or sixth round, everything mixes and gels together like a frothy warm thick soup of seed and love juices, moulding into a stream of delicious contractions along his perineum, fast-emptying testicles, and twitching muscles along the cock until the aching cockhead, and he climaxes so many times that his seed just flows out continuously from explosive eruptions, to heated pulsating spurts of all sorts sexual fluids, and eventually settling down to a gushing stream deep into his lover, until Wei Ying complains that he hasn't bathed, his ass is already shaped like Lan Zhan's penis, and he smells like Lan Zhan because his insides are full to the brim with swimming little Wang Jis. Lan Zhan grimaces at the dirty talk, and flips Wei Ying onto his back, so that he can fuck the younger man, missionary style, while enjoying the sight of Wei Ying looking terribly flushed and strained, mouth gaping, tongue drooling, drowning in a haze of blinding pleasure. Wei Ying responds in kind by hooking his legs around Lan Zhan's hips and pulls him down so that their bodies intertwine so closely until Lan Zhan grinds his balls-deep into Wei Ying's ass and there is no more cock-length to spare, so that Wei Ying can lick and claw the sweaty broad muscular chest and feel their heartbeats racing together, and that he can suck and play with Lan Zhan's nipples at his own sweet pace and bring the older man to greater heights of bodily pleasures, in which Lan Zhan growls lustfully and orgasms inside his Wei Ying again, and again, as he murmurs "Mine, mine, mine".

Having fucked everywhere inside their tiny cave-home, the couple left many pools of bodily fluids all over the floor in the aftermath, and some trickled into their underground pantry as well. Lan Zhan, panting heavily and completely out of breath, finally pulls out with thick, foamy cummy strings still connecting his cock to Wei Ying's blooming asshole. He wipes his forehead, then tenderly Wei Ying's too, then slides a thumb between Wei Ying's parted lips. Wei Ying moans, fatigued but extremely satisfied of having his fill of Lan Zhan's love, closes his lips and sucks on the finger fondly, contentedly like a baby feeding on breastmilk that only the husband can provide. Both collapse on the floor near the entrance in a messy heap.

Close to 1:30 pm

“Hnnn” is the only response.

“I... can't cook. Too tired. Let's do a take-out.”

“Mmmm” is all Wei Ying could manage, lying in a pool of either or both of their cums, sweat, saliva and all sorts of sticky, thick, warm and rather pungent fluids.

Notes for the Chapter:

Oh my! There seems to be a Christmas special of The Untamed! I really hope we can see more of Wangxian before the year ends!
*waves pompoms*

I watched the latest short film clip of Zhan Ge playing the role of a naughty boy and being given tough love by a father. Ah, it just screams of Wei Ying-ness! I really miss the badboy / naughtyboy vibes - but I'm still grateful that we can continue to follow his rise to further successes via singing and more product endorsements. He makes everything look so cute, desirable and sexy! (the packaged drink! The cosmetics! The beer! The laundry detergent!) *squeals and dies*

Yibo darlin', you make so many youtube and tiktok-friendly appearances, my internet and mostly twitter feeds are filled up with your cuteness, I'm tempted to splurge money for those games and products that you endorse too!

Chapter 23

"Dustless Broom makes your sweeping, mopping, scrubbing and glazing... so wheezy breezy and easy peasy!" Wei Ying hums the cute advertising jingle tune that comes with each flyer from Liao's General Store. (There is a footnote that directs customers to "press the red circle on the upper right corner of the leaflet", in which an embedded, pre-recorded Voice spell activates to belt out that annoyingly adorable song; Wei Ying wished he could incorporate his Yin Tech company soon, earn enough money and hire patent lawyers to secure the rights to his 'Press The Red Circle' concept.)

He walks into the bedroom from the outdoor bath, his skin flushed and steaming from the sauna-hot waters in the middle of the day, then puts on a clean pastel green shirt that smells of fresh sunlight and summer blooms - and nothing else underneath. He strolls to the kitchen to get a drink while twirling his wet hair into a loose braid, because he felt thirsty in the increasingly muggy afternoon heat. He steals a glance at his lover who was effortlessly pushing the aforementioned cleaning stick across the floor at the entrance; it swiftly glides on the surface, sucks-scrubs-cleans mechanically as it moves with soft whirring sounds, and leaves a trail of sparkly shiny smoothed stone floor in its wake. The image of a handsome, strong man with bulging, contoured back muscles, as he bends and stretches gracefully like performing a qigong exercise routine, dressed in a fresh new white shirt - and nothing else underneath -, set against a backdrop of afternoon blue skies with rolling white clouds in the distance... is both breath-taking and cock-tingling for the younger man.

(Lan Zhan has many such white or light-coloured shirts, tunics and robes embroidered with the same Gusu Lan's cloud-patterns in his wardrobe, and they all look alike, of the same cutting and style, and of the same lengths - it's not really all that monotonous; Wei Ying has come to terms with Lan Zhan's sense of fashion - it's about finding Perfection and being able to reproduce it in as many occasions and all of its subtle variations.)

Wei Ying hnnns to signal to his partner that he's done with his bath (Lan Zhan has also taken one earlier - and much faster), then finds a seat at the dining table with a cup of tea; it feels quite nice to sit bare-buttocked on the chair's cooling wooden surface. Lan Zhan had emptied the basket and the contents of the last package has been opened and laid out on the dining table for Wei Ying's inspection. (Lan Zhan is meticulous in his item-sorting capabilities, so any unclassified or unresolved ones has the unspoken instruction of "Wei Ying, please take a look at these.")

There are two distinct piles of stuff, each clearly grouped into smaller categories, and to Wei Ying's trained eyes (because he's lived long enough with Lan Zhan to perceive what the older man sees - which is absolutely indistinguishable from an outsider's perspective), he sees invisible lines demarcating the sender of each so-called category.

The package has a large, loud print of "To our beloved Ninth didi, with lots of love from your jiejie s" with no return-address, but Wei Ying already knows where it comes from - it doesn't take long for his nostrils to pick up the heady and migraine-inducing floral perfume of Tian Mi Mi wafting from the crumpled brown packaging paper. The owners of the shop have been sending packages regularly by airmail, and on Wei Ying's insistence (because really, it makes their lives much easier to take than to give back) and Lan Zhan's initial protests-turned-reluctance, they accepted what they've termed as "souvenirs from friends from Wei Ying's unfortunate encounters". Wei Ying managed to meet and keep in touch with some of the owners from time to time due to his frequent trips to the city.

The pile of stuff to the left side of the table, which Wei Ying instantly recognizes as “The husband’s” (in their household’s language), due to the visibly housewife-y nature of goods:

- From Third Sister: an assortment of Qishan Merchant Guild’s vouchers, coupons, discount cards, member cards, loyalty cards, leaflets about summer sales, buy-one-get-three-free offers, and all sorts of perks and rewards from the guild’s participating member outlets and businesses. Wei Ying could never comprehend the astounding range marketing gimmicks aimed to lure the shopaholic female population, so he stayed away, and clearly, mentally marked the mountain of colourful papers and bamboo-cards as “Lan Zhan’s”.
- From Fifth Sister: A gift-box set of sewing apparatus, containing (what he sensed to be) magical sewing needles, pins and an accompanying peach-shaped pincushion, a set of coloured sewing threads, knittings sticks, a variety of scissors and fabric shears, buttons and other fasteners, and a roll of measuring tape. Again, Wei Ying doesn’t thread needles nor stitch the tears on his own clothes, so he shakes his head as a symbolic gesture of “not mine”.
- From Seventh Sister: That child is so sweet, Wei Ying tells himself, as he opens a paper bag marked “Gege, I baked these for you!” and peeked into it; there are chilled cinnamon rolls! He closes the bag with a smile, and makes a mental note to ask Lan Zhan to put them into the oven later the day for their afternoon snack.

Next, the pile of stuff to the right.

- From Second Sister - a pair of expensive, heavy 古气 heeled shoes (gu qi; Antique Spirit) decorated with patches of finely embroidered designs of gold and silver, of tacky designs of dragons, phoenixes and bald old sages (ugh), and adorned with precious stones (the shoes weigh as much as rocks). They look classy, flashy and scream of luxury - no wonder only sons of rich men (such as the Mayor's son) dare to parade around the town with these footwear. He appreciates that the sisters noticed his worn-out shoes due to his frequent walkabouts around Yiling to peddle his wares and services - but his inner self quips an unapologetic “nnnnnnnope” and turns up a nose, and he politely pushes the shoes to the left pile. Lan Zhan will figure out what to do.
- From Fourth Sister - Wei Ying's heart leaps in joy as he clutches a limited-edition boxed set of the Magics 'R Us Infinity series - the Infinity pouch (it self-replenishes!); The Infinity stones (and all five colours too!); The Infinity talismans (printed on high-grade Council-sanctioned paper that will not leave any colored dust!); The Infinity Bag of Holding (look at how deep it goes!); The Infinity spellbook (with every spell included!); He peppers nerdy kisses on the precious priceless paper box that only a selected few in the Middle Kingdom will ever lay their grubby hands on, including Grandmaster Gao of the Imperial Cultivators and the Emperor of Chang'an himself.
- From Sixth Sister - Wei Ying was still feeling high from opening his Infinity-themed presents and his mind was filled with praises for the charitable Fourth Sister (great magicians think alike!), when he excitedly picked up Sixth's handwritten note. There was garbled writing all over, and he couldn't make sense of it other than a big black arrow pointing to a thumb-sized red circle at the bottom of the note. He instinctively presses it without thinking (because it's perfectly natural for Man to Press The Red Circle whenever he sees one), and the note glows.

Wei Ying squeals as he releases the piece of paper, and it floats up into the air. There is a buzzing tingle and bright spark, and a silvery thread shoots out from the cleverly-camouflaged talisman . The thread weaves itself through the kitchen window and onward to the outside world.

“Ah!!!” Wei Ying cried panickedly when he realized in horror that he had activated a Reverse Fairy Messenger spell. The levitating talisman burns itself up and transforms into a shimmering amber ball of light.

There is a loud click, and immediately, the whole kitchen booms with screeching and shrieking female voices,

“HE CALLED HE CALLED DIDI CALLED! Hello, you fool, I love you! Did you miss me? Were you thinking about me?”

“What?! I was the one who received the spell, Sixth! He was thinking of ME when he called, because my Infinity goodies are right up his alley!”

and Seventh's squeaky "Can I talk with gege please" echoed somewhere from the background.

Just then, Lan Zhan entered the kitchen with a spotless Dustless Broom and a bucket of water, and asked with a concerned voice, "Wei Ying?"

"Di fu !!!" the whole kitchen booms again, this time with seven females' voices in unison.

The couple spent a few minutes in awkward conversation over the Fairy Messenger spell, but Wei Ying manages to wing it through with his witty charm (thank the A wesome S elling S kills), pleasant talk about the weather and the latest gossips in town, cute jokes, and little white lies and promises (the younger ones - Fourth to Seventh Sisters - fell for it) that yes, yes he misses them too, and no, he won't be able to drop by anytime soon because didi is very busy with work, but maybe they can meet up somewhere while he's in Yiling such as at Liang's teahouse, and yes, please remind Liang gu niang to place more orders of fried foods for this loving and hardworking didi and his quiet, reserved difu . The eldest sister, who spoke the least throughout the call, remarks that fried foods go very well with plum sauce, and Lan Zhan nods unconsciously in agreement.

At one point, when everyone's had their turn with the call, Tian dajie takes over and exchanged pleasantries with the couple. Then with a hushed tone, she tells Er Gongzi that she needs to talk to him in private for a while because of something she'd heard from a customer regarding the Cloud Recesses. The chattering voices of the other sisters soon disappeared, and Wei Ying also takes leave because he felt burnt out from talking to seven lively females in a row (Lan Zhan was fortunate - the serious-tone, no-nonsense difu only needs to Mmn and Hnn vaguely, before the girls turn their attention to the more chatty didi). Wei Ying hand-signals to him “I need a break and will be outside for a while, okay?”, in which Lan Zhan makes an “o” with his thumb and index finger, “OKAY”.

On his way out of the kitchen, he opened the paper bag and fished out a mini-tanghulu made of candied grapes and strawberries skewered on a bamboo stick. Seventh Sister told him with a whiny voice that she'd made the snack and placed them underneath the rolls because she didn't know where else to pack them (she sounded so adorable, he thought). Wei Ying takes a bite of a syrupy strawberry; it tastes tart, fruity and cinnamon-y.

Wei Ying finally has some time and room for his own thoughts, as he stands outside their home in his robes and sandals, under the shade of a peach tree, chewing on a blade of grass, and enjoys the fresh afternoon breeze that soothes and rejuvenates his harried soul. He knows he should be thinking about the afternoon (it's a 'home improvement project' free day, but all he's been doing so far was rolling around the bed - and house - with his lover), the evening (should they go to the evening market? There's a local fun fair and some summer festivities going on. But the rolling clouds look threateningly dark, and it might rain later that day), the night (he really should stop procrastinating and work on more talismans and magical gadgets to sell for next week), and many other smaller, trivial matters (should he help to weed the garden? Spend quality time with the cute rabbits? Work out with martial arts and cultivation? - he's way behind in his practice, really.)

So many choices, and there is plenty of time to think through them - NOT, he tells himself while ruffling his hair with a grumpy “aaaaah!”, then smirks and sniggers at his own self-inflicted misery of thinking too much . He is really becoming a second Lan Zhan, he thought.

First thing’s first, he needed to pee because of that herbal tea he’d drunk after the bath. He unbuckles the belt of the robe and aims for the tree’s roots.

[Somewhere high up in the clouds and within the millenia-old Sacred Orchards of the Golden Summer Resort Palace, the wizened, all-powerful, His Reverence The Jade Emperor takes a break from dining on an afternoon snack of Peaches of Immortality surrounded by his royal court servants, and decides to take a peek into the Mortal Realm. He had been plagued all day by whispers and rumours from celestial servants of his Heavenly Court, especially the latest hearsay that his beloved but rebellious great grand-daughter - the one who slipped out of the Palace into the world below - had adopted a little brother .

The Emperor was most displeased (which resulted in thunderstorms and rain showers the night before; the Underworld was shaken by a terrible earthquake and his friend and confidant, the Lord of Hell, became concerned and called him up to ask what is wrong), because he was used to seeing his great grand-daughter making friends with the other females (mortal, undead, spiritual, or celestial - it does not matter; the girl has a mind of her own and is tremendously in tune with the changing times) and sometimes calls them as ‘sisters’ (it’s a harmless teenage girl thing, his wife the Great Heavenly Mother Queen, said, because she’s growing up and needs to find her own identity and form her circle of friends. She will grow out of it soon, the wife also said). However, by declaring a male being as a (unconfirmed) member of the great, divinely Tian (天; Heaven) family, there are many familial, structural, socio-cultural and political ramifications to the heavens and its governance - beyond the comprehension of mere Men.

With a twirl of fingers, he opens a viewing mirror into the Mortal World, and then, with a wiggle of his thumb, the mirror zooms in to the offending individual. At first glance, he sees an orchard of peach trees (a known symbol of longevity), which told him that at least this man is cognizant, if not worships and reveres, the cultures, legends, traditions and the mythical gods known to the Middle Kingdom. He smiles - perhaps this is a cultured person worthy of his godly attention.

Then the image of Wei Wuxian appears (technology has advanced that much in the heavens - the man's name is automatically subtitled on-screen during a live broadcast), with his robes open, and a loose shirt - looking very much like a sleazy flasher in a dark alley with lots of bodily hair and nothing else underneath -, and performing a very unsavoury act on one of the said peach trees.]

Wei Ying yelps as lightning strikes and thunder roars in the distance, and for a second, his pee misses its target. It's definitely going to rain soon, he thought.

~~~@.@~@.@~@.@~

When Wei Ying ambles back to the kitchen with an emptied bladder, the Fairy Messenger spell had long dissipated away, and Lan Zhan was preparing empty plates and bowls for the dining table - his stomach rumbled to remind him that it's way past their lunch time, and the much-awaited food delivery should arrive soon.

“Wow, did you hear that thunder? It's going to rain cats and dogs, definitely. I think the evening fair won't be happening and the fireworks will be cancelled,” Wei Ying remarks as he neared the table. He helps to set the cutlery.

“Mn. We should cover the vegetable gardens and the chicken coop with tarp. Make sure the windows are reinforced and closed properly. By the way, your foster sisters send their warmest regards. They hope to catch a glimpse of you at the marketplace. You've been working very hard,” Lan Zhan replies and relays the parting message from the call earlier, with a hint of teasing at the end.

“Huh... I wouldn't know what to do with seven sexy young women by my side and they'll probably scare away my housewifey customers. By the way, Lan Zhan, you should also meet them too, they are your in-laws, you know,” Wei Ying taunts back.

Lan Zhan gives an indignant Hmph as his only response.

Wei Ying notes that the 'left' pile on the table is gone - Lan Zhan has sorted them and probably stowed them safely around the house 'to where they belong'. He works on his pile - which is just the Infinity boxed set that is now gently secured in his left arm (he can't wait to dig out a niche in the crowded workroom and set up the boxed set in there like a shrine), and - wait, the gaudy-looking shoes?

“Hey... these shoes... I thought I’ve given them to you,” he asks uncertainly, while holding up the heeled shoes (his feet ached by just looking at them). He hoped the shoes will find a better owner in a better person like the kind, compassionate Han Guang Jun.

To Wei Ying’s relief, Lan Zhan takes them off his hands without any hesitation. He gives a serious, knowing look. “Wei Ying, what’s mine is yours, and what’s yours is yours. If you say that I should have these, then I’ll keep and use them on your behalf,” he states his words clearly. The younger man’s heart melts a little more at the sweet words about how they divide their assets in holy matrimony.

Wei Ying’s inner self chuckles at an image of his stoic, handsome Han Guang Jun in full Gusu Lan cloud-patterned robes and regalia, equipped with those flamboyantly eye-watering gu qi shoes - the striking contrast! The fashion disaster! The appalled looks on the Lan family members’ faces! “Yes, yes you can take them, have them, use them - it’s all yours! You don’t have to give them back to me!” he quickly replies and his body quakes with uncontrolled giggles.

Lan Zhan raises an eyebrow, wordlessly asking, “Are you sure?”

Wei Ying repeats himself, “Take it! I don’t want it! It’s all yours! Ha ha ha!” He couldn’t stifle his laughter anymore, because of the bone-tickling images playing inside his head.

Lan Zhan turns the objectionable footwear around, and to Wei Ying's surprise, a pouch rolls out from the left shoe. Lan Zhan grasps the pouch and jiggles it in his palm; there are plenty of attractive clinking and tinkling sounds. The pouch loosens and Wei Ying's eyes became as wide as saucers at the shiny glowing contents. He staggers, jaws hanging open, and is amazed at the sight of at least twenty gold pieces resting inside the silk pouch - no wonder the shoes weigh like rocks!

The older man deftly closes the pouch and slides it into his shirt pocket. He turns around and walks out of the kitchen without a second look. "Tian shijie said she'd hidden it inside the shoes, away from prying postal service workers' eyes. Like you said, they're all mine... and just in time," there is loud shrill cry from the outside, "I'll pay for lunch."

As Lan Zhan leaves the room (with an outer robe in hand), Wei Ying helplessly calls out, "... Lan Zhan!"

Earlier that day, the couple debated on whether to order a take-out from the Kitchen of Prosperity at North Market Street of Yiling. Wei Ying loves the colourful presentation, abundant portions, and the dizzying varieties of East-West cuisines as seen on the glitzy, glossy and (probably enhanced, edited) lavish-looking menus on display outside the restaurant. Lan Zhan said that he shouldn't judge by the pictures alone, because people are easily tricked by such cheap marketing ploys. Wei Ying has high regard for that famous establishment despite its exorbitant prices, and refuses to believe that they would use anything 'cheap'. Lan Zhan sighs, knowing that it's futile to educate his young lover about how people are tricked into paying more than they should - so, he flips to another brochure from his curated collection from various junk mail that they had received over the past months.

The huge big picture of rice and noodles swimming in lethal-red soup, and the bright yellow words “TASTY DELICIOUS MUST TRY SPICY HOT! HOT! HOT!” plastered over it with a kitschy big stylized thumbs-up, instantly hooked Wei Ying. Lan Zhan preferred the dishes from this smaller, quieter restaurant (actually just a small shop down the South Market Street) that serves great food at more affordable and reasonable prices. It does not attract much of a crowd due to its low-traffic location and lack of proper signages; but Lan Zhan has a keen eye for such hidden gems in the large, sprawling (and relatively high-cost of living) city - and once he’s tried it, liked it, talked to the shopowners and found them to be a friendly, low-profile, slightly reserved husband-and-wife couple running a humble food business (Lan Zhan feels an immediate spiritual connection to this restaurant), he’d kept their flyers every time he comes across them in the mail or somewhere in the bustling streets of Yiling.

A magical local mountain eagle, much less regal and majestic-looking than the earlier Postbird crane, arrives to deliver a plain (but sturdy) recyclable carton box from Great Eats From Gojoseon.

Lan Zhan holds his chopsticks and begins to pick out the meats - ground chicken and chunks of grilled beef - and places them into Wei Ying’s bowl. Wei Ying helps to sprinkle the pre-packed sesame seeds and generous drizzles of sesame oil from a small (cheap, disposable) ceramic vessel, onto their ordered food. He also opens the leaf-wrapped packs of sweet-sour radish pickles into a saucer, plops two servings of salted spicy fermented cabbage side-dish (kimchi) onto another plate, and finally pours out a wooden container of beef broth with meat slices into a separate bowl. Unsurprisingly, two portions of hot chilli pepper paste goes straight into Wei Ying's bowl.

Lan Zhan enjoys his mixed rice (bibimbap) of at least six types of vegetables including sauteed mushrooms, zucchini, carrots, bean sprouts and spinach and other greens.

Wei Ying, on the other hand, munches on his cold buckwheat noodles - which is a summer favourite even this far within the Middle Kingdom -, garnished with shredded pear, cucumber and some vegetables, and a pile of stir-fried beef fillet, mixed in red spicy sauce. He realizes that there's plenty of meat in his bowl, so he gives his hard-boiled egg to Lan Zhan, which the latter readily accepts together with his fried egg on the rice.

Their meal costs only a mere four pieces of silver including the delivery charges, with a free pack of unbranded green tea leaves (which Lan Zhan makes a teapot of brew to accompany their meal), and a small bottle of soju for Wei Ying, at no extra cost (because Lan Zhan and the shopowners know each other by name, and the wife happily includes an extra beverage for him).

Later, a happy, satisfied Wei Ying sits on the chair with one leg up (like a laoban) and a full belly, entertains himself (and dawdles his time away) by throwing toasted peanuts into the air and try to catch them into his mouth (some of them fall onto the floor - which is perfectly alright, now that they have the Dustless Broom at home). Lan Zhan drinks the last gulp of scallion-topped broth so that nothing goes to waste (Wei Ying has already slurped off the beef slices). He feels a twinge between his teeth, and takes a toothpick from the table to politely pick out a piece of spinach (he covers his mouth with his hands while doing so - a perfect gentleman). Wei Ying observes the older man, starts feeling something similar and prods fingers into his teeth and gums too. After several attempts, Wei Ying gives up and reaches out expectantly with saliva coated fingers. Lan Zhan does not hesitate to hand over the used toothpick when he's done, and Wei Ying uses it to pick his own teeth - then, success. The younger man continues to suck and chew the used toothpick out of an annoying, but endearing, post-meal habit, with small burps in between.

Notes for the Chapter:

Not much to comment this time. I'm really enjoying myself this holiday by working on this fic, and there's plenty of ideas flowing through. I hope you find this fic as entertaining as I've enjoyed writing it. I love domestic fluff even with little or no sex at times, and I love to use the in-plot OC characters to make my imagined Wangxian's daily life more, well, pleasant and interesting.

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

2:30 pm

Lan Zhan passes a pair of clean, sun-dried trousers (the same one that was worn the day before, washed) to Wei Ying, but the latter politely refuses with a shake of his head. At that moment, his tummy feels nicely filled and a bit rounder, and he's gotten so used to walking around the house without his pants, that putting them on now feels foreign to his bare skin and rump.

The older man hangs the trousers on the backrest of one of the chairs. He sits down and pours a cup of green tea for himself, and another for Wei Ying. An empty bottle of soju lies carelessly on its side.

“Lan Zhan, if you don't mind telling, was there anything important from Tian dajie about the Cloud Recesses?” Wei Ying asks with a chewed toothpick inside his mouth, breaking the silence. His eyes trained on his partner; he tries to detect any signs of distress or any hints of emotion on the usually expressionless face.

Lan Zhan takes a moment to respond. He looks thoughtful as he stares off-focused at the table's surface. The hooded eyelids, the long eyelashes, the slightly parted, moist lips, perfectly shaped nose, chin and cheeks, and the long lush hair with nary a strand out of place framing the flawless facial features - Wei Ying admired Lan Zhan's handsome face as he waits patiently for an answer.

“... Wei Ying, do you know about the scholar protests? At major cultivation universities and learning institutions around the country,” the older man puts forth a question. He carefully chose his words, and Wei Ying interprets that as an indication that there will be some context and information that will not be easily divulged.

“Well, I don’t really read the periodicals, but I’ve come across stories from teahouses and gossips at the marketplace. I’ve heard about how useless the Jin Chief Cultivator is; how the fierce corpses and monster attacks continued to spread to villages mainly around the coastline and southward; and yes, there are groups of cultivators protesting against the ineptness of the current Council in handling these attacks, amongst other troubling tales I’ve heard about the misuse of the Council’s funds and power... Ah, Lan Zhan, your... the Cloud Recesses - is everyone alright?” Wei Ying hands grasps the table’s edge tightly, anxious.

Lan Zhan remains neutral in his expression, serious in their topic of discussion, eyes focused and sharp. “As far as I know, everyone is in good health within the Cloud Recesses... but...” His voice wavers a tiny fraction; unsure of how to proceed.

“But...? Has something happened... around the Cloud Recesses? Or the people that are involved and related?” Wei Ying probes gently, covering a wider circle than he originally presumed.

The older man purses his lips for a moment, and his index finger twitches slightly on the smooth ceramic surface of the teacup, Wei Ying looks on with the patience of a spouse that can read and understand the subtle body language of his significant other.

“Caiyi Town,” Lan Zhan starts, “is one of the latest areas to be afflicted by the attacks. Three weeks ago, a few bodies turned up near the main river. The townspeople sought assistance from my clan.”

Wei Ying nods thoughtfully, and takes a sip of green tea. He tries to disperse the heavy atmosphere. “Hah, as expected, the commoners always turn to the cultivators when they can’t use their police and military might to solve the problems--” he holds up both hands when he notices Lan Zhan’s widened eyes and a clearly antagonized look, “-- which is a good thing, really. I’m.. I’m glad they went to your sect, which was the closest to them anyway,” he nods repeatedly to show that he’s really on his partner’s side.

Lan Zhan sighs and his shoulders drooped. He continues his narration, “It is expected. A group of junior disciples was dispatched to investigate, and a week later, they gathered at the townhall - with no answers in hand, and an increasing body count. They could not find the creatures that killed, and kept killing the townspeople.”

Wei Ying scratched the back of his head, and looked up to the ceiling in reminiscence. “... Well, you weren’t able to solve the killings either during your short tenure as the Chief - there shouldn’t be expectations from anyone in the cultivation world to create miracles and clear this up instantly. I still blame that useless Jin Chief; he and his lackeys are nothing but trouble!” He swings his fist in mock-anger - Wei Ying has many bones to pick with anything marked with the Jin’s family emblem (especially judging from the way he or any like-minded civilians in Yiling were treated by the guards).

He stops at mid-swing of fists. “So... what happened at the townhall? I don’t think your juniors simply got off with a gentle verbal lashing from the town mayor or the families of the victims. If news of this reaches as far as Yiling, something bigger must have happened, right?”

The older man bows his head, and his jaw tightens slightly. “There was... infighting and finger-pointing... among the disciples in front of the public,” it was Wei Ying’s turn to widen his eyes in amazement - that’s at least five Lan’s family rules broken simultaneously, “when tensions escalated between both sides.” Wei Ying recounts a similar experience, but not as hostile nor messed-up, on the night the Mo’s family was slaughtered nearly a couple of years ago. Lan Zhan seemed to be struggling internally - probably in a state of disbelief - with the fact that his disciples were thrust into such bad limelight.

“So, Lan Zhan, what was said? What happened next?” Wei Ying raises his cup in a gesture to nudge his partner to ‘go on, I’m listening’.

“During the arguments, the traveller whom Tian shijie spoke about, was among those who were present as a civilian observer. He said that the youngest disciples blurted out about how they, like so many others within the Cloud Recesses, received no training nor guidance prior to being sent out to missions - and so, they felt they had been treated unfairly for this failed mission. Apparently this reinforced the disciples’ beliefs that the scholarly protest movement had been right all along - that the current weak leadership is ultimately to be blamed for the sufferings of commoners and cultivators. They go on to say that they are already part of this movement - and assumingly, many others within the Cloud Recesses too.” Lan Zhan looks a little tense, uncomfortable, a hint of restrained anxiety flashed across his face.

Wei Ying gripped the table's edge again and fidgets his feet. He leans forward. "I heard that Lanling University and almost every major institutions have joined the movement too - but to think this is happening to your birth home..." he shakes his head in bewilderment. Surely those disciples would have been expelled the next day! One of the Gusu Lan's rules included a clause of non-affiliation to other kinds of movements or groups, especially those that allow or promote acts of civil disobedience, including protests, infighting and provocative arguments. He pauses, as one glaring fact burned inside his mind.

"Lan Zhan, I understand you're telling me that there is some kind of non-violent unrest happening within the Cloud Recesses - but still, it doesn't explain why disciples are sent out to potentially harmful missions without proper teachings and I'm assuming adequate magical and spiritual hunting equipment too. Where are the upperclassmen? Or the senior members? Wouldn't the group be led by at least one or two of them to calm everyone down and avoid such sensitive information to be revealed in the eyes and ears of the public?"

The older man sighs again, and furrows his brows. He stares at his cup - still filled to its brim with steaming green tea -, the disquiet and disconcerting feelings are carefully controlled so that they do not overflow and break that cup, figuratively speaking. "The remaining, older disciples tried to pacify their shidi s in the townhall. The man that spoke to Tian shijie overheard something about all the elder members being involved in meetings at the Carp Tower, and therefore were not around to guide them. The youngest disciple then mentioned several rumours - about how each sect is compelled to pledge their allegiance against the scholar protests, and enlist their best and most talented cultivators into the Jin's army," in which Wei Ying interrupts with an upset, "That's worse than the Wens!" and Lan Zhan continues, "about how protesting scholars from other sects will undermine the sanctity of the Cloud Recesses and take over, if the leaderless state prolongs any longer; and about how the younger disciples are running out of patience; there are efforts to search for my brother, to bring him back and lead the sect... as a last resort.” The last couple of sentences clearly impacted Lan Zhan, distraught now clearly on his face and strained voice.

Wei Ying rises from his seat and walks over to stand by Lan Zhan’s seated, trembling figure. He embraces the older man’s shoulders and cradles his head against his stomach. Wei Ying gently sways side by side. Comforted by the warm presence and scent of his young lover, Lan Zhan leans in and lets himself be carried along by the soothing motion.

“Tian shijie advised that I should lay low for a while, avoid the crowded parts of the city, and that my presence must never be revealed to the Jin guards at all costs. She’ll head to the east in the next few days to find out more, and will contact the smaller, more distant branches of our sect along the way for support. She promised to send a Fairy Messenger as soon as she can,” he says, eyes closed, and probably fervently praying that things aren’t as bad as the rumours say.

The younger man rubs soothing circles on Lan Zhan’s back. “She’s right. Let’s wait for news from her, before deciding our next move. I’m sure your uncle is fine, he’s still as fiery and spirited as I remembered. And I’m sure Xichen da ge ... well, if he is found and decides to take charge - that would still be a good thing, right?”

Wei Ying can feel Lan Zhan’s smile on his navel. He pats the older man’s shoulder; a gentle timeless rhythm for consoling both the young and old.

Then, a hitched breath. “... our next move...?”

Wei Ying laughs softly, a crystalline sparkle for the older man to grasp and hold onto, despite being mired in a murky, muddy prison of uncertainty, unanswered questions and unsettling news about his few and only remaining immediate family members.

“Lan Zhan, what’s yours is mine; you’ve said this before. Your troubles and worries are also for me to shoulder. We’ll get through this, together,” and he bends down to place a soft kiss on the older man’s top-knot.

Lan Zhan sighs one more time, and this time, he relaxes into the embrace.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei Ying is the first to break the quiet, peaceful atmosphere with a muted chuckle.

“Mmmn?” a sleepy noise, pillowed by thoughts that are no longer stressful, and the physical cosiness of Wei Ying’s warm, full belly.

“Lan Zhan, you know... if someone were to take a look at us right now, holding one another and pantless, what would they say?”

Lan Zhan snorts.

When the older man feels sufficiently re-charged by Wei Ying's motherly hug, he stands up and starts touching Wei Ying in the way that lovers do. They start to make-out in the kitchen, exchanging breaths and kisses, hands caress, grope, tickle, intertwine and soothe each other, and their bodies slide pleasantly and languidly against one another, taking their sweet time and pace because after such a delightfully draining morning and an emotionally-taxing revelation after lunch, Lan Zhan doesn't have anything else to give other than gratitude - but that is fine, because as Wei Ying nuzzles into his lover's neck to comfort and encourage, and leaves kisses and faint bite marks on the collarbone to tell him not to think too much; because there's really nothing much they can do now. Lan Zhan accedes, and wordlessly asks for a long string of pleasure that will help him forget, to take his mind off everything that bothers and disturbs the delicate balance of his Perfect universe; he peppers light smooches on Wei Ying's forehead, earlobes and moist lips, leaving the younger man tingling with rising intense feelings of being cared, being loved, being worshipped, being wanted and needed by the fragile man named Lan Wang Ji. Wei Ying responds with his own brand of playful liveliness, by letting his fingers roam everywhere especially since his partner is pantless and everything is a playground for him.

Lan Zhan lets Wei Ying gently pull on his pubic hair, lightly rake his inner thighs with circles, stars and flowers. The older man continues to kiss the tip of his lover's cheeks and nose, and even breaks into a small, pleased smile when Wei Ying starts to play with his penis with naughty wiggling fingers, by bouncing it, tenderly stroking it, rubbing in circular motions over the tip that peeks out from the foreskin, and along the slowly-swelling flesh; Lan Zhan takes a long time to become erect because he feels so relaxed and pleasantly emptied earlier; but Wei Ying is patient as well, and continues to leisurely roll the pampered penis in his palm until it firms up a little more, grows longer, filling up unhurriedly with sweet sweet slow-burning desire; and when it's hard enough to barely point to the front, Wei Ying takes the increasingly excited organ and slides it along the cleft between two fingers to mimic the ageless action of a lusty sexual intercourse, and when Lan Zhan nnnnhs, he feels Wei Ying's other hand reach down and caresses his scrotum, lovingly rolls each testicle as they rise, and fall, and rise again, because Wei Ying takes it so gently and slowly that their pleasure is drawn out as long as possible - at some point, Lan Zhan becomes drowsy with the immersive full-bodied pleasure pulsating from his loins that dances along his spine and tickles the nerve ends, his mind starts to unwind and patches of his scalp and the accompanying thinking processes shut down - one by one - and become happily numb, and when his head dips at the sleepiness that overwhelms his relaxed body, Wei Ying coos his name, "Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, don't fall asleep here, let's go to the bed," and he lets the younger man gently, mindlessly guide him through his sleepwalking, and Wei Ying's hands never left his twitching penis that is continuously caressed and stroked all the way to the bed mattress.

Lan Zhan thoroughly enjoys a slow, relaxed pace of lovemaking with Wei Ying. There is no rush to reach climaxes, no one to keep track of how many times either of them comes, and no pressure to accomplish something mind-blowing using creative sex positions or novel toys.

His universe consists of his body, mounted on top of Wei Ying's, on all fours, moulding and joining repeatedly in an age-old rhythm of mating, of copulating, of giving and receiving love and pleasure, of their souls dancing with one another, in increasingly closer and tighter circles until they fuse into one.

Lan Zhan immerses himself in the physical pleasures of the flesh as he pulls out completely, his arousal hard and throbbing, then he rubs Wei Ying's inviting and gaping rosebud, teasing it a bit, before pushing and plunging deep, deep inside into the tight heat. He moans breathily of Wei Ying's name with each thrust, and Wei Ying answers his calls with his hands graciously spreading his ass by holding them apart, allowing him the deepest access to his innermost recesses, and Wei Ying mmmms in a welcoming invitation to do more, more, please Lan Zhan, more, take me, love me, make love to me.

The older man continues to pump his hips, balls-deep, until he gradually reaches a low-grade climax; he pulls out completely one last time, then strokes his cock furiously outside Wei Ying, and watches, mesmerized, pleased, with quaking hips, at the sight of weak spurts of diluted white shooting into the waiting, open gaping hole that he's fucked for what seems to be hours on end.

Lan Zhan is absolutely drained after one round. He collapses to his side of the bed, exhausted, panting, flaccid, and ready to fall into slumber anytime. He has nothing else to give. Wei Ying crawls up and whispers seductively to him, "Lan Zhan, before you take an afternoon nap, do you want to pee?" A wet tongue slides into his ears, telling him that Wei Ying has a lot more in his mind than just to relieve oneself. Lan Zhan grudgingly nnnhs, and gets off the bed, eyes half-closed, to pee into an enamel chamber pot waiting by the bedside. As he slides back to the bed, Wei Ying gently wipes his genitals with a soaked washcloth. Then, Lan Zhan closes his eyes, docile, and slips into the well-deserved darkness.

There are periods of wakefulness, or at least they felt real enough not to be lucid dreams - he half-opens his eyes to find himself lying prone on the bed. He gets a full-body massage with oils from the bedside drawer (the fragrance is familiar), and relishes especially the lovely kneading movements on his shoulders, back muscles, tired biceps, aching calves, the soles and balls of his feet, and even between the toes. Fatigue melts away with Wei Ying's expert ministrations with palms, knuckles and fingertips.

By the time those hands reach his genitals for what he anticipates to be a titillating sexual massage, he snores away.

The next time he becomes conscious - eyes still closed - he was caught unprepared and was hit by sudden intense orgasmic waves that seems to go on and on. Sexual qi energy circulates wildly and strongly within his groin, hinting the use of tantric sex methods, and his hips continue to undulate against his will, his stomach muscles quiver uncontrollably, his limbs thrash on the crumpled bedsheets, every organ, vesicle, gland, duct, tube inside his lower body seem to contract and empty themselves repeatedly, and the pleasurable throbbing continues unabated for many long minutes. He does not remember if he ejaculated or not, but remembers fingers pinching and twisting oversensitive, swollen nipples until his moans echoed off the walls of their bedroom.

Next, he awakes to a sensual, fulfilling ear-cleaning session on Wei Ying's naked lap. He breathes in Wei Ying's musky scent as his nose and lips touch the younger man's arousal, and his ears tingle in delight at the gently, rhythmic scrapes and scratching of a bamboo earpick; mimicking the movements of lovers fucking at a slow motion. He groans, refusing to open his eyes in the fear that this could be a dream that he'd never want to wake up from, and feels his voice has gone a bit hoarse and feels raw around the vocal cords. Wei Ying seemed to read his mind, because soon, he feels the edge of a cup against his lips, and he only needed to part his lips to be served a few refreshing gulps of tea. Then he resumes his semi-fetal lying position, nestled on Wei Ying's groin, followed by an earpick gently invading the most desirable spots along the ear canal. Satisfied with the pampering, a few moments before he returns to his dreams, he nnnnhs when fingers play with his sensitive penis, again , and stroke him lazily towards the next climax.

Some time later, he wakes up again facing upwards, and nnnghs to weak but still pleasurable rolling pulses from his tingly, burnt-out cock and prickling oversensitive nerves all over the groin; his shaking, tired, sweaty and extremely emptied body tells him he's been orgasming a lot more in the past hour (hours? He can't tell the time anymore) than the whole of the morning, although there is nothing else to unload. Wei Ying continues to ride and milk him as he falls into comfortable sleeping-wakefulness cycles, alternating between sweet up-and-down fucking hip-motions and extremely arousing circular grinds when he's deeply sheathed inside the incredibly slick, hot tunnel.

Lan Zhan appreciates that Wei Ying knows their bodies very well and has mastered the physical and physiological sexual responses - particularly Lan Zhan's. Wei Ying has said once, that he always counted at least "twenty twitches" in each of Lan Zhan's orgasm; and naturally, this number goes down over time and frequency of climaxes - if unaided . This time, Wei Ying uses all sorts of techniques, including exciting body caresses, playing with the balls and ass, and unknowingly slipping well-oiled fingers through the coveted ring of muscles to reach the prostate - to ensure that Lan Zhan gets his twenty twitches for every orgasm that afternoon - even as the sun arches and begins to set in the west, and light shines at an angle through the curtained window on Lan Zhan's constantly straining, restless and trembling body.

Lan Zhan feels his inner muscles shudder again and again the next time he slides downhill into a sleepless coma, and could only offer seedless, clear fluids which Wei Ying happily extracts with his bouncing and clenching ass muscles.

The sun is setting, and Wei Ying stands at the entrance of their home, skin fully flushed from a wondrous workout from the inside out and sticky from drying sweat, still pantless and a mix of frothy opaque liquids running down his thighs, a mug of pu'er tea in his hand, and a silly half-drunken smile etched on his face.

He sips the tea and leans against the door frame, and then sighs. The touted evening thunderstorms never made landfall, despite the loud crack of thunder earlier that day.

He really wants to go on a date to the evening market with Lan Zhan.

He peers behind at the snoring slumbering figure in the bedroom, lying on thoroughly soaked and soiled bedsheets.

Several tiny voices in his head tell him that life can be unfair sometimes, and he can't always have his cake and eat it too.

Unless.

Wei Ying peeks outside to see no one in the courtyard. A couple of thicker garments still hung on the laundry lines (because Lan Zhan was unavailable to collect them - they're probably bone-dry by now). The fast-growing weeds had sprouted in greater numbers around the vegetable gardens within a day. They'd forgotten to give the farm animals their afternoon meal, so the chickens are scratching the sand for non-existent bugs and the rabbits are nibbling at the fences because the only thing left to eat are the weeds that grew around the fence posts - Lan Zhan would be unhappy when - if - he finds out. And Wei Ying's workroom is... still the same.

Wei Ying tells his heart that he wishes to have two or more cakes and eat them all.

Yiling Patriarch Wei Wuxian weaves Corruption magic like no other. On this occasion, he doesn't need to summon any infernal servants to do his bidding, because this Grandmaster of the Dark arts desires the effects for himself only , and any other chosen living beings that he wishes. With a wave of hands, terrifying ash-black smoke-like projectiles appears from the earth and the blazing orange skies; they hurtle through the air and penetrate all physical obstructions effortlessly; they gather around the Patriarch and swirl and spin around him, surrounding their summoner in gradually increasing speeds and density until the man becomes encased in flickering shadows as black as the starless night, impenetrable by light. The figure walks towards the cave-home's bedroom, and reaches out to the defenceless human sleeping peacefully on the mattress. Upon contact, Lan Zhan becomes instantly enveloped and devoured by the shadowy substance.

With a snap of fingers, the blackness surges, bloats, bulges and finally explodes spectacularly outwards in in rippling spherical waves. As the dark waves sweep through everything in its path, they leave behind the same living and inanimate objects, matter, sights, sounds and intangible elements such as feelings and thoughts - except that they have been shifted to their state and location of about five hours ago.

A blip happens in the flow of Time.

The Jade Emperor sneezed.

Heavenly court servants rush to His side in record time, faster than Nezha's spinning fire wheels. They bowed to the floor, panicked, grovel for forgiveness and for mercy for their insignificant lives over the unexpected sneeze.

Tian dalaoye is compassionate, and he waves his hands to dismiss them. He hadn't felt a tickle in his nose for a very long time, and he wondered if this was an omen. He had been watching the mortal through the magical viewing mirror (subtitled "Wei Wuxian") while enjoying a bite of the Peaches of Immortality - but not really tasting the fruit because of the unsavoury and rather repulsive acts he had to visually endure on-screen, which he believes to be rather common of mere Earthly creatures of the flesh. He'd watched until the point the offending individual completed those nasty acts, and wanted to turn off the mirror when he sneezed and missed a few more scenes.

However, the matter is insignificant, like missing the end credit roll (and any post-credit scenes) of a trashy movie that was never in one's to-watch list.

There was a thoughtful pause, and then the Jade Emperor called back one of his faithful servants. He enlists the fearful celestial being on a simple mission - to contact the Merciful Goddess Guan Yin, his favourite counsellor and the greatest advisor in the Heavens, amongst many other marvellous titles given to her.

Wei Wuxian's act of peeing on a sacred peach tree reminded the Emperor about a nearly forgotten memory about the Monkey King that took place aeons ago. Perhaps Goddess Guan Yin can enlighten him on how such creatures (lowlives, really) can be dealt with.

The timestamp on the viewing mirror flickered a bit just before the Jade Emperor felt the tickle of the nose, like a bad VCR recording. However, since the flow of Time in the heavens run vastly different from the Mortal Realm (it is said that one day in the heavens equate to a century on Earth), so to the naked eye of any gods, there is virtually nothing out of the ordinary.

It's still 2:30 pm, by the way.

Lan Zhan yawns and stretches in a sea of body-warmed pillows. He feels extremely... hmm, emptied has a negative connotation, so he decides on the choice of the words "happy, relaxed, peaceful and contented". His universe seems perfectly balanced, everything seems to be in the right places to where they belong.

The afternoon sun shines brightly into the bedroom, and everything takes on yellow-white hues. He sits up and squints through the light; he thought it was strange to have slept so well after such an intensely raw heartfelt confession, followed by an hour (hours?) of passionate lovemaking (he couldn't remember much after the first orgasm), only to wake up just a short span of time after that.

Pantless Wei Ying walks in with a tray and a teapot of pu'er tea. Something else smells really good, and his stomach rumbles - despite just having his bibimbap lunch, if the bright midday-ish sunlight is an indicator of the current time. "Good afternoon, you sleepy head!" he calls out cheerfully.

Wei Ying sets the tray on Lan Zhan's naked lap, and the older man sees a plate of freshly re-heated steaming warm cinnamon rolls. Wei Ying pours him the tea first, which he gratefully gulps down because he must've slept so well that his throat became dry. Then he picks up a roll and munches on it. It tastes absolutely delicious.

Notes for the Chapter:

I'm on a roll here... haha! I'm experimenting with some Chinese mythologies, so if there are any inaccuracies (or even insensitivities) - like the story's beginning notes say, don't take things too seriously :-)

I also suck at writing background stories involving conspiracies and politics, so just take 'em in stride and please enjoy the fic as a light-hearted read!

Anyway, I promise there won't be too much details on the side, because I still want to write about Wangxian.

It's Christmas' Eve! Happy holidays everyone!

Chapter 25

“Wei Ying, can I--”

“Shhh! I’m trying to concentrate here!”

Lan Zhan looks on, arms crossed and infinitely patient, at the young man in front of him, standing proudly without his pants on and blocking the main entrance to their home. He shuffles to the left, then to the right, but he couldn’t find an exit.

Wei Ying huff-huffs as he performs an energetic workout - side stretches, waist twists, front and back bends, ten times each. Then he steps up his game and sets out on a more (at least from the younger man’s perspective) gruelling regime of rigorous skipping, throwing punches into the air, and ducking and parrying an invisible opponent. He shadow-boxes for a full minute as though he’s ready for a fighting tournament until a sheen of sweat covers his entire body.

“Wei Ying--”

“... can do this, I can do this, I can do this, I can do this, I can...” he chants a mantra and steels himself for a seemingly historical moment. When he’s fully warmed up, he stops and exhales loudly. There are a few anxious stretches of neck muscles, rolling of shoulder blades, then he cracks his knuckles and other joints and grits his teeth.

“Yeah, I can definitely do this... I do NOT see anyone watching me. There is NO one watching. Yup, absolutely NO one around. Gotta seize the day! (huff, huff) You only live once! (pew)” Wei Ying is ready to tear down illusionary walls and break new frontiers.

“Wei--”

The spirited young man takes a deep breath, closes his eyes, and leaps over the door’s wooden threshold. Immediately after he lands, he barks out a cheerful wide-grinned “YES!” (with little fist pumps), raises his hands in victory and then claps to himself for a job well done. Feeling emboldened and the crazy rush of adrenaline in the bloodstream, he jerks his pelvis towards the sky and sticks out his tongue in an ‘up yours!’ manner.

(fortunately, the heavenly Jade Emperor isn’t looking.)

Wei Ying bellows out hearty laughs. “Ha ha! See? I did it! I’m pantless outside ! Yaa hoo!”

Lan Zhan sighs and shakes his head. He steps across the wooden threshold casually, with a washed, dripping-wet robe in his arms, and squeezes between Wei Ying’s door-blocking buttocks and the door frame to get through to the outside. Once he’s past the obstacles, he walks across the courtyard into the afternoon sunlight, barefooted, towards the nearest laundry line.

Lan Zhan pauses in mid-step and looks back, eyebrows raised. His face spoke of either “What?” or “So what?”; Wei Ying couldn’t determine which.

Lan Zhan sighs again, and goes back to the laundry line. “There’s nothing illegal in being comfortable in one’s own skin under decent circumstances,” he says, as he retrieves some clips from the line and arranges them in a linear sequence - with perfectly measured spaces between each bamboo clip, “Our ancestors walked around without much on, and some of the poorer communities in remote villages are fine with little or lack of clothing. There are no rules currently in force around our home that dictate what one should wear.”

Wei Ying becomes a little agitated at being outsmarted and out-explained by his partner. He pantlessly stomps towards the older man and huffs, “You say there are no rules here about clothing, then what does your virtuous Gusu Lan sect’s teaching say about not wearing anything underneath in broad daylight?”

Lan Zhan does not even bat an eyelid on the annoyed shorter man. He lifts the heavily-soaked robe and spreads it. Then he gently shakes away the excess water. “When we were kids, we used to play, bathe and run around in waterfalls and springwater pools within the Cloud Recesses. We’d go topless, pantless or with no clothes at all with close family members. Adults do that too. Our family rules teach us to dress up according to the occasion - that’s all.”

Wei Ying puts a hand to his temples and tries to massage a non-existent headache away. “It’s... It’s a bit difficult for me to grasp this. I never knew you Gusu Lans can be so... so bold in showing off your junk... even around your home grounds,” he groans and shrugs, “You make it look so easy, like you’ve been doing this every day!”

Lan Zhan begins to attach laundry clips to the robe’s sleeves, then the collars. “Wei Ying, I sometimes walk around our home and garden in the nude too,” he dead-pans, and Wei Ying gasps audibly, “Clothes are easily soiled from being in the farm, from housework and cooking; so it makes sense to take them off before starting on any heavy-duty work.” He turns around and is imperceptibly smug at the look of shock and disbelief on Wei Ying’s face. “You’ve probably never seen me naked like this because you’re always at work in the city during the day,” he adds.

A few meaningful seconds passes in silence. So many questions race across Wei Ying’s mind - “how, where, when.. and what have I missed all my life?!”

“Can you hand me those washed garments too? They’re in the bucket next to the dining table,” Lan Zhan calmly asks and point towards their home. Wei Ying is finally startled into action, and he nods shakily. Before he trots off, he asks the older man, hesitantly, “Lan Zhan... do you sometimes cook wearing only an apron and nothing else?”

“Of course.”

Wei Ying cries rivers of invisible tears at the missed opportunities and chews bitterly on his sleeves as he goes to retrieve the said bucket.

Earlier, Wei Ying slipped into Lan Zhan’s outer robes to harvest a few herbs, fruits and vegetables in the hot afternoon sun, because the older man had carelessly left it near the main entrance and it was convenient to grab ‘n go with it. Then, following an age-old recipe given by Grandma Li some weeks ago when summer started, he crushes, grinds, slices and dices the ingredients according to the instructions, and makes a jug of icky-looking brownish-green paste. It smells sweet, fruity, citrusy, green-y with a zest of lemongrass and other aromatic scents - not too bad, actually.

Wei Ying perfected Li’s classic summertime mosquito and insect-repellent paste, upon his first try. He praised himself again and again at his newly-discovered talent of compounding and making medicines, and indulged in lofty daydreams of his first foray into the medical profession - then, his dreams come crashing down when he realized he was still wearing Lan Zhan’s robes and everything, everywhere - including his pastel green shirt, the kitchen floor, the table surfaces, and yes, his partner's beloved robes - was messily splattered with the medicinal icky-looking goo.

He knew Lan Zhan would wake up hungry because it'd be close to his actual dinnertime when it was just after mid-day, so he thought of reheating the cinnamon rolls as a peace offering to the older man, before he got found out.

Later, Lan Zhan wordlessly d-brooms* the kitchen (for the nth time) and did the laundry for both of them (again).

~~~@.@.~@.@.~~~

Lan Zhan is secretly pleased at Wei Ying's sudden burst of motivation and determination to get things done. He couldn't fathom what drives the young man, but he does not question either. He presumes that if it isn't from feelings of guilt or want for something, then it's just one of those random, unknown mysteries in his Perfect universe which he conveniently (and endearingly) calls using the blanket term: "Wei Ying-ness".

The couple had decided (at Wei Ying's insistence) to care for the farm animals first. The afternoon sun is blazing hot although there are a few clouds in the sky, so any garden work is out of the question until later in the day. Lan Zhan only had to open the gates at the fences, and the chickens crowd around (even flew out from the stuffy coop) and obediently follow him, much to Wei Ying's envy and disgruntlement (because no animals with enough intelligence will follow him). They gently collected the rabbits, who are still wary of their owners, placed them into a broad basket, and brought all the animals to a grassy, shaded meadow near a stream.

As they settle down on a bed of grass and wildflowers under the shadows of dense forest foliage - Wei Ying with the chickens and Lan Zhan with the rabbits by the stream -, Wei Ying simply asks, "Lan Zhan, help me put on this insect repellent?", in which the older man Mmns.

Lan Zhan crouches beside Wei Ying and diligently slathers the repellent paste on the younger man's legs, thighs and buttocks. Wei Ying, on the other hand, is engrossed with having fun with innocent animals naive enough to approach his open arms; he happily lures brown baby chicks with worms, grasshoppers and other crunchy snacks (bugs) he'd caught during their short walk to the meadow, and stowed inside a small basket purse. He is good at catching insects, and Lan Zhan gladly leaves that sort of work to him - because deep down, Lan Zhan has a phobia for pests that eat his precious fruits and vegetables, and is more inclined to exterminate them immediately than to keep them in a basket purse. Wei Ying happily picks each snack (bug) and plays a carrot and stick game with the birds - he'd dip the morsel into the waiting open beaks then pull back up at the last second, then moves his hand in circles and (wickedly) laughs when all the chicks desperately follow the wriggling insect between his fingertips with hungry, loud chirps.

Lan Zhan tries to ignore the obnoxious behavior, and continues to coat the younger man's skin with the fragrant paste. When he is almost done, he nudges at Wei Ying's groin with a soundless question, "Here too?". Wei Ying nods absently, as he giggles and grabs the chicks that come too close, bounces them on his palm, rolls his fingers over the incredibly fluffy down from beak to wriggling tummy to the tiny nub of featherless tail ("molest" is the more appropriate word), before putting them back on the ground; he acts nimbly and fast, to make sure the chicks do not panic and cry for help (otherwise their mothers will come hurtling through the air). From a distance, hens and roosters busily peck on scattered grains between meadowgrass; Wei Ying is certainly under the birds' watchful eyes, but the presence of their favourite owner (the "not Wei Ying" human) is reassuring enough.

Lan Zhan sighs at Wei Ying's distracted state, but is confident that Wei Ying knows the medicinal paste is safe enough for one's nether regions, and can be applied there as well. He proceeds to spread the paste on the delicate genitals; he has no ulterior motives other than to dutifully protect his lover from biting insects, but he also takes sneaky delights in massaging the vulnerable soft cock, deliberately tugging back the foreskin to expose the pink cockhead, just a little - because one never knows when and where insects will bite - and lets his coated, slippery thumb and forefinger play with the cushiony glans, and slide over the shy-looking cockslit repeatedly until it quivers just a tad bit without hardening, before he moves his hands lower to caress those lovely sacs, lightly kneading each of the two spongy eggs through folds of warm scrotal skin, and he says a silent prayer that they will fill up abundantly and serve as another night's worth of delightful midnight nourishment.

When Lan Zhan has completed his task, he found that his lover was gazing at him with loving, shimmering eyes. Then, a chick peep-peeped and jumped onto one of Wei Ying's thighs, and the younger man's attention is once again diverted towards the balls of fluffy cuteness.

Lan Zhan is aware that he should focus on feeding and cleaning the rabbits, so he takes his seat properly next to Wei Ying. He finds it enjoyable to have velvety warm-bodies mingle and crowd over his naked lower body. They run up and down his thighs, slide down his legs, and when he lifts his knees to sit cross-legged, they hop underneath and play merry-go-rounds. Soon, Lan Zhan has a sea of wriggling rabbits captured between his crossed legs, and he wibbles and shakes and screams internally because of their unbelievable cuteness . Some of them attempted to lick the paste off his skin - which elicited pleasurable nnnhs from his throat - while the younger ones comfortably nibbled on his toenails; a few explored with tiny paw-steps, others burrow into the cosy newfound nest of Lan Zhan's groin, and then gently snuggle against - to his horror and delight - his hardening arousal, and he was too frozen in fear, absolute humiliation, and a foreboding sense of perverseness to move any muscles lest he surprises any of the skittish creatures and send them scampering away.

He looks to the left, only to be greeted by the sight of a shameless Wei Ying doing the same with his cross-legged sitting posture. A handful of chicks helplessly squirm and struggle in a tight prison of Wei Ying's legs and thighs, and they peep-peeped in increasing distress. Wei Ying seemed to blatantly enjoy the sensations of soft, warm fuzzy bodies wriggling around his genitals (as evidenced by his half-closed eyes, tilted chin upward into the sky with lips slightly parted - that silly and familiar orgasmic face), and Lan Zhan didn't know whether to feel scandalized or mesmerized by the utterly distasteful act - especially when Wei Ying's erection stands at full mast in its own sea of brown downy baby chicks.

Then, a hen flies and lands on Wei Ying's thighs - apparently acting on the chicks' distraught calls. Wei Ying was surprised by the flutter of feathers and the scratchy pain of thick claws gripping on his leg, and could not react in time.

In retribution for the outrageous conduct towards her children, the angry hen pecked the offending cock.

As the clouds roll across the sky, there are brief windows in time when the afternoon heat subsides and it becomes safe to walk in the open without any fear of getting sunburnt (Wei Ying has enough of those from his daytime job in the city).

Lan Zhan squats on one of the garden patches and pulls out a few weeds. They thrive as well as the vegetables, probably because the plants are fed with the same nutritious fertile soil and rich mineral waters from their lotus pond, he thought, and the weeds become a troubling nuisance when they grow so fast that they curl and choke the smaller-sized crops such as Wei Ying's favourite chilli plants.

The younger man also lends a helping hand - and Lan Zhan is grateful, because they accomplish much more, and much faster, together - although he is frequently distracted by other more entertaining things besides plucking unmoving weeds:

Wei Ying would find an anthill and poke it with a twig (just for the fun of it) unless it's full of red ants in which he'll yelp at getting stung and leaves those ants alone;

come across small birds' nests hidden in bushes or between blades of grass, and excitedly bring them to Lan Zhan, in which the latter Mmms in acknowledgement and calmly tells Wei Ying to please put it back where you found them; collect an assortment of empty snail shells, pebbles with intriguing designs, frail but beautiful insect moults and shells such as those from cicada's, in which Lan Zhan Mmms again and tells Wei Ying to leave them on the ground because they belong to mother nature - especially the insect sheddings because his skin crawls from the sight of those yucky things; spends an inordinate amount of time looking under leaves and grass, because he might chance upon caterpillars or other bugs and put them into his basket purse of goodies for the chicks (he hasn't forgiven the hen yet, but he's alright with her babies - there's a small bandage around his aching flaccid cock after Lan Zhan casted a few Healing spells although there are no injuries to the precious organ - just an angry-red nip-mark on the delicate foreskin, which Lan Zhan then applied some herbal antiseptic cream and wrapped a strip of cloth around it. It looks adorable with a white ribbon bow around it. Lan Zhan could not resist giving the pink fleshy tip a kiss after his tender loving treatment - he says it's a healing kiss, but Wei Ying mutters that Lan Zhan is a heartless pervert for taking advantage of his suffering to decorate the victimized cock);

At some point, Lan Zhan feels an urge to relieve himself after having a few more cups of cooling herbal tea during their afternoon farm-work, so he stands up, dusts himself and prepares to find some bushes or run to the nearest irrigation stream. Wei Ying catches on quickly, quietly creeps up from behind and then playfully ambush the older man with a tight embrace. Lan Zhan groans with an irritated voice, Wei Ying, let go; in which the younger man shakes his head in defiance, and starts whistling straight into Lan Zhan's ears and causes the older man to shiver and shake in ticklish discomfort. Wei Ying reaches down to the navel and starts tickling ruthlessly all over the quivering (but well-muscled) abdomen; he runs wiggling fingers up and down the ribs, all over the chest and even the brown nipple nubs are not spared; the attacks continue ruthlessly on the most ticklish and weakest spots with ghosting, scratching and scraping fingernails. Lan Zhan squirms and struggles a little, going breathless, trying his best not to burst into giggles at the maddeningly intense sensations; but he knows, Wei Ying will never let go until he yields to his playful games.

Later, red-faced Lan Zhan is forced to pee on a healthy young chilli plant, his twitching penis still held captive by Wei Ying's hands. The mischievous devil flicks and swings the helpless organ around, creating circular and arching sprinkles into the air. Lan Zhan groans again, not because of the sheer embarrassment from being made to perform aerial displays of pee, but because Wei Ying's terrorizing antics goes up a notch and he starts stroking the tired flesh vigorously while cupping and massaging the balls and groin areas. Lan Zhan is in no condition to reach another normal orgasm because he's still in his refractory period after such a wonderful morning, but he hardens anyway as an instinctual physiological reaction from those relentless masturbatory hand-fist pumps, that Wei Ying manages to make it stiff enough, excited enough, engorged enough to fill the tube leading to the cockslit with a minimal but reasonable amount of pre-cum, sexual fluids mixed with just a tiny, tiny amount of potent seed that his hardworking body is able to produce so far - and he orgasms very weakly in shuddering breaths and trembling hips trying valiantly to hold his legs standing up, and dribbles out a meagre stream of watery ejaculate flavoured with tasty rhythmic moans and heated flushed complexion.

The sun shines at a lower angle, so they worked around the courtyard - sweeping up dead leaves into tidy piles, chopping firewood, taking out the garbage (and compost the kitchen waste), then taking in the dried laundry (including Lan Zhan's bone-dry outer robes), and other menial household chores. Wei Ying remarks that the cleaned courtyard looks inviting for a cultivation session, so both of them stood side by side, and performed a twenty-minute routine together with Lan Zhan leading, and Wei Ying following (actually, he just copies the movements without much thought - they still sweated and huffed and felt their qi energy flow and rise within their bodies; so it must be working).

Lan Zhan decides to work on his mini-project of making a new pair of trousers for Wei Ying. Sitting on the bench by the lotus pond, he sews using the magical needles and threads gifted by Fifth Sister. It takes a little effort to set up the spell - he needed to thread the needles, then align the pieces of cloth he'd cut using the fabric shears (which cut amazingly accurate according to the marked lines on the cloth, and there are no split edges either). Then, he follows the written instructions that came with the sewing kit, and channels minute amounts of qi and Thought (the booklet says "to imagine, with as much focus as possible, on every single detail of the garment, every curve, dart, fold, seam, pattern and design that is intended" - Lan Zhan perfectly masters this with his exceptionally three-dimensional visualization of the trousers, so rich in realistic detail that an imaginary topless Wei Ying in the said garment catwalks across a rainbow runway in his mind). The needle vibrates and thrums with living energy, and starts to float, dive, twist and turn gracefully on its own through the pieces of fabrics, and bring them together into Lan Zhan's first magically-created tailoring masterpiece - Wei Ying's new beige-coloured trousers with fine silky-soft cloud-patterns.

As Wei Ying wipes his sweat from the afternoon heat, he discovers that his bamboo rodent traps had caught three squirrels near the kitchen's windowsill. Undecided on what to do, he shows them to Lan Zhan, who had just finished folding the new pair of trousers. Lan Zhan shakes his head, but makes it clear that he doesn't want them scurrying nor stalking near their home ever again .

Wei Ying gave the older man's words a thought, and finally voiced out his well-kept intention and asked if they could go to the evening market - because he could drop off the squirrels there, and find a buyer for those doomed pests. At market price, three squirrels could go into someone's wild-game hotpot in exchange for a silver piece.

Lan Zhan nods dismissively, because that would reduce their amount of problems living in the isolated estate in the middle of nowhere of an uninhabited forest by three squirrels, and he was fine with that. He also adds that he'd like to stretch his legs and go for a walk at the markets, because - he voices out his own well-kept intention of perusing Third Sister's coupons and cards, and he is looking forward to see how many points he can earn, and what kinds of household stuff he can redeem with those points. Wei Ying scratches his head with a "Huh?", clearly not understanding the mechanics of member and loyalty cards.

Wei Ying then asks, if Lan Zhan's conscience is clear about selling off innocent animals to the slaughterhouse; because he is worried at that hint of sneer that flashed across the older man's face when they talked about the squirrels destined for someone's dinner plate.

Lan Zhan replies curtly that there are too many pests around the 'Mounds. And that he allows that one piece of silver to be exchanged for a jar of Laozu Smiles, for tonight.

Wei Ying brightens up and hums. No further questions, he remarks.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan catches himself yawning although it's just a little after four in the afternoon, and he was sure he had a good sleep earlier that day. He decides to take a short break and leans forward in his seat on the wooden bench, his chin resting on his hands on the table, observing his lovely Wei Ying treading in the shallow waters of their lotus pond.

Wei Ying walks towards the deeper centre of the pond and then goes down on all fours with a splash. He crawls along the pond's bed, his head sticking out amongst the upright blooming lotus flowers, and his hands roam around to find a good-sized lotus root underwater. Although the water is clear, however, the oversized lotus leafs covered a significant area of the surface and gives ample shade to the pond, so it is impossible to see through the dark, shadowed waters.

Lan Zhan enjoys the view of Wei Ying's naked ass weaving among the pink blooms, and he thought how nice it would be if he was feeling up for it, dive into the waters, grab his tantalizingly vulnerable lover by the hips, and make sweet amorous love with that puckered inviting rosebud as pink as the flowers surrounding them in their pond of blissful passionate love. He'd feel so homely and comforted, he would likely stay inside his lovely Wei Ying for the rest of the day - if he wasn't feeling so sleepy at the moment (he yawns again, just as he spies a pair of slightly hairy balls jiggling between lean thighs).

Soon, Wei Ying is immersed in waist-deep waters, at the centre of the pond. He starts to giggle in the rippling waters and tells Lan Zhan that the fishies and shrimpies are nibbling and tickling all over his body. Lan Zhan explains with a neutral tone that they're probably just eating up any dead skin, cleaning his toenails, and giving a free beauty spa. Wei Ying refuses to believe him, and shouts out that of all the animals that he's encountered around the 'Mounds - almost every single one of them avoids him except for these unintelligent freshwater creatures; so it must be because they're trying to be friendly with him. Lan Zhan hnnns and nods off drowsily, because he knows it's not worth his time to argue on trivial matters regarding how impossible (and absurd) it is for fishes to become friendly with a human.

The next time he wakes up with a rude jolt, Wei Ying cried for help in splashing waters.

Unbeknown to the couple, Wei Ying enjoyed immensely being tickled (and loved, he imagined) by the friendly community of freshwater creatures. He giggled, chortled, and hiccuped with so much laughter his quaking stomach began to ache. Naturally, the wavy movements of involuntary muscles sent bubbles of gas out from his rump and into the pondwaters.

The denizens of the lotus pond have been feeding on all sorts of stuff , including waste and non-waste substances from their human owners, and have come to like, even actively seek out for, tasty morsels that are imbued with incredible amounts of life-giving and high-growth qi energies. They've also learnt that there are two sources of the said precious food, with one being more superior and tastier than the other.

When those bubbles of gas erupted from a particular human's rear, the creatures detected and immediately reacted with excitement - it's the superior-tasting morsel of food that they crave so much. (Because Wei Ying did not clean the insides of his ass after such a wonderful morning with Lan Zhan; aftercare is primarily Lan Zhan's job, after all)

Like a swarm piranhas bathed in a pool of their favourite meal, the fishies and shrimpies go berserk and head towards their superior-tasting food.

Lan Zhan is drenched from head to toe with pondwater and ends up with torn lotus flower petals, leafs and broken stems hanging from his body and clothes, when he heroically runs into the shallow pool and drags out a flailing (but not drowning) Wei Ying. When they make landfall and safely climbed onto the edge of the pond, he is stunned and astonished; even as teary-eyed Wei Ying cries, shouts swear-words at all sorts of marine and freshwater species he's learnt in school, curls up his body into a ball and with hands grabbing blindly at his rear, he tries to pull out the wriggling, writhing invading creatures worming into his asshole.

Lan Zhan has come to accept that at times, there will be occasions and mind-boggling levels of Wei Ying-ness that shakes, breaks or makes his Perfect universe spiral out of control into something different altogether - for better or worse.

He shakes his head and has no words to describe what he thinks or how he feels. Gently and methodically, he helps Wei Ying to extract fish, eels and shrimps and place them into a basket. After a quick Healing spell directly into the gaping canal, and a Diagnose spell to make sure there is nothing else to worry about, he cradles a traumatized, quivering wet and red-flushed Wei Ying in his arms by the pondside.

Lan Zhan mentally notes to investigate further into this unbelievable phenomenon, and then educate his lover about how fishies can (not) become friendly with a human.

That evening, the planned dinner menu: freshwater extravaganza hotpot, boiled fish, egg fu yong with lots of shrimps, stir-friend mixed garden vegetables and sliced lotus roots, and steaming hot rice.

Notes for the Chapter:

Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays!

I wrote this on the fly because I realized that this arc is supposed to be about farm animals, but I hadn't written anything about them so far in the recent chapters!

So, my apologies if it's a bit crazy and rushed, but I hope it's still a fun read for everyone!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 26

Notes for the Chapter:

NOTE: This fic is on temporary hiatus or will progress at a slower pace as The Untamed Special Edition has just started its run, and I'm literally in a state of "Ican'teven" from the new / deleted scenes!

Extra scenes from the previous chapter

Wei Ying pulls out all the stops when it comes to making Lan Zhan's daily life as joyful and fulfilling as possible, especially on the days when he doesn't need to work in Yiling (because his daytime job is exhausting, and he comes back tired with little energy for anything else), when he isn't in a rush to spread his legs for the older man (because there's plenty of 'everyday's, on every day), and when his mind isn't distracted busy hatching up new pranks (it's just Wei Ying being Wei Ying; no further explanation needed).

For example:

When they herded the chickens and carried the rabbits to the meadows, Wei Ying would start by humming an old Gusu folk tunes he'd learnt during his student days in the Cloud Recesses. Then, Lan Zhan would unconsciously sing a few lines because he knows the words by heart, and together, they end up chorusing in perfect harmony;

Even after suffering a (brutal) nip to his birdie - now tied with a cute white ribbon bow -, he accompanies Lan Zhan to play with the rabbits. He knows the older man has an unhealthy obsession in observing the creatures' behaviour, movements and natural habits. Wei Ying deliberately nudges the fertile doe toward the energetic bucks, and unsurprisingly, Lan Zhan becomes transfixed in watching a soft porn flick of rabbits attempting to mount each other repeatedly. Wei Ying casually coats his palms with the gooey medicinal paste (which acts as an excellent lubricant), then sneaks his hands into the older man's crotch and starts fiddling with the hard-half meaty arousal. Lan Zhan becomes terribly conflicted because he doesn't know whether to admonish Wei Ying, keep watching the breeding rabbits, or just give up and let Wei Ying indulge in his secret kinky fantasies and playfully stroke him in time with how the buck pistons speedily into the doe's rump. While struggling to make a choice, his breathing becomes erratic, he loses focus and images of mating furred creatures blur into fingers that keep circling, curling and squeezing until he knows that he will lose to the pleasurable waves throbbing from his melting dick surrounded by a sea of rutting rabbits. His indecision proves to be his downfall, to Wei Ying's delight and giggles;

As they weaved through the many rows of growing cabbages, carrots and other greens to check for undesirable weeds or insect pests - Wei Ying walks side by side with his spouse, suddenly grabs his hands and intertwines their fingers, and he happily swings the joined hands back and forth. Lan Zhan would blush with a tiniest tinge of pink on his cheeks, at such a childish and subtly sweet, romantic display of affection from his lover. His hands grow warm in Wei Ying's firm grasp;

When they walk close enough to each other, Wei Ying switches gears and takes advantage of their proximity and pantslessness. He starts touching Lan Zhan at every opportunity, just like in the morning. At first, the older man tries to be patient and tolerate the frisky fingers that slide underneath his shirt to molest the heated skin and muscles - not to forget the nipples - until they tickle and tingle with pleasure. He starts to groan Wei Ying's name in warning, but that falls on deaf ears and it is futile to ward off those pesky hands that keep pinching and swatting his defenceless buttocks, slide between his moving thighs and jiggle his jewels, and naughty grabs at his harassed semi-erection. Lan Zhan feels bothered, restless and his nerves become a little more frayed, the gentle liquid flow of his Perfect universe becomes disturbed, stirred, swollen, rising, rising and finally overflow their riverbanks. Lan Zhan growls, pulls Wei Ying by the wrist and yanks both of them into a bush. Then, he crudely pushes the young man to the ground pillowed by freshly watered grass and summer flowers, and he has no problem spreading Wei Ying's naked legs between his hot and bothered convulsing paste-lubricated cock. Wei Ying laughs and cries rape and mockingly accuses the venerable Han Guang Jun of taking his virginity and sexually assaulting his abused ass. Then the cries fade and turn into shameless moans;

While practising cultivation, Wei Ying doesn't need to think or recall the intricate steps and limb movements, because he copies Lan Zhan's moves perfectly fine. He easily becomes bored and starts chattering while drawing wide circles with his hands, sway his body to symbolize the eternal flow-patterns of yin and yang , and throw sharp punches and kicks to cultivate, develop and raise the qi energy levels in his body. He talks about something he remembers from sixteen years ago, something about the sudden heavy rains during the day before, something about manufacturing a particular order of talismans for a customer later in the evening, and something about his plans for the next few days. He goes on and on about his views, his hopes, his dreams, his wants and what he likes and dislikes, while mimicking Lan Zhan's every moves. Lan Zhan does not appear distracted, and his face remains perfectly expressionless; he listens attentively and takes on a ready-stance;

When Lan Zhan exhales after performing the final Eighth Level stance, and starts wiping sweat from his face and neck with a towel to wrap up his cultivation practice, Wei Ying hastily skips over and grabs the older man's wrists. He bounces excitedly and tells Lan Zhan to Let's go there, over there, right over there, come on, COME ON!; in which the Lan Zhan gives a confused look that speaks multitudes of What is it, Why, What's happened, Where are we going, Why are you dragging me; but Wei Ying is thrumming with joy, glee and his feelings of anticipation and his fluttering heart soars high with re-charged qi batteries that he nearly hauls the older man into a patch of dense grass because he's impatient, he wants it, WANTS IT NOW DAMN IT. Minutes later, Wei Ying flings Lan Zhan's sole garment (the poor shirt) high up to a tree's branch, pushes the older man down and straddles him hard, and proceeds to fuck himself vigorously on Lan Zhan's (tired and fatigued, and already lovingly emptied excessively too many times) lovestick with rolling hips and balls-deep thrusts. Lan Zhan helplessly moans and claws and kicks the grass and nnnghs rhythmically on the ground for quite a while after that. The day's cultivated qi pleasantly drains into Wei Ying's quivering ass in forced, excited spurts;

Lan Zhan sits on the wooden bench next to the lotus pond, fully naked, and needs only a minute to fix the small rips on his shirt - a victim of Wei Ying's passionately aggressive seed-sucking lovemaking powered by qi - fuelled lust. He sighs and tells himself he should be more aware of Wei Ying's mood swings, which can be susceptible to qi energy levels. When he's done with the shirt, he prepares to fix a couple more garments and make a new pair of trousers for Wei Ying.

Wei Ying approaches with a tray of tea and a plate of light snacks including a mix of toasted nut, reheated bread rolls and sweet bean dumplings. (His face is shiny and smooth, his complexion glows, plump and moisturized; he looks to be in the pink of health.) As he places the food on the table, he bends down and fondly kisses Lan Zhan's left cheek. Lan Zhan Mmns in acknowledgement, and feels Wei Ying's naked groin rubbing seductively against his back. He feels something familiar twitch. Wei Ying licks his lips.

Wei Ying certainly livens up Lan Zhan's day.

4:00 pm

Lan Zhan also livens up Wei Ying's interesting time-twisted day, although the older man has no knowledge nor recollection of the usage of such prohibited spells; other than feeling rather sleepy after the afternoon snack.

(In modern times, it wouldn't be too far off to say that he's no good with jet lags.)

After the terrifying episode involving un friendly denizens of the freshwater pond, Lan Zhan gently bridal-carries Wei Ying back to their home, where he dries off the shaking teary-eyed man with a towel, gives plenty of hugs, and lulls him to calmness with back-and-forth rocking motion in his embrace and sweet murmurs of "It's alright, it's alright".

He tells Wei Ying that he promises to take him to the evening market, so he needs to be a brave boy, and brave boys don't cry. Wei Ying nods fervently like a child listening to a parent's advice, and snuffles to get rid of runny snot in his nose. Lan Zhan continues to rub soothing circles on Wei Ying's back, and asks if he's alright to have a delicious seafood hotpot dinner with the fishies and shrimpies (because there's a whole bunch of them waiting in the basket on the kitchen counter). There is a meaningful pause, before the younger man nods cautiously and agrees. Good boy, Lan Zhan says with a smooch on the forehead and a ruffle of hair at the back, and adds that Brave boys will be rewarded with yummy food and a memorable trip to the market. Wei Ying "En!"s cutely, feeling better, and dark memories of those creatures violating his ass a while ago dissipates like gossamer in the summer breeze.

Lan Zhan tells Wei Ying to wait outside the kitchen while dinner is being prepared, so that they can leave for the evening market earlier. He creaks his neck muscles and cracks the knuckle joints while wielding a large, deadly-looking chopping knife. He cuts up the still-wriggling, immobile creatures in the basket in the worst, most gruesome, and inhumane ways - leaving blood, entrails and splintered heads splattered all over the kitchen counter; it's his own way of expressing his utmost rage at the fishies and shrimpies that dare to touch his beloved Wei Ying.

Wei Ying stays in the workroom and starts writing out talismans to be sold in his next trip to the marketplace. A few housewives have placed advanced orders of useful household spells, especially the elemental ones. When he's done writing the twentieth talisman (and feels awfully bored and mentally exhausted from doing so - because it's as boring as copying Gusu Lan's scriptures), he notices the opened gift-box set of sewing stuff . With his typical overwhelming curiosity, he reaches for it and starts taking apart the box and its contents. As he takes out each needle, thread and other indescribable items, analyzes and fiddles with them, his back knocks against the Dustless Broom. The older man had stored the cleaning stick in the workroom after using it to clean their house (more than once a day).

Wei Ying grins, and decides that he can write the rest of the talismans later.

4:30 pm

Lan Zhan finished chopping, cleaning and arranging the ingredients on the counter - in perfect sequence, shapes and sizes. His apron is splashed with bloody red, so he takes it off, soaks it in the kitchen sink for a bit, before throwing it to the laundry basket. Next, he goes to the outdoor bath for a quick rinse because there's so much blood on his hands , and when he returns to the bedroom in search of something to wear from the wardrobe cupboard, he sees from a distance a hardworking Wei Ying hunched over on the workroom's table.

Lan Zhan thinks he should reward his brave and hardworking boy.

4:45 pm

Wei Ying walks with springy steps to the kitchen with lively shouts of “Lan Zhan! Lan Zhan! Look what I’ve--” and the noise dies down.

Lan Zhan turns around with two bowls of freshly slaughtered fish, eels and shrimps in his hands. A hotpot containing clear meat broth has been set to boil at the center of the dining table, and several plates of prepared side dishes surround it, including an ugly-looking boiled freshwater tilapia, an egg dish and stir-fried vegetables.

Wei Ying is more than thrilled, not because of the sumptuous feast laid out in front of him; Lan Zhan wears only a new apron and nothing else.

5:00 pm

“Wei Ying, five more minutes. The broth will boil and we’ll start dinner.”

“En!” and Wei Ying happily mmmfs into a face full of firm fleshy glutes and nuzzles and breathes in deeply through the butt crack. He sits on a chair and lovingly embraces a standing Lan Zhan from the back, and has been spending the last many fulfilling minutes molesting the naked broad back, feel every rise and dip of perfectly-contoured muscles, skimming fingers down the ribs on the side and the small of the back, where he lick lick licks the valley along the spine and then he feasts on the appealingly smooth, toned ass. He bites, licks, swats, pinches, caresses and does whatever he wants to his heart’s content.

Lan Zhan squeezes his glutes, alternating between both sides. Wei Ying cheerfully chomps on each.

“Do the thing you always do when you’re in bed,” Wei Ying murmurs sexily into the ass cleft.

Lan Zhan sighs and humours Wei Ying’s pointless request (it is pointless, because it happens in bed everyday anyway), takes a low squatting stance, and starts shaking his hips and wiggle the springy muscled mounds of flesh.

Lan Zhan is surprisingly athletic and flexibly, and twerks well. Wei Ying becomes an excited ball of Yes Yes More Yes Do It Oh Yeah Baby, and starts grabbing and spanking the enticing ass.

5:05 pm

As expected, the broth boils, the raw food is dumped unceremoniously into the hotpot and sweetens the bubbling liquid into a tasty, nutritious and wholesome simmering seafood soup, to whet the couple's vengeful appetites of the fishies and shrimpies.

Wei Ying revels in the sights that accompany their dinner, especially when Lan Zhan purposely parades around the kitchen to grab the salt shaker, pass a spoon, pour another serving of soup, top their rice bowls, and put the dirty bowls and plates into the kitchen sink one by one - and Wei Ying takes every chance to swipe, fondle, touch and jiggle whatever his fingers can reach, each time the older man passes by.

After a satisfying dinner, they strolled to the outdoor bath with Lan Zhan feeling Perfectly accomplished and composed for having scored perfect tens in keeping his lover happy after a long, long morning and afternoon. Wei Ying reciprocates and snakes his limbs erotically all over Lan Zhan, seducing and sexually coaxing the older man to do the deed, as an unspoken gesture of thanks, and they have a quickie in the splashing, rippling bathwaters.

To celebrate the end of Wei Ying's No Pants Day, the couple kissed passionately with their bodies closely intertwined and joined; Lan Zhan yawns mid-way into the kiss, and Wei Ying cast a few spells, including Energize, and the older man enthusiastically resumes their amorous, intimate act until Wei Ying is left breathless above, and underwater.

6:30 pm

“Yes, yes, let's hurry up and get this done! I wanna visit every stall in the funfair, and I don't want to miss the fireworks!”

Earlier, Wei Ying had shown Lan Zhan his latest invention, which consists of the detachable round head of the Dustless Broom affixed to a plain wooden plate. One of the magical needles gifted by Fifth Sister was glued to the plate, and it is surrounded by a dizzying array of colourful talismans plastered on the same surface including modified Eye, Memory and Energy spells, bound by a complex pattern of bright blue Binding Spell threads.

Lan Zhan correctly guessed that upon activation, somehow the needle will point to the desired directions, similar to how it can gracefully float, dive, thrust, spin and twirl when sewing fabrics together. Wei Ying has channeled qi into number of modified Energy talismans that act as a temporary, portable power source for the needle, so that it is able to generate enough momentum to move the entire structure; especially since the needle is tied to threads connecting the Energy sources.

Wei Ying lifts the plate to Lan Zhan's eye level, and instructs the latter to touch one finger to the needle, and the other to the Memory talisman. The older man goes along with the request, though he feels a bit silly doing so. Following the next set of instructions, Lan Zhan closes his eyes and tries to imagine his daily routine of d-brooming the floor around their cave-home. He recounts his steps, the junctions where he turns, the furniture that he avoids, and also walking along the edges right until he hit the corners - in perfect high-resolution images and tidily executed sequences inside his mind. The modified Memory talisman glows yellow as it absorbs the thoughts through the man's fingertips, and that same luminescence travels into the needle, which starts to vibrate animatedly.

Wei Ying takes away the humming d-broom, taps two fingers on the enhanced Eye talisman "to make sure this thing can see where it's going", and then gently places it on the ground. He unnecessarily shouts his nonsensical mystical phrase of "Alibaba! (阿里巴巴)! A-ling de baba! (阿令的爸爸)" with raised hands, just for the sake of entertaining himself.

"It's... alive!" his voice quivers and goes up an octave.

The dinner plate-sized d-broom whirrs alive and starts to move on its own. Lan Zhan stares at the cleaning stick-turned-automaton as it slowly drags itself on a path that Lan Zhan is familiar with, leaving behind a trail of shiny cleaned floor surface. He is astonished, speechless and doesn't know how to feel besides absolute awe; although, somewhere deep inside, there's a small prickly bitter-sour feeling in watching a nonliving object taking over one of his favourite and eponymous role and identity at home (because Lan Zhan is to Bichen as Bichen is to the Dustless Broom, and they all get rid of the dirt and dust in their own worlds) - is there a foreboding sense of impending helplessness and redundancy?

He didn't have time to ruminate through his thoughts, as Wei Ying grabs him by the wrists and rants non-stop about the waiting snacks and candies vendors, of funfair games, and maybe finding a few rabbit-themed lanterns to buy at the evening market.

D-broom continues to teeter-totter unsteadily around the empty cave-home following its predetermined route, after its inhabitants leave on a sputtering flying Bichen to Yiling.

Notes for the Chapter:

I can't I can't I can't I can't I can't.

OH MY GOD The Untamed Special Edition has just been released and my brain has short-circuited and my fic-writing blood circulation just got cut off instantly...

I've been left so barren, dead, unfeeling, dying from the lack or the perceived end of any new Wangxian stuff from the live-action drama.. that seeing my twitter feed EXPLODE into life with bursts of deleted scenes - I.. AM.... ALIVE..... AND.....FLY----YING.....!!!!

Even just a few extra seconds of seeing Lan Wang Ji spinning and stumbling drunkenly around Wei Wuxian in the Cloud Recesses... my frozen Wangxian inner fangirl heart has melted more than it had in the last few months after the drama ended.

So, my apologies that this chapter ended abruptly. I will patch things up when things have calmed down and continue to write more!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

p.s.: added one more section for "6:30 pm", because I just needed to get this out before I slip into the abyss of The Untamed and fall in love all over again.

There are three main evening markets in Yiling and numerous vendors throng the streets and set up their stalls to lay out their wares after six pm. The markets span several more districts during the weekends to draw a bigger crowd; during festivals, school holidays and certain celebrations, those streets become packed because of special attractions organized by the townspeople, such as concerts, funfairs and fireworks displays. Summer is in full swing, so evenings in Yiling are teeming with locals and visitors from nearby provinces, enjoying the vibrant nightlife that the city has to offer.

Wei Ying had asked Lan Zhan if he was really sure to go on a trip to the evening market, while both of them blazed on Bichen at full throttle against a backdrop of fading deep orange-red hued sky at dusk. Lan Zhan merely nods, adamant on keeping his promise despite Tian dajie 's advice. He tells Wei Ying that they'll take extra precautions, and confidently says that "It will be alright." Wei Ying leans closer and tightens his grasp on his partner's hand.

Eventually the sun dips below the horizon, welcoming a clear night sky with few silver-lined clouds. From a distance, between forested hills that encircle the sprawling city, hundreds of amber lanterns light up and dot the Market Streets, creating a beautiful gold-speckled landscape that mirrors the starry heavens above.

Heavy swords are forbidden in the main market areas during active business hours, as gazetted by the City Council, for safety and security reasons. In the past, local police officers were posted at the entrances and in booths located around important junctions, and there have been occasions where rogue cultivators swoop in and cause a ruckus in the streets, or worse, rob unsuspecting pedestrians in a typical hit-and-run fashion; they're known as "pirates from the skies".

However, in the recent months, Wei Ying has noticed a disconcerting increase in the presence of fully-armed (and often aggressive) Jin patrol guards, which have kept the townspeople on their toes, and kept the streets' crime rates very low; although pirates and robbers no longer dare to emerge in broad daylight, there is always a sense of fear and unrest from the people due to the constant checks and harassment by the guards - especially those who linger in the streets for too long, boast interesting-looking equipment such as fancy swords or luxury items of high value, or those who are clad in dark colours (which run against the Grand Cultivation Council's latest gold-themed socio-cultural programmes aptly named "Gold Is In Vogue").

"Lan Zhan, watch out - I see some Jin guards at the main parking lot," Wei Ying barks out in warning as they approach an empty plot of land just a stone's throw away from the Market Streets. His eyes stare at a glowing reflection from an activated, modified red Eye talisman that allows him to spy far distances in the dark with sharp vision (the same talisman used with lampblack for burning detailed pictures onto fabrics, such as one with Wei Ying and Lan Zhan 'lewding the bunnies', not too long ago). A few unwary cultivators have landed their swords on that lot, and unsurprisingly, they were approached by some burly-looking men in gold-plated armour. One with a particularly wide broadsword and a drunken, flushed complexion, and sported filled money pouches dangling from his sash, was inevitably apprehended and led away with his legs kicking in mid-air. (Wei Ying sniggered inwardly - that man probably has his sights set on the gambling dens in Fragrant Blossoms Street, which isn't too far from the evening markets.)

It seems a number of people have the same idea, and soon, the couple found themselves stuck in a sort of traffic congestion of clashing swords, cultivators pointing and swearing at each other, and blades cutting into others’ queues. The hectic scenery is not uncommon, especially during dinnertime peak hours and people rush to find any remaining available parking space on small patches of illegally-cleared bushland on the fringes of Yiling.

Fortunately, Lan Zhan is able to maneuver Bichen with amazing dexterity and finesse despite its bulky and heavy-duty design, and avoid any untoward accidents (having the cutting edge of a blade poke into another’s shoes can be an unpleasant and bloody experience). They had to allow a few unruly (young, with ridiculous punk hairstyles and garish robes) cultivators who swerve too close and rudely pushed everyone aside to cleanly insert their sword at the front of the queue. Wei Ying shouted a few cuss words but his voice was drowned by angrier older men and women on even bigger rides.

Lan Zhan remains unfazed at the disturbance, and focuses on steering Bichen slowly to the next available slot. One ambitious couple overtook them and side-skidded in. Flustered Wei Ying starts to swear again but Lan Zhan’s reaches up to push down the younger man’s shaking, accusing pointing index finger, signalling him to calm down his ruffled feathers. At last, after guiding Bichen to fit on a narrow strip of grass, and sheathing the blade into its scabbard to lock it, the couple got off with a heavy sigh - in some way, they were mentally exhausted - but victorious; solving their parking woes means half of the battle is already won. Lan Zhan pays the fee of a silverpiece to a shady-looking man dressed in black layered cloaks, and off they go, to the evening market.

Wearing light-coloured clothes and not carrying anything that may attract unwanted attention, the couple easily blends into the moving masses of commoners, scholars, farmers, merchants, artisans, cultivators, martial artists, magic-users and all sorts of folks, locally and from other provinces. Wei Ying is especially thrilled with his new pair of beige trousers, and he doesn't hesitate to walk with a spring in his steps and an extra sway in his hips, while twirling a small burlap bag with his fingers.

The crowd increased in size as they approach via the West Market Street. At the sight of two Jin guards at the junction leading into the evening market, Wei Ying instructs Lan Zhan to seal his golden core to avoid detection; during his hair-raising street peddling adventures, Wei Ying has seen a fair number of Jin magic-users, and they are adept at wielding many kinds of spells, including those that sniff out their own kin and gifted people who possess suspiciously high levels of qi or golden core energies. The older man obliges, makes a cross-mark sign on his chest with a zzip! sound, and they walk ahead.

Wei Ying “Waaaah!”s with gleeful sparkles in his eyes when greeted by colourful bright lights, blaring music, noisy chatters, and miles upon miles of people and their families meandering amongst rows of market stalls and shopfronts. The couple walked slowly side by side, and when Wei Ying spots some interesting wares he'd grab Lan Zhan's wrist and drag the older man to the targeted stall. There is a variety of vendors selling touristy (such as shirts with brash loud "I-Love-Yiling" prints with a big heart for Yiling's "Y") and cheap fashionable clothes and footwear; dodgy-looking souvenirs and collectables (woven scarves, handbags and purses, embroidered goods); antiques (counterfeit terracotta statues sell very well), shiny accessories (with fake precious stones made with questionable craftsmanship); and even normal household goods. A few street peddlers tried to sell them twisted and useless versions of Yiling Laozu portraits and magical gadgets, which peeved Wei Ying to no end, and Lan Zhan had to grab his wrist and drag away his disgruntled lover.

During the leisurely stroll, Wei Ying would try to keep their physical contact without being too obvious:

Sometimes he when passes Lan Zhan, he'd momentarily hook their index fingers before letting go; Lan Zhan feels his fingertip throb a little;

Wei Ying would excitedly hop from one stall to another, and when he swivels to the next vendor with Lan Zhan at his back, he pretends to lose his balance, and place a palm on the older man's chest to steady himself. Lan Zhan lets Wei Ying massage his muscled breast for a few seconds, and even a couple of flicks on his nipples through the shirt with a naughty thumb;

While hunching over a cart to scan a tabletop full of bangles, earrings, necklaces and anklets made from cheap glass and low-grade jade, Wei Ying knows all eyes are on the goods and not towards the floor. He sneakily slides one leg to the side and rubs the top of a foot against Lan Zhan's calves in seductive circles.

As the crowd swells, Lan Zhan began to trail behind Wei Ying with a thinly-masked look of discomfort; people start to squeeze each other, and strangers' hands start to rub and hit one another unintentionally; he appears especially constipated (distressed) when tailed by buskers, street performers, peddlers, even the odd beggar and people dressed in bizarre costumes preaching some kind of exotic cult or religion (one of his nightmares, really). Wei Ying, on the other hand, has a time of his life haggling or having a shouting match above the din with vendors hawking their goods on wooden carts or even on a piece of canvas on the dusty ground. He'd find out the kinds of colours or shapes available, then ask about the prices and try to bring them down, then happily declines and skips away without any thought or regret; Lan Zhan used to find this behavior to be strange - why would a person ask about the goods, and not buy them? - but these days, he doesn't question Wei Ying's logic anymore.

At certain times, Lan Zhan finds himself caught between haphazard streams of market-goers. He's not good in dealing with such situations, and usually stands petrified with a distraught look on his face until a window of opportunity appears to escape; however such windows are rare - when Wei Ying realizes Lan Zhan has gone missing, he sighs at his partner's ineptness and backtracks to (easily) find him (Lan Zhan is slightly taller than the average adult male, and his exceptionally good looks draws attention from younger female shoppers - especially when he halts in the middle of the street and becomes very conspicuous). Wei Ying would wedge himself between the older man and the sea of squirming moving human bodies, then, with a wrist grab, gently guides Lan Zhan to relative safety, usually in front of another stall. Lan Zhan finds himself forcibly pushed into Wei Ying's back when people continue to knock into them, and finds his crotch snug against the younger man's ass. He blushes when his slowly-hardening arousal rubs through his trousers along the butt crack - in public, no less. Wei Ying lets Lan Zhan remain in position (again, petrified), and rocks back and forth on his heels. He hums idly while browsing the stall's wares, and Lan Zhan's blush deepens.

By the time the couple emerged from the West Market Street with a few small purchases - mostly household goods that Lan Zhan needed for the kitchen (such as an extra ladle for his pots, a pack of laundry clips because the crows have stolen many of them before, and at Wei Ying's insistence, a set of two tacky-looking heart-filled mugs with the words "You're Mine" on one of them, and "I'm Yours" on the other; Wei Ying successfully bargained down the price of their purchases to half of their original values), they arrive at the funfair's open grounds.

Lan Zhan adjusts his trousers a bit, and follows a hyper-excited Wei Ying with a basket bag of their purchase held tightly in front of his crotch.

There were the typical games such as: ring toss, spin the wheel, scooping goldfish, card games, throwing balls into moving baskets, hide-and-seek with coins and papercups, and shooting at straw toys with children-sized bows and arrows. Some of the games have been rigged, so the couple knows they will win some money, and lose some - all in good fun;

Also, more family-oriented ones such as bumper carts, exciting horse-driven rides through overgrown bush trails that swerve and spin their passengers violently (Wei Ying loves to lift his hands and scream YAYYYYYY while Lan Zhan grips the edge of the bamboo seat with a pale face), and carousel rides themed with the twelve mythical Middle Kingdom Zodiac animals;

There are a number of organized team games including friendly matches of bouncing jianzi (featherball), spinning tops, and handball. Lan Zhan prefers to watch Wei Ying enjoy these games (and play against other children); he does not participate willingly, unless Wei Ying shouts “I need another strong man in my team!”.

At one point, when the couple sat down to have refreshing bowls of cooling herbal tea sold by a beverage vendor, a particular booth owner proudly announced that for every five targets hit in the bullseye consecutively, the winner can choose any toy prize displayed on the shelf; for ten targets, a grand prize of a beautiful paper lantern. Wei Ying wasn’t interested in the selection of straw dolls, wooden toys and porcelain animal figurines; but has his sights set on the lanterns that hung from the top rack.

He hands his half-drunk bowl to Lan Zhan, and says, “Hold my tea.”

Wei Ying loves to be the darling in everyone’s eyes. He raises his arms to welcome the gathering, curious onlookers filing in from other booths. Then, he struts back and forth in tune to the increasingly curious murmurs, and postures with the bow and arrows. Several children in the audience squeal in excitement. Finally, when he feels the heat of anticipation radiating from the circle of mesmerized observers, he raises the bow horizontally, loads it with five arrows at once and unleashes them in a blink of an eye. Five straw targets are hit on the mark, and the spectators cheer - and then challenge him to do something crazier.

Wei Ying thumbs his nose and smugly shouts out to his new fans, “Look at me! Look at me!” (in which Lan Zhan does with a barely-noticeable smile; his inner self applauds like a lovestruck fan, and his heart skips a beat). He then blindfolds himself, grabs a handful of arrows (they look more like palm-sized darts) and slides them into his belt, then gracefully spins around and draws his bow again. He hits the centers of three sets of straw targets in rapid succession - five targets for each set, stationed next to one another. The crowd goes wild and Lan Zhan calmly claps his hands (his inner self is left screaming breathlessly with adulation for his idol-lover-spouse-hero, and his heart skips two beats).

The booth owner was stunned, but concedes to Wei Ying's win to the delight of the people surrounding the stall. For a total of twenty targets struck by Wei Ying's amazing archery skills, he picks out two large unlit lanterns with rabbit designs - these are intended to be hung on the front entrances of homes, and their bamboo frames can be folded into small, compact discs. Lan Zhan adds these to his basket bag.

Just then, a squad of stocky and heavily armed Jin guards jostled through to check on the commotion. The crowd immediately starts to disperse; Lan Zhan was caught in the moving tide and was pushed to some distance away; some people dashed helter skelter, while others politely give way. The guards eventually reach their target and loom over the shorter Wei Ying menacingly. Lan Zhan stiffens, and was ready to pull out his newly-bought ladle from his basket bag, and throw the laundry clips at the intruders (they can function as lethal missile projectiles in the hands of a great cultivator); Wei Ying shakes his head a little towards the older man, signalling him stay out of the encounter and remain hidden. Lan Zhan nods once, then slips into the shadows in-between two nearby deserted stalls. He is extremely tense and vigilant.

Wei Ying transforms immediately to his jolly, humbled, airheaded self, and uses his A wesome S elling S kills to disarm the guards with plenty of praises to the Jins, and a crafty story that he was a hunter, and was skilled with bows. He even showed them the contents of the burlap sack slung over his shoulder; two guards wrinkled their noses in disgust at the sight of knocked-out squirrels. The third guard was a little more cautious and hovered a glowing palm over Wei Ying's chest. " Shixiong , I sense a very weak core in this man, but there is magic-using potential in him. I do not know how far his spellcasting abilities go, though."

The second, mustached guard, leans very close and eyes Wei Ying from head to toe, before drawing back with a surprised "Ooooh!". "I've seen this man before - he's one of those peasants that peddles cheap magical talismans around here at daytime. To think that he hunts in the bushes for wild game to eat or sell, how poor and wretched can he be?" he remarks with disdain and laughs mockingly. The guards are handsomely paid and live the lives of elites; they are pampered with food served on gold or silver platter, and the thought of having to walk into the forest to kill something to eat is repulsive.

The magic-user guard, an experienced cultivator himself, agrees and adds salt to the wound, "For all we know, he could have enchanted the arrows with low-level spells before making those so-called perfect shots. What a cheap trick, and a disgrace to the cultivation world!" The guard snorts incredulously. In response to that, Wei Ying kowtows repeatedly and mumbles, "Yes Yes Yes! Young masters, you're all are correct, I'm just a poor man trying to earn a free meal here, using all sorts wily ways that I can think of... I've learnt my lesson now, I'm really a useless man, I won't do it again... can you let me go just this time?". His servile attitude attracts more scornful laughter from the trio.

The biggest, meanest Jin guard steps up, and the other two retreats as a sign of respect for their eldest. A bearded imposing man of an impressive height over seven feet tall and a gold-plated armour twice as magnificent, he towers above everyone at the scene. He stoops and stares down at a frightened-looking Wei Ying for a few seconds.

Lan Zhan's hands trembled, and grips the handle of the ladle tightly.

"You're really hopeless; admitting your guilt before we even strip you down and do a body search," he bellows out a threatening laugh, "Very well!" then hoists Wei Ying by the front collar until the younger man had to tip-toe and bend his back at the same time to avoid nasty sour breaths fuming out of the giant's nostrils. "So, troublemaker, we find you guilty for fraud and misuse of magic in public. We're taking you to the nearest police station for questioning, so save your pitiful excuses when you face the magistrate!" His roaring voice was so loud that any explanations died inside Wei Ying's throat.

"Ahh, da ge (big brother), do we really have to? The General told us to look out for particularly gifted and talented people with strong cores and abilities. A scrawny, weak magic-user like him isn't cut out to be part of the army. There's really no need to meddle with the city's affairs. Plus, I'm really hungry now...", the second guard interrupts with a whine, and his stomach growls in agreement.

"Er ge (second brother) is right. This is the local police's job, not ours. Our patrol shift was over half an hour ago and we should be having dinner at the Kitchen of Prosperity by now," the third guard chimed in.

The leader weighs the words of his men for a while, and then sighs. With a strong muscled arm, he shoves Wei Ying to the ground and snarls, "Fortunately for you, troublemaker, we have other better things to do. So... scram! Don't let me see your face again on these streets." The guards march away with heavy steps, leaving a cloud of dust on Wei Ying and the third guard kicked his shin before they left.

Wei Ying coughs when the breath he'd held is finally released with a loud wheeze. Lan Zhan rushes to his side, and helps Wei Ying up. He grabs the burlap sack that had fallen to the ground during the confrontation, and together, they quickly leave the empty fairgrounds before the crowd returns.

They headed southward, opposite of the direction of the Jin guards. Wei Ying was fine and escaped with a few bruises on his back from being thrown (slammed) to the ground by the brutish leader. Lan Zhan knows that Wei Ying had been roughed up by the guards on many occasions during his daytime trip to the city, but this is the first time he's seen it with his own eyes - and his heart clenched in fear and with great anger.

As they weaved through rows of market stalls and stayed close to the lantern-illuminated roadside curbs where there are visibly less people, they talked about what they'd heard from the guards. Wei Ying guessed that some of the rumours are true - that the Jins, who have widespread influence and presence across the Middle Kingdom, are actively seeking out cultivators and forcing them to join their side. He was surprised that the army would go to such lengths to bolster their numbers, to the extent of abducting people from faraway cities and settlements using crude and intimidating methods. He starts to wonder aloud about what they plan to do with the captured cultivators, how the prisoners are enlisted into the army, are the Jins really as bad as the Wens, what is going on in the Carp Tower and how this is related to what is happening Yiling - or worse, the neighbouring cities towards the Far West.

Lan Zhan remains silent as Wei Ying talks on and on, even when they've found a quiet spot in a nearby park, and away from prying eyes. There were very few passers-by; these were mostly residents living close to the markets and hurried through the empty green space with their purchases. A few lanterns lit a trail that circled the park, casting dim amber hue to everything within.

Lan Zhan isn't able to cast any spells due to his sealed core, so he retrieves a bottle of medicinal paste from his sleeves - the same one that repels insects, which also acts as a soothing, nourishing balm for wounded skin -, then slowly peels off Wei Ying's modest upper garments, before applying the paste with light dabs on the purplish bruises that mar his back.

"Ah, ah, not so hard, it's quite painful, you know," Wei Ying groans on a picnic bench, his back facing the older man. He takes a sip of the cooling herbal tea from their bamboo container that Lan Zhan had packed from the beverage vendor earlier.

"You were brave, Wei Ying," Lan Zhan finally breaks his silence. A breeze blew; the night air is cooler in the park, and the sound of crickets is louder than the murmurs of lively conversations and the cacophony of any typical bustling evening market filtering through the dense foliage.

Wei Ying turns around, and both of them straddle the same bench, facing each other. He takes Lan Zhan's paste-coated fingers and places them on the naked left chest, above the nipple, where he lets Lan Zhan feel his racing heartbeat. Sixteen years ago or so, Wei Ying had a burning brand mark at that same spot; now there are only Lan Zhan's fingerprints on the smooth skin.

“I was brave, wasn’t I? It was scary, and it was also painful, Lan Zhan,” he whispers sultrily into the dark, and leans forward until their lips almost touched.

“Can you comfort me just a little?” he asks, sweet, innocent, wanting.

“Mn.”

Notes for the Chapter:

So I took a short break to re-live my Untamed moments by watching Special Edition clips offered by people generous to share them on the internet. Sighhh... just re-watching sweetness and innocence portrayed by Wangxian during their student days in the Cloud Recesses, and comparing that to this fic... it feels I've dirtied my hands many times over with the smut that I've created *lol* That extra look into each other's eyes, that longing gaze from afar... sighhhh.

I've had a lot of fun writing this chapter, because Wangxian's finally stepped out of their cave home, together, for real !!! (ha ha ha, the hurdles I need to overcome just to get them out...) And something is brewing for them... dun dun dun!

Chapter 28

“Ah, ah, slow down... breathe in... then out... that’s it, breathe in again... ah, ah, don’t shoot so fast... stop, please, otherwise it’ll overflow too fast... and spill down my thighs... breathe in... then out...”

Lan Zhan bites his lips to mute an agonizingly prolonged groan as he struggles with one of the biggest challenges of his life - still, he’s on the verge of failing, and failing spectacularly.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Earlier...

“Wei Ying, I.. I don’t think I can do it. I’m empty. Let’s just... hug each other?” A gentle, kind request.

“Speak for yourself. Look at your didi here.” One hand pulled down the trouser’s waistband for the world to see his lover’s crotch. His fingertips expertly reached in and unabashedly played with the exposed penis, nestled safely in a bush of fine pubic hair. They jiggle and bounce the hefty weight, caress the silky foreskin, draw lines and circles along the veins, fondle the contracting muscles along the underside and skimmed all over the swelling flesh, before dipping in and out of the slit at the edge of the spongy tip, repeatedly. He easily enticed pearlets of clear, slippery liquid out of the rising member.

“Ahhhn...W-Wei.. Y-” Lusty and incoherent.

It’s so easy to arouse Lan Zhan, Wei Ying thought.

The couple made out passionately on the picnic bench under the shadow of tall, dense shrubs. They kissed, groped, touched and licked each other’s heated skins, moaning each other’s names into each other’s heavy breaths; Lan Zhan made love with hot, wet kisses on the lips and entangles their saliva-coated tongues passionately with sensuous sliding, rubbing movements, mimicking what he plans to do inside Wei Ying later on; Wei Ying nnnhs breathlessly under the sweet, sweet oral assault, then slid his hands underneath the older man’s shirt; he runs his fingernails over the broad, muscled chest, raking the sensitive nipples in the process, before descending down the smooth hilly abs and glides inside the trousers to reach his prize. There, he leisurely strokes the older man’s cock and cups the large ballsacks with gentle squeezes; Lan Zhan had been aroused earlier by Wei Ying’s flirting at the market, and in no time he was hard as a rock again. Lan Zhan easily edged towards his climax, much faster than his younger lover - until they heard the sound of approaching footsteps crunching on gravel trail.

They froze in heart-stopping suspense for a minute, still in each other’s embrace, and waited with bated breath until the person walked away. Wei Ying was apprehensive to continue on the bench, so he grabbed his shirt and their bags with one hand, held Lan Zhan’s wrist with the other, and led them deeper into the inky-dark thickets.

When they reached the more secluded parts of the park, away from any lantern light and walking trails, Wei Ying sighed in relief and lay against a tree trunk. He yelped lightly at the pain from his bruised back, so he turned around to lie the other way around; his face against the chilled tree bark; he needed to catch his breath after the brisk walk. Just as he put back on his shirt, his trousers fell loose. Broom-Bichen calloused fingers fumbled at his underwear in the shadows, and when it didn't yield, they curled claw-like and started to paw at the delicate cloth. Wei Ying groaned in exasperation - but with understanding as well - he reached his behind, adjusted that last piece of garment covering his lower body, and pulled aside the strip of cloth. His ass cleft and balls felt drafty.

(Wei Ying wore a simple red loincloth - think fundoshi, or something that resembles a loose thong - because his favourite red underwear was soiled earlier, mostly with his lover's semen. Lan Zhan had no qualms to wash it for the second time that day, and it will probably hang on the laundry line overnight.)

Strong, clammy hands gripped his naked hips from the back, then Wei Ying felt a slimy-coated rod part his glutes and poke hungrily at his rosebud. Wei Ying gritted his teeth and forced his lower muscles to relax, allowing entrance for the invading organ into his love canal. He couldn't see in the dark, but the fruity herbal scent told him that the medicinal paste was used as lubricant, and the huffing, increasingly desperate groans into his ears, interspersed with gentle nips on the earlobes, his nape and shoulders, sent shivers down his spine, and he knew that Lan Zhan would not last much longer despite just a couple of minutes of bareback fucking. One of his legs was lifted, and the tempo and depth of each powerful thrust increased; balls slapped deafeningly loud against his ass as his lover snapped his hips and pounded forcefully in a shared, timeless rhythm that only the couple knew. Wei Ying felt the cock was literally sawing into him, the tasty growls behind his ears were getting too much, they were going too fast-- “Lan Zhan! You horny animal... slow down, or you’ll make too much noise!” Wei Ying hissed softly into the dark.

Just then, they heard the unmistakable swish of robes of another passer-by. The couple stopped again, this time in mid-fuck, unnerved and sweaty. Something swelled inside Wei Ying, and pulsated a couple of times - nearly in tandem with his wildly-beating heart. His one leg - the one that was still in contact with the ground - trembled in fatigue from holding up the body’s weight, and from the excitement and fear of being discovered - they were like insatiable lovers trying to consummate their relationship with illicit trysts in the darkness of the night.

Wei Ying felt a trickle - just a drop - of gooeyness leak from his asshole, and it slowly rolled down his perineum and to his left testicle. He quickly pulled out, and winced when he felt a throb inside his stretched passageway; they hadn’t done enough foreplay and preparation before the intercourse. He quickly reached down to the ground, felt the grass a bit, and picked up a leaf.

“Did you cum?” he asked bluntly in a whispery voice, as he wiped that drop he’d felt on his left ball. It was gummy, and still warm.

“A.. a little,” a guilt-laden, panting voice answered. Lan Zhan must’ve felt too good and couldn’t hold back his excitement, Wei Ying thought - with a little proud smile.

He turned around, but all he could see was pitch darkness. Still, he could imagine where his lover was, what he looked like, what posture he was holding - he easily made a swiping motion with a hand and perfectly slapped Lan Zhan's still thick and erect shaft. The older man ahnnhs shakily.

"We can't go on like this, at least not in this park. It's not secluded and people can see or hear us anytime. You can't cum inside me, otherwise I won't be able to walk the rest of the market with your stuff constantly leaking down my thighs," there was a slight moan (from the imagery), "and I won't be able to sit down properly when we have supper later."

Wei Ying felt around blindly until he found his favourite twitching rod. He gave it a few firm strokes accompanied by squishy sounds of lubricant paste, sexual fluids and leftovers of a pre-ejaculation, eliciting shuddering breaths from the other man. He likes to edge Lan Zhan as much as possible. "I can't calm you down using my mouth because it's covered with, you know," he polished the tip with a curled palm and made juicy sounds to emphasize his point; Lan Zhan was probably losing his balance with his quaking knees by now, "so I guess we'll have to make do with handjobs."

Wei Ying re-adjusted his underwear and pulled out his own semi-erect cock through one of the openings of his underwear; he also needed to finish with Lan Zhan, so that they can get on with their market trip; the vendors will not wait! Soon, the couple stood face to face in the inky blackness - not too close, because that would be too suspicious if someone chanced upon them - and Lan Zhan rubbed their cockheads together with a housework-roughened fisted palm. Wei Ying relishes in running his fingers everywhere on Lan Zhan's sweaty crotch and therefore covertly molesting the man who was about to reach his climax; as well as pleasuring himself by lightly dancing fingertips on his quivering balls until they start to rise and tighten.

Lan Zhan must have had a brilliant streak (blame his nightly reading of PeiNis magazines), because he suddenly pulled his foreskin and stretched its opening over Wei Ying's glans. Wei Ying nnnnghs at the silky soft sensations of elastic skin rubbing over each other, and each time their cockslits kissed, Lan Zhan massaged their cockheads simultaneously with his wide meaty palm. The little enclosed pocket of foreskin and penises began to fill up with warm watery slickness not unlike pre-cum, and after a couple minutes of docking, there was again that familiar two-pulses of very excited, spasming flesh - this time, a heated, thick glob slid out to mix in the frothing pool of liquid between the quivering, engorged tips; Wei Ying could probably guess who it belonged to, and that it must've felt really, really good for him. The older man's breathing became erratic.

Wei Ying shifted restlessly while standing on the grass, languidly jerking his hips as pleasure burns its wildfire inside his loins, and he stepped on his own rumpled trousers. Something clicked inside his mind.

"L... Lan Zhan, you... you can't cum yet!" The pumping, perspiring hand ceased moving immediately. Wei Ying could feel a pair of eyes staring at him in utter disbelief, and flared nostrils inhaling-exhaling in distress to hold back whatever waves that was about to rise and crash over. "If you - we - cum, they'll spill to the ground and dirty our clothes!" Wei Ying wheezed.

Suddenly and for the third time that night, they were interrupted in their quest for a quickie - by the sound of leaves rustling in the bush next to them. In a moment of unthinking mindblank and panic, Wei Ying swats Lan Zhan's hand away with a frustrated growl, and pulls back his dick - taking along his lover's tightly-docked penis straight into his snug, bulging loincloth wrap.

Lan Zhan struggles like a dying man in front of his lover and an unknown child. He’s lost all dignity and pride, incontinent in his control of a rising, rising and cresting, plateauing orgasm that was held back for so many times, too many times; the lustful liquid fire welled up from deep within, his hips jerk upwards once, twice, and that heavenly, unstoppable sequence of delicious rolling contractions start from his balls, through his full and swollen prostate, bursting forth from the base of his lava-molten cock--

He doesn’t have his golden core to turn down, snuff out or even delay the inevitable explosion. All he can do is to muster all possibly and humanly controls in his entire nether regions to stave off the mind-blowing orgasm that has already started its countdown. Having his twitching cock squashed against the warmth of Wei Ying’s genitals doesn’t help at all.

“Ah, Hei ge ! (黑哥; Black Brother) Why are you here?” the boy asks with a big toothy smile - with two teeth missing -; he’s no more than six or seven years of age, still brimming with childish innocence.

“Ssssh! Go away! I’m busy! Shoo!” Wei Ying hisses panickedly at the boy. He waves away desperately at the boy, nearly slapping the small round face.

“What are you doing? What’s going on down there--” the lantern is lifted a little higher, to illuminate a wider area on the ground. Lan Zhan is horrified, and starts to pray that Goddess Guan Yin’s would show mercy upon his current life-and-death predicament. The first prayer verses are disrupted at the same time the first volley shoots out into the warm cavern of Wei Ying’s cosy loincloth.

“NO!!! Look here, A-Bing! You look at me and listen to me!” Wei Ying almost shrieks (because he felt the first heated spurt), and stares more than daggers at the boy (there is also horror reflected in his eyes at the realization of what is happening inside his underwear). The boy jumps back a little bit, startled.

“ Ah, ah, slow down... breathe in... then out... ” Wei Ying seemed to whisper to the side, unheard by the boy and directed only to him.. Lan Zhan has closed his eyes and knows that they’re somewhere rolled to the back, because the sweet, sweet waves of ejaculation keep coming. He squeezes all the voluntary muscles in the pelvic region, to stop, prolong, and Guan Yin help him, please just slow down this torturous excitement.

The boy sounded offended. “What? And why are you wearing white today? You can’t fool me, because you’re always hei (黑; black) anyway, Ha ha ha!” Lan Zhan tries to focus on Wei Ying’s words, by controlling his breathing. With each faltering breath, another pleasurable roll of contraction runs up his cock, spilling out another rich dollop, painting both cloth and his lover’s flesh with hot seed.

“ ...that's it, breathe in again... ” Lan Zhan furrows his eyebrows in absolutely conflicted delight as a particularly large viscous glob gently gushes through fluttering urethral muscles and cockslit. The feeling is indescribable. He's fearful that the next load will be too much.

“Wei.. Hnnnngh... Hhn, Hhn, Hhn... Hhhhwei...” he hears himself groaning for help unintelligibly.

“ ...ah, ah, don't shoot so fast... ” three quick successive shots adds to a growing pool of sticky cum inside the cup-like vessel that wraps his lover's groin.

“Eh, Baishe de shuaige (白色的帅哥 ; The handsome brother in white colour), are you alright? Are you a friend of hei ge ?” the question is directed at him, but he no longer hears anything except his own racing heartbeat and the rhythmic, satisfied growls he's trying so hard to keep inside his throat.

“Ahh.. Ahhhnn.. Ahh.. Ahhh” It's too much, he's reaching the apex of his climax, he cannot control what comes out from his vocal cords. He feels his thighs tremble, fast losing strength, toes curling into the grass, his fingers balled into knuckles.

“Are you going to sneeze? Are you having a flu? You look like you have a fever, bai ge ,” (白哥 ; White Brother). Lan Zhan can feel a pair of innocent childish eyes peering closely at him. He sweats profusely, and he arches his back in spastic motions, his nostrils flared, jaws slacked and gaping wide because he wants to shout out his surging pleasure the same way his seed is being unloaded in lovely, glorious pulses.

“ ... stop, please, otherwise it’ll overflow too fast... and spill down my thighs...” Wei Ying sounds extremely vexed, having to deal with the nosy boy and his orgasming lover in the wrong place, at the wrong time. Lan Zhan tries with his might to draw out each ejection, so that it flows gently like a stream rather than in forced squirts. Again, and again, the creamy warm milk escapes out of him.

“A-Bing, go away, NOW! I’ll give you candies tomorrow if you listen to me. GO!” Wei Ying loses his patience and barks at the innocent boy.

There is a hesitant pause, in which during this time Lan Zhan hnnnns audibly with another long orgasmic contraction. “Ehhh... you’re so weird, hei ge . All right, I’ll go now. Give me a candy tomorrow, and give one to bai ge too. He looks like he needs it.”

“ ... breathe in... then out...” he’s at his tenth or twelfth twitch, or maybe fifteenth; he’s lost count. It’s still spewing out like a freshly dug-out spring. He’s losing his breath, his ears are ringing, and he feels light headed from the rippling electrical shocks tingling all over his lower regions. His deliciously spasming cock already feels wet and sloshing in something thick, and he doesn’t want to know why.

Wei Ying, on the other hand, is chasing the boy away with whatever ruse he can think of. “Yes, yes, yes, I’m giving one to him now. I beg you, please go away, otherwise bai ge will get very sick from the flu, and spread it to you too!”

“Ahhh... okay, I’ll really go now. I don’t want to get sick!” the boy shouts back, maybe sticks out a tongue, and there is already the sound of running footsteps across bushes, fading away, gratefully, thank Goddess Guan Yin for her mercy.

After a couple more choked breaths, and when he’s descended from the heavens of his climax, Lan Zhan finally opens his eyes, his body still shuddering and wreaked with involuntary jerks. He thinks he’s done twenty twitches, performed according to his lover’s instructions and to the best of his mortal abilities. He hopes, and says another silent prayer, that Wei Ying’s loincloth held up well.

Wei Ying’s loincloth underwear is fortunately - or not - one that comes with extra padded layers on the front; these layers absorb and hold fluids well, and when used according to instructions, they keep the owner dry and comfortable all day long (think sanitary pads/napkins that can be washed, dried and re-used).

In desperation, the younger man had cast a very tiny Fire spell that worked like a small torch aimed at a particular direction. He peeked through the waist strap of his underwear and surveyed the aftermath.

“Ahh, look at what you’ve done... my underwear is really soaked and everything is a sticky mess,” he whined into the dark. Wei Ying's erection had wilted when A-Bing appeared. Lan Zhan sat on his rumpled trousers on the ground, still trying to catch his breath. He looked relaxed and rather dazed. Post-orgasm sleepiness threatened to overwhelm him, and he tried to concentrate on what his lover is trying to say - he remained silent.

“It’s a swimming pool in there, and if I try to adjust or move the cloth, some of it will leak out. Lan Zhan, you’re a really perverted beast! I can’t take this off, because if I do, I will have nothing to wear underneath the thin trousers, and everything will still dribble out,” Wei Ying complained with a high-pitched voice. Lan Zhan thought his lover was being unreasonable - because Wei Ying was the one who instigated the whole chaos, not him. (really?) His Gusu Lan-honed virtues told him that baseless accusations need not be responded to; just as how certain inferior clan members can be considered as not qualified to speak to him, in an incident around the ‘Mounds not too long ago. (hint: Su She)

“What?” Wei Ying gasped and sounded flabbergasted.

“The next scheduled delivery of medicinal candies is after the weekend. Not tomorrow. Do not lie to children, Wei Ying,” he clarified clearly word by word, taking a leaf out of Gusu Lan's over-4000 rules for the last part of his words. He gazed stoically at the dimly lit and agitated young man.

Wei Ying's facial expression turned from surprise to confusion then to exasperation. "Ahh, Lan Zhan, you rotten man, is that all that you can think of?!"

".... Mn."

"A-Bing is one of those street brats, by the way," Wei Ying pointed out. Street brats are his mortal enemies, and should not be treated with dignity.

"He looks like a good child. Do not call children as 'brats', Wei Ying. It's disrespectful," Lan Zhan calmly recited another of his family's rules.

Wei Ying threw his hands up with a groan and a wordless "I give up!". He pulled up the loincloth's waist strap to make sure it was tight against his crotch (one warm, sticky opaque droplet leaked out to his right inner thigh, but Wei Ying didn't care anymore), then put on his trousers and angrily stomped past Lan Zhan towards the main market streets.

He paused a little when he was beside Lan Zhan, and whispered hotly into his ears: "Let me tell you this, Lan Zhan. Your little Wang Jis are bathing inside my underwear right now, and I'm going to rub out my baby Wei Yings to play with them. Just imagine both of them swimming in a warm, comfortable sticky nest of womb and ripe eggs, waiting to hatch out more and have plenty of family fun." Lan Zhan shivered.

"You can sit there and think about lying to bratty children about candies, or you can follow and make me feel better for the rest of this trip," Wei Ying added, before he switches off his Fire spell and walks away, leaving a flushed Lan Zhan in the dark.

Lan Zhan groans; he's hard - again.

Notes for the Chapter:

Chapter 29

Lan Zhan is as apologetic as Wei Ying is forgiving when it comes to working out their petty arguments, just like any other loving married couple in the Middle Kingdom:

The older man openly admits, with a rare display of sad puppy-looking eyes, about his wrongdoing of dirtying his younger lover's underwear, but Wei Ying insists that he'll be fine because after a while, it gets crusty, sticky and almost solidifies into a mass of gel, and so, it doesn't run off like, say, raw egg whites - which is still inconvenient, but can be easily washed off by rinsing in running water;

Wei Ying also says that there has been a great deal of times when Lan Zhan carelessly left his semen in many other places on the body besides the usual orifices, so he is pretty used to cleaning and picking up after the older man - undergarments included. It happens as often as, say, the number of times when Wei Ying scatters his clothes and other loincloths all over their home during their regular drunken sex (where Wei Ying is known to twirl the straps, and slingshot them to the furthest reaches of their home, rooftop included) - so who is he to complain about a mere sticky pool inside his underwear that his husband promised to wash off?;

Finally, Wei Ying turns around and gives Lan Zhan a sweet smile, and murmurs shyly that they're already husband and wife, that they share their bodies, feelings and souls together for this lifetime, and therefore matters concerning bodily stuff - semen being the least worrying of all - should be as everyday as their Everydays;

Lan Zhan becomes speechless, embraces Wei Ying for a whole minute, and kisses him full on the lips, which the latter returns with a cosy warm bear hug under the shadow of trees.

The couple leaves the park via an unlit thoroughfare into the South Market Street, with Lan Zhan carrying all their belongings and he tries hard to contain a barely-noticeable giddy smile on his face. The road was deserted, so they walked side by side and leaned into each other with their hands intertwined in between. When a horse cart approached, Lan Zhan gently pulls Wei Ying towards his body, and the latter lands with a soft uunf into a pillow of the older man's muscled chest and abs, while Lan Zhan's puts an arm around Wei Ying's waist. Lan Zhan breathes in the scent of Wei Ying's hair, and for Wei Ying, he is comforted by the strong, steady heartbeats against his heated cheeks. They stood together in silence for a while.

Lan Zhan asks, what about the child named A-Bing and the so-called bratty children that he meets at work in Yiling. Wei Ying considers the question carefully, and tries to imagine beyond juvenile name-calling, stolen candies, thrown twigs and stones, being kicked in the leg, the odd silverpieces lost during the scuffle - and sighs into the older man's collarbone. Wei Ying concurs that they are all actually good children, but raised in hardship, poverty, without education and without parents. There was a tremor in his voice in the last couple of words. Wei Ying goes on to say that some day, when he has earned enough, he would like to set up a school or a home for underprivileged children in the city. There, little boys and girls like A-Bing need not go hungry in the streets, need not fear being chased by bad adults like the Jin guards, nor the stray animals that roam the city all day.

From a distance, they heard the echoes of dogs barking into the night.

Following their hastily-drawn evening itinerary, the couple stopped by the food court corner of the South Market Street. Rows of small shops, some of which are mere hole-in-the-walls, which are mostly empty and quiet during the day, become packed with hungry patrons during the evenings. Small time vendors and humble family-owned businesses converge to turn this part of the street into a kaleidoscope of colourful, brightly lit food stalls with equally big brash signages, boasting cuisines from all over the Middle Kingdom, at jaw-droppingly affordable prices - perfect for Yiling's middle and lower class citizens (which is the opposite of what one would find around the North Market Street with wares and fares more suited for the upper echelons of society). The air is filled with an eclectic, exciting mix of steaming hotpots and dumplings, fragrant stir-fries and fried foods, boiling noodle soups and a variety of broths and teas, and mouth-watering smoke from barbeque grills; and is lively from jolly and zesty folk tunes played by groups of youngsters as they meandered from one dining table to another, seeking fair donations for the live entertainment.

Although the night was chilly, the atmosphere significantly warmed up in that area (to the extent that one's clothes will end up smelling of food due to the amount of steam and smoke everywhere), so the couple decided to find a table in the open-air section. Wei Ying easily dropped off the squirrels at a vendor who specialized in wild meats (and they know each other quite well; Wei Ying has become more than just the occasional supplier from the 'Mounds'); the timing was perfect - it was past dinnertime, people are still streaming in to look for 'heaty' suppers, the vendor was running out of meat and he still had a queue to serve - so, Wei Ying happily pocketed two silvers at the end of the hurried transaction, and said a silent prayer for the unfortunate family of rodents.

Wei Ying beamed with a cheerful grin when he caught sight of Lan Zhan, who found a table at a corner of the jam-packed food court. Lan Zhan waved his hands anxiously to make sure he was seen because there were so many people walking by. By the time, he approached the small table with three wooden stools, he carried a freshly bought twin-pack of Laozu's Smile in his hand.

Lan Zhan had ordered their food and laid them neatly on the table (one can draw symmetrical lines between the dishes, if needed): a bowl of steaming plain vegetarian noodles in soup, two bowls of spicy congee - one with minced chicken, and one with pork and offal -, a bowl of cooling mung bean soup, and a pot of tea. Wei Ying waved the two Laozu's Smiles in front of the older man, but Lan Zhan waved back one index finger (there is no need to question where the extra jar comes from - Lan Zhan trusts Wei Ying enough to know that the man has his own cunning, but acceptable, ways of getting more than what he bargained for). With a knowing smile, Wei Ying packed one of the wine jars into the basket bag sitting on the third wooden stool, and uncorked the other.

As they dined and drank, Wei Ying chattered mostly about everything under the sun and particularly some of the latest gossip he'd heard, his thoughts about those gossip, other people's thoughts, and what he thought about other people's thoughts. Lan Zhan hardly comments on Wei Ying's animated stories, but he Mmms and nods to tell his lover that he's listening well, and yes please do go on. Sometimes, he adds some very brief and sharp, snide remarks, and Wei Ying bursts into joyful laughter and "I can't believe you said that!"s. During their light banter and between chews, Wei Ying unconsciously, wordlessly picks out the minced chicken meatballs, dabs them against the bowl's edge to rub off the spicy oil, and plops them into Lan Zhan's bowl. The older man accepts without question, and slips them into spoonfuls of noodles, leafy greens and tofu. There are still traces of spiciness, though.

Wei Ying remarked that he was glad they'd taken their dinner before going to the market, "otherwise I would be heartbroken to want to eat everything here and spend all our money just on food alone" - and he'd just bought a foldable hand-fan made of cheap rice paper from a street peddler mingling among the crowd, right after his first bowl of congee and when he'd just started on the second, because he was sweating from the spiciness and enjoyed every mouthful with delightful mm-mmmh sounds; Lan Zhan opts not to mention about the ill-fated fishies and shrimpies, and keeps to his factually-correct and financially-acceptable explanation that 'it's easier on the purse strings'.

Wei Ying remained talkative throughout the meal, and he even made a few acquaintances around them. A family of six sat at the table next to theirs, and by the end of a brief exchange of pleasantries and idle chat about the weather, he had captured a potential customer who promised she would find him at the daytime marketplace to buy his Wind talismans to keep the summer heat out of her house. A foreigner-looking young scholar dined alone at the table behind the couple, and judging from his uniformed attire and a scroll titled "Cheatbook for Cultivators: How To Ace The Exam In 100 Ways - International Edition" visible from his carelessly-left open backpack, Wei Ying correctly guessed that the young man in his late teens was on his way to the annual Imperial Cultivation Examination. Wei Ying gave some (useless) tips involving bravado, recklessness and out-of-the-box thinking, which clearly made the man uncomfortable (because he was spooked by such unorthodox thinking by a man claiming to be a master and yet appears not much older than he; in addition, the foreigner scholar spoke little of Middle Kingdom's main languages since he hails from the Far, Far West) and quickly finished his food before leaving. Wei Ying wondered what was the hurry, Lan Zhan mentally noted a useful informative tidbit: that the Imperial Cultivation Council in Chang'an had recently stepped up recruitment by offering potential candidates with ample living allowances and other benefits, and the recruitment drive spans deep into the Far, Far West. It would be intriguing to observe how the conflict between the growing armies of both sides will pan out - the Imperial Cultivators bolstered with numbers from regions beyond the Middle Kingdom, and the Grand Cultivation Council led by the Jin sect and its (unwilling) alliance with other major sects inside the country.

When they were done with supper, Lan Zhan hesitantly inquired about the state of Wei Ying's loincloth, especially after sitting down for at least half an hour in the muggy heat. The younger man chuckled that it felt like he was incubating a serving of mashed herbal jelly between his balls and thighs (in which Lan Zhan choked at his last gulp of tea) - and he apologized promptly for speaking in jest - that actually, he'd gotten used to the sensation of half-dried cum coating his genitals, and little Wang Jis are probably squashed between his eggs and baking in their heat (at that point, Lan Zhan coughed terribly hard, and drew a few stares from other concerned patrons in the food court).

Truthfully speaking, Wei Ying revealed, his loincloth weighed uncomfortably heavier due to having absorbed much of the seminal fluids, there is some residual but tolerable warm stickiness on the skin, between the sensitive skin folds, and even underneath his foreskin, and he felt an all-encompassing, suffocating anxiety that something might be squished out if he sat too hard on the padded layers because the loincloth feels horrifyingly leaking wet at least inside his mind. He appreciated how women feel during their monthlies, and empathized with their struggles and suffering.

(Back in the day, female sanitary pads/napkins weren't as absorbent as their modern-day counterparts)

Lan Zhan regained his composure, then surreptitiously adjusted his trousers (or the nth time, because he kept eyeing on Wei Ying's crotch for no real reason, and that sparked a weird, fetishy feeling tickling from his nether regions), before they continued along the South Market Street.

Wei Ying started humming some old, well-known Yunmeng tunes as he walked with a spring in his step, a slight flush to his cheeks, and an index finger (brazenly) hooked to Lan Zhan's. The older man kept a straight face when they passed some market goers - sober and drunk ones - and he politely waved at the husband-and-wife couple manning the Great Eats of Gojoseon when they walked past their storefront. Wei Ying probably will not remember that Lan Zhan fanned both of them, especially the younger man, with the just-bought hand-fan, for nearly the rest of their evening date on the market streets.

More traders line the street and they chant sing-song catchy messages to attract customers. The selection of goods is more localized and less touristy than that from West Market Street, and consist of a greater proportion of foodstuff, groceries, clothes, sundry, and other kinds of daily provisions. Several shops open until late hours, including bookstores, medical shops, businesses selling prayer items, talismans and other magical and religious goods, and so on. Further ahead, skilled practitioners offer various services for health and well-being, including massages, acupuncture and acupressure, cupping, fortune-telling, beauty and aesthetics including removal of body and facial hair, warts and other minor procedures.

The couple briefly browsed the wares and services and picked up a bag of plum candy because it goes well with their afternoon tea. They also browsed, in a fortunately quiet corner of a lingerie store, and purchased a box of regular loincloths. Wei Ying remarked that it was very romantic for two men to shop for underwear together, in which Lan Zhan hmmpfs and said that it was out of necessity; since loincloths come in free sizes and both of them can share their underwear. To Lan Zhan's dismay, Wei Ying refused to change his soiled loincloth because "it's still holding up fine", and in some weird, fetishy way, piqued the older man's interests.

As they passed more shops, Wei Ying paid particular attention to his potential competitors of magical talismans and gadgets (and tried to learn their secrets and techniques), while Lan Zhan preferred to spend some minutes freely skimming through magazines, periodicals and other reading materials; he didn't forget to quietly pick up a pack of prayer scented candles as well.

Wei Ying wondered aloud if he should try one of those body hair removal services, especially since the hirsute curls on his legs looked unappealing (when compared to ink brush-drawn models as seen in the lingerie store) and probably unsuitable for the hot summer months. Lan Zhan replied that Wei Ying looks perfectly fine and there's no need to shave something that would grow again by winter. He also made a soft, barely audible, off-the-cuff remark that the sensation of the younger man's legs rubbing against his while they're in bed, just before waking up - is a comforting, reassuring feeling.

Wei Ying squealed, grabbed the fan from Lan Zhan's grasp, then covered their faces with that said fan from the people around them, and gave his saccharine-sweet-and-shocked Lan Zhan a hard kiss on the lips, and a caress of soft tongues.

(Wei Ying is overtly concerned about his body image; but isn't aware that he also enjoys the physical features of his partner. For example, when they cuddle in bed late at night, Wei Ying often finds himself awake and staring at sleeping Lan Zhan's broad muscular pectorals, devoid of hair - except around the nipples. He would fondle, sweep, twiddle, and skirt his fingers on the ring of fine hair around each brown-pink areola, playfully tug at it to see if any strands will come off, and then when each one puffs up from the relentless stimulation, he'd feel a childlike urge to lock his lips on each of them, alternately, and suckle the nipples like a newborn. Lan Zhan would mnnh in slight discomfort, moves a bit in his disturbed slumber, and Wei Ying falls asleep too, lips still happily massaging each brown nub for his partner's non-existent breastmilk.)

~~~@#@~~~@#@~~~

Wei Ying happily munched on eight skewers of classic tasty street foods, held between his fingers on both hands - spicy lamb and beef, marinated savoury chicken and pork, two kinds of grilled sausages and another two types of seafood fried meatballs. Lan Zhan held a fruit skewer and a stick of fried tofu dipped in plum sauce in one hand, and a small brown paper bags containing sweetened buns and sugar-roasted chestnuts in the other. The older man said, between some a-hem a-hem throat-clearing and a blush on the cheeks from that earlier passionate kiss, that it was a rare, once-in-a-blue-moon treat "due to the windfall they received earlier from Tian dajie ", and Wei Ying mmmf-mmmfs vaguely with a full mouth.

Lan Zhan doubted if Wei Ying was aware that their snacks cost a whopping (at least in his perspective) single gold piece, or the fact that he was clearly contradicting his earlier words about thriftiness; but when Wei Ying cutely nibbled like a hungry rabbit from each skewer in perfect sequence from number one to number eight, then looked at him expectantly, in which Lan Zhan picked out a sweetened bun from the paper bag and Wei Ying took nibble number nine; Lan Zhan thought that all of Wei Ying's nibbles were too precious, too priceless, and can never be quantified in terms of gold.

After a satisfying gulp, Lan Zhan let Wei Ying have a bite at a sweet flavourful chestnut, because he had to see through to the end to complete a Perfect tenth nibble - after which he felt a soothing tingle in his head, his muscles relaxed a little more, and his senses told him that the stars in his inner universe had completed a flawless orbit around its core, warranting another repetition. Wei Ying didn't mind a repeat performance; Lan Zhan became intensely (nearly obsessively, hypnotically) focused on feeding his lover, nibble by nibble, despite drawing a few curious glances from other customers in the snack foods corner.

Later, a very contented, zen -like Lan Zhan walked a cloud full of nines, hand in hand with a very full and euphoric Wei Ying. The latter's cheeks are full-blown red, eyes half-lidded, and he's singing folk tunes from Gusu modified to pop-rock version at the top of his lungs, with crude burps in-between. He held the empty jar of his second Laozu's Smile, and kept stumbling over the curb and clumps of small plants. They stepped out of the streets and headed towards a clearing on a rocky outcrop nestled amongst a ring of dark, dense bushes, just a stone's throw away from the market's southside; most of the crowd had gone to the north where a grand podium had been prepared for people to gather around and watch the fireworks.

Reaching their destination feels like arriving at the doorsteps to a second home; or a kind of private sanctuary where they're alone in their little bubble of paradise, away from prying eyes and with no one around to eavesdrop on their precious piece of heaven on earth. It's a little secret garden, far away from the rest of Yiling's locals and visitors, with an awesome view of the market streets and the city's night lights that cast a soft yellow glow upon the surrounding hills. They've had spent many evenings together at the same spot, after going through the same routines of realistically-romantic dates at the market, having meals together, shopping for daily necessities of a shared married life, before coming here, again and again - on the days when the skies are clear or when there are clouds that threaten to bring in rain, on weekdays, on weekends, on holidays and during festivals. It doesn't feel as exciting as the first few times, nor does it feel repetitive; and it'll never be boring for either of them. It's something the couple have come to experience, accept and enjoy as part of their blissful, peaceful outing in Yiling.

Wei Ying's inappropriate singing had toned down to off-tune hums and la-la-las when Lan Zhan led him to a familiar cluster of thickets. It's become a sort of a landing pad for them in their regular and highly-anticipated pee-prepare-penetrate routine. Wei Ying deposits the empty jar on the ground, drops his trousers in a messy pile on his feet, peels off his damp, heavily-soaked underwear (he recklessly flings it away and it splats on Lan Zhan's hairless shins, but the older man nonchalantly collects it anyway), then challenges himself to take aim at the ceramic vessel with drunken sniggers. Lan Zhan stands next to him, with all his lower garments neatly folded on his arm, and relieves himself as well without care about Wei Ying's childish games. When he notices that Wei Ying has trouble to pee into the jar (of course he would, he was swinging his hips wildly from side to side in tune with a fast folksy number), he reaches out and holds the soft, spongy knobbled cockhead perfectly in place. Wei Ying grins, hiccups and ahhs (while still swinging those springy ass globes). Before they left, Wei Ying staggers, accidentally kicks the jar and it topples over, so Lan Zhan's efforts are, really, for naught.

Lan Zhan worked meticulously to prepare the perfect picnic spot - he disrobes and spreads his outermost garment on the grassy field. Then, he carefully unpacks the basket bag and places the bamboo container containing herbal tea, an opened bag of roasted chestnuts and the pack of plum candy on the side. He also casts a few tiny Fire spells to light up scented candles he'd arranged in a circle around them.

When Wei Ying emerges from the bushes, as pantless as either of them, Lan Zhan pats on the makeshift bedding and coaxes the younger man to sit down, because he wants to apply the medicinal paste on their exposed skin before the fireworks show starts. There are insects buzzing around during the humid summer nights, and Lan Zhan doesn't want Wei Ying to sport lovebites other than his. Instead, to the older man's consternation, Wei Ying wobbles his way to an old, abandoned picnic table at the fringe of the clearing, and takes his seat on its bench.

Lan Zhan gently calls out to Wei Ying again, thinking that perhaps his drunken lover had misunderstood what was asked. Wei Ying, on the other hand, and in his inebriated state, dawdles time away by inspecting the table's worn surface, 'walking' his fingers along the weathered edge before settling to poke interestedly at a corner. The older man watches, initially upset then turned fascinated, at how his younger lover fishes out a crumpled ball of the loincloth (somehow Wei Ying must have snagged it from the basket bag), spreads it daintily over the table's corner like an overhanging tablecloth, and smooths the wrinkles (including the dried crusts, crumbs, goo and all) - like he was realistically trying to prepare the picnic table. Then he stands up unsteadily, gingerly leans over and slides that slick, covered table corner between his thighs. Wei Ying nnnghs as he starts to hump the creaking wood.

The silhouette of a panting, moaning and flushed Wei Ying trying to make love with an aged piece of furniture - is tantalizing beyond words. His rigid arousal rubbed into the cum-stained cloth, leaving behind web-like strands of dried seed mixed with fresh droplets of pre-cum, and makes very tasty rhythmic, squelchy sounds. At times, he tires a little, then scoots forward to settle his weight on the table; he spreads his thighs further onto the surface, and starts to draw circles with his plump scrotum and moves his ass accordingly. His back arches into an "S" and his hips rolls sensuously in vigorous pumping motions; Lan Zhan gets a captivating, mouth-watering view of how Wei Ying's side-profile looks when he rides someone in earnest - or in this case, some thing .

Unable to get Wei Ying to sit on the ground, Lan Zhan goes to the younger man instead. Soon, he fusses over his lover and diligently applies the paste on their legs, thighs and crotches; he also takes his sweet time to piston one, two, then three paste-lubricated fingers into Wei Ying's sweet, defenceless rosebud even as the latter continues to (futilely) mate with the cum-coated corner of the sex-blessed table. When he feels that Wei Ying is properly prepared - as indicated by the softened entrance, and relaxed fleshy walls within - as a sign of his thinly-veiled irritation of having to do all the work by himself: he picks up two laundry clips and leaves them biting on the vulnerable nipples, to Wei Ying's weak, drunken protests.

The table was quite low, its height is at crotch-level; so Lan Zhan only needs to thrust his hips horizontally, and his twitching penis slides effortlessly into the warm, welcoming cavern. He starts to fuck his lover in a slow tempo even as the latter continues to try the same on the wood. Lan Zhan's hands roam everywhere on Wei Ying's sweaty and heated skin - they grabbed and massaged the quivering thigh muscles; skim upwards along the sides and tickle the ribs; move to a passionate stranglehold around the neck (because he needed the traction to screw his cock deep, deep into the convulsing passageway, and makes sure he hits Wei Ying's pleasure spots, and assault that lovely gland with hard knocks and jabs with his meaty cockhead); fingers slide into the younger man's mouth so that Wei Ying unconsciously starts to lick the broom-Bichen-calloused fingers and tries to make oral love with the digits; then descends downwards the thin chest where he flicks the laundry clips and Wei Ying aaaahs loudly for his poor abused nipples; and when Lan Zhan palms Wei Ying's trembling cock and presses the jerking rod hard against the wood, Wei Ying grunts lustfully like an animal; he's coming, and Lan Zhan can feel rolling convulsions welling up from within his lover, massaging his drilling cock and pulling and sucking him deeper, tightening and raising his balls, spiralling both of them towards their climaxes.

The older man starts to breathe shakily and his eyes roll up to see stars in the night sky and from something else; he grunts rhythmically at first, then the throaty sounds begin to waver and come out at faster intervals, converging, surging forward, just as how the liquid fire in his loins has reached its boiling point and starts to bubble and spill over; his hips slam as hard as possible and seizes between the parted springy ass mounds, and grinds in curves, hooks and any other shapes he can think of that would allow him to push deeper, dig deeper beyond already fully sheathed inside his lovely warm Wei Ying.

Lan Zhan groans in extreme frustration and tries to pull out before the inevitable explosion - his body and nerves were too sexually excited from the feverishly hot friction and squeezes inside his lover, from fluttering muscles rolling and contracting in mind-numbing waves all around his loins, the incredibly pleasurable sensations running up and down and in circles from base to tip of his massive, swollen, wanting cock, he free-falls and wants to succumb to that primal urge to finally, finally breed his younger lover - then rudely, shockingly, agonizingly withdrawn into the chilly, lonely evening air. He’d hit the brakes and despite using his entire arsenal of superior mortal abilities - his tormented, rebellious cock still managed to eject a single thick, rich drop right at the entrance of the convulsing canal. It sags under its own weight, rolls off Wei Ying’s bulging perineum, and plops into the grass below, wasted.

“Lan... Zhan... hnnngh... (hic) can’t... my trousers... ahnnnn... dirty.... (hic)” pantless Wei Ying moans drunkenly as he happily rides out his own orgasm and nearly ruined his partner's. Lan Zhan felt insultingly incredulous at Wei Ying's semi-conscious state (because Wei Ying dreamt of the time when they were still in the park). In a twisted way of exacting his revenge, Lan Zhan whips out the ladle he'd bought, lubes its handle with paste, and rudely sticks it into Wei Ying's gaping ass. The younger man nnnhns deliriously at the assault of shockingly cold hard steel sliding so deep, too deep into his bottom. The handle has a curved edge with bump-like indentations for a better grip, and these serve well to scrub and rake deliciously at the spasming prostate, especially when Lan Zhan plunges the tool repeatedly at the perfect angle that only he knows too well. By the time Lan Zhan has satisfied himself with pulling, twisting and playing with the clips on the nipples, Wei Ying comes the second time in a series of sexy writhing, shouts, swear words (including Goddess Guan Yin's name) and incoherent rambles, on the thoroughly ruined, dripping loincloth that still clung onto the table's corner.

Just then, the first fireworks shot up and lit the skies, followed by booming thunderous sounds. From afar, Yiling's populace cheered at the spectacular displays of blooming flowers of reds, greens, blues and yellows in the clear night sky.

Lan Zhan hauls a half-trembling, half-sedated squirming Wei Ying off the scandalized table, and realizes - when his arms reached around the waist - that Wei Ying does have quite a rotund full belly, from the constant, abundant and sumptuous feasts he had throughout the evening. He thinks for a moment, again diving into his mental database of PeiNan, PeiNu and PeiNis centerspreads, and opts for a sex position that's suitable for partners encumbered with large bellies (read: pregnant).

Lan Zhan settles to a sitting position on the bedded ground against a tree, and lets Wei Ying sit on his lap, with his back facing Lan Zhan. Lan Zhan grips Wei Ying's waist and hips, and gently guides his lover to rock back-and-forth in an ageless rhythm on a heated meatstick. One hand rubs perpetual circles on the rounded belly (Wei Ying mnnns at the loving caresses), and his index finger dips into the ticklish protruding navel (Wei Ying giggles drunkenly).

He intended for both of them to view the fireworks together in this intimate position, while snacking on the chestnuts and plum candy, and enjoying a beverage of herbal tea with their newly-procured “Yours” and “Mine” mugs - however, as Wei Ying continues to grunt and moan gibberishly while his ass bounces and slides up and down a rock-hard penis that’s so swollen with unreleased pleasure that its girth stretches the rosebud to an extraordinary size, resulting in his own cock twitching madly and streams out cum and other sexual fluids; Lan Zhan doubts if the intoxicated Wei Ying will remember anything from the night’s fireworks show. Still, they managed to finish half of the snacks and emptied the bamboo container (Lan Zhan loves to feed Wei Ying with the chestnuts and plum candy, nibble by nibble, as the younger man becomes exceedingly confused between trying to chew, swallow, breathe, moan and gasp)

At the height of the fireworks, when the biggest, brightest ones burst brilliantly into a field of multicoloured blooms against the jet-black backdrop, Lan Zhan closes his eyes, moans as loudly as he wants (because no one else can hear), and lets his body shudder uncontrollably, delightfully at the peak of his long-delayed excitement. He pulls out, orgasms to his heart’s content and ejaculates at least six thick spurts and another six lighter ones - on the ruined loincloth-turned-ragcloth (he remembers Wei Ying’s pleas). Then, he slips his still-hard penis back into Wei Ying’s gaping ass (the younger man constantly mewls like a cat in heat, still drunk as hell), and continues his gentle fucking until the next climax, and again, again, again. The cloth, brimming with active little Wang Jis and baby Wei Yings, is placed on Wei Ying’s bobbing arousal, and Lan Zhan strokes and polishes the cockhead with it with increasingly squishy sounds during the rest of the fireworks show (Wei Ying continues to shout, scream, swear and squirts at the agonizing torture - but no one else can hear). He makes sure to cram as much of the gooey drenched cloth hard and deep into the cockslit with his fingertips, just for the sake of satisfying the twisted, dirty imagery playing inside his mind.

The scented candles have long burnt out by the time the fireworks show winds down to the applause of thousands of spectators at the north side of Yiling. Wei Ying lies curled up in Lan Zhan's outer robes, and the owner gently pats the (fascinatingly cute, slightly rounded) tummy. "Wei Ying, Wei Ying, wake up, it's time to go home," he gently coos. The younger man, however, rolls to the other side and drools in a drunken sleep with mumbles of nom-nom-noms. Lan Zhan rubs the tummy again, and this time, it rumbles a little more with squeals in between - probably from too much food, and irritated at being rubbed constantly during their intense, hours-long lovemaking. In response to the unsolicited harassment, the indignant stomach rumbles again, and Wei Ying lets out a soft fart.

Lan Zhan smiles contentedly, dresses Wei Ying, and starts packing up their little evening picnic. As he bridle-carries his lover back to the streets and towards the (illegal) parking lot - Wei Ying is without underwear, so the lines of the soft ass-mounds can be clearly seen - with the filled basket bag in an arm, he realizes that he's not alone. Hundreds of market goers - both young and old, of peasants, warriors, merchants and cultivators, the rich and the poor, the unmarried and those with families - walk the market streets in various states of merriment, inebriation and consciousness. He struts between a family of eight with chattering children, and a large man - probably a stallion fighter of some sort - with two knocked-out half-nude women on his shoulders. Lan Zhan does not look any different from the rest of the people with a peacefully sleeping Wei Ying cuddled in his arms, so he blends in and soon, reaches the secured Bichen.

Getting out and lifting off from Yiling was easy with the dispersing crowd, and soon, Lan Zhan sits straddling Bichen and holds a balled-up Wei Ying, and they zip across the starry night sky.

It was frankly quite late by the time they reached home. Lan Zhan marvelled at the flawlessly cleaned floors, with not a single spot left untouched - but he still harbours some conflicted feelings at the D-broom unit that lay quiet below the dining table. He would talk to Wei Ying about his latest invention, tomorrow.

With a little less cleaning to do, he filled the laundry basket with their dirty clothes, and quickly bathed them both (it was fascinating to watch thick, soupy white tendrils drift downstream when he rinsed the ruined loincloth in the outdoor pool. The battered, tattered piece of underwear was left to hang on the laundry line next to Wei Ying's favourite red boxer as a final sign of respect; Lan Zhan plans to fold it nicely the next day, and store it with his secret stash of collectables that remind him of fond memories with his lover - such as the cloth with Wei Ying's face burnt with lampblack, not too long ago in an episode of 'lewding the bunnies'). All the day's purchases were either washed, dried, unpacked and sorted, then kept in their proper places to where they belong.

When he took out the lanterns, he found that they were quite plain in design - there are small rabbits in a background of bamboo, and plenty of white space. He added a few skilled and well-practised strokes of calligraphy writing onto the paper, before lighting them up. The lanterns hang on either sides of the front entrance, and illuminate the courtyard with the words "Lan's Residence" (藍家) shining brightly into the night.

Finally, before crawling to bed (it has been an exceptionally long day, he thought), he lit up incense pots around their home and cast one of Wei Ying's Shield talismans to keep the bugs out and to ensure a restful slumber for both of them. On his side of the bed, he fluffs up the pillow - and found that Wei Ying had hidden his dark brown trousers underneath it! (no wonder he couldn't find his trousers in the morning, and was forced to go pantless for most of the day). Lan Zhan chuckles softly, takes the now-unused trousers to the laundry basket, then returns to bed and spoons a snoring still-pantless Wei Ying underneath tucked blankets. (Wei Ying doesn't need to wear new loincloths or underwear while in bed, he decided)

It has been a good day, indeed.

12.15 am, the next day

Lan Zhan is restless, and his forehead is creased with worry. He could not sleep, and in fact, he is wide awake, buzzing with energy - just like the start of any other day.

(Lan Zhan's body clock is still five hours ahead. It's technically after five in the morning for him.)

1:00 am

He tossed and turned on the bed, recited multiplication tables inside his head from one to hundred, washed and hung every piece of garment, swept the floor one more time with a straw broom (he couldn't figure out how to activate the alien creature called D-broom), checked the pots, pans and cutlery in the kitchen, prepared the ingredients for the next day's meals, and even counted the number of leaf-wrapped minced pork and other provisions inside their pantry.

He couldn't sleep.

Finally, he figured he's missed out something from his nightly sleeping routine. He reaches under the bed, and takes out a box. He picks out his favourite bent stick and a well-used P-Cool prostate massager.

“Wei Ying, Wei Ying, are you awake?”

Wei Ying continues to snore at the buzzing sounds.

Later...

“Lan Zhan, I was so drunk last night, I didn’t even watch the fireworks!”

“Mn.”

“Was it beautiful? Was it magnificent? Did people have lots of fun during the show?”

“Yes. Beautiful. Magnificent. And very fun.”

“Can we go there again? I really want to catch the show while summer’s still at its peak”

“Mn. Tomorrow evening. I’ll take you there.”

Notes for the Chapter:

Phew...! That's it for this arc. Thank you for reading so far!

I'll be glued to the Untamed Special Edition episodes in the next few weeks. I think there's not much left for Untamed, but I'm still a big big Wangxian fangirl (of the CQL Untamed universe), and always a big big BJYX and BJYXSZD shipper.

Wishing Xiao Zhan and Wang Yibo many great successes and good health in the future!

And to everyone else, wishing you Happy holidays, Have a great New Year, and a wonderful start to 2020 !!!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 30

"Three on the right!"

Lan Zhan staggers to the back, barely missing a trio of gaping maws that streaked across the front of his chest. Each comes equipped with a pair of black-tinged fangs, and one grazed the back of his right forearm. The residual liquid - pearlets of dark, sticky substance - melts through the protective sleeve, and dissolves his skin. Lan Zhan grits his teeth when he feels something sizzle, and it's painful.

"Lan Zhan, are you alri--"

"Keep playing the flute!" he barks, ignoring the throbbing pain in his arm and the beads of sweat rolling off his shoulders. His grip on Bichen trembles, so he switches the sword to his left hand. It wasn't as skilled, and he was having trouble to fend off the frightening leaping snakes. They burst out from the bushes in groups, emitting black wisps from their serpentine bodies, and hurtled through the air with spine-chilling hisses with bared venomous fangs.

Lan Zhan dodges another cluster of snakes arching above his head, before he rolls to the left, and uses his sword to parry four more that launched themselves directly to Wei Ying's face. The cursed reptiles, almost formless due to the heavy mists that blanketed their bodies, slap onto the thick blade and cleave cleanly into two. Thick, liquefying chunks drop wetly to the ground, then evaporate into thin air within seconds.

Both men were trapped between snake-infested thickets and a high vertical cliff face behind their backs; Lan Zhan continued to strike - almost blindly - both left and right, with increasing desperation and fatigue, at snakes that pummel suicidally at them. They come in different sizes, from the size of fingers until as long as a man's arm - which makes it extremely difficult to swing and cut them down with precision, while avoiding those that crawl from behind. Both men had suffered multiple bites on their feet from the smaller ones - despite the harmless size, they were camouflaged by the shadows of the overhanging cliff, and easily ambushed the men from the roots of smaller shrubs; their fangs puncture the shoes, inject small amounts of paralyzing venom before being stomped or stabbed to death.

Lan Zhan loses his balance with a loud yelp, and falls to one knee. One such attacker latched by its fangs to a calf muscle. Barely two notes into his flute music, Wei Ying shouts in panic and uses the bamboo instrument to whack it away, flinging it far into the thickets.

“K--Keep... playing--” the older man groans, dizzy, and uses Bichen's toxin-encrusted blade to steady himself from collapsing to the dirt. The metal shines in the dim pillars of light filtering from the canopy of trees atop the cliff above them, it does not dull with the poisons.

It was too late. The pause in flute music intended to tranquilize the largest beast in the vicinity - an enormous mist-enveloped serpent that towered in front of both men, as tall as three adults - allowed it to wake up. It jerks its muscles with renewed energy coursing through its body, and it hisses and roars fiercely. Venomous spit rains on its desired prey, melting patches of clothes, flesh, grass, even rocks that litter the ground. The acrid smoke of burning material fills the air, choking both men further with the stench of being suffocated, poisoned and the fear of being devoured alive.

Wei Ying starts to write a mystical word to cast some kind of spell, but the ritual is disrupted when he lets out an agonizing, anguished cry; one of his arms is chewed by a sizable snake that had appeared out of nowhere. Rows of serrated teeth dig into the bloodied shoulder sleeve, and the bamboo flute drops to the ground with a hollow thud. Realizing the gravity of the situation, Lan Zhan frantically spins on his heel and lurches upward with his remaining good feet to grab onto that snake's tail in an effort to pull it away, even though he knows he'll probably rip off a good part of Wei Ying's skin and flesh from that act - he'd do anything, anything to save his lover from harm.

In mid-dash, fingers splayed out to reach as far as possible towards the tip of the wriggling attacker, suddenly a tremendous force slams into his abdomen, and he crashes back to the ground with a sickening crunch. The impact whiplashes the bones, forcing air out of his lungs and his vision spins wildly. Searing pain runs through his entire body - he was broken, crushed and torn alive. He couldn't move his limbs, his ears are ringing, and he tastes blood that pour from his throat and through the nostrils. He tries to look downward at what is holding him back from reaching his beloved Wei Ying, but he sees only red-tinged blurry images of black mists and scales; of hideous obsidian fangs and teeth dripping with poisonous saliva; of cold, massive jaws that enclose around his bloodied, mangled body and his arms stuck out in odd angles; and those terrifying jaw muscles flex, tighten, squeeze his bleeding organs, threatening to break his ribs and slice him into half. His vision becomes a mess of red, moving masses, and he loses focus.

Lan Zhan shakily looks up; he knows that he is mortally wounded and needs to see his lover's face one last time before darkness overcomes his consciousness. "Wei... Ying..." he gurgles softly through gushing blood, wants to reach and touch, to say Sorry that he could not save both of them, Sorry that he wasn't strong enough to make his own decision and take them to safety, Sorry for all the pain they had to go through during their brief time together on this wretched world - but he no longer has the arms to hold lovely Wei Ying, nor any breath to say anything else.

Wei Ying stands in silence, the distance between them as pronounced and stark as night and day. One is living - a look of horror on the face, tormented by the pain of being devoured alive by biting, chewing and gnashing teeth and poisonous fangs. One is dying - a look of peaceful calm, no longer feeling the pain of the world and wants just one last touch of warmth.

A single teardrop rolls down the younger man's cheeks.

What started as a noble effort to locate the source of snakes that terrorized Mian Mian's neighbours, became an exciting treasure hunt for clues starting from shedded snakeskins, regurgitated animal carcasses that grew in size, until Lan Zhan became anxious and wanted to retreat to call for back-up from the other cultivators - but Wei Ying insisted with his reckless bravado, that it's there, it's there, just over the next clump of bushes, just past next rocky slope, and they went on, and on, deeper into the unexplored, shadowed parts of the 'Mounds - until they walked into a dead-end of the said cliff face.

Lan Zhan, do you know how much you mean to me?

You're my soulmate, you've saved me countless of times, you're the only one who stood by me when everyone else would not. You're the light of my darkness, you're the only person who stands in the right when everyone else is wrong.

You laughed, listened and loved me. You would never hurt me.

Seeing you in pain, right at this moment - it angers me; that you love me so well, and yet the world does not love you. Even the heavens do not spare their love for either of us.

It angers me, that this world, the people, the creatures, the gods - everything, is unfair.

Everything is wrong, wrong, wrong.

Those that wronged me... you.... us - are unfair. They hurt. They hurt so hard, that they deserve to feel my anger and wrath.

Seeing you lying in a pool of your own blood, right at this moment - it angers me; It hurts so much. It burns.

Lan Zhan, do you really know how much you mean to me?

I will show you.

I will show those who dare to hurt.

I will burn everything down - this world, the heavens, everything - to show how much I really love you .

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Lan Zhan wakes up gasping audibly for breath, and his body is covered with sweat.

The bedroom is dim, quiet, save for some soft, bubbling sounds coming from the kitchen and some birds chirping outside their home. The curtains sway gently from a cooling breeze blowing in through the window. Judging from the angle and brightness of the sunlight, it seems to be early in the morning, just after sunrise.

As soon as he catches his breath, he tries to push himself up to rise, but groans when pain shoots up his left arm. He steadies himself on the other good arm until he is able to sit with his back against the pillows and bedframe. He pushes the blanket away; it feels rather warm in the room.

Lan Zhan realizes that he is topless and wears only his short summer underpants. His left forearm, lower right leg and the entire midriff are heavily bandaged - thick, secure and cleanly wrapped with strips of cloth. He tries to bend a little, twist slightly to the side, wiggle his fingers and toes - the wounds ache, but the rest of his body is fine, if not rather stiff from lying in a supine position for too long. There are some minor cuts and bruises, especially from the waist down, but these have healed and the marks and scabs will probably disappear in another day or two.

He swivels around at the bedside and lets his feet touch the floor gingerly, barefooted. Just as he was about to stand up, Wei Ying appeared at the entrance of the bedroom, wearing a beige shirt and a pair of brown trousers. He carried a tray containing a steaming bowl and a bamboo container.

“Lan Zhan, you’re awake! Oh, you’re awake!” the younger man squeals with immense delight. He quickly rushes in, puts the tray on the bedside table, then sits on Lan Zhan’s right side. He takes the older man’s good right hand and starts stroking the forearm.

“Wei...” Lan Zhan calls out his lover’s name because those are the first words he desperately needed to say-scream-shout at that moment; Lan Zhan blinks his eyes hard when they suddenly prickled with uncried tears; his mind races with a multitude of unasked questions between being trapped in the jaws of death and waking up to his beloved angel’s touch; his heart soars with gratefulness that he is alive and breathing, that all is well in their bedroom, and that lovely Wei Ying is cheerful as always. He leans in to embrace his love - he’d missed Wei Ying’s warm scent and so much more -, until a twinge of pain from the abdomen caused him to grimace and halt in mid-hug.

Wei Ying becomes wide-eyed at the patch of bloodied dressing, and starts shouting towards the curtained window, “ Didi ! (little brother) Get your san ge (third brother) in here right now! He’s awake!”. Lan Zhan reels from the growing, pounding pain inside his head and stomach, and his mind couldn’t quite figure out what Wei Ying was trying to say, or to whom.

“ Da ge ! (big brother) The wound’s opening up again! We need new bandages and gauze!” this time, Wei Ying barks out orders towards the door leading to the outdoor pool.

“Who...” Lan Zhan groans again, his gaze fixated on the dark stone floor to stop a throbbing headache from tearing out of his head. He hears footsteps shuffling into the room, and he becomes alarmed at the sudden presence of an intruder - no, multiple intruders - shadows, sounds, breathing - surrounding him... and Wei Ying is still sitting by his side, in possibly grievous danger!

Another pair of hands gently holds up his bandaged left arm. Lan Zhan turns his head to that direction, tensed, ready to jump off the bed and kick whoever that dares to touch his injuries. He froze.

“Wang Ji xiong , you’re awake! There’s no need to rush, so please take your time to recover. I-- ah, I’m sorry, my clothes are a bit dirty with mud... I had to take care of the weeds and the chicken coop, and also catch a couple of fish from the pond,” another Wei Ying appeared in his sight, but he looks fairer, thinner and younger - just as when they first met at the Cloud Recesses, more than sixteen years ago. He places Lan Zhan’s arm down and gives a wide, energetic grin, then sheepishly wipes his soil-speckled hands on the hem of an oversized light blue shirt - but his gaze never left Lan Zhan. He pulls up a leg onto the bed, and Lan Zhan notices the black trousers that he wore are a little baggy; when Lan Zhan scans this ‘other’ Wei Ying from head to toe, he couldn’t help but stare incredulously at his dirt-smudged bare foot on the bed.

Another face pops into his vision, near to the dirty wiggling toes against the clean bedsheets. It’s a young boy, barely ten years of age (probably), and he looks very much like a miniature version of Wei Ying - albeit with shorter hair; the bright sparkling eyes, chubbier cheeks and the tell tale toothy smile - it’s all Wei Ying’s. The boy rests his chin of the bedside and looks up adorably. “Lan er gege , you must get well soon, okay? I did all the housework for you in the last few days while you were sleeping. So please, don't worry!" And that angelic smile again. Lan Zhan feels his world is spinning in absolute confusion, and yet his heart melts at that endearing, cuddle-worthy smile. He nearly reached out to pat those cute plump cheeks too - but withdrew his hand in horror when he realized that the boy was wearing one of his old cloud-patterned white shirts which was too large for the tiny body that it slipped off one of his shoulders to bare his smooth, adolescent chest; that the boy was wearing the shirt and nothing else underneath ; and that the boy knelt between his open legs and his face was so, so close to his crotch that he could feel the heated, quick breaths tickling his thinly-covered thighs.

Then, a pair of long muscled, tanned arms tenderly embraces him from behind, weaving around the armpits and locked right above the edge of the dressing at his midriff. The swish of long, slightly unruly, lush hair that fans on both sides of his shoulders, the musky warm scent that accompanies the comforting hold, the lower sultry whispery yet firm voice into his ears - are unmistakably Wei Ying's. "Lao gong , you're up (你醒啦)," followed by a light peck on his neck - right at the sensitive skin above the jugular vein - "I really missed you (好想你)" the husky, yearning voice exudes a sense of maturity and desire, and its brevity in words signifies familiarity and possessiveness. Fingertips start to toy the edge of the bandage and lightly graze, then circle a nipple. The friction of fingernail against the woven material scratches the sheathed brown nub with precise abrasion and pressure, and Lan Zhan shivers a little when tingly goosebumps rise up from spine to scalp. "Don't be shy, Han Guang Jun. Let's undress you and wrap you up nicely, alright?"

Lan Zhan looks to his right, at the first (and original?) Wei Ying; the older man's strained facial expression speaks volumes of confusion, stress and panic. The younger man smiles sweetly in return, and caresses Lan Zhan's remaining good hand.

Goddess of the Silvery Moon, Chang 'e, watches from her celestial throne with her faithful follower, the Jade Rabbit, on her lap.

The Mortal Realm of the Middle Kingdom is but a husk of ash, charred beyond recognition. Great fires continue to sweep across the lands and burn, burn forever, wiping out all life on its surface, and leave smouldering basins that stretch endlessly where the Dragon King of the Seas once ruled. The scorching heat delivers its fiery carnage deep into the Realm's living core, where widespread incineration turns even the hardest of metals and precious stones into useless dust. With that, the immense mythical roots of Mount Kunlun, the Pillar of the Skies, disintegrates and can no longer hold the infinite weight of the Heavens. Huge swathes of clouds and divinely material crumble and rain upon the Realms; leading to a perpetual cycle of death and destruction.

The deities of the earth cry, "O Dragon King of the Seas, we're burning, burning alive! Please save us from this unbearable heat!". However, there is no response, as the oceans have boiled over and evaporated into the air.

Then, they grovel on the ground and raised their palms up towards the skies, “Your Greatness, O Jade Emperor of the Heavenly Court, we beg for your mercy to save our pitiful existences! Please let us take shelter, away from the punishing fires and the rain of death!”. Again, there is no response. The Heavenly Palace lies in ruins.

Desperate, they plead, “O Great Heavenly Mother Queen, we have no one else to turn to, please show us the way to escape this mindless destruction, beyond Mount Kunlun, even beyond the Heavens!” There is only silence in return. Once revered as the cradle for countless legends and a fertile birthplace of gods, there are only earthquakes, spewing volcanic mountains and sinking craters left.

Having exhausted their options, the earthly deities approach the one god that none would ever think of - until now. “O Most Eminent of All, Lord of Hell, if you hear us then please allow us to hide in the Underworld, at least until the firestorms die down, we will forever be in your debt.” The fires in Hell have long burnt out, displaced by the raging inferno that originated somewhere in the west of the Kingdom.

All eyes turn to the final saviour of the Mortal Realms and the sacred Realms of the Gods.

Merciful Goddess Guan Yin is at a loss for words. Her compassion is limitless, but Compassion cannot undo the reality that almost all Creations are lost forever to the ashes. She turns to the grandest of them all, the all-knowing omnipresence in all cycles of birth, existence and death.

Lord Buddha, The Enlightened One, finally opens His eyes, after what seems an eternity of peace and meditation.

Chang 'e never really got along well with the Realm of the Gods, after her banishment to the Moon. She crosses one leg, relaxes into the throne, and continues to watch with interest from her lunar pedestal.

Notes for the Chapter:

Happy New Year everyone!!!

Wishing you all a great start to 2020! I certainly had an awesome time counting down with Zhan Ge by watching his performance on TV - his really good looks, his great singing, his hot dances (oh my gawd, fan fan fan)... Thank you again to Xiao Zhan for bringing Wei Wuxian to life in The Untamed, and you'll forever be a precious gem in the sea of good things that happen in this lifetime! :-D

I didn't manage to watch Wang Yibo's performance as I couldn't find the right channel, but I've seen enough clips and screenshots to know that he really rocked the stage and wet everyone! :-D Thank you Yibo, for bringing Lan Wang Ji's existence to the real world.

Both Wang Yibo / Lan Wang Ji and Xiao Zhan / Wei Wuxian are inseparable in the Untamed and Mo Dao Zu Shi universe !!! All the best to both persons and their fictional personas in their futures !!!

Coming back to this fic... I made an on-the-fly decision to pick up one of the earlier arcs just because the timelines kinda fits... I haven't thought of any other reasons yet. So let's see how the story progresses and turn out!

Chapter 31

The inaugural settlement of the Lan family outside of Gusu, Lan's Residence within the 'Mounds of Qishan, has undergone a population explosion, the fledgling patriarch realized. He rubs both temples, trying to massage the throbbing headache away as stress and fatigue pile up one after another, threatening to overwhelm his muddled consciousness.

Wei didi and his san ge bicker and quarrel over a muddy footprint left on the bedsheet. The small boy pummels the older teenager with his small fists while shouting angrily that he'd just washed it, while the other parries each punch and retorts that the sheets can be washed again, and working on the farm to put food on their table is more important than the laundry.

Wei er ge (the one he recognized as his beloved) tries valiantly to yell above the din while shushing the youngest two. He's just blown the first spoonful of steaming congee and paused in mid-air, as he talked with one hand cupping beneath the spoon in case there was any spillage. "As I was saying - STOP IT BOTH OF YOU! - while we were looking for the snakes' nest, you walked ahead into some thick morning mists and fell off a sharp cliff. Lan Zhan, you really scared me to death back then! It's as though you slipped off some rocks, and then, Whoosh!, you were gone from my sight! - ENOUGH, STOP ARGUING! - I rushed down the slope and found that you'd crashed over some rocks. You had cuts and lacerations all over your body, hence the bandages," he points the steaming spoon in all directions towards Lan Zhan's body, except for the half-opened mouth. "You're very lucky that there were no broken bones! Ah, Lan Zhan, did you know, you're very heavy and it took me a while to carry you back - I was afraid you'd bleed too much! - ALRIGHT THAT'S IT! -" and Wei er ge stands up in anger with a scowl on his face, bloodshot eyes and flared nostrils included, then throws the spoon back into its bowl with a loud clang, and slammed the bowl on the surface of the bedside table so hard that the creaky wood rattled. He marched off and pushed the two fighting boys out of the room.

Lan Zhan sighs and closes his mouth because he thought Wei Ying would feed him with a spoonful of warm congee, but that spoon no longer hovered in front of his lips. He stares with regret at the ill-treated cutlery sticking out from a messy puddle of food.

Wei da ge continues to wrap fresh new bandages around his ribs patiently, but at a faster pace. “Lan Zhan, let me finish this last bit, then I’ll get the congee for you,” he murmurs apologetically. His voice is the lowest among them all, almost baritone in quality, and soothes the ringing ears and frayed nerves. Lan Zhan feels unnerved at the strange situation, and despite the calmness of this older Wei Ying, he imagines that the fingers moving in circles around his midriff belongs to a stranger instead of his lover that’s been aged up about ten or so more years. He uses his good right hand to pick up the spoon, carefully scoop up the congee from its bowl on the table, and slowly maneuver to his lips. He’s too nervous to stay still, at the moment.

“You saw it, didn’t you? The nasty gashes on your waist. You scraped yourself badly when you fell through the jagged surfaces. The volcanic rock is very sharp,” Wei da ge seems to pick up where the er ge left off. Lan Zhan blows some steam off the spoon, half-expecting the conversation to continue in their typical one-sided manner.

“I cast a Fairy Messenger spell to get Doctor Li to make a house call, and begged him to come as soon as he could. Thankfully his grandmother was with him, so they managed to clean up the mess on your body. The blood... was all over the bed and floor... so Grandma Li helped to wash up too. She taught me how to disinfect and keep your wounds clean, as well as to bandage them properly,” Wei da ge says, and nudged at the final knot on the side of the body. Lan Zhan notices that he wore a grey shirt - one of Lan Zhan’s older modified robes - and it fits well on the larger muscled body frame - almost as good as the original owner.

Lan Zhan places the spoon to his lips, and took a sip - but it was still scalding hot, and he “ahhhs” softly and jerks away his fingers. Wei da ge managed to catch the falling spoon with one hand, and a spilled glob lands on the back of his other hand. “Ah, careful, Lan Zhan,” he warns with little indication that he’s bothered with the piping hot liquid other than a quick shake of the wrist, and nonchalantly climbs off the bed.

Lan Zhan blinks at the other man, expressionless, although the pounding headache continues to hammer the insides of his skull. The room is at least peaceful and quiet, so the pain receded - but barely. He observes how Wei da ge casually licks the spilled puddle off his hand, and proceeds to scoop another spoonful of congee. He turns around towards Lan Zhan and starts to blow the steam off the spoon. He seems patient and relaxed, and hung on to the spoon longer than Lan Zhan did.

“... how?” Lan Zhan mouthed, soundless.

Wei da ge apparently caught the question despite the silence pervading the room. He raises an eyebrow, wordlessly asking What, Which, Who with that little gesture.

Lan Zhan clears his throat; it feels clogged, scratchy and raspy despite having already drunk a cup of tea from the bamboo container. “How... did you bring me back?”

Wei da ge continues to blowing, and in-between breaths, he explains, “I won’t lie to you, I used powerful spells to transport us back here. I can explain more later, and show you if you’re interested,” and finally raises the cooled congee to Lan Zhan’s lips. The other man, however, still harbors some suspicions of a stranger trying to feed him with plain liquidy food containing bits of minced chicken, egg, finely chopped cabbage and boiled carrot cubes, garnished with sliced scallion and drizzles of sesame seed oil. He leans away.

Wei da ge sighs. “The doctor’s fee, including the emergency FeiEx transport, bandages and medicine, totals up to four gold pieces. I took them from your money pouch and I’m sorry I had to use them without your permission,” he calmly explains and points at the said pouch lying in one of the bookshelves - it looks awfully thin -, “... but I promise to find a way to earn back the money. The four of us have been trying our best; but with the losses from cancelled food delivery orders to the teahouses, compounded with the fact that we’ve been spending more than what we can pocket from selling a handful of under ripe crops, hurriedly-written talismans and knick-knacks; and that we’ve used up nearly all the gold pieces inside that pouch especially since we’ve been having take-outs lately,” and he looks back at Lan Zhan with a hardened and very anxious gaze, “the situation is very dire... So, dear husband of mine, eat up, get well soon, and for goodness sake, please sort out our finances, food, clothing and everything else in our household!”

Something inside Lan Zhan stirred from the impassioned, and sincere speech. (It comes with financial figures, and beckons him with pleas to restore the balance of their Perfect universe.) He cautiously takes a bite of the chicken congee. It tastes quite good - not spicy at all, and just a tad bit savoury - enough for his Gusu-trained palate to give it a four out of five stars.

It takes a while for Lan Zhan to wrap his head around how Wei Ying struggles to survive with him out cold on the bed - for two weeks, at least; even the water clock outside their home ran dry (because no one remembered to fill it), so it was impossible to determine how much time had passed, without checking any external sources of information such as the weekly periodicals). The four of them explained - in various states of highly-strung emotions and sometimes, with arguments among themselves to dispute their own facts and beliefs - just verbally explained and did not need to show, because Lan Zhan absolutely refuses to want to acknowledge, let alone witness (because Heaven forbid if such acts are used without care nor thought of the possible disastrous consequences!) -, about how prohibited or never-heard-before spells are cast, to make up for their inherently appalling lack of skills in domestic work and housekeeping.

The first thing the young man had in mind, right after Doctor Li and his grandmother left, was to tackle the insurmountable challenge of “how to Lan Zhan their home and estate”, with his name carelessly used to define “doing the things that Wei Ying doesn’t do”. Apparently, he was desperate enough to cast an extremely forbidden spell related to the concept of Creation - which is second only to Time-manipulation in terms of the severity of illegality in the cultivation world - and made an extra copy of himself. Lan Zhan has no idea how the spell is cast, how it works, how a new human being is formed using that spell, what are the effects nor the long-term consequences; the books in Gusu Lan’s Library Pavillion only makes brief mention about the name of the spell’s circle, and a paragraph of vague, but harshly (and horrifically)-worded description to deter anyone from reading further.

Wei Ying knew he had to continue making his trips to Yiling and sell his talismans and magical gadgets (and take up the labour-intensive task of foraging, since he covers the most ground among the four Wei's). The earnings are miserable compared to the value of the food deliveries (that he was forced to cancel), but it was the only reliable source of income he had in mind. Thankfully, the laoban s of the teahouses were understanding and believed his petty excuses of “the wife is sick” and “our kitchen is undergoing some renovations”, and were agreeable to defer the orders at least until the following month with little or no contractual penalties. Grandma Li was very kind and immediately gave him a box of medicine after seeing Lan Zhan’s condition, so he’d save up on medical fees. She said the herbal candies could wait too. And Wei Ying absolutely refused to call up his foster sisters unless it was the last straw, because he really couldn’t handle them all (Lan Zhan’s inner self nods vehemently in agreement).

The first copy would be someone skilled and strong enough to man the farms. When Wei Ying was in his teens, he’d already learnt the basics about planting and maintaining vegetable gardens, harvesting and caring for livestock - as evidenced by his lively rural childhood growing up in Yunmeng and befriending many farmers and fishermen around Lotus Pier. A fifteen year old Wei Ying was created, and tasked with watering, fertilizing, weeding and harvesting the vegetable patch, fruit trees and the lotus plants (with some blunders - he’d pluck out unripe fruits, thinking that they’re fit for sale and consumption - to Old Merchant Zhu’s consternation); feeding the chickens, rabbits and fish (he made some expensive mistakes - he didn’t know where to get their food or what kinds of food they ate, so he walked all the way to Huang village to buy bags of animal feed, which cost a lot . He still supplemented the birds’ and fish’s diet with bugs and insects caught from the surrounding forests, and for the rabbits, cut grass that fringe their estate because he was sure that there were no poisonous plants around there); and hunting for jungle fowls and other wild game (which worked fine, and the family of four could still get decent meals every day, courtesy of the abundant wildlife in the ‘Mounds’).

Farming and hunting took up a lot of time, so by the end of the first day without Lan Zhan leading their domestic affairs, Wei Ying made another copy of himself for housework. He was aware that by the age of nine, he was already good with cleaning the house, making the bed, doing the laundry (he still had problems with folding large clothing items and bedsheets properly with his small hands), washing the dishes and other menial tasks inside the home - Jiang Fengmian had taught him well back then, because he bore the brunt of Madam Yu’s ire, and was always forced to help out his shijie or the other servants since Jiang Cheng was too young (and also because Madam Yu disapproved her true gong zi son from even holding a broomstick during those times). Nine-year old Wei Ying also helped to watch over their house, such as taking in the laundry before it rains, receiving parcels from the Postbird, flipping through the periodicals and cut out the coupons (they’re left in a messy stack inside a box for Lan Zhan to sort out when he wakes up), and play with the animals or doodle in his notebooks when he has time to spare - because he’s still a small child.

However, there was an unforeseeable consequence when he created the youngest version of himself - something became unstable in the space-time fabric (Lan Zhan didn’t really grasp the concept, but he listened on to Wei Ying’s animated explanations), probably because of the difference in age between him and the copy - and with a lightning flash and a thunderous boom, an older version of himself appeared alongside the nine-year old too! The thirty-year old Wei Ying (he thinks it’s thirty, but he’s not sure) did not have any work planned beforehand, so he was tasked to help around at home and the estate, such as: reaching for things that are too high up in the cupboards for the nine-year old; helping to dig ditches to irrigate the crops or carry straw baskets of harvested fruits and radishes, because he was much stronger than the fifteen-year old; and toil on talismans, charms, magical gadgets and other projects in the workroom - because he seems more experienced and is able to get the job done faster than the current Wei Ying. The eldest Wei Ying also helped to prepare their meals and is currently experimenting with their nineteenth version of the lotus root pork rib soup - it's still in progress, though; although fifteen-year old Wei Ying could clearly remember the taste of his shijie 's soup, he had difficulty to pinpoint, let alone describe, the ingredients and recipe needed to perfect the dish.

Unfortunately, Wei Ying has limited knowledge of cooking and recipes (because he didn't cook much in his past life, and judging from the eldest's pitiful ability with the wok and pots, it seems Wei Ying has come to rely too much on Lan Zhan for his meals - at this point, Lan Zhan's heart skips a beat in secret delight) - so, after a few days of simple and similar-tasting spicy fried rice, fiery stir-fries, chilli congee and peppered barbecued meats, the four had enough (the youngest started experiencing diarrhea from the endless stream of spicy food) and began ordering take-outs; which drained the money pouch a lot faster than intended, and worsened their financial situation.

Hence, despite having four copies of himself existing and working side-by-side, as predicted, Wei Ying admits that he couldn't Lan Zhan their home and estate as well as the real owner. The cave-home is a mess, the animals aren't eating much, the vegetable gardens didn't look as healthy as before, the laundry isn't folded properly, and stuff are piled up in places where they clearly do not belong .

However, there are still some silver linings despite the looming black clouds over their heads:

Nine-year old Wei Ying managed to keep the floors clean and have fun at the same time - he loves to sit and ride on the D-broom as the unit weaves its way around their house. He helps to clear any obstacles, such as stacks of folded laundry left carelessly on the floor or other bits of machinery, wood or stonework that the eldest is working on, so that the magically enhanced automaton could complete its duty smoothly. Then, the boy would take the filled attached bag and dump its dusty and dirty contents into their outdoor pool - twice a day, at least.

Fifteen-year old Wei Ying had been frustrated because he's a ball of excited teenage energy that cannot find release through farmwork alone - so he helped to dig, gather and pile loose boulders and rocks from the fields to build stone walls around their gardens. While doing that, he practised his elemental spellcasting skills and increased his physical strength at the same time;

The current Wei Ying had a bit more time to practise his cultivation, pen down and actually realize more ideas from his notebook - in their increasingly packed workroom, there are prototypes of a bamboo piping system for carrying Qishan's heated springwaters into their home, shower heads that can be installed at their outdoor pool (it's easier to wash one's hair with a sprinkling shower than to dunk a bucket of water over the head), half-completed lantern fixtures to make their rooms brighter at night, and even a half-constructed oven that's too big to fit into their kitchen (so it lies in a graveyard-like pile of construction materials, sawdust and chipped stones at a corner of the courtyard, covered with tarp). There are a few new benches around the lotus pond too, which makes the atmosphere around their estate more welcoming for any visitors.

Thirty-year old Wei Ying made few but very meaningful contributions to their home. He single-handedly designed an automated washing basin after watching how the youngest of them struggled with four times the amount of clothes and other laundered items. He'd built it using stone, wood and a kind of hardened malleable mix that consists of limestone, clay, water, sand, gravel, pebbles, high-level Fire spells and iron bars moulded using Metal spells; essentially it is a spinning basin with an axle in the center attached to multiple paddles, assembled into a watertight box, and pasted with a complex array of Memory, Energy, Water, Wind and other talismans. The invention functions as it should, but barely - due to the lack of a constant reliable source of energy, and a mechanism to fill the basin with washing water when needed. At least the clothes are washed and left half-dried by the time the basin stops spinning. (Lan Zhan observed a brief demonstration of how the contraption worked, and thought that hand-washing is still the preferred option.) There are also notes written in Wei Ying's notebook about future plans to add a low-grade long-lasting Fire spell to help dry off the washed laundry inside the basin. (At this point, Lan Zhan thought Wei Ying should just rely on the sunny weather to dry off the cleaned fabrics - in this day and age, nobody washes their clothes during cloudy or rainy days.)

Another idea that the thirty-year old came up with is a set of drawings for an automated dishwashing basin; however due to the lack of space in their small kitchen, and the delicate nature of clay and ceramic, Wei Ying continues to work on the idea within the safe confines on paper (and avoid breaking their precious tableware). For a very brief moment, Lan Zhan felt personally attacked by the thought of letting a mindless magically enchanted equipment wash their dishes, because washing dishes - along with cooking - are essentially what defines Lan Zhan's identity in their kitchen. He hums disinterestedly (even his inner self rolls his eyes sarcastically), hoping that Wei Ying's idea would fail and he'd drop the whole ridiculous idea once and for all.

The eldest Wei Ying also showed Lan Zhan how they'd handle the caught wild game during his absence - since none of them knew how to preserve meat with spices and marinades, nor thought of casting Preserve spells (which is a fundamental spell in a Healer's magical arsenal) - when he opened their pantry to show him the leaf-wrapped meats (also to brag at the expanded cellar space, because the youngest Wei Ying spent time digging more little caves beneath the kitchen), Lan Zhan was taken aback initially at the freakish dark light emitting from the bottom of the hole. There was an instant dip in the kitchen's temperature and Lan Zhan could feel a shiver running up his fingertips from an indeterminable chill. That Wei Ying reached in and took out one of the wrapped meat. Lan Zhan sniffed it (it smelled alright) but refused to touch it, for now (it looked frozen and covered with ice crystals even in the heat of summer; he thought his eyes deceived him, and that it must be some kind of untouchable curse that only Wei Ying dared to conjure). Lan Zhan knows that Wei Ying is wise and crafty in the ways of magic, and although he couldn't identify the spell used to conserve the freshness of a two-week old chunk of deer meat, he did not openly dispute on whether the meat can, or should be consumed; he could remain as a vegetarian for a long time, anyway. He did ask though, whether it's safe to eat anything else stored inside their pantry, now that a cursed (he presumes) thing emitting the cold dark light has taken up residence in there. Thirty-year old Wei Ying answers by asking him how he felt after eating the two-week old minced chicken in the congee earlier that day. Lan Zhan knows Wei Ying will not harm anyone on purpose, so he lets the question slide and prays that his stomach doesn't protest.

Lan Zhan sighs. He hobbles on a handmade crutch (just a smoothed T-shape wood that fifteen-year old Wei Ying crafted from a couple of branches), and slowly makes his way out of the kitchen with all four Wei Yings by his side to survey the rest of the aftermath, and how he can put things back in order for his - their - little growing estate in the 'Mounds.

Lan Zhan is, truthfully speaking, beginning to warm up to his extended family much better than he'd predicted.

It helps that all four Wei Yings are the same person, have the same history and memories, behavioural traits and personality, intelligence, wisdom and knowledge, latent and manifested skills, and spellcasting capabilities; they differ mostly in terms of physical strength, motor skills, and maturity in their thinking process. Simply put, take one Wei Ying, make three more copies, and squeeze each into different moulds of increasing sizes, and let the resulting lively quartet run along in their own separate ways (or circles). Since they are independent individuals with what Lan Zhan suspects as limited unseen telepathic connections amongst them, each Wei Ying can be regarded as a different aspects, or distorted mirror images of the same character.

There are probably more obvious and subtle quirks that he's not yet discovered about the after-effects of the Wei Ying's quadruplication, so he puts on his scholarly hat, and with his hand on his heart, vows to thoroughly understand his four spouses and prosper the Lan's Residence.

The first order of business that morning is to sort out their cave-home - and the first things he noticed are unusual balls of crumpled bedsheets around their abode - one near the kitchen stove, one under the dining table, another by the bed, and the final one at the entrance by the doorsteps. When he asks about those, the current Wei Ying explains that they agreed to let Lan Zhan lie on the bed to rest and recover, so they chose to sleep elsewhere. Since they tend to move around and land punches and kicks while dreaming, each picked a different spot around their tiny home to spend the nights lying on a piece of bedsheet. Nine-year old Wei Ying was able to fit into a narrow strip of floor space between the wall and the bedside table; fifteen-year old Wei Ying preferred to sleep under the dining table where he could comfortably stretch his legs; and thirty year-old Wei Ying curled up near the stove where he sometimes lit a Fire spell to the firewood and kept them warm. Lan Zhan knows that the entrance is the coldest of the four spots, especially when chilly winds blew in during the summer nights. His bare feet taps gently on the floor's surface - it is hard, and can be unforgiving as well.

Lan Zhan bends down as much as the crutch would allow, and unsteadily opens his arms as widely as possible. All four Wei Yings gently approach and embrace him from all sides, in a wordless gesture of “Welcome back”.

Notes for the Chapter:

It's a bit refreshing for me to get some character- and world-building done, and take things to the next level. For those who are interested, please refer to Chapter 5 as well :-)

I'll need to get back to my dayjob starting next week, so we'll be back with the regular scheduled programming of slower releases - maybe a chapter every few days or week(s). Well, it's been a great year-end holiday and I've managed to write so much during that time; and I hope everyone's going to have a good start to 2020!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Lan Wang Ji is truly the Grand Patriarch of the Lan's Residence.

He sits on his palatial throne (a plain stool that nine-year old Wei Ying brought out from the dining area), right at the main entrance to their home, and casts long shadows to the interior like a grand, imposing figure (even that elongated hairpiece looks awe-inspiring from an angle). With both hands resting on his royal sceptre (actually, the crutch), a solemn look on his face (he's always expressionless anyway), he easily commands four royal subjects (would queens, mistresses, concubines - or heaven forbid, slaves - be more fitting?) to pander to his whims and slake his unshakable thirst to mend the broken, relocate the misplaced, replenish the missing, and make his universe Perfect once more.

It's a sunny summer morning, and the heat is rising fast within the cavernous walls - so everyone is topless and wears only their underpants or trousers; except for the nine-year old, because there aren't any garments suitable for his size, so he dons a baggy undershirt and goes pantless.

Lan Zhan already knows that the fifteen-year old doesn't get along well with the youngest, and due to the small stature, the boy wouldn't be able to contribute much to their home re-organization effort - so he asks the nine-year old to grab a chair, a notebook and an ink-brush pen, and sit by his side obediently. Wei didi immediately shows familiar traits of the beloved Wei Ying: he giggles, then pecks Lan Zhan's left cheek as a gesture of appreciation, and rushes off. Wei da ge wordlessly follows the boy into the kitchen, with a long arm over the little one's shoulder, to help the latter pick out a small chair suitable for his size. Lan Zhan understood immediately, at that point, that the eldest cares for the youngest the most - and makes a mental note of it.

Meanwhile, Lan Zhan sets his sights on the other two individuals that he's most familiar with. Earlier, while being spoonfed chicken congee by Wei da ge, and the other three talked non-stop about their despair and misery for the last couple of weeks, he noticed that all four Wei gong zi s have already established a basic and intimate level of understanding, relationship and hierarchy among themselves - including how they addressed each other appropriately and respectfully in a brotherly manner.

"Wei er ge (second brother), san ge (third brother), we'll start with the kitchen first, then the pantry next. Take out everything from the cabinets and shelves, group them, then show or tell me what you have - or don't have," he starts issuing orders in his no-nonsense voice, and both men quickly scuttled away without hesitation; both seemed thrilled to be addressed as elderly brothers (ge ge), probably reminiscent of a distant memory sixteen years ago when Lan Zhan was made to say Wei gege 's name in his first drunk experience at the Cloud Recesses.

The remaining two emerge from the kitchen and narrowly missed colliding with the er and san ge s, carrying the requested items. Wei da ge brought an additional tray of tea and a plate of hastily-steamed store-bought dumplings - Lan Zhan recognizes that the eldest has a mind of his own, is cognizant of the situation around them, and always takes the initiative to do something - which may or may not be necessary. Without a word, da ge places the chair on Lan Zhan's right side, sets the tray upon it, and pours a full cup next to the tea pot. He hoists the little boy who held the blank notebook and a dipped pen, and places him on the throne (actually, still the plain-looking stool), between Lan Zhan's open legs. Then, he pecks Lan Zhan's right cheek lightly, and whispers into the blushing right ear that little Wei Ying likes to be close to his gege, just as how little Wang Jis like to hang out with baby Wei Yings. He takes both of Lan Zhan's hands and gently wraps them around the nine-year old by the small, slightly chubby waist (like a seat belt), before giving a good squeeze at the intertwined fingers locking right above the boy's navel and murmurs, "Hold him tightly, I'll do what is needed," before leaving the two alone.

Lan Zhan didn't realize he'd been staring at the long-haired man sashaying away until Wei didi tugged at the older man's underpants. The boy looks up with a pout and a few irresistibly cute blinks of big brown eyes. " Gege , can we start now?" he asks adorably and starts kicking his bare feet restlessly into the air; his body doesn't touch the older man's injured torso or lower right leg. Lan Zhan sighs and rests his chin on the child's head. Wei didi smells like Wei Ying, though a little milder and sweeter.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Nine-year old Wei Ying is adorable and docile in the presence of a serious gege . He listens to the instructions and acts as Lan Zhan's trusted scribe and (underaged) secretary - he studiously fills page after page of the blank notebook with messy handwriting on what needs to be fixed, to be purchased, and needs to be replenished. Soon, he'd written a shopping list, a comprehensive planning schedule, and to-do lists for each part of their home, and later, around the estate; during which Lan Zhan enjoys cuddling the soft, warm body that still holds some baby fat. When it comes to re-folding some wrinkled fabrics , he happily hopped off the stool and asked with an charming grin, " Gege , can you teach me how to fold your shirt? I want to make sure that you will look the best every day!" - Lan Zhan couldn't refuse. Later, when Wei didi returned to his seat between the older man's legs, turns around and puts on his biggest smile while holding up two cut-out red coloured coupons, one on each cheek - Lan Zhan smiles back (!) and rubs a thumb to the little boy's nose to wordlessly say how precious the child is to him.

The thirty-year old, on the other hand and quite frankly, leaves Lan Zhan feeling rather disconcerted - partly because of the oft-surprising ways he behaves - he gets caught off-guard by moments of helpfulness and thoughtfulness, then sometimes he's subtle and seductive, and at other times brazen and proactive - however, the actions are almost always done at the right time, and under the right circumstances. It feels like as though Wei da ge can read into everyone's minds and knows what to say or do - and what not say or do (and he keeps telling himself, this is still his Wei Ying, and later with another nervous sigh, that this could be the future Wei Ying that he'd spend the rest of his life with.)

Another reason for the anxiety that's undermining his confidence in dealing with the da ge , is that Lan Zhan had been ingrained from his childhood years to respect the seniors; and this Wei Ying looks to be of equal, if not of older, age and status compared to him. Although on the surface it feels easier to talk to the eldest Wei because he isn't as bouncy and bubbly as the rest, at the same time, there is a lingering fear that if they speak too much, Lan Zhan may offend Wei da ge , or that he may be outmaneuvered in a conversation involving his wits (it's really a baseless concern, but Lan Zhan has his own insecurities). So he remains polite towards the oldest of the four, and tries not to react impulsively to every question thrown at him (when da ge holds a ladle - the one that was bought from Yiling's evening market not too long ago - that was carelessly left in the kitchen sink, he sends a lusty look at the older man, gives it a barely noticeable lick along the length of the handle, and asks: where should I really put this?), or every well-intended but thinly veiled suggestion ( da ge would pick up cushions scattered haphazardly around the house, fluff them up, and tell Lan Zhan that they should just leave them on the bed instead of storing them inside the cupboard - because the cushions will be needed at night, and they're especially good for supporting one's neck and buttocks. Lan Zhan initially agrees about the usefulness of the cushions, until he catches the underlying hint that they - he and all four Wei Yings - will be spending the night together on the bed; he'd made it clear that none of his Wei Yings will ever need to sleep on the cold hard floor again. Then, he inadvertently zooms into the last word in da ge 's suggestion - why would a cushion be needed to support one's buttocks? Lan Zhan shivers, coughs loudly, and mentally tries to swat away inconceivable images. Wei da ge laughs and starts arranging the said cushions against the bedframe).

Unexpectedly, Wei da ge 's superior magical abilities come in handy even when no one asks for his help. He'd cast Wind spells to keep the everyone cooled, conjure Invisible Hands when something is about to topple from a high cupboard, tap into a freshly created network of Sensing talismans (which works infinitely better than the Eye talisman) to locate things that have gone missing or were forgotten, or Levitate his er and san di s if he sees them tip-toeing to reach for the top shelves - and expectedly, receive no thanks in return. Lan Zhan also appreciates - but without saying anything about it - when Wei da ge nonchalantly stands behind him and starts massaging his stiff shoulders, and imperceptibly send minute amounts of Energy to make him feel better.

Lan Zhan finds interacting, talking and ordering the fifteen-year old Wei san ge to be as breezy as his lovely twenty-something Wei Ying. The teenager knows the ins and outs of their home, so, by saying something as vague as "Put the plates with blue designs on the second shelf to the right, and a bit behind the Mine and Yours mugs", he is still able to execute the orders with perfect tens - if he puts his heart and mind into it.

However, he has a rebellious streak in him, as evidenced by a shouting match between them after the first hour of work - teenage Wei Ying starts muttering "you're not clear enough" (in which Lan Zhan rephrases to simplify his sentences that are already abbreviated, and he gets annoyed doing this for at least three times per given instruction), "What? You didn't tell me” (Lan Zhan says it again, followed by and exasperated “Now you know” after the third repetition) and “I can’t hear you, so speak louder, old man” (which riles up Lan Zhan a bit, because how dare Wei Ying call him an old man !), and when he deliberately misplaced something or doesn’t tell the truth (teenage Wei Ying loves to confuse his lefts and rights with Lan Zhan’s), the current Wei Ying would catch him red-handed and shout out “Lan Zhan, he’s lying! Look at what he’s actually doing!” (and yes, teenage Wei Ying is all smiles and grins when he succeeds in confusing and irritating the older man) - all of which further exacerbates the older man’s headache, and he thinks he’ll need another bandage around his forehead.

Lan Zhan decides to punish the fifteen-year old by giving him more hard labour work - such as lugging out the bags of grains for the chickens from the shed, sort out the newly harvested batch of fruits under the hot morning sun to pick out the unripe ones, and complete some unfinished stone walls by hauling and adding layers of rocks and capstones - until the teenager is utterly exhausted. In some ways, it feels cathartic as though he’d gone back sixteen years to give Wei Ying a good scolding for all the annoying things he’d done; only that this time, Lan Zhan is more forthcoming in disciplining the teenager.

Wei da ge steps up his shoulder massage, then knowingly gives Lan Zhan a pleasurable double-circular back-scratch around the unbandaged part of the body (Lan Zhan's favourite scratch style) - to pacify the old man whenever he’s agitated by the teen.

The last and current Wei Ying gets off scot-free, because he’s at his best behaviour.

By lunchtime, they've fixed most of the chaos that nearly ruined their home and gardens, and all Wei Yings have received valuable life lessons in housekeeping and handling domestic affairs. Everyone agreed that Lan Zhan is a superhuman that deserve the utmost appreciation and rounds of applause, cheers and celebrations - over a simple but extremely satisfying meal of rice (congee for Lan Zhan - the wound on his stomach hasn't healed up yet), herbal chicken soup, home-style steamed minced pork patty, boiled fish with tofu, sauteed garden vegetables, and a pot of pu'er tea. (Lan Zhan had ordered the excess jars of impulsively-purchased Laozu Smiles to be kept in locked cabinets and away from nine-year old Wei Ying's grasp.) However, Lan Zhan politely declined the fanfare, and asked everyone at the round dining table to have their meal in silence, following Gusu Lan's family rules; all four Wei Yings gladly abide by their husband's orders.

Lan Zhan took a moment to mull over the food laid out in front of him. He was prepared to be contented with just with his bowl of plain congee and a few pieces of patty and vegetables within his reach due to his limited mobility (he couldn't really lean into the table due to the bandages, and his limbs still hurt from the wounds) - just then, his current Wei Ying rose up, took the seat on his right, and like well-oiled clockwork, everyone else shuffled accordingly in unison.

Wei da ge scoops a spoonful of the chicken soup with precise portions of meat, wolfberries and sliced edible herbal roots, blows a couple of times, and puts it to Lan Zhan's lips. Lan Zhan takes a sip of the refreshingly warm savoury liquid, which whets his appetite. Wei Ying, next to him, says, "Lan Zhan, you've been taking care of me all this while, so let me - us - take care of you this time."

San ge uses his spoon to deftly cut the pork patty into smaller pieces, and uses his chopsticks to place them into Lan Zhan's bowl. "That's right. No matter how old you are, or how ill you become, I - and all of us - will always stay by your side. So, don't be shy, and eat up!"

Didi, who now on Lan Zhan's left, puts a bundle of boneless fish meat and cut tofu into the same bowl. "I'm very good at picking the meat off the fish bones, and have been doing this since my youngest days. I'll keep doing this for you, so you better eat all the fish that I'll be serving to you - every day, every week, every month and even every year!"

Da ge works diligently to strip chunks of meat from a drumstick, and doesn't need to look up when he casually speaks. "We're husband, wife and children to you. There's no need to let ego and pride get ahead of you, no need to restrain yourself, and certainly, no need to hold back from asking for more, because we'll always give you the best and the most, lao gong."

Wei Ying puts a full spoon of congee and a bit of every dish on the table, already blown a few times, to Lan Zhan's lips. "As you've said, let's eat quietly. Lan Zhan, take your time... say aaah... (慢慢吃...啊...)"

Lan Zhan felt his eyes prickle a bit with tears, and relishes a mouthful of his family's cooking. It's one of the best he's had since leaving Jingshi the summer before.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

After nourishing his body with the heart-warming lunch and a cup of tea (and Wei Ying helped to wipe his mouth too - how sweet!), Lan Zhan casts a couple more healing spells on his bandaged wounds. His speed of recovery is nothing short of amazing when coupled with a Healer's abilities to seal open wounds, repair broken, bleeding flesh and skin, and restore the blood circulation. He estimated that he'd need to keep the bandages on and use the crutch for a few more days.

All four Wei Yings "Waaaaaaah" in unison at the soft blue beams of light, and Lan Zhan feels his pride swell a little more. They crowd around him like his biggest fans, and he doesn't feel any discomfort at all - they're all his Wei Yings, and his only Wei Ying, after all, regardless of being topless or pantless. He'd seen the eldest fumble like a child when he accidentally dropped a raw meat patty to the floor while preparing lunch, the youngest doing something adult-ish such as giving very meaningful insights into the shopping list, and the teenager doing more than what is asked when he puts his heart and mind into it, picks up new knowledge swiftly and puts what he'd learnt to good use. In the span of a few hours spent together working in their household, he realized that all four are essentially the same person, the same Wei Ying, regardless of age and size. Any misgivings or feelings of anxiety dissipate as quickly as their first lunch together is polished off from the dining table.

"Lan Zhan, you're really great! Not only can you fix yourself so quickly... you've fixed our entire home and estate, and even prepared a list of things to buy, and a planner for everyone so that we know what to do, and at which day and time. It's very efficient!"

"You've taught me how to differentiate ripe apples and peaches from the unripe ones, and how to tell which vegetables can be harvested sooner or later! That's real talent!"

“Under your guidance, I learned how to make delicious meals today, and you taught me how to use your collection of written recipes. Thank you, Lan Zhan. You’re a master chef, indeed.”

“ Gege , your techniques for folding clothes is awesome! I’ll fold them better the next time! You’ll not be disappointed!”

Lan Zhan coughs quietly at the barrage of praise that made his heart soar higher than the heavens. “It’s my job to care for all of you. And teach you what is needed,” he remarks casually, and keeps his eyes on the tea cup, before taking another sip. He leans backwards against the backrest of his chair, his good right hand resting on his filled belly, and accidentally let out a small hiccupy burp because he’s had two tasty bowls of congee with full toppings. The current Wei Ying tilts to the side and gives a small smooch on Lan Zhan’s cheek, in which the latter responds with a satisfied but impassive Hnn.

“I-- We didn’t know you’d store the grains for the animals in the shed. I’m so sorry to have overspent the money on the animal feed!”

“He’s right. If only we knew how much those coupons could save on our grocery bills... We’re sorry for spending money unnecessarily, Lan Zhan. At least now we know - especially didi - how exciting couponing can be.”

“I.. I’m also sorry for making paper kites out of your periodicals! I know you wanted to read them.. Sorry.. I won’t do it again...” (Lan Zhan couldn’t resist patting the boy’s head in response)

“Lan Zhan, I-- we’ve made a lot of mistakes in the last couple of weeks. I started everything by casting those terrible spells... I’m sorry as well, I know I shouldn’t have, but...”

Lan Zhan puts a warm right palm on current Wei Ying’s cheeks and shakes his head. “No need to say anything else. What is done is done,” and he looks around at the others, “I’m not angry at any of you. We should focus on the task ahead. Do not be disappointed in yourselves - you’ve all done well.”

In a sudden flurry of open arms and clambering legs, Lan Zhan receives four heart-melting kisses on his mouth and cheeks at the same time - there was a ticklish sensation, above his lips and on his chin. He realized belatedly that in the last two weeks or more, he had started growing a mustache and a short beard while he was bedridden. It doesn’t help his embarrassment that Wei da ge kept stroking his facial hair the most (and he’s brazen enough to kiss him on the lips - he tastes the same as any of his Wei Yings, but a little more mature and musky in flavour).

He blushes intensely. When Wei da ge finally stopped plunging his tongue against his, when Wei er ge and san ge stopped leaving love bites on the cheeks and jawline, and when Wei didi stopped rubbing his nose tip into his ears with squeals of “I like gege very much!”; he clears his throat and murmurs loudly that they still need to fill the water clock outside their home.

It is a shockingly affectionate display of their love and gratitude, and really, a sombre reminder that his married life is no longer the same as before - but he should be used to many levels of Wei Ying-ness by now, Lan Zhan tells himself quietly.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

“Wei Ying, there’s no need--”

Sssssh, sssssh, ssssh, all four Wei Yings whisper.

“Wei Ying, I can do this by myself--”

“ Lao gong , I watched you drink a whole pot of tea this morning, so you really don’t need to hold back. It’s perfectly understandable.”

“Yeah, Lan Zhan, just let it go. We’re all your wives and your family, so there’s no need to be shy.”

“Old man, don’t get so worked up. You don’t have any free hands at the moment, and you’re on a crutch, so we’re giving you a helping hand. Just do it!”

Lan Zhan grits his teeth and squeezes the roll of wash cloth in his right hand - right after lunch, he'd unassumingly left for the outdoor pool with his crutch for a quick bath to scrub away any grime and sweat on his body. All four Wei Yings tailed him without his knowledge. He thought he'd relieve himself first, so he carefully loosened his pants by the poolside, and was immediately ambushed by four hands - one from each lovely (and pantless and therefore naked) Wei Ying.

Wei didi was the fastest, so he called dibs on the only part that he could reach and comfortably hold on with his tiny fingers - the base of the vulnerably flaccid penis. His er and san ge s struggled a bit (even tried to flick each other's fingertips off) and eventually settled on co-sharing the few inches of prime estate along the penis' length. The da ge 's large meaty palm looms from the side and nearly (impressively) covers all the other threes' hands from the top. He skillfully uses his second and third fingers to peel away the foreskin and expose the pink cockslit.

Sssssh, sssssh, ssssh, all four Wei Yings whisper again.

Lan Zhan shudders silently as he lets go. All four Wei Yings also pee into the pool together with their husband (their Patriarch).

Wei da ge doesn't forget to shake the dribbling tip when done, and follows-up with generous rubs on the sensitive, wet slit and against the special spot at the base of the glans with the roughened pads of his fingertips.

Lan Zhan re-assures himself repeatedly that he should get used to four times the Wei Ying-ness - now if not soon - while growing hard in front of his spouses.

Notes for the Chapter:

I've had lots of fun imagining how Lan Zhan handles an expanded family, and how the family handles him!

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 33

After a short game of rock-paper-scissors between the four fully-naked Wei gong zi s, which Lan Zhan suspects to be rigged due to the eldest Wei's uncanny ability to read everyone's mind and see through their deceptive strategies and tricks, the quartet unanimously agrees to split into two groups in order to save time and get their household back on track.

Wei er and san ge , considered as being at the peak of their youths and therefore given the thickest stack of work schedules to deal with, grudgingly took a quick, cleansing and much-needed cooling dip (just a splash into the pool and go), before returning to the cave. In all seriousness, they really had no time to dawdle, given how dire their situation is, and could be , if sustainable remedial actions are not applied immediately.

San ge works to dispel (“get rid of”, in Lan Zhan's words) the unidentifiable (Cold) spell in the pantry with his enhanced elemental spellcasting abilities, and consequently spices, marinades, salts, smokes and pickles the meats and vegetables inside, before arranging them in the correct order on the underground shelves to where they belong. Lan Zhan made it very clear that he didn't like the chilly dark light emitting out of their food store (because he doesn't know whether it was a creature, a curse or something that only Wei Ying knows and no one else), and preferred the fragrant smells of spice every time the trapdoor is opened. San ge has a list of instructions on how to preserve perishable food, which was written by the youngest Wei under the guidance of their Patriarch. Later, he has his hands full with foraging around their backyard, more farmwork, and tend to the animals - he is tasked to pick and prepare two fully grown chickens by dinnertime, because (of the cruel reality that) there are so many more hungry mouths to feed in the coming days.

Er ge is in charge to make Fairy Messenger calls since his voice is recognizable by the people he works with. He'd make calls to their suppliers and customers to reinstate their orders at the next possible opportunity - after a quick mental calculation of their monies, Lan Zhan believes that "next month" will be too late to save their financial situation. A long list of order for provisions was also made to the Qishan Merchant Guild call center - this time, they used as many coupons, member cards and the other stuff that the Tian Third Sister usually sends, to get the best discounts as possible. With a written script full of impressive and pretentious-sounding business jargons (as dictated earlier by Lan Zhan, and penned down by Wei didi), Wei er ge managed to convince the manager of the trading centre to send the goods first by Postbirds, and they agreed on an extended three-month payment term. Shortly after midday, he leaves the cave-home for Yiling; he could still make a quick buck by street peddling during the afternoon, and meet up with customers who couldn't be contacted by Fairy Messenger spells.

With the two noisiest gone, Lan Zhan can finally concentrate on getting his body washed - because he feels sticky, and actually smells quite ripe - especially around his armpits and groin area. He suspects that during the preceding two weeks, he's been given minimal (even inadequate) attention on personal hygiene and in general, patient care.

He'd been so absorbed in saving their household, that he hadn't thought of how or what is needed to wash himself with bandages all over his body, other than to carry a small washcloth and try his best to wet and scrub wherever he could reach with his remaining good hand - while still standing on the crutch (an impossible feat, really). He didn't need to think hard; Wei da ge told the youngest to fetch a fresh, sun-dried bathtowel from the laundry line, a low stool from the kitchen, and 'the long thing that sprinkles' from the workroom; while he untied the older man's hair and took away the crumpled underpants. Da ge made fleeting remarks that Lan Zhan may find similarities in the current situation with his younger days - when adults and kids used to bathe and play together in the nude at the springs behind the Cloud Recesses -, and the latter is silently thankful for the soothing thought. It relaxes him, and reminds him that it's still, and always Wei Ying who is beside him, even if he looks strangely older, and busily picking up his underwear from the floor.

Since both men in the early or mid-thirties are naked for a while, Lan Zhan takes the time to admire Wei da ge 's side profile, as the latter crouched by the poolside and washed the underpants with solid scrubs and a generous dose of powdered soap (handmade by one of the Wei gong zi s during the last couple of weeks, since Lan Zhan hadn't seen this form of cleaning substance before). Wei da ge has an aged look - leaner face, deeper set of eyes that look more downcast, jaded and weary for his age, more defined cheekbones and a couple of wrinkles here and there; and against the sunlight, Lan Zhan could make out the tanned, firm, well-muscled body frame that both accentuates and refines the contours, bulges and curves on across the sinewy expanse of his back, limbs and tight buttocks too. He wondered briefly if in ten or so years' time, his lovely Wei Ying would grow taller, more mature, muscular, and masculine - because there's a whole lot more body hair especially on the chest, abs, that bushy treasure trail leading from navel to a forest of dark curls surrounding the genitals - which spreads luxuriously to the thighs and legs too.

"Yes, and my ass is hairy as well, if you're interested to know," Wei da ge casually adds, while rinsing the suds off the white garment.

Lan Zhan is taken aback. Could he--

-- read your mind? Yes, I can. Read everyone's mind? Yes, I can do that too." Rinse, rinse, rinse. "But I don't always say or act on it, so understandably, you didn't know."

Lan Zhan frowns, takes a step back and steadies himself on the crutch. He inhales a deep breath and tries to collect his thoughts - it's an unexpected threat, as well as an opportunity that presents itself in a daunting way, in the form of a cunning and intelligent Wei Ying who is clearly above his league. "Wei da ge , then you know all the questions in my mind, and you know how to answer them. Is that correct?"

Wei da ge does not even bat an eye towards Lan Zhan. He lathers a particular spot on the crotch of the garment with an extra pinch of powdered soap. This Wei Ying is disturbingly akin to Lan Zhan when it comes to cleanliness and perfection of a piece of undergarment. He sighs, "Lan Zhan ah (啊啊) Lan Zhan, we're husband and wife for such a long time, and yet you still harbour such creepy, distasteful and disturbing thoughts about me," he pauses in mid-scrub and spares a rather unimpressed look at the older man, "so yes, I know the questions, and can choose which to answer, and how to answer them."

Lan Zhan narrows his eyes, just slightly. Wei da ge has the upper hand in their conversation - and in fact, the power dynamics of their relationship too. "You... you were sincere when you told me about what happened after I fell, and during the past couple of weeks where everyone struggled without me. Can I get your assurance that you'll at least be honest with me, if you decide to answer my questions?" Lan Zhan places a hand over his heart and does not flinch nor mince his next words, "I have my principles, and I promise not to react badly even though the truth may be absurd or may hurt." He is determined to level their playing field even if the eldest Wei decides to play his mind games on him.

Wei da ge stares at Lan Zhan for a few seconds, incredulous. Then he stands up and bellows out a hearty laugh. “Lan Zhan, what’s with this tense and hostile atmosphere between us?! Ha ha ha... after what happened the night I met with the Tian sisters, I wouldn’t even dare to craft silly stories for your entertainment, because you can’t take a joke as a joke. But if you really insist--” he pulls up his three-finger salute with one hand, and rests the other on his hips - with the half-washed undergarment as well - and seem to recite a passage directed to the midday skies above them, “-- I swear by the name of the song you’ve given for the both of us, that I will only tell the truth, the entire truth, and absolutely only the truth. And my husband here swears on equal terms that he will not treat me badly or kick me out of the house, no matter what truths I may say.” He puts down his salute and leans forward. “Happy now, lao gong ?”

Lan Zhan is stunned, but nevertheless, nods shakily.

Wei da ge -- “Oi, stop calling me that when we’re alone. I’m technically still younger than you, but don’t go calling me Wei didi either because I might end up feeling inferior,” Wei Ying says when he goes back to washing Lan Zhan’s underpants. He hasn’t cleaned that spot on the crotch yet.

“Let me truthfully answer to your immediate and most pressing questions, for those questions that I choose to answer, and decided on how to answer them,” in which Lan Zhan winced, because Wei Ying had cleverly succeeded in setting his own perfect stage for answering the older man’s questions, “First off, all four of us - and not just the one you call ‘lovely Wei Ying’ - are alive, in the flesh and blood, of equal importance but not in physical proportions, and born of the same individual. So, we will not disappear into thin air on one fine day like a time-limited magical spell. We’re really here in this world, and are subjected to the effects of the Creation spell which you refused to want to learn more of. All I can say is that we're created in the ways which you see us now - for example, I'm Wei Wuxian in the early thirties, physically, mentally, spiritually and in every aspect except that I'm not from the future," Wei Ying points at himself proudly and leaves soapy suds on his chest, "There's a bit of a temporal effect in what I've become, but don't let that drag us down with too many details, alright?"

Lan Zhan stands still, and listens intently. Wei Ying pokes at the spot on the pants, because he finds it strange that after two rounds of hard scrubs with powdered soap, the stubborn smudge hasn't come off yet. He rinses the garment in the pool again, which becomes foamy over time.

"Second, don't be surprised that I can use powerful spells such as those related to Creation and heaven forbid, Time as well. I can definitely use it, at least in my advanced age and state. The twenty-something Wei Ying can too, with some experience, practice and encouragement. He's a handful, isn't he? Always resorts to crazy ideas and even prohibited spells to worm his way out of trouble. In hindsight, it would've been better to just send you off to Yiling City Hospital, put you under the care of Qishan's best doctors, and have you recuperate much faster. We could deal with the hefty hospital bill later."

"So why didn't you?" Lan Zhan cuts in, almost in retaliation.

Wei Ying pauses in mid-rinse and looks up to the passing clouds, trying to figure out a plausible answer. "Hmm.. I don't know. I seem to resort to tricks and spells to solve my own problems. I've been doing that since at a young age. Since my days at the Cloud Recesses. Since picking up the dark arts. Since meeting you, and definitely since living with you.” Then, he continues to slam the abused underpants into the rippling water.

Lan Zhan touches the bandage on his forehead, seemingly more relaxed since they’re on an agreeable topic at the moment; he knows Wei Ying loves to use spells on anything - Fireballs to distract the giant turtle in Xuan Wu cave, Binding spells to tie them together, Energized papermen to spy on others, even Invisible Hands to open up big wooden doors, and so forth. “Wei Ying, have you cast powerful spells all over our home and estate before?”

“Of course. I’ve set up plenty of Eye and other talismans to keep our surroundings safe, and cast spells on my inventions such as the D-Broom to help out with the housework, as examples.”

Lan Zhan absently scratches the side of his face. He feels a few a stubbles sprouting along his jawline - he hoped the younger Wei Yings did not feel turned off when they kissed him earlier. “Have you cast such spells on me too, during our time here together?”

“Absolutely. I helped to Energize you when you’re feeling ill, though I’m not a trained Healer so I don’t have the full arsenal lined-up in my hands. I also used elemental spells on you, such as Wind to keep you cool, Shield to protect you from the natural elements while you’re at home or out on the fields, Fire to keep us warm at nights when we run low on firewood, and many other instances.” Wei Ying grumbles something in-between his smooth answers to the questions, when he rubs a thick paste of soap into the spot one more time since he’s steadfast in removing that tenacious stain. “Oh, and actually, all of us find your stubbles to be quite cute,” he adds with a short manly giggle, and resumes trying to impregnate the garment with soap with his index finger.

Lan Zhan snorts derisively, but it is barely audible. He throws the next question amidst the rather sarcastic, self-deprecating moment. “Then, did you also use those powerful spells when I was bitten by the snake ghouls, two weeks ago?”

Wei Ying stops his giggling, and his face turns pale, grave.

“Wei Ying? Answer me.” Lan Zhan asks again, serious. He sighs when there is no response, and limps towards Wei Ying. The latter flinches when Lan Zhan towers above his haunched figure by the poolside, the crutch seemingly like a massive pillar casting a noon shadow over him beneath the brilliant sun directly above them.

“I had a nightmare before waking up this morning. We were hunting for their nest, and we were ambushed by the snakes. My right arm was hurt, yet I woke up with a bandage on my left forearm,” the older man coolly states, and touches the aforementioned bandaged arm.

“It’s a nightmare, you say. So, it’s just a nightmare. Right or left arm, does it really matter?” Wei Ying does not look up. The underpants are no longer being washed, and they float on the surface of the water.

“Wei Ying, I’m asking you to choose to answer this question truthfully. So, how will you answer me now?” Lan Zhan presses on. Wei Ying dips a finger into the water, and starts to draw circles. A small, gentle whirlpool forms.

“I died, didn’t I? When the giant one tore me up. I felt it. And saw it. What is your answer to that?” Lan Zhan continues, and piles up the questions one after another.

Wei Ying heaves a heavy sigh and his shoulders droop. He stares at a vague distant spot on the opposite edge of the outdoor pool. “...Can I tell you a story? You may find it unbelievable or even ridiculous. It could be a fairy tale, or just a re-telling of a bad nightmare. You don’t have to take it seriously if it doesn’t make sense.”

“Mn.” Lan Zhan verbally nudges the other.

Wei Ying takes a deep breath. “Let’s suppose there’s a very powerful magician - a wizard, a sorcerer, whatever you may want to call him - who wished to save a life of someone dear to him. That someone’s body had been crushed, and the soul was destroyed by a very cursed evil element, such as from ghouls and other undead creatures. He cannot turn to anyone in this Mortal Realm, because no one is able to bring a dead person back to normal life under such circumstances. Even I can’t do that either, since the most I could manage is by using magic and the dark arts to force life back into the body - in this case, the body has perished, and the soul has been scattered and therefore cannot be retrieved,” he says, and crosses his arms in his crouched posture. He still stares at a clump of bushes in the distance, under the shade of fruit trees.

“Go on.”

Wei Ying swallows; his throat has gone dry. “So, this magician seeks the heavens as his last resort. The heavens did not spare their mercy upon the man’s request, because the whole incident was from his own doing. His carelessness and recklessness caused the death of the person dear to him. He became disappointed, angry and furious at himself and at everyone, everything in this world. He swore to burn down everything. Even the heavens were not spared. Everything was annihilated in his anger, and using his magical powers, he re-created everything the way things should have been - including the Mortal Realm, the heavens, and the person dear to him. Everything you see today is born of the magician’s desires,” he exhales, “.. and... The end.”

Lan Zhan stares at Wei Ying with a glaring look of disbelief for a full minute it takes his mind to process what he thinks is a grand cosmic joke - and he doesn’t find it funny nor laugh-worthy. Then, he utters, “It doesn’t make sense. It’s disrespectful to the gods. And it has a very rushed ending. It’s a bad-written script. That’s my honest feedback, but I promised not to react badly,” and he sighs, “So, I accept your story in good faith.”

This time, Wei Ying finally moves - he grabs the underpants that threatened to float away from the mini-whirlpool earlier, and stands up. “You’re right. So you better not believe it. You wouldn’t have any way to verify it anyway, since it’s the stuff of dreams and nightmares, and in all likelihood, cannot be real,” and he turns around with an uncomfortable grin on his face.

Lan Zhan does not budge from his stance. He scrutinizes the other man, hoping to pick out any other clues to this puzzle that had mystified him since the moment he woke up that morning. “Theoretically, you’re right. If everything is destroyed and re-created - both this world and the heavens - then there's no way to check if any of this had happened."

Lan Zhan blinks and notices a beautiful, faint white Moon hovering on the horizon, between clumps of bamboo, even at midday.

"... unless, I could try and ask the Moon or the stars behind it," he continues, and gestures with a tilt of his chin towards the second brightest celestial body in the midday sky. Surely you jest, he imagines Wei Ying chuckle back at him. It's his first attempt to crack a joke that day.

Wei Ying does chuckle loudly, and turns around towards the direction that Lan Zhan pointed. He hums for a bit and stares, before responding nonchalantly, "Then I will use my powerful spells to burn them down too."

Lan Zhan does not respond to his own joke, nor Wei Ying's brutally honest answer.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Burning down everyone, everything - those who angered, hurt, wronged.

Then, re-create everything with these two hands, for the two of us.

“I do not deserve what you are doing for me. (我不值得你为我这么做)”
Lan Zhan says, his eyes gazing far in the distance.

“You're worth it. (值得)” the other replies in a heartbeat.

Lan Zhan, do you know how much you mean to me?

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

A full minute of silence passed between them as they peered at the setting daytime Moon, which would soon disappear into a horizon of bamboo and mountain forests. A faint breeze blew.

Lan Zhan unconsciously clicks his tongue and faintly huffs out the breath he'd been holding in, “You're incorrigible... and this conversation is going nowhere,” and starts to walk away from Wei Ying. In the end, does it really matter? I'm still in my Perfect universe, we're still a couple, I still have a family to raise and grow, I still have mouths to feed and bills to pay, I still have housework to do and make our home flourish and thrive - nothing has changed, hasn't it? he asks himself, almost like a mantra of questions.

A strong grip on his good wrist stops him. Lan Zhan stares at what Wei Ying is holding - the other man lifts up the dripping wet underpants. “You're absolutely right on all accounts... and you have a problem. I just realized that I've scrubbed your underwear too hard and now there's a hole at the bottom.” Wei Ying wiggles a finger through a tear at the crotch of the garment.

Lan Zhan sighs tiredly. He mentally adds another item to a list of things he needs to teach Wei Ying while he's still incapacitated - sewing. Wei Ying leans forward and lightly pecks Lan Zhan directly on the lips in sincere appreciation, and doesn't miss the chance to give quick licks at the growing mustache.

Just then, Wei didi emerged with the requested items. The small boy apologized for taking the time, because he nearly couldn't locate the long thing that sprinkles - which turned out to be a novel-looking showerhead (it looks like a lotus seed pod - Wei Ying's trademark design, no doubt) attached to a store-bought garden hose made of animal hides (from Liao's store, probably - another expensive purchase, no doubt as well).

As Wei didi gently guides Lan Zhan to sit on the low stool without straining any muscles or break any tender skin, Wei da ge casts an unidentified spell which forms a pinkish bubble that grew and grew in size; then he directed the bubble to Lan Zhan's abdomen and it envelops around the waist like a thin, semi-transparent but crinkly membrane. It is also a little stretchable and completely waterproof, he realized. Lan Zhan looks up curiously to Wei da ge who silently mouths, "Powerful spell - don't ask." Wei da ge sets pink bubbles on the bandaged parts of the left forearm and the lower right leg, before handing the showerhead to the youngest Wei.

He casts a Water spell and snaps his fingers; a waterspout is drawn from the pool and flows into the hose, which in turn, sprinkles out through the showerhead at an extraordinarily gentle, constant rate - unlike the erratic, sometimes random spurts of a typical raw Water spell. With the aid of the tool, both adult and child Wei gong zi s pamper Lan Zhan while the trio takes a bath by the poolside, together.

Wei didi easily holds the showerhead with one hand while the other soaps Lan Zhan's body, helps to scrub grime and sweat away, and wipes off foam using the washcloth. It is especially useful for washing the hair when Wei da ge levitates the showerhead, and didi runs shampoo and fingers deep into the long lush hair, massaging the scalp and the nape with his small soft fingers, under a shower of clear sun-warmed springwater.

Wei da ge does what any loving, responsible spouse would naturally do after not having 'it' for a fortnight; he crouches in front of Lan Zhan and starts doing very inappropriate things to the husband.

"Your.. d--didi is here! S.. Stop...!" and he hisses in mid-shiver; a pleasurable groan cuts short his pleas for decency. He grips on his crutch shakily as though he may fall off from his seat at any moment.

Wei da ge enjoys rubbing his face into the matted pubic curls that smells of two weeks' worth of husbands (if a husband can be quantified in such a manner), and he breathes in deeply, before blowing hot breaths on Lan Zhan's hard-on. His fingers languidly run up and down the retracted foreskin and tickles along the throbbing veins, but doesn't grip nor stroke the rock-hard, twitching arousal. He caresses the engorged, bulbous head with the tips of both thumbs, but no more than that. He gently tugs at the opposite sides of the pinkish cockslit, and let them open and close like lips trying to murmur something. It leaks and oozes out generous amounts of clear, sticky pre-cum. One fingertip traces the trail of the nectar, sliding down and back up on quivering underside - and no more.

The da ge is terrifyingly patient and exercises extreme levels of self-control never seen before in (any) Wei Ying(s). Lan Zhan's will power is close to crumbling down and he really, really wants to grab da ge's large meaty hands and force him to give him a satisfying handjob, if not a blowjob. The fingertips and tickles are maddeningly, sexually frustrating him to no end.

“Shhhh, let me savour this exquisitely aged liquor with its subtle and complex flavours, like a jar of perfectly made Laozu's Smiles,” he whispers and licks off the droplets of pre-cum, peppers feather-light kisses on the edges of the unwashed angry-red cockhead - and promptly slides his nose tip along the length, inhaling deeply with satisfied nnnhs.

It doesn't help that da ge cast Invisible Fingers (a modified version of Invisible Hands that requires very high mastery of magical flexibility and manipulation) that seep into his groin and they tenderly massage the convulsing swollen prostate and continually squeeze and drain sweet thick liquid out of it; and another set of Invisible Fingers slide into and through the irritated urethra, bodilessly and gently finger-fucking it, leaving Lan Zhan an incredible urge to pee, ejaculate and squirt whatever that is molesting and obstructing the flow and prolonging his much-needed release. Liquid-heated waves of pleasure roll up and down the helpless penis from base to tip and back again; it wants to contract and shoot a glorious load, yet it simply cannot. Lan Zhan starts shaking his hips in a futile effort to shake off the intruding digits, only to be rudely splashed with a bucket of water over his head.

“Ahhh, didi , you’ve got me wet and you’re washing away all the good stuff!” da ge grumbles loudly as his head becomes a dripping mess of long wet locks sticking all over his face, neck and shoulders. He pulls away from Lan Zhan, but the Invisible Fingers continue to do their dirty work.

“Sorry, da ge , I can’t see anything from where I’m standing!” the boy cheekily replies from behind Lan Zhan’s back, while he holds an upturned empty bucket above them.

“Hey, both of you! Don’t you dare start the show without me! I want a piece of the action too!” Wei san ge ’s shouts echo from the kitchen; his hands are full of spices, marinades, and pickling juice.

Lan Zhan has trouble breathing and thinking straight, because the massaging fingers are truly driving him mad with lust and desire. “Wh.. What...”

Wei da ge works to push his thoroughly drenched mane aside. “Your third pressing question? Sure, I can relay feelings, thoughts, senses and experiences to and from the other three Wei xiongdi s. They can choose not to receive them, but usually everyone wants to keep tabs on each other,” and he ties his hair into a crude (and soaked) bun behind his head (with unruly curls sticking out).

(Thus, a primitive version of the wi-fi router concept is born.)

Lan Zhan couldn't grasp the explanation, as his consciousness is inundated with the first of a series of dry orgasms and he drops his crutch with a heavy thud. He grips the edge of the stool for his dear life and starts jerking his back and hips uncontrollably.

Didi puts both his arms around Lan Zhan's waist to steady the older man. He says with his squeaky voice, "Don't worry, Lan gege , I remember that I started playing with my wee-wee at a young age. So watching an older me play with your wee-wee... isn't strange to me at all," then he tip-toes to Lan Zhan's ear and whispers hotly, "Don't forget, I'm also one of your Wei Yings. Think of me as a baby Wei Ying, and I want to play with your little WangJis tonight, gege ."

Wei da ge sends out a group message (which is akin to the modern e-mail, SMS or group chat function) to all other three Wei Yings, and he also adds Lan Zhan as a recipient in copy - that they'll continue the day's proceedings as usual, and prepare for a grand feast by the evening to celebrate their husband's return.

And catch up on two week's worth of husband-time, as well.

Notes for the Chapter:

I received a couple of comments asking about whether to keep the 4 Weis together or not :-) Let's see how this story evolves, as I've not really thought that far yet. So keep the comments coming in, and send in your opinions, thoughts and ideas too!

It looks like things are heating up for the Lan Residence family members!

I'm happy to be able to include a dialogue from the Guardian (镇魂) live-action drama. I watched it before Untamed started airing, so it's kinda special for me, at least ;-)

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 34

Eventually the Invisible Fingers dissipate, and Lan Zhan heaves a sigh of relief and mutters a silent word of thanks to Merciful Goddess Guan Yin. His whole upper chest is sex-flushed with deep shades of red, his heart rate starts to drop from a high plateau he'd maintained during the exceedingly long string of dry orgasms, and he pants heavily to catch his breath. Fortunately the stool did not break, despite the strong, punishing grip of the resident patriarch.

He didn't realize that during the mind-blowing milking session, Wei da ge had cast green bubbles from his hands, and they encase his sputtering, twitching cock. It forms a snug fit with an extra stretchable bubble at the tip, where the constant dribbling and oozing of his precious pre-cum form a bulging balloon of warm, frothy clear liquid. Da ge easily pulls off the wrinkled green sheath when they're done, which loosened considerably after that single use. He is careful not to spill the harvest, and trots off towards the cave-home.

(Thus, the condom is born.)

As Wei da ge passes his didi, he sticks out a tongue out and says, "There's none for you, you rascal, because you dunked a bucket of water over my head," and heads off. Then, he shouts at the top of his lungs, thrilled, "San di ! I've got some for us, and remember to keep a bit for er di !" before disappearing into the dim cavern.

Lan Zhan retrieved his fallen crutch, and leaned tiredly against it. He feels he's been emptied many times, and yet he's still hard, pent-up, tensed, and tremendously bothered with disconcerting feelings of unfulfillment. His balls ached, still craving for release, and feels very heavy.

“What... What happened?” he mumbled out between wheezes.

The nine-year old boy starts toweling the gasping older man. He cocks his head to one side for a brief moment, then nods to no one in particular (and a cute, soft “Enn!”), and replies, “Wei da ge says that he’d already thought ahead about the problems that you’ll face when living with us, such as, how to treat each of us fairly and accordingly to our needs. Everything needs to be shared as best possible although there are limits from being one person alone - for example, your love for us, among many other things. Ermm... am I making sense? I’m just repeating what da ge tells me inside my mind.” The boy squeezes Lan Zhan’s long locks of hair between fluffy folds of dry towel, and makes sure to absorb as much moisture as possible. “I don’t need that stuff in the green bubble, anyway. It’s as boring as those stupid wine jars that da ge , er ge , and san ge drink every night and they go crazy all over the house while I’m trying to sleep!,” he harrumphs and helps Lan Zhan stand up to his feet.

Lan Zhan palms his forehead - it’s no longer bandaged as the wound has partially healed, thanks to his Healer’s spells after lunch. He feels a slight ache coming from within, and guesses that he has a lot to learn about managing four times the mayhem of Wei Ying-ness in his life. He doesn’t even want to think about what happens when three Wei Yings are fed with two jars of Laozu’s Smiles each, at nights, and allowed to run freely berserk inside their tiny abode (it’s a miracle that nothing had collapsed so far).

“Also, Lan gege , I’m sorry about what I said just now about being a baby Wei, and wanting to play with little Lan brothers. It’s really rude, isn’t it? I really didn't mean it - Wei da ge made me speak those nasty words. He always does that whenever er and san ge gang up on me and da ge . He likes to control my actions and speech because I'm the easiest to handle, compared to the other two," Wei didi whispers apologetically, and lets Lan Zhan lean a bit closer for better support from his wounded leg. The kindness shown by the boy, and the change in the topic of discussion helped to soften his erection, and give his tired penis a well-deserved break.

Wei didi is truly a kind-hearted and innocent child, Lan Zhan thought, as he hobbles on the crutch with only a towel around his waist, and is assisted by the boy. He sneaks his fingers into the boy's wavy hair and gives it a friendly ruffle of gratitude.

The da ge , on the other hand, is an overpowered tyrant and a ringleader, who works behind the scenes, mind-controls and manipulates everyone to get what he wants - especially by abusing the youngest and the weakest of them of them all - if he didn't already have all the Wei gong zi s wrapped around his little finger first.

"I heard that, you despicable rotten man!" a shout booms from the kitchen. Lan Zhan winces.

Back in the kitchen-cum-dining area, this time, it was Wei didi who helped to change the bandages (a monumental task, considering his small size versus Lan Zhan's - imagine the small boy going around and around the older man, just to roll the bandages in place!); he'd learnt that after watching his da ge perform the procedure in the morning. He applied some medicinal ointments from Grandma Li's before carefully rolling clean strips woven cloth around the injured areas. The cuts and lacerations have shrunk slightly in size, and rather than bloodied weeping open lesions, they have healed into large scab-crusting gashes; patches of tender new skin grow over deep punctures, scrapes and scratches. Wei didi also made an effort to put a light kiss on each bandage that he'd completed, as a prayer that Lan gege will get well soon. The adorable and sweet act made Lan Zhan's heart squeeze a little more.

Lan Zhan held the remains of the pink bubbles - crumply crinkly thin material that had torn into thin, translucent pieces between bath and the new bandages. He squashed them into a ball and wanted to fling it into the kitchen bin, but Wei da ge stopped him in his tracks. He shakes his head and said, "This is not biodegradable, so it has to go into the recycle bin. I've prepared a barrel just for this purpose, and it's sitting at the edge of the courtyard, with a triangle-like symbol on it - you won't miss it. Here," and he flicks his fingers - the ball of crumpled pink material floats into Wei sange's hands just as the latter is about to exit the house to start on much-needed farm work. He had a bunch of gardening tools in his arms and the ball gently balances itself at the top of the pile of tools. He groans, rolls his eyes at the bossy da ge, and struts out.

Before Lan Zhan could ask about the strange terms that Wei da ge used, he was tersely instructed to cast his Healing spells. "After that invigorating session by the poolside, don't you find your qi levels replenished and as full as it'd been on any other good days?" the eldest Wei adds teasingly. The older man admits that the other man is correct, and - striking the iron while it's still hot - he starts to cast another bout of blue-tinged spells into the freshly dressed areas on his body. Lan Zhan gets a verbal crash course on Pink Bubbles during the process - the newest additions to the household's grimoire.

The pink ones are plastic, Wei da ge explains. Upon casting, bubbles emerge from the hands and they can be moulded and shaped according to the whims and desires of the spellcaster. The resulting bubble can be made into light reusable bags, low-grade and light tools, and other useful everyday items. Given the pink bag example, Lan Zhan remarks that he prefers using hand-woven bamboo baskets because they look more durable and not as flimsy. Wei da ge agrees, and praises Lan Zhan for his incredible foresight, because in two thousand years or so into the future, the pink material will be ubiquitous and used in almost all aspects of mankind's everyday life - and will become one of the biggest threats to mankind as well, especially to the environment. At this point, Lan Zhan raises a hand to stop the conversation, because he does not want to violate any further Creation and Time-related rules of the universe.

The green bubbles, on the other hand, are elastic, the da ge continues from where he was interrupted. The resulting material, which can also be moulded and shaped accordingly, can be stretched impressively and upon release, return to its original form. Lan Zhan learns about some of its infinite uses, including elastic bands to tie waistbands, packages and even their long hair, replace the showerhead hose if necessary, and yes, the condom too. (Lan Zhan learns another new word today - and ponders why would a healthy young man want to store his seed in a green bubble, and how that stored seed could beneficially used.)

In relation to that last invention, and as a forewarning of things to come, Wei da ge warns Lan Zhan that from now on, every time he shows his love to one of the Wei gong zi s, he must think about the other three individuals too - because all of them love their husband dearly and expect a fair share in return, in order to maintain the harmony of their marital bliss and the peace and stability of their beloved Lan's Residence. An acceptable way of sharing had been demonstrated before his eyes, da ge says, in that for each ejaculatory load intended for one of the Wei brothers, he should find a way to divide them into three if not four equal portions (at this point, Wei didi thankfully squeaks with a tongue stuck out that he doesn't want the stuff in the green bubble). Otherwise, Lan Zhan will be penalized and will be forced - whether by physically aggressive or mentally subversive manners - to produce the desired number of loads to satisfy all his spouses.

Lan Zhan swallows nervously at the very crude, calculative, detailed, and very relatable explanations, and feels an immensely heavy burden has been placed upon his shoulders as the Patriarch of the Lan's Residence (and his sex life - also the poor, overworked penis).

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

“ San ge ! We're going to help you forage for food and herbs, and take Lan gege for a walkabout!”

“ San di ! Just keep your mind open and you'll get a live telecast from my side. We won't cheat, I promise. Also, when you catch those two chickens, tie them up and leave them by the kitchen counter. I'll deal with them when we return!”

Teenage Wei Ying wipes the sweat pouring down his cheeks and neck, and truthfully, he feels grateful to have such wonderful xiongli s. In another past life, he'd helmed a family of three siblings and carried the burden of the orphaned Jiang children, along with the pain of betrayal and mistreatment by the cynical, twisted world of cultivation - alone. Now, he could rely on a much (over)powered older brother (self), a very useful older sibling who talks and thinks like him, and a hard working, kind-hearted younger one. Sure, they have trivial arguments of who gets to be the boss or whose chores are more burdensome, however, by the end of the day, when everyone sits at the dining table and have meals together - especially after sharing many jars of wine - it feels comforting to know that there's someone else doing and feeling the same - whether laughing, crying, or arguing - and that someone is family, a twin, a triplet, no... a quadruplet of your own.

He puts down his shovel next to a row of thriving chilli plants, and waves at the trio leaving the courtyard. As expected, he tunes in to the da ge's live feed and watches them enter the forests leading to the vast expanse of their estate. He taps on his temples once.

Are you watching this too, er ge?

Yeah, but I've seen our orchards many times before, since I walk past them almost every day.

... What'cha doin'?

Buying stuff. I sold some talismans in front of a flower shop just now, and the owner came out to find out what I was doin'. Turns out she's planning to hold a small family gathering for her little girl's birthday in three days' time, so I convinced her to order twenty sweet bean dumplings and a plate of party snacks from us.

Swwwwweet! Are you getting the ingredients now?

Yeah, I'm on my way to the marketplace. I plan to station myself there later and hopefully sell more charms, talismans and do some fortune-telling.

Hey... can ya also get some of those creamy candies? Y'know, the ones with the white rabbit on its wrapping paper.

Sure... did didi do something nice? You usually reward that brat with candy.

Naaaah. Just feelin' like giving everyone a treat for all the hard work we've put in. Da ge really helped to set things up and hold the house together. Also, don'tcha call didi a brat. He's not the same as A-Bing or the rest.

Huh, wait till you find out how brats behave... err... talk to you later, I see a potential housewife-y customer comin'. See you in the evening if nothing else comes up!

Yeah, sure. We're gonna have so much fun tonight, with the great Han Guang Jun begging for mercy!

Somewhere among the blossoming peach trees, Lan Zhan sneezed. He thought there was an awful lot of pollen drifting in the summer air.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan bounces up and down violently in the empty wooden cart, secured only by hemp rope straps from the corners that wrap around his shoulders, and with a shrieking Wei didi on his lap, as he hangs onto the sides for his dear life. While both man and child are thrown around like ragdolls, Wei da ge at the front turns his head a little and shouts, “Hold on, I’m going to jump across the stream and it’s gonna be swell!”

“... Wei Ying! There’s nothing at the opposite side except for stonefields!” Lan Zhan screams and squeezes his eyes shut. He tightens his grip around didi’s waist and prays that this is just another form of Wei Ying-ness or they’d end up unceremoniously splattered among rocks and boulders.

The makeshift rickshaw manned by the da ge propels forward as the tall muscular man leaps once, twice, and then with a mighty push, sends the trio and the rickety cart soaring through the air.

Later, Lan Zhan tells himself that he needs to be careful of how (any) Wei Ying (except the youngest, probably) tend to exaggerate their stories with disarmingly deceptive descriptions.

Lan Zhan had been reluctant to go on a “tour” around the estate under the hot afternoon sun, however after some cajoling by the bratty san ge who teased about “becoming too old to even get some fresh mountain air”, and da ge’s persuasive assurances that the grand old patriarch is fit enough to take a ride in a hastily-built transport made of scrapwood, tree branches and a couple of wooden wheels recently salvaged from a landfill for broken, abandoned farming equipment just at the outskirts of Huang village - he finally agreed and was rewarded by a didi -hug (so sweet) because it meant the little boy gets to go out too. It’ll help to get reacquainted with the land, da ge quipped, since the flowers and fruit trees missed seeing their owner for the past couple of weeks.

They’d maneuvered carefully through a narrow dirt trail through the surrounding orchards, and Lan Zhan thought they’d turn around after the first couple hundreds of meters, because that’s when the trail disappears into steep, windy rocky paths unsuitable for wheeled vehicles. To his surprise, da ge took sharp bend at an unknown junction, and the passageway leads to an open field connected to a well-constructed, paved road. Da ge calls it a highway that connects the main hills around the Burial Mounds, and it cuts off near the entry and exit points to neighbouring towns such as Yiling city, Huang village or other populated areas. Lan Zhan stares and squints hard against the bright sunlight in silence, as he marvels at the sight of a vast expanse of landscape that looks different from what he’d remembered, stretching miles upon miles into the horizon under the clear blue skies - in all directions. There are still many hills and mountains, craggy and rugged grasslands, dark forests and volcanic rock-strewn fields - however, there are a whole lot more fruit trees, cultivated land and crops he’d never seen before, and even a few reservoir lakes and waterways feeding into the river system where valleys used to be. He also noticed, fleetingly, signs of civilization in this desolate area - well-maintained hedges and dug trenches by the roadside, signposts pointing to trails leading off the highway, empty unmanned hut-like outposts scattered among forest clearings, suspicious-looking strings of talismans or danger signs hanging between tree trunks or pasted on rock faces, and a handful of watch towers dot the hilltops. The scenery has the characteristics of an early settlement, except that the entire region is uninhabited.

After a few minutes trudging calmly along the quiet highway, Wei da ge asked, what would His Majesty the Patriarch of Lan's Residence like to see - Lan Zhan, in his confounded state and not really listening to anyone anymore, absent-mindedly muttered something about the herbs, because at the back of his mind, he loudly wondered if any of his secret locations for herbs, wild vegetables or even mineral veins along the slopes are still around in this brave new world. Da ge immediately seemed impressed of his prediction, because he barked out that er ge has just received an order from Li's clinic for a batch of medicinal candies; he banks wildly to the side, and they go off-road into an unmarked trail and descended towards the aforementioned stream at a jaw-dropping speed.

It takes a few minutes to regain his composure after being scared to death by the wild joyride of a rickshaw flying over the afternoon sun - but he'd been resurrected once before, so surely there's no need to fear death anymore, correct?

Didi giggles as he helps Lan Zhan out of the cart parked under the shade of a huge tree, and into a beautiful, rockless , large meadow of yellow wildflowers, dense patches of grass and plenty of herb shrubs. Summer cicadas songs fill the air, butterflies flutter past along with floating dandelion seeds. Wei da ge wastes no time in tearing out the shrubs and shoving them into a sack in his hand. He mumbles something about san ge telepathically giving a disappointing score of five points out of ten for the river jump, and he barely seethes out his comeback comment that he'd like to see the teenager try to pull off the same stunt with a heavy cart carrying an adult and a child, and impress all the other Wei brothers. (Apparently, cart-racing has been a source of entertainment for the Wei's for the past couple of weeks, at least.)

" Gege , you don't have to worry. Da ge is very talented in pulling carts because he's so strong!" the youngest one chirps as he tumbles out of the cart, safe and sound, "and da ge tells me to tell you that you're absolutely right, you won't die, so you don't need to be afraid of his cart rides." The nine-year old crouches next to the nearest herb shrub and emulates his eldest brother, by uprooting the plant with his tiny fingers.

"Wei Ying, where are we?" Lan Zhan finally asks, one hand on the crutch, the other steadying his body with a shaky grip on the side of their transport. He continues to look around, astonished that the stonefield he had in his memory has been replaced by a sea of green and flowers.

"We're at your estate, of course. You didn't think the magician would recreate the world without any extra goodies, did you?" Wei da ge shouts out from a short distance away - he'd already filled half a sack of leaves, roots, topsoil, and pebbles.

Lan Zhan suddenly feels light-headed from his overstimulated senses and thinking process, so he slides down against the cart and sits on the bed of soft grass. Wei didi squats in front of him, his big brown eyes brimming full with innocence, "I made sure there are fewer squirrels around, and also foxes and other animals that might go after our chickens and rabbits. Some things have changed, some others didn't. I didn't make more money for us, because you said that we'd be caught and thrown into jail in Chang'an with a big evil dog in it," and he frowns with a look of childish fear. The boy picks his way onto Lan Zhan's lap and snuggles against the older man chest for comfort (so sweet, again). He twirls the freshly-plucked shrub in his hand, as big as his head, and asks, " Gege , can you teach me how to properly harvest the herbs? Otherwise da ge over there is going to rip out all the plants from this meadow."

The older man sighs, and realizes the boy is correct. There are more immediate priorities to take care of. He shows the little boy how to pick only the young, juicy shoots and leaves, similar to harvesting tea leaves.

Lan Zhan learns that his world, at least until the boundaries of his estate, has been re-modeled quite significantly over the past two weeks. The two Wei brothers fill him in on the details, though at the moment, he cannot possibly fathom the long-term consequences or what needs to be done to familiarize with and make use of his expanded assets - even his ability to mentally work on complex calculations and numbers, broke down after he tried to tackle the challenge of valuing the new tracts of field crops and what kind of sales or profits they could bring in. He decides to leave things as they are, and focus on getting their household back on track.

“Wei Ying, can I trust that you will somehow manage all of these,” he makes a tired, wide wave with his hands to gesture their peaceful surroundings, “until I can figure out something?” Wei didi bows and raises a bamboo container to his lips, and Lan Zhan drinks from it, without lifting a finger. Wei da ge continues to fan their patriarch with a folded fan bought from Yiling’s evening market not too long ago. “Certainly. I will be discreet and honest in my ways. Though, I might need your signature red thumb-print on certain forms and cheques,” he says.

“Mn.”

Later, Wei didi played a game of ‘Kiss Kiss Fall In Love’ to appease if not pacify their troubled husband. Under the cooling shade from the afternoon sun, he sits on Lan Zhan’s lap and instructs the older man to try and catch him on the lips, while staying stationary. The rule of the game is simple: stay as still as possible, and try to kiss and avoid being kissed. Lan Zhan was confused at first, as he had not played such a childish game before; however, the moment didi nimbly dodged and avoided a hesitant thrust of puckered lips that missed their target and into thin air, thus leaving the older man in an embarrassing state, something stirred within Lan Zhan. It became a kind of competition to try to outmaneuver each other from flying kissy lips, with Lan Zhan indulging himself in sending air strikes of lips onto the hapless but very agile little boy. Didi is a little short and hardly reached Lan Zhan’s chin, so he tricked the latter by tickling the ribs, causing Lan Zhan to curl up momentarily and at that moment, the boy caught his lips with a feather-light and adorable “muah”. “I kissed you! I love you!” he squeals in delight. Lan Zhan feels miffed at being beaten in such a simple game, and pulls the boy into a tight hug. He starts peppering his own kisses all over the helpless boy’s face, to the sounds of joyful shrieks, cheerful laughter, and the pat-pat of tiny fists pounding onto his chest. “I kissed you too. And I love you too, Wei Ying,” Lan Zhan murmurs, the fine hair above his upper lip tickling the boy’s plump cheeks.

Lan Zhan welcomes the brief distraction and after several rounds of successfully kissing Wei didi, the da ge returns with a full sack of properly-harvested herb leaves - and wild vegetables, mushrooms, melons and gourds too. Lan Zhan thinks that perhaps, the new world isn’t as bad as he initially thought; he could convince himself that it’s actually better than Perfect.

Wei da ge places a wet smooch on Lan Zhan’s forehead while carrying the heavy sack behind his back. “Of course it’s much better. If Your Majesty is ready to leave, let’s take you on your royal carriage back to your Kingdom,” da ge chuckles.

Notes for the Chapter:

I'm dying to write some porny action, but I realize that I need to build their world a little more. Four Wei Yings mean four times the space and stuff needed to accomodate their Wei Ying-ness :-)

Chapter 35

What did he mean by "until I can figure out something"?! Just sell all the crops, rent out the land, become a landlord, and earn thousands of gold! I won't need to do farmwork anymore!

San ge, we're talking about a virtuous man who upholds his family rules like none other;

a man who questions the goods in a basket that aren't written in his shopping list;

a man who doesn't turn gold nuggets picked from mineral rocks - even at his doorsteps - into gold bars.

... Auuugh! He's so frustrating, er ge ! Any man has his own weakness, especially when it comes to material wealth! We just need to identify Han Guang Jun's and exploit them to our advantage!

... stop acting like a brat, san ge.

The return journey from the meadows turns out to be much more pleasant. Topless Wei da ge puts on a straw hat, chews on a blade of grass and pulls their little rickety cart filled with produce and herbs - and a robed (technically disabled) old man and a pantless young boy -, along a different and unpaved trail. Where in the past there were eerie, murky forests or windswept fields filled with dark, dank mists that stank of decay and malaise, remnants of the deaths caused by the Wens decades ago - now there is a fertile, flourishing garden of paradise in the middle of the Mounds with limited development and public amenities, consisting of acres of cultivated land and natural (and normal) picturesque forests dotted with springs, waterfalls, rivers, a wide variety of plant and wildlife, fertile valleys, sun-warmed cliffs and brightly lit rolling hills set against a backdrop of azure blue skies.

Wei da ge explains that the estate is still fringed by inaccessible steep cliffs and a natural barrier of thorny thickets and dense foliage, which have deterred visitors so far - unless the Patriarch wishes to open up his fledgling estate to the outside world and possibly engage in more high-valued commercial activities, such as intensive agriculture, mining, fishery, forestry, turn it into a transportation hub to the Far Far West, urban development such as building new villages, trading centers or even theme parks, or even delve into eco-tourism - at which Lan Zhan raises his hand again to stop the conversation, because he's learnt that any strange terms used by the da ge meant they were getting close to breaking another Creation or Time-based rule. (At this point, both Wei brothers roll their eyes because really, Lan Zhan is clearly stubbornly stuck to his old-fashioned Gusu Lan's way of thinking.)

Just then, didi cleverly suggests that if Lan gege isn't interested in sightseeing or listening to da ge 's ridiculous rambles, he could spend the time healing himself before they reach the next rest stop. Lan Zhan becomes surprised because didi is absolutely right--

"After that kissy-kissy game, you felt invigorated, didn't you? I can tell. I can read your body much better than you do," Wei da ge interrupts his thoughts. Lan Zhan hmmp'h indignantly at what the other man is insinuating. "Hah! It takes a wife to know the husband's body," da ge scoffs and continues chewing on the blade of grass. Lan Zhan immediately busies himself by casting the healing spells. Didi starts playing a simple folk tune on a tiny flute that Lan Zhan crafted from bamboo canes. Da ge had cut some sticks from a bamboo grove during the journey, and he remarked that Lan Zhan's flutes are still the best; there are a few more handmade flutes strung to da ge's waist sash; gifts for the other Wei *gong zi*s when they return home.

An hour away from mid-afternoon, they stopped at a breathtakingly scenic river crossing, by a sturdy wooden bridge connects both riverbanks. Rocky mountains from the Far West plateaus break into spectacular cloud-covered gorges, ravines, and steep cliffs where mountaintop streams of springwater rush downhill through numerous mist-curtained waterfalls; they soon share the paths of low lying bubbling crystal clear brooks and eventually converge into a few large rivers meandering through more coniferous forests, cultivated land and rice paddies; the river mouth leads into a huge lake - its waters are crystal clear and as blue as the skies, and its edges are full of thriving lotus and other aquatic plants. The region is a haven for birds, amphibians, reptiles and small mammals; flocks of cranes and other wildbirds fly overhead, calling loudly as they make their way to their nests.

It's a match made in heaven, Wei da ge says, because on one side are the Cloud Recesses, and on the other, Lotus Pier; both epic worlds collide and coalesce perfectly into a stunning panoramic view worthy of becoming the new capital of Lan's Kingdom - if the patriarch would kindly give his consent to start on the needed construction work. Lan Zhan chokes while drinking from a bamboo container of pine-needle tea, as he'd heard residences turning into a sprawling estate, and now, kingdom. The eldest Wei points at various grottos, cliff faces, flatlands and hilltops suitable to build homes, castles and even fortresses, and the abundant natural resources surrounding the area ripe for their picking.

Lan Zhan gets distracted mid-way during the narration (or hard-selling by Wei Ying's Awesome Selling Skills), when the didi brought a handful of edible sweet summer berries collected from nearby bushes and placed them on the picnic table. Lan Zhan enjoys munching on the juicy nutritious fruits while resting on the bench with a little boy sitting on his lap, happily feeding the older man a berry at a time (in which Lan Zhan returns a light peck on the boy's cute cheeks every time he gets an extra sugary sweet berry).

Wei da ge sighs and acknowledges his defeat at trying to gain their husband's attention, and trots off towards a clump of pine forests and caves. He returns with wild pigeons shot by using his god-tiered archery skills with a makeshift slingshot (just pick up a broken branch with two extensions, cast a Green Bubble for the band, and stock up on pebbles from the riverbank), rare mountainside lingzhi and other medicinal mushrooms, and a small bag of swiftlets' nests harvested using a few Invisible Hands (and Fingers) spells. He asked in passing whether Lan Zhan knows how to process the latter two harvests into (very) profitable products, and Lan Zhan gives the affirmative because those are famous exports from mountainous Gusu, and he'd learnt the trade from his elders. With that, da ge heaves a sigh of relief because lingzhi pills and bird's nest soup are of highly-sought after by Yiling's rich and famous, and they can be readily sold at greatly inflated prices although processing them will take some time.

Didi, on the other hand, simply asks, what happened to the eggs in those empty nests. He holds one of the torn strips of black-stained whitish cups, and absently picks out tiny feathers and bits of eggshells.

Lan Zhan and Wei da ge exchange uneasy glances, in which the latter shakes his head, ashamed, and looks away. The gesture speaks volumes about some things that needed to be sacrificed in order for others to survive.

Wei da ge puts on a forced grin, then crouches and pats the little boy's head. He said that he'd placed the eggs into other intact nests, so the entire colony of swiftlet mommies and daddies can raise them up to healthy baby birds. The little boy “Enn!”s and draws parallels by saying that he’s also orphaned at a young age, then raised by a loving foster family, and wants to love others back when he grows up.

Lan Zhan feels his heartstrings tug, and embraces Wei didi for no particular reason. He wishes that Wei Ying does not need to lie to anyone - even to himself. However, sometimes there are no easy answers.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Er ge , er ge , how can our little brother be this bratty yet cute?! sniffles

Hush, hush, it's alright.

And why doesn't the old man immediately say Yes when offered a bigger, more spacious house?! I would like to have two bedrooms for my own, five storeys of living space, and not live in this boring, cramped cave surrounded by a small garden of stupid fruits and vegetables!

Hush, hush. Do you remember when we- I moved with in Lan Zhan - he'd spent three days writing an elaborate love poem, but a kiss is all he really needed?

Or the time when he spent a fortune on the jewelled accessories that's now sitting inside our cupboard and gathering dust, because a handmade flute is worth so much more?

I love him in the simplest ways that cannot be measured by gold or silver pieces.

And now, by refusing to profit from fertile, flourishing land given freely to him, and showing no interest in upgrading to a more luxurious and likely complicated lifestyle - isn't he telling us something?

... that he loves us in the simplest ways which cannot be measured by gold or silver pieces... Is that what he means?

I think so, san ge .

I take back my words from before. Han Guang Jun is a great man indeed.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

There are a handful of times when Wei Wuxian shedded tears - whether for himself or for others.

He'd cried when threatened by ravenous dogs over a discarded half-eaten dumpling, when he was betrayed by the cultivation world, when his shijie took a swordstrike to save his life, when he has no choice but to let go of bloodied hands and sacrifice himself for Lan Zhan's own good - and now, when he leaves a sack of heart wrenchingly cute wiggling masses on Old Niu's table in exchange for a paltry sum of three gold pieces - just enough for one to two days' of provisions for the new family of five.

He mentally punishes himself and imagines slapping his own cheek three times, each for a pet rabbit sent to the butcher's knife. It's a harsh lesson learnt from failing in his - their - harrowing trial in home economics and financial management. Old Niu sensed his distress and pacified the young man that he'd ask around if anyone, especially the rich and famous of Yiling, would be interested in raising them - however he could not promise that none or some of them may be turned into skewered meats for the evening markets, or pelts to be made into furred robes for the winter.

Da ge turned off the live telecast momentarily shortly before, and makes sure the youngest does not see nor hear what is said after the prospect that the rabbits could be adopted.

Twentysomething Wei Ying is exhausted after running a marathon to reach Yiling, peddling his wares and services at his usual haunts and hunting down or seeking new customers. The hot afternoon sun is beating down on his sweaty skin and he's thirsty. Despite san ge's ongoing telepathic cheers of Keep It Up (加油; Fighting!! (sic)), he feels he's at the receiving end of everything; the wise eldest somehow prospered with his maniacal ways; the cocky teenager is all bark but no bite - which is fine since he can be as irresponsible as he wants and he's not of legal age yet; and the youngest gets pampered and loved to bits by their husband. He needs to man up, take up the responsibility of being (possibly) the sole breadwinner of the expanded family, and live up to his name as a Yiling patriarch (matriarch?) suited to walk beside the grand Patriarch and owner of the Lan's Residence-cum-estate-cum-kingdom.

After sniffing away tears and snot from the painful slap on the wrist of selling off the precious rabbits, he opens a cloud-patterned pouch tied to his sash to deposit the money. There are some silver and gold pieces, a couple of gold bars - and unexpectedly, his fingers touch what he instantly recognized as the outlines of the Jade Token.

Earlier, Lan Zhan asked Wei Ying to carry the pouch with him, in case he faces (extreme) financial difficulties to purchase and replenish provisions needed for the next few days - it contains their life savings after all. Wei Ying knows that although the Jade Token cannot be used in monetary transactions, it can be pawned off for a respectable sum at Yiling's banks. Wei Ying also knows that the Jade Token is possibly Lan Zhan's only precious memento and his key to return to the Cloud Recesses; without it, the magical entrance gates will not permit access, and the last time they left, Wei Ying sensed that most of the Lan clansmen including Master Lan Qiren have distanced themselves from the couple who have brought nothing but disrepute to the sect lately. In the preceding couple of years when rumour-mongering and naysayers are rife within the halls of the Grand Cultivation Council, it is safe to say that the Second Jade Twin has probably been disowned by the elder members of the prestigious family.

Wei Ying lets his fingers glide on the cooled surface of the heavy, finely crafted piece of enchanted jadestone. There are sculptures of beautiful clouds blanketing Gusu's lush forested mountains. They embody trust - that the clouds continue to nourish and protect the forests, while life in the mountains maintain the peace and stability needed for the clouds to exist for millennias, if not forever. Wei Ying feels his throat tighten - Lan Zhan entrusts the token in Wei Ying's hands, as much as he gives Wei Ying the right to decide what is best for his, and their, only way back to the Cloud Recesses.

A pair of cranes in flight is delicately chiseled into the scenery, with such minute detail and depth, that each feather can distinguished by touch. It is said that such splendid physical symbols shape the enchantments imbued into the power of the stone; in this case, the Jade Token can be used by Lan Zhan and his destined partner, as represented by the pair of majestic birds.

Wei Ying tries to blink back a tear, when he realizes that Lan Zhan knew, had known and knows that Wei Ying will forever be the only one in his life; based on the age and wear on the jade, the token was likely created shortly after Wei Ying's death sixteen years ago , when the man had decided - and willingly sentenced himself - to a life without looking for another partner. Wei Ying feels immense gratitude at how Fate works in bringing him back to life, thus sparing Lan Zhan from a lifelong of regret and loneliness.

Finally, the name of the Lan family is inscribed onto the token. Wei Ying caresses the entire palm-sized jade, and does not feel any discomfort, twinge of pain or resentful feelings of rejection emitting from it. The token is said to have magical sentient thought, as it can recognize its master and his destined partner, and unravel and understand the feelings and relationships between them. Deep in his heart, he “hears” what the Jade Token is trying to tell him: that the man named Wei Ying, with his courtesy name as Wei Wuxian, is recognized as a Lan.

Wei Ying grips the Jade Token hard and tries to swallow down a snot and the stuffiness inside his nostrils. The act draws a few curious stares from the crowd around the marketplace, so he rushes off.

The pouch will grow throughout the afternoon with Wei Ying's hard work, and neither the gold bars nor the Jade Token ever needed to be used. When he met up with Liang gu niang who was somewhat concerned about his sudden disappearance during the last couple of weeks, Wei Ying convinced her father's teahouse to place an order for fritters and other fried snacks to re-start their business relationship after the so-called "much-needed vacation break". He politely tells Liang gu niang that she can still address him by his nickname Hei ge (Brother Hei), or use his real name. She agrees and has no problems to call Wei Ying "Young Master Lan" from henceforth.

All three Wei gongzi s telepathically clapped and cheered for their er ge , with da ge daintily dabbing his eyes while san ge mentally sobbing himself into an emotional wreck in the background. Didi is especially thrilled to see a pack of White Rabbit candy inside the er ge 's basket on his way home.

Wei Ying hums a happy tune (a rendition of their favourite song) while carrying a full basket of rice, salt, sugar, rolls of cloth, spices, and additional cooking utensils, tableware and cutlery, and other provisions.

Lan Zhan is a little surprised when both da ge (suspiciously teary-eyed and sniffing; he said it's due to the pollen in the air) and dididi (strangely grinning ear to ear; he just said he feels happy, that's all) helped him out of the slightly battered cart at The Junction - judiciously named because Lan Zhan now knows that turning at this spot will lead him to his 'paradise on earth', at least within his humble estate within the 'Mounds.

Wei da ge said that with the amount of harvest, it would be difficult, even hazardous to try and pull the cart through the rocky narrow trail back to the cave-home, because it could topple over at any time along with its delicate passengers. In addition, he plans to leave the cart near The Highway for easy access and use in the future; so anyone would just need to walk the short distance between their home to The Junction, then be able to take the cart to anywhere within the estate via the Highway. Lan Zhan nods in agreement and before he can voice out another question about their baggage - Wei da ge is already a step ahead and maneuvers himself to the front of the older man, bends down, then grabs his thighs carefully to avoid touching the bandaged areas, and hoists him up, piggyback style.

Lan Zhan gasps and clutches Wei da ge 's back for balance and-- "Lan Zhan, you don't have to say anything. Let me carry you back home this time, for old time's sake if not anything else," Wei da ge grunts out between trying to clear his throat (is he getting emotional over something, Lan Zhan thought off-handedly), and he carries the sacks at the front; Wei da ge is a strong person indeed. Didi holds on to the crutch and a couple of smaller, lighter sacks such as the birds' nests, and runs off ahead.

Lan Zhan leans into the muscled back, and relishes in the warmth and comfort of being cared for by an older Wei Ying. He rests his chin on a firm shoulder and closes his eyes, buoyed by gentle footsteps and the crunch of pebbles and dry leaves, the fragrant smell of ripening apples and peaches, and a hummed tune that's familiar to them.

“Mn.”

Notes for the Chapter:

Ahh... it's a short chapter with more talk and less 'action' :-) I'm back to being busy at work, so releases will be slow. I've received some interesting questions and suggestions from readers, and maybe some of these will feed into the story later on. To be honest, I haven't thought very far about how the story will turn out - I hope to keep on writing and create an exciting and meaningful world for Wangxian to live in!

Chapter 36

Lan Zhan wonders if something nice had happened between lunch and the quick tour around his new estate. All Wei gongzi s have been on their best behaviour when he emerged from the orchard and into the welcoming arms of teenage Wei san ge ; the previously-obnoxious san ge started referring him by name rather than “old man” - which is a relief for the patriarch, and he is getting used to calling all his Wei Yings, just plain ol’ “Wei Ying”.

Wei da ge gets to work as soon as they returned to the courtyard, by unpacking and sorting out their harvests from the foraging and from the farm. He takes the two chickens selected by san ge , and the handful of caught wild pigeons to the backyard, and promises Lan Zhan that he’ll deal with them in a “discreet and honest” way (Lan Zhan is beginning to think this phrase has become a part of the da ge ’s vocabulary with the same connotations as the strange terms he’d been using all day). Armed with written instructions from the morning and an album of carefully-curated collection of recipes from the patriarch himself, he only needed to ask Lan Zhan “if he is allowed to plan, prepare and manage the night’s dinner” - which pleasantly surprised the latter, because cooking has always been his domain and maybe, just maybe , it’s time to delegate this mundane task to one of the Wei gongzi s - and Lan Zhan gives his consent in the form of a “Mn” and “tell me if you need anything”. With the green light, Wei da ge proceeds to station himself inside the kitchen for the next few hours.

In some ways, Lan Zhan feels just as any hard working worker would when he receives an unexpected promotion. The tasks he’d been doing for the last year or so, are suddenly taken up by a subordinate - in this case, one of his spouses - and he is forced to see the world in a whole new light, and from a higher-ups perspective. He scratches his chin absently while ruminating on the thought, and toys with his brand new beard while sitting in one of the few shaded hammocks that the Wei gongzi s have constructed in the last couple of weeks, along with many more tables and benches around the courtyard. There is a forlorn feeling of discomfort, emptiness and uncertainty for leaving his comfort zone, and yet, there is also an underlying and hopeful promise that he is no longer shackled by his daily routines, and therefore, can soar to greater heights and do greater things in his blissful married life - perhaps the latter feel-good feeling is a result of Wei Ying-ness rubbing off on him, and he smiles faintly when he reminisces how much he'd changed over the course of a few years with this wonderful man-turned-spouse. He starts to mentally lay out his strategy for the family for the future:

Wei da ge is admirably intelligent, skilled and capable, and can manage the household if given enough instructions. In practice, he could supervise the other younger Wei Yings when Lan Zhan is busy.

Wei er ge will continue the task of selling their goods and bringing in the money, since he's (arguably) the spokesperson, the face and voice to their suppliers and customers.

Wei san ge is the power horse of the house and he can do what Lan Zhan does every day, out in the fields - farming and taking care of the livestock, foraging and hunting, chopping firewood, and so on.

Wei didi is adept at housework, and with the help of Wei da ge who also doubles as their chef in the kitchen and their in-house skilled magician, they can sort out the cleaning, laundry and cooking tasks, assisted by the D-Broom and possibly - if things go according to Wei Ying's wishes - other magically enhanced inventions.

That would leave Lan Zhan--

“... as the great patriarch of our household, and his task is to watch over us, and love us as we love our almighty husband,” Wei san ge interrupts and gives a kiss on Lan Zhan’s cheek, as he brings a tray with a big bowl of cooling guilinggao black herbal jelly, balanced on top of a round basin filled with clean springwater from their outdoor bath. “Is that right (对不对), Lan Zhan?” he adds cheekily with an awkwardly big grin. The older man remains impassive, as usual.

“Da ge can freely read yours and everyone’s thoughts and project them to us; although sometimes, he can choose to alter or filter certain parts according to the situation,” he continues, as he places everything on the ground, and then taps on the older man’s shoulder as a silent gesture to let Wei san ge - Wei Ying - take off the robes. “For example, I’m glad both didi and I didn’t need to hear about the fate of the three rabbits, and only didi doesn’t need to know where the pigeons come from, because he still thinks they’re cute while the rest of us love to munch on grilled birdmeat,” Wei Ying says as he starts to peel off the older man’s robes and garments from the upper body, layer by layer, “Coming back to your strategy, da ge said that we’ll follow your lead.”

“What about you?” Lan Zhan asks as he raises his good arm to facilitate the undressing, “How do you feel about this?” He stares at Wei Ying, trying to gauge the younger man’s response - or the da ge ’s, if there’s an element of mind manipulation involved.

Wei Ying blinks once. Then, he unexpectedly grabs the dripping washcloth from the same basin and slaps it harshly against Lan Zhan’s naked shoulder. “Me? Hah! I’ll show you how much better I can be in doing your outdoor stuff, you-- ! (he stops just before he accidentally mouths out “old man”, and turns a pointed finger back into a balled grip of dribbling washcloth) -- Just watch me shovel the soil twice as fast, and grow all the chillies we’ll every need!” The cloth scrubs roughly against the skin - it hurts a little, but definitely cleans off the dust and grime from the walkabout. Lan Zhan relaxes - he knows that his initial suggestion is acceptable, and that da ge relinquished his mind control over the attending san ge , for the moment.

Wei Ying seems enthusiastic in wiping down Lan Zhan’s upper torso, and he even takes his time to painstakingly dab around each whip scar on the back - perhaps he’s catching up on what he’d miss during their midday bath. Lan Zhan looks at the bowl of black jelly on the ground, and wonders about the teenager’s priorities being in the right order or not; he sighs, and bends down as far as his bandaged waist would allow, to pick up the big bowl on his own with both hands.

“Ahh... Lan Zhan! I’m supposed to serve you my homemade dessert, but you’re ruining my chance already,” then he quickly switched gears from meticulous back-cleaning to smacking the washcloth all over the back (where significant parts of his upper body remain unwiped), sending water drops flying and trickling everywhere, and both their clothes become soaked. He rushes to the front, crouches and helps Lan Zhan’s feet into the basin; he lets the tired soles soak a bit in the warm water.

Wei Ying rests his chin on the edge of the hammock, and gives a flashy toothy grin that Lan Zhan remembers all too well from the days they spent together in the Jingshi as punishment from the former’s misbehaviour, more than sixteen years ago. “Lan Zhan, try it, is it good? (好不好吃?)”

He takes the first mouthful of the fragrant, soft and sweet jelly. Not too bad, except that he tasted salt as well; Wei Ying must have accidentally put a spoon of salt when he was looking for sugar in the pantry - both are stored in similar jars and look quite the same (which could be easily avoided if he'd chosen rock sugar instead, but Wei Ying wouldn't know about it anyway).

"Ai-yooo... Don't shout at me, da ge ! I really didn't know!" Wei Ying shouts into the air and winces, clutching at the side of his head.

It's another one of a string of surreal experiences that Lan Zhan needs to go through for the day. He watches and listens patiently, as Wei Ying talks animatedly with high and low pitches, with lively hand and limb movements, vibrant and full of life, about what he'd done in the farm, how he'd taken care of the animals, what he thinks about their expanded estate-turned-kingdom, what he wants to do (with shameless demands for more spending money and a bigger home), and so on. It's like a (mostly one-sided) conversation with a wife, a lover, and a kid all at once, except that this person resembles - actually, is - his teenage crush, sixteen years ago.

He wonders if this is a chance to redeem his failure in the past, or to live out one of his longstanding fantasies, where none of the absurd events involving the war-mongering Wens or the accursed Yin Metal ever happened - would they have peacefully studied in the Cloud Recesses, take their sweet time in getting to know each other, tolerate then accept their vastly different personalities, quirks and oddities, and eventually... fall in love?

Would they gradually find themselves in each others' arms, and maybe - just maybe, still get hitched even though at a barely legal age? Would they somehow end up like the present; having moved out of their family nests, to strike out on their own just like any young, hopeful adult males would - and then, after getting their fill of youthful adventures and travelling around the Middle Kingdom, settle down together in a beautiful, quiet countryside cottage situationally similar to their current cave-home; and lovely Wei Ying caring for him as much as he cares for Wei Ying - just as how Wei Ying is presently tending to his tired feet and trying his best to cook delicious food through trial-and-errors that both of them will learn together, laugh together, and grow fonder with one another with the passage of time.

In the end, does it really matter? he asks himself.

Both topless men enjoy a brief respite from the afternoon heat. Lan Zhan leans back into the remarkably huge hammock tied between two of their largest apple tree trunks, and Wei san ge gives a nice warm footwash. Lan Zhan knows Wei Ying is trying his best to emulate the age-old practice of caring and respecting for an elderly, though he doesn't seem to make much of an impact with his clumsy scrubs along the foot of the arch, which resemble a mismatched mix of tickles and sprain-inducing presses.

"Wei Ying... just... just a... n-normal massage will do..." he tries hard to maintain his neutral expression, as he teeters between ticklish giggles and teeth-gritting pain. Fortunately, that turned out to be the right decision, as (this) Wei Ying has inherited (shared) the experiences from the older Wei Ying in the art of pleasing another's body with comforting, refreshing muscle rubs. Soon, Lan Zhan receives a proper treatment of foot massage dipped in warm water, and Wei Ying expertly kneads away the fatigue; he focuses particularly in force-spreading the joints between the toes, stretching the ligaments between roughened pads on the soles, rolling his knuckles over the tendons above and below the arch of each foot, and giving circular rubs on the ball of the heels, and also around the ankles, in which Lan Zhan audibly nnnhs in delight - two weeks' worth of stiffness, and a tour around their estate using the crutch, seemingly unwind magically into Wei Ying's firm yet delicate touch.

The mid-afternoon air is warm and humid, accompanied by the sounds of birdsong and cicadas' mating calls, and soon, he starts to feel drowsy and relaxed inside the cocoon of the hammock under the shade of apple trees, pampered lovingly by Wei Ying's massage that soon dulls his senses into a sleepy fluffy cloud, and feels his feet droop in such a relaxed, maybe slightly swollen state that he's melting into a puddle inside the hammock, which stirs up tendrils of pleasure from the soles of his numbed feet, riding up to the thighs and pooling inside his loins, and those tendrils seem to spread his legs a bit and flick on the sensitive junctures at the crotch, and then swirl, swirl closer towards the scrotum and encase his balls in hot wetness, which is followed by slippery back-and-forth slides along the underside of his hardening arousal and it envelops into sweet, sweet delicious liquid heat--

Lan Zhan awakes with a jolt from his nap in the hammock, and finds himself moaning into a half-asleep, prolonged mmmmmnnnnnh when Wei Ying dips his head between the spread legs and starts nursing the half-hard erection. Lan Zhan pushes himself up as much as he could on the gently swaying hammock, just in time to see-feel the teenager poke a moist wet tongue underneath the sensitive foreskin and bathe the sheathed, still-soft and spongy glans with the expanse of his warm tongue, and he attempts to penetrate, jab and prod the tip of his tongue into the lightly-twitching erection and knead into the shallow crevice peeking from the center, while one hand presses and holds down Lan Zhan's pelvis and the other busily grazes tightening balls with fingernails - and is graciously rewarded with a droplet of glistening pre-cum.

"Wei Ying..." he groans, and forces himself not to react to the exquisite friction rubbing into his cockslit, as he lets the teenager - his Wei Ying, his spouse, his destined partner, who has all the permissions and rights to Lan Zhan's body - continue to play with the increasingly excited and swelling penis; luscious young lips enclose, draw in and suck voraciously in a steady yet relentless pace; he deep-throats as much as his long neck will allow and Lan Zhan had to squeeze his eyes shut when the tight cavern encasing his throbbing rod convulses in a hard swallow, and his cock is assaulted by an equally long tongue that circles, wraps and curls around the entire length, barely missing the teeth, and Lan Zhan hnnghs involuntarily when he loses a little muscular control and jerks his hips once, when Wei Ying makes a series of swallowing motions without gagging, milking the organ again repeatedly in undulating squeezes, before going up and down again on the iron-hard flesh veined with adrenaline-flooded blood in the searing rhythm of a magnificently deep and mind-numbing blowjob; he could feel the tip of Wei Ying's nose hitting on his pubic bone, hard. He thinks Wei Ying managed to extract abundant amounts of pre-cum with each swoop, but he couldn't see, couldn't tell, because of the delicious contractions forcibly extracted out of his quivering cock and all he could see are the canopies of apple trees and ripening fruits because his head is already tilted upwards and his back is arching, his own mouth refuses to seal away the tasty, keening groans emitting from inside his burning, burning body, sweating in the middle of the afternoon; excitement starts to tingle and burn excruciatingly the nerves around his lower body, sending acute spasms into the tiniest of fluttering muscles, further swelling the fantastically excited, engorged organ, and again, and again, the rising fluid heat from the base of his cock, loading and filling up for the first grateful shot deep, deep into Wei Ying's sweet mouth and into that sweeter endless throat chasm--

Lan Zhan realizes, belatedly, - to his secret delight and horror - that as much as da ge is a master of hands and fingers, handjobs and soft touches that require a great flair in restrain and fine movement controls, teenager Wei Ying shows his sexual prowess with greedy, sometimes clumsy but always earnest efforts with seemingly experienced lips and tongue, and he is an expert in lustful oral lovemaking--

Lan Zhan blinks his eyes open, face covered with sweat and panting hard to catch his breath, his quaking body bowed over the hammock and hovering at the very edge of the precipice of an incredibly powerful orgasm, and his stiff cock trembling, twitching angrily in the breezy, empty afternoon air. Wei Ying stands above him, next to the ropes that suspend the improvised bed between apple trees, slurps down the remaining slurry of herbal jelly from the bowl - and makes a revolting gagging sound and a distasteful scrunch of eyebrows. He pulls out a couple of curly pubic hair from his tongue as well - Lan Zhan doesn't know if Wei Ying finds the salty dessert or the hair disgusting to his palate.

"Eww, you should have told me it's this bad before downing half a bowl of this stuff," and picks his teeth to pull out another hair followed by a "bleargh" sound (how many strands of pubic hair did he lose, Lan Zhan wondered absently), "but anyway, you should feel invigorated now, right, Lan Zhan?". Wei Ying audaciously wipes his mouth and sweat from his upper body with Lan Zhan's trousers - somehow, he'd snatched it sometime between the foot massage and the frustratingly wonderful blowjob.

Lan Zhan wheezes out a very heavy, reluctant sigh - surprisingly, Wei Ying has his priorities sorted out well. He sits up with an agonized groan, adjusts himself to a cross-legged meditation posture on the hammock, and ignores the tremendously agitated, lonesome erection. He begins to cast another medley of blue healing spells onto his bandaged wounds. The ones on his left forearm and right lower leg are healing well, and he hopes to take off the dressings sooner than intended.

Lan Zhan learns that there are more than a few ways to replenish his qi energy which then feeds into his golden core. The mechanics are similar to pouring water into streams that lead into a lake that grows larger over time, with increasing levels of mastery over martial arts, spellcasting, and cultivation.

A simple hug, a sweet touch of lips, a brisk walk around the vegetable gardens or around Yiling's evening markets, meditating, reading a good book, playing music, cuddling furry pets, or even doing housework for a couple of hours, equate to adding a few drops into those streams. Such activities usually have more impact on one's psychology rather than on energy levels.

More strenuous and exciting exercises, such as performing cultivation moves, martial arts practice, running away from predators (in Wei Ying's case, dogs), backbreaking hard labour, or regular nightly sex with eventual release and resolution - although physically draining and exhausting, can be visualised as a few sizable bowls into the ever-flowing river.

Extremely distressing situations, especially those that sends adrenaline pumping into blood for prolonged periods of time - such as sexual torture or edging; or at the other end of the spectrum, incredibly pleasant experiences that uplifts a soul to the greatest heights - such as a kissy game with Wei didi -, is like pouring big buckets straight into the lake.

Lan Zhan does not dare to imagine what activities would break open dams and fill his golden core to the brim. However, he tells himself that he's now living with three, possibly four living batteries for his qi energy levels - whether this bodes well for his well-being or not, remains to be seen.

However, just as energy can be generated and replenished, it can whittle away with use or neglect. Qi spiritual energy is necessary for piloting flying swords, unleashing power attacks such as energy blasts from guqin's strings, casting spells, and in Lan Zhan's case, for controlling or snuffing out sinful desires (in his elder brother's example, to magically transform consumed alcohol into pure distilled water). Golden cores are bite-sized marbles full of cultivated qi , and are highly sought after by dark, evil creatures that prey on the living and feast on such spiritual energies. Such heinous beings, being in the same class as the undead and the fierce corpses that continue to haunt the Northern lands of the Middle Kingdom, usually move at night and catch their unsuspecting, vulnerable victims when they are asleep or unconscious.

It is said that one's life force, and therefore his or her Fate in this world, is tied to the golden core, however neither cultivation practitioners nor scholars have been able to confirm nor refute this fact, since no one in written history has attempted to consciously gouge out his or her own core and witness the effects of such a terrible extraction. There are rumours that one of the horrible Wens had successfully performed the procedure about sixteen years ago; however, according to the historical texts, since they have gone extinct, therefore the stories and subsequent investigations by the Imperial Court of Chang'an have met their dead-ends as well.

Work has caught up and I have less time and focus on writing this fic nowadays, plus, since there's been little news that sparks joy for my interest in The Untamed / Mo Dao Zu Shi - the Special Edition has some goodies but they are far and few in between after that first extended drunken scene *siiigh!* I have to bank on bjyx or Zhan Ge's exclusive contents to fan the dying flames!! It seems tomorrow there's an event where Zhan Ge and Yibo didi will attend together... ooh, be still my beating heart - NOT ! bwahaha!

Chapter 37

“ Didi will be up soon from his daily afternoon nap, so you better hurry. That brat will wake up into a feisty ball of energy,” Wei Ying mutters as he sits opposite Lan Zhan on the gently swaying hammock. Both men sit cross-legged and perform some basic cultivation moves to cross-share their qi energy; Lan Zhan focuses his good right hand to point two fingers and direct healing energy to each bandaged part, while his left hand rests on his legs with a curved palm-up stance; Wei Ying performs intricate martial arts movements with his hands to generate and cultivate energy from within his body, then strikes at the main meridian points on Lan Zhan’s body to transfer the qi , thus boosting the latter’s ability to heal further.

After a while, surprisingly but not unexpectedly, Wei Ying becomes a bit bored after he’s transferred enough energy for the healing session. He spends a few minutes staring and scrutinizing at a meditating Lan Zhan who has closed his eyes and furrowed his brows in intense concentration (Lan Zhan can feel eyes boring into him, and that makes the older man a little anxious, because dear Goddess Guan Yin, can’t Wei Ying just sit down quietly and meditate with me?!, he asks futilely). Wei Ying fidgets quite a bit, and Lan Zhan keeps hearing rustling sounds of Wei Ying’s trousers rubbing against the hammock’s canvas - and strangely, the tinkling of a ceramic bowl and wet mushy squishes.

Lan Zhan feels his qi deviate slightly, when he hears sniffing sounds near his earlobes, feels warm breaths puffing down his collarbone, even an accidental, startling touch near his unprotected and nude armpits. Lan Zhan clears his throat with an intentional “A-hem”, and the teenager shrinks away, but not before succeeding in a mischievous pull - and a painful twinge prickling the sensitive skin - on one of the armpit hairs; he wonders briefly, and gets distracted from the healing procedure, if Wei Ying is as obsessed with his armpit hair as with his pubes too.

After another minute, Lan Zhan cringed inwardly at the sensation of two fingers “walking” their way along the top of his left thigh, “hops” to the bandaged forearm where the fingers danced quickly across the woven material, and straight into the open palm. They hook around the curved fingers, and swing gently in a naughty “Lan Zhan Lan Zhan, are you awake? If you’re not then I’m going to play” manner. The older man decides to ignore the immature teenager and keep his eyes closed, at the risk of blundering the healing spell (which wasn’t all that important anymore, since he’s almost done with the session), or more interestingly, to find out what frisky Wei Ying has in mind.

Wei Ying takes the free left hand and puts the palm against his chest; Lan Zhan feels the strong heartbeat under the heated skin. The fifteen-year old boy opens and spreads each finger carefully across his thin left chest, and asks loudly without expecting an answer, “Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, look at me, do you think I was much thinner when I was fifteen years old? There are some muscles,” he purposely lets the fingers flick his nipple, and then uses the index finger to draw circles around the areola, “but I must’ve looked quite gangly in your eyes. I’m all skin and bones, and not attractive at all.”

No, Wei Ying, you were and still are, the most beautiful of them all, the older man replies, wordlessly, and keeps his eyes shut. He wants to complete the healing as soon as possible - and later, if time permits, hold lovely Wei Ying in his arms and convince the teen that beauty is certainly not skin-deep.

Wei Ying swipes Lan Zhan’s hand across his chest like a paintbrush, allowing the latter to touch both sparse pectorals and nipples. “Ahh, wouldn’t it be nice if we can frolic all day behind the bushes with neither care nor concern for the world?” The sensation of satiny, youthful skin is enticing; then Wei Ying curls Lan Zhan's fingers to pinch the other brownish-pink nipple, and the teenager mmmhs loudly at his own self-made sexual gratification. "Ah, ah, if you spend an hour massaging these everyday, maybe my breasts will plump up and I'll grow more meat on the bones. Plump, round breasts are great for making lots of milk. Won't you like that? (喜欢吗?)"

Lan Zhan frowns in his concentration, and tries to mentally swat away the Wei Ying-ness that dared to intrude into the final lap of his healing marathon. The spell wavers visibly, as the blue thread starts to wriggle. To his consternation, his limp cock hiding underneath the trousers begins to stir with interest.

Wei Ying chuckles lightly, and unhurriedly drags Lan Zhan's left hand down to the boy's slender waist. Wei Ying guides the hand to rub wide circles from ribs to navel, then dipping slightly below the trousers' waistband, before returning back up. "If you touch me here... there... now... and everyday - you'll be able to indulge in all the touches you'd missed since we were in our teens. Ah, Lan Zhan, does my firm, youthful supple skin, feel good against yours? Or will it feel better... beneath you?" he whispers sultrily. Lan Zhan bites his lower lip at the unspoken implications. The shiny blue thread sputters erratically.

"I'm fifteen years old again, and less than half your age. If I call you Daddy, it would sound like you're a really young father, just as when A-Yuan first hugged your leg in Yiling and drew the weird attention from the surrounding crowd. I would cry softly to you, 'Daddy, daddy, please punish little Wei Ying for the naughty mistakes he's made'," Lan Zhan's fingers are zealously angled to caress and plunge into the soft, shallow navel in rhythmic strokes. He is painfully reminded of a joke not too long ago about where the navel leads to (i.e. the womb). Lan Zhan grits his teeth in an excruciating effort to maintain whatever sanity he needs for the spell, which has started to break down; the blue thread corkscrews into crazy spirals.

"If I call you Dada, which I had learnt from your disciples to mean 'elder brother' in Gusu dialect, then you'll be a very old brother, and it would be strange for us to walk in the streets while holding hands, don't you think so? Or do you want to be a bad dada, and do this," Wei Ying leans forward, tugs the imprisoned hand to reach behind his own trousers, and presses the spread fingers generously across one clothed ass-mound.

"Ah, ah, dada, dada, please don't spank my buttocks. Little Wei Ying is wrong again!" Wei Ying moans sexily into Lan Zhan's red-tipped ear. He jiggles the imprisoned hand, resulting in jiggling the springy glute as well.

Lan Zhan exhales loudly, signalling his disagreement to the preposterous acts. The healing spell fizzles out with a fwip! sound, due to the intense turmoil in the older man's qi flow. His eyes flew open, wide as angry saucers. Wei Ying forms an "o" with his mouth for an "Oops", then slowly leans back to their original position - sitting cross legged and facing each other.

Prankster Wei Ying brazenly scoots closer, takes each of Lan Zhan's hand into his and sways them playfully, like little children holding each other's hands. Seeing no response from the upset older man, he does not hesitate to spread Lan Zhan's legs, bounce forward between them until he closes the gap, and their hips touched. At such proximity, he pretends to be contemplative and concerned, and brushes off invisible dust from the older man's nude shoulders. Then, he gives the saddest-looking puppy eyes with the cutest hamster-cheeked pout towards the unmoving, stern gaze.

"‘Tch... Lan Zhan, you’re no fun at all. Alright, I’ll be less childish in front of you and won’t ask you to play along. But I’m serious that you need to be more enthusiastic with me, otherwise, I’m afraid your body won't be able to handle my virginal youth tonight. Alright? (好不好?)" and Wei Ying breaks into his usual cheeky grin.

Lan Zhan’s breath hitches at the blasphemous word. He tries to back away and raises his hands up in defense, but there is little space to maneuver inside the hammock. Wei Ying easily bridges the divide between them until he nuzzles against Lan Zhan’s neck (like the said hamster), and slides their naked torsos skin against skin, inside the cocoon of woven stretchy canvas cloth.

Wei Ying flutters his eyelids against a twitching Adam’s apple, and coyly mewls, "Aiyaaaaa... don’t be shy, Lan Zhan. You're not young anymore, and you’ve done it so many times by now," the teenager grabs both Lan Zhan's arms, more violently this time, and thrusts them into his (Wei Ying’s) own pants. Lan Zhan tried to withdraw his captured limbs but Wei Ying’s grip is unusually strong. “Surely you can see and smell my virginity from afar, Lan Zhan," Lan Zhan inhales the smell of Wei Ying’s shampoo’ed hair - flowery, summery, and full of zest -, “Don’t look at me like that, my body is still innocent and pure, and doesn’t know anything about sex - compared to yours. Is that right? (对不对?),” Wei Ying purrs coyly. Lan Zhan realizes that naughty Wei Ying didn’t put on his underwear, and is half-tempted to wrench his grasp away, while another inner voice coos at him to dig in, deeper, deeper. Fifteen-year old Wei Ying feels and smells vibrant, fresh, succulent and very tantalizing, like a tasty morsel dangled in front of his hungry lips. He could theoretically push the young boy down and have his way with him!, that nasty inner voice seductively whispers.

Wei Ying wiggles his hips and responds breathily, "That's right, this body hasn't done it before. I may be tight and very sensitive, so please treat me with plenty of care and love tonight. It's my first time, you know," and Lan Zhan feels the heated outline of an erect cock. His fingers tremble, not knowing where else to hide inside the confines of Wei Ying's pants. He stares mesmerized at their clothed crotches, sliding against one another when the teen circles his hips in a suggestive manner, and he watches with morbid delight at how his fingers instinctively curl around the rigid throbbing pole underneath Wei Ying's fly.

The boy cries at the first contact, "Ah, Lan Zhan! You greedy sex maniac, are you trying to grope me in broad daylight? Are you imagining yourself as an energetic, virile teenager too, unable to hold back his lust? Ah, ah, you're playing with my penis! Oh, dada, your hands feel so goooooood..." and the circular motion of hips start to become elliptical, thrusting, frantic, implying the thrilling timeless act of sexual intercourse.

Wei Ying pauses in mid-molest, and shifts Lan Zhan's reluctant hands to the rear, "Or... are you actually a lecherous old man, who hungrily paws young, helpless virgin boys and bed them nightly to satisfy his depraved desires?" Wei Ying must have struck gold with those morally corrupt words, because Lan Zhan's own arousal twitches visibly in his trousers, and Wei Ying continues his incredulous nonsense, "Ah, ah, daddy, you pervert! Now you're grabbing my defenceless buttocks!", in which Lan Zhan actually grips the naked springy bottom so hard and rake fingernails over the mounds, that both knew tell-tale marks would be left there for days to come.

Wei Ying takes the absurdity to the next level; he grabs both index fingers, one from each hand around his ass, and lets their tips touch his moist rosebud. "Ah, you dirty old man, don't stick your filthy fingers in there, otherwise you'll deflower my sweet, precious purity. I'm saving it for tonight... with you... nnh, nnh, don't stretch it too much... are you so eager to take my first time? How shameless!" his grin turns coquettish. Wei Ying lifts up his hips, and proceeds to gratuitously fuck the fingertips. Lan Zhan no longer wants to see what he's being forced to do, and squeezes his eyes shut again, cheeks burning with shame. His fingers are sucked in, feeling hotness, wetness, tightness and lubricating squishiness all at once, and his cock convulses, desperately begging for the same burning friction. The ring of muscle is pliant and welcoming, and Lan Zhan shudders to think what the teenager has been up to to prepare himself so well for this undeniably steamy sexual assault.

His thick fingers slide in and out repeatedly, mimicking the motions that he knows to well; they crawl, curl, rub and eventually bump into a mass of soft wetness. It feels like a wall or an obstruction that is moist, wriggling, and gel-like.

Wei Ying moans louder and makes very obvious sexual noises and grunts, and Lan Zhan winces in worry that someone would appear and catch him red-handed in the act of forcing finger-based carnal pleasures into the fifteen-year old. "Nnnnh! Hnnngh! Aaaaah! I'm coming, I'm coming! You just touched my hymen, don't break it, please don't break it! This virgin maiden is pleading for your mercy, you naughty dada, gege , daddy, rapist, lao gong , nnnnnh!" he cries out in exaggerated mock-orgasm. Wei Ying even jerks his hips violently, which causes Lan Zhan's fingers to penetrate through the mass-like substance inside Wei Ying's love canal. The older man growls, and is terribly and unwillingly excited at the prospect of actually deflowering and defiling young, virginal Wei Ying, as impossible as it sounds.

When Wei Ying rides out his fake orgasm, which comes with plenty of clenching contracting ass-muscles, he pushes Lan Zhan's hands and starts laughing like a juvenile whose prank has succeeded. Lan Zhan is left staring, first at the shocking loss of body heat through his fingers, then at what is left on his fingers, at his eye level. His index fingers are coated with a layer of viscous translucent black mush. He gasps in horror and thought he'd touched something drastically unclean and yucky - but that kind of unsanitary stuff isn't supposed to be viscous translucent black mush... right?

Wei Ying does not give Lan Zhan the opportunity to analyze with his scholarly senses, and instead, shoves the fingers straight to the older man's lips and nostrils.

"Wei Ying...!" Lan Zhan mouths in extreme disgust, fear, queasiness and just a tad bit of curiosity - because what on earth is that viscous translucent black mush? the inner voice asks. Fingers dipped into his mouth at that point.

"Eeeeh, is it smelly? Is it sweet? How does my virginity taste like? Don't worry, I cleaned myself earlier in the afternoon... Ha ha ha!" the teenager guffaws into hearty childish laughs.

Fragrant, soft, sweet... and salty, Lan Zhan's atrociously active tastebuds tell him.

The breath he'd held during the last minute is released in a grateful wheeze, and his body relaxes. It's just the guilinggao herbal jelly - with extra salt included -, his tongue correctly identifies, although it had been squashed into small slimy chunks that he wasn't able to recognize it in the first place. Lan Zhan wipes his sticky fingers on his trousers, Wei Ying had giggled so much until his belly hurts and he rolls off the hammock and thuds to the ground, still rolling around. Lan Zhan doesn't want to even think of how Wei Ying managed to get some of the herbal black jelly into his asshole, but he suspects it happened sometime during the healing session.

Then, Wei Ying's lower stomach rumbled. The giggles stopped immediately, followed by a nauseous look of utmost discomfort. He clutches his stomach and groans, and his face pales. The teenager swiftly rises up from the sandy floor, and runs off to the nearest clump of bushes, one hand on his stomach, the other pressing hard on his ass.

Lan Zhan sighs. He tells himself, of all things to put into the ass, Wei Ying shouldn't have chosen something salty - since saline solutions are commonly used as laxative agents in commercially available enemas. Moreover, there were other flavours used, such as mint and native herbs, that adds to the irritant effects of the jelly.

"I didn't... uggh... know that...! Aaah!" Wei Ying cries out from behind the bushes. There's plenty of wet farting sounds filtering through the unfortunate blades of grass.

Lan Zhan gently hops off the hammock and adjusts his trousers - the unsavoury and unsexy sounds seemed to have their effects on his sex drive, which he is glad for. He pinches his nose, grabs the crutch, and hobbles off nonchalantly.

Somewhere inside the cave-home, Wei da ge sniggers and loves every second of spying and eavesdropping on his brothers, as he prepares a pot of

Wei san ge becomes a victim of his own prank; he is temporarily banned from entering their home, due to the unreasonable fear - and more likely, the angry stares - from da ge that he might stink up their entire residence. Having no other recourse other than to spend outside with the ball of energy that is the awoken didi, he is constantly tormented by the youngest when the latter approaches, cajoles and persuades him to play in the late afternoon. They still hang out together since there's else nothing to do, play their flutes, sing Yunmeng kiddie songs, kick around a handmade ball made from sewn animal hides, try to catch some small fish and shrimps (and later, throw them back into the lotus pond), and look for bugs and snails in the vegetable garden. Wei san ge's stomach continues to protest from the unexpected enema treatment - Lan Zhan knows it will continue to do so for the next couple of hours - and lets off gas intermittently, to the delight and squeaky giggles of the youngest Wei.

The little boy teases and eagerly goes name-calling his san ge, which reminds Lan Zhan about what street brats do, according to Wei Ying's colourful descriptions in the past. Eventually, both boys bicker and confront each other, then try to compete who can fart the loudest with plenty of dares and counter-dares; at that point, Lan Zhan shakes his head and facepalms internally, and is, for once, grateful that he was raised in a peaceful, sterile, disciplined, and proper environment within the Cloud Recesses. He enjoys sitting on one of the many benches warmed by the sun, undisturbed, and quietly meditates amidst the cheerful shouts and squeals of two boys playing by themselves in the courtyard.

His little break is mildly interrupted, when he feels strong, warm arms circle from behind, and place a thin upper garment on his shoulders. “I figured you’d be left alone once those two get together, and there’s no one to keep an eye on you,” Wei da ge - Wei Ying - whispers tenderly into one ear, “This one’s freshly dried from the afternoon sun and taken off the clothesline - wear it, so that when the sun starts to set, you won’t feel chilly.” Lan Zhan nods and briefly, leans back into the embrace to try and take a whiff of what’s been going inside their kitchen-- “We’ll have two hotpots tonight, one with spicy broth, and the other with clear chicken broth,” he seems to read Lan Zhan’s thoughts, and also places a jug of normal cooled herbal tea - not of the salted guilinggao type, thank goodness - on the table, with the “Yours” mug. Wei Ying steps back and starts sniffing his apron - he’s topless as well, save for that kitchenwear - and wonders to himself aloud, “Do I really smell?”. Lan Zhan shakes his head slightly.

“There’ll be a bit of everything - hotpot ingredients including chicken, fish, shrimps, garden vegetables, mushrooms, sliced gourds, and fried tofu, and a few side dishes including grilled pigeon, stewed pork, and others,” Wei Ying lists down the sumptuous menu, and puts a small wash bucket of water next to the bench with a small scoop and a towel inside, “but we’ve run out of rice after I’ve scraped the bottom of the barrel for lunch, and er di is on his way back with more, so I’ll get didi to prepare some campfire baked potatoes first,” motherly da ge explains, as he pours a mug of the refreshing tea for Lan Zhan, which the latter gratefully gulps down after the salty dessert earlier that afternoon.

Wei Ying was about to start wiping sweat off Lan Zhan’s face with a towel dipped into the bucket, when he paused and asked, “Lao gong, have you pee’d since we returned from the walkabout?” The older man did not respond immediately and instead, looked offended at the crude question.

Wei Ying goes around the bench, hands on his hips and stares back, fearless. “Did you?” he persisted.

Lan Zhan tells himself that he really should get used to this new level of domesticity and familiarity, especially with one of his four spouses. He grunts indignantly with rather insulted and vague “Not really”, and looks away, as he downs a second mug of tea - it feels nice to slake the thirst caused by the afternoon heat. Wei Ying furrows his eyebrows and true enough, his supreme magically-enhanced senses detect a full bladder somewhere inside his dear husband.

Soon, Wei Ying helps Lan Zhan to a nearby shrub, and launches a tirade of nags, “You know, you don’t have to hide these things from me, or the rest of us. I’ll be worried if you don’t drink enough, and pee enough, especially in this hot weather. It’s not hard to ask for help - you can just shout my name and I’ll come by. Lan Zhan, you should trust me - us - more, alright? Your health is the most important, since you’re still injured and your body needs enough rest, exercise, nutrition and of course, hygienic care.”

Lan Zhan is embarrassed, and it shows clearly on his reddened cheeks and the tips of his ears. “I... I can do it myself, Wei Ying,” he retorts, a bit petulantly than intended.

“No, lao gong , it’s not easy to do it while balancing on a crutch and using your weak arm. Don’t speak nonsense to your spouse,” Wei Ying softly chides, as he opens the fly and gently tugs out Lan Zhan’s penis into the open. He directs the soft member towards the roots of one of their peach trees.

“I... I’m not an invalid, and... I-I don’t need to be treated... like an old man...” Lan Zhan tries to protest, even as his good leg aches from standing a bit too long while the crutch starts to press uncomfortably into his armpit. Despite all the healing he’d done that day, there’s still plenty of recuperation needed, and until then, his body tires easily.

Wei Ying gives a light smooch on Lan Zhan’s heated cheek, and murmurs endearingly, “I know.” (知道啦,啊) When Lan Zhan finally pees (and he looks away again; he wants to bury his head into the sand from the sheer self-inflicted humiliation), Wei Ying whispers “Good boy”.

(Lan Zhan does not know that Wei Ying continues to eyes him up and down, even at the pee trickling out, to assure himself that the dear husband is absolutely fine and healthy. As the family’s wi-fi router, the information is relayed to all Wei gongzi s, and everyone breathes a sigh of relief.)

After a quick wash of hands and penis with scoops of water from the bucket, Lan Zhan is rewarded with more tea, a plate of steam-softened sweet bean dumplings from the kitchen (made with love using Lan Zhan’s recipe, of course), very good nnnnnnnh-inducing shoulder and back rubs, and his favourite activity, titillating back scratches (Wei Ying’s expert fingers are to die for, really).

Later, at the first sign of sunset, when amber and orange light start to bathe the skies and the landscape of their estate, when flocks of birds fly overhead to return to their roosts - Wei didi entertains himself by flipping and rolling leaf-wrapped sweet potatoes caked with clay, inside a hastily dug pit filled with dried branches and charcoal. His da ge had cast an extended Fire spell to keep the embers alive for longer periods of time.

Standing on a crutch, feeling fresh from da ge 's excellent ministrations, Lan Zhan directs and teaches san ge how and where to cut suitable grass for the rabbits, and how much grain to feed the chickens (and san ge cleverly takes out his small basket of caught grasshoppers, earthworms, caterpillars and other bugs for the chickens, which Lan Zhan squirms away in discomfort and allows the boy to take care of that ). Both enjoy being surrounded by fluffy animals who wriggle around their feet, looking for food and other grubs.

“Lan Zhan! Everyone! I’m back!” (我回来了!)

The voice of his original lovely Wei Ying couldn’t have come at a better time. The Wei gongzi s turn to see their er ge and rushes off to welcome him. Wei er ge looks a bit worn out, but the bright smile tells everyone that his mood is anything but dampened. His pace quickes into a light jog when he emerges from the shadows of dense orchard trees, and he breaks into a sprint after he unloads his luggage - a full basket and plenty of sacks, bags and packages in his hands - to his brothers.

Twenty-two year old Wei Ying runs into Lan Zhan’s waiting arms, and hugs him tightly amongst a pile of pecking chicks and nibbling rabbits.

Notes for the Chapter:

I wrote a bit more this weekend because I'm off for a short trip for work next week. There'll be some delays for the next chapter - stay tuned, and I hope you've enjoyed this Wangxian story, fic, chapter, and arc so far - especially when imagining FOUR Chen Qing Ling / Untamed's Xiao Zhans (Wei Wuxian) accompanying one stoic and serious Wang Yibo (Lan Wang Ji) *lol*

Note: I have little knowledge of how enemas work, but what the heck, please just enjoy the story and don't think too deeply into it :-D

Chapter 38

“Hurry up and take a bath! I’ll cook the rice and then we’ll have dinner together (一起吃饭)!” Wei da ge calls out from their humble abode, before disappearing behind the curtained mouth of the cave.

Wei Ying refuses to relinquish his hold around Lan Zhan, because so much has happened during the afternoon, amongst them being some emotionally gut-wrenching moments, that he doesn’t know when or where to start his storytelling. He murmurs, “I missed you so much,” as he nuzzles into the warm embrace.

Lan Zhan, expectedly, replies with a simple “Mn.”

“Ah, Lan Zhan, look what I found during my trip back home,” Wei Ying excitedly fishes out a small pouch from his inner garment’s pocket. Lan Zhan peers into it; at such a close distance, he makes out the shapes of small yellow flowers, and detects a peculiar, sweet pleasant aroma wafting from them.

“This family of flowering shrubs is known to absorb the spiritual energies and presence of their surroundings,” he explains, and picks out a stalk with flowers and blades of narrow leaves, “they work pretty much like Memory spells, except that these are living plants that grow in the wild, instead of paper talismans.” He twirls the stalk and waves it around.

“I remember seeing some of them around Dafan Mountain a couple of years ago, shortly after coming back to this world. Back then, Little Apple picked up some Soul Gathering Grass that absorbs spiritual energy, and it’s related to this one,” he shakes the stalk, “but I picked these shrubs near some wild rabbits’ burrow-- ah!”

A few rabbits start to hop and paw enthusiastically at Wei Ying’s feet, and try to climb up his shoes.

Lan Zhan picks a couple of them into his arms - one white, and one dark grey - to check what’s wrong. He started stroking their furry backs to pacify the agitated-looking animals, but instead, they lurched at Wei Ying. The white rabbit nibbled on Wei Ying’s finger, causing the man to gasp in surprise and release the flower stalk; the grey one snatched the pouch by the drawstrings and burrowed into the folds of Wei Ying’s inner garments. Both snuggle against Wei Ying’s chest, covered by the garment, safely cradled in Wei Ying’s arms.

“... Ah, that tickles! Lan Zhan, look! They must have caught the scent of their cousins or their former home from the plants,” and he giggles when the rabbits roll around against his nipples, “I think the plants radiate warmth and memories of their kin!”

Lan Zhan stares, mesmerized by the sight of his lovely Wei Ying, cradling two bundles of rabbits snug against his chest. His heart skips three beats - one for the cute rabbits, one for adorable Wei Ying tending to the cute rabbits, and finally, one for Wei Ying with two plump, round breasts beneath his robes (and really, it doesn't matter if they wriggle a bit).

He knows it's a ridiculous scene, but he just needed to satisfy a primal instinct that reared its ugly head into his consciousness - he takes a step forward, locks his lips with Wei Ying's, and greedily yet gently grabs each warm breast (bunny) with his hands.

"Mmmf!!" Wei Ying was shocked at the bold kiss.

Lan Zhan slides in his tongue, and curls around his lover's, mimicking the rhythmic, squeezing massage given to the fat, rounded rumps of furry rabbits. He remembers about what san ge said about plump round bosoms making lots of milk, and he moans into the long, sweet kiss.

"... ah, you're a bad husband, molesting my boobs in front of the family and our pets! How shameless can you be!" Wei Ying mocks the insatiable older man when he breaks from the kiss to catch his breath, and starts to giggle uncontrollably.

True enough, three pairs of eyes stare at them from an opening in the curtain of the cave entrance. The skies outside have darkened considerably into dusk, and lantern light from their home beamed out through the entrance, illuminating the two lovebirds (and the struggling bunny-breasts). The Wei gongzi s grin improperly, with lots of snickering in between, at the free risque entertainment right at their doorsteps.

Later, Wei Ying goes for a skinny-dipping in their outdoor pool with Lan Zhan. He takes the opportunity to inspect Lan Zhan's condition. The bandages are taken off and the skin looks fairly healed - although there are no longer any open wounds, the surface is still blotched with bruises, tender and red around the edges, and raw to the touch. However, the flesh and tissues beneath the skin need more time for recovery; such are the effect of healing spells compared to normal, natural healing - the body heals from the inside out, whereas magical healing happens the other way round.

Having satisfied himself with the quick inspection (which is also relayed to the rest of his brethren), Wei Ying seriously tells the older man about using the shrubs to lure the rabbits away from the vegetable gardens, or at least make them follow around him (because all animals in the 'Mounds are known to avoid Wei Ying). The words fall on deaf ears, as Lan Zhan is already far, far inside his fantasies, captivated by lurid daydreams of embracing a big-breasted Wei Ying in the rippling waters, and continues to tease, play and suckle the man's now-swollen nipples to his heart's content. Wei Ying couldn't muffle a sexy aaaah when pleasure courses through his lean body from the throbbing, abused nipples.

Lan Zhan experiences one of the frequent quarrels among the Wei gongzi s shortly before dinner, and musters his courage and wits to step up as the patriarch of the new family.

Infighting between the youngest two happens all the time - it's that kind of prickly brotherly relationship that borders innocent teasing between adolescents, and bitter (usually baseless) sibling rivalry that resembles an all-out warfare. Their petty arguments can be instigated as simply as when naughty san ge pinches the didi 's perky small buttocks when he walks past, and a raucous game of catch-me-if-you-can throws the tiny home into chaos (because there'll be plenty of shrilly screaming and squeaks, plus furniture and laundry baskets knocked to the ground, for example).

Or, in this case, Wei san ge , by all accounts, had been diligently sorting out er ge 's purchases, scurrying back and forth with small packages, when he accidentally stepped on the pack of White Rabbit milk candies that someone carelessly left on the floor. Didi bawled, started accusing san ge for ruining er ge 's gift to him, and soon all four Wei gongzi s crowd around the scene of the crime, where plenty of finger-pointing and inflammatory remarks are hurled at each other, such as “You should have been more careful”, “It wasn't me” and “No, I didn't see it”. At the height of the quarrel, didi angrily snatched san ge 's shiny new bamboo flute from his sash (handmade by Lan Zhan) and broke it into two - which resulted in two Wei gongzi s bawling inside the tiny home. Er ge , fresh from the bath, tried to console his teenage brother, while the eldest wiped tears off the youngest's cheeks repeatedly, but to no avail in calming down the situation.

Wei da ge is in a bind, and looks with a desperate plea in his eyes at Lan Zhan when the latter finally emerges from the bath with the crutch (he still needs it), bandageless, a towel tied around his waist, and hair still wet and steaming from the heated springwaters. He had overheard the ruckus, and sends a silent instruction to da ge , who immediately grabs a chair from the dining room and the remnant handle of the (headless) Dustless Broom. Lan Zhan, with er ge 's help, takes his seat in front of the squashed pack of candies, and thumps his royal scepter (the broom handle) on the floor to call for order - and everyone falls silent.

“Shhh, shhh, listen to our husband, our Lan gege , he will fix everything for us,” Wei da ge coos at didi cuddled in his arms, who bravely tries his best to hold back his hiccups.

Lan Zhan sighs. He now fully understands the importance of his role as the Patriarch of his budding family. He takes a deep breath, and decrees:

“Wei da ge will gift his bamboo flute to san ge . It is the best and strongest flute that I’ve made this afternoon, so san ge - there will be no further complaints from you, do I make myself clear?” and teary-eyed san ge nods fervently. His mood lightens up considerably from getting the ‘strongest’ flute. Lan Zhan hides the fact that there’s no such thing as a ‘strongest’ flute; it’s just to appease the teenager’s ego - and he gets a mental twinkling wink from the da ge in understanding.

“Wei er ge will buy Dragon’s Beard candy in his next trip to Yiling for didi , using money from our family’s coffers. Tomorrow we will start making medicinal candies for Li’s clinic, and will include a batch of milk candies too - my baobei (precious treasure), you’re getting twice the amount of candies this week, will you be happy for me?” in which didi “Enn!”s enthusiastically and runs forward to climb up to Lan Zhan’s lap. Lan Zhan places a soft kiss on the child’s pinkish cheek, then murmurs, “I will make the best milk candy in the world for you,” and kisses the other cheek. Twenty-two year old Wei Ying sighs in relief in the background.

“Wei san ge , since you’re getting better at sorting out the purchases, please take this bag of squashed candies and pick out the good ones that we can still snack on, after meals. The rest will still have their wrappers intact and are still edible - unwrap them, and leave the disfigured candies in a jar. We’ll melt them and use the milk as ingredients for tomorrow’s candy-making.” The teenager nods again, chest puffed up with a new mission on hand, and appreciates the praise given by their patriarch.

Lan Zhan sighs again, feeling a little tired from managing the latest dispute in his family. He gives didi on his lap a comforting hug and places one last chaste kiss - this time on the forehead. “And if didi has stopped crying, he can help to set the cutlery on the table, so that we can have our well-earned dinner, alright?”

Adorable and bright-eyed didi squeals with delight, and joyfully hops off Lan Zhan’s lap to do the needful, along with everyone else. Both eldest Wei gongzi s help Lan Zhan to put on his night robes, and do not hesitate to give their husband a double kiss on both cheeks, and a double-handed stroke on his naked cock, as a sign of gratitude and subservience to his authority. Lan Zhan mutters an embarrassed “Mn” and tries to hide his blush.

The Patriarch has spoken, and all is well again within the Lan’s Residence.

It takes patience, perseverance, and a little getting used to, for Lan Zhan to settle into his new role - and he likes it.

Dinner is as lavish as he - or his spouses - can possibly imagine, and nearly as what Wei da ge had described earlier that day. Due to the amount of dishes and people involved, they decided to have their grand get-together in the courtyard. The coordination and family effort moved like a well-oiled machine; tables and benches are arranged and set up without a hitch.

Wei da ge 's immensely powerful Shield spell ensures no bugs could enter the parameter of their residence and its surrounding gardens, and an extended Wind spell made the al fresco dining experience much more pleasant during the summer evening; Wei san ge helped to bring out the hotpots and dishes; Wei didi served tea and made sure all plates, bowls, napkins and cutlery are in place.

Wei er ge fashioned wooden fire torches and lit up the courtyard - which makes for a romantic and lively candlelight dinner for the family of five. However the light is brightest from the two biggest paper lanterns adorning their home's entrance - the ones won from a funfair not too long ago, which bear the pictures of rabbits and bamboo, and their Lan (藍) family name in heart-warmingly large prints.

Wei er ge , who missed Lan Zhan the most, takes his place beside the latter similarly as during lunchtime. Despite the older man's protest that he could "do it by himself" (haven't they all heard the same excuse before...), a tremble in one of his hands when he tried to pick up a heavy chicken drumstick sealed his fate for the evening, and lovely er ge happily took away the spoon and chopsticks, and served Lan Zhan, mouthful by mouthful.

Right after their new mealtime ritual of respectfully and invitingly call their lao gong (in didi 's case, gege) to start their dinner (吃饭), everyone made sure that the patriarch takes the first bite before all others, which is followed by persons of decreasing seniority.

" Lao gong , here's a bowl of clear-broth hotpot with a bit of each ingredient. Tell er ge what you want, he'll get it for you. Your stomach hasn't completely healed, so chew your rice properly."

“Lan Zhan! I helped to put the finishing touches on the grilled pigeon-- err, little chickens. There's honey in it, so please give it a try!”

“ Gege , here's boneless fish and stewed pork ribs I picked using my fingers. Please eat some. I'll peel a baked potato for you next.”

Finally, er ge fills a spoonful of rice, topped with a bit of everyone's contribution, and uses a chopstick to place a thin strip of fried tofu right at the peak. He dabs some plum sauce on it - and doesn't fail to notice the tip of a tongue licking the lips - then gently lets Lan Zhan have a bite.

Lan Zhan really likes fried foods dipped with the plum sauce named after their song - a lot.

It is probably the best dinner Lan Zhan has had in the latter half of his life, and for the Wei gongzi s, the best in the last two weeks, at least.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Dinnertime chatter under beautiful starlight and silver-lined clouds is unavoidable, and the patriarch lets it slide, especially when it comes to important discussions about the day's events and the week's proceedings. Light conversations among the gongzi s makes a rousing yet relaxing atmosphere for everyone to dine in. Wei er ge talks the most, as he brings news and exciting observations from the outside world. San ge is ravenous after a long day in the fields, and together with didi , both ate a lot especially since they're young, healthy growing boys.

In his new role, Lan Zhan has a few commandeering tools up his sleeves; he knows that a tall or long pole, either a crutch or the handle of what was once Dustless Broom, now known as the family scepter, can silence their household. When he sees both san ge and didi having a spat in trying to snatch the last chicken wing with a fierce battle of chopsticks, Lan Zhan “a-hems” loudly and pretends to clear his throat, and both boys obediently shrink back into their seats. Da ge takes the lonesome wing, divides it into two portions, and lets each boy have his fair share.

The da ge cements himself as the second-in-command of the family, and none of the other gongzi s dare to raise a finger against his words. He enacts little rituals in their daily routines that are in reality unnecessary, but strengthens the family's bonds towards each other - especially to their patriarch. Lan Zhan is pleasantly surprised when everyone has finished their meals, they would wipe their mouths and then line-up to give a thank-you kiss on his cheeks for the filling meal, and to express their gratitude for their patriarch's care.

Lan Zhan realizes, after finishing two filling bowls of rice himself, that all the hotpots, plates and dishes on the table are emptied. The implications and their magnitude are obvious - besides a sign of a hearty family meal - that there are many more hungry mouths and bellies to feed; their current income-generating activities of hunting-gathering, subsistence farming, small food catering business and street peddling, will not be sustainable in the long run. He'd mentally calculated their remaining spending money to last until the end of the month - even by adopting very frugal lifestyles and to save and cut corners wherever possible -, before they're left with his precious remaining two gold bars and the jade token that he swore never to use unless in dire emergencies.

He starts to brainstorm - internally - on what other jobs they could take to earn more money, on the ways that could reduce their spending and wastage, who he could turn to for help, even toying with the idea of taking a short-term bank loan with unattractively high interest rates - and there's also concern that he's slave-driving everyone to work for their own food, where in fact; the youngest could go to school, have fun with the other kids and grow up as a normal child; the teenager should spend time studying and cultivating his skills and magics - he'd slap the boy's legs with his crutch to motivate him to exercise and get in shape, if necessary; he also worries that the twenty-two year old may become burnt-out from the relentless daytime work in Yiling, including food-delivery, street peddling and being harassed by suppliers and customers, when he should live a fuller, richer life in this world, as promised by the older man so many times before; and the eldest--

-- the eldest and the rest of us, if you still remember, can play god in this world and solve all your woes with your permission and blessing,” Wei da ge places a cup of steaming pu'er tea in front of him, “All you have to do is to ask, and I'll bring dear ol' Cai Shen (财神; God of Wealth) to our doorsteps.” He bows, uncharacteristically, and takes a few more empty dishes back to the kitchen for washing. Lan Zhan didn't realize that his spouses had started clearing up the table while he was busy contemplating over his money problems. He could see san ge scrubbing spiritedly at a hotpot through the kitchen window.

Er ge, his lovely Wei Ying, brings a tray of freshly cut fruits - apples, peaches and an assortment of summer berries they'd harvested earlier - for dessert. “Lan Zhan-ah-Lan Zhan, I know you're the kind of person who will not take advantage of the divine bounties that come with your beautiful wives. I will not argue about your - no, our - over four thousand Lan family rules, and the wonderful virtues and self-discipline that you embody, which we're trying our best to follow and learn.” The young man proceeds to poke a wedge of apple with a toothpick, and hands it to the husband. Lan Zhan takes it and bites into the fruit - it tastes sweeter, partly because finally , he is allowed to eat by himself and not be (too) pampered by his spouses; and partly because Wei Ying (finally?) understands him well enough, and isn't about to throw a wrench into his Perfect universe and his thought processes of working things out independently.

Wei Ying uses a toothpick to casually pick a piece of cabbage from his teeth. "You're our patriarch, so you have our respect and support in solving our family's problem - together ," he emphasized the last word with a passionate poke into a particularly large strawberry with that cabbage-tinted toothpick.

"What do you suggest?" Lan Zhan asks and keeps his eyes on the half-eaten apple wedge. His face is solemn, expecting a severe blow in the form of another Wei Ying-ness, or an out-of-the-box idea that will tire him - and truthfully, after a nice dinner over sunset, while his body is still recovering, he's not quite ready to digest anything extraordinary yet.

Wei Ying munches on a mouthful of strawberry noisily, leans forward and surprisingly, pats on Lan Zhan's tummy. " Da ge just relayed your thoughts to me. Yes, you need to digest your food properly after such a long, eventful day. Please, Lan Zhan, relax for now," and the pats become warm circular caresses on the full stomach - which feels quite comforting, coming from a caring spouse. " Didi will be coming over with a brush pen and you can dictate your problems, which we'll look through one by one, tomorrow morning - together . Your money problems are also my money problems," he adds with a note of finality.

Lan Zhan didn't realize (again - he gets absent-minded when he broods over his problems) that he'd held a tight, quite constipated, look on his face, and sat in an uncomfortably hunched posture on the chair. He reflects on the conversation, and tells himself that Wei Ying is right - he is the patriarch, and therefore responsible for their family's well-being, but it does not mean he walks alone; he has four spouses by his side, and they can work out something even under his authority - and first, he should take care of his own health and well-being.

He adjusts his seat, stretches a little, and relaxes his tensed muscles with a long heavy sigh - the pensive mood is broken into a set of loosened, half-lidded eyes and slightly curved upwards, parted lips, almost in a meditative state. The two bowls of rice, along with the other food he'd consumed over dinner, finally make their way through his digestive system after being held up by his worries. Not surprisingly, a comfortable, prolonged burp escapes his throat.

Wei Ying kisses Lan Zhan, and leaves a strawberry flavoured hickey on the side of his face.

Chapter 39

Lan Zhan tries to read the week's periodical which Wei didi kept, but his focus fails him; after flipping through all twenty pages, all he could vaguely remember was a colourful announcement about summer sales for mattresses, pillows and other bedding items at Liao's General Store - because he kept worrying about how to accommodate four (nearly and) fully-grown adults along with a child on a king size bed, and whether the creaky secondhand bedframe would survive one or more nights of (sexual) abuse. He'd measured using an Imperial Court-sanctioned ruler and measuring tapes from Tian Third Sister's magical sewing kit - and confirmed, to his utter despair, that there's simply not enough room for everyone.

The best he could think of was to fit three adults and each would have minimal, but still reasonable, sleeping space - like the word 'three' (三). The child could squeeze somewhere in-between, but that still leaves one person bedless; and he'd sworn none of his Wei Yings would ever need to sleep on the cold hard floor again. Has he miscalculated his numbers and confidence, and more importantly, how can the new Lan patriarch ensure all four spouses can sleep with him on their first true night together?

The other set of daunting problems lie with the first major warning he received from Wei da ge in the morning, and he brilliantly tied it to Wei sa ge's seductive promises in the afternoon. He knows - expects - that some if not all of the Wei *gongzi*s will start demanding for sex as soon as he can "get it up", which he has already demonstrated in broad daylight with the multiple edging sessions he had to endure throughout the day. He starts calculating and tries to find the best strategy to share their lovemaking equally - until the point his mind meanders into ridiculous scenarios of how many minutes spent per Wei Ying, how many and what kind of sex positions that could prolong their lovemaking because he couldn't possibly survive doing it too many times, how many fucks for each person's ass, how many twitches he could give to each of his Wei Ying when he orgasms, to share his extremely limited twenty-twitches for every session; because every twitch for one person needs to be multiplied by four; and heaven forbid, will he REALLY need to do the same for the nine-year old, because despite the boy being a de-aged version of his lover, he couldn't fathom actually holding him in bed and it would feel extremely disturbing to the point that he might wilt away; he also broods on any possible, unexpected complications such as premature ejaculations or spillage, and he starts to envision alarming situations where he couldn't manage to pull out on time and give an extra spurt to one Wei Ying, which then needs to be multiplied by four, or worse, if he pulled out too early and wastes one load onto the bedsheets--

It was getting hopelessly absurd, he thought. His head throbbed from too much thinking, too many impossible mathematical questions, and pure unadulterated stress running in his bloodstream.

He gingerly slides off the bed and hobbles on the crutch to one of the cupboards in their bedroom. He flicks it open to find anything, anything that could keep his mind off from gloomy, dead-end and downward-spiralling thoughts. There's a bunch of bedroom supplies and bedding material stored in there, and some personal things as well. Perhaps opening his treasure box of memorabilia related to Wei Ying might help - staring at the cloth with Wei Ying's portrait made from lampblack, or just running the ruined red loincloth through his fingers, usually has that kind of effect on him. He needed to think positive, not speculate too far into murky territories, and banish the negative, uncomfortable feelings.

Worse to worse, he could always rely on counting the number of leaf-wrapped meat packages inside their pantry to cool down his head - or make him drowsy enough that he could use sleepiness and fatigue as an excuse for the night. But that would be an irresponsible act of cowardice - he is not about to shirk away from his husbandly and now, patriarchal duties.

Lan Zhan mentally slaps himself back to reality. He knows that if this goes on, he may worry himself to the point of becoming impotent! He's thinking too much, and trying too hard to predict what may or may not happen in his first, supposedly blissful night of his harem of Wei Yings.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The Wei gongzi s, fresh from a quick dip and wearing their night robes except for the youngest who remains pantless, entered the bedroom just in time to catch Lan Zhan red-handed in preparing a bedsheet and a pillow on the narrow strip of floor space between the bedside and the cupboards. When interrogated by a visibly upset da ge , Lan Zhan bowed his head in shame, and admitted that he failed to find a solution to the problem of fitting all five Lan family members on the bed - so, he offers to sleep on the floor while the remaining four can have a restful slumber as promised. He adds that he doesn't move while sleeping, so this would be the best arrangement, for now.

The selfless act of their patriarch - and a disabled, injured one, no less - moved the gongzi s to tears. The three youngest ones carried Lan Zhan back to the bed, propped him up to a sitting position with soft pillows supporting his back, and started to pamper him and soothe away his anxieties.

"I've been tuning in and out of your thoughts during the past hour, and nearly had a headache trying to follow your inner monologue," Wei da ge nags, as he picked up the bedsheet from the floor and folded it back into the cupboard. “It’s unbelievable that you turn everything into numbers, calculations, flowcharts, scenario-building and strategies, with military precision.”

Er ge murmurs assuringly from the right, “... but I, we, understand how you feel, because this is who you are, so we’re not going to complain. It’s a good thing that da ge assembled us here before you’ve gone far too deep into that rabbit-hole of yours.”

San ge scoots to the left side, and whispers into Lan Zhan’s ear, “Don’t worry, we’ve figured it out for you about our sleeping arrangements, so leave it to us, and please... relax,” and massages the left shoulder to emphasize his words, “As for your other problem...”

Didi sits just beyond Lan Zhan’s feet at the far edge of the bed. He starts to exercise his arms and stretch his little fingers, and says in a squeaky voice, “I’ve already said before, I’m not really interested in these things at my age,” and makes a disgusted face, “and da ge said he’s not in a hurry because he’s the most patient among us,” then brightens up to a cute smile, “so you don’t have to worry about over-exerting yourself, nor think too much into every little detail. Gege, we want you to get well soon, and we want you to be happy,” he chirps.

Lan Zhan sighs and relaxes - the first time since he re-entered the bedroom that day - and berates himself for being too harsh and setting himself up for failure with unrealistic expectations. He nods, concedes to his spouses’ suggestions, and lies back into a fluffy cocoon of pillows and Wei Yings. He says, “Wei Ying,” and does not address any particular individual, “You’re right. Please... go ahead,” and does not point to any particular instruction to proceed. The Patriarch has given a blanket seal of approval to his Wei Yings, and the latter group of boys and men smile, all at once, in acknowledgement.

Er ge and san ge each whip out an ear pick from their pockets (the more senior er ge holds Lan Zhan's favourite well-used bamboo ear pick, of course), and gives Lan Zhan double the happiness of a relaxing and extremely pleasurable ear-cleaning session. Didi pours some massage oil onto his warmed fingers, rubs them into Lan Zhan's bare feet, and serves him a slice of heaven in the form of a divinely foot massage that only the delicate, small fingers of an eager child can give. The little boy giggles when ten toes wriggle happily in response.

Lan Zhan's problems melted away, literally.

Gentle flicking scrapes, alternating with long scratches from the innermost reachable recesses all the way to the outside, both in the left and right ear canal. Like plucking the strings of guqin in one, and blowing on a flute in the other, the movements synchronize in incredible harmony.

Two earpicks, each circle in downward spirals along their respective well-grazed tunnel, then spiral back upwards; one in a clockwise direction, and the other in an anti-clockwise direction. Lan Zhan feels the fine, sensitive hairs and skin inside each ear being lovingly rubbed and massaged in all directions. Goosebumps prickles on his arms, numbing tingles bloom and grow on the scalp and spread to the back of the neck; even as he closes his eyes, he still sees sparkles, fireworks and dancing lights as the earpicks move round and round, sometimes in quick successive thrusting motions, gently violating the most pleasurable spots.

Concurrently, he feels fingers firmly and earnestly work on his toes, the pads of his soles, along the length of tendons and ligaments on the ankle and heels, the arch of his feet, and every other nook and cranny that only those lovely dainty small fingertips can access, press, and rhythmically knead every ache and stiffness away. The shins and calf muscles receive delightful treatment as well; bundles of muscles are squeezed, pulled, stretched and rolled. After some time, he feels his feet are floating on clouds, as the massage continues relentlessly, the soles become pleasantly warm, and every muscle fibre relaxes, swells, fills up and resets to their most comfortable, natural position. Lan Zhan knows that if he is put on this feet at that moment, his entire lower body would happily refuse and he'd collapse into a heap within a second.

Somewhere in the midst of the pleasurable service rendered by the Wei gongzis, da ge whispered into Lan Zhan's ears and asks whether the older man can share and give him everything, whether in material wealth and possessions, life energy, or intangibles such as feelings, knowledge and skills.

Lan Zhan fluctuates between wakefulness and sleep while keeping his eyes closed, sedated by the wonderful ministrations upon his defenceless body, his mind has long shut off to any concerns and problems of the real world; he's no longer listening and everything sounds perfectly agreeable in his Perfect universe; so, he hums a happy agreement of "Mn."

Somewhere, the winds must have picked up, because three whistles could be heard; soft, muted, probably by the window's curtains.

"Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan," the lovely Wei er ge murmurs, and the sweetly familiar voice sends the older man further into his abyss of paradise and pleasure. The sounds around him distort, overlap, sometimes tune out when he dozes off briefly, sometimes they mix and gel together into a pleasant background drone when he wakes. His limbs are useless, numb, floating somewhere in a sea of dream-like surreal sensations.

"Please relax further, so that we can pleasure you more and more," Wei Ying seductively whispers, in all four voices - they sound strange together, but he could pick out each individual's tone; the voices echo and warp inside his ears; the nerves inside his head are already paralyzed with the constant buzz from the toe-curlingly delightful ear-cleaning. He's already deep, deep inside a semi-conscious state, his eyes refused to open, his lips couldn't move, everything is a puff of cloud and he's descending, sinking, falling. He couldn't work out why something doesn't sound right in that garbled voice of four Wei Yings, doesn't feel right in that he's immobile and imprisoned, when everything else - Wei Ying on his side, Wei Ying on his legs, and unexpectedly, Wei Ying on his back, giving double-circular backscratches which he loves so much, that sends him further, further into quivering nnnnhs and aaaahns. He is becoming incoherent, his thoughts are scattering, gently ripped and torn into shreds by wonderful Wei Yings and their fingers, thrown into the breeze and blown far, far away into increasingly murky, thick darkness.

Lan Zhan mindlessly obeys Wei Ying's orders, brings down all of his barriers and defenses, and he opens everything up - his body, his mind, his soul, even his golden core. He feels himself sinking down, deeper and deeper into the haze of pleasure, of earpicking, foot massage, backscratches, and now that he thinks about it - but he couldn't think anymore, he's just a ball of primal instinct drowning in the exquisite pleasure of the flesh - there are teeth chewing; canines or fangs biting into his skin; tongue licking his chest and melting, dissolving, parting the skin and flesh; wetness being slurped up, inhaled, drained; his life force being sucked away then returned like the ebb and flow of eternal tides; warmth encasing his trembling body; fingers, sharp claws even slimy tentacle-like limbs crawling all over his nether regions; and his sexual pleasure doubles, triples, quadruples, multiples when invisible protrusions and fleshy folds enter into his flesh and cavities, squeezing and milking, contracting and convulsing each organ, each tubule, each vesicle, each gland, and they willingly throb and shudder, surrender their liquids, juices, energies in a glorious rise of molten pressure and heat, burning and burning, higher until he's feverish, he's searing hot, he wants to eject everything out, everything that is pooling in his loins, ballooning to the point of bursting, like a volcano on the cusp of a marvellous eruption--

“Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, you're so kind to us. Let us love you more.”

“Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, mmmm please open up wider for us. Yes, yes, just like that.”

“Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, ahhh, so tasty, so satisfying, yet it's not enough. Nnnh, let me eat you some more.”

Lan Zhan feels himself being warmly devoured by his lovely Wei Yings in his dreams, and he relishes in that feeling very much.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan wakes up with a yawn. He feels as though he had slept through an entire day - his mind is clear, his vision is bright, his body is energized and his consciousness is fully awake.

He rouses from a cradle of Wei Ying-scented pillows, but winces when he feels his wounds twinge and protest. The ugly gashes, punctures and slash marks on his waist, left forearm and right lower leg are still there. He stares disappointedly especially on his torso, and runs his fingers along the tender, scarred edges of each large wound.

He carefully sits up and is greeted by the sight of four Wei Yings huddling together on the far end of the bed, each hunching over something in their arms. The lanterns in their bedroom are unusually bright - lit by enhanced Fire spells from the da ge, no doubt. They whisper and point at each other, and turn around in unison when Lan Zhan ‘a-hems’ involuntarily due to his dry throat. Everyone gathered around their patriarch - and Lan Zhan notices with a raised eyebrow, that it is dark outside. Some moonlight filtered through the curtains.

“ Lao gong, you’re awake! You must’ve enjoyed our massage and ear-cleaning services a lot, seeing that you slept like a log.”

“Lan Zhan, while waiting for you, da ge taught us how to sew some basic stitches. We made the easiest piece of garment from a roll of red cloth that I've bought today at Yiling, so please evaluate our handiwork! Here are four loincloths!"

"Lan Zhan! Sorry if we made a mess of your sewing kit. There are so many different kinds of magical needles and threads, and I didn't know where each item belongs to..."

"Gege, here is a cup of tea. You snored so loudly, da ge said that you must be thirsty when you're up."

Lan Zhan sighs. He takes the steaming cup of tea, the sewing kit, and four red loincloths into his arms, and receives four simultaneous smooches on his cheeks.

Lan Zhan learns that somehow, during his hour-long ear cleaning-induced sleep, Wei da ge read his mind and extracted the needed information to teach his three younger brothers on the delicate art of sewing. The purpose is simple and straightforward - so that the gongzi s can make their own clothes and need not rely on Lan Zhan's older garments, plus, their didi can finally get his own pair of pants. He was a bit apprehensive at the mental intrusion despite the good and harmless intentions, however, when he held the cutest, smallest loincloth in his palm with a beaming, waiting smile from the nine-year old sitting beside him, he threw caution to the wind and accepted this as just another form of Wei Ying-ness.

He tells all four spouses that they've passed their first lesson in sewing with flying colours, and that he expects more garments from them in the future. The youngest's loincloth had some loose stitches, which he fixed on the spot, and he hugs the boy with a sweet murmur of "you've done well".

It was almost nine at night, and didi let out a wide yawn; it's nearly bedtime for the little boy. Wei er ge and san ge played with their newly-minted loincloths; they threw the red garments at each other, and since both of them wear the same sizes, it doesn't matter who ends up with whose underwear. Lan Zhan thought that when the two Wei Yings that he's most familiar with ended up with red underwear on their heads, they looked like brides wearing their red veils.

The eldest Wei latches onto Lan Zhan's dreamy musings, and drums up excitement for one more ritual for the day - he hushes everyone with a clap of hands, and waves his arm to cast some Sparkles to announce a splendid way to celebrate their first night together.

"Everyone! We are blessed on this sacred night and upon this revered bed, to pledge our love and loyalty to our great Lan Patriarch. Let us perform this solemn ceremony to commit ourselves, to reinforce our love, for this lifetime and all others, in holy matrimony with our husband, and that our family shall always experience great love, joy and happiness as long as we are bonded and walk through life together."

Lan Zhan stills and is suddenly very nervous; he feels unprepared - in fact, he will never be prepared for such an unforgettable life-changing ceremony. All four gongzi s move in an orchestrated manner, and it is obvious that someone is pulling the strings. They shuffle around on the bed to line up across in front of him, from the eldest to the youngest, and they kneel. Lan Zhan follows suit, and swallows hard. His heart races when he faces all four spouses, each with their own loincloth on their heads and covering their faces.

“We bow three times to you, dear husband, because you are our center of our universe. The first bow, to worship you as our heaven and earth!” da ge proclaims. They kowtow all at once, and Lan Zhan tries his best to catch up.

“The second bow, to thank the Lan family for bringing you into this world and raising you to be the benevolent patriarch of your own family, and that you will care, love and nurture us as husband, wife and child.” The second kowtow. Lan Zhan bows just in time.

“The final bow, an eternal symbol of our vows to you, that we respect and love for you as much as you will cherish us forever, dear husband.” The third kowtow. Lan Zhan matches the bows perfectly.

A few seconds pass in silence. Lan Zhan rises and sees that his family - his wives - wait for him to unveil their faces. The room takes on a dim reddish hue, and shadows begin to dance on the walls and behind furniture from the flickering Fire spells. The air is cool, however Lan Zhan feels beads of sweat roll down from his forehead and his heartbeat races in anticipation. It seems a bizarre experience, yet practical and realistic, for him to pull away each person’s loincloth and be greeted with beautiful Wei Ying of different ages, eyelids lowered, demure, alluring in the blood-throbbing red atmosphere, coy, hands grasping shyly on their kneeling laps - Lan Zhan's body moved instinctively although he doesn't know exactly what are the steps of the ritual; he lifts then flings away each loincloth, signifying that he sees one of his four Wei Yings, leans forward and captures the moist, waiting lips, timidly at first, then increasing with strength and plunges of tongue against one another's, pronouncing his complete possession and domination of his Wei Ying; and that the marriage ritual is consummated; with that, he lets go, licking his lips at the aftertaste of Wei Ying and savours the flavours of a young, virile man he would be bedding with, soon if not later; and he moves on to the next Wei Ying.

Wild ideas start forming inside Lan Zhan's mind - the problems of lovemaking with multiple willing partners from earlier that evening emerge, however, now coloured with the exciting red of the bedroom lights. Suddenly, everything feels, looks, smells, sounds, tastes perfect, even if the ideas are incomplete and riddled with impossibilities. Adrenaline dulls his rational senses, and he doesn't care if and how the numbers will not match, or if he will be able to quadruple his sexual prowess tonight - because Lan Zhan feels extremely confident and capable to beat all his previous records that he can satisfy all his Wei Yings at one go.

When he reaches the nine-year old boy, he hesitates when his lips hover against the boy's - and is surprised that Wei didi takes the initiative to lunge forward and kiss Lan Zhan passionately. The tenacity of their tongue-play leaves the older man dazed; he tells himself that the scarlet bedroom light is playing tricks inside his mind, heightens his senses and excitement, and leads him to feel that everything is extraordinarily out of this world. He shudders inwardly as well, when he reminds himself that his lovely adult Wei Ying resides within this adolescent boy, armed with all necessary sexual experience and skills, bottled up into the body of an overzealous, eager child, ready to burst out at anytime.

Didi is the first to break the spell, when he yawns again and stretches his hands. Da ge carefully maneuvers the little boy to one side of the bed and lays him down with a pillow to cushion the head. Lan Zhan watches, mesmerized, at how gracefully Wei da ge casts modified Sleep and Shield spells upon the child, followed by a thin green bubble spell to envelop the boy. Da ge whispers in the faint scarlet light, “Didi will sleep well for the next few hours and he will not be disturbed,” he turns around and blows into Lan Zhan’s ears and tickles the earlobes with his fingertips, “while we have our little adult fun, lao gong . Don’t underestimate the child, Lan Zhan. If he does he wake up in the middle of the night and wants a piece of the action, even I cannot help you.” Lan Zhan shivers and swallows at the same time at the conflicting sensations running up and down his spine.

Lovely Wei er ge hungrily undresses Lan Zhan, starting with his outer night robes. “Ah, Lan Zhan, do you remember the first time we had sex?,” he starts nuzzling into the older man’s neck, peppering kisses along the jawline and murmurs sweet nothings every time he touches the beard or the fine moustache, “I want you, us, to feel good again. We’ve prepared ourselves in the bath earlier, so lao gong , please fuck all of us really deep tonight. We really missed your hard cock inside us.” Lan Zhan moans at the dirty words used, and his imagination starts to run wild again.

Wei san ge pulls on Lan Zhan’s pants, and easily peels off all garments that stand between him and his - their - main prize. “Lan Zhan, I-- I’m feeling a bit nervous, so please be gentle with me. I want my first experience in this body to be a memorable one,” he kisses the head of the half-erect rigid flesh when it is exposed, “Please take my virginity tenderly with this mighty weapon,” he murmurs in prayer at the hardening length. “Ah... do you think I will conceive on our first night? Lan Zhan, what if I really become pregnant and bear your child?” More kisses on the sensitive glans, and it swells up excitedly in response. His vision spins with images of a heavily-pregnant Wei Ying, with plump round breasts, tottering carefully with a hand on his baby bump - the fruits of little Wang Jis mating with baby Wei Yings.

Lan Zhan licks his lips in anticipation.

“L.. Lan Zhan! Please be gentle! You’re too big! S-Slow down! Ah, something’s rubbing against me! Are you pushing it in? N.. Not yet! My heart is not ready! I might split apart! I can’t believe this is happening! Lan Zhan! Do you hear me! Wait!”

Lan Zhan groans in agony at yet another failed attempt in penetration during the past half-hour. His twitching and very eager steel-hard penis barely touched the edge of the glistening tight rosebud, before he had to withdraw with extreme reluctance... again. He leans back on his knees on the bed, sighs, and stares longingly at the well-lubricated, soft and puckered entrance; and the rise and fall of nervous Wei san ge ’s chest, covered with a sheen of sweat, as the boy lies dazed, spread-eagled in front of him. The nubile fifteen-year old is a tantalizing, mouth-watering morsel waiting to be sexually tasted, but that stubborn morsel of food incessantly whines in protest, thus putting the brakes on Lan Zhan’s highly-anticipated deflowering of young Wei Ying.

With didi out of commission for the next few hours after nine o’ clock, the remaining fully naked Wei gongzi s decided that the equally-stripped Lan Zhan should have intercourse with them in the order from the youngest to the oldest - for the sake of the fifteen year old’s jittery sanity and fragile, anxious heart; despite the bold teasing and bravado displayed earlier that day, when it came to finally getting the deed done, the teenager revealed his true inner colours - immature, insecure and inexperienced in having one’s fifteen year old young body fucked by a man more than twice his age.

Wei da ge , who relinquished his mind control after the simple but meaningful “wedding” ceremony, took his position behind a kneeling Lan Zhan on the bed, and tried his best to guide and support his husband’s hips so that they do not tremble in the throes of excitement. Da ge made it loud and clear that he wants the Lan patriarch to enjoy ravishing the delectable, meticulously prepared virginal flesh at the precise, perfect angle of bareback fucking - smoothly and painlessly - and that he’s prepared to cast Energy spells and forcibly move the husband’s hips if necessary; Lan Zhan feels unnerved at the man’s obsessed and perverse determination. The thirty-year old claims that he’d made all the preparations ahead of time for such an auspicious night, and his patience runs thin at the constant complaints and indecisions from the third youngest sibling.

“ San di , get your act together and spread your ass like a proper man! You’re being disrespectful towards our patriarch! Just accept his love as a spouse, and behave like the rest of us!” he chastised the teen angrily from behind Lan Zhan’s shoulders. Lan Zhan puts a reassuring palm on da ge ’s strong grip on the hips, and gently pats the back of the hand to signal that there is no need to be rash about the situation. However, his wordless diplomatic gesture goes unheeded when the eldest Wei sibling grabs the patriarch's throbbing hot rod, and sticks it against the tenaciously closed, tight ring of muscle, again, for another attempt to consummate the couple’s relationship. Lan Zhan nnnnghs at the solid, firm grasp around his erection.

“You...! Er ge , did you hear what da ge just said? He’s bullying me! Wuuuu wuuuu...” spoiled and pampered Wei san ge starts to cry and hiccups into his favourite er ge ’s embrace. Wei er ge lies next to the fifteen year-old, kissing the teenager on the cheeks and tries his best to console the bundle of fidgety nerves that kept mumbling “I’m scared, I’m scared, I’m scared”.

“Hush... hush... don’t cry, da ge didn’t really mean what he said. All of us made our wedding vows, so it’s time to carry out our promises. Hush... hush... be a good boy, don't be afraid, and accept our patriarch, alright?” he whispers into the teenager’s ears, runs his fingers into the long lush hair in comforting sweeps, until the latter nods shakily.

“Brat! Open up your hole!” the crude, admonishing words only served to stress the teenager further into another round of bawling.

“ Da ge ! Don’t scare him anymore! He said he will do it, so give him a little more time!” the er ge hugs the boy shaking like a leaf.

“Ahhhh! You’re both so frustrating, and you act like sissies!” the roar is unmistakably fiery.

Lan Zhan rolls his eyes at the pandemonium, but for another reason.

Wei da ge was so engrossed into the needless drama unfolding before him, and didn’t realize that his hand stroked Lan Zhan’s cock vigorously with every rebuke in the conversation - while aiming, touching the agitated cockhead upon the teenager’s juicy rosebud. Da ge was intent on keeping the rigid pole hard, although the anger-fuelled act leaves Lan Zhan teetering at the brink of a long-awaited orgasm, especially when the penis glans were unwillingly rubbed in circles at the wrinkly ring of muscle until it started leaking pre-cum liberally. Another hand unconsciously moved to the thighs, pawed at the sensitive crotch and caressed the full, heavy scrotum screaming for release after holding in its precious contents for nearly an entire day of edging. All three Wei gongzi s didn’t notice poor, neglected

Lan Zhan arching his back and jerking his hips in tandem with da ge 's expert ministrations; tasty moans emit from his throat, and his body bows and thrusts uncontrollably, being at the mercy of the eldest Wei and his superior ability to pleasure with his nimble fingers.

Lovely er ge coos calming words of “It’s alright” and “It will not hurt”, then dips his fingers into a jar before sliding three slick digits into that inviting rosebud to coat its insides with another layer of lube. He keeps assuring the teenager that the body is properly stretched and lubricated, so there will be no pain. Earlier, Lan Zhan finds it incredibly arousing that the gongzi s managed to cast a modified Preserve spell into the green bubble of collected pre-cum from midday, which is then transferred to a small jar - and now, with a kindling tiny Fire spell from da ge , the clear, viscous nectar is sufficiently heated and used to ease their first night together. The tasty-looking slippery finger-fucking, meant to pacify the frightened virgin, only adds to Lan Zhan’s scorching lust especially when he imagines that the teenager’s sweet tight love canal is being lubricated by the same bodily fluids that he will pour into the virile body for many hours into the night.

The teenager’s eyes are truly brimming with tears of distraught - understandably from a young virgin’s point of view - there is distress in anticipating the first, possibly painful or uncomfortable penetration; the uneasy conflict in the innocent heart for losing something so precious, battling against a growing, greedy lust for the experience to finally achieve adulthood; the foreboding, disturbing questions of whether one’s performance, responses and reactions in bed are proper and satisfying - or not; and the apprehension of completely surrendering one’s body, mind and soul to the beloved, therefore putting his trust and his entire happiness into the hands of another person. Lan Zhan realizes that memories of their “first times”, which are a little blurred by now, consist mostly of stressful, drunken acts and confessions whether in wooden bathtubs, in public view of Goddess Guan Yin temples, or behind some thorny bushes - they're always hurried, full of distractions, never thoroughly planned, serendipitous or rapey in flavour, and tarnished with selfishness to satisfy each one's own desires. They never really had a good "first time".

Er ge reaches down over the teenager's groin and uses his fingers to spread the entrance at the bottom. The round-shaped hole opens up welcomingly from the forceful stretching, glimmers with droplets of pre-cum, and Lan Zhan could see an endless passage of fleshy, bumpy folds. The older man's swallows hard at the visual feast displayed before his eyes, and he groans to hold back from erupting from a fully-loaded, turgid penis.

Da ge , with an impatient "hmph!", pushes Lan Zhan's hips forward and makes sure the latter's heavy, wanting manhood strikes the intended target at the bullseye. Lan Zhan knows he cannot, and should not, delay the wait nor prolong anyone's suffering - including his own. He bends down when his cock hits the resistant ring of muscle; his massive girth is overwhelmingly larger than the teen's virgin asshole despite Wei er ge 's helpful efforts in assisted mating. The fully flushed and sweaty patriarch of the residence leans forward to kiss the shivering san ge 's lips, uses one hand to wipe the tear-streaked cheeks, and the other hand goes around the teen's thin waist to support the light weight.

"Wei Ying, Wei Ying, listen to me. I will not hurt, and I will be as gentle as possible, because it is your first time," Lan Zhan murmurs between comforting wet kisses and rolling of tongues.

"He's right, so, please relax a bit more. Relax... relax... breathe in... then out... then in again..." Wei er ge enthusiastically cheers on his little brother at the side, and rubs comforting circles on the latter's arms and shoulders.

“Wei Ying, I want to cherish this moment. I love you so much... so, will your body relax and tell me how it feels?” Lan Zhan knows every Wei Ying adores such cheesy lines, and he couldn’t help but say them out clearly inside their bedroom. He starts to thrust his hips on his own with slight prodding motions, and feels the tip poke meekly into the tight but well-lubricated hole. Wei er ge chants the breathe-in-breathe-out non-stop in the background; the teenager hesitates at first, but eventually follows the instructions, forcing his body to loosen up. San ge ’s knuckle-white grip on the sheets slacks, and Lan Zhan takes the chance to intertwine both his hands with the teen’s while he continues to pepper sweet languid kisses all over san ge 's flushed face. The fifteen-year old starts to respond to the intimacy, nnnngs into the locked lips, and rolls his hips seductively, pulling along the captured tip of the enthusiastically pulsing rod.

Lan Zhan grits his teeth at the mounting excitement and soldiers on, refusing to be carried away by the teenager’s quick-fire pace. With each back-and-forth sway of his hips, the engorged bulbous head digs deeper through the entrance, and Lan Zhan starts to see stars in his vision - his special spot beneath the cockhead receives incredibly pleasurable rubs against folds of muscles; it takes his entire willpower and a fast-draining golden core to hold back, and not to recklessly screw the deliciously hot teenager into the bed in an instant - which would surely tear something and ruin the whole experience.

"L-Lan Zhan... how am I doing?" fifteen-year old Wei Ying asks breathily in the midst of struggling against a losing battle; as soon as he’s calmed down, another fire burns within him - one born of dangerous lust and primal desires to be bred by their patriarch. Lan Zhan is nearly past the hurdle, but he wants their first time to be gentle and as painless as possible. He pushes deeper, millimeter by millimeter with each tender thrust. He feels more slippery pre-cum trickle out of his cock, further easing the entry.

"Nnnh... Wei Ying, you feel very good... do you... hnnngh... feel any pain?" It was becoming very difficult for the penetrator to form coherent words, especially between heavy panting, delirious nuzzling against the young boy's neck, and the toe-curlingly delightful act of teasing and coaxing the dripping rosebud to open up further with his impossibly rigid spear.

Young Wei Ying shakes his head, starts break into a teary smile, and undulates his hips when he too, feels pleasure blooming from the bottom. He is rewarded by hungry lips sucking on his throat; another sign that their patriarch has marked him well. "Nnnh, it's not painful... I think, I feel good too... I... I'm yours, lao gong , so please... take your pleasure with this virgin body..." Lan Zhan knows he's doing it right; Wei Ying is fully comfortable, does not feel hurt, and in fact, the boy is showing clear signs of encouragement and his signature naughty goading.

"Mmmm... if sex feels so good... I want you... to stay... inside me... ahhhnnn... lao gong ..." and followed by another hnngh-inducing circle of hips. Lan Zhan furrows his brows in deep concentration, he's nearly there and he didn't want to falter yet. Deep inside, he is glad that the fifteen-year old is almost back to the normal level of frisky Wei Ying-ness that he's familiar with. He continues to painstakingly work his way slowly into the writhing boy.

Eventually, Lan Zhan's hard work pays off. When he finally, finally slides in until he is fully sheathed inside the so-called tasty morsel of virginal flesh, he wheezes out a relieved sigh, and relishes in the encasing wet warmth around his tormented, spasming penis. He shivers as well, because the hole is extremely, pleasurably tight, and he could feel the teenager's throbbing heartbeat and wavy movements of flesh and muscles through his twitching cock - he knows that with a few hard pumps, he will sow his thick lusty seed deep into the fifteen-year old boy. Deep inside, he hopes to perform a few more times, and explore the freshly-deflowered flesh thoroughly, because it feels really, really good inside this Wei Ying.

"I love you... Wei Ying," the trembling patriarch announces with a passionate kiss to the boy, and to the rousing cheers of his audience on the bed.

Da ge throws Sparkles around the bedroom to celebrate the teen's journey into adulthood, despite a sputtering start. Er ge , who had been on the edge of his seat for the past few minutes, cries tears of joy as though he'd assisted someone to give birth to a child and he is mentally, emotionally exhausted. Wei san ge , having passed one of life's greatest challenges with flying colours, breaks down into a tearful giggle, and spreads his ass further before hooking his legs around Lan Zhan's hips to prove that he's done it, and he's conquered his fears.

"I... love you too, Lan Zhan. And... thank you," Wei san ge whispers with a quiver, and his voice breaks at the end.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan experiences one of Man's greatest sexual pleasures with his harem of three fully-fledged adult Wei Yings, and he convinces himself that this is the new norm - so everything that they do is perfectly acceptable.

While he takes his time to plunder into the sweet, sweet tight heated hole of the third youngest Wei, his lips ravenously lick and suck every inch of vulnerable and freely-available supple skin laid out beneath him; Wei san ge moans wildly more, more, fuck me more daddy, dada, gege , begging for air because his senses are overwhelmed and he couldn't breathe, pleading for more pillows to prop up his numb hips because the invading phallus wouldn't stop fucking, aaah-ing when his sweet ass is drilled so hard and fast, that it becomes distended, moulded and shaped according to girth the massive member. The tasty mewls from the boy sends Lan Zhan's lust skyrocketing to greater heights. He leaves plenty of bitemarks and bruising fingerprints on the firm, nubile flesh, as bit by bit, he loses control of rational thought and yields to the rising fury of exciting primal desires, exemplified by his actions when he greedily mounts the young boy again and again, slamming their hips together so hard that bones rattle and ass mounds jiggle with force; but the violent tempest roiling his insides does not stop there - it continues to swirl and expand into a hurricane of lust, and his hands grope and roam everywhere, even reaching for Wei Ying's weeping arousal and strokes it until the eager teenager thrashes and clenches his muscles, sucking in the pistoning, pulsing rod deeper and deeper into the eye of the raging storm that is the temple of Wei Ying's desirable, fertile body.

The pleasure is multiplied when both Wei da ge and er ge take their places near his rump and indulge in their own fantasies of pleasing their patriarch in their own special ways. Lan Zhan couldn't turn around to see what was happening, as the teenager that he is currently trying so hard to breed, locks him in position with sweaty hands and hooked legs. Fingernails rake his lower back and circles each humping glute, encouraging the older man to fuck deeper, harder, faster into the freshly-deflowered teenager, while twin lips rain light tender kisses on the tightening scrotum before each taking a delicate testicle into their respective, moist warm prison; Lan Zhan's eyes roll back at the spike in pleasure and his fingers and toes curls to their limits, when each egg-sized seed factory is caressed by an expert tongue, and milked, rolled and sucked inside a vacuum cavern, sending wonderful contractions throughout his genitals and squeezing out volleys of thick liquid to fill up his spasming penis that is already full to the point of bursting.

Someone's well-lubricated fingers slip in and crawl into Lan Zhan's ass and scissor their way to stretch and explore - Lan Zhan was already too deep into rutting the teenager at that point to care about the minor violation of his ass - and he nnnnhs intensely when Wei da ge casts Invisible Hands, Fingers and now Tongues directly into his pelvic region. Vibrating lips suckle at the quivering, swollen prostate, and sends jets of fluids gushing through the tubes; ethereal fingers continue writhe inside the ballsacks to molest the surface and the interior of the twin succulent and overworked testicles - in time with Wei san ge adjusting his position to crouch next to breeding pair and he unleashes a torrent of dirty sex talk of "Does it feel good? Come on, shoot everything out, fill him up, you sexy stallion", "Faster, harder, deeper, I know you want it" and "Look at how your fat cock is drilling into my little brother, you lecherous old man"; and unsurprisingly, Lan Zhan loses it all, and succumbs into wave after wave of pleasurable convulses rocking his tired body, culminating into a well-earned orgasm worth more than his usual twenty-twitches of thick ropes of hot potent seed, flooding straight into Wei san ge 's love canal, accompanied by delighted squeals of Yes Yes Yes unngh Yes.

The thirty-year old relentlessly finger-fucks Lan Zhan at the back and spreads the asshole, while assaulting their beloved patriarch with more unidentifiable but absolutely mind-numbingly pleasurable spells; that Lan Zhan continues to fuck with all his might without restrain, and grinds into the sweet freshly-inundated teenager's ass and pump thick, sweet loads with little pauses in between; Energy spells lash out deep into his loins, recharging them, sending forth new surges of desire and vitality, causing Lan Zhan to arch his back, his jaws goes slack, he no longer sees anything and his senses are short-circuited, as more electricity run along his nerves and fry every last rational thought into oblivion, and his entire lower region quakes with ripples energy and liveliness; Lan Zhan doesn't even flinch when he feels a throbbing engorged rod push through his ass and spears him from behind and he - the Lan Patriarch of their residence - gets royally fucked; and in his drunken state, he doesn't even try to struggle away when Wei san ge kneels in front and grabs his jaws, forces his mouth open and sticks his excited rigid penis through his mouth and deep into his throat; and in the heated moment of sex-crazed haze of lust and mindlessness, Lan Zhan is no longer coherent and mumbles-groans-growls unintelligibly as own ramped-up drilling penis erupts into another tremendously powerful spell-enhanced orgasm inside the Wei Ying beneath him, while another Wei Ying makes love with his mouth, and one more Wei Ying fucks him from behind, and he gets spit-roasted so beautifully, that Lan Zhan's switch is finally, finally flipped into a downward spiral of insanity, obscenity and depravity, pleased by his three addictively sexy sex kittens.

In the next hour or so, his harem happily switch places with one another, with bits of lewd and vulgar conversation going on between them, such as “lao gong , your hole is so good, it's squeezing and sucking me in”, “ah, ah Lan Zhan, my cock is melting again inside your mouth” and “oh Goddess Guan Yin, I'm cumming again, cumming.. hnnngh, fuck me deeper, ahhh!” so that Lan Zhan could taste each one in his ass, his mouth, with his plunging penis, and they all taste marvellously of Wei Ying, and he loves every single last drop of them. He'd lost count of how many times his Wei Yings cummed inside him, all over him, underneath him, or how many times he orgasmed inside their heated, cum-flooded holes, and he gladly refills every one of them with yet another of his twenty-twitches with the aid of more sexually arousing spells, before going at it again, deep into the moonlit night.

With each increasingly weakening but equally satisfying orgasm, Lan Zhan has a brief moment of clarity before drowning into another round of sex into a sea of eager, writhing sexy naked Wei Yings, and during those few precious seconds, he is able to assess and grade each individual in his harem:

- Wei da ge is impressive at the front, though somewhat loose at the back, and tastes a bit too musky. His fingers are the best, being able to touch, bend, stretch and reach where no other Wei siblings can. Together with his amazing spellcasting skills and mind-controlling abilities, he gets to top Lan Zhan when the opportunity arises, and uses his limbs and spells to pleasure the patriarch until the latter becomes enslaved inside the da ge's cage of sexual depravity.
- Wei er ge is so-so at the front although the shape and size is just as what Lan Zhan remembers (and will always be) during their years spent living together, snug and conveys a comforting sense of familiarity at the back, and tastes perfectly right. Since their blissful marital relationship has been established longer than the rest, he gets the choice position of being pleasured, via blowjobs or handjobs, by their patriarch when the desire arises. Lan Zhan loves Wei Ying's rich flavours on his tongue, and the recognizable moans are music to his ears when the younger man spills uncontrollably onto his fingers (which he then laps up anyway), so he will not mind giving some, while taking some from the rest of the Wei siblings.
- Wei san ge is still in one of his growth spurts as evidenced by his growing length and darkening pubes, his tight and extremely pleasurable asshole is to die for, though he tastes a little too mild and sweet. He is noisy, crude, undisciplined and has unlimited youthful energy to rile everyone up; if given the chance, Lan Zhan would love to spend every waking moment to bed this young boy and stay inside the insatiable boy to shut him up and teach him a good lesson on Gusu Lan's family rules.

- He dreads the time when he will be asked to admit Wei didi into his harem and participate in their sex-infused games. For now, he prefers to keep the innocent, underaged boy as his personal masseur because the little boy has such delicate yet firm touch in melting away all fatigue, stress and stiffness - and he doesn't mind getting refreshingly sweet smooches and hugs from the nine-year old ball of fluff too.

However, Lan Zhan knows that their positions will rotate and swap over time, so he pencils each Wei sibling's role into his Perfect universe, with plenty of buffer for upcoming changes in their relationship dynamics within the new Lan family.

Wei da ge happily eavesdrops into the inner monologue, then powers up his innate wi-fi router, and the patriarch's declarations goes viral among the Wei siblings.

"Wow, look at them go like rabbits in heat," Wei er ge returns to the bedroom nude, with a towel around his neck; he'd just taken a quick bath to remove the stickiness of cum mixed with sweat and other bodily fluids, and he admires the tantalizing view of their dear husband hunching over the sweat-drenched and nearly unconscious san ge. The pistoning rod does not stop; it twitches as excitedly as it had in the past few hours, although by now there is probably nothing left to shoot. A dollop of cum gets pushed out with each schlicking thrust, and pools below the teenager's butt crack.

“... which is fine, since all four of us share the same mental connections, so every time san ge gets boned or whenever he climaxes, all of us receive a fair share too,” the calm, Wei da ge interjects while lying on the breeding couple’s right side on the bed. His face is flushed - though not as red as the teenager’s - and it seems he too, enjoys what goes on in their bedroom despite not visibly being banged by their patriarch. He lifts a finger and aims at the set of rising swollen-red testicles, ready to offload another hearty but blank spurt, and sends a sizzling Energy spell straight into them.

“Hopefully, this will tire the bratty boy enough that he’ll settle down like the rest of us and stop behaving... like a brat,” the da ge adds with an interested grin. He usually has a bone to pick with the teenager, and the boy gets punished by the end of the day - so tonight is not unusual, in terms of their Wei Ying-ness.

“Hnn... they’re not listening anymore,” twenty-two year old Wei Ying points and even pokes at their patriarch’s sweaty forehead. The latter does not respond, and maintains unwavering eye contact with the teenager while engaging in mindless animalistic rutting right in the middle of the bed. They’ve changed positions several times, including doggy style, spooning, cockscrew, scissoring and a few others, before settling down on missionary, but Wei Ying is sure that Lan Zhan’s body will eventually break down with that position due to the sustained and unhealed injuries. A couple of the larger wounds on the waist and right leg had started to open up and bleed, but those are easily patched by some Healing spells that the da ge wove from his fingers with admirable finesse, despite being the first time he’s conjured such magic. (Wei er ge claps in appreciation, and the da ge bows after his successful inaugural performance of true Healer-class magic).

“Mmm... I cast a few reality-bending, love and lust-related spells on them out of curiosity, but I didn’t know they’d work so well on these two lovebirds,” Wei da ge scowled a bit, before he made a twirling motion with a finger.

Lan Zhan and Wei san ge mechanically moved and adjusted their limbs, and continued mating enthusiastically - this time Wei san ge rides and gyrates his hips on Lan Zhan’s crotch, and he leans back to give the older man a whole lot more desirable friction. Lan Zhan closes his eyes, his body shakes, his lower body shivers as a tell-tale sign of an impending orgasm, and expectedly, releases another load into the young boy with plenty of tasty moans, growls and rhythmic jerks of flailing limbs beneath the writhing teen.

“Well, as long as this old man’s condition won’t worsen with this position, I’m glad to get some good sleep tonight. So much has happened during the day, and to be honest, I’m tired from my dayjob in Yiling to do anything else. San ge can have my share of everydays for the rest of the night,” Wei er ge says with a loud yawn. He stretches and takes his place on the breeding couple’s left side of the bed, and nnnnhs in delight at the feel, and finally the chance, to sleep on the familiar springy mattress, messy silky body-warmed bedsheets and lust-scented pillows. He nonchalantly reaches down and masturbates himself to sleep in the nude, while enjoying tendrils of good feelings seeping out from their shared mental connections with the sex-crazed san ge , whom the two gongzi s have tagged as ‘out of commission’ as well.

Wei da ge yawns simultaneously and agrees wholeheartedly. “Me too, I took us on a tour around the estate and my legs are as heavy as lead. Lao gong didn’t realize I’d used Creation and Time-related spells to warp the trip that spans an entire continent into a condensed, two-hour trishaw ride,” he murmurs in the dim light and takes his place to the right of the frantically-mating couple. He gently rolls the forgotten, but happily snoring didi into his arms and cuddles the little boy tightly like a pillow.

“Sometimes, I feel like a reincarnated Monkey King, being able to leap everywhere with a few steps - but I still have to go back to drag the Tang Sanzang along,” he mutters as he flicks his index finger and the lights go off. The bedroom falls into comfortable darkness and silence, save for the heavy panting, creaking bed, sexy moans and very wet frothy squishes in the middle of the bed between them.

“Ha ha ha, at one time I used to say that I’m young enough to have sex everyday, but look at me now - I’m getting old too. I have new and more priorities in this life, such as earning enough money to keep us fed, expand our estate, and working hard towards dreams of becoming rich and successful someday. I have a family now, who helps me to keep everyone and everything together, and,” Wei san ge turns to the center of the bed, but remains unfazed at the frenzied acts even as he nears climax with his hands, “I’m no longer alone in this world, and I can even willingly share my love with the venerable Han Guang Jun with my loved ones.”

There’s an audible squirt, followed by a prolonged hnnngh in the moonlit blackness of the bedroom - either of the couple orgasmed again. The bouncy, creaking sounds continues unabated.

“That’s... called growing up, finding your place and purpose in this world, and building your own happiness with your hands. When you reach my age, you’ll understand what all of this means,” Wei da ge yawns again and snuggles into the youngest’s nightshirt. “And when you’re done cumming, go to sleep. We’ve got a long day tomorrow too,” he adds after a pause, the voice muffled by cotton fabric.

Wei Ying hnnghs one last time, then raises his hand, still aching and throbbing from the brief but enjoyable exercise, and he marvels at how the diluted warm seed that covered his fingers start to ooze and dribble to the bedsheets. The faintly opaque liquid sparkles in the silvery moonlight - it reminds him of their famous plum sauce, and he remembers that it's nearly full moon. He cannot afford to miss another work-day at Liang's teahouse to make batches of sauce for the laoban , otherwise he may be fired from his job.

“Yeah,” he sighs, wipes the semen on his sleeves, and rolls over until his back faces everyone else.

Notes for the Chapter:

Phew! It feels good to release all the sexual tension after a series of world-building and serious stuff. Probably not as sexy as my earlier sex scenes, but what the heck, I'm just sexxing up Wangxian for the fun of it :-)

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Twenty-two year old Wei Ying has never been happier in his life, despite living a normal, mundane lifestyle, saddled by many real-life burdens - mostly domestic ones -, and the inescapable dark past that he is forced to carry with him for this lifetime - which rears its ugly head to haunt him once in a while. What matters at present - as with all Wei siblings, who are in essence the same, and the one and only Wei Wuxian - is that their patriarch lives a rich, fulfilling life with him, with them.

The dramatic events of Wei Wuxian's colourful life came to a rather anticlimactic end with the revelation of Jin Guangyao's treachery, more than two years ago. As expected of Man's selfish, fickle-minded nature, the world quickly turned its attention elsewhere in search of something more exciting, interesting, novel and satisfying. The story of Wei Wuxian became old news among aging story-tellers, as passe as the brief chapter of Lan Wang Ji's autobiography; just as the many legendary and mythical characters of the Middle Kingdom's millenias-old fairy tales that come and go with the passage of time.

Like fireworks that light up Yiling's summer evenings, the story of Wangxian soared high above the clouds at one point in this lifetime, admired by many, then exploded brilliantly to the cheers of the spectators - and now, the "name of their song" quietly takes its place amongst the numerous celestial bodies that perpetually dot the night skies.

How many times does one gaze up to appreciate the starry skies, then try to recall which star belongs to which constellation, and the backstory in the name of each star? Hardly, Wei Ying thought, and sighs as he turns away from the curtained window. He too, does not whittle away his time with moon and stargazing, or drown himself in yesterday's sorrows - although he does appreciate the nice breeze blowing into their bedroom in the wee hours of the morning. The room stinks of alcohol and sex, and he's certain the D-broom will have to work extra hard to clean up the mess on the floor and many other surfaces in their house.

Wei Ying stretches (he feels a trail of cum flowing down his well-fucked asshole and inner thighs - but happily ignores it; didi will take care of any stains on the bedsheets in the morning), and pats san ge 's shoulders; the teenager had obstinately taken up his spot on the bed - on the patriarch's left side, nearest to his beloved's heart - and Wei Ying intends to reclaim his rightful position as the Wei siblings' Queen - after da ge 's throne as the King of Wei's and the right-hand man of their patriarch (hence his sleeping spot on Lan Zhan's right side of the bed); ahead of the clown of the family, san ge , who loves and deserves the bottom (in more ways than one); and lastly, well... didi will always have his own special place in everyone's hearts, and that little boy is content in sleeping in the arms of any occupants of the Lan's Residence. At times, Wei Ying is envious of the boy's carefree lifestyle, who remains blissfully ignorant of the hierarchy and political drama that sometimes take place within their little budding family.

Wei san ge nnnhs stubbornly until the pat becomes a rude swat on the springy buttocks decorated by their patriarch's fingerprints. In a moment of unreal synchronicity, Wei Ying feels a slight rumble in his stomach that goes hand-in-hand with the slap of ass-cheeks felt by all Wei Yings, and he lets off a soft fart. Another three brrrp! sounds of different pitches answered the call.

"Oi, move it, you're taking up my space, and you're stinking up the room," Wei Ying grumbles and swats san ge 's butt again. The drunken teenager grudgingly returns to his lowly position of being a deserving bottom (in more ways than one). Amazingly, the teenager downed six jars of Laozu's Smiles before bedtime - and still lives to tell his tale; ah, to be young again!,

Wei Ying scowls. San ge wobbles, climbs atop and straddles the older man. In his inebriated state, he nom-nom-noms into Lan Zhan's drool-stained chest while curling and nestling himself comfortably until their helpless patriarch is sexually assaulted by the teen's tight ass, and the nubile san ge becomes fully engaged in long-term copulation with the unfortunate older man for the rest of the night.

Wei er ge slides onto the mattress, pulls the bedcovers, then effortlessly slips into deep slumber and snores.

Shortly before dawn, sweat-covered Lan Zhan wakes up in the middle of a very weak climax; the series of barely-felt tremors running up the underside of his overworked penis emptied his balls again - although there's nothing left to ejaculate except for a few drops of clear seedless fluids. His mind is clouded in the sex-induced aftermath of multiple orgasms, and he'd spent the last few ungodly hours drifting in and out of consciousness even as his hips quiver tiredly, involuntarily, and could no longer shake despite riding out the pleasurable waves that still churn and curve his entire body.

Two Wei Yings continue to work on his lower body, giving him the Perfect double blowjob to start the day. One set of lips deep-throats him so well, that his eyes roll and his back arches with every downward swoop into the endless tightening tunnel that seems to contract and suck him into the abyss; the other tongues and plays with his drained testicles so skillfully until the twin eggs quiver and convulse pleasurably in what Lan Zhan terms as 'testicular orgasm'; he experiences it first hand, for countless times since arriving in this brave new world. When both Wei Yings' lips and tongue take turns, or simultaneously, to lick his twitching tired cock upward with vigorous motions, sending forth rolling penile contractions in the same direction, he puts his hands behind his head and lies back into the pillows, tilts his chin up - and enjoys the privileges of being the Master of his harem.

Later on, still high from the sexual excitement, Wei san ge dutifully performs blowjobs on him, while er ge emerges from the kitchen into the bedroom. Wei Ying whispers, “Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, da ge just made another batch of milk candies, please try and let us know your thoughts on them?”

Lan Zhan opens his eyes and is welcomed by the sight of Wei Ying pulling open the folds of his night robes, exposing his chest to the older man. Naughty Wei Ying had used edible rice glue as an adhesive to stick a thumb-sized cane of the chewy candy onto each nipple.

“On your left, is candy made from cow’s milk from the estate’s farms. On your right, is candy made from goat’s milk. The milk was collected less than an hour ago, so it’s very fresh. Please try it.”

Lan Zhan enjoys another privilege as the laoban of their booming food business - he gets first dibs to try out their new products, sometimes served on a platter of appetizingly tempting Wei Yings.

The younger man lowers his chest until Lan Zhan gets to lick, taste, then slide the entire candy into his waiting mouth, and he suckles Wei Ying’s succulent nipple like a baby. Wei Ying moans at the gentle suction - lately, they’ve been trying out plenty of innovative flavours, including herbal, honey, minty, even spicy - and his sensitive nubs are abused on a daily basis. They are a little swollen from Lan Zhan's rough treatment, as evidenced by the increasingly passionate sucking by the greedy (probably hungry) laoban .

Lan Zhan lets go with a wet "pop", and nudges Wei Ying to present the other candied nipple. He test-tastes it similarly, and Wei Ying reacts the same. Within a few minutes, both sugary treats have been devoured, leaving behind a whitish sticky salivary mess on Wei Ying's sparse bosom, and a very horny Lan Zhan - because he is about to cum again from the san ge 's excellent job on his loins.

"Lan laoban ," Wei Ying murmurs, "what do you think? Which one should we mass produce and sell?" He starts to exchange tender kisses with their patriarch (and gets a taste of milk too), and soon, Lan Zhan jerks his body erratically, and makes mouth-watering growling noises into the sloppy milk-flavoured tongue-play.

"Your wish is our command," Wei Ying smiles between locking lips.

Both products passed our patriarch's inspection , Wei Ying sends a mental note, and Wei da ge gets back to work. Lan Zhan gets his promised quota of at least three orgasms per session - representing the number of spouses he needs to serve, or be served, at any time.

(Fortunately, the pleasure can be fairly distributed among the Wei siblings, thanks to the eldest Wei's superior ability to connect everyone's minds and bodies.)

Then, Wei didi burst into the bedroom - already lit by the first signs of daybreak -, full of energy and joy, and runs to the bedside. He wears a newly made set of light blue shirt and pants, and is a very disciplined, polite child - the little boy bows respectfully, in line with Gusu Lan's customs, and wishes Lan Zhan, "Good morning Patriarch! Good morning Lan gege !"

~~~@(@@~~~@(@@~~~

It's well over seven in the morning by the time he finally gets out of the bedroom - one more privilege of being the head of the house; he gets to freely choose his sleeping and waking hours, and is no longer confined to the unrealistic nine and five o' clocks, especially since he's now a very busy and important man. It's not really that he's become a sloth due to his newfound luxury and wealth - they're still financially strapped - it's just that Wei san ge kept fondling and molesting their patriarch in bed (who is obviously weak to the pleasures of the flesh), and adorable didi kept wanting to play kissy games amongst their nest of pillows, which held him back from escaping the two's clutches, and Wei san ge is all too delighted to repeat the vicious cycle too many times.

(At this point, Lan Zhan is already used to having sex with the precocious teenager right in front of the nine-year old, because, as he tells himself again and again - it's Wei Ying and its Wei Ying-ness; to hell with dignity and privacy, especially within the walls of their Residence when there are at least three drunken Wei Yings running around naked and incessantly begging for sex after sundown.)

Lan Zhan hobbles to the outdoor bath with a walking cane like an old man, a hand lightly tapping on his aching, fatigued hips, and he berates himself not to allow the adult Wei Yings near their stash of Laozu's Smiles anymore

- which is what he tells himself every night, and fails spectacularly when three pairs of puppy-eyed Wei Yings stare at him over steaming hotpots that apparently go well with the prized liquor.

It has been a week since he woke up with grievous injuries on his body, and most wounds have healed up - almost too perfectly, leaving neither scabs nor scars behind. After the da ge taught - no, disseminated may be a better word - the full repertoire of Healer's magics to the Wei gongzi s, they took turns to cast additional healing spells; however, since magical healing does not completely mend internal injuries, the in-house family's master magician-cum-doctor da ge still bars the patriarch from using his left hand to carry heavy objects or do strenuous work such as masturbation (at which Lan Zhan protests silently, because he cannot remember when was the last time he masturbated - ever since he lived with Wei Ying), and he is required to use a walking cane to prevent any possible damage to his tender lower right leg. The handle of the (headless) Dustless Broom is easily transformed into its lighter, thinner, user-friendly version with just a press of a button.

(Lan Zhan is delighted that he can press that red button again to enlarge the stick to its original immense size, and wield it as their earth-shattering family staff (棍); Wei er ge even took the time to carve the Lan family name onto the high-quality wood, making the Dustless Broom, or Bichen's namesake, the symbol of their household.)

Lan Zhan relieves himself into the tranquil, bubbling heated pool, and mutters a word of thanks to Goddess Guan Yin for another merciful night - he lived to see the next day, and his penis and the inclusive plumbing is still intact, after all. He's still able to carry out his routines - and routines are what he lives for. Next, he slowly makes his way to a new ditch that the Wei gongzi s had dug while he was unconscious in the weeks before. In some ways, he is pleased that Wei Ying (irrespective of which) is mature and serious about their domestic affairs and living space problems - enough to consider the complexities in managing additional family members, especially when it comes to personal care, hygiene and sanitation.

The outdoor bath has been extended and somewhat modernized with more amenities, such as proper roofing, barriers and fences, magic-powered floor heating, separate tubs, sinks, mirrors, shower heads with spell-enhanced temperature control, more towels, soaps and shampoos, steps and handles for the young (and old or disabled).

Their family toilet, surrounded by dense undergrowth and a wall of trees, covered by a wide tarp, is a fancy ditch with a constant flow of water running through it, with a row of open seats built from unused chairs for those who preferred to sit while doing their business, and a row of squatting slabs for those who preferred to hunker down to a crouch. Stacks of leaves for wipes are placed in wooden boxes close to each toilet unit. There are half-constructed urinals further away, but all of the Residence's current occupants agreed that peeing into the pool is just fine, so the urinals take a backseat in terms of construction priorities. Around the ditch are wash basins with constant water flow from Qishan's mountains, soap, and even toilet brushes. (Lan Zhan mentally calculates the costs for furnishing their bath and toilet - and everything adds up to a hefty sum.)

(In hindsight, the outdoor toilet is probably the best place to relax or seek refuge from noisy family members. Lan Zhan can imagine himself lounging somewhere in this serene, nature-rich setting, read his periodical and listen to birdsongs. Best of all, there is no stink, as the Wei gongzi s have planted many fragrant shrubs in the surrounding areas.)

Lan Zhan is like any other human being - he needs to do it too, at least once a day. It's an extremely private affair, but necessary, just as breathing, eating, sleeping (and to some extent, having sex as well). He keeps telling himself that it's perfectly normal to answer the call of nature - the bigger one, that is. He keeps chanting this inwardly to brainwash himself that it's perfectly okay, there's nothing to be ashamed of, because even in his weakened state he still needs to pee and poop just like any other living creature in the 'Mounds--

“... and that's why I'm here to help, Lan Zhan,” Wei er ge interrupts, as he grabs hold of the patriarch's wrist and guides him slowly to one of the open seats. “Now sit. Legs up,” and Wei Ying pulls off Lan Zhan's underpants, before taking his seat next to the husband. Wei Ying leans back in his chair and looks away. Lan Zhan squeezes his eyes shut and tries to hurry his business, for the sake of whatever remains of his dignity.

“... it's not really a question of dignity or pride, lao gong . You should've seen us when didi suffered diarrhea for a few days after eating too much of da ge 's spicy stews with an inch of chilli oil on them. It was a real mess, but I - we - managed and learned from the experience. They don't really teach you that much back in school, and much less in the Cloud Recesses, do they?” Wei Ying sneaks a peek and is pleased that Lan Zhan's digestive system is working - in all seriousness, barely a week after waking up with horrible wounds that puncture into the intestines, kidneys and almost every other vital organ, he's now able to eat, urinate and defecate like a normal healthy person - which is something all Wei Yings are tremendously grateful for.

The older man nods hesitantly, not knowing if he's been seen or not.

Wei Ying looks away, not caring if he hears unsavoury sounds or not. “Lan Zhan, I've already said this many times: we're husband and wife, we're family, and we're in this together for a lifetime. I expect to see you pee, poo, fart, vomit and do everything naturally unclean, just as much as you'll see me doing the same, for many years to come. It's not a surprise anymore, for me, at least. It's a routine, and you love routines, don't you?"

Lan Zhan mutters under his breath at another unsightly push. "... I... I'm a routine person. You know that, Wei Ying."

Wei Ying looks up to the trees, and notes a few swiftlets and pigeons flying by. "Yeah, that's what makes you human, normal, and family to me and all the Wei Yings in this world - and that's also why I love you so much, lao gong ," he grins and turns to Lan Zhan. Another distasteful sound echoes faintly into the woods.

Lan Zhan catches Wei Ying's stare, and tries to focus his gaze to the grassy ground littered with gravel and bits of leftover construction material. There are some tiny black ants crawling from a nearby anthill, and he can appreciate why his partner finds them somewhat interesting if there is nothing else to look at. "You're a real romantic, Wei Ying," he sighs.

Wei Ying lets out a hearty laugh, and prepares to cast a Water spell for clean-up.

Breakfast is simple, filling and delicious - spicy and plain chicken congee, topped with meatballs and garden vegetables, fried doughsticks, served with a platter of dumplings on the side, and cups of steaming hot soymilk. It's exactly as how Lan Zhan would make it, except that it's made by the hands of the eldest Wei sibling before he left for work, and the thirty-year old man perfectly followed the hand-written recipes to the letter (or the stroke of brush pens).

Routine is ritualized, and ritual is routinized, even during mealtimes. Everyone calls and invites the patriarch to have the first bite before others, and when the plates are emptied, everyone kisses him on the cheek as an endearing gesture of thanks for the food. Everyone can speak but in soft voices, and if the dining table becomes rowdy - a polite 'a-hem' from the oldest of them will silence everyone else. Wei er ge proudly reminds everyone that there are plenty of Eye and Senses talismans all over their home and estate, so da ge is always monitoring them remotely - which also means that anyone who doesn't toe the line will likely receive a splitting headache of nags or worse, be mind-controlled.

Lan Zhan especially enjoys trying his hand at feeding the nine-year old who lovingly takes his place next to him; with every full spoon, the little boy affectionately either thanked or gave a cute peck on the lips - and chirps that "the food is as good as a sweet kiss". Lan Zhan didn't quite like how Wei san ge, who somehow picked up really improper table manners after their first night, always try to curry sexual favours by touching him indecently even while munching on meatballs - however, after a while, Lan Zhan decided to allow the teen to rest his feet on his crotch and toe-play his rising erection, rubbing that sensitive spot below the glans, until a wet spot appears on the fly of his pants; he didn't want the teen to suffer unnecessarily from their eldest sibling's wrath.

After the dishes are washed (it can be quite a hypnotic experience to watch three Wei gongzi s soap, rinse and dry the tableware in perfect synchronization - and all Lan Zhan had to do was to tell them where to store the dried items), Wei er ge lets the youngest two run off to complete their scheduled duties which they'd drawn up and hung on the kitchen wall earlier that week - laundry for didi , and farm work for the san ge. Then, he carries a wide lidded basket from the kitchen and places it on the dining table. Curious, Lan Zhan lifts the lid and sees an assortment of street and convenience food laid out inside: pancakes, rice and filled dumplings, breads, fried snacks, meat jerky, candies, baked goods and confectionary, and others of sweet, salty and savoury varieties. There are also rows of tiny saucers filled with different types and colours of sauces, powders, condiments, mixed spices and other unidentifiable stuff. Wei er ge places a bowl of water, a spitting basin, and a notebook with a ink-brush on the table as well.

“Lan Zhan, the same as yesterday, here are some new products da ge would like you to try. Please let me - him - know which ones are appealing and we'll include them into our production lines,” Wei Ying explains. Lan Zhan nods in understanding - he appreciates the scholarly approach that he only needs to take a nibble from each food, with mouth-rinses in between where needed, and with a full stomach to avoid any biases from hunger, and document his score from one to ten, including any comments, improvements or criticisms, into the book. He also notes that for some foods, there are duplicates or triplicates, and he recognizes them as fresh, day-old, even days-old - proof that whatever sorcery the da ge is conjuring inside their production site rigorously tests the quality of food processing, packaging and preservation too. He would need to thoroughly examine each sample's visual appearance, smell, taste, texture and even the sounds from chewing steamed buns or crunching potato crisps.

Lan Zhan doesn't really grasp the (ultra) modern concepts of product development, manufacturing, quality control, management, operations, supply chain, and sales and marketing - but he takes it all in stride as yet another level Wei Ying-ness that he could and would never reach. All he knows is that he's contributing to the family's efforts to rebuild what the Wei gongzi s nearly destroyed during the two weeks when he was offline (another term he'd learnt). Now, considering his limited mobility, he still gets a say and veto rights in what goes in and out of their prospering business, and how it's managed - at least based on what he's been told. He signs many forms with red-inked thumbprints - however the details are far too difficult to comprehend and is sometimes full of foreign texts - so he figured that he's someone quite important in the business anyway, which he appreciates as the Patriarch of Lan's Residence.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Later, while taking a short break from testing the nth food sample, he takes a sip of pu'er tea to cleanse his palate properly and looks back at the eventful week.

Using the list of their family's priorities drawn up the day after he woke, da ge and er ge set things in motion by putting together a business plan to address their immediate concerns - especially their money problems. With the patriarch's consent, they agreed to take a gamble and invest in their food business. Lan Zhan is especially impressed, as many men would have simply taken the coward's way out by either fleeing from such burdensome problems (including alcohol to drown one's sorrows) or turn to crime (the idea of an adventurous white-clothed protagonist leading a pack of black bandits to rob the rich, would make an awesome story for a blockbuster theatre show, but not in real life - probably).

He was not told of the specifics, other than that da ge would be “discreet and honest” in his ways, sell off the “crops and other commodities” from their estate to “somewhere far far away, and further than the known Far Far West” (so that they can remain low-profile while avoiding the taxman’s eyes from either the Jins or from the capital city of Chang’an), then, flush with cash, use the new funds to “build an award-winning company with state-of-the-art technologies using pink bubbles, green bubbles and lots of other spells that you’ll likely get bored if I started listing them down,” the da ge waved his hand dismissively to play down the level of details in his proposal - which was fine because Lan Zhan felt an oncoming headache by then.

Lan Zhan asked - although he was dangerously close to raising his hand to cease the conversation because he knows the brilliant and cunning da ge knows too much, will do too much, and will spill more information that Lan Zhan is willing to listen to (anything that goes beyond Creation and Time-related spells and related aspects are prohibited from discussion, and a no-go for the steadfast Lan.) - he asked where is the company located, and how will the company be staffed and operated.

Da ge simply pointed out that the ‘capital of Lan’s kingdom’; in which Lan Zhan raises an eyebrow because he couldn’t remember if there had ever been a monarchy established by his ancestors - and re-phrased as ‘that scenic crossing with Lotus Pier lake on one side and Gusu Lan mountains as a backdrop on the other’; in which Lan Zhan draws a blank stare because there’s no such place in the map of the Middle Kingdom - and finally re-named as ‘that place where didi fed you with summer berries for the first time’; in which Lan Zhan a-ha’s in recognition - will become the headquarters and the production site for their growing business, while their cave-home will be the “small research and development” hub covering "some domestic affairs".

What does this mean, Lan Zhan asked subsequently. When Wei da ge explained that they'll move all the "new inventions, equipment and crazy stuff, including the washing machine and dishwasher that you detest so much" to the new place, and that the da ge will probably be the only one working in there for the time being - he'd still prepare the meals before going out to work (just like a hardworking salaryman), then return late in the evening and sleep at their cave-home, and he might ask some of his siblings to drop by from time to time - so that "you don't have to physically suffer under the tyranny of this megalomaniac all the time"; at that point Lan Zhan raised his hand because he doesn't understand the words used - but he liked the fact that he didn't have to co-exist with those damned automatons (because they threaten his identity - in which a significant part has been lost to the now-ubiquitous D-broom cleaning their home's floor every few hours) - and he just said "Mn." and green-lighted everything that the da ge planned.

Wei er ge , on the other hand, will serve as their business' vice-president, public relations officer, sales and marketing, and - Lan Zhan raised his hand yet again - in which da ge cleared his throat politely, and re-stated that the lovely Wei Ying will helm the affairs at their original cave-home and still make his trips to Yiling... just as the good ol' days.

Lan Zhan liked the sound of "the good ol' days", and he wholeheartedly accepted the terms and conditions of the two eldest Wei's new roles.

“Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, here’s a few more samples for you to try,” Wei Ying nudges the older man out of his reverie. A small plate of toasted mixed nuts is served on the table, along with a few other snacks. Lan Zhan notices the opened packaging from where the nuts were taken from - it’s a strange fist-sized bag lined with shiny metal, and is extremely light in weight and durable in strength. There are some words, mostly in foreign language texts (including the words ‘For Export Only’ in the only language he knows), and a big picture of the said toasted nuts printed on it - but the level of detail is remarkable, and fully coloured, so it couldn’t have been hand-drawn, and uses more colours than lampblack alone. Lan Zhan munches on a handful of those nuts and immediately likes the salty flavours, enhanced with fried flour, sugar and other unidentifiable spices. He doesn’t even delve deeper into the mysterious origins of the opened bag nor its contents because he attributes them to another kind of Wei Ying-ness, which is finger-lickingly tasty this time.

He likes the company logo printed at the corner of the packaging - it’s the same black-and-white-rabbits design used for their favourite plum sauce (now available in a variety of regular and exotic flavours too, he is told), and the name of their song printed in big bold text right above it. Lan Zhan gives it a rating of eight out of ten (he is a true food critique, and doesn’t easily give perfect scores), and annotates some useful advice on the taste and texture - he's still, after all, the master chef of the family.

It would be too easy to let the new Lan family rest on their laurels and enjoy doing nothing while living in relative comfort - so, I'm taking them into a new arc. Let's shake things up a bit, ya! May the Wangxian be with us, them and everyone!

Chapter 42

Our company was founded in 20xx B.C., and started as a small family-owned farming and food delivery business in the heart of the Qishan province of the Middle Kingdom.

“Inspired by Love” is what drives us to provide products of the highest quality that our customers want, and of course, love. Over the course of time, we have expanded the base and scope of our activities to cater to the needs of Yiling City and its surrounding areas.

We are headquartered along the stretch of pristine natural landscape of mountains, rivers and lakes of the famed Summer Berries district within the continent of Wuji. We grow and nurture the best and freshest ingredients that nature can offer, incorporate them into centuries-old recipes handed down from generations, into foods that satisfy the appetites and warm the hearts of many around the world.

Lan Zhan massages his temples, then re-reads, and annotates with a red brush pen with corrections and critiques to the text. Although he doesn't know much about running a business, or how to read the so-called “company profile” from the eyes of “a potential investor who is about to throw unimaginable amounts of gold into an unknown factory located in the middle of nowhere” - he could appreciate being in the shoes of a customer, or at least a lay person, and try to be “influenced and persuaded” by reading the prototype of their company's brochure filled with messy handwriting and doodles.

He circles and underlines various parts of the sentences, and pens down critical comments such as: ‘structure the ideas in a better way’, ‘what is B.C.’, ‘too brief - needs more details in the history’, ‘who are your customers? State a few examples’, ‘check the map - where is Summer Berries district, and what is Wuji continent’, ‘specify the kinds of products we make, and name a few examples’, ‘too vague - specify exactly what your customers really want’, and so on. The observations are general and rudimentary in nature, like how a teacher would grade his students’ essay papers.

He remembers that not too long ago, Wei Ying had done something similar with his little notebook titled A wesome S elling S kills (which is nowhere to be seen recently, along with his guqin - lost somewhere in the sea of trash and half-completed stuff inside their workroom since arriving in this brave new world). Putting on his daring “Wei Wuxian” hat, figuratively speaking, he takes a deep breath, clears his mind, and imagines “thinking out of the box” (another term he’d learnt - curse the eldest Wei). He adds some useful notes at the sides of the brochure, such as: ‘what other products can we make and sell’, ‘what if we expand our customer base’, ‘how can we speed up production and sales’, ‘have you looked into pre and post-sales services’, ‘think value chain, both up and downstream’, and so on.

Shortly before mid-morning, Lan Zhan completes his tasks and happily passes the paperwork to Wei er ge , along with a stack of filled forms he’d thumb-printed at the bottom of every page. At one time, he tried to read and understand what he was signing, but gave up too soon when he couldn’t make heads or tails of those documents. Wei er ge gave an equally obscure explanation that the forms are required for setting up the company, obtaining the necessary business licenses and permits, applying for funding from financial institutions and angel investors, company statements for media communication and public relations, purchase orders from suppliers of raw materials, invoices to customers located far far away-- and Lan Zhan raises his hand to conveniently stop the conversation. He sips his cooled pu'er tea and with a flick of the fingers, sends the vice-president to deliver the concluded paperwork “to where they belong”.

“ Lao ban , it’s time for your morning break, and according to the schedule, we’ll need to leave for Yiling shortly after that,” Wei er ge bows respectfully, then leaves the kitchen-cum-dining room. Lan Zhan “Mn”s impassively, and looks out the kitchen window at the bright morning sunlight shining on a hardworking didi trying to hang freshly washed bedsheets on the clothespin amongst their thriving vegetable gardens and rows of drying processed birds’ nests and lingzhi mushrooms spread on canvas-lined grounds. Roosters continue to crow in the background, and their calls are accompanied by birdsongs from the woods. Further beyond, acres of orchard trees are fruiting well, right around The Junction leading to The Highway.

He sighs - compared to what is happening outside their humble abode in the middle of the ‘Mounds, he’s really a busy man, indeed.

... and he is about to become busier in his home office set-up.

Wei san ge peeks from the door to confirm that his er ge has left the kitchen, and he grins cheekily. He saunters like a cat and places his basket of garden produce harvested since the morning on the kitchen counter - leafy and root vegetables, tomatoes, long beans, lotus roots and seed pods, fruits, garlic cloves, red onions and ginger roots, and another small basket of still-warm eggs straight from the coop.

Lan Zhan “Mn”s in acknowledgement of the teenager’s presence, and continues to read the week’s periodical - just arrived from an early Postbird delivery along with packages that the didi will sort out later.

“Lan Zhan, the vegetables are growing well and we can expect more summer harvests in the coming days. We’ll be able to fulfil Old Merchant Zhu’s orders for three full baskets by the end of the week,” the teenager remarks as he washes dirt and soil off his soaped hands in the kitchen sink.

“Mn.”

“Five new chicks hatched this morning, and three of the rabbit does are pregnant. I plan to build a small extension to the coop next week,” Wei san ge adds, then nonchalantly goes on all four and crawls under the dining table.

Lan Zhan quickly flips to the last page of the periodical. He “Mn”s again, while adjusting his sitting position and spreads his legs unconsciously (and invitingly). It’s a habitual, routine reaction whenever the teenager finds his way between the older man’s legs - and pulls down the pants as well.

“I’ll need more grains and feed for the animals soon. Lan Zhan, can you call your friend, Farmer Cai from Huang village, to get a few more sacks for us?” the fifteen-year old boy innocently and seriously asks, before blowing hot breaths on the eager arousal and tentatively licks the exposed cockhead, and he starts doing what he’s best known for - deep-throating.

Lan Zhan sighs. He can't even take a decent mid-morning break from work - he's really a busy man indeed. He folds the periodical and places it on the table, then leans back, hands already digging into his assailant's (more like, lover's) lush hair to encourage the boy to do it fast and soon - because he has other important appointments in less than half an hour's time.

"Yes, I will call... with a Fairy Messenger spell later... today," he answers breathily, before succumbing into yet another round of bodily pleasures.

The patriarch is fortunate that his performance in bed - actually, within the Residence as long as there are sexy Wei Yings prowling the rooms inside the cave - isn't measured in terms of frequency or volume. All he needs to do is to feel good, multiplied by the number of times he has to serve, or be served, as dictated by his harem. Hence, it does not matter whether he cums a lot, or just a little drop when he's running on empty - and Lan Zhan is grateful for this reasonable (pre-nuptial) condition that sets the stage of his blissfully married, but very busy working life.

"Ah, Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, hurry up. Wei er ge will be back soon. Surely you don't want to be caught and scolded again," the teenager coos seductively, as Lan Zhan trembles on shaky knees upon penetration - just the tip of his excited, twitching penis spearing through the glistening, lubricated rosebud in less than two hours after the last orgasm.

Wei san ge mischievously played and pleased their patriarch with his signature oral expertise, to the point of curling toes, warning growls and arching back - then he sits on the table top (and brushes the periodical newsprint messily to the floor - how rude!), pantless, and pulls up his knees until his buttohole faces the older man's crotch enticingly. He hooks his legs around Lan Zhan's hips, and draws him closer, and closer, luring in and ensnaring the captivated man who is the master of their household and owns all the Wei Yings in the Residence. The teenager rakes fingernails across the bare muscled chest, draws circles on the firm abs, and stokes the fires of desire inside Lan Zhan - affectionately and intimately, in his own youthful, lustful ways.

"Nnnh, hurry, hurry, I know you're at your limit, lao gong . Please taste this young tender flesh with your hard cock, and shoot deep inside me, now, now. Ah, you feel so good!" Wei san ge moans louder as the engorged shaft slowly, impatiently slides in. Lan Zhan knows there is no real urgency to do the deed, however, the imaginary rush to fuck the naughty boy into the table, slam his hips punishingly deep into the tight flesh and ejaculate everything he has in record time (because he only has half an hour of morning break), and hammer the tight ass until the boy is left bow-legged for the rest of day - fuels his loins and fills his swelling rock-hard manhood.

When Lan Zhan hits balls-deep, he's sweating and shivering and losing rational thought, primal instincts rising up like the molten liquid pressure lighting up wildfires inside his groin. He tip-toes, presses his body weight upon the mewling teenager nailed to the table until there is no gap left between ass and balls, and Lan Zhan grinds his hips in delicious circular gyrations while fully sheathed inside the slippery narrow tunnel that threatens to choke off his massive arousal... and one-twos - a phenomenon he's learnt about himself when his body becomes too excited, especially when it comes to his duty of mating the insatiable spouses - on the verge of orgasm but not yet there, his yearning cock jerks powerfully once, twice and "cums a little" to release the boiling pressure, before it builds up again towards the much-anticipated twenty-twitches.

“Ahhhh... I’m out of the house for less than five minutes, just to teleport some documents to da ge , and... this... THIS is what I find when I come back!” a disgruntled Wei er ge yells from the entrance and points accusingly at the scene of debauchery on their dining table.

Lan Zhan is too engrossed in trying his best to breed and sow his seeds - if there is any left - into the exquisitely tight, heated channel that clenches and sucks him deeper than anyone else, even as his injured limbs ache painfully in trying to hold up his weight for prolonged periods. He’s already lost in his own world of pleasure, eyes closed in full concentration, and his hips flutter vigorously in and out of the slicky, juicy and well-violated hole as fast as his soaring heartbeat, he mounts the young teenager repeatedly, even desperately, who continues to cajole with sweet moans of more, more, lao gong you’re so big, and you feel so good inside me, please fuck me, let go of your little Wangjis, rape my baby Wei Yings, and make me pregnant today - and other cheesy lines et cetera ad naseum which everyone’s too familiar with (and sick of hearing - in the da ge ’s case).

Wei er ge grabs the discarded pages of the periodical littering the floor, rolls them up to a sort of whipping cane, and smacks the sex-addicted san ge ’s head with it - he is rewarded with a whiny “Oww” from the teenager, but the raw, bareback fucking and heavy panting sounds continue relentlessly on the table.

“You shameless boy! You dare to seduce our patriarch when he’s about to leave the house for official businesses, and you DARE to make him do all the work when he's not yet completely healed!" Another smack of rolled periodical follows.

"Ahhnnn, Ahh.. what's your problem?! I just spread my ass... ah, ah, Lan Zhan, you're too rough... spread my ass and he just dug in... ah, ah, you're twitching again, are you cumming a little?... Er ge , it's--it's his fault! It's Lan Zhan's fault!... ngaaaah, ngggh, nnh, not so hard, you're splitting my butthole apart..! "

Wei er ge sighs exasperatedly and shakes his head - it's impossible to get through the thick skull of the teenager. He picks up the discarded pants from the floor and folds them into neat piles on the chairs. He swats Lan Zhan's naked, well-muscled and convulsing ass with the rolled periodical.

"You too, you despicable, horny old man! You're too easily tempted, and you dare to cheat in front of me. You're shameless! A disgrace! Pervert!" Three resounding thwacks hit the tirelessly humping ass, one for each insult, and leave a total of three burning red marks on the smooth rounded jiggling flesh. Lan Zhan groans loudly, seemingly loving the spansks on his rump, and he reaches his first climax. He nearly crushes the teenager with his entire weight as he screws one last time into tight ass and unloads hot spurts of whatever his balls had managed to produce during the last couple of hours.

Wei er ge sighs at the copulating men. He thought that he should just hurry things up so that they wouldn't be late for their laoban 's important appointments.

Wei er ge uses his fingers to assist the insemination - he grabs, caresses and milks the contracting testicles and perineum in smooth, rhythmic motions. Lan Zhan hnnngs at the intense, additional stimuli, and shakes his hips uncontrollably during his twenty twitches; san ge cries in delight at getting more warm pulses to fill his insides; and the lonely er ge murmurs helplessly, “What am I going to do with the both of you...”

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei didi knows he has been summoned when he feels a familiar tingle and a cry of “help us!” echo inside his head. The nine-year old is overjoyed to support his older brothers, because he was always relegated to the simplest and most mundane tasks due to his age, maturity and size. Despite loving to behave childishly and cutely suitable for his age, and dotted by four loving adults in the house which at times, is no different to being a cherished house pet, the little boy appreciates the chance to show off his abilities and capabilities when the time and circumstances are right.

Da ge had seen the crisis unravel into a trainwreck inside their home through the siblings’ senses and the many talismans that pervade their estate, and telepathically sent specific instructions to the youngest Wei.

The boy walked into a scene of sexual carnage and unrestrained carnal intercourse in the dining area. Wei san ge remained in his position and his back lies against the table top. Wei er ge lies next to the sibling, face and body down against the same wooden surface. Their patriarch is a mess of flushed skin, sweaty body, erratic breathing almost to the point of hyperventilating, quaking limbs - and he’s having a difficult time trying to breed two Wei Yings simultaneously. He fucks the san ge missionary style, about ten or so thrusts, before pulling out reluctantly, then takes a couple of steps to the side, aims his still-hypersensitive and angry-red, hard penis at the next Wei Ying's buttohole, and fucks er ge doggy style, for another ten or so thrusts, and repeats the cycle again.

Lan Zhan feels exceedingly good in the loins, and his sense of alpha manliness goes through the roof at having two Wei Yings begging him to fuck them senseless. San ge 's ass is truly the epitome of the perfect cocksleeve - his love canal is perpetually juicy, elastic, tight, full of bumpy folds and delicious friction, and never fails to extract spine-tinglingly wonderful orgasms out of the older man. He gets to taste the teenager's nipples and everything spread out in front of him like a buffet - he is free to satisfy his lust for younger, smoother and supple skin and flesh, and does not hesitate to grab, molest, and violate the boy who is less than half his age. Er ge 's ass is, for lack of a better word, his private sanctuary of comfort and homeliness; snug, warm, and he feels welcomed to stay inside forever if possible. Wei Ying's back is alluring and tantalizing - he loves to lick long trails of saliva along the spine and taste the salty lust-flavoured sweat, lets his hands greedily roam the expanse of the pale, lightly-muscled back, bite at the nape and leave plenty of territorial kiss-marks from neck to shoulders - and when that is not enough, he sinks his face into Wei Ying's long hair and inhales odours that comfortably tells him that it's Wei Ying, Wei Ying's smells, Wei Ying's flavours, and Wei Ying is underneath him, around him, marvellously fucked by him.

Two tasty morsels for him to crave for and devour, and he cannot help but to lick his lips constantly and swallow down saliva building inside his mouth, as he dips into each welcoming hole at different angles, savours the heat and tightness, and ravishes one, two, both lovely Wei Yings, and his excited, lively penis quivers with joy at the alternating sensations.

However, there is little time to spare, yet so much physical pleasures to enjoy; they only had fifteen minutes left before Lan Zhan needs to leave for Yiling, and the very, very busy patriarch has two more orgasms to go.

Er ge 's illogical plan of getting the laoban to ejaculate into two Wei Yings presented to him in the most appealing ways (with the buttocks spread wide open), simultaneously, in order to meet the remaining quota - fails; he did not account for the deteriorated state of the man's sexual condition, that is, Lan Zhan is still in his refractory period (he's in his mid-thirties, not in his mid-teens), already drained too many times since early that morning, is utterly fatigued, and in a bit of pain due to his injuries.

Within seconds, didi whips out a prostate massager he was told to pick out from the box of P-Cool sex toys under the bed. He lubes it up with massage oil and carefully slips it into Lan Zhan's ass. It was tough for the little boy, as he's not used to pushing something sleek between actively moving ass mounds and through a super-tight of ring muscle - even with da ge 's fine mental and motor controls.

Lan Zhan starts to protest at the weird feeling in his bottom, but hnnngs and loses focus when er ge rolls his hips seductively and the older man swears in Gusu dialect, bends down until he is literally grinding skin-to-skin, crotch-to-ass, against the springy butt, and is bewitched by the siren calls from lovely Wei Ying of "Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, my love, come inside me and stay, please release your seed deep within, so that you'll always keep me filled and warm, and my baby Wei Yings will always be soaked with your love, and I will incubate them into little eggs and give birth to many children for you." He opens his mouth to respond, but san ge , who already sensed that the older man is close to completion, captures the lips and kisses the husband with such passion and fervour that Lan Zhan feels his breath sucked out, and fingers start to play and pinch the sensitive bared nipples as much as their tongues swirl and entangle with one another.

At the precise timing, da ge mentally channels a modified, leveled-up Energy spell into the sex toy through the little boy's fingers. The prostate massager activates, and spins, rolls, vibrates and shakes with terrifying movements never seen before in any of their toys. Lan Zhan "AAHHH"s, erupts without warning into the twenty-two year old, and all Wei gongzi s nearly suffered a heart attack from the shocking roar of their patriarch.

Didi uses all his might and drags the jerking, spasming hips away after the tenth twitch with volleys of diluted opaque liquid arching into the air, then using his delicate fingers, slaps a grey-colored talisman on the length of the wildly-convulsing cock and shouts with a heroic squeaky voice, " San ge , lie back down! NOW!". The harried teen obeys without a word, and a dazed, moaning Lan Zhan is swiftly guided into the stretchy, cum-flooded tight canal again in mid-climax, when the semen-spattered talisman is remotely activated, morphs into da ge 's meaty and incredibly nimble Invisible Hands, Fingers and Tongues inside the teenager's ass and around the spewing organ, and the eldest Wei resolves the crisis with a spectacular polishing of the orgasming penis right at its twentieth twitch.

Lan Zhan's awe-inspiring performance of three orgasms within the span of twenty minutes (the last two within twenty seconds or twenty-twitches) breaks many of his previous records - another achievement to add to his list of Wei Ying-ness, and something he could probably wear as a badge of honour, if asked for evidence of his alpha masculinity. His moustache and beard grow a little more each day.

Didi miraculously saves the morning by cleaning up the aftermath - semen in or on all three satiated men, and pungent pee from the unfortunate san ge

, who is considered properly punished for his atrocious misbehaviour. By nine thirty in the morning, everyone is wiped down, dressed up in freshly laundered and new set of clothes (they have plenty since the gongzi s started sewing and making their own garments), and fully equipped for their scheduled errands in the city, including their packed bags, satchels and baskets - all done with unbelievable and ruthless efficiency by the nine-year old and his own two small hands.

Wei san ge , being the rebellious one, flys on a magical sword made by da ge - in which Lan Zhan refused to listen to how it was made, because he raised a hand promptly before very dark and prohibitive secrets are divulged - and the teenager is accompanied by the youngest Wei.

Lan laoban , understandably overwhelmed and dazed, straddles a sputtering Bichen while not really paying attention to his surroundings - because something had short-circuited inside him during the third and final mind-shattering climax - so, lovely Wei er ge holds his hands as he stands by his side, and channels minute qi and some unidentifiable spells and energies into the husband, to guide the blade towards Yiling.

Notes for the Chapter:

I had a bit more time during the weekend, so I spiced things up with silly sex scenes *lol*. It's nice to start the morning with some exercise and fun, before getting to work!

Chinese and Lunar new year is happening next weekend. To those who celebrate the occasion - May the Year of the Mouse be full of joy, good health and prosperity!

Chapter 43

It is the first time Lan Zhan takes a flight out of their home since he arrived in this brave new world. The gusty winds are both shockingly chilly and at the same time, refreshing, and he feels the last quivers in his loins shrink away into the freezing temperatures at such high altitudes. He squints his eyes and tries to take in the vast landscape of his estate - miles of uninhabited rolling hills, grasslands and forests that stretch till the fringes of the province, until they border the rocky deserts to the Far West.

Strangely, nothing looks out of the ordinary other than The Highway peeking through the forests' dense canopy - the new paved road running through the center of the estate; although he finds it odd that The Highway looks more like a short strip of straight road, instead of what he remembered as a long, slightly windy spacious path that weaves endlessly into every hill with many exits along the way.

He asked Wei Ying, where are the mountains, lakes, rivers, crop fields, meadows and man-made structures he'd seen a week ago, while travelling on a wooden trishaw with the family - in which the younger man vaguely (therefore suspiciously) answers that everything is in there, except that the almighty Wei da ge had cast some 'powerful spells' such as Camouflage to 'hide everything away' (Camouflage is a very high level spell used only for military defense purposes, such as the one located close to the springs in the Cloud Recesses to protect the Lan sect's ancestral secrets). There are also energy shields, alarms, booby traps and other mechanisms set-up to deter trespassers both on ground and in the airspace surrounding their estate. Lan Zhan nods in understanding - they wouldn't want patrolling Jin cultivators or pesky salesmen to waltz into their property uninvited, intentionally or not.

Then, he asks next, where is this so-called headquarters and production plant for the company that he'd been signing papers for all morning; in which Wei Ying mmmms vaguely (and suspiciously again), that they're somewhere in their estate, although technically, they aren't. Lan Zhan sighs, knowing that he will never get any straight answers from the other man, and follows up with a more specific question - Summer Berries district and this Wuji continent too?

Wei Ying grins brightly and says that the Lan laoban should visit their head office one of these days, especially since they're preparing a grand, ribbon-cutting ceremony, and the laoban should grace his presence for the auspicious, official launch of their new, booming family business - and if he says more about where exactly in space or time are the buildings, facilities and industrial sites located (Lan Zhan's wrists automatically twitch in ready response), how to find and teleport to those places because their estate is designated as the gateway to their business' top-secret location (Lan Zhan's grip loosens from the blade he'd been straddling on), or that the strip of straight road he sees is actually an airfield that will eventually be built up into an airport to cater for aviation services and expanded commerce for their mega-corporation in the future (Lan Zhan grits his teeth, ready to stop this nonsensical conversation, and raises his--

“And if you continue to react like this, I won't say anything more - so please lower down your hands and keep them to your sword, for safety reasons. Hold on, we have rough winds ahead of us,” Wei er ge shouts back.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

“Wei Ying... did you lock the door before going out?” Lan Zhan raises his voice above the din of roaring turbulent air, just as they flew past Mian Mian’s neighbourhood. His legs are still unsteady, so he held tightly to the face of the blade and prayed that the windy skies would not blow them off Bichen. Although they had safety straps tied from the sword’s hilt to their waists and legs (Wei er ge said that these ropes were precursors to ‘safety belts’, whatever that meant), however Lan Zhan doubts if those woven fibres of dried grass would hold anyone’s weight.

“Ah...! You’re right! We were in a rush, so I didn’t notice!” Wei er ge yells back, and turns to the side, “Didi !”

“I... I think I forgot... I’ll ask Ernie!” the little boy squeaks on the other glowing blade, before mischievous Wei san ge whoopee’s with juvenile energy and excitement on a new ride, and starts to propel forward into fancy swings, spins, rolls, jaw-clenchingly scary loops and other aerobatic maneuvers that the da ge will surely disapprove of and ground the teenager for many days thereafter.

Lan Zhan watches forlornly as Wei san ge speeds ahead in what is known as Swordboarding, and feels a spiritual connection to the art (because in another timeline and universe, his persona is a master of skateboarding). It’s one of those trends that is currently all the rage for adolescents and young teenage cultivators; although Lan Zhan is a little too old for it, however, he secretly practises the moves in his dreams, and surely, someday the latent talents of the great Han Guang Jun will be brought to light when the time is right.

(Lan Zhan is also relieved that he didn’t have to share his sword with the uncontrollable Wei san ge despite harboring some regrets for not being able to try out Swordboarding - because he really couldn't survive another round of triple sex.)

“Introducing Ernie, the magically-created assistant for home comfort and convenience in modern times!”

... would be a plausible tagline for the product line, if stamped with the seal of approval from the patriarch. However, at present, the patriarch is stubbornly at odds with all attempts of modernization, and refuses to acknowledge or even entertain ideas that could benefit the wider society with technological or, in this case, magical advancements.

The eldest Wei Wuxian, time-shifted about a decade ahead of his current age, maturity and abilities, has seen far, far into the future than he originally intended. There is a world where everything is made from metal, magically-made malleable sand and stone mix (concrete), pink bubbles (plastic), green bubbles (rubber) and other stuff that no one in the present era could ever comprehend. He attempted to bring back some of this knowledge and replicate the technology using materials he could find in this present day and age, blessed with his infinite arsenal of spellcasting - having the Infinity series of magical equipment helps a lot, especially in the brilliant and capable hands of Wei Wuxian - for example, no one else knows how to operate the Infinity Stones other than the Great Yiling Patriarch, and he knows that snapping his fingers will cause massive shake-ups in the universe - whereas Grandmaster Gao or even the Emperor of Chang'an can keep snapping and twisting their fingers until sundown and nothing would ever happen.

Coming back to the story of Ernie, the newest member of the Residence:-

Information becomes knowledge, and knowledge becomes power - one of the areas that the company is looking into for research and development, is to harness the ability of magic to gather data and information on everything, then process it into knowledge to understand and learn how to manipulate the world to benefit the users, and finally transform that potential into action - therefore, the power to make changes in real life.

D-broom is a mindless machine that executes instructions programmed into Memory talismans to carry out cleaning tasks with the tools it is equipped with, running on limited Energy spells-turned-batteries and is therefore constrained in its capabilities.

Ernie, on the other hand, is a sentient being created out of impossibly complex arrays of spells and magical effects that gifts it with basic intelligence; in time and with machine-like learning, it has the potential for greater abilities, capabilities and even levels of existence. It (there is no gender assigned) is given the form of dark smoky wisps not unlike the demonic energies that the Yiling Patriarch used to wield during his younger days - mainly because he likes anything that is black and spooky, and still thinks that black is cool and fashionable, despite fighting a losing battle against the Jin's "Gold Is In Vogue" campaign. For practical reasons, being formless means that Ernie can take any material shape, which can be extremely useful if it needs to reach tight narrow spaces or spread out as wide as the heavens - or remain bodiless, which can also be useful if it had to deal with barriers, walls, non-matter, and spiritual stuff.

Ernie can do anything it is tasked to do. However, because it has intelligence, therefore it has its own will; it can make its own decisions, and take responsibility for its own actions. Wei da ge has taken certain steps to ensure that Ernie remains loyal to the occupants of the Residence, because that is where Ernie is stationed for the time being, and is ordered to serve the Residence well.

There is one minor problem in the creation of Ernie (or Ernies, if approved by the patriarch) - it takes immense amounts of energy to power the magical sentient being, and currently there are no known power sources that can sustain it indefinitely; a common issue that the Wei gongzi s face in all their automaton inventions including the washing machine, dishwasher and other useful household technologies. However, with diligent research, a solution is surely under way - hence, only one Ernie exists so far, and runs fully on Wei da ge 's awesome magical energies.

Ernie currently resides in a new underground cavern dug at the entrance of the humble (and very small) cave-home - which is one of the last remaining floor spaces that is not fully utilized nor occupied. Blessed with Creation and Time spells similarly as Wei da ge 's, its "home" runs deep into the depths of the earth, far beneath the longest roots of the 'Mounds' prehistoric forests, and spreads across horizontally in all directions to form a clandestine, spacious but mostly barren complex that grows day by day with active construction and tunnel-boring activities. The entrance is a simple trapdoor masqueraded as the Residence's welcome floor mat, and all permitted guests are invited to drop by to take a look using a magically-powered vertical transport system (known as an elevator or lift in modern times) situated at the trapdoor entrance.

The patriarch made some snide remarks that the trapdoor looked like a one way ticket to Hell (because it's completely dark inside, like a ditch that travels down into an abyss), and da ge nearly wanted to dispute the fact thinly masked as an insult, except that the patriarch is partially correct - Ernie is indeed tasked to expand the underground complex into, through and beyond the Underworld, because there are long-term plans to expand their company's customer bases to the Realms of the Gods - the Heavenly Court, the Dragon King of the Seas, and the Lord of Hell could be key profitable accounts for their business. Deities and gods are widely worshipped, receive numerous gifts and offerings, and are, for all intents and purposes, loaded with gold, after all.

Unnerved at not receiving a confirmatory answer on where the trapdoor leads to, the patriarch is seen avoiding the floor mat these days (which covers the said trapdoor), with the superstitious belief that if he fell into it, he might not come out alive.

Next, the patriarch wondered aloud about what will be filled underneath the trapdoor (because he thinks that it is as shallow as their underground pantry of leaf-wrapped spiced meats and other primitively-preserved stored food - which is way, way far from the truth); da ge, who had taken an oath never to lie to their husband, answered that the space would be used as a normal storage space for the time being, and probably to keep stuff that the Wei gongzi s accumulate during the course of any normal days, including but not limited to: half-completed inventions and gadgets, useful but unused materials (which the patriarch identifies as 'trash'), and foodstuff for the coming winter and beyond; at this point, the patriarch realizes there are dark wisps of energy drifting out from the trapdoor and he accuses it that "same cold black thing that lived inside our pantry while I was unconscious", and da ge had to give a vaguely affirmative answer of "sort of" (because essentially both are imbued with corruptive, dark energies), leading to the patriarch demanding that the "cold black thing should not touch our food pantry in the kitchen", in which da ge merrily nods and confirms that "any food stored beneath the trapdoor will be consumed by the Wei gongzi s" (he does not say "exclusively") - because days later, the patriarch happily chews on fried tofu dipped in his favourite plum sauce, and that tofu had been stored in the refrigerated conditions of Ernie's home, kept nicely fresh, before being served as dinner for all of the Residence's occupants.

Lastly, the patriarch asks why is the trapdoor-lidded compartment called Ernie and not just some other functionally descriptive names like "the dark basement" (with a hidden connotation that there is a distasteful and dreadful cold black creature living inside that basement); da ge did give a thoughtful pause because there are some practical benefits to the husband's suggestions - however, under the absolute command of the said oath to never lie, da ge explains the reasoning behind the simple name, and cleverly skirts around Time-related aspects in order to avoid the nasty raised hand that stops all their conversations:

In "some" places, smart but helpful creatures living independently in assigned spaces, including "dark basements" and any living spaces for that matter, are given strange names such as Alexa, Siri, Cortana or even Google Assistant. Wei da ge prefers a meaningful and simple name for this invention - or the latest member of the Residence who will quietly live beneath the trapdoor-cum-welcome floor mat. Children are bundles of joy or brats to be feared. Children are what the new Lan family needs to nurture and grow healthily - and friends for the oft-times neglected Wei didi . Children are also what the Wei gongzi s love to talk about when they have sex, especially about making lots of them with Little Wang Jis and Baby Wei Yings. So, Wei da ge thought that Children - Ernie (儿女; ér nǚ ; pronounced as "er ni") - would be the name befitting of the magically-created assistant for home comfort and convenience in modern times.

Lan Zhan snorted indignantly at the last bit about speaking of children while having hot, rough sex - but he stamped his seal of approval on the name though, because he agrees that "Ernie" sounds alright after all.

Ernie would come to be known as the Cold Black Thing (not to be confused with guilinggao herbal jelly), the Floor Mat, the Trapdoor, the Dark Basement, the Fridge Monster, and so many other awful iterations - or just plain ol' Ernie.

(Later, Wei da ge instructs Ernie to cast Light whenever needed, so that the trapdoor lights up upon opening, just as how modern refrigerator works - and this helps to pacify the disgruntled patriarch.)

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

“Hey Ernie, check if the door is locked.”

Checking... the door is not locked, since you left the Courtyard at 9:35 am.

“Ernie, lock the door and gates.”

Done. Have a safe trip, Little Master Wei.

The morning market is at full swing when the Lan family arrived. Similarly as with all markets, flying swords are prohibited near crowded areas, so they had to queue up in line towards the designated parking lots - this time, there are no Jin guards waiting at the open spaces, probably because of the high temperatures and hot sun - the guards' heavy, gold-plated armours become very uncomfortable mini-ovens baking under such conditions, so many opt to patrol in smaller, more shaded areas (such as city squares), spend time drinking wine near the Kitchen of Prosperity, or take time off their shifts to change into something light, such as leather armour.

Wei san ge 's ingenuity proves useful - the magical sword he specifically ordered from his da ge can be elongated and retracted with the press of a red button on the hilt. He gleefully swerves out of the congested queue after crawling at a snail's pace of an inch in two minutes, then jovially zig-zags downwards (to the delight of a squealing Wei didi for an entertaining rollercoaster ride), and lands behind a clump of bushes near the entrance to the city. Right before he touched down, he deftly heel-kicks the red button, and the whole sword fizzles off into a plain-looking brown hilt (more like, a throwing stick). He easily pockets it, grabs Wei didi 's hand and together, they rush off to look for the remaining family members. He'd save a silver piece of parking fee with his trick, and looks smug for doing it.

Later, a slightly frazzled Lan Zhan steps down after finally finding a small strip of grass to land his heavy duty broadsword, followed by a hoarse-voiced Wei er ge who had cussed more than a few cultivators visiting the markets, and he complained that going on foot would be a better option if they had more time in their hands. Both were annoyed to see the smiling boys waiting for them with half-eaten tanghulus and other candied street snacks in their hands; they'd started spending their pocket money - including the saved silver piece - even before their daytrip started! Lovely and wifely Wei er ge launches into a tirade about the virtues of thriftiness and self-control, and correctly quotes six related Gusu Lan family rules so that they remember those rules well. Lan Zhan smiles faintly at his family's antics - it reminds him a bit of the times when SiZhui was a child - and he walks ahead slowly with the Dustless Broom cane in hand.

(Lan Zhan did inquire, at some point, about what inspired the teenager to pick a sword with such a handy, compact design. The boy answered bluntly that, it's from a show called 'Star Wars' that's freely available in da ge 's home theatre, and which rock have you been living under all these times - Lan Zhan was taken aback by the teen's bratty attitude, and made some presumably witty remarks that there are no conflicts among the nightly celestial bodies, and that da ge is working in a factory making foodstuff, not training singing and dancing troupes. Wei san ge rolls his eyes (so rude!) and mutters, "You're so yesterday !" before dashing off. Lan Zhan becomes confused and thought this could be a premonition of what Wei Ying said earlier about burning down the moon and the stars.)

Wei didi did commendably well in colour-coordinating their ordinary attire of shirts, trousers and simple thin summer robes, and dressed them in varying shades of beige, yellow and light pastel blues and greens. The Lan family blends in quickly with the swelling crowds that throng the bustling Market Streets.

Eventually, Wei san ge and didi caught up and run past their patriarch, squealing like little kids while playing sword-fencing each other with sticks of tanghulu that had been stripped bare of their candied fruits. They zig-zag across the street spiritedly, chasing each other while still under the watchful eyes of--

--us, the parents. Don't you think so, Lan Zhan?" Wei er ge - lovely Wei Ying - asks casually, and walks with his trademark swagger in his slow but relaxed steps, with hands clasped behind his back, alongside the patriarch. Lan Zhan wonders how far does the mind-reading capabilities of the eldest Wei reach, however that is an irrelevant question for the time being. He takes a moment to appreciate the heart-warming atmosphere near the heart of the city, coloured by what Wei Ying had just said, and briefly - just briefly - daydreams and toys with the idea that perhaps if things had gone his way, sixteen or so years ago, he would do the same.

He would walk with Wei Ying, side by side, and they would go to the markets in the morning, bring their lovely children along - one elder, one younger - and spend quality time together just like any other normal family would.

Wei Ying sneaks two fingers towards Lan Zhan's hand, and discreetly hooks the husband's fingers to his.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Barely five minutes into the walk towards the markets, trouble brews between the youngest two of the family of four. The teenager, obviously much larger and stronger than the nine-year old, accidentally pokes the boy's forearm with a tanghulu stick, and draws a drop of blood. Wei er ge rushes ahead, grabs the bawling boy to the side of the bustling street and checks the scratch. People continue to meander around and walk past them, some ignoring them as they go about with their businesses, while others slow down - especially nosy housewives - and gawk at the noisy spectacle.

Lan Zhan, still reeling from the loss of finger contact, is a step behind and follows suit. He grabs the startled teenager's wrist and brings the family together along the curbside. He knows all too well how fast a crying child in the streets can attract unwanted attention - and they're supposed to remain low-profile due to the risk of being spotted by Jin patrols, especially soldiers who could still recognize their faces and bear nasty grudges at the couple. Under the shade of a decorative palm tree, Lan Zhan crouches as much as his injured leg would allow, and quickly cast a light blue Healing spell to seal the wound to stop the bleeding, however the acute pain remains. Wei er ge sits on his haunches and cradles the boy, pats the back repeatedly, trying his best to calm the boy down and stop drawing curious stares. "It's alright, it's not bleeding anymore," he murmurs.

"L-Lan Zhan, I... It wasn't me..." Wei san ge stammers and is pale, frozen in dread - at causing real pain to his sibling, and at their patriarch's crushing grip around his shaking wrist. Lan Zhan yanks the teenager close until the sides of their faces nearly touched, and he hisses in a warning whisper, "Listen, I am not angry. Apologize to your little brother, NOW."

Wei san ge stumbles towards the crying boy and does what he is asked to do. Upon hearing the first word of 'sorry', Wei didi 's cries die down into a string of pitiful hiccups. The amazed Wei er ge looks at their patriarch, astonished at his ability to handle crying children, and nods as a silent gesture of thanks.

Just then, two plainclothes men walked past them and sent curious glances - one sober, and the other rather inebriated. Lan Zhan immediately recognized the golden stripes on their shoes and sleeves - they're off-duty Jin guards, and they're mingling with the market crowds too! He stills and holds his breath, trying to look aloof and away from those men. Three Wei Yings huddle together unmovingly beneath the palm tree with their baskets and satchels, and stared at the ground.

“‘Tch... brats cry all the time...”

“Huh... (hic) that man in beige looks like the Han Guang Jun (hic) that I remembered at the Carp Tower, with facial hair, and much older...(hic)?”

“Idiot... there you go again! Everyone looks like a Han Guang Jun to you. You just can’t let go of the fact that he injured your shixiong a couple of years ago.

“Ahhhh... (hic) I wish I could go back in time (hic)... and...”

“... and you should drown yourself in more liquor. C’mon, I’m beat from doing night shifts. Let’s spend our wages at the next watering hole!”

The taller guard grabs his wobbly companion by the arm, and drags both of them to a nearby tavern that sells fragrant rice wines.

Barely a minute passed after the two men trudged away, and all Wei Yings crowded around Lan Zhan, each holding his hand as tightly as possible, before letting out their held breaths together. Lan Zhan had felt a flash of fear then, but he steels himself, knowing that such anxieties and risks are routine, daily affairs for the patriarch - and he must not show weakness, especially in front of his frightened spouses.

He solemnly tells his family that they should get going and not to waste any time. Everyone agrees and Wei er ge leads the way.

Lan Zhan strokes his budding moustache and beard thoughtfully, and twirls them out of (new) habit. Perhaps his new look is a boon and added security for their family too - and decides to keep it, for now.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The family takes a detour from the streets and through shortcuts that (any) Wei Ying knows like the back of his hand from his days of street peddling. They split into two groups.

The teenager and the youngest go off to unload farm fresh eggs, fruits and vegetable harvests to various vendors, and pick up some needed dry provisions for their household. Lan Zhan tells san ge to keep an eye on the smallest, and not to play with tanghulu sticks anymore. The teenager is grateful that he is forgiven - despite no such words are uttered from their patriarch's lips (there is no need, since Lan Zhan only has to "Mn" and all is well again in their family) - and earnestly promises not to disappoint anyone. He skips off with the nine-year old in tow, and before long, they disappear into the sea of people filling up the Market Streets with excited chatter and squeals, hopping from one stall to another.

Yiling's morning markets are typically farmers' markets and wet markets; many stalls sell morning farm harvests, live animals, seafood, and other daily provisions side to side with food vendors and other street businesses.

“Pretty gu niang ! How much for these?”

“A silver piece each!”

“Your voice sounds so sweet! These dragon’s beard candies must be as sweet as you. How about two for a silver piece?”

“Shut it with your sweet talk, young lad. For that bag in your hand, one silver, please.”

“Tch... that’s not how you talk to a customer. C’mon, two for one. The little boy here will thank you for your kindness.”

“You rascal, do you know how hard it is to make and sell these candies? And don’t you dare to guilt-trip me with that boy. One silver per bag of candies, and that’s final.”

“Ceh... these candies aren’t that fresh anyway. I’m not buying and I’m walking off! Shout out if you ever change your mind!”

“...And don’t ever come back !!!”

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan uncharacteristically fidgets, nervously, in his seat next to Wei Ying in an empty hallway with scant number of chairs lining the walls. Fortunately, there are only a few people in the city's Registry Office, so the couple did not receive any strange looks. During the short wait, chatty Wei Ying made a few acquaintances - an old farmer whose granddaughter had just given birth, and he was there to collect the baby's birth certificate on her behalf; an illiterate labourer who is seeking to correct his legal documents because for some unknown and illogical (suspicious) reasons, his family name differs from his father's; a young man from an expensive private agency who is tasked to submit papers to file for a divorce on behalf of his client; and a few other interesting, colourful stories.

At the designated appointment time, their waiting number is called, and both file into a dull, grey room with a huge marble desk and a few worn-out cushioned chairs. A grumpy, portly officer sits behind the desk with towers of documents on the shiny, polished surface.

"Mister and... Mister Lan?" the officer eyes them from behind a stack of brown envelopes. Apparently, registration of same-sex couples, although uncommon, are still a regular occurrence at the office. When the couple nods, the man behind the desk does not show any other expressions than grunting out well-practised standard instructions.

"Here are your documents, with the extra copies as ordered," then, five little red booklets are handed out, and the couple receives them very politely, "and sign on this sheet as proof that you've collected them. Please take this receipt and pay the fee at the Cashier's Office - it's down the hallway, to the left and follow the signs."

“Is... Is that all?” Lan Zhan asks, brimming with so much joy that his vocal cords nearly failed but his visage remains as stoic as ever - as he thumbed through one of the little booklets, his hands tremble visibly - below the legal texts declaring the couple’s wedded status, there is a drawn picture of his portrait (the same one that appears on his land title of the Burial Mounds), and the faces of four beautiful Wei Yings appear next to him; on of each stage of Wei Ying’s life - nine-years old, fifteen-years old, twenty-two years old, and thirty-year old - all smiling as bright as the sun, and especially the last three, look nearly the same with their radiant faces; Wei Ying embodies eternal youth, in some ways. Wei Ying’s pictures are made from the lampblack-on-cloth technology invented by the same person, and the level of detail is amazing; if anything, Lan Zhan would love to keep all four pictures of the Wei Ying quartet and add them into his collection of memorabilia that celebrates their love, in that cupboard inside their bedroom.

(The officers processing their application probably thought that Wei Ying was an overzealous partner who wanted all aspects of his face to appear on the Marriage Certificate; and what's more, he even ordered three extra copies - which was fine, according to Yiling’s civil laws - and yes, Wei Ying did appear quite enthusiastic when he submitted the application, all excited and jittery, just a few days ago. As long as the necessary fees are paid, the civil servants do not raise any further concerns.

In essence, according to the Marriage Certificate issued by the Registry Office, both Lan Wang Ji and Wei Wuxian are officially registered as a married couple in Yiling City of the Qishan Province.)

“Yes, that is all, Mister and Mister Lan. Thank you... and congratulations,” the officer droned disinterestedly, and did not bat an eyelid for the giddy-excited-nervous couple leaving the room, and promptly resumes his paperwork.

Lan Zhan, feeling a little dizzy and weak in the knees in his happiness although his walking cane holds him up well, keeps a booklet inside his inner pocket, while Wei Ying shuffles his four copies while murmuring non-stop “I’m married! You’re married! We’re married! Really, really married!” as soon as they’re out of earshot in the deserted hallway.

Somewhere not too far away, three other Wei Yings cheer and celebrate their newfound wedded status with so much fanfare via telepathic connections, that for a brief moment, the eldest Wei happily unleashes an unimaginably enormous psychic burst - and the whole world experiences Good Feelings.

Lan Zhan felt it too. He gives in to a sudden urge of really nice feelings, takes his chances in public view, and captures Wei Ying by the lips in a passionate kiss. He’s finally achieved his Happily Ever After, and with his two hands, he promises in his heart that he will build a world where Wei Ying, all his Wei Yings, will always live in their Happily Ever Afters.

Notes for the Chapter:

Yeah, I know there are loopholes and the marriage certificate thing doesn't work that way - but what the heck. As stated in the first chapter, don't take things too seriously!

This chapter is longer because I decided to introduce another character (plot element) named Ernie. Whether or not this will fly, who knows. Let Wangxian live, build and grow their own world into their Happily Every Afters!

Chapter 44

It has been a long time coming, from the day he, then the Chief Cultivator, was proposed by Wei Wuxian in front of a hall of angry bearded wrinkled old sages of the Grand Cultivation Council - then settled down with his soulmate; built their happiness with their own hands, had plenty of honeymoon sex; caused lovely Wei Ying to destroy and re-create the world, then bear three males for him (heirs and lovers included); had exchanged wedding vows; had crazy plenty of orgies and sex while heading an ever-expanding and successful family business - and finally, they received their marriage certificates from the City Registrar.

It has been a long, convoluted way to finally be called ‘husband and wife’ (technically, ‘wives’), and not exactly in the right order - but they’ve done it.

Lan Zhan feels accomplished as he takes a sip of chrysanthemum tea from his bamboo container under a large shady tree near the marketplace’s rest area, and their baskets lie on the feet of the bench he sits on. Already, he’s bumped into a few Jin patrols, but is not recognized by those burly warriors (he could always seal his golden core if he detects a magic-user among them). He feels bold, hopeful, in a ‘fortune smiles upon you’ manner, and his fingers itch to try his luck and spend a bit of money for his lovely wives.

Hence, when he watches Wei san ge, who is truly thick-skinned and has no qualms to befriend, bargain and annoy every nearby stallowner - with meagre success due to his brattiness and young cheeky looks - and comes back somewhat empty handed with a whiny nine-year old complaining “where’s my candy”; Lan Zhan struts forward with his cane, passes his half-drunk tea to the teenager, then tells him, “Hold my tea, and watch how it’s done, son.”

~~~@ @ @~~~@ @ @~~~

“Buying candy?”

“Mn. This one, Master Shopkeeper. How much is it?”

“One silver piece for a bag, sir.”

Lan Zhan looks longingly at the other kinds of candies on the table - they come in different colours, shapes and sizes, packed in neat rows and organized by brand name. He picks up a bag from each row, reads the label, puts it down, and repeats for the next row. It’s routine, it’s relaxing and it’s learning about the candies, all at once.

When Lan Zhan returns to the first row of dragon’s beard candy, he lifts a bag and says, “This one, for my boy.” Lan Zhan does not realize that he is not only handsome, but he also holds a lonesome, faraway look in his eyes as well - especially when Wei didi grasps his arm and stares cutely at the shopkeeper.

“And the family?” the shopkeeper asks, after she noticed the man loitering around her store with the same cute boy she’d seen earlier (with a bratty teenager, perhaps, but she could be wrong - she can't remember all her customers' faces), and the way his calm, slightly despairing demeanour calls to her attention and concern.

“My spouse is working. Full-time job.” which is true, since the eldest Wei is busy trying to expand their business empire.

The shopkeeper notices the walking cane. Lan Zhan is perceptive as well, and sheepishly shifts the cane closer to his body and tries to hide it with his wide sleeves. He says, quite impassively, not particularly gesturing at the cane or anything else, “It is inconvenient. But it is alright.”

The shopkeeper felt an instant, emotional connection with this particular customer. House-husbands have it tough with the kids, especially when their wives are at work for most of the day. She would know, since she mans her candy store all day and returns home to a tired, frazzled-looking wrinkled man with kids running around him.

Later, Lan Zhan walks away from the store with the cane, a set of new recipes fully memorized in his head, and Wei didi carries a bag containing the promised pack of dragon's beard candy, together with three other free sample packs of assorted candies, courtesy of the kind shopkeeper.

Wei san ge observes from a safe distance, and all Wei gongzi s receive yet another wonderful lesson in life from their patriarch. He rejoins the two and concedes that their patriarch, now officiated as their husband, is the greatest man on earth with talents including bargaining, negotiating with, and getting freebies from Yiling's notoriously shrewd businesses.

Lan Zhan accompanies the two youngest Wei siblings while waiting for lovely er ge to finish his businesses inside the labyrinthine City Council office; after getting their marriage certificates, Wei er ge still needs to submit more forms, collect more permits and certificates and whatnots for their company - so Lan Zhan opts to watch over the two boys and meet up at an agreed location later on. He enjoys being with his boys - his family time - and when the crowd gets too intense, they easily side-step to the curbs for a little quiet moment.

Through the Wei gongzi s' telepathic abilities, Lan Zhan receives interesting news that er ge gathered from the various officers he meets. In the past couple of weeks, scouts and land surveyors from Chang'an and Lanling had been reported to attempt entering the tracts of uninhabited and unowned land near their estate, to map, mark - and possibly investigate and later, claim - parts of the largely unexplored Burial Mounds. The timing coincides with Wei Ying's earth-shattering act, which meant that the Burial Mounds must have started to show signs that draw the interest of the two most powerful provinces of the Middle Kingdom - whether magical energies, or other (dark) forces.

The Burial Mounds are technically no man's land, having been sealed off for decades after the Wens' extinction, and only recently re-opened for reclamation mostly for agricultural or residential purposes by the Qishan provincial council which oversees the 'Mounds. There is war of words brewing between the higher-ups due to the intrusion; just the day before, Qishan - through Yiling City - staked its claim on the hills and drawn up its own map to clearly delineate its borders; if the Burial Mounds could be imagined as a round pie, the land title under the name of Lan Wang Ji sits in the middle, roughly a square-shaped patch that occupies a measly one-tenth of the area, with Mian Mian's neighbourhood being in the fringes closer to Yiling. Yiling's officials have divided the remaining areas into more pieces according to natural barriers, such as mountain ranges and rivers, and plan to ramp up advertisements to sell or rent the land to the people of Yiling or Qishan - more importantly, to get them populated before further intrusions from foreign forces.

Therefore, Wei er ge conveys via his siblings, Lan Zhan should vote for the current Mayor of Yiling City in the upcoming elections despite the scandalous news that appeared about his irresponsible and playboy son on the week's periodicals. The Mayor promised, via a brief exchange with Wei er ge, a million-dollar politician's smile, and a covert shake of hands inside his office, that he will help to secure the couple's identity and ownership of their home in the 'Mounds. He does not like the Jins as well, but having them around helps to keep the city safe, fortified and prosperous, deter Chang'an's troops from making a beeline for them, and he is able to keep an eye on the Jin's ambitions for territorial grabs and manage them - usually by bribing them off under the table.

The implications are clear to the patriarch of the fledgling Lan family branch - the world is closing in on his secluded Perfect paradise, and he may lose his peaceful days if he does not take steps proactively to protect what is dear to him - his, their, the family's Happily Ever After.

Wei da ge hears the patriarch loud and clear, and sounds the call to action to his siblings and others of their frighteningly fast-expanding network of as-of-yet identified allies.

Closer to home, two cultivator salesmen trying to sell magical talismans to towns and villages surrounding Yiling, had lost their way and approached too close to the ‘Mounds on their flying swords. Unsurprisingly, in less than a few minutes, they fled the area with pee-stained pants, torn robes and tentacle-whip bruises all over their bodies, possessed with demonic spirits and incurable madness, running barefoot through the grassfields because their swords are broken and their golden cores are gone, screaming in pure terror until their lungs gave out, that the ‘Mounds are perpetually haunted by the ghosts of the past, particularly children .

(They were spooked by the eerie landscape of dark, mangled forests, cursed and confusing mists, moving shadows, and freezing-cold temperatures - and when they asked “Is anyone there” and “Who are you”, Ernie roared its own name before revealing its true ghastly, hellish form).

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Right after Wei didi robotically mouthed every word conveyed from his er ge , Lan Zhan hears a cry for help from teenage Wei, who had somehow meandered into a deserted alley beside them, after trying to stalk a stray cat (he loves to reach out and pinch the flicking, fluffy tail, which annoys the feline and it snarls and tries to escape the molester).

“Lan Zhan! Lan Zhan! Save me!” and barking dogs make a perfect combination for the patriarch to once again showcase his Perfection. He tells the didi , “Hold the baskets, and watch how it’s done, my boy.”

Lan Zhan, the great Han Guang Jun, runs ahead then leaps once, twice and somersaults with his cane into the air, and lands gracefully between a shivering teenager and a pack of strays. He raises a wide-sleeved arm, and in a typical Wei Ying fashion, the scared teenager hides behind the sleeve from angry bloodshot stares of growling pariah dogs.

“Lan Zhan! I only tried to grab a cat’s tail, but ended up stepping on a dog’s... It’s... It’s not my fault!” Wei san ge cries out from behind. Lan Zhan sighs, hardens his gaze, then slams his cane to the ground in a Guang Gong manner, which rocks the pavement and sends a rumble echoing through the alley, and shakes a pile of unused vending carts behind them. The dogs’ tail turned downward, and they started to whine in fear, before scurrying off.

“Lan Zhan, you’re such a brave man, and you’re my hero!” the teenager pecks at Lan Zhan’s cheek sweetly, and warmly embraces the latter from behind. Lan Zhan winces - his injured right leg twinges in protest from the burst of exertion; he must be getting old these days, he thought.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Not surprisingly, Lan Zhan ends up getting sexually assaulted behind the pile of unused vending carts.

(Due to the conducive environment - no one will walk into the alley and interrupt the indecent crime taking place at ten-thirty in the bright, cloudless morning.)

The horny teenager suggested that if doing it three times every two hours is too much for his middle-aged body to handle, then spreading it out to once every forty-five minutes or so, or even once an hour, should be easier on his overworked libido. Lan Zhan points out that he really, really, can't get it up anymore - and as usual, his pleas for mercy fall on deaf ears.

Lan Zhan stands behind a waist-high cart, face coloured with shades of crimson and pink since his entire upper body is in public view, and looks down with a scowl at an errant fifteen year old who conveniently crouches behind the cart - just as he loves to hide behind his saviour's sleeves. It starts with a simple handjob after the pants are loosened into a crumpled heap on the ground, and when slathering hot licks and vacuum-sucking are added to the exposed genitals, Lan Zhan's body responds with trembling thighs and a rising erection, much to his chagrin.

The older man becomes somewhat fascinated by how the boy casts a green bubble spell, makes lots of wiggly finger movements, and shapes the ugly green blob into a ring. Wei san ge then happily nom-noms it into his mouth and the ring forms an "o" around his lips. He does what he's best for - deep-throating the half-hard (and really reluctant) penis - which results in sheathing the man's member with an ugly green condom and--

"NNNGH!"

Lan Zhan sees stars, constellations and milky ways, when his penis jolts into full wakefulness at the incredibly out-of-this-world sensation of thousands of tiny, firm tongue-like protrusions lining the interior of the condom sliding along the penile length - and they move, alive, jiggle and swirl in numerous mini-hurricanes that instantly sends electric pleasure into all nerve ends of the helpless man's nether regions. Every inch of skin covered by the condom is thoroughly touched and rubbed, every vein lining the foreskin is massaged until blood flows into the finest capillaries and the whole organ sweetly balloons up, the lively movements draw in heat to pool into the groin, sending wildfire spreading across from pubes to the emptied balls, forcefully jump-starting seed production and causes spermatic cords and tubules to quiver with new energy.

Wei san ge purrs at the growth of the prized cockflesh, and happily pulls down his pants. There's really no need for much foreplay when such advanced magics are used, moulded, shaped and designed by the teenager's perverse imaginations. Still hidden behind the cart, he goes down on all fours, presents his bare ass to his moaning husband, and ahnnns when Lan Zhan grips his glutes so hard that more bruising fingerprints are added to the slew of slap marks and scratches from previous lovemaking sessions, and mmmnnns when he is mercilessly speared with no prior stretching - because he's the freshest, most nubile, certainly most elastic and tight, and importantly, the tastiest of all Wei Yings in Lan Zhan's eyes.

When Wei san ge clenches his ass and forces the lovely, fleshy living interior of the condom to squeeze against Lan Zhan's cock, the stars, constellations and milky ways in the latter's vision spin.

And when the tip of the condom is blessed with an extra function in the form of a sexy, undulating tentacle that first caresses in circles, tickles the tip with feather-light flicks on the crevice, then gently invades through the convulsing and leaking cockslit, and next, with no warning, elongates itself deeply through the contracting urethra and through the forks within the prostate gland, and spreads and grows and expands like a living root system into the victim's genitourinary system, piercing into the bladder, kneading and fucking every vesicle and tube and big and small inner organs, and eventually fans out into a carpet of tiny tentacles inside the scrotal sac, then colonizes his screaming , wildly orgasming testicles - Lan Zhan knows he's lost it.

It's an impossible and a very absurd, probably disgusting, obscene and vile sight, but it exists inside the microcosm of Lan Zhan's balls, a fantastical world no larger than a small chicken egg each.

The invading tentacle is covered with tiny little suction cups, and they vacuum up every bit of fluid, secretions and solids during their journey towards their main destination. After the region of the prostate gland has fallen, plundered until nothing remains, shrivelled and shrunken until not a single drop is left in the aftermath of the violation - the tentacle multiplies, spreads out and attacks and pillages everything in sight and within its reach; however it seeks out the source of the man's desire, where precious seed is borned and where lust is set aflame, and it lunges deep, deep into the twin set of family jewels.

Each egg, nestled in the comfort of its sac, has its surface covered by writhing, twisting and lashing tongue-like tentacles. They caress the spongy, fibrous surface, inject paralyzing sexual poisons, fire up nearby nerves to elicit rapid orgasmic reflexes - and when the time is right, the first of numerous penetrations through the outer layers of the egg becomes painless, almost pleasant from the overdose of stimulating poisons in the fluids and bloodstream, and is mindlessly welcomed by the shocked, breached body system.

The tentacles weave into the egg, and meets a massive complex not unlike a production plant - this time, for Little Wang Jis. The invading tentacles unravel into fine, hairlike structures, each functioning as its own living, wriggling lively limb and they surge ahead, filling the vast space of fluids, cells, and panicked Little Wang Jis trying to escape the assault; however, all is lost, as they are trapped within the cocoon of their birth nest - some try to swim away, some try to wriggle out of sight, but each is easily kidnapped, violently yanked off by its tail from comfortable cradles, inhaled and mopped up, and sucked into the larger tentacles that wait outside the eggs like pumping stations that channel the captured prisoners out through tunnels that contract and undulate into the waiting jaws of the condom's tip lined with lips, tongues and serrated teeth. If one is able to listen to the sounds of the microcosm, the cries and screams for help will be audible.

The hairlike limbs vigorously sweep and overrun the entire inner surface of the egg, plucking each Little Wang Jis like ripe fruits from branches. The entire egg bulges, swells, distends and contracts in its sac as it is ravaged and emptied, again and again, while the owner experiences brutally indescribable and mind-destroying pain and pleasure in his loins until he becomes a mess of pulsating and convulsing flesh, whose only remaining living function is to squeeze, squirt and eject everything inside the quaking hips and shoot his balls out, literally.

The assault continues for many minutes even after the eggs are emptied - from first glance. The invading limbs turn into tiny tongues and fingers, and they lap up the barren surface to search for the most prized of Little Wang Jis - the immature, tailless and most vulnerable ones, nestled deep inside their protective cradles, buried and hidden beneath the layers, and unfortunately, unable to swim away to escape the clutches of the invaders. The fingers easily sniff and dig them out - tiny fragile unborn babes no more than a naked, microscopic ball of fluid each - then gently roll them into the waiting tongues, where they are caressed, loved and coated with potent sexual poisons that overwhelms their entire existence, and they quiver desperately for help, twitch as they slowly die from the engulfing poisons, and finally, the delicate membranous shell break apart and they dissolve into a thick, soupy end.

None survive the massacre, and every single Little Wang Ji is sent to its demise before their time.

A seed of the tentacle-creature is left inside its new womb - one in each precious egg. In time, the population of Little Wang Jis will replenish, and the seed awaits its next meal time.

Just a short distance away, Wei didi faces his first real-life battle for his family's honour - and his precious bags of candies bought by their patriarch.

A pack of street brats descend upon the little nine-year old boy and the three baskets he's been told to guard, and his cries for help goes unheeded by the grunting, copulating teenager and the nearly unconscious patriarch of the family who is somewhat dying from too much sex and seed-extraction.

Notes for the Chapter:

I'm pushing this out in record time because there's just more world building (which I tend to write on cruise mode, when in the mood), and smexy scenes that I had prepared in draft earlier. It's kinda icky sex, but what the heck, just visualize it and enjoy :-D

I might slow down a little for the next chapters, because in all honesty, I've not thought about what to write next!

Chapter 45

In the present day of the Middle Kingdom, it is widely believed that astronomical events are closely associated with the state affairs of the monarchy and its government. Scores of astrologers and astronomers are employed to monitor, study, record and predict such events which are said to determine the interactions between the Heavens - The Realms of the Gods - and Mankind - The Realm of Mortals. They inform the general populace by conjuring fantastical, superstitious tales in favour of the Imperial Court to explain such frightening natural phenomenon - including eclipses, meteor showers, solstices, and supernovae; and therefore, strengthen the legitimacy of the Emperor of Chang'an who is said to be bestowed the Mandate Of Heaven by the Jade Emperor himself.

Under this doctrine, any natural disaster or rare, destructive natural phenomena are seen as warnings from the Heavens for the ruler to mend his ways, or else lose the right to govern the Realm of the Mortals.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Ernie may not cause harm, hurt or injury to Wei Wuxian and Lan Wang Ji - or, through inaction, allow either or both of them to come to the said harm, hurt or injury.

Ernie must obey the orders given by Wei Wuxian and Lan Wang Ji, except where such orders would conflict with the First Order.

Ernie must protect its own existence as long as such protection does not conflict with the First or Second Orders.

Naturally, in order of importance and priority, Ernie's creator Wei Wuxian comes first, followed by Lan Wang Ji, the soulmate; however due to a loophole in this logic, where if any suffering befalls Lan Wang Ji, would cause due or undue hurt to Wei Wuxian - therefore, both humans can be considered as of equal importance and priority as long as they are soulmates for this and many other lifetimes. (Ernie's lifespan is infinite.)

From the time of its birth as a primordial blob of nothingness, until the present time as an embryonic, weeks-old amorphous entity with rudimentary sentience, Ernie has already received and executed numerous requests from its creator(s), and just one instruction from the soulmate (also known as the husband) - "the cold black thing should not touch our food pantry in the kitchen"; when interpreted via Ernie's programming codes, the safest place to hide from its wrath is probably that shallow pit in the kitchen of Lan's Residence, along with its leaf-wrapped spiced meats.

"Ahh! I see the Sneezing Bai Ge (White Brother)!" A-Bing shouts from a short distance. The street brat points at a jerking, spasming but handsome man in light clothes behind an unused vending cart - the boy could only see the upper body, though.

"Hello Bai Ge ! Are you still feeling sick?" the little boy asks loudly, as he trots towards the dying orgasming man, who looks extremely distressed, flushed, feverish and wheezing, nostrils flared and drooly saliva hanging from half-gaping mouth, as though he is about the sneeze from the biggest itch ever - and making appropriately sneezy sounds of “Ah... Ahh... AHHH... AHHNNNGH.... AAHNNNNGH!”

“ Bai ge ! Bai ge ! If you sneeze like that, you’ll spread the sickness everywhere!” A-Bing laughs and mocks at man’s unending misery. Several other street brats overhear the commotion, start to peek into the alley, and trudge behind A-Bing.

“He... He looks really sick, and he’s moving in a very freaky way. Why is he standing alone with the carts?”

“A-Bing, I’m scared! His face is all red and sweaty! And look at his eyes... they’re blinking like crazy, and they’re white...”

“Yeah! Let’s get away from him! Anyway, Big Brother’s got the little kid outside cornered, and he said there’s plenty of candies to loot! C’mon!”

A-Bing reluctantly steps back - he wanted to say ‘hi’ to the man he’d met once before, but that man seemed preoccupied with sneezing (again). He finally turns away and runs off with the rest of his pack, into the crowded marketplace’s rest area.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Humans are selfish creatures; they are capable of good and evil, to their own satisfaction and for their own benefits.

A circle of passive, curious onlookers surround the street brawl, which seem to be extremely one-sided. The brave, but teary-eyed nine-year old Wei didi clutches the bag of candies close to his chest, while swinging his bamboo flute angrily to fend off the bratty robbers. He successfully made a few hits with the stick-like weapon, received a few bruising punches and scratches in return, and continued to fight them like what he did with a tanghulu stick earlier with his elder sibling. He managed to drag the basket containing their purchased provisions with him, but lost the other two, mostly empty, ones during the scuffle. He pressed his back against the trunk of the large shady tree, and uncharacteristically cries, screams and snarls in a rare display of panicky fight-or-flight instinct - like a cornered animal.

None of the marketgoing adults lent a hand or tried to stop the fight, as many are familiar with the marauding troops of street brats, and preferred not to interfere - they simply whispered among themselves, even critically judged who was stronger or would come out unscathed. Their apathy is clear, their heartlessness is too obvious, and Wei didi - Wei Ying - feels as if he was transported back in time, sixteen or so years ago, atop the roofs of Nightless City when he was surrounded by friends-turned-foes at the height of his despair.

Back then, he had Chen Qing to summon the vengeful spirits to wreak havoc and control Yin Metal-possessed bodies to do his bidding. In the end, he couldn't cope with the stress of being ostracized by society, of betrayal and of losing people dear to him, to the point that he gladly sacrificed his source of power - the Stygian Tiger Amulet -, his friendship with then-boyfriend Lan Wang Ji, and finally his life, just to escape the insanity that is called Humans.

However, nine-year olds do not summon vengeful spirits and control the minds of people who have done wrong - he isn't at that stage in life yet when he could spend hours mulling how to avenge, to plot, to hurt, and to act out dramatic behaviours for the sake of dramatics.

He's just an innocent little boy, and he simply cries out like little Xian Xian.

It is said that on the ZZ day of YY month in the year of 20XX, which is the date printed on the marriage certificates of the new Lan family, a miracle happened that is witnessed by countless people across the sun-facing parts of the world. An unanticipated natural phenomenon rarely seen more than once in a person's lifetime, occurred high up in the bright cloudless skies, and sent shockwaves reverberating throughout the communities tasked to study the celestial bodies above the Middle Kingdom.

Those who believed in old wives' tales of the heavenly sun-eating dog (or dragons and other mythical creatures), began to shout raucously, bang pots and pans, and rush off to grab and set off fireworks to chase the imaginary creature from consuming the sun - their energetic feats eventually succeed (obviously), but not before the day was plunged into dimness for a few minutes.

The solar eclipse would go down in history as the shortest one ever recorded, and there will be conflicting accounts of whether it was a true eclipse at all, a powerful cultivator's horrible prank, or just some inopportune clouds drifting by. Hundreds of royal astrologers and astronomers would be punished, thrown into dungeons or become jobless for not giving the Imperial Court forewarning of such a disturbing omen - in the grand scale of Human history, the incidence is too brief to be of any significance, and over time, will be relegated to the likes of fairy tales and myths, and the texts will fade into dust and be forgotten, just as the names of the ones who started the entire phenomenon.

Deities in The Realms of the Gods will find no answers to the mystery as well, because the actual Heavenly Sun-Eating Dog was found rolling around excitedly near its kennel that was unlocked and awaiting its daily walk, so none of the gods could confirm whether it ran out without a leash or not - however, because it happened within a few minutes in mortals' time, therefore less than a blink of an eye for a god, the Jade Emperor dismissed it as just another of his usual sneezes, and shoo'ed away annoying, ever-apologizing grovelling servants of the Heavenly Court.

Only Goddess Chang'e and her Jade Rabbit witnessed the actual event from her lunar throne. She watched how a horrifying-looking nebulous darkness seeped out from the western hills of the Middle Kingdom into the atmosphere and instantly fans out and spreads - no, exists would be a better description, because it just happened - into space and, unbelievably seeded itself on the glorious Sun. Black tendrils infest, grow and devoured the brilliant ball of light until very little luminescence remained from the swirling, living inky surface - and just as quickly as it happened, the darkness dissipates. She feels immensely perturbed by the episode because, despite her dislike for everyone from the Realms of the Gods and she swore never to reveal what she saw to those who banished her in the first place - her lunar home is the sole outpost outside the Realms, and she could be the next target of the swallowing darkness. She decides to shore up her defenses, and asks the Jade Rabbit to fortify the Moon.

Meanwhile, Ernie is driven by a primal instinct to survive, learn, manipulate, evolve and thrive in its own brave new world, to protect the ones it befriends, loves, serves, and is indebted to - guided by the Three Orders that governs its behaviour, thinking, decisions and actions. Taking over the Sun had been the right thing to do, according to its programming code, as so far, there is no conflict with its Orders and it has proactively taken measures to ensure that its masters are safe and secure; and at long last - its first and biggest challenge of its fledgling life has been solved. The Sun provides the energy it needs to function to its best capabilities without depending on earthbound sources, and it looks far into deep space for its next conquest.

The stars look quite appealing and ripe for the taking - though Ernie has not learned to judge celestial bodies with a discerning taste - yet.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

(Back on earth...)

Wei da ge sensed something is amiss, and looks out the huge double windows. As the president of the sole establishment on the continent, his office suite occupies the penthouse atop a spiralling skyscraper located close to the heart of the new, sprawling mega-corporation complex, dotted with zillions of moving lights, moving machinery and steaming pipelines; work goes on in the production sites at a relentless pace, twenty-four seven. Construction continues above, on and below ground, as fast as Creation spells assemble building blocks on site, and Time spells timeshifts mountains of raw materials into the beginnings of a colourful, habitable and vibrant metropolis - the possibilities are limited only by the imaginations of the Wei gongzi s.

The sun had just set behind dusky magenta-tinged clouds that loom across the horizon as night crawls in - just a few hours after he'd left the morning of their homeland in the 'Mounds; travelling across time zones is a cinch for him, though it does messes up his body clock, and he didn't get much sleep the night before because he was too caught up in pleasuring the husband, including drilling into the older man's tight ass after missing it for nearly an entire day - he's keeping to a disciplined nights-only sex routine, due to his extremely busy work schedule.

He'd just finished a series of tele- and video-conferences with consultants, suppliers, customers and more potential investors, and hasn't had time for any breaks yet. There are tons of paperwork to be completed, materials to purchase and processed into products, orders to be sent out, payments to receive and cash in, business proposals to be reviewed, and meetings with new business partners for planned mergers and acquisitions - and now, domestic affairs are creeping in after he'd heard his husband's thoughts, and he has little time to tune into his siblings' minds because there is just so much to do for their fast-expanding business empire.

His - the husband's - their - Kingdom or in more geographically accurate sense, the Wuji continent, is tucked away in another part of the world, hence he'd miss the celestial spectacle. However, his ultra-modern newsfeed from a hand-held, magically-powered device that connects to the world with technology far, far better than a Fairy Messenger spell (it looks and feels like a mobile phone, except that it's not), keeps him updated on happenings around the globe, and he's aware of what the Realms of the Gods and Mortals have seen.

Wei Wuxian fears and hates dogs. Putting together emerging but unproven facts, rumours, speculation and gossips from the network of information (abbreviated to “the Net”) from the realms, in a typical Wei Wuxian fashion, he recklessly concludes his own dog-fearing summary that somehow the Jade Emperor sneezed, scared the Heavenly Sun-Eating Dog out of its kennel compound, and the dog managed to take a quick nibble before returning home - and thinks no more of the issue, or the dog - because his hand-held device is buzzing again with another call.

Super-busy da ge ’s orders and thoughts are absolute commands to the other Wei gongzi s. Thus, all Wei Yings believe and concluded the same - that the blip in the day’s events is merely due to a runaway dog in the skies. None of them realize that Ernie was the culprit behind the eclipse, and that Ernie was, in some sense, the true runaway, since it willingly took its own initiative to save their didi without prior consent from its masters.

Wei da ge sighs when he picks up the next call, a little fatigued, in the empty boardroom filled with futuristic furniture, equipment and gadgets that help him single-handedly manage the entire business. He wondered, briefly, if and how he can get a helping hand for the newly incorporated company.

Wei er ge whacks his younger sibling’s head with a scroll - an inch-thick roll of paper titled verbosely ‘Manual on the Modernization of the Education System of Qishan Province, and Supplement of the List of Educational Institutions Recognized By The Imperial National Education System', originally intended for the family to have a look and decide which school to place the youngest family member - or if home-schooling could be an option, should there be any misgivings about how education should work (think Cloud Recesses days).

“What the hell were you thinking?! Where did your brains go?!”

Whack! “Oww!”

“If this happens again, I will personally CUT it off, so that your brain doesn't go there anymore!”

Whack! “Aiyo!”

“Say sorry to your brother! Take responsibility and carry him to the clinic!”

Whack! “Ahh!”

“And you too... I... I... (sigh) Try... not to leave the nine-year old out of your sight anymore,” Wei er ge points the abused scroll shakily at the husband, which is a rather rude and threatening but wifely gesture; he has no heart to use it as a whacking weapon upon their patriarch anyway. He tries his best to calm down the burst of anger and disappointment in his chest, “There are street brats everywhere, and I've told you about this before. It's dangerous to be alone even in the middle of town.”

“Wei.. Ying. I’m sorry,” the patriarch apologises; the words are hardly uttered before by the man who was thought to be Perfection - but he, like any other men who easily fall prey into the hands of temptation, is mortal, and therefore flawed.

“I was too confident. I was weak. I am wrong,” Lan Zhan kowtows three times on the paved road of the deserted alley, one for each confession, and it is a sight never seen before by any of the Wei siblings other than from the bedroom.

The scroll drops to the floor with a hollow and empty sound.

“Wei Ying, let me say this again: I am wrong. Please, I must receive my punishment, just as san ge , and therefore repent,” Lan Zhan states his words clearly, his gaze hardens and angles downward at the dirt, knees trembling slightly from kneeling with an injured leg upon the unforgiving road. The older man calmly picks up the scroll and lifts it up to Wei er ge , but his stare does not shift away from the ground.

Lovely Wei er ge ’s appearance softens. He takes the scroll off Lan Zhan’s hands and rather than raises it, instead, he slides it into his belt for safekeeping. He bends down and then - grabs an ear and gives it a gentle twist. The patriarch nnnngs audibly from the pain and winces. When he’s done and the ear is properly punished and throbs with red, Wei er ge too, kneels in front of the repentant husband and fully embraces him with both arms. There is a flash of surprise on Lan Zhan’s face, followed by an indistinct but touched expression that speaks of gratitude, love and warmth.

“Lan Zhan, please... please always be by our side.”

“Mn.” and Lan Zhan returns the hug as a lifelong promise.

Earlier, Wei Ying came running towards the alley after he felt a sense of alarm and fear from the youngest. He had completed his errands at the City Council offices, and the moment he walked out of the grand double doors, the eclipse happened. In the ensuing mass panic, hysteria and ear-deafening pandemonium of people trying to chase the mythical sun-eating dog from the skies, he became disoriented in a sea of excited, frightened people who stand and obstruct the way or shove anxiously at others, and finally staggers through to find the rest of the family.

First, he found the teenager, pantless, stretching lazily behind some abandoned carts, oblivious to the mayhem around them because the alley is deserted and sound does not filter through well. Next, he found the delirious, quaking, and equally pantless, husband who looks more like an empty husk than anything else; when he sees what is latching onto the crotch like an ugly writhing green phallic parasite, he quickly cast a Dispel magic, and it retracts with a fwip! sound and morphs into a harmless used condom, nicely tied into an elongated balloon full of jelly-like white substance. Then, he hears the scared didi calling out from behind an adjacent pile of carts - the little boy is fortunately fine, save for a few bruises and scratches, with a bag of candies safely cradled in his hand, and a battered basket of their goods that looked like it had been dragged or kicked around more than just a few times.

Luckily, it was the street brats' first time with an eclipse, and they were absolutely transfixed by how the skies gradually turned dark, and tried to squint through their hands to observe the sun being eaten. Wei didi used the distraction to escape into the alley and hide into the pile of carts, and the brats totally forgotten about him by the time the celestial show was over.

(As a side note, Wei san ge 's out-of-the-box ideas end up in a long list of product development lines for their family business, including magical swords taken out from the show called 'Star Wars', and ugly green demonic condoms.)

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Li's clinic, like all medical facilities in Yiling, was expectedly packed when the family of four arrived with their battered luggage. The doctor and his staff nurses were busy treating minor injuries caused by accidents related to the eclipse - bleeding toes from tripping over rocks, scalding due to spilled hot tea, aching sensitive eyes after trying to look at the sun (which is a big no-no, said the doctor), and so on. The scene resembles a medical camp during times of war (Wei Ying remembers about the Wens' incursion), except that people are generally in better and healthier condition.

Grandma Li was the only nurse - actually the doctor's mother, and therefore the real owner of the establishment - available to check up on the new arrivals to the clinic with a little boy carried on piggyback. She recognized her favourite medicinal candies supplier and took the family into a separate room for added privacy (being the boss has its advantages - she gets to decide which rooms are off-limits). A few swabs of antiseptics and a couple of bandages later, Wei didi is given a clean bill of health.

She examined Lan Zhan as well, and is amazed at the rate of recovery; barely three weeks since he was found battered and bloodied from falling off a cliff, he was now nearly as fit as a fiddle, except-- “Except that the wounds seemed to have healed, but strained again very recently, and re-opened. Look at this fresh tear here, and the red swelling over here,” she points and shows a few examples all over his body, “and goodness, that lower part of your leg is a bit inflamed - have you been doing jumping exercises even while on a walking cane?” she taps the injured limb and stares at him, perplexed.

Lan Zhan sheepishly shakes his head - actually, he somersaulted, and those fresh tears and swellings are the results of his daily orgies with three insatiable spouses in the confines of their cave-home - but that is not the point.

The grandmotherly woman tsk-tsks and starts giving some first aid treatment - including the bandages that he thought he’d rid himself of since days ago. “Young man, I know that you cultivators think that your bodies are made of the toughest metal, that your capabilities are as earthly as they will be divine when you reach certain stages in your cultivation, and that your qi will keep growing and sustain you forever until you turn into an immortal. However,” she slaps a dressing pad on a new minor lesion and the patient winces, “all these will be for naught if you can’t even take care of your basic health and well-being!” she gently chastised the Lan patriarch. Lan Zhan bows his head and remains quiet.

Without the doctor around, Grandma Li couldn't prescribe him any strong medicines, however she gave him a jar of salve, and a few pieces of sound advice to speed up recuperation for the next few days: no strenuous exercise, no high-level cultivation, rest in bed more often, apply home remedies such as heat wraps and acupuncture, and eat a well-balanced diet.

With the treatment and consultations done, Grandma Li informs that she really needs to check on the other patients, but they can stay in the room until the clinic closes for lunch break - it's reserved for special patients including family members of her favourite medicinal candies supplier. With that, she excuses herself with a wink.

Sometime during the conversation, Wei er ge slips out and talks to the pretty girls manning the clinic's front desk, with lots of friendly banter and praises for their youthful beauty. His days of hand-delivering goods and peddling in the streets are somewhat over, and now he is the sales manager of their growing business. He usually contacts his clients using Fairy Messenger spells, however, meeting them face to face and regularly is just as important. He works hard to convince the clinic to order more products, which will be fulfilled by cargo-carrying Postbirds a day or two later. (Of note, the Postbirds are created by Wei da ge and for exclusive use of their business. Hence, they own a fleet of company-branded delivery transports - which saves costs and complexity.)

When he is satisfied that he's closed enough sales from the clinic and other friendly and affiliated clinics under the Li group of healthcare establishments, he sends off the orders with a mental note to their headquarters. Wei Ying realizes that it is half-past eleven and the clinic closes a little after noon for lunch. He also realizes, with a sudden pallor in his face and a sinking feeling in his gut, that he's left the chronic sex-fiend in the room with their husband - and the didi is outside the room, down a hallway, happily playing with toy fans, paperdolls and grasshoppers folded from bamboo leaves freely available at the playroom in the family-friendly corner, under the watchful eyes of nurses working in the pediatrics section of the clinic.

He thanks the front desk staff courteously with bows, and hurries off to do damage control for the family, as usual.

Notes for the Chapter:

There's just a few more Special Edition episodes left, but I'm SO LOVING IT that I plan to re-watch the whole thing... some day. The extended scenes! The close-ups! After that giddines of extra drunken Lan Wang Ji scenes at the beginning, I'm blessed with Lan Wang Ji (Wang Yibo's, actually) fuzzy nips! Bless Bless Bless, and Amen! *muahs the nips on the screen*

Ah Zhan Ge, your face appears on my internet feed in all shapes and sizes, from all different kinds of looks, that I have no choice but to collect them all. ## Chapter 46

Lan Zhan scolds his penis - really.

He scolds it for being too lustful, too easily seduced, too quick to respond.

He scolds it for twitching up and down in happy 'yes'es when in fact, he had silently promised the nurse and his family with plenty of 'no's; that he should abstain or at least ease his physical activities for the coming days.

He scolds it for rising so quickly for wanting to taste something novel, tacky and even silly, as long as it is Wei Ying-flavoured - such as a teenager sporting fake pert breasts and a baby bump made of green and pink bubbles which are then coloured and textured to look and feel like the real thing. Plastic surgery, silicone implants, prosthetics, cosmetic surgery, even reconstructive surgery - Wei Ying has done it all, with a couple of spells and lots of wriggly fingers. (and this is added to the long list of products and services for their business.)

When teenage Wei Ying becomes bored of waiting in the room, and didi disappears on his own because he's seen other children at the pediatrics section and wanted to make some new friends - Wei Ying suddenly grinned like an evil cheshire cat that has just grown quadruple the number of horns, whips out ugly green bubbles and this time, horrendous pink bubbles too. Lan Zhan was adamant that he doesn't want anything to do with those spells - especially since one of them sucked him bone-dry and his balls actually shrunk to nearly half their original sizes resulting in dangly, loose and low-hanging scrotum. But naughty Wei Ying is perpetually horny, ever since he discovered the joys of having sex with his young, virile teenage body on the night of his deflowering, and that his body thrums with so much happiness and sexual energy that it readily sings out wonderful pleasures every time the patriarch beds the willing flesh nearly every other hour of the day.

Lan Zhan is, as usual, too slow to react in self-defense - he watches in disbelief at how the green and pink bubbles wrap themselves around Wei Ying's fully nude body (the boy stripped off in record time when it's time for the eleven-thirty-in-the-morning sex shift), melds into the youthful skin and lithe figure, then technically speaking, shapeshifted - pectoral muscles plump up into mid-sized bouncy breast mounds appropriate for his age, his slender abdomen swells up into a clearly recognizable pregnant teenager's belly, his buttock curves expanded a little, and everything about naughty Wei Ying's features softens, moistens, becomes rounded, nearly feminine but obviously still the male Wei Ying he knows. He exhibits the legendary 'pregnancy glow' - fuller and radiant skin, thicker and glossier hair, and a slight pinkier flush all over.

"Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, earlier, when we arrived at the clinic, I saw you eyeing the nurses at the front desk. I know all men are weak to the pleasures of the female flesh, so I made this just for you. Lao gong, do you like a female Wei Ying?" and those high-attractive fertile birthing hips sway sexily, bewitching the older man's confused senses.

Lan Zhan wanted to deny the baseless accusations, because in actual fact, he was trying to spy at her name tag and remember his customers' names (technically, as the biggest of the bosses, he should know all his customers - right?) - but when the fifteen-year old feminized Wei Ying pushes him down the bed, smoothly strips off his clothes using Invisible Hands, and then happily mounts him - and Lan Zhan's eyes go wide as saucers because even the teenager's nether regions have shapeshifted into a female's genitalia covered with dense dark curls instead of the familiar rod of throbbing flesh that he loves and memorized by heart - Outrageous!

Scandalous! Outright demonic! - and a Demoness! - and his shocked cock easily, almost naturally, slides into a front-facing fleshy tunnel of moist, juicy and terrifyingly feelsgood oh dear Goddess Guan Yin his mind goes blank because his mind is a mess of Gusu Lan scriptures on forbidding improper contact with the opposite sex, and he swore never to touch a female's body parts but oh god oh god it's Wei Ying it's Wei Ying's... pussy ! He'd said the word - it's a pussy!

Twin shiny pussy lips swallow his excited penis down to the hilt, and they gyrate, glide and soon wiggle in all crazily delicious directions and wet squishy sounds, and his mouth waters and lips go dry at the heavenly sensations - he would never be turned on by a female, and he would actually be turned off by a drag queen - but this... this Wei Ying, it's Wei Ying, and he-she looks, smells, sounds, and dear god, his penis tastes the wonderfully soft tight fuckable pussy, it's all Wei Ying, his Wei Ying... and it's this Wei Ying bearing an imaginary child in there, it's a whole new level of Wei Ying-ness, his fertile Wei Ying, carrying a child - his child, their child, a child conceived from their love and everyday - he is terrifyingly excited by this new form of Wei Ying, and the penis twitches wildly in "yes"es at each toe-curlingly good fuck - so, YES, he is turned on by a female Wei Ying who is heavily pregnant with his baby.

And dear Lord Buddha he has sinned because it's a fifteen year old girl that he's having sexual intercourse with, with very wet schlicky sounds and the heat - it's so hot, it's too tight, the body warmth that his cock craves for and feels even the heartbeat of lovely Wei Ying and the baby, as his cock twitches in tandem inside the fecund contracting canal that leads up to a womb, somewhere deep inside, waiting to be fertilized although it's already been violated and maybe raped because teenage Wei Ying is too young to consent - he will surely burn in Hell for such illicit underaged sex and he feels his loins burning with never-felt-before desires because Wei Ying is rocking his hips when he is fully sheated into the narrow elastic warm cavern ribbed with juicy folds and tantalizing bumps, then Wei Ying leans forward and he sees the perk tits swaying hypnotically in his line of vision, he wants to touch the nipples because they're strangely big, the areolae is dark brown and bulging and Oh Dear God Jade Emperor it's because the teenager is pregnant, and he-she has growing breasts that's being filled with food for their babe, and he prays to the 108 local gods to know whether there is really a baby in that sexy bump because they made love every day and night, surely his flesh and blood is growing somewhere inside the lovely womb, the bump, the jiggling and sensuous and enticing hips and body, and then he's kissing Wei Ying, fucking into that sweet pregnant pussy, desperately seeding and bedding the delicious flesh, again, ten more times, hundreds more times--

It's a no-brainer that Lan Zhan's intelligent and rational thought flew out the door the moment he's reverse-raped by the feminine pregnant Wei Ying - even Wei da ge snorts while sipping his coffee, and tunes out from the endless, scattered, incoherent inner monologue.

Fortunately, Wei Ying only has to narrate their lovemaking with very graphic details, which clears away the noise inside the bewildered man, and Lan Zhan goes into a mating frenzy.

“Lan gege , Lan dada, do you like my boobs? They're really squeezable, firm yet soft, and if you do it hard enough, I can make it squirt out milk for you. Here, please squeeze this one. And then, this one. Mmmm, you're such a good boy. Ah, ahnn, your fingers feel so goood on my pregnant breasts!”

“Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, do you like my pregnant belly? Here, touch it, and if you rub it many times, it will go ‘bump!’ because our lively baby is in there. Over here, do you feel it? No? Feel around my pregnant belly, do you think it's sexy? It's so big because I'm already nearly nine months pregnant, our baby is fat and strong inside here."

"Ah, why are you pressing so hard! I asked you to rub it, here, do it like this... gently in circles... yes... mmm, you're such a loving father... mmm... hnggh, I can feel contractions running down my pussy, can you feel it too? No? Here, let me squeeze you lovingly... do you like it? Nnnh? Let me do it again... ah, you're shivering and moving too much, like you're losing control. Let me do it one more time and squeeze my pussy around you... one, two, three, four. Breathe in, and out. Five, six, seven, eight..."

"Ah, you're a naughty husband! I can feel your one-two twitches in my pussy! You shoot your seed inside me many times a day, and you're trying your best to father as many children inside this greedy womb... still, is it not enough? Look at my tummy now, it's really growing so well. It's probably full of your seed that turned my eggs into the baby! Do you think it's a twin? A triplet? Or more? Ah, you're doing it again, you're cumming a little inside me with your one-two twitches!"

"Nnnh, you bad boy, stop pinching my nipples so hard! Stop sucking them all the time! Nnh, nnh, it's squirting out... you're... you're stealing the milk for the baby! You're really a bad boy!"

"Hnnnngh.... Lan Zhan, I think... I think I'm cumming... Oh, don't pull out, you horny man... stay inside here... mmm... let me cum, and let me massage you with my clenching pussy muscles... Ah, ah, AH AH HNN HNNGH HAHHHH Oh it feels so good! Cumming like a woman with you in me - feels - so - good! My pregnant pussy is fluttering like crazy! Your cock is twitching like mad! I can feel it!"

“Hahhh, you’re rubbing my belly so hard, do you want me to give birth so soon? You’re the one who put it in, made me nurture and nourish it, and now you want to see your child? Ah, ah, your cock is so big, and it fills me up and so, so deep, and my belly is so bloated and tight... Your penis is touching the womb, can you feel our child in there?”

“Baby Wei Ying, say hello to daddy... nnngh... the baby is wriggling, it is greeting the father! Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, please fuck me deeper, hit right at the end, yes... yes... that’s the spot... I want your penis to kiss our baby... nhaaah.... ahnnn... mmmh... my swollen uterus is kissing your penis! Ah, please kiss my uterus one more time, kissy kiss kiss, please... Ah, you horny animal, you’re poking me really deep inside!”

“My dear baby, can you feel it? Please say it for mummy... say hello to daddy... hello with the penis-kiss, and one more time, hello... and another kiss from the penis... ah, ah, Lan Zhan, why are you suddenly like a real animal in heat! Don’t fuck me so hard and so eagerly, be a little more gentle, our baby is bouncing inside there!”

“Lan Zhan... hahhh... Lan Zhan... ngghh... you’re really trying to mate with me so badly, but our baby is in there! You’re a horrible man, you’re too horny! Ah, ah, what will happen if you shoot your seed now? My womb will be flooded again! My uterus will be penetrated! Ah, our baby inside will be soaked and warmed up by its daddy’s seed! Do you want to warm the baby with your sperm? Please creampie me, our baby, into us, please, Lan Zhan!”

When Wei er ge teleports into the locked room (because he really doesn't want to open the door and let the whole world know about the pornographic acts behind the closed doors of the sterile clinic), he becomes traumatized - not so much of the view that Lan Zhan is trying so hard to impregnate - no, it's been done already - breed a pregnant teenager again and again, as the teenager rides the fired-up patriarch, freely letting the latter grope, caress and molest, and enjoy making sweet love to the slender, undulating fifteen-year old female Wei Ying that seductively calls out to the lust-driven Lan Zhan again and again, while Lan Zhan's mouth is filled with teenage breasts and he's desperately sucking, hollowing his cheeks and devouring the nipples and the entire pregnant areolae and stuffing them into his mouth - Wei er ge is traumatized because Lan Zhan seems to have forgotten what he'd just promised just a few minutes earlier - no strenuous activities, and not to let the nine-year old out of sight! What a disobedient husband, indeed! (不听话)

Lovely er ge sighs when he knows that Lan Zhan - and obviously the teenager as well - are lost causes. He casts a few spells in preparation - a modified Shield to keep their room soundproofed, Barriers are erected to prohibit entry, defensive magics are set up around the blissfully-unaware didi in the playroom, and then, he undresses completely before casting the same ugly green and horrendous pink bubbles onto his body.

“If you can't beat them, join them,” the old saying goes.

Wei er ge is many times better than the teenager in shapeshifting into the Perfect pregnant female form of Wei Ying, because he is more mature, and therefore takes on an exceedingly alluring curvaceous and voluptuous figure; he is far more capable in his vocabulary of dirty talk and vulgar descriptions, in acting and performing like a true succubus, and of course, in giving his own brand of mind-blowing, truly professionally mimicked vaginal sex. (it ain't just a simple improvised pussy anymore, it's the real deal at the level of the er ge 's spellcasting caliber.)

The blessed patriarch of the Lan family indulges himself in his harem of two pregnant Wei Yings (whose stunning sexual performance equals to two hundred maidens, really), and succumbs to the depraved orgy within the sterile walls of the clinic's ward. When each Wei Ying happily forces him to fuck him-her, let his penis savour each convulsing gaping Wei Ying-pussy, while his mouth tastes the ripe breasts of Wei Ying, has his penis fondled and pleased between juggling Wei Ying-breasts as well, together, alternatively, simultaneously, one after the other, and Wei Yings using their fertile nubile bodies to pleasure him from head to penis to toes and back again, twenty-twitches becoming a vibration of hundreds and even thousands, the psychedelic orgasmic pleasure travels round and round his nerves, body and flesh until he no longer knows if he's alive, climaxing or gone straight to heaven - for the second time that day, he is short-circuited into a whirlwind of blank ejaculations, quivering limbs, rambling semi-consciousness and balls that are emptied and emptied again - too many times.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan's penis deserved to be scolded, really.

When someone, probably the sex-fiend teenager, but he can't really tell anymore because his world has become a big kaleidoscopic fluidy ball of penis-in-pussies, ass-confused-with-pussies, penis-spurting-inside-pussies and his senses are full of orgasmic moans, twitches, and contractions - when that someone whispers to his ears, that if the patriarch would allow the use of Creation spells to make multiple heavily-pregnant Wei Yings live in their tiny cave-home, so that he can make babies with them all day to his heart's content, make more Wei Yings to be impregnated, and line them up on his bed every hour so that he can take his pleasure through a choice selection of familiar buttocks, tasty breedworthy pussy, plump and milky breasts, or sample a variety of virginal tight entrances, juicy puffed-up excited love tunnels, or quivering, vibrating orgasming ones, one by one - his penis twitches in hearty "yes"es to each presented option with great desire and want.

Lan Zhan casts a Silence spell on his penis, so that it cannot answer anymore - for a brief respite.

(By the way, Wei da ge is busy showering sexual spells on the trio including amplification and multiplication of sexual sensations and responses - hence Lan Zhan's misery.

At one point, Wei da ge , who frequently gets to top their husband, wonders if they should reverse their roles and make Lan Zhan pregnant, while the three adult Wei gongzi s take turns to bed the well-muscled but bloated-bellied patriarch. "Eww" was the response he received, though didi seemed naively interested because he thought a pregnant man is no different than a pot-bellied, chubby man; the image of Lan Zhan's meaty six-pack abs turning into a big round wok comes to mind - this sparks another wonderful idea that the harem should fatten up, force-feed, and pamper their patriarch until he becomes an immobile giant ball of morbidly obese fatty flabs and jiggling rolls, and take their sweet time in making sweet love with the man, because by then there's so much more of Lan Zhan for everyone, even if they multiply themselves into hundreds of nubile boy's and fertile maidens that crawl on top, ride vigorously, and snuggle into the soft baby fat from sunrise to sundown, and let him spend hours on end deep inside them, excitedly and orgasming non-stop like a vibrating mass of wiggly fat, from sundown to sunrise.)

~~~@(@@~~~@(@@~~~

A clandestine modified pink bubble spell cast and lined on all furniture and surfaces, before Lan Zhan's second out of three feel-goods promised to his spouses, eases the clean-up operation; Wei san ge happily bundles up and crumples the soiled and soaked giant plastic sheets, and teleports them to their production plant where they will be properly cleaned, treated and recycled for the good of the environment. Wei er ge is all blushing and giddy, and very very smug, and lets the other do the work - lovely er ge received most of Lan Zhan's cumless cums because the twenty-two year old is just that good with genderbent sexual intercourse.

After bidding their good-byes to the clinic's staff (adorable Wei didi captured the hearts of the nurses, and they promised to place more orders for medicinal candies as long as the didi visit them more often in the future), Wei er ge piggybacks an unresponsive Lan Zhan from the Market Streets to their special hidden garden - their heaven on earth - just a stone's throw away from the fringes of the city. They didn't look out of place amongst other citizens - just a simple family of four, with the eldest with bandaged limbs being carried by the younger ones, just as are others milling around with more or less signs of treated injuries arising from the eclipse earlier that day.

After a family pee-ing session on the landmark clump of thicket (all three Wei gongzi s helped to steady their patriarch, who was still catatonic and in a sex-drunken stupor, and Sssssh together to encourage him to relieve himself, with three hands on the trickling member, of course), they reached their favourite picnic site with smiles on their faces. Midday heat is bearing down on the open-air field, but none of them are concerned.

The picnic site has been significantly upgraded; the entire place is well-maintained, mowed, bushes pruned, a few patio umbrellas installed around the compound to give ample shade, and the furniture has been repaired and refurbished - new paint jobs, sanded and smoothed to give a natural, aged look, and lined with vintage lotus-themed fixtures and tablecloths. Near the center there are ready-built fire pits and a stove-like barbeque grill. On the sides are some structures that look awfully out of (time and) place, which are fixed at the da ge ’s insistence - because this is their family’s private sanctuary after all, that no one has discovered so far, and it’s perfectly fine to claim this patch of land as theirs - such as water taps, drinking fountains, electrical sockets, wiring, pipes and a network of talismans cleverly hidden amongst the dense and trimmed bushes, also further away, there are properly-constructed pavillions, automated toilet units and changing rooms and other amenities, which makes for a great family-oriented outdoor park. Best of all, da ge had cast a special force field around the area and with a snap of the fingers, turns on the invisible, ventless air-conditioning.

Wei er ge ‘phews’ as he lowers Lan Zhan to the ground (his waist did ache a little after carrying the older, heavier man for some distances), and the two youngest Wei siblings rush to seat their patriarch on one of the larger, more spacious benches that come with a backrest. “Just... five minutes off our rendezvous time. Sorry, we were caught up with san ge 's pranks again," he says with a huff, and accepts a plastic cup of refreshing iced orange juice from the eldest brother. The da ge made iced lemon tea for the teenager, and a cup of time-inappropriate in-house branded cola for the youngest. The drinks dispenser whirrs softly at each press of button, powered by cables that run into the dense bushes.

"It's not a prank, er ge ! I was just trying out a new strategy to divvy up Lan Zhan. But... it seems getting him to cum every hour isn't working too well," the teenager retorts with a whine, in between sips of his drink, "And we can't keep forcing him to do it three times in a row either. Ahhh! It's so frustrating dealing with an old man!" and he pouts like a spoiled brat.

Wei er ge rolls his eyes and sighs. "That's your problem. You're just too pre-occupied with his dick. Don't treat him like a cow, san ge . He's not something you can plan ahead on when to milk. And he's not a commodity that you can just simply cut up and divide," he chastises the sibling, but ends up sniggering at his choice of words.

Wei da ge hushes the two from getting into another brotherly love-quarrel, and tells them apologetically that he had to gather the family at short notice (Wei er ge received the telepathic memo right after they stepped out of the clinic), because he managed to re-shuffle his appointments and squeeze some important meetings in 'this part of the world' in the afternoon. So, he decided to organize an impromptu family lunch; he quickly grabbed his gear, teleported to the picnic site with his personal Postbirds to carry all the food - which are just some of the wide selection of the company's offerings of food catering services and conveniently-packed hot meals for the family to sample a taste - one of the perks of working in a food-based establishment is that everyone gets to have a bite too.

Wei didi dutifully works in the background, handing out plates, napkins and cutlery to the siblings, fanning their patriarch lying bonelessly on the bench until he stirs - but barely - and when he does, sweet didi slowly helped him to drink a cup of warmed pu'er tea dispensed from the machine in a real ceramic cup - because their cheap disposable paper cups aren't worthy of being used by their patriarch after all. It is a kind gesture, by lifting the cup to the lips and tilting it gently so that Lan Zhan could swallow gulps after gulps of much-needed liquid since his body had been drained, even dehydrated many times over.

When the little boy notices the teenager tip-toes towards the food trays, Wei didi earnestly shouts out in his squeaky voice, "Hey, all of you should wash your hands first!" - because that is one of the family rules which he remembers clearly (such a cute boy, he is definitely the most Lan of the quartet), and because after all the sex they middle two Wei siblings had, surely their fingers are coated with more than just sweat and grime.

"... Yes!" (是) the gongzi s reply in unison and rush to the water taps.

After the ritualized calling and inviting their still-unresponsive patriarch to start the meal, everyone piles their plates with food from, literally speaking, all over the world - and dig in. There are salads, cheese, baked bread and pastries, steaks, barbequed poultry meats, seafood including crabs, oysters, mussels and other shellfish, bolognese spaghetti, macaroni and cheese, sushi, meat pies, paella, tonkotsu ramen, beef pho, grilled bulgogi, vegetable stir-fries, tom yum soup, miso soup, apple strudels, pudding, macarons, chocolates, western cakes, exotic and foreign fruits - served with a fine selection of cocktails, wines and juices; of course the youngest is barred from alcohol - amongst others that are typically served in a five-star hotel restaurant in the far, far future.

Wei didi is the most loyal and obedient of the lot; he sits beside the dazed patriarch, and carefully selects the foods that Lan Zhan is familiar with - the man's stomach probably couldn't take in food that are processed in foreign ways, or laden with artificial (even organic) colourings, flavourings and preservatives. There is a choice of quintessential Gusu fare as well - mildly-savoury chicken congee, plain rice, boiled vegetables and fish, and yes there's also the fried tofu dipped in their favourite plum sauce, which instantly refreshes and perks him up after the first few chews. Nibble by nibble, mouthful by mouthful, the loving didi feeds Lan Zhan a meagre selection of what da ge brought - but that is just Perfectly fine, really.

In the meantime, the adult Wei gongzi s mill about the picnic site and engage in animated chatter, both mentally and to some extent vocally, because of Gusu Lan family rules that forbid conversations during meal times, although leeway is given to this particular branch of the family since the Wei Yings can never shut up. They talked briefly about the morning's events, the solar eclipse which has been dismissed as an insignificant blip in the heavens (and much of Yiling thinks so too - considering at that particular era, people didn't know about planetary orbits or the science behind such natural phenomenon; it's just one of those 'weird things that the gods do to play tricks on us', like an unseasonal sandstorm, a jolt from an earthquake, or hailstones in the middle of summer), and most of their discussions circle around their newly-minted marriage certificates - each one now holds a booklet of their own!

They proudly show it to each other - although every booklet is exactly the same - pose with it with joyful grins and cute "kawaii" postures, take pictures and videos with it using time-inappropriate hand-held cams and mobile phone-lookalikes that the da ge fetched from his suitcase (which is part of the cargo carried by the Postbirds), then cheekily drag Lan Zhan into the picture whenever his eyes didn't look too half-open-half-closed (although in his current incoherent state, he believes he's having a nightmare with weird objects aimed at him, and he looks left then right and never to the front, refuses all forms of picture or video-taking, but his disturbed and distorted-looking unattractive appearance appears anyway on the screens with eagerly posing Wei Yings, unless one of them photobombed the rest which is an entirely different story), and uploaded the media files into their family's cloud drive somewhere in the Net - because that kind of technology is fast thriving in the Wuji continent although nothing as such exists yet in the Middle Kingdom. The da ge's wi-fi capabilities are rather limited in this instance, so he nudges the didi to 'take care of it', because his fingers are busy tearing an oily chicken wing fresh from the smoking barbeque grill together with burgers, sausages, spare ribs, corn on the cob, root vegetables and other skewered meats.

Didi "Enn!"s; images, texts, pictures, videos, and broadly all forms of data passes from the devices into the surrounding air - technically speaking, they're transmitted via an ever-present network that the Wei Yings have set up to link all their household and personal devices and gadgets - including their telepathy -, and good ol' Ernie sucks everything up, processes the data, and beams them to the appropriate places, even spaces and times.

"Hey Ernie, sort the files from today, and add them to our family album," didi squeaks out inside his mind. By then, Ernie's Net coverage includes Yiling too - the Wei gongzi s believed this is due to his underground complex home having expanded far across the 'Mounds and its surrounding areas; when in actual fact, Ernie has grown far, far beyond after the solar eclipse -, and it responds curtly:

Files are uploading... processing... Done.

Added new chapter to the family album. Query: please insert the name of the chapter?

Didi thought for a while, and sees that his brothers are exceptionally overjoyed with their little booklets, and they're waving them like pompoms with two hands.

“Building our happiness... with these two hands!”

Notes for the Chapter:

Chapter 47

“So, da ge , are you really sure about this? I know the Tian sisters have received a memo from you a few days earlier, but to meet them... together, all four of us!... Won't that be a little... say, too much and too sudden?

STOP PAWING LAN ZHAN YOU HORNY BEAST! GET YOUR HANDS OFF HIM!

What I mean is, we don't know how the sisters will react, much less receive our presence - all four Wei siblings with nearly if not the same faces! They'll go crazy with their didi multiplied by a factor of four!

DON'T RAPE HIM IN YOUR FEMALE FORM, OTHERWISE HE'LL HAVE NIGHTMARES ABOUT US!

And...I have some misgivings about letting them learn more about us. What if they suddenly have a bright idea to steal our ideas and our magics, become our business competitors, then multiply among themselves too? The world can't handle four of us as it is, what more an army of the inhuman Tian's!

ARE YOU EVEN LISTENING TO ME?! YOU'RE CHOKING HIM WITH YOUR BOOBS, HE CAN'T BREATHE!”

Wei er ge is having a hard time trying to have an intellectual conversation with the da ge after a sumptuous outdoor lunch, but the teenage san ge can't resist outraging their patriarch's modesty and extract the last of the promised three orgasms since mid-morning, because it's already way after twelve-thirty at noon, and his plans of getting their husband to cum once per hour is on the verge of failing miserably, and he's trying to salvage his experiment by making it happen anyway so that at least, for his personal records, he could say that he'd attempted the impossible.

Wei didi sits cross-legged on the foot of the bench, next to Lan Zhan's legs, innocently munching on peeled water chestnuts that help to cool the afternoon heat (despite their air-conditioned atmosphere, it still feels a bit warm due to the blazing sunlight), and is entertained by the antics of his older brothers.

Wei san ge had already undressed Lan Zhan and started molesting him, touching inappropriately at his sensitive places, especially the genitals - hence the first angry burst from his elder sibling. Then, he used his tried-and-tested method of turning into a female form, climbs up the bench, then mounts him-herself onto a half-hard erection in a desperate attempt to ignite the flames in the latter's loins, however Lan Zhan didn't respond any more than that (because his entire network of sexual meridians and nerves are deep-fried, and his reproductive system has shut down for major maintenance and repair works, really) - thus, landing the teenager in hot waters again with another scolding from the elder sibling. Finally, he-she tries to wake up the delirious older man by rubbing his-her body against the other while vigorously bouncing up and down the still-limp penis, to the point where he-she slaps his-her boobs against Lan Zhan's cheeks, tries to sandwich his face against the boobs, and when there is still no lively response, he-she stuffs his engorged areola and nipples into the man's mouth while squeezing the boobs enthusiastically until Lan Zhan's mouth is spattered and dribbles with warm magically-made breastmilk - and promptly received a third lashing from the elder sibling again.

With that, Wei san ge finally gives up on his tactic of using females to seduce Lan Zhan, and crosses off the idea from a long list of naughty ways to satisfy both his, and the patriarch's bottomless and deranged pit of depraved desires.

The teenager rises, wipes away any fluids leaking out from the bottom - because despite Lan Zhan's zoned-out state, the half-hard arousal still dances its one-two tangos from being lovingly assaulted by a juicy pregnant love canal, but there's hardly anything besides crystal-clear sticky fluid - and transforms back to his original male form (thankfully).

He sits heavily on the ground in front of the patriarch, pouts and grumbles unhappily. He throws tantrums by plucking the mowed grass and flings them at the older man, while complaining that 'Lan Zhan is a stupid useless old man' and its various brattish iterations, hallmark of the san ge's bad immature behaviour, and his emotions are in turmoil for the silliest reasons. Naturally, some of the torn grass blades land on nearby Wei didi's yellow-white water chestnuts, and the little boy screams that the older brother is bullying him again, and adds more screeching on why he has to suffer by having his dessert spoiled by the brother, and the teenager retaliates that it's the didi's fault for sitting too close, then the didi throws the soiled water chestnut and it hits san ge's nose, then Wei da ge makes a scathing remark that the teenager is too bratty for his own good, and Wei san ge reaches out to hug the teenager who has started to tear up and the dam's about to break, and scolds didi for hurting a sibling because he's still in his naggy angry-mommy mood, then one thing led to another... fistfights and verbal abuse ensues.

Lan Zhan finally gathers enough qi to shift his ass a little on the wooden bench, and sits upright as much as his abused nether regions will allow. He overheard the ruckus - not much, due to him slipping in and out of consciousness -, but enough. He ‘a-hems’ and all four Wei gongzi s freeze in mid-fight.

He knows everything started because of their agreed marital arrangements to share their love equally with the husband, and he promised to follow through. There is no energy left in his limbs, but there is strength in his words, and therefore, his authority to command his harem and unite them. First, to take care of the bawling kid, because his cries are causing a headache for everyone;

“ Didi... come here and sit by my side. I will feed you with cleaned, fresh water chestnuts from the bowl on the table... please, don’t cry anymore.”

“ Da ge ... I don’t really understand what is happening... but I trust you can take care of things, discreetly and honestly... Please focus on our business... and leave the domestic affairs with us... Let’s hug, so that we can forget, and leave our troubles behind.”

“ Er ge ... You’re a wonderful homemaker... trying so hard to satisfy everyone and making sure our family stays on track. Your anger is justified... and the need for cool heads as well. Come, hold me, it will help to calm down your feelings.”

“ San ge ... I promised never to disappoint you... I have failed before, but I am trying my best. I will try again, even if it means a shortened lifespan for my... family jewels... so come, stop the fighting, let me love you too.”

All Wei gongzi s become very touched by their patriarch’s breathless, almost dying, impassioned speech about the true virtues of the Lan family, because he struggles weakly to mouth his words and to gesture his hands at each spouse. They crowd around their beloved husband, embrace him together, and kiss him sweetly on the cheeks and lips.

(The Patriarch has spoken, and all is well again within the Lan family.)

Later, Lan Zhan cuddles with an adorable nine-year old while popping diced water chestnuts into the child’s lips, and enjoys watching him munch happily on the juicy, sugary treat. Once in a while, he nnnnhs and arches his back on the bench despite the wobbly limbs, when the older members of his harem reward him the Perfect in-sync, flawlessly switchable multi-speed and depth, triple blowjob with an exquisite six-hand combo powered by pure unrestrained Wei Ying-ness and their magics, never experienced by any man in the Mortal Realm - Lan Zhan can finally tell the world that he’s tasted Heaven, that it feels really, really good - and worth dying for.

(Somewhere high above, the Jade Emperor sneezes again. Either someone is bad-mouthing him, or pollen from the blooming trees of Peaches of Immortality is making his nose itch.)

Lan Zhan has become a Buddha. Well, sort of.

He walks with such enigmatic and divinely grace even with a walking cane, his appearance exudes with such calmness and peace, and his movements are non-existent unless purposeful; he seems to be at one with the world, detached from the troubles and suffering around him, and his consciousness transcends everyone else's, metaphorically speaking.

So, when the five members of the Lan family finally meet face to face, for the first time (other than Wei er ge ), with the eight members of the Tian sisterhood, in a reserved grand private dining room within Liang's teahouse - he merely "Mn"s and bows in polite respect at the chattering and squealing females, then gestures Wei da ge to take matters in his own hands, and takes his seat as the grand patriarch overseeing the conversations - and does not need to lift a finger further. The sisters had received a memo earlier which summarizes what had happened to Wei Ying and why there are now four Wei Yings (with ample white lies added to make the story more believable, in a typical avoidance tactic by Wei Ying, because all Wei Yings remain suspicious of the females with a history of sleazy, even suspicious backgrounds).

The females, as Wei er ge correctly guessed, went berserk - in a good way - to find a total of four adoptive brothers added into their Tian family tree, plus the highly-regarded and stoic di fu who is the source of everyone's current happiness. Adding the fact that the youngest Tian sister is adopted by the famous and rich Liang family, that makes Lan Zhan's family - a family of interconnected families.

Hence, when each Tian sister greets him, exchange pleasantries, politely asked about the bandages on his legs and the walking cane (in which he simple mutters something brief about the solar eclipse - and everybody gets it), and unsurprisingly, display inappropriate sexual behaviours - because that most of them have been working in that sort of industry long enough - such as covert thigh-and-leg slides, hands slipping beneath his trousers' waistband, cuddles and hugs masqueraded as outright crotch-rubs, light swats on the ass, smooches on his cheeks and jawline and even nuzzling his facial hair up close in a pretended act of familial friendliness - or the devious love spells and intoxicating perfumes cast all over the room upon the females' entry which affects all Mortal men (therefore excluding the Wei Yings), as a Buddha-in-the-making after such a soul-detaching experience in the morning until midday, Lan Zhan remains oblivious and unresponsive to their seduction - and those swaying breast milk jugs and fertile hips do nothing to his libido (because he has none left) - the girls knew right away that the great Han Guang Jun is truly a man worthy of respect, and lives up to his reputation as a symbol of loyalty, purity and divine holiness. They withdraw to put a decent distance (i.e. personal space) between him and the rest of the mingling buzzing and squealy screechy shrilly family reunion of sorts.

Lan Zhan sighs, and takes a sip of A-grade premium pu'er brew at his seat on the corner of a table, alone and undisturbed. The tea is made from the freshest tea leaf shoots and served only to the elite, and not from those mass-produced tea bags found in every eatery. He surveys the warzone, and takes notes of each member's peculiarities :-

Wei didi is, at best, loved to bits, and at worst, suffering from child molestation and female overdose, when every sister, voluptuous and slender ones included, hugs, boob-crushes and peppers kisses all over his face, before the little boy is left dealing with the psychopath Fifth and the youngest Eighth Sister (dearly known as Tian Tian). Fifth Tian Sister, despite being well-dressed - all the sisters are fitted in respectable attire unlike what Wei Ying first saw in Tian Mi Mi - could not stop harassing and touching the nine-year old boy improperly, while Tian Tian seems to be falling in puppy love with the handsomest boy she's ever met in her early adolescent life; she stares at him with doe eyes for pretty much the entire hour spent at the teahouse, and her caretaker, Liang gu niang , isn't around to snuff out the blooming young love.

Wei san ge revels in being the spotlight of two girls's attention in particular. Sixth Sister is a mess of conflicting thoughts and emotions - hot-headed yet shy, fierce at one moment then pouty at the next - in some strange ways, she is compatible with the teenage Wei Ying and are fast becoming best-buddies too (and she managed to find out Wei Ying's favourite sex positions too). The cute and adorable Seventh Sister attaches herself tightly to Wei san ge and expresses her preteen love in many ways, including unladylike touching and more suitable cuddling around his arms.

Wei er ge gets down to business with Fourth Sister, who for some reason continued to sniff Wei Ying's body up and down as if she's trying to detect something - and since both are awesome magicians (second to Wei da ge ), they had a wonderful time catching up on the latest happenings in the world of magic, ideas for new spells and promises to exchange grimoires, and laugh at gossips of some cultivator's spellcasting accidents reported in recent periodicals. The moment Third Sister steps into the discussion, everyone talks even louder and more excitedly, when motherly stories are shared, ranging from childcare, schooling, cooking, tailoring, and even the matters within Qishan Merchant Guild - at this point, Wei er ge promptly whips out catalogues from his sleeve pockets to show them their company's latest products, introduces at length about the offerings, and impresses the ladies very well with his A wesome S elling S kills (and closes extra sales with the Tian's, with a potential to sign lucrative contracts with the teahouse, Tian Mi Mi, and the Guild too).

Wei da ge is the most capable of them all - because Lan Zhan suspects he is maintaining contact with the Wei gongzi s, and even to some extent, controlling the overall conversations with his awesome psychic abilities - despite being constantly seduced and slithered all over by the Second Sister and her sexy voice and figure - and the top dog (or bitch) of the sisterhood, the Tian da jie . They eased into a serious conversation regarding the latest affairs afflicting the politics, economics and society within Yiling and more broadly, Qishan. When the genius Wei da ge cunningly weaves a line of questioning and speculations into the sisters' current lifestyle and background, and unearths a deep dark secret about Tian da jie being related to a great-grandfather of epic godly power and proportions living in the skies - Lan Zhan takes a deep breath, tells himself in a Buddha-like manner that he should close his eyes and be oblivious to matters that will only inflict unnecessary anxiety, confusion, suffering and hurt upon himself, and focus on enlightening his conscience on what is truly the core of the matter at present - a family reunion of sorts at Liang's teahouse - so that he returns to his zen -like state once again.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The meeting concluded successfully, at least from the elder Wei Yings' perspectives. Wei da ge informed the Tian sisters that the land around their home has been earmarked for sale, and he offers to use the Lan company's treasuries to buy them up and let the sisters stay there for free - fully furnished bungalow homes, swimming pools, gardens and orchards included -, in exchange for say, closer family ties and, say, to strengthen the alliances of the interconnected families against the 'forces that threaten to destabilize the stability of our familial ties and goodwill'. To sweeten the deal, he also offers a marvellous opportunity to work part-time or full-time at the company, with the chance to "see a whole new world like you've never seen before", in case they become bored of life in the red-light district of Fragrant Blossoms Street. The sisters fell for his fabulous, charming words, the call-to-arms, and promises of a better, brighter future - and wholeheartedly agreed; they still believe that the company is a booming food company selling plum sauce, candies and other traditional meals and snacks, which kind of places the da ge atop the sugar daddy pedestal, which is why they wholly support him and Team Lan.

(At this point, Lan Zhan calmly sips the last bit of his tea, because he has eavesdropped too much and learnt more about his spouses than what he is normally comfortable with; but Wei Ying is never normal, so he attributes the new insights about his Wei Yings, as a sign of more Wei Ying-ness to come and bless his - their - family in times to come.)

When it was time to bid their good-byes, Tian da jie pulls Lan Zhan aside for a quick, guarded exchange on the happenings at Gusu. She tried to make the trip a few weeks ago, but was turned back at the borders of the province. The entrances have been sealed off to non-locals, apparently in a bid to stop protesters from making headwinds into the resource-rich mountainous plains of Gusu, and form an effective barrier to any possible incursions from Chang'an and the northern provinces that support the Imperial forces. Since Tian da jie no longer has her Jade Token, she was denied entrance, and she didn't want to cause a ruckus or draw unwanted attention since she was travelling in a convoy of innocent civilians, herdsmen and merchants. Jin cultivators and soldiers are seen actively moving in and out of Gusu, accompanied by members of Lan sect. It is safe to say that an uneasy alliance may have formed between the two, which would have effectively stamped out any further rebellious acts within the Cloud Recesses and the outlying cities and towns. Rumours are still rife about deaths caused by fierce corpses and undead creatures spreading from Caiyi Town to neighbouring villages. She promised to keep an eye on the situation and will send updates as soon as she hears from her network of helpful friends from the borders; already, a group of Lan branch family members who still had their Jade Tokens have infiltrated into Gusu, tasked to uncover the actual situation in their motherland.

Lan Zhan nods with a grave expression - the fact that his parent-sect is willing to work alongside with the Jins is an indication that there is a greater threat around them - perhaps the Imperial forces from Chang'an? And he wonders if Nie Huaisang has already sworn his allegiance to the Emperor because his sect lies closest to the capital - it would be unsurprising if he did, since that man wavers at the sight of a blade - whether from a soldier, a cultivator or an assassin. One possible option would be to seek the help of Wei Ying's former sect - there will be complications if they, and possibly will, encounter Jiang Wanyin and those working directly under him.

Lan Zhan bows in thanks to his shijie without saying much else. Tian da jie remarked that she is glad to see him after so many years (he doesn't remember seeing much of her, though, during his childhood), that he has grown up to be a handsome, strong man, a very capable heir to the Gusu Lan's family throne if he still held his position as Chief Cultivator (but she understands that the Grand Cultivation Council is not a suitable place for him, and his withdrawal is absolutely understandable), and that he has become her - her family's - di fu , in which he gives an uncharacteristic smile in response, and tells her that the feeling is mutual, and they should contact each other soon. He mentions that their families could do an outdoor barbeque picnic one of these days before autumn sets in.

Tian da jie laughs and gives Lan Zhan a sisterly hug, before leaving the teahouse back to the streets of Yiling.

Wei da ge too, apologizes and excuses himself as he has to return to the company for another meeting at around mid-afternoon. Lan Zhan, the cane in hand, stops the da ge with a few words. "Wei Ying, a question."

“Hmm?” Wei da ge responds, and leans toward their patriarch so close that the latter can feel hot breaths, wafts of strange synthetic smells from the rich black robes, and even fingertips touching the back of the hand - but no more than that, because they’re in the middle of the street with plenty of pedestrians walking about.

“I will not ask about what goes on with our company, since you’re running the business. But... the money...,” Lan Zhan starts, and then ends with a cliffhanger - an open statement, a gap intentionally left to let the other man fill. He stares at the thirty-year old Wei Ying, trying to fathom what goes on behind the deep set of black eyes.

Wei da ge grins, then relaxedly clasps both hands behind his back. “Lan Zhan, please don’t worry. I’ve kept our businesses separated from our cave-home and domestic affairs in there, so that things are about the same as the good ol’ days, as promised. This includes our financials too. If you need to know, we’re earning enough to pay off what I’m offering to the Tian sisters - and you don’t need to know how and how much, because I’m sure you’ll raise your hand at me if I told you.

However, I know that deep inside, you need to be assured that we’re doing something right. Something that benefits the family, something that you can see with your eyes, hold with your hands, align with your virtues, that resonates with your Perfect universe. It’s only fair that you get a piece of the action, a slice of the cake, but you don’t need to, nor want to, dwell on the finer details of who, what, when and the hows.” Wei da ge looks very calm, confident, and gleeful - an image of a successful laoban indeed.

Lan Zhan knows too well where the conversation is going. He’s being led by the nose by the da ge ’s brilliant deduction and reasoning. He snorts.

“You know me too well. How much?” and looks away, feeling slightly miffed at being revealed too easily. Curse the mind-reading ability.

Wei da ge walks ahead and Lan Zhan sees the broad, comforting and bold back of a man who has somehow, through illicit or proper means, succeeded in his promise to prosper their family business. “As gainfully-employed staff, shareholders and founding members of our new company, I’d say, let the company pay out two gold pieces for each Lan family member per day. That’s about the same spending money we used to get in the good ol’ days. Does that sound fair?” He stops, and so does Lan Zhan, clutching his cane.

He takes a few seconds to work out some calculations. “Nnngh. You’re a stinger, despite your big words back at the teahouse.”

Wei da ge raises a hand with two fingers up, “I’ll double it once we hit our first quarterly sales milestones.”

Lan Zhan hobbles ahead slowly until he overtakes the eldest Wei. “Deal.”

Notes for the Chapter:

I'm on a roll here. Bringing back the sisters just for the sake of moving the plot forward. Sorry, I still love my Wei Yings more than other character and plot element :-)

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 48

The skies are overcast, though temperatures are still summer-warm.

The Lan family decided to rest at the local playground at the residential area bordering the outskirts of the city, before heading home. Wei er ge insists to do “one more round of selling”, because he’s so used to his street peddling route, that he needs to completely cover his bases before moving on - a budding sign that Wei Ying is picking up Lan Zhan’s habits of routineness and perfection, as time passes. According to the twenty-two year old talented salesman (due to his vastly improved A wesome S elling S kills, telepathically enhanced by their da ge ’s even more awesome brainwashing and mind-controlling abilities), in the morning, he had secured new contracts with the City Council and therefore they will be able to supply government offices and events soon; then, more orders from healthcare establishments including clinics and hospitals under the Li group; after lunch and before the meeting with the Tian sisters, he visited his usual haunts along main streetside shops and obtained more orders; and finally, the last customer base are the residents of Yiling.

Lan Zhan watches the young man magically whip out a wooden cart full of, for lack of a better word, goodies, using a Creation-based spell and disguised with Sparkles and other family-friendly visual effects. He sells company-branded talismans which is, in essence, from the Infinity series with their logos stripped off and replaced, then thrown into the rebranded-Infinity pouch, closed, jiggled around like a cocktail mixer, and hundreds more pile onto the cart when the pouch is re-opened - hence, the power of self-replenishment of the said pouch. He would also plunge his hand into the re-branded Infinity Bag of Holding, and take out bundles of charms, minor magical items, and potions useful for households. The man would then sing his usual jingle, this time with added bells and whistles from cleverly-hidden loudspeakers (one does do not question the origin - lest the patriarch raises his hand to stop the conversation), and housewives both young and old stream out of their homes to meet their favourite talisman merchant.

(Of note, Wei da ge has examined the Infinity series of magical gadgets and talismans, and is on the way to reverse-engineer the products under their company's brand, and plans to make them available in supermarkets and retail stores near Wuji continent and beyond other space and time. He plans to launch the new product line soon with limited-time offers to drive sales among cultivators and the magic-using profession from other countries and cultures.)

Wei Ying has become a kind of local superstar, due to his good looks, million-yuan smile, and unique family and housewives-friendly approach for selling his wares and services right in front of houses, thus saving them the inconvenience of looking for a shaman or cultivator further away in the city. His (formal) business proposition is attractive as well - "a direct-to-consumer service to give the chance for all Yiling's citizens, regardless of age and gender, to experience everyday-magics that enable, enhance and enrich people's lifestyles through home comfort and convenience in modern times!", and to housewives with a streak of feminism, "Equalizing and liberalizing access to magics, and bringing power and control to your fingertips - who says only the Man in the house can change the lanterns? Just push the Big Red Circle on the talisman, and you can do it too!"

(Wei Ying still runs into administrative problems to register the YingTech trademark (which would be an awesome rival to the Magics R' Us brand), and therefore, to patent the Big Red Circle concept, because the City Council still harbours suspicions on names related to Yin Metal, which until today still carries negative connotations, and therefore, perceived as bad taste in branding. However, Wei Ying soldiers on, and continues to submit his paperwork to the Council office periodically.)

While business is brisk, Lan Zhan takes the momentary quiet time to reflect on what he has learnt that day - while Wei san ge stalks a human-friendly stray male calico cat by continuously touching its tail and (Lan Zhan sighs) its fluffy twin-balls with a stick, climbs up trees to try and raid low-hanging bird nests, and generally terrorizing the local wildlife within the park's enclosure; Wei didi spends his time more productively by playing the slides and swings; and once in a while, he teams up with the teenager to play see-saws and merry-go-rounds before the latter becomes bored of kiddy games, and the kid is left alone on his own - under the watchful eyes of their patriarch. There are also some outdoor gym equipment more suitable for the healthy and elderly population - pull-up bars, balancing beams and even parallel dip bars (made from vines, stone and wood, since crafted metal is still considered a luxury in the present era); Yiling's middle-upper class live in rather modern, upscale neighbourhoods, and there are adequate even desirable amenities for all age groups, including commercial areas, schools, clinics and hospitals, transport hubs, and public facilities such as libraries, swimming pools and community centres, all within walking distance. If the Lan family decides to relocate out of their humble tiny cave-home, with enough money, Yiling's residential areas could be a good option for consideration.

Lan Zhan had gathered enough thought and understanding about his spouses, his assets and properties, and his new family business - not to the finest detail, since that would be too complex, too microscopic, and too difficult to comprehend; just enough to know the gist of things. Wei da ge has wisely divided up their activities into two parts, which run independently and to some extent, interdependently, of each other - one is the 'business affairs', and the other is affectionately called the 'domestic affairs'.

Just barely a week ago, and Lan Zhan suspects - which is probably true in all accounts - that Creation and Time warping spells have been used in reckless abundance, Wangxian Co. Ltd. (hereafter named Wangxian) has been set up shortly after he awoke in this brave new world. It is headquartered and has its production sites set up in a faraway continent called Wuji. Through some unexplainable magical mechanism, one has to turn off at The Junction near their cave-home, then cross over to The Highway, and take a certain exit to Wangxian's sprawling complex of ultra-futuristic office towers, factories, research and development facilities and everything else including a metropolis to house everything, everyone, every employee to sustain and grow the business (Lan Zhan has not seen the Kingdom a.k.a. the Wuji continent yet, nor does he want to, but he cannot avoid the dreadful day he's to make a trip for the ribbon-cutting ceremony and officiate new launches - because he still doesn't like crowded places).

Wangxian makes everything , to his knowledge, after eavesdropping on the da ge 's non-stop chatter during lunch on his latest magical and non-magical inventions, product offerings, shipments sent out and customers' feedbacks (at this point, Lan Zhan would've raised his hand to shut the conversation, had he not been short-circuited by too much sex). It's no longer a food company - it's the greatest conglomerate and the ultimate, supremely powerful mega-corporation that could take over humanity, and even the gods, and swallow up the whole world of both Mortal and God Realms if willed by the patriarch, and the patriarch would definitely say Ye-

"Wei Ying, please do not interrupt and disturb my meditation," Lan Zhan frowns with his eyes closed and talks to no one in particular, while taking another sip from the bamboo container, sitting on a park bench beneath a clump of shady trees. A slightly invasive presence inside his mind - which he's come to identify as the da ge 's, after experiencing numerous attempts to feed ideas and words into him, even mind-control and hypnotic-psychic suggestions - withdraws, apologetically.

Lan Zhan returns to his train of thought. He knows, that Wei da ge knows, and therefore a tacit understanding and working principle is established within their family and the business, that there will be little or no disruption in everyday life allowed in Lan Zhan's world ("world" here is loosely used to mean what the man perceives around him). In time, the patriarch may change his views and tolerate more progress and evolution of his - their - lifestyle; however, with this principle in place, it means Wangxian will make, sell, prosper, and do whatever is needed because the da ge, the President of the company, is green-lighted by the patriarch to dictate everything for the business in his discreet, honest ways.

On the other hand, life in their cave-home will return to normalcy - with some slight modernization upgrades, such as the outdoor bath, toilets, the courtyard, even benefitting their home in general such as the bedroom, kitchen-cum-dining area, and the abominable workroom that has unfortunately swallowed his guqin and Wei Ying's A.S.S. notebook. He secretly and happily notes that the sputtering D-Broom will soon be put out of commission as it is reaching its shelf-life, since new versions are already available from their company, and he does not intend to get a replacement unit - he wants to sweep the floor with a natural straw broom once again. The Floor Mat however, has to stay because didi is too fond of it, despite the patriarch's utter dislike for cold black things in the basement.

Earning ten gold pieces a day is a windfall, and a new norm, for the family of five. Lan Zhan's money pouch is fat with upfront payments from the da ge before he left for his mid-afternoon meeting, and the patriarch already gave one to the teenager to buy a new basket (and purchase more provisions) to replace the tattered one damaged by street brats earlier that morning; he's rich enough that he doesn't need to weave baskets for the family, when urgent need arises. In fact, he's rich enough and has a sustainable income (similar to getting rental payments or receiving blue-chip stock market dividends) that he could consider a semi-retirement lifestyle, should the desire arise. He does not need to start the kitchen stove at five in the morning to make dumplings, fried snacks or herbal candies for sale - and Wei Ying no longer needs to continue his back-breaking day job of delivering food and selling at the marketplace; he just needs to make Fairy Messenger calls - and if what he crows victoriously after the teahouse meeting is true - or contract the Qishan Merchant Guild's call centre to handle their orders automatically in the future; but he'll still make his trips to the city, because Wei Ying loves to meet, talk and be with people, after all. Wei Ying's portfolio is limited to plum sauce, and local food condiments, foods and snacks that the average Middle Kingdom consumer is familiar with; there are no plans to introduce anything beyond that, lest the patriarch raises his hands on all four Wei Yings for disrupting the space-time continuum with such careless actions.

In some sense, the new norm for the family will no longer focus on work and earning enough money to put food on the table. They'll still grow their own vegetables, rear their animals, catch their fish and shrimps - because he's a staunch believer of going organic - they'll still carry out their household chores, forage for goodies from the bountiful 'Mounds, hunt jungle fowls because Wei Ying enjoys such activities, and so forth. They can finally take things to a whole new level, and enjoy the lifestyle that they deserve.

Wei didi pulls on Lan Zhan's sleeve and that broke the man from his reverie, “ Gege , you talk too much inside your head, da ge says. But he likes what you said, and he says most of it is correct. He's happy to elaborate on the details, but he's afraid to end up talking to your hand for the rest of the evening... umm... am I making sense? I'm just making the words exactly how I'm told.”

Lan Zhan sighs, and lifts the boy to sit next to him on the park bench. He's slightly sweaty from running from one park equipment to the next, so Lan Zhan wipes his forehead with his sleeve. He kisses the boy on the forehead, and tells him, “Tell da ge that I will listen to him, if he can promise to come back by dinner time, so that everyone can eat together.”

Wei didi giggles, and replies, “ Da ge just said that there’s no overtime tonight. So he will be back soon! Yayyyyy!” and hugs Lan Zhan adorably. Wei san ge appears from a short distance, carrying a frazzled-looking snarling calico cat that’s intent on murdering and scratching its molester-cum-kidnapper - but the teenager deftly avoids the claws because he’s already too good at avoiding chicken claws as well since he’s a master hunter of wild game.

“Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan! Can we keep this kitty? Look, it’s so cute, and it’s trying to nibble at my fingers! I’ve fed him before, so it remembers me!” the cat is trying to bite off the fingers grasping its upper body with plenty of growls and hisses.

Lan Zhan sends a sympathetic look at the feline. “Wei Ying... I... as long as it doesn’t cause trouble to our home and the animals, and as long as you’re fully responsible for it.”

“Yes, Yes, Yes!” and the cat is swung in circles by strong grips on its paws, and it screeches for its dear life. Wei didi perks up because he is also a Wei Ying, and all Wei Yings love to play with small animals and torment them playfully (even their chickens and rabbits favour Lan Zhan over the Wei Yings for this reason).

“Including feeding and cleaning,” Lan Zhan makes it very clear to the teenager about the responsibilities of caring for another life destined under Wei Ying's 'loving' care.

“Of course! Yes! I’ll bundle him up safely and bring him back with us!” and the cat is bounced like a baby, and suddenly tied up with Binding spells into a wiggling cocoon of glowing blue threads. Wei didi shrieks with joy, and san ge , in a rare moment of brotherly love, shares the happiness of playing with a new pet, and hands it to the boy. Didi starts jiggling the furry caterpillar-like creature, in a similar manner as all Wei Yings, and starts hugging, touching and pepper lots of smooches on the screaming, shocked feline - and pulls its tail repeatedly.

Wei er ge eventually returns from a successful sales stint, with a stack of orders to send off to the company, and is amused at the sight of the cat he’d fed with a piece of jianbing not too long ago. He shrugs nonchalantly; at least it’s not a dog.

Anyway, it’s time to head home.

Half-way back to their cave-home on a blazing Bichen under an equally-blazing hot mid-afternoon sun (thankfully with a Shield spell around them to block out the harmful ultraviolet rays), Lan Zhan once again surveys his lush green and hilly estate, this time is a slightly broader understanding of his new world, new perspectives and new sights as well.

“Lan Zhan, look over there. Those plots of land around our home, they will be bought under your name too, developed and leased to the Tian sisters at no cost,” Wei er ge explains from behind, as he draws a circle with his pointed finger at the direction of their humble abode. “They’ll form a defensive ring to help protect us, our crops and our livelihood. In time, da ge says that he plans to take over the entire Burial Mounds for sentimental reasons, because here is where I found my true identity.”

“... true identity?”

“As a practitioner of the dark arts, of course. I absorbed the energies from here, and that led to many painful events and memories - but in hindsight, if it wasn’t for the ‘Mounds, I wouldn’t end up here with you today.” A quick warm embrace from behind, but not more - they’re still in public view despite flying at high altitudes; one never knows when another sword-flying cultivator may pass by.

“Hnn..”

“Ah, look over there! Near the airpor-- the strip of road. Do you see The Junction?” a finger points at an indistinct mass of trees.

“Wei Ying, it’s too far to tell. And I can’t see The Highway either.”

“Ooooh, Lan Zhan, you’re not supposed to see The Highway. You need to turn off at the Junction and travel through a special portal, which leads you to The Highway. The Highway is located in Wuji continent, after all-- and I should shut up because your hand is moving upwards.” Sulky, disappointed. Lan Zhan’s heart aches a little for making his spouse unhappy for the silliest reasons. He lowers his hand.

“Wei Ying, I promise to listen to you more often, but I won’t be able to accept everything in my present state. You... can go on,” Lan Zhan actually leans back to Wei Ying and their bodies touch - a brazen display of affection between husband and wife in broad daylight at two hundred meters above ground. “Go on, I will listen,” he gently nudges, very calmly, and hooks an index finger with Wei Ying’s.

He feels a sweet peck on his cheek, and Wei Ying happily launches into fantastical stories about their home, their surroundings, the people, the Tian sisters, the world, the space, the timeline, and so much more - aspects that enrich and colour Lan Zhan’s brave new and amazingly wonderful Perfect universe, with his four lovely spouses.

Lan Zhan is, for a moment, briefly amazed at the state of their home upon their return. Everything looks Perfectly fine - the laundry is collected and folded, the courtyard and floor are cleaned, the orchards and gardens look freshly watered and thriving - and all ripe harvests are nicely picked, cleaned, neatly piled on the kitchen counter, the animals are fed and resting around the coop, and their home is, for a lack of better words, Perfect - everything is in the right place to where they should belong. It looks and feels as though Lan Zhan had been busy doing household chores for the whole day, except that he didn’t and hardly even lifted a finger.

“Ernie’s great, but it’s still learning. I had to give it additional instructions to complete the tasks to our satisfaction,” Wei er ge casually explains as he walked through the entrance of their home. Earlier, Lan Zhan actually skirted around the floor mat with a look of disdain on his face - but now, he is in awe of someone, something , that has done the job to Perfection, and he admires flawless execution. Lan Zhan actually faces the floor mat, bows with hands folded in front as a (mortal) signal of humility and respect.

(At this point, (immortal) Ernie feels touched at Lan Zhan’s gesture - its intellect and emotions are maturing at an amazing speed - and decides that Lan Zhan sits on the same pedestal as Wei didi whom it's tasked to guard)

Wei er ge laughs out loud and calls Lan Zhan to have some chilled guilinggao cooling herbal jelly waiting for them on the dining table.

“Mn.” Slurp, slurp the sweet fragrant dessert. The taste is perfect, and Lan Zhan had to give it a five out of five stars.

Wei da ge had read about the challenges of raising house pets from strays, as Wangxian is embarking into the healthcare, pharmaceutical and medical fields, for both human and veterinary uses. He sounded an alert to the teenager, and both him and the youngest Wei zipped off to the headquarters. The cat needed to be checked by a veterinarian, and depending on the results, it may need to be spayed, neutered and vaccinated first. Wei da ge was adamant that he needs to “do something” to “instil our family’s values” into the cat, so that it fits with the family - otherwise, the cat can stay at the headquarters, where it can be attended by personal vets, pet groomers and showered with lots of love and toys to play with - scratching posts, catnip bags, tails, feather teasers and laser pointers included. The two youngest Wei siblings decide to hang out at the eldest’s ultra-modern penthouse suite, play with toys from the future, and watch some cartoons and movies at the home theatre with lots of popcorn and free-flow fizzy drinks.

The cave-home is peaceful indeed.

“Ah, Lan Zhan, da ge said that he’ll be bringing home dinner, along with the boys, so there’s no need to cook. We’ve got a few hours to spare.. What shall we do?” Wei Ying asks, and he naturally slides between the chair and the table, and sits on Lan Zhan’s lap.

Wei Ying starts rolling his hips seductively, and his fingers play the folds of the older man’s garments. “Do you still want to... practise cultivation?” and the fingers glide to the ribs, tickling sexy circles before moving back up and rub the nipples on a well-muscled chest.

“Or.. do you want to... meditate?” Wei Ying starts kissing the older man’s forehead, then the earlobes, and then the cheeks.

“Or.. do you want to... read your magazines?” Little humping motions coax the rising erection to rub against the younger man’s springy ass, but everyone knows that Lan Zhan is running on empty for the rest of the day.

“... the magazines... are in the... bedroom,” Lan Zhan groans instinctively, because it’s been a while since he’s with lovely Wei Ying alone and all by themselves, and Lan Zhan starts nuzzling into Wei Ying’s clothed abdomen, silently asking for permission, for a positive answer, a dear request to the spouse.

“Mm. Good boy. Let’s go to the bedroom, then.”

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan is tricked by Wei Ying. Well, sort of.

His first line of thought, when discussing about magazines in the bedroom, are the likes of Cultivation Times, periodicals and reading materials related to agriculture, farming practices and the local plants and wildlife.

Instead, Wei Ying shamelessly pulls out PeiNis, PeiNans and PeiNus out of the bookshelf which Lan Zhan had stowed away between the covers of boring National Geographic magazines - including editions from the previous months -, then the young man happily opens their racy and risque centerspreads all over their bed which shows a mind-boggling variety of positions and descriptions for foreplay and sex. He deceptively asks, “Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, which one do you think we should try?”

Lan Zhan shivers at that point, because he knows he cannot perform anymore for the day. He simply points at the easiest - cowgirl - and hopes that Wei Ying will be kind to his genitals.

Then Wei Ying giggles, and says, “Alright, we’ll try that... last!” He casts an awful spell on himself, and multiples to tens of twenty-two year old Wei Wings that fill the bedroom, including female forms - all in the nude (because they don’t have clothes to wear except for the original Wei Ying). Lan Zhan’s eyes went wide, and his heart skipped a few beats at an unbelievable sight of nubile young males and fertile curvy females lining the room, and they approach the bed, and the bedside dips at their weight, and they crawl on all fours, ready to pounce and devour the helpless and defenceless patriarch sitting at the center of the mattress--

“Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, I’m sorry you had to experience such low quality pleasures from san ge earlier. I’ll make it up for you, okay? Please sit back, relax and enjoy!” (at the same time, the teenager and the nine-year old boy squees at watching more Star Wars movies, doing exactly the same - sit back, relax and enjoy -, in the comfort of a home cinema in da ge’s penthouse suite.)

Later, Lan Zhan tells himself that he should really throw away those dirty magazines, despite his habit of stealing glances between the pages to get some sex tips in the middle of the night - because after that evening, the couple (or couples) have gone through pretty much every masturbatory, foreplay, non-penetrative and penetrative positions recommended for males and females, homo- and heterosexual ones included. The bed becomes a mess of fluids, mostly from the Wei Yings and all over their single provider who is blissfully wrung to the last drop - since there are no more drops, hence, he's technically vacuumed out. Poor Lan Zhan is sexually short-circuited for the third time that day; ascending to Heaven multiple times per hour, even per minute, is no big deal for him anymore.

Notes for the Chapter:

I'm trying to wrap things up because this arc is like the culmination of other arcs, and everything has become a trainwreck :-D

It's Chinese New Year Eve today... so wishing those who celebrate this joyous occasion - Happy Chinese New Year, Happy Spring Festival !

Chapter 49

Lan Zhan has not just become a Buddha - he is Buddha at the pinnacle of his soaring existence within and beyond his Perfect universe. He has transcended into Perfection with the infinite vibrations of pleasures of the flesh, that his soul becomes detached from all mortal thought, sensations and sufferings. He flies high above the mountains of the terrestrial Mortal Realm, then beyond the heavens where he catches glimpses of the Realm of the Gods and the Heavenly Court which resides in the center of circular puffy clouds, and still he skyrockets even further until the world is a glimmering turquoise pearl, then he ascends far from the Moon where Goddess Chang'e waves at him out of her habit of greeting rare passers-by, and still, he feels himself sucked into the infinite spiralling darkness of space, the whole solar system comes into view for a few magnificent seconds and then shrinks into the far distance, where his vision becomes lit by countless stars whizzing by, spinning constellations and the grand milky way and its neighbouring galaxies - and he realizes a cold black thing is crawling amongst them - and instantly identifies it as one of their Residence's occupants -, devouring celestial bodies and planetary systems, spreading its black tentacles in a similar fashion to the ugly green condom thing that violated his balls earlier, and mentally notes, in a calm, irrational, short-circuited mannerism shaped by too much Wei Ying-ness, that he needs to remind Wei Ying about tying a leash around Ernie before letting it out of the floor mat, lest it starts nibbling suns like the strayed Heavenly Sun-Eating Dog, then he's slingshot around his Perfect universe, bouncing off pulsars, neutron stars, cloud nebulae of birthing and dying stars, ricocheting back towards the world--

Lan Zhan quietly sips a cup of oolong tea served on a plain grey table, but did not touch the snacks meant for guests. He finds himself seated in a quiet chamber with sparse but high-quality, antique marble and wooden furniture - it's a no-frills, sterile traditional meeting room of sorts, with the usual signs of neglect, wear and tear, of cracks on the floor and the odd cobweb at the ceiling corners, of musty smell and a layer of dust on some surfaces; the kind of room that one can usually find in rarely-used, more likely abandoned, official courts or government buildings when such places become white elephants of the main office's administration. It is minimalistic, fully functional, just enough - and is fine. His body is fine as well - the bandages are no longer on his limbs, and his walking cane is nowhere to be seen, nor needed.

Two figures emerge from a door at the side of the chamber - a wizened and healthy, rosy-cheeked pair of long-bearded man and plus-sized woman of old age, nearly fifty years old based on visual appearances alone, dressed in regal robes of golden yellow, jade green and lotus pink, heavily accessorized by numerous pieces of precious stones and jewels. They are tall, about six feet in height, and look like members of rich or royal families, except that their forms glow with faint golden light, and they have halos on their heads to signify that these two are not mortals (and that Lan Zhan is no longer in the Mortal Realm as well).

With well-honed Gusu Lan etiquette for greeting the elderly, Lan Zhan is calm and collected when he stands, and elegantly takes his position in front of the couple. He courteously bows with his hands folded in front, dignifiedly, and states, "Lan Zhan, courtesy name Lan Wang Ji, patriarch of the Gusu Lan family branch in the Qishan province, hereby greets you," and he turns to the man, "Your Majesty, Jade Emperor", then to the woman, "Your Majesty, Queen Mother."

"See, what did I tell you, honey, he's such a brave and good child. I've observed him closely from the moment he stepped into the Court, patiently lined up to seek an audience with us, the way he drinks his tea and greets us - he's the perfect great grandson-in-law!"

“Hush, darling. I know,” and the elderly man takes Lan Zhan’s hand to lift him from the bow. “Please, Wang Ji, we’re technically family now. No need for such formalities. You can call me shortly as yue fu (wife’s father), and my wife, as yue mu (wife’s mother), and we’re not particular about the generational gaps because that’s how it works in Heaven, under my rule.”

Lan Zhan looks up, hardly showing any signs of disbelief - because his heart has long become as calm and numbed as Buddha’s - takes a moment to digest those crucial words, especially when his name is pronounced with such clarity by the gods - no, his in-laws -, before stammering (it’s hard to figure out how to properly address one’s in-laws), “Y.. Your Majesty, Great Grand... yue --”

“No, No. Just yue fu will do. I’ll accept Papa (爸爸), and Mama (妈妈) for her, but that depends on your preference. So, please, greet me well,” the elderly man says softly, in a caring, familial manner. He nudges gently at Lan Zhan to go on, go on, say it.

Lan Zhan relaxes. “Mn... Yue fu . Yue mu .” And tries to smile at both of them - a little awkward, though.

The Jade Emperor gives out a hearty laugh and pulls Lan Zhan into a grandfatherly hug. Wangmu Niang Niang, the Queen Mother of the West, places her hand on Lan Zhan’s back and gives a grandmotherly pat, and says “Good child, you’re a really good child!” (好孩子,你真是个好孩子!)

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

It's a bizarre, divinely and surreal experience to be talking to gods, much less the King and Queen of Gods, hence, through the power vested in the Mandate of Heaven to the Mortal Realm, the Great Father and Great Mother of all Mankind of the Middle Kingdom. However, Lan Zhan remains unfazed in his present state, plus, he's already experienced enough Wei Ying-ness to know (even expect) that meeting gods is, and should be, one of those routines he'd need to incorporate into his life.

Shortly after ascending to wherever Wei Ying took him through the power of endless sex, Lan Zhan realized - belatedly again - that it isn't just rutting and making babies that the twenty-two year old intended; it was cultivating his qi through sexual means - sexual qi is one of the most potent forms of spiritual energies - and overcharging his golden core until he breaks all spiritual barriers and limits until his soul reaches the current destination. Lan Zhan had a moment of brilliant clarity, by putting two plus two to equal four, when he remembers that Tian da jie is the favourite great granddaughter of the Tian dalaoye, and meeting her, then knowing her real identity, now formally married and connected to the Tian family, meant that he should also greet the family members too out of graceful respect and to foster good relationships between inter-connected families - and of course, this is the Tian family of the Heavens, the rulers of the skies, so surely, he must meet them as soon as possible!

The serenity within Lan Zhan prohibits the man from collapsing into a black hole of wibbly illogical fear and madness from the crazy revelation - so that he could be calmly guided by his supreme golden core, arrive at the Heavenly Court looking no different than his usual expressionless visage dressed in his signature ivory-white robes with embroidered light blue cloud-patterns (because this is his Perfect image that will appear in the Realms of the Gods); then politely asked the servants for directions, before he cleverly found the express queue for Mortals to seek an audience with the Jade Emperor; because the other queue was marked "Demi-gods, Deities, Gods, Immortals and Other non-Mortal Beings" which is akin to an economy-class entry lane packed with other divine, non-human beings, while Lan Zhan waltzes through the empty, privileged first-class entry lane for Mortals as there was no one else waiting in that line anyway).

The conversation between yue fu , yue mu and Lan Zhan is surprisingly, very informal, very down-to-earth, and not divinely at all - which puts him and everyone else at ease. It feels exactly as a close, intimate chit-chat between a man with his distinguished parents-in-law, except that Lan Zhan never had the honour of doing so, for obvious reasons.

Yue fu first explained that he sees and knows everything - as expected - so he's well aware all events surrounding the son-in-law and foster great grandson's lives - and for the latter, death and rebirth included. He had already foreseen Lan Zhan's arrival due to his all-encompassing vision (actually, the live telecast - with subtitles - from the magical viewing mirror that he's always tuned to, to monitor Wei Ying's every move), and he'd asked the servants to prepare a special lane for him; of late, especially since the Great Fires that destroyed everything and re-built the Realms to surprising Perfection, gods line up every morning in front of the Heavenly Palace, and therefore fill the Courts day in and day out until there are no private meeting rooms available - so the Emperor decided to convert an old storeroom ad hoc for their meeting (in which he apologizes to Lan Zhan about the rather undignified condition, but Lan Zhan just replies with a nod, "Mn, it's alright", to everyone's relief) - the gods crowd the Courts to seek compensation, and claim for minor or unspecified damages, for their shrines, temples, palaces, assets and whatnots - "but everything is perfectly fine in the Realms, so those blasted things are just trying to wing around the force majeure clause in their property insurance underwritten by the Tian family, just to earn a few extra gold ingots!" the yue fu waves an angry fist; Lan Zhan winces - Wei Ying is at fault for the troubles (which is an understatement, given the latter's ignorance on the widespread impact it has on the Realms).

(Lan Zhan did ask, what kind of inconvenience has Wei Ying caused for those complaining gods, and the yue fu lists down a few mundane examples - a crack on someone's temple pillar, a smudge on someone's shrine, a missing lock on the kennel of the Heavenly Sun-Eating Dog - which are, fundamentally speaking, everyday occurrences and could have been due to natural causes, but as with anyone who tries to make money out of the Tian family, tried to pass these off as damages from the Great Fires and claim under insurance. Lan Zhan sighs in understanding that gods are as money-minded as mortals, and yue fu , who can read minds anyway, takes a swig of oolong tea and grunts, "It's always like that, isn't it?")

Yue mu interjects to apologize for their foster great grandson's awful, destructive and rascal-like behaviour, especially since the last few mortal years; and speculates that this is because of the trauma of losing his actual foster parents, and that a child like him needs to be taught and be guided throughout his life - which is so different from Lan Zhan's circumstances, being raised with good morals and virtues despite being orphaned at such a young age, and that he continues to suffer because of living with that undisciplined brat .

Lan Zhan shakes his head slightly with a faint, knowing smile. "Mn, I am alright, yue mu . I've loved and will always love Wei Ying and all his forms in this world. No matter what has happened, or what will be, I will always be by his side. He... is kind to me, and I'm always caring for him."

Yue mu dabs a handkerchief to her cheeks, touched at such pure words.

" Yue fu , yue mu , please allow me to take responsibility for Wei Ying's actions. As his... spouse... I will try my best to change, and correct his behaviour. Wang Ji promises this,” and he bows again with folded hands at the front.

Yue mu snuffles, because Lan Zhan is really too precious and sincere in heart; she wishes this man as a great grandson, instead of the troublemaker whose name had been inadvertently inducted into their family registry due to the reckless behaviour of their great granddaughter - there seems to be a trend of badly behaved kids in the Tian family tree!

Lan Zhan (bravely) touched yue mu 's arm, and murmurs reassuringly, “ Yue mu , I am part of your family too, so you can consider me the same as all your children, grandchildren and great grandchildren, equally if not less. If there is anything within my power that I can carry out to undo Wei Ying's mistakes, or fix the troubles he's caused, please tell me.” (the truth within Lan Zhan's heart shines brightly - his virtues make his spirits glow with courage to mend the broken, to help the needful.)

The Jade Emperor sighs in immense relief at the great grandson's humility and openness. He decides to lighten up the mood a little over the pot of tea and plates of tasty Heavenly Peanut Snacks. “Did I ever tell you about the time when I saw that naughty boy pee at a peach tree's roots? Hah! I was so upset, for no reason really, that I nearly wanted to smack that kid's white butt with a lightning strike... Me! And old man smacking a kid's butt! Can you imagine that?! HA HA HA!”

Lan Zhan involuntarily snorts (because the image of a big red slap mark on the pale ass does look and sounds funny); he takes a peanut and pops it into his mouth - it's really tasty -, and the room bursts into raucous laughter - partly because the Queen Mother loves such silly jokes that makes her dear husband guffaw like the lively, young, spirited celestial being she'd married, aeons ago.

Later, as they talked (with Lan Zhan mostly “Mn”s and adds some polite and politically correct comments, and lets the couple dominate the entire conversation) and enlightened Lan Zhan about earthly and Heavenly affairs (a very condensed version of things), celestial servants - who look like any other peasants on earth, except that they glow, and feature non-human parts such as wings and tails -, bring in fruits and salads freshly harvested from the Sacred Orchards of the Golden Summer Resort Palace; Lan Zhan is delighted to impress his new in-laws, and makes it known that he wants to be a strict vegetarian (which will impress any religious gods, really), but Wei Ying doesn't let him, for some unknown reasons. The old, loving couple snickers and fall into another round of boisterous laughter at the unintended vulgar humour - and the yue fu grabs Lan Zhan by the shoulder, wiggles an eyebrow, and says, “Son, here's what you should know...” (and Lan Zhan gets a male biology lesson on why proteins are much-needed for their marital bliss - because the Jade Emperor has seen tons of clips of their lovemaking in various locations -, and that “sometimes, just fish and eggs alone aren't enough, son”, plus some amazing vegetarian recipes to boost one's sexual health befitting for royals and gods too, and what each recipe can do to his body and his partner's - then Lan Zhan blushes shyly, resulting in yue mu jokingly chastising her husband, “Awwwww, honey, you're embarrassing him!”).

The distance between them closes, until Lan Zhan truly feels that he's a very fortunate son-in-law of the lovable yue fu and yue mu . (never mind the generational gap.)

Their conversations meander into the topic of Tian da jie , in which Lan Zhan senses disappointment at her self-imposed exile from the Heavens (as with many young adults that are coming-of-age seeking independence from helicopter great grandparents), but strangely pride as well, because she'd make it big in Yiling on her own (in some ways) and has created a sisterhood of non-human beings with unmatched abilities and strengths - her own circle of friends.

Eventually they returned to the topic that brought them together in the first place. “ Yue fu , yue mu , I am honest and I speak my heart out - if there is anything I can do to repay or compensate for the troubles that Wei Ying has caused, please let me know,” Lan Zhan says with a respectful bow.

The Jade Emperor and his wife stares at Lan Zhan for a full minute, but the other does not waver, never flinched, nor withdraw, from such determination to fully right what has gone wrong. The King of Gods sighs and understands that his great grandson-in-law will not back out on his words - a true Gusu Lan, indeed - and lifts a finger, then flicks it.

The door opens, and another two glowing figures drift into the chamber in bursts of glimmering mists and ethereal lights - Lan Zhan recognizes them since there are enough pictures, scriptures, statues and legends about these two in the whole of the Middle Kingdom - the unmistakable images of Merciful Goddess Guan Yin and the grandest of them all, His Omnipresence and of Greatest Reverence, Lord Buddha.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

“ Lao gong ! Er di ! We're back!”

“Look what we brought! Fast food and tasty stuff from the Far Far West!

“ Gege ! We’ve got the biggest bucket of fried chicken ever!”

“ ...”

“... ahh... I’ll... I’ll do the clean-up. San di , take didi to the bath first, then set the table and cutleries. I’ll bring these two in later, because the bath water’s going to get messy.”

“... wow... is... is Lan Zhan going to be... alright? And, which one’s... er ge ?”

“ San ge , that one’s the only er ge with a shirt on. The rest are naked. Should I get him?”

The teenager hushes the little boy, and together, they dropped their cargo on the dining table before heading out to the outdoor pool. Ernie chipped in as well, even without being told, by sending cold black tentacles weaving into the fluid-splattered bedroom full of masses of enraptured, humping, jerking and wiggling Wei Yings - all vying to make love, pleasure, mount and orgasm around the drenched and shrivelled-up sole receiver of their infinite love -, just to pick out the boys’ bathtowels and pyjamas made by their company’s fabrics and textiles division, and send them to the waiting youngest Wei siblings. A fancy ball of strobing Fire-Light combo spell spins at the ceiling, colouring the chamber with spinning glittery luminescence, polka-dots and rainbow beams that change colours constantly - painting the entire scene of debauchery into a portrait of depraved mass orgies, juicy gasps and moans, and the stink of sweat and other filthy bodily fluids.

Lan Zhan is beyond Buddhahood - he has reached the ultimate state of eternal transcendence of all known realms, become a nirvana of his own, and he can detach himself from the mundane, material and suffering world where his physical body currently resides, at anytime and at will.

At least that's what he'd like to believe - as he reaches for another oily, fried chicken drumstick from a cardboard bucket mysteriously marked with three foreign letters in red and white ("KFC" - but he couldn't read it). However, the imprinted stylized picture of a friendly white old bearded man reminds him of his Heavenly encounter, and a dim memory of a timely advice to nourish his depleted body properly for the sake of his marital bliss - and he takes a bite into the tasty, juicy meat, with the crunchy savoury skin included, that's said to be marinated with eleven herbs and spices. Mmm, delish.

Perhaps he should still stay in this mundane, mortal world a little longer, because eating and savouring good food is one of this realm's pleasures that he would be heartbroken to part with.

The dining table is filled with an assortment of strange, exotic and delicious foods from the Far, Far West, as claimed by the Wei gongzi s, in very convenient, never-seen-before take-out packaging: hamburgers, cheeseburgers, sandwiches, tacos, burritos, fried chicken, pizza, onion rings, muffins, molten chocolate cake, red velvet cake, potato wedges drizzled with fatty cream cheese sauce and french fries with a mind-boggling variety of dips. For beverages, there are containers of soft drinks and milkshakes; all of these foreign-sounding food names do not mean anything to Lan Zhan, so he just learns by appreciating the sight, finger-licking taste, textures and mouth-watering smells.

After taking a bite or two from each dish, Lan Zhan concludes that they're all very good (and therefore, approved to be enlisted into Wangxian's food export division's production lines) - however they're very salty, too greasy and leaves him thirsty or feeling a bit queasy (so the recipes will be improved, and made healthier). Before he could ask, Wei da ge promptly takes wet wipe towelettes to clean the patriarch's fingers (and Lan Zhan is still chewing on a mouthful of chicken pepperoni pizza while getting his oily fingers tended to, then his mouth wiped by the motherly Wei sibling - such a cute pampered baby!), Wei er ge walks in with the brightest smile (because he's had thirty times the sex in the span of three hours) carrying a bowl of steaming noodle with lots of vegetables, chopped scallions, tomatoes and carrots harvested that morning, Wei didi hands chopsticks to the san ge, who in turn, helps to pick up strings of noodles and pieces of leafy greens, blows the steam off, and feeds Lan Zhan's non-stop munching mouth, mouthful by mouthful. In an uncharacteristic move, which is nearly the norm within the household now, Lan Zhan slurps his noodles loudly with plenty of wet sounds, while being served by his four spouses.

The Wei gongzi s had read their patriarch's mind that despite all the good food from the Far Far West, nothing beats the traditional cuisine from the Middle Kingdom, and he saves the best for last - while he still has space left in his bulging stomach (the six pack abs have slightly sunken below a layer of fat - perhaps a sign of the prophesized single ab, i.e. a belly resembling a big wok?). Never mind if he is showing signs of being a glutton - because the foods that Wei da ge brings back from Wangxian as "samples to try" are simply amazing, and worthy of a taste while he still exists in this mundane, mortal world (“you only live once”, as the saying goes).

When Lan Zhan finally finished the noodles, therefore the dinner meal, right at sunset around seven in the evening, he relaxes and stretches, and yes, lets out a string of long rude burps - blame it on fizzy drinks. His stomach isn't used to carbonated beverages, so there's more gas than usual - however, there is nothing unappealing about that; in fact, the Wei gongzi s love their patriarch more and more at each mealtime, when the man displays his more crude and private side, in front of much-loved family members. Every Wei gongzi takes the opportunity to kiss the man's cheeks, nuzzle his chest, rub the satisfied filled belly, touch his hands and legs, even reach into the trousers to fiddle his unresponsive penis safely tucked inside the underpants, throughout and after the meal.

Lan Zhan sighs in full relaxation in his newfound nirvana of sorts, as his Wei Yings work hard to wash the dishes, clean the kitchen and take out the trash - he doesn't need to lift a finger, nor wants to move; he's not a sloth, really, because naughty Wei san ge is kneeling between his naked legs and giving him a post-meal blowjob after doing his part of the clean-up - by pressing the “On” button on D-Broom. Lan Zhan isn't completely disaffected despite the state of his genitals; he still becomes half-hard, and that is enough for the teenager showcase what he's best for - deep-throating and tongue-play -, at least to the level of one-two near-orgasmic twitches, if not full-blown twenty-twitches, and is rewarded with barely-felt sweeping muscular contractions along the underside of the drooping penis and a single droplet of crystal-clear fluid.

“ Lao gong , I've tapped into your mind and memories, and I - we - have to thank you for putting a good word to the Heavens on our behalf. It wasn't intentional of us to send you to the Jade Emperor, really, because horny er ge here really wanted to fuck, get inseminated and bear babies for you,” the eldest sibling gestures the second eldest rudely with a dry dishcloth, "It so happens that your ascension to the highest levels of cultivation is a side-effect of his lustful greed."

"Hey, don't diss me like that! I have feelings and needs too, like the rest of you!" he retorts and turns around to face the patriarch, "But everything is alright now after that serendipitous meeting, right? I'm off the hook, my new foster great grandparents aren't after my back anymore, the gods aren't coming after me, and the Tian sisters won't be bothering us for a while after a memo has been sent to them about the outcome of your meeting. Right? Right?" he repeats the last word in anticipation of the affirmation.

Lan Zhan simply and calmly "Mn"s with his eyes closed and head tilted towards the ceiling, not really bothering to elaborate further (since his mind is read). He's already orgasming (just barely) from the wonderful treatment on his twitching limp penis, a few tasty growls from his throat, and tired jerks of hips on the creaky chair. Orgasms make him unwind, and he soars high into his new state of existence - the one he keeps calling 'Buddhahood' (or godhood, for those who prefer to be non-religion specific).

What Lan Zhan transmits from his senses to the Wei gongzi s is true: the Tian family will settle out of court on the claimed damages, which are in actual fact, quite minor and run into mere thousands of gold ingots - a drop in the ocean compared to the riches amassed by the ruling Heavenly family over the last epoch, from a godly perspective. Fate has been kind to everyone in both realms; everything is restored perfectly fine after the Great Fires - never mind the cracks, smudges and the odd missing lock - and the Realms of the Gods stand to benefit from Wei Ying's misadventures too; whether from his bedroom antics viewed on live telecast in full three-dimensional glory, interesting new products brought from other timelines (because Ernie has successfully done it - it's reached the gods and Wangxian has started shipping out high-tech goodies - some of the younger, trendier local gods expressed admiration for the unbelievable experience of watching Star Wars on 70+ inch 4K Ultra high-definition television sets with surround sound system, using mobile hand-held devices (called 'phones and tablets') to dive into the world of social media and Net surfing, and have started sipping lattes and cappuccinos instead of their usual tea or wine brews.), or just plainly, an additional male member begrudgingly forced to be added to the prestigious and all-powerful Tian family - and in hindsight, a blessing too, because Wangmu Niang Niang adores Lan Zhan (he's the most filial, kindest, most un-snobbish and most un-rascal-like among all the males in her family), thus a happy and satisfied matriarch means a happy and satisfying life for the Tian's too.

(Not too far away, the Tian sisters are hard at work packing their stuff in preparation for the move to their new luxury bungalow homes in the 'Mounds, created instantly by Wei da ge 's awesome Creation and Time spells - the land titles sit somewhere in Lan Zhan's cupboard, freshly stamped, signed and framed, because the eldest Wei is just that awesome with a snap of his fingers - thank the Wangxian's ripped-off version of the Infinity Stones. The sisters receive the memo from their da jie's ancestral grandfather, explaining that both Wei Ying - the adopted didi and his various forms - and Lan Zhan - da jie 's shidi and their di fu - have been formally inducted and accepted into the folds of the broader family, by the grace of the King and Queen of Gods. Celebrations ensure within Tian Mi Mi and their entire controlled Fragrant Blossoms Street with lots of cheers, good food, spiked wine, and cinnamon rolls - and they promptly closed for business that night for this joyous occasion; men will mourn and mark the calendar as a day when the inauspicious solar eclipse happened, and the brothels closed.)

Wei didi , who has just returned from the outdoors after taking out the trash (there's too much packaging materials - which is bad for the environment -, and he had to sort them out to recyclables and other categories - the Wei gongzi s have placed different bins for different types of wastes), and squeaked out the quintessential childish question, “ Gege , did you bring back anything for us?”

Lan Zhan grunts - rather, croaks - his curt but extremely pleasure-hazed reply, “Yes... there’s a... nnnh... bag underneath... ngahhh... the dirty laundry... unh, unh, unh... in my robes...” Sweat-soaked Wei san ge had pulled off his pants, climbed onto Lan Zhan’s lap while the latter is still soaring high in his post-orgasm throes - and while the penis is still hard and excited (just barely) -, and dutifully rides the patriarch in a sitting position in all possible directions - verticals and horizontals, circles, squares and stars included. Lan Zhan’s head lolls uselessly back and forth, because his body is singing praises for being pleased with a pleased full belly, and the saliva coated penis receives exquisitely snug, hot squeezes and rolling massages, as expected, from the nubile teenager’s love canal. His balls rise with quivering excitement for the nth time from the delicious friction and rubbing along the entire length of the cock (because every juicy breedworthy fuck is balls-deep), ready to fire another salvo, although there’s really nothing left to shoot except empty vacuum.

The nine-year old “Yayyyy”s and runs squealing into the freshly cleaned, disinfected and sterilized bedroom (Ernie can do that with a single swipe of cold black tentacles, much better than a D-Broom, actually), then gingerly sticks a hand into a crumpled ball of soiled clothes (because laundry will only be done the next day when there is sunlight - the disadvantages of not having the washing machine and the dryer), and pulls the said bag no bigger than a regular-sized satchel that Wei er ge slings over his shoulder for his trips to the city.

The contents of the bag is poured onto the dining table, and the Wei gongzi s stare at basket of gifts: Wei da ge recognizes them as colourful harvest from the Sacred Orchards - including the Peaches of Immortality -, tasty Heavenly Pills of Eternal Prime Health, Heavenly Wine of Infinite Fortune and Prosperity, amongst other goodies from the foster great grandparents to the latest additions to the family. A small red cloth pouch opens on its own, and Lan Zhan croaks like a sobbing, dying man, “Wedding... rings... please... wear...” and true enough, there are five lovely silvery-gold rings, sculpted with fine patterns of dragons and phoenixes and mysterious inscriptions but that doesn’t really matter to the excited Wei siblings-, because they perfectly everyone’s fourth fingers. The Wei gongzi s scream and squeal with delight at the perfect evidence of their officiated status as husband and wives - and quickly put them on without further ado, and take some selfie pictures that Ernie will upload into their family album in the cloud drive; Lan Zhan wears his ring too - he looks awfully ugly in those pictures because of his half-sneezing half-yawning and half-orgasming look.

Everyone cheers and partakes the magnificent dessert after such a grand dinner; the peaches tasted perfectly sweet and juicy, the pills are more like sugary chocolate balls and aren’t bitter at all, and the jars of wine are emptied within minutes - the nine-year old gets a holiday from his non-alcoholic diet, and drinks a cup too. Wei Ying, and all Wei Yings, love their patriarch even more, and made sure he gets his fair share of the bountiful godly gifts, if not more. Wei didi is tasked to plant the seeds of the consumed peaches (amongst other heavenly fruits blessed with magical qualities) around the courtyard, because Wei san ge who is the working mule of the family, is too busy getting drunk and begging noisily for the patriarch to impregnate him upon their squeaky grating chair - although Lan Zhan too, has a fully-flushed, sleepy face after downing nearly a jar of the wine, and flails his limbs uselessly while orgasming happily into the tight teenage hole (yes, he hiccups and giggles during climax in his inebriated state).

By the time the innocent and kind didi returns from the late-night farm work (he’s like the family work-slave of sorts), everyone has relocated to the bedroom, which has started to become a nest of triple drunken orgies including the legendary triple-blowjobs-and-six way-handjobs combo, with plenty of un-seeable and downright depraved and pornographic acts, un-hearable sounds of stuff erupting, squirting and spurting everywhere, and the icky bodily smells as well; so, the boy quietly puts everything in their cave-home back in places where they belong, lights the Lan Family lanterns at the entrance, brushes his teeth and washes his face at the kitchen sink (because he doesn't want to disturb his breeding brothers at the bedroom to the outdoor pool), before calling it a day.

Wei didi asks Ernie to make him a nice enclave in the kitchen where it is quieter and warmed by a lit Fire spell. Ernie happily obliges and dotes on the little boy by giving a little more (it has gained supreme intelligence, consciousness and capabilities after having its physical manifestation infest, spread and span across stars, if not galaxies) - it makes a little bubble of space-time, and fills it with a cot with the most comfortable mattress, the fluffiest pillows, and the coziest blanket, and a collection of soft toys that the boy loves.

“Good night, Ernie. Thank you for a wonderful day,” the nine-year old boy whispers as he kisses his new ring, and closes his eyes.

Good night, Little Master Wei. Sleep tight.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan's soul spends time until the wee hours of the morning - still daytime in the Realms of the Gods, because time moves differently in that space - at his in-laws' palace, since his body is rendered out of service for the time being, due to perpetually glitching, short-circuiting and blowing fuses from ascending and reaching Buddhahood without any recourse for the soul to return to its mortal home, until his extremely drunken harem ceases all violent pleasurable and reproductive behaviours and slumber off.

Over a mid-morning snack - midnight snack at the Mortal Realm, probably - of his new favourite vegetarian fare of Heavenly Fried Vegetable Snacks (Lan Zhan promises to bring a bottle of Wei Ying's plum sauce in his future trips), fruits and salads, and to his pleasant surprise, a pack of Wangxian Toasted Mixed Nuts (With Added Pumpkin Seeds) that yue mu bought from the local heavenly supermarket just down the road of the Heavenly Court - he reports, with an impassive voice, to the happy old couple that his spouses had put on the Soulmate Binding Rings, and he raises his hand to show his too, around his fourth finger.

The rings are a modern upgrade from the mythical golden headband given to the highly venerated Tang Sanzang to control the Monkey King long, long ago. A new, more user-friendly and discreet look has been given to make them more appealing to creatures that would be controlled and enslaved by its powers. Furthermore, the functions have been re-written to suit with the changing times. Gone are the days when such imprisonment tools work by tyrannical ways - of subjugating and forcing others by force, pain and hurt (especially headaches); Tian da jie had critical remarks about it, and persuaded the Merciful Goddess Guan Yin to make its existence more palatable to the younger generations, and the Jade Emperor wholeheartedly agrees (because he's getting tired of having to deal with the girl's ultra-modern thinking and just agrees for the sake of keeping the family peaceful and quiet). Nowadays, the rings function like true wedding rings with a magical touch - it binds the souls of both sides together in line with the principle of equality in gender and marriage, and compels each to listen, love and cherish each other - including the opportunity for Lan Zhan to stop and even reverse whatever Wei Ying is or has done, because the rings are blessed with extremely powerful magics, including Creation, Time and Destiny spells ("Destiny" being used loosely to denote the will and the possibility of an act or an event; one can Create a great civilization out of barren soil and use Time to fast-forward it to space age, however all will be for naught if Destiny writes-off the fate of that civilization by saying that it will be incinerated by a falling meteor or swallowed up by an untimely black hole.)

Speaking of black holes - Lan Zhan conveniently forgotten about Ernie, and it continues to manifest more space and time, and is on the verge of becoming the Biggest Black Hole Ever - who knows what lies on the other side of the black hole, or the other side of Ernie?

Notes for the Chapter:

Happy Chinese New Year!

I saw Zhan Ge's short skit on the Spring Festival Gala yesterday evening. It's short and entertaining, and best of all, Zhan Ge is SO HANDSOME and his acting is on-point perfection!

The story is going wild and there's no brakes yet...! But I really enjoyed putting in some religion, Chinese gods and mythology inside, and I apologize in advance if anyone finds them offensive or distasteful because admittedly, I have to bend some things and make-up my own stuff to put this story together. Again, don't take things too seriously!

I'll be taking a short break due to the holidays and I need to visit my relatives and cousins, and catch up on work later... so, enjoy the fic anyway!

Chapter 50

It's been two weeks since Lan Zhan woke up in the brave new world, and roughly four weeks since the Great Fires - at least that's what he believed, based on the date printed on the weekly periodical. However, Wei da ge 's excessive and imprudent use of Creation and Time spells play havoc with Lan Zhan's body clock and calendar until he no longer knows how long summer will last, and when autumn will start browning the trees around the 'Mounds. It's a long summer for the Lan patriarch - one could look at it from a positive or negative way - and he decides to take a page from Wei Ying, to see the glass as half-full rather than half-empty.

His body has fully healed, the bandages and walking cane are gone, but the Wei gongzi s insist, driven by their personal agenda, that the patriarch should still be well-taken care of, and be monitored closely, until the end of the second week since treatment started - which hasn't and probably never will arrive based on da ge 's reckless Time effects. Lan Zhan is placed under a kind of house arrest, and whenever he needs to go out - whether to Huang village to buy some grains from Farmer Cai, or to Yiling City to pick up some books from the Library Pavillion or visit the markets, he is accompanied by some if not all Wei Yings - which is perfectly fine.

The passage of time (within the warped Time bubble of Lan Zhan's world), with da ge 's magic stealthily woven in, probably trained and somewhat evolved Lan Zhan's body to become naturally comfortable with, able to accommodate, and even thrive, on his spouses' daily tender loving care. For example,

- He had experienced being locked up in their bedroom, then have his traumatized penis locked up inside one and eventually, many Wei Yings determined to extract every last drop or vacuumed space, and his victimized body pleased until he hovers on the verge of soaring beyond Buddhahood and into the next level of existence (whatever that may be), for days on end - and lives to tell his incredible tales of survival.

While san ge operates on primitive and primal levels of seduction, and er ge is a step up - Wei da ge is a whole new dimension; Wei da ge's powerful magics enable Wei Yings to be created in all plausible forms and in infinite numbers - human, non-human, monstrous, demonic, mythical, and celestial forms and so much more; male, female and of all genders; all age groups; all races and ethnicities; pleasure-seeking and pleasure-giving parts effortlessly amplified, magnified and transformed in all iterations as possible - fortunately, after unwillingly (and in some cases, fearfully) tasting all different kinds of Wei Yings, he still prefers his good ol' lovely four Wei Yings because he's just an old-fashioned Gusu Lan man who is loyal to the ones he'd officially married.

- He'd played plenty of harem games after being fed with aphrodisiacs (actually, one of the vegetarian recipes that the yue fu shared - and Lan Zhan glows with unimaginable lustful energy and bursts with Heavenly horniness) and ends up chasing four and multiples of Wei Yings all over his home and the outdoors, fucking and breeding every single one of them over the course of many days, until he loses his sense of humanity and is no more than a drooling, insatiable, starving animal craving for rosebuds and other sexual orifices.
- Or, he'd spend entire days pantless or in the nude, at best, pleased and excited from sunrise to the next sunrise, or at worst, molested and raped within that same time period. It didn't matter if those Wei Yings wanted to please or to force the pleasure - the younger men simply act on instincts, and in time, Lan Zhan learns to whole-heartedly open his body up to welcome their bottomless desires and lust.

During the so-called second week where Wei Yings provide their non-stop tender loving care, Lan Zhan benefits from getting to know his new in-laws since his soul has taken up partial residence in the Heavens. He learns that by holding a basket of goods in bed when Wei Yings descend and devour him sexually, he will emerge at backdoor entrance of the Heavenly Palace (the one deceptively marked “Mortals only” - because no Mortal can reach the Heavens without becoming an Immortal first; and all Immortals will have to use the other, crowded economy-class lane), and be able to sneak in, out of sight of all other celestial beings - while appearing in his Perfect image of wearing the full Gusu Lan robes uniform, decorated with beautiful cloud patterns, carrying that same basket of goods. He theorizes that anything on his body will be brought along, and through trial-and-error, he worked out the transference process between the Mortal Realm and the Realm of the Gods.

He would bring bottles of Wangxian’s Original Plum Sauce and the newer variants to let his in-laws “sample a taste of Wei Ying’s best recipes, from the lakes and valleys of Yunmeng”, and many other stuff from his home - freshly harvested radishes, leafy greens, chillies, lotus plants and other vegetables, fruits from their orchards (and he gets farming tips from yue mu on how to raise the Heavenly fruit seedlings currently growing well in the courtyard), still-warm chicken eggs from the coop, sometimes a few domesticated baby rabbits (because there is a population explosion, so what better way than to send a few newborns to a wonderfully divine foster home?), even a good-sized fish or a net of shrimps if there is still space inside that basket.

Wei Ying regularly wants to keep up good impressions in front of his foster great grandparents, so he slings satchels over Lan Zhan's shoulders full of new Wangxian product samples to try - including but not limited to: packaged foodstuff, spices and condiments, cosmetics and fragrances, souvenirs, charms and other knick knacks, avantgarde garments and accessory sets from the Wangxian Summer-Fall 20XX Collection, trendy household goods "for home comfort and convenience for living in modern times", luxury consumer and electronic goods (Heaven is being supplied with environmentally-clean electricity, natural gas, water and telephone/broadband internet via Wangxian's utilities division), and so much more.

It is not uncommon for Lan Zhan to lie down on the bed while holding a, say, new rice cooker on his left hand, a basket of produce in his right hand, and maybe a bag of other stuff lying on his abdomen, while getting the legendary triple blowjob; when he transcends to Buddhahood in an epileptic fit of perpetual orgasmic jerks and tasty moans, all the products disappear from the Mortal Realm and accompany him to Heaven.

(In some ways, Wei Ying is like the annoying family member who tries to sign up his relatives to buy insurance or some multi-level marketing schemes. A typical bedtime conversation goes like this:

Wei Ying: Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, when you meet the Queen Mother, please remember to give her this sample starter kit of Wangxian's Classic Series Essential-Oils, and tell her that it's an amazing addition to her aromatherapy sessions.

Lan Zhan: (sighs) Yes, I will. (he's already holding so many other stuff around him)

Wei Ying: Remember to tell her it's Buy Three Free Two, okay?

Lan Zhan: (sighs, a bit exasperated) Yes, I will. (because Wei Ying has been harping on this new promotional campaign all day)

Wei Ying: Okay, spread your legs, and I'm taking you to Heaven now.

Lan Zhan: (sighs, with relief) Mn. (finally, they can get on with it.)

Wei Ying: Buy Three Free Two, remember that!

Lan Zhan: (sighs) )

Unfortunately, Wei Ying's golden core isn't strong enough to allow him the same passage to Heaven (self-pleasure and self-fucking doesn't count); although his creations can waltz through perfectly fine - including Ernie, who functions as the sales and service provider for Wangxian in non-Mortal realms. Wei Ying will have to work more diligently on his cultivation practice; except that he spends most of his time idling away - didi continues to do house chores, blissfully ignorant about the need; san ge goes catching bugs and playing with the animals; or both the youngest duo waste their time watching cartoons and movies, molesting the terrified chained calico cat, or play with consoles and mobile phones in da ge 's awesome home-office suite; er ge will do all of the above and more within the 'Mounds, if he's not too busy being bedded and bred by Lan Zhan; and da ge is da ge - he's always busy as the company's President.

During one of the visits to the Heavenly Court, Lan Zhan finally worked up the courage to ask yue fu whether he could make a short speech in front of the long queues of gods seeking compensation from the Tian family. He'd seen that the lines are not decreasing in size, day by day, and he felt partly responsible for inconveniencing his in-laws due to Wei Ying's disastrous actions of causing cracks, smudges and missing locks on the divine beings' properties.

The Jade Emperor is curious, the Queen Mother places a hand over her mouth in surprise, and both agreed.

With Buddha-like mannerisms, Lan Zhan confidently and calmly walks to the balcony of the Palace, escorted by servants and accompanied by loving old ruling couple. After a brief introduction of the "new great grandson-in-law of the almighty Tian family" by the Jade Emperor (with no reference to his Mortal origins, of course - he still needs to use the backdoor entrance) to the rousing cheers of subservient gods and deities, Lan Zhan clears his throat, and tells a story.

He talks about a humble mortal man who had just gotten engaged, and he started with little more than a few gold bars in his pouch, and a few sacks on his back of the newlywed's belongings. He'd paid a huge sum for a tiny home, and later, for jewelled accessories as a belated dowry gift that he should've given when he had the chance - alas, his spouse's parents had passed on by then - as proof of his love to the beautiful wife. With little money left, the man spent the day cooking meals, toiling the land and rearing farm animals; while his wife has to work far, far away, peddling in the streets all day, and selling whatever the couple could harvest and make from the land. They live an honest life, never cheating or lying, and they work hard from sunrise to sundown to earn and save every silver piece possible, and put food on their table. They ate mostly home-cooked meals, made their own beds, cleaned their floors, fixed their home, sewed their own clothes, patched up any tears on the garments, fashioned tools out of stone and wood, carved their own furniture, pay their bills and taxes, and still have time to enjoy visiting the evening markets to have supper, and watch the fireworks.

“... and that's it. The end.”

All the gods stare at Lan Zhan for a full minute, expecting more, but there is none. Soon, some gods begin to murmur among themselves, and the noise grows with discontent and dissatisfaction. Even the Jade Emperor, his wife and their servants hold back their breaths, unsure of how to react.

“It doesn't make sense.”

“What does this mean? It's disrespectful to the art of storytelling!”

“It has a very rushed ending.”

“It’s a badly-written script!”

Lan Zhan catches the last muttered sentence, and follows up, “It is not a script. It is a true story.”

“Preposterous! What kind of person would live such a... a... poor, wretched life!”

Lan Zhan calmly replies, “It is that humble mortal man, and his wife. They’re somewhere down there, living in this way, every day.”

Lan Zhan puts a hand over his heart, “They enjoy their free time visiting the markets and watching summer fireworks. They’re happy and contented, despite having to work so hard to put food on the table, and like you say - living such a poor, wretched life,” he gestures to the particular god who spoke prior to him.

“You cannot compare a Mortal to a god!”

Lan Zhan strokes his budding beard as though he’s deep in thought, “The mortal lives an honest, humble life;

He would fix any cracks that appear on the walls of his home, using mud and sand dug from the garden, without asking his wife for help;

He would willingly break sweat to wipe away smudges on the furniture without any complaints, because those furniture were made by the hands of his lovely and hardworking wife;

He would spend a silver piece to buy an important lock that has gone missing, because he was able to save that money from working hard.

You are right, how can a mere humble, honest Mortal compare to a god,” Lan Zhan states rather than questions, and bows respectfully at the deity that had just shouted at him.

The noise dies down abruptly, and the elderly, veteran gods understand the message behind Lan Zhan’s story. Some even wiped a tear or two, feeling touched. The Dragon King of the Seas was the first to clap his claw-like hands, followed by the Lord of Hell, and soon, the other gods and their servant deities (including the God of Wealth, Cai Shen) rose and applauded with sudden, inspired cheers.

Lan Zhan bows again, this time to his yue fu and yue mu , and leaves the balcony back into the Palace without needing to say another word.

Needless to say, the crowd at the Heavenly Court thins out and disperses shortly after, and the Jade Emperor and his wife are left awestruck at Lan Zhan’s sincerity, and in some ways, straightforwardness. Lan Zhan leaves a short note that he has to return because Wei Ying has just gone to sleep, and hence, he should go back to his humble home and care for his lovely wife - their foster great grandson - for the rest of the night.

The Heavenly ruling couple will mull over the moral of the lesson over the course of the day. Merciful Goddess Guan Yin, who had been watching, smiles knowingly and sends divinely psychic Good Feelings reverberating throughout the Realms of the Gods.

Lord Buddha, The Enlightened One, closes his eyes, immensely serene, surrounded by eternally peaceful and magnificently harmonious spiritual energies. He utters a single sound to summarize his Universal thoughts:

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan’s soul returns just before the crack of dawn, to see his four lovely spouses, in rather ugly, inhuman-looking, horned, fanged, clawed, winged, tailed, black wisps-covered appearances. They surround his figure on the soaked, soiled bedsheets with blood-red jaws wide open, salivating and whispering very evil sounds and murmur languages that only the corrupted and the undead can understand. He instinctively knows - and expects - that the Wei Yings have taken on their demonic forms again.

He stares down and realizes that his chest is wide open - the skin, rib bones and flesh seemed to have melted away from living poisoned dark blotches eating into his upper body - but there is hardly any pain, save for uncomfortable numbed tingles -, leaving a gaping, bloody dripping hole in the middle - he could see oozing blood vessels, squirming organs and his exposed heart beating inside his chest cavity, and that dark blotch seem to infest, spread and grow like an Ernie inside his trembling, probably dying, body.

His golden core is in the midst of being pulled out - all four Wei Yings have their long, snake-like tongues wrapped around it, and the brilliant light dims with every second with misty, toxic purple-black fluids seeping out from those wriggling tongues.

Lan Zhan sighs.

“Wei Ying.”

All four Wei Yings freeze in shock at being discovered while carrying out their sinful, extremely evil and deadly act.

Wei da ge starts to mutter something incomprehensible because his tongue still stuck out.

Wei er ge whines something akin to Lan Zhan’s name.

Wei san ge struggles to pull away but his tongue is tied somewhere in the clump of entangled tongues from the other siblings, wrapped over the darkening golden core.

Wei didi starts to cry and tears flow from the bloodshot eyes.

Lan Zhan feels an oncoming headache, partly because children's cries do that to him.

“ Wei. Ying.”

Notes for the Chapter:

Chapter 51

His Eminence, Han Guang Jun, is a humble and honest mortal living with a harem of four demonic Wei Wuxians. The most that the man had contributed to Mankind's known history is to expose the treachery of Jin Guangyao, rile up the Lanling Jins, and sit on the Chief Cultivator's hot seat for a mere one year before scandals and rumours rocked the Grand Cultivation Council that led to his resignation, and his name is relegated to dusty, forgotten archives over the passage of time.

Wei Wuxian, on the other hand, is a loose cannon who has tried and done nearly everything, twisted reality, uprooted timelines, and caused infinite intended and unintended consequences and damages from his reckless acts. Historians from mortal and immortal realms will never be able to unravel fact from fiction, because he is just too messed up, really.

Despite the seemingly incredibly lopsided power dynamics between Man and the monsters within the tiny cave-home, the Husband of the Household is blessed with tools for keeping his wives from running amok with their crazy antics.

First, he has the power of words - a short, single or double-syllable utterances that will scare and still the naughtiest Wei Yings into tiny frightened mice, figuratively speaking - whether a "Mn", "Wei Ying" or clearing of one's throat "A-hem". Lan Zhan did the latter two, and stunned the demonic quartet into shocked silence whilst he was being devoured by the latter.

Second, he has the power of the Soulmate Binding Ring, which enables him to have complete control over Wei Ying's chaotic and destructive actions and behaviours - including the option to re-wind, undo and re-instate what should have been - to where things and circumstances should belong to, at the Husband's desires, decisions and discretions. With a wiggle of his empowered fourth finger, he re-painted the picture of the bloodied and soaked crime scene into its original form - his body is instantly repaired into its Perfection and fully-clothed in his night robes, there is no longer a gaping hole in his chest, and his golden core is safely nestled inside; around him is the clean, freshly made-up king-sized bed, lined with pillows stacked neatly against the bed frame, with the bedsheets and blankets tucked perfectly to the sides. Everything is as it should have been, according to Lan Zhan's will, with neither a speck of dust on the floor, nor a smear of dirt on the walls, with him sitting cross-legged on the mattress following the lotus meditation pose; while, the four naked demonic Wei Yings line up on the hard ground, each curled into a quivering kowtow with his head bowed to the floor - defeated, subjugated - and all Wei Yings are restored to their normal, age-appropriate, nude human appearances.

Thirdly - while Lan Zhan oogles and marvels at the newfound power of his wedding ring, his other hand holds the next generation of corporal punishment for the naughty wives. Long before, he held Bichen which easily slayed fierce corpses, cut things into two, and left battlefields bodiless and dustless. Then, he carried the handle of the Dustless Broom, which is a hefty staff that slams to the ground with such earth-shattering and thunderous force (much like Guang Gong 's), that bones are rattled and hearts are shaken - and for more practical uses, it doubles as a walking cane, a tool to pick up stolen underwear from treetops, a fruit picker for fruits high up on the trees, and so on.

Lan Zhan admires in astonished wonder, at what his hand holds - and understands immediately that the most feared weapon is not in its name or its size and strength, but how it is used; just as there is no 'strongest' flute, but a flute played well is the strongest of them all; there is no need to swing heavy broadswords or wield bulky broomsticks inside their bedroom - all Lan Zhan needs is a humble chicken feather duster commonly found in most households in the Middle Kingdom; the middle stick is made from bamboo cut from their backyard - light, springy, hard yet bendable; the feathers are from the chickens from their coop - so it's cheap, practical, useful, and purposeful.

Lan Zhan rises from his seat and from the bed. He grips the tuft of chicken feathers lining the stick, swings the feather duster with a bone-chilling fwip! in mid-air, and all Wei Yings whimper in unison.

Lan Zhan, in principle, does not like to hurt Wei Ying unless absolutely necessary - such as when extracting the truth out of the man who likes to veil his words with flowery, flamboyant white lies. An added bonus is that Lan Zhan has a secret fetish for abusing Wei Ying's tempting springy white ass - they're really, really nice to grab and squeeze with both hands, bite and pinch the bouncy flesh, slap and leave tender red marks as a signature that Wei Ying and his ass belong only to him, and to him only - and so on.

He circles cautiously around the four grovelling Wei Yings, stopping only to swing the feather duster to interrogate his wives. "Talk. What happened? Why were you in demonic forms? What were you doing to me?"

Swat! A moan of "nnnh". An angry red welt rises on Wei da ge 's tanned, well-muscled, buttocks.

Wei da ge 's low baritone voice wavers a little, but he speaks at length without any show of fear or meekness:

When Wei Wuxian was offered a body to return (rather forcibly) to the world of living, more than a couple of years ago, just as there were four cursed slash-marks on his forearm that compelled him to complete his mission before he became a free man - there was another curse placed inside the deepest recesses of his soul, which was irremovable by all physical, magical or spiritual means. There is a Fate-element in the curse, which meant that all kinds of magics, including Creation and Time spells, even Peaches of Immortality, cannot unearth the timebomb that tick away Wei Ying's life when he does not obey the will of this curse.

This curse creates a minute but eternally gnawing hunger inside the man - it requires Wei Ying to consume some amounts of Mankind's sins to continue living in this world; if he fails to do so, the hunger will grow, and like any form of starvation, Wei Ying will become ill, weaken, until he perishes. It is relatively easy to sate the hunger for the time being - having sexual intercourse to relieve the lustful pressures; walking past a restaurant to inhale wafts of gluttony to make men less likely to pile up on uneaten food; meandering in the marketplace to suck the greed seeping out of pores of money-minded vendors so that they become kinder to their customers; or even waking Lan Zhan up at the crack of dawn with multiple blowjobs so that he does not become slothful anymore - and so on. It is a good kind of curse, probably placed by the gods to make sure that their investment in Wei Ying's return using prohibitive spells, will benefit the Mortal Realm as well. The downside, however, is that Wei Ying must continue to work hard for the rest of his life, to reduce and rid the world of sinful feelings, little by little, so that he does not go hungry.

Sex is the most potent foods for the incubus-like portion of the curse, and turning into a demonic form eases the consumption of lust - because Lan

Zhan is, truthfully, a man full of wet dreams, if left alone to his own devices. It's like unbuckling one's belt in order to down and accommodate more delicious food, so that his filled stomach can last for much longer. Being in a demonic form meant Wei Ying could easily paralyze and poison, then tear open and consume what he needs, and still leave Lan Zhan peacefully sleeping, relatively undisturbed - such as a mosquito or parasite biting and sucking one's blood undetected. Wei Ying wanted to have a taste of Lan Zhan's lust because although he - they've been going at it all day, there's still plenty more to go around.

"... then, why my golden core? What were you going to do with it?" Lan Zhan unconsciously places a hand defensively on his chest, groping to make sure everything is still intact.

Swat! A groan of pain. A raised red mark appears on Wei er ge 's pale, fleshy smooth buttocks.

The second eldest Wei pleaded Lan Zhan to be merciful as his ass hurts a lot already, since they share mental connections with one another (屁股开花). He explains that Lan Zhan must be aware that no one lived in the Burial Mounds for so long - not because of nightmarish tales told by old wives to scare off children, or legends of haunted forests with skeletal hands that drag victims into sinkholes - it's simply because the air is too toxic, contaminated, and poisons anyone who dares to live for prolonged periods shrouded in its dark, vengeful and evil mists - which are both servants to his dark arts, and also food for that curse which resides inside Wei Ying's soul. Inhabitants will eventually become poisoned, their minds driven mad by hallucinations, lungs weaken until breathing becomes impossible, or the skin becomes diseased with spots, splotches, tumours and malignant growths all over the body. These mists are attracted to the healthy and the living; even the innocent Wens whom he tried to settle down in the 'Mounds sixteen or so years ago, would have been wiped out within a year, had it not been Wei Ying's remarkable cursed ability to secretly consume the sinful spirits infesting their bodies by simply breathing the same air as them, thus keeping the Wens' in good condition while keeping Wei Ying's hunger at bay.

Lan Zhan is probably the first ever high-level cultivator that settled in the 'Mounds, and his pure, virtuous golden core attracts plenty of dark, vengeful spirits intent to enter his body and poison that core on a daily basis. Wei Ying has been hard at work, periodically taking it out to perform much-needed cleaning and maintenance, so that his husband does not fall sick from the effects of the invasion - which is true, Lan Zhan hasn't caught a fever or flu, suffered from gut problems or any other common ailments, since the day he moved in, and his body and mind are as sound as the days of his youth. Wei Ying would re-insert the cleaned golden core and put it back into the chest, before covering up everything, so that Lan Zhan does not realize what happened to his body the next day.

"I'm sorry, Lan Zhan, that you had to see such an awful sight upon your body. And I know this story is as unbelievable as the ones I have told you before, such as the Great Fires earlier the month," Wei er ge cries fearfully when he sees the feather duster twitches in Lan Zhan's iron-hard grip, "but I swear, I'm telling the truth!" and Wei Ying kneels and raises a three-finger salute.

"... why did you not simply ask? We could have sat together to think this through, and I would have used everything within my means to help you!" Lan Zhan was beginning to lose his patience; this isn't the first time Wei Ying tried to solve his own problems, which usually leads to more hurt and misunderstandings.

Swat! A whine of “aaah!”. A scarlet line blooms across the youthful pair of moon-white ass-mounds of Wei san ge . The teenager yowls a second later when the full spectrum of pain is felt, and he kneels up with his back arched.

“Lan Zhan! Ahhh! Please, be more gentle! You know that I hardly rely on others, and I always find some ways to resolve my own issues. For example,” the teenager points at the eldest Wei gongzi , “ Da ge works most of the day in Wuji continent, where there are plenty of sins drifting about in an urban, metropolitan setting; so he has no problem to keep his hunger away.” Then he points at the next eldest, “ Er ge frequently makes daytrips to Yiling and spends his time mingling with people, businessmen and traders, so he also finds his way to remain satisfied.” He points at himself, “I work at the farm and the outdoors, where I can still get breathfuls of filling air from the ‘Mounds, because this place is an endless buffet of sinful hatred and vengeful feelings.”

“And once every few days, I - and since the four of us came to being - we, get together while you’re asleep to purify your golden core. Please believe us! We really have no ulterior motives! We’re not harmful!” The teenager shrieks, afraid, when the feather duster flinches near his face. Lan Zhan is in a state of utter disbelief - he’d seen enough Wei Ying-ness in his lifetime, and yet, something always surprises him just around the next corner. “Lan Zhan, we really love you as our husband, our patriarch, our guardian!”

Lan Zhan sighs, and finally lowers the intimidating punishing weapon. He gives a light swat on Wei didi ’s naked pert buttocks with a hand, before crouching down, and collecting the boy into his arms. The boy hiccups and cries softly non-stop in his cradle.

“ Gege , I’m sorry, we didn’t talk to you first before we acted. I - Wei er ge - has been doing this since the time he moved in with you in this cave-home, so we thought that everything is alright and you didn’t need to worry. I’m sorry, gege , please don’t be angry. Please don’t leave us.”

Lan Zhan nuzzles into the boy’s hair. “You are my wives, my family, my children. I can never hate any of you, and I promise not to leave you too. In return, you have to promise to tell me everything. And let me help you solve your problems.”

“Enn.”

All Wei Yings cry in relief when the feared feather duster drops to the floor, and they crowd around to embrace their patriarch simultaneously. After a while, they finally calmed down from the traumatic experience of revealing their dark secrets in the face of the searing, stinging weapon. Wei da ge finally speaks up.

“Lan Zhan, please help us save our didi . He’s dying and I - we - don’t know what to do.”

Lan Zhan’s breathing stops, mortified.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei didi , the nine-year old who is made of sugar, spice and everything nice, looks to be quite in the pink of health - except that looks can be deceiving. His physical outlook is fine, albeit a little quiet in the last time-warped week since his brothers spent most of their time either at work, or with Lan Zhan, and thus he's left alone to do the housework. His soul, however, is emaciated due to the effects of the curse.

Lan Zhan asks immediately for the reason.

“ Didi is nine years old. He's not old enough to know, experience or feel the sins of Mankind, therefore he cannot eat them. He doesn't know what the sins are, other than acting on pure childish instincts sometimes, but that does not satisfy the growing hunger that threatens him now. He cannot feed himself from the sinful feelings drifting around him, and he is unable to take even a sliver from your golden core which is the most potent and nutritious of all,” Wei da ge explains, slowly and gravely.

Lan Zhan didn't need to think long to understand what is implied.

“... how long has it been?” The first meal, the last meal, the hunger, the starvation - wordlessly included but not verbalized.

Wei er ge lowers and shakes his head, helpless. “Since he was brought into this world. I really didn't know that this would happen, because all I was thinking at that time was to create someone to help with the housework. It's been four weeks and he's had nothing, and da ge is trying his best to keep Time from advancing further. We've been trying to absorb lustful feelings from you in the last few days since it's the most potent kind of food, and feed them to didi with our shared connections... but nothing is going through, not even the other sins such as Gluttony, Greed, Sloth, Wrath, Envy, and Pride.” The admission is fully transparent, and shameful - still, all Wei Yings are pouring out their heartfelt worries, and Lan Zhan can appreciate that.

“... how much longer does he have?” Lan Zhan cradles the child tightly against his chest. The little boy “hmm”s questioningly with bright dark-brown eyes gazing at his bearded chin and the sudden tightness felt near the left side; near Lan Zhan’s beating heart. The nine-year old doesn’t really understand the conversation, or Wei da ge is purposefully filtering their thoughts from reaching the boy.

Wei san ge ’s fingers run soothing circles on the boy’s back, and the latter responds with a sleepy yawn; it is still dawn and too early for the boy anyway. “We tried to guess by looking up information on incubuses as a measure of didi ’s lifespan, since we thought of using Lust to save him. Lust is the most potent, therefore the most representative of all sins for us. We don’t know how long incubuses can last without food... probably another few days, up to a week at most, da ge guessed. It could be shorter because didi is a weak, young child.”

“... is Lust the only way to save him?” Lan Zhan asks. He feels the little boy slowly falling back to sleep due to the teenager’s constant back rubs - his eyes opens and closes cutely, his head slowly nods off. His tiny round nose tip snuggles against Lan Zhan’s lower chest and the latter feels a deep-seated maternal instinct - and maybe, just maybe indicating something hopefully - he cautiously starts to peel off his night robes from the waist up.

“At this rate, yes. The other sins are not digested quickly enough, and his soul’s light is nearly going out. We are really troubled because of his underaged body and his underdeveloped gut system for absorbing any sin as nourishment,” the eldest Wei gongzi answers truthfully, despite knowing what that meant for the fate of the child, and the uncomfortable, even reviled thoughts that come with it. He reaches out and gently taps the chubby cheeks. Wei didi nnnhs, half-asleep, and his lips found Lan Zhan’s left nipple. Instinctively, the little boy suckles on it, although there is nothing to gain from the innocent act other than an easier slumber into the remaining night.

“He does not show any pain at all,” Lan Zhan murmurs at the brave, angelic sleeping face. “Is there suffering? (痛苦吗?)” he asks solemnly.

Wei er ge runs fingers soothingly through the boy’s long hair, tied into a top-knot and a high ponytail. “Lan Zhan, I was around this age when my actual foster father, Jiang Fengmian, took me in. At that time, during summer days like this, I would laugh and smile all day, playing with toy dolls I made with my own two hands using discarded straw and other bits of trash. I would have kept that brave smile to the end, had I not been picked up and left to live on the streets for the rest of my life, or even freeze in the winter. Because that’s who I am, really.” He leans into Lan Zhan’s side, and goes quiet.

Wei san ge continues to calmly stroke the child’s back, with a mournful look on his face. “I’ve been working the hardest to try and feed didi , but I’ve failed. I ask myself sometimes, if a child like him, unable to feed and therefore unfit for this world, should have been born at all. Or would it be kinder to just return him to the earth, so that he may be reincarnated into a better life elsewhere, God willing.”

Lan Zhan sheds a tear for Wei didi , whose remaining short life is sentenced to the harsh realities of the Mortal Realm.

Notes for the Chapter:

Sorry for another brief chapter! I had a wild time laughing at the feather duster, then crying when I think about hungry children.

The pedo and shotacon warning should be lit up in bright strobing red lights by now (and it's been a long time coming...). Buckle up your seatbelts!

Chapter 52

Notes for the Chapter:

Disclaimer: pedo and shotacon content. You've been warned. Don't read if you don't like. If there are no other issues, then go ahead!

Loving a nine-year old Wei Ying is to love a child in an adult-like manner, as it is to love an adult in a child-like manner. Lan Zhan has the capacity to do both, but at the wrong ends of the age spectrum, so he forced himself to re-wire his thinking process, for the sake of generating the needed lustful feelings and keep his lovely child Wei Ying alive. There is no question about what is right or wrong, nor which is black or white - there is only the colour of Wei Ying in Lan Zhan's eyes, and he is determined to lessen the suffering the child feels from being afflicted by the curse.

“Wei Ying, let me feed you a strawberry. Open your mouth... aaahh..” Lan Zhan coos in a disarmingly sweet manner, which is no different that how he treats the boy - just like a friendly next door gege (elder brother) who invites the child over under the pretense of sharing a snack. Lan Zhan does not know if little Wei Ying is aware of what lies ahead for the rest of the morning, for his pure, untouched body.

Docile little Wei Ying obeys, and soon, enjoys munching on a sweet, juicy fruit, while lying on a broad shoulder facing the ceiling, on the huge king-sized bed, surrounded by a cozy nest of fluffy freshly laundered pillows, bedsheets and blankets in the morning. Lan Zhan continuously kisses the boy's cheeks, ears and jaw, and burrows his nose playfully into child's lush hair, until Wei Ying relaxes with drooped shoulders. The older man asks innocent questions veiled with a child's language, such as how is Wei Ying feeling, is he hungry, has he showered, how did he shower, did he touch himself or did someone touch him during the shower - and when the answer is “yes”, Lan Zhan probes further, and learns that the other Wei gongzi s had done a fantastic job in preparing the boy as a gift of sorts to their patriarch. Little Wei Ying has been cleaned on the inside and outside, given a full-body massage to warm up the joints and muscles, perfumed, prepared and served on a platter to be tasted by the older man. Lan Zhan wrinkles his nose in disgust at such needless, even frowned-upon deviant practice; however when the boy says that he's still hungry even after a good breakfast of da ge's pancakes and maple syrup and those strawberries, and that hunger hasn't gone away in the last four or so weeks - Lan Zhan focuses on the task at hand, and shushes all dissenting voices inside his head.

Lan Zhan licks a rogue trail of juice off Wei Ying's chin when the latter chews on a berry a wee bit too hard. The lick soon leads into the boy's mouth, where the older man gently parts the little one's lips, tenderly invades with his tongue and soon, they're locked in syrupy sweet kisses and exchanged warmed, half-chewed strawberry chunks between their mouths. Wei Ying tastes of summer fruits, mild and sweet with tiny bursts of flavours in between. Like a gentle game of cat-and-mouse, Lan Zhan holds the half-eaten strawberries inside his mouth, and lets the boy's tongue try to lick them off, and Wei Ying does - only to steal them back from the boy because like everything else about Lan Zhan, the older man is much larger, more dominating, and stronger than the boy. In a surprising twist, at the last minute, the nine-year old manages to swipe away most of the saliva-coated fruit pieces in a single strike, and deftly swallows them, then grins mischievously with squeals of "I caught them! I caught them!" leaving Lan Zhan's mouth agape.

There is no mistake - the child is indeed an image of the twenty-two year old Wei Ying, and he possesses innately superb (oral) lovemaking skills as well - when he grows up.

“Naughty boy, you ate up the fruits, and left none for your gege,” Lan Zhan growls out, then flips the boy onto the bed, and lunges at the child in mock anger, raining kissy lips upon the boy just like the innocent games they’d played when rolling on meadows and grassfields in Wei da ge’s land of summer berries.

“ Gege will eat you today as a punishment!” Lan Zhan teases with half-snarls and little Wei Ying shrieks with laughter and wiggles around; Lan Zhan’s sweet kisses work their way from lips down towards the upper torso, past the Adam’s Apple-less neck which the older man could easily crush with a single grip, peppering kisses on the naked smooth shoulders - the skin is heated, firm, youthful - and he ends up nibbling and sucking the small, immature inverted nipples. He latches on each sparse breast - his mouth nearly covers a good part of the boy’s chest - and works on vacuuming his cheeks, plunging a wiggling muscled tongue into the crevices, to tease out the hiding nubs from their virginal indentations.

Wei Ying grows quiet, catching his breath while observing with morbid fascination at how a man in his mid-thirties hovers above him, starts to touch, rather inappropriately, all over his nine-year old body. The boy jerks slightly - a first sexual response, perhaps -, and murmurs “ Gege , your moustache and beard tickles,” in which Lan Zhan nuzzles even further into the lean chest with a grunt-ish “mrrrrrowl”.

While Lan Zhan distracts the boy with his kissy games, his roughened palms busy themselves by caressing the boy’s young, almost androgynous body - the effect is a stark contrast from what he’d usually see with an older Wei Ying - a brush of a hand covers a whole lot more surface area upon the nnnh-ing child, and within moments, he conquers and rubs a sensitive convulsing tummy that he could easily encircle with an arm, slides along smooth hip joints to reach the slender thighs, winding his way down the legs, tickle the soles of the feet until the boy writhes in giggles, gingerly kneads each tiny toe, each tiny finger, covering the boys' limbs with his (because they're just so small compared to his), until one hand is left intimately on the hairless crotch, while the other slides between the flawless closed buttock and the length of the curved spine like finger-painting the pre-adolescent back.

“Wei Ying, do you feel good? Being touched by gege in this way.”

The child moans because at that tender age, he can feel some pleasure radiating from his fledgling nervous system encompassing his underdeveloped sexual reproductive organs - just barely.

“Enn, it tickles,” followed by a light giggle.

Both nipples are fully puffed out, but Lan Zhan does not relent. He continues to swirl his tongue, five times each, alternating from one to the other, until the boy feels electricity running from his sensitized chest down the navel and into the groin - an unfamiliar sensation for one at such a young age, and little Wei Ying is forced to learn the pleasures of the flesh, guided by Lan Zhan's tender ministrations.

“Or, do you prefer to be touched... here?”

The hand on the crotch moves faster. Calloused thumb and index finger carefully tug at the foreskin of a rising stiff penis no bigger than Lan Zhan's pinkie; it looks no more than a tiny meaty sausage with the tip covered by a bundle of wrinkled skin; the remaining fingers gently jiggle a loose bag of wrinkled, scrotal skin containing a pair of testicles no bigger than a peanut each. Sometimes he uses his palm to press on the pubic bone and rubs the spot in circles; the child inhales and exhales loudly, as his bladder is massaged along with all developing body parts within the pelvic area. Soon, Lan Zhan closes his grip around the child's penis and moves in languid strokes typical of a relaxed masturbation session.

“Or... here?”

While one hand plays with the child's genitals, the other hand quickly dips into their favourite jar of massage oil, and one lubricated index finger rubs the little rosebud in back-and-forth motion - just at the puckered entrance, teasing the slight dip before pulling out and resuming its flirtatious movements.

“ Gege ... it's... itchy... please, scratch it some more...” the boy breathes out, a slight pinkish flush appears on his cheeks, and he responds by gyrating against the fingertip that refuses to enter - yet.

The adult Wei Ying within the child trembles with long-suppressed desire - because Wei Ying had always, and now, is always, the bottom when it comes to their lovemaking; ass muscles clench and contract instinctively with want. Lan Zhan does not even ask for permission; he lets the oiled finger penetrate through the tight ring of muscle at a steady pace, parting folds of flesh and gliding on miniature-sized, but familiar-feeling bumps, as though he's done this frequent enough - he knows the angle and speed that Wei Ying likes, and he applies his sexual knowledge to the child's body. The invasion is forced, a little uncomfortable, but little Wei Ying spreads his legs a bit wider and Lan Zhan takes this as a welcoming signal to go deeper. He estimates the location of the prostate gland - and sure enough, finds it; it's too small, still undeveloped at this age. Lan Zhan massages it anyway, milking the immature unripe fruit and its surrounding tissues, encouraging it to relax and swell - even barely - from the rush of blood supply and other fluids into it. The boy experiences wonderful never-felt-before-sensations because in his actual entire life's memory of twenty two years, he never had his prostate played and his dick jacked simultaneously at the tender age of nine.

Lan Zhan patiently spends half an hour pleasuring the little boy; hands coax the boy's lower body regions to relax, dilate, bulge and swell up sweetly wherever possible, and sends an unspoken message to the precocious body - hurry up and grow, little Wei Ying, so that gege can love you more and more.

Little Wei Ying did not manage to clearly answer his gege 's last question, as he starts to sport the tell-tale flush on his chest, sweat prickled all over his body, the familiar quaking in the hips and limbs, and the boy stretches and stills and his breath hitches, while his tiny penis jerks wildly within Lan Zhan's pistoning grip. There is no ejaculation, but Lan Zhan knows the boy feels very, very good, judging from the cute involuntary moans of "unh, unh, unh" echoing off the bedroom's walls.

Later, Lan Zhan performs oral sex on the child's vulnerable, defenceless penis - thus, fulfilling part of his earlier promise to 'eat' the boy. Little Wei Ying squirms and moans gege , gege , please, not so hard, it feels like you're biting it away - but Lan Zhan knows that nine-year old boys who have not reached puberty have little or no refractory period, so he musters the most of his lips, jaw and tongue muscles, peeling the foreskin to the back to expose the underdeveloped glans, then work the twitching penis from tip to the base, then around the balls and back up again, sometimes he envelops the entire groin with a wide gaping moist mouth and pretends to swallow everything into his throat which then massages all the sweet miniature-sized organs simultaneously; he does all of these repeatedly until the boy thrashes helplessly on sweaty bedsheets and the sweet virginal body spasms rhythmically; while large calloused fingers continue to scissoring inside the tight ass and graze the nearly-invisible prostate area so that if there is indeed anything to drain out of the boy's shuddering, forcibly-excited genitals, Lan Zhan would have a first taste of it.

The boy's movements become sluggish over time, after experiencing multiple waves of tingling and electric shocks that are precursors to orgasms, but Lan Zhan's isn't. His cock is massive and leaking after being subjected to such tasty displays of lovely Wei Ying in extremely obscene, depraved acts involving such an underaged spouse - his Wei Ying, his wife, his harem, his possession - all belonging to him. Wei Ying at nine-years old is still a virgin, and deep down, Lan Zhan's primal lust bubbles and boils up, tearing down moral and ethical barriers to whisper huskily at the man like demons enticing his conscience: how delightfully tight is the boy when your excited cock finally penetrates it? How tasty is the virginal flesh - will it remain sweet as a true child's, or will it be tainted with musky flavours as he grows up into a fine young adolescent? Will he moan your name when you deflower and bed him now, and immediately? How does it feel to spear that fresh tender juicy meat and shoot your seed in there, and claim the boy's firsts? Do you want to have sexual intercourse with this little boy not just once - but many, many times throughout the day? Don't you want sweet, prolonged time even days and months violating this sweet boy's ass, stretching and moulding its shape to fit yours and become your property, then play with his little penis until he learns to orgasm properly, under your tender loving care? Do you want to watch how little Wei Ying ejaculates for the first time - how the thick immature white syrup feels between your fingers, or how that first virile seed tastes on your tongue, as the pre-adolescent tries so hard to hump and make love with your lips while you empty everything out of that trembling delectable nine-year old boy?

Lan Zhan licks his lips, as the terrifying suggestions start to enrapture his thinking process. He pushes the child deeper into the mattress, his one hand easily grasps both of little Wei Ying's wrists together, while his other hand starts caressing - no, fiercely molesting - the yearning, captivating body that fidgets restlessly, imprisoned by the older man that looms over dangerously close until his heavy, panting breaths tickle the child's neck. The free hand starts to tug violently at the reddened, hypersensitive penis, and little Wei Ying yelps in distress at the sudden change in Lan Zhan's mood. Fingertips flutter abrasively over the dot-sized pee-slit, forcing an adult's pleasurable act upon an unprepared child's member, and more fingers cup and pull on the peanut-sized testicles, frenziedly milking the seedless sacs, with a brutal force that is too savage for the delicate unripe nuts to handle; however, there is no sympathy to be gained as the boy's body unwillingly responds to the rough treatment, and he arches his back and starts humping his hips against Lan Zhan's hand, further fuelling the stench of filthy perverseness hanging thick in the atmosphere of an adult that is about to rape a child.

Wei Ying cries softly; he's confused with conflicting feelings - on the one hand, his body feels hot and lustful, on the other, there is fear welling from within when his eyes become as wide as saucers at the moment he realizes Lan Zhan's immense size will not fit, and it's aimed straight between the legs - "N.. No, it's too big. It's going to tear and hurt. Please, gege, no, no, please..."

Lan Zhan is oblivious to the child's pleas, as his eyes become glazed at being exceedingly focused and his gaze hardened on his treasured prize - the virginal entrance. The first time is always the most unforgettable - he had a taste of the teenager's sweet virginity not too long ago, so, what of this child's? Sweet, bewitching voices drown out any rational thought and furious protests inside the older man's mind.

"Wei Ying, gege wants to feel good too, after watching how you enjoyed gege's touch. So listen to gege ... open your legs and let gege love you more. Yes... good boy. More, Wei Ying, more." Even his own voice sounds strange, disembodied, disconnected from his mind, Lan Zhan thought with increasingly muddled worry and excitement.

The Soulmate Binding Rings glow in unison, compelling little Wei Ying to submit and yield, and to do the Husband's bidding.

An hour into animalistic rutting with plenty of empty jars of oil lying all over the floor, of a large sweaty man mounting non-stop atop a little boy less than a quarter of his age, the boy's ass is a sticky mess of thick, viscous seed and other bodily fluids that could not be contained inside his small-sized cocksleeve sheathe buttole. After some initial resistance, the Rings ensured that both males accept their preordained roles and soon, they fell into a steady, constant tempo of passionate copulation; it helps that the younger one is very tight, very elastic and very supple - and never fails to excite the older one's flesh, and fans his molten-hot desires like a string of erupting volcanoes.

Lan Zhan switches their positions after realizing that he'd 'destroyed' and traumatized the boy's stretched buttocks (including plenty of slaps and spanks), and should allow him recover; through the Rings again, Lan Zhan orders little Wei Ying to perform penetrative sex with him (even Lan Zhan is horrified at the words that spews out of his mouth); he'd stroke the reluctant boy's penis until it's hard enough, and goads, with graphic descriptions of how Baby Wei Yings want to play with Little Wang Jis, and persuades the boy to fuck his ass, missionary style - Wei da ge has had plenty of fun with it, so it's no big deal taking in a pinkie-sized penis. Lan Zhan doesn't feel much other than a slight, clumsy back-and-forth prodding, so he easily reaches down to the boy's groin to grope and caress whatever he can lay his greedy hands on, to forcefully excite and pleasure little Wei Ying to squeeze out everything his young body can produce within a short span of time of discovering his newfound sexual high. Lan Zhan enjoys watching the nine-year old shout involuntarily, jerk and spasm between his legs, trying his best to perform the age-old, timeless act of baby-making, of sowing one's seed, except that he is still seedless - but the pulsing sensations are still there, and Lan Zhan mmmms everytime he feels it between clenched ass-muscle walls. When little Wei Ying slumps forward, tired and in dire need of rest - because it's time for a short morning nap for the nine-year old - Lan Zhan hooks his legs around the boy, and starts grinding the captured pinkie penis in circular and drilling motions, to repeat the cycle until the boy is forced to perform many times throughout the morning to the Husband's satisfaction.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Lan Zhan sits on the edge of the soaked bedside, spent, pantless, and lifeless. His hands clutch his face, filled with dread and misery--

"What... what have I done?" the older man whispers shakily into the tranquil, and rather stinked-up bedroom.

Behind him, little Wei Ying sleeps peacefully on cum-stained sheets, having cried so much that dark puffy bags appear conspicuously beneath the closed eyes; dried streaks of tears pattern his chubby cheeks; bruises, scratches and slap marks all over his delicate underdeveloped body; his crotch is sweaty and slick; the half-stiff penis still has its foreskin retracted because of the savage handling, exposing slightly inflamed and visibly abused glans, the length of the child's erection had over-exerted itself with too many twitches that the muscles ache and cramp; reddened nut-sized testicles are a little swollen after being made love for hours on end by tight yanks, roughened, moustached and bearded lips, and a thick adult tongue that doubles as a moist whip; and a butthole that still convulses with each sleepy breath, leaking and gushing out globs of white seed, adding to the growing pool forming between the slender legs - evidence of an adult's pleasure forced upon a premature child's body far too many times, and far too much that can be handled.

Wei da ge opens the bedroom door and walks in with a tray of tea in his hands. Lan Zhan does not even turn towards the new visitor into the bedroom.

“Wei Ying, I’ve.. I’ve r-raped a ch.. chil... child--”

“No, you’ve fulfilled the contract of our marriage, and made love equally to each one of us, including the youngest. It’s just that he received his payment a little later than the rest of us,” Wei da ge nonchalantly interrupts, places the tray on the bedside table, and pours a cup of warmed brew.

Wei da ge sneaks a peck on Lan Zhan’s pale cheek, and the latter jumps away as though the touch is filthy, offensive and downright repulsive. The eldest Wei gongzi becomes startled. Fortunately, the cup in his hand - the one he’s about to serve the patriarch - did not spill.

“What? I’m just giving a Thank-You kiss for saving the boy, and for showing us how it’s done in order to keep pre-pubescent Wei Yings alive.”

Lan Zhan starts shouting back in uncharacteristic anger - a sign that the man is slowly losing his mind due to his vile, morally-objectionable actions, his increasingly unchecked emotions, and the inability to control the damage wrought upon his sullied Perfection -, “I... I destroyed his first time! It should've been slow and sweet! And then you... I should have realized it and withdraw, when you started weaving those horrible thoughts into my mind... and controlled me! You.. You..." A finger points at Wei da ge , quaking in fury.

(Lan Zhan never points at Wei Ying - no, never like that. What on earth is going on inside the husband's mind? Wei da ge asks inwardly.)

Wei da ge feels insulted, but remains unfazed - a younger Wei Ying would have crumbled with fear by now, but no, not the da ge and his incredibly strong-willed heart and invincible composure. He sighs, then calmly puts down the untouched cup on the tray. "Yes, yes I'm a monster, I'm a demon, I'm a mastermind of unholy orgies, I'm a rapist, and I'm also a victim of our sex games," and he puts his hands on his hips in a chastising manner.

(Truthfully, he is correct. Their sex life is not normal at all.)

"So, I'm guilty of clouding your judgement, finding cunning ways to understand, circumvent and even exploit the Rings' authority by controlling your orders; that my wants become yours, and together, we override the entire chain of command of the Rings," Wei da ge pushes away the accusing, pointing index finger, and Lan Zhan scoots further away to the corner of the bed in a don't-you-dare-touch-me manner. "I won, you lost. I cheated you. I tricked you. All is fair in our married life. We're a team of husband and wives, and we're not supposed to call each other nasty names and bicker like juveniles. Did I miss anything?" Wei da ge reads off an invisible script from his mind, and even purposely counts his fingers to emphasize his point that arguments like these are supposed to be normal and routine between them.

(Again, he is correct. He successfully outwitted Lan Zhan; Lan Zhan made the fatal mistake of demonstrating that their wedding rings aren't just normal metal-sculpted symbols of their married life. When the gaping hole in his chest was woven back using the Ring's power, gears have started spinning inside Wei Yings' heads and they figure out what it is, and how it can be manipulated for their own benefit. In hindsight, Lan Zhan could have just asked his wives to patch up his body, without resorting to such a powerful and easily-misused tool of divinely capabilities.)

“Wei Ying! It's not about who won and who lost! It's about doing what is right! I... How... hurting your didi is wrong!” Another finger point. Wei da ge is slowly losing his patience.

“And saving his life is wrong?” He slams the bedside table, rattling the earthenware until some tea spilled off the cup.

“No! I... I...” Lan Zhan's face is red and is about to explode into expletives and other unimaginable words, but he is baffled, rendered speechless, because he's never blown off before - he doesn't know how. He is unable to comprehend how Wei da ge twists the logic of the conversation.

Wei san ge calls out from beyond the door, “Da ge ! I've collected them from Ernie. Where should I put them?”

“-- what is that,” Lan Zhan states rather than asks, then gulps.

Wei da ge “Huh”s at Lan Zhan’s facial expression that had turned from unusually lively seething scarlet into a blank, blood-drained look.

“... what... what is... are those?!” Lan Zhan is clearly horrified.

Wei da ge turns around to see what has terrified his husband. Multiple naked Wei didi s stand at the entrance, looking completely unaware, doe-eyed and curious, like tiny school kids waiting to file into the classroom on their first day of lessons. Among them are girls too, with bright dark-brown eyes and chubby cheeks just as their male counterparts - and Lan Zhan had to shut his eyes for a moment in order not to stare between their legs; he is visibly shaking on the bed now. Teenage Wei appears at the back and slowly pushes the children into the bedroom, like herding a flock of frightened lambs towards the slaughterhouse.

“Ah, I mentioned about them just now. Come, children, come in and greet our Patriarch properly, before he loses his marbles!” the da ge waves at the door. There are at least ten, no, twenty, no, more are streaming in and the bedroom is full and some of the children start to pick their way on the cum-stained sheets on the huge king-sized bed, kneeling, crawling, towards their Patriarch.

Wei da ge lifts up the cup of tea again in a respectful bow amidst a sea of children, but his gaze remains on the shaking figure, “Lao gong, if it helps, none of them will feel the pain, because I’m able to re-distribute any hurt and trauma amongst us - including myself. The more energetic you are, the more lust is generated, the better these didi s and meimei s (little sister) will feed. Please, Patriarch Lan, drink up this tea to slake your thirst because you’ve been working hard this morning, and do your duty as our Provider!”

Lan Zhan clutches his temples, and he stares at the floor - exactly that there's no floor since the room is filled with pre-pubescent male and female Wei Yings, and he's forced to stare at their lower bodies - which is even worse, because he notices that some of the children are inhuman - cat's tails, reptile's scales, insect claws, tiny fangs, horns and wings, and everything else included. "Wei Ying... where... where are these... things... from?"

Wei san ge chirps cheerfully from behind, "Ai-yaaa! They're you're wives, families and children too, so don't refer to them as objects! They were created with Creation spells during the past few weeks when you were drowning in sex with us... you probably didn't notice, because you were busy visiting yue fu and yue mu during those times."

Wei da ge gloats at the wonderful sight of a room full of the latest generation of family members - all Wei Yings, and they're about to be saved by their Patriarch. "Lao gong, I've told you before, two or so weeks ago, all Wei Yings created are in the flesh, are real, and will not disappear. I had to put them in Ernie's limitless cold stasis so that they do not suffer like didi, otherwise I'd bring them over to our new continent, just like all the other Wei Yings we had created in the past, and everyone can live happily in our Kingdom.

My family! Come! Let's not waste time. Put on your Wangxian-made copies of Soulmate Binding Rings, greet our Patriarch, and sate your hunger with our Father!" he gestures like a true megalomaniac laoban (or a crazed cultist) at the room full of children with wide-sweeping arms. Lan Zhan raises his hand to stop the conversation, because 'cold stasis' and many other stuff in da ge's words do not make sense. He wouldn't mind being put into cold storage, though.

“Good morning, our Father and Patriarch Lan!” scores of children shout out happily like school kids greeting their teacher.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei da ge leaves for work at eight in the morning because he'd looped the day again and again, or even earlier, so that he's able to complete his projects and attend to his meeting appointments, while all Wei Yings - the originals and the copies and every other forms of Wei Yings - are finally, happily, blissfully, wonderfully, magnificently, satisfied with the fulfilled marriage promises.

The Great Han Guang Jun has done it!

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan sips on a cup of Heavenly oolong, different from the pu'er tea he had back at home. The flavours are milder, smoother and woodier - better to cleanse the palate after such a distasteful experience back on earth.

“Ah.. ha ha ha.. Wang Ji, if it helps, my wife is thousands of years younger than I am, so please, don’t take our foster great grandson’s antics to heart. Age is no barrier to love!”

“Ssssh! You’re making it worse!... Wang Ji ah ( 呸 ), listen to yue mu ... fights between couples and family members are very common. Look at how your Tian jiejie argued with your yue fu . They caused thunderstorms and earthquakes that lasted for days on the Mortal Realm every time they yell at each other for having different perspectives. Everyone has different needs and wants - they just have to sit down and talk to one another, right? Wang Ji?”

Lan Zhan sighs.

“Wang Ji, you don’t have to worry about losing ‘face’. None of the gods in our Realm are offended at what happened. For example, our foster great grandson’s new continent sits in the middle of the ocean, which is actually my friend the Dragon King’s rubbish site. All those time-loops are insignificant for us, because they’re mere seconds and minutes in our Heavenly realm... you know, the time it takes for one to go to the toilet and out... ha ha ha... err... and... don’t worry, I’ve informed Goddess Guan Yin to include copy-protection into future versions of the Rings, so that they can’t be copied and sold for money. Er.. does that help?”

“Ssssh! You useless grandpa! That’s not what’s bothering our baobei (treasure) here!... Wang Ji ah, if.. If you find it hard to talk to that troublemaker, please let yue mu know. He cannot ascend to Heaven, but we can descend to the Mortal Realm and give him an earful. I will scold him, and hit his buttocks for you, so that he will listen to you, and give you some peace of mind!”

Lan Zhan sighs again - his cup is emptied. Finally, he speaks with his usual neutral expression, “ Yue fu , yue mu , thank you for your advice. Wang Ji appreciates your suggestions,” he bows following formal Gusu Lan etiquettes in addressing elders (and the Tian ruling couple loves Lan Zhan even more - such an obedient and filial son-in-law! [never mind the generational gaps]), “but this is really something between me and Wei Ying. I guess... it’s our internal Lan family affairs. Wang Ji will consider your words and act accordingly. Please forgive Wang Ji for troubling you with such matters,” and he bows again.

The Jade Emperor is relieved that his son-in-law (never mind the generational gaps) isn’t as upset as before - when he first arrived at the backdoor entrance and into the storeroom-turned-arrival hall, Lan Zhan’s eyes were bloodshot and he had tears in his eyes - and the Emperor immediately suspected that the ‘hopeless brat’ had bullied the Tian’s favourite son-in-law. Fortunately a steaming cup of tea and a plate of Heavenly fruits pacified the man, and subdued any further disconcerting feelings.

Lan Zhan would stay at his in-laws’ for a while because his body is put out of commission for quite some time. At least he gets to tour the Heavens, visiting various buildings and offices around the Court (the gods are as bureaucratic as Men), complete a quick walkabout at the local museum (the stuff displayed in there dates back to the beginning of Time), meeting Court officials for tea (because the Emperor likes to proudly show off his son-in-law to his loyal subjects, including Earth God, God of Wealth, and Kitchen God), and later, he gets escorted on a Heavenly horse-cart to visit the thriving orchards and farms, past a few scenic rivers and lakes, a petting zoo (where he enjoys cuddling rabbits donated to the Heavens not too long ago) and the famed stables where the Monkey King is said to have worked, a long, long time ago.

The Queen Mother also accompanied Lan Zhan to the local supermarket down the road from the Heavenly Court, where she bought lots of souvenirs, snacks and also packed some powerful magical equipment into a basket for him to bring back home - while engaging in interesting talk about couponing (it works the same in the Mortal and God realms), recipes (more ways to cook delicious and healthy meals fit for royals and gods), household work (Lan Zhan is glad that yue mu is as old-fashioned as him, and both do not like the advance of technology invading into their homes and kitchens), and so much more - the distraction is welcomed by Lan Zhan, and his in-laws are happy to spend time with him - their favourite son-in-law (never mind the generational gaps).

Notes for the Chapter:

I hope this slightly longer chapter makes up for the shorter ones before. I received some comments about the pedo and shotacon tag, so that's why I added the warning upfront. I try to sugar-coat with more fluff and about Lan Zhan suffering from Wei Ying-ness.

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 53

Lan Wang Ji finally admits to himself, in all honesty, that his Perfect universe is not that perfect after all. To say that he's been blinded by his love for Wei Ying, how much he'd spent building their happiness with his own two hands, would be an understatement.

(From the day he'd purchased the land title to their cave-home last summer with a gold bar from his life savings; toiled on their farms and orchards, and foraged for long hours; managed all the household chores while saving and scrimping wherever possible; Wei Ying had to work hard, plying his trade in Yiling's dusty streets, just to earn enough to put food on their table, and he never really complained as long as he had three square meals a day prepared with love by the husband; they suffered a temporary setback during their first winter when their home was snowed in and lost their crops; then they struggled to re-build their hard-earned peaceful and quiet life through spring and now, summer, when their honeymoon period is truly over and they started taking their married life seriously - by diversifying their income-earning activities and actually thrive by rearing animals, making food and herbal product deliveries, and expand Wei Ying's portfolio of magical talismans, gadgets and services for sale - and still have time to enjoy browsing the evening markets and watch the fireworks after sunset in Yiling.

It seemed to go all too well, even after waking up in this brave new world - for all accounts and purposes, he is indebted to Wei Ying for saving, or rather, resurrecting him from an untimely end - he continued to make headwinds in his journey of Life with four loving and sexy spouses in tow, quadrupling his happiness to the point where they officiated their married status with little red booklets as proof to the world that their love, which has been given the same name as their favourite song, and now the name of their family business, or more appropriately, mega-corporation, exists. He has expanded his circle by including in-laws from the Realms of the Gods, the Mortal Realm - the Tian sisterhood -, and many more caring friends, acquaintances and business partners in Yiling City and Huang Village.

The source of his Perfect happiness would be Wei Ying - always has, and always will be lovely Wei Ying. He loves Wei Ying for who he is, and now, in multiple numbers and various forms. There are many facets of Wei Ying, some good, some not so - but aren't all Men flawed in some ways, including Wang Ji? And should all Wei Yings not be loved Perfectly for everything, including warts, flaws and all else?

The eldest Wei Ying, his spouse, is bluntly put, a volatile, deranged tyrant. However, he also brings home the dough and calls the shots; he managed to wrest control of their home, single-handedly orchestrate their family business and their estate-cum-kingdom-cum-continent, cook their meals, pamper everyone, shower gifts and gadgets to the family, and keep the husband's money pouch fat with at least ten gold pieces a day - not to mention, he makes sure their family grows, is lovingly nurtured, always flourishing, that everyone stays happy and live together harmoniously while well-satiated in all forms of hunger... so, with due respect, Wang Ji should step back and take his well-earned place at the top of the family pyramid - he should live like a King, a Patriarch, a Father and a Husband, surrounded by his unlimited harem who continue to serve him in every possibly way, fatten him up, pleasure him all day, and keep his sex life delightfully lively. Everyone is wrapped around the da ge 's little finger, but there shouldn't be complaints, because everyone is Perfectly Happy.

The teenager Wei Ying, also his spouse, is one of Wang Ji's lifelong goals - to be able to love, and start loving Wei Ying since the days they'd met during their youth. His strength, his recklessness, his Wei Ying-ness, the sexiness that he exudes - they're all Wei Ying. Since the teenager entered Wang Ji's life after the Great Fires, everything about the teenager - his spouse - belongs to Wang Ji, and that thrills the older man to no end; San ge helps Wang Ji and teaches Wang Ji how to feel young again. He helps around the house, so that Wang Ji can continue to enjoy what he'd come to call as his Happily Ever After - a patriarch of four spouses, living under the same roof, full of everyday routines, noise, and plenty of exciting sex.

The child Wei Ying, the runt of the litter, is an unexpected gift for his Perfect universe. Didi nurtures the caring, loving motherly-matriarch character within him, and he learns to love children, enjoy physical contact, become more tolerant of family chatter during mealtimes and the odd fights between siblings, and Wang Ji gets to reconnect with innocent, familial love - probably the truest form of love among related human beings. The little boy is everything that Wang Ji ever wanted in a child - disciplined, obedient, joyful, loving and completes all the housework on time, with neither a speck of dust on the floor or a crooked fold in sun-dried laundry, while learning to grow up under Wang Ji's wings with each passing day.)

With all said and done, Wang Ji is fully devoted to his, Wei Ying's, their happiness for the rest of his life - and they're all happy living in their cave-home and the expanded lands of his Kingdom... Would this not be a Perfect universe? Would this not be his happiness?

"Wang Ji, happiness is not perfection. Perfection is not happiness. The absolute state is transient. The journey to such a state, however, is eternal," Lord Buddha speaks calmly, timeless wisdom in his words. He appears in an image of a simple and humble elderly man, dressed in plain clothes no different from any other citizens or servants of the Heavenly Court - hence, no other celestial beings realized that the Greatest is amongst them. His eyes are closed, and he looks to be in a meditative state - but his voice is clear and omnipresent, and echoes beyond clouds and the skies even higher than the Heavenly Court. The Grandest of Gods sits below a Heavenly Bodhi tree in the Sacred Orchards, enjoying the warmth of glorious sunshine from above, and the softness of evergreen grass beneath that sprout and bloom flowers wherever he touches.

Goddess Guan Yin, in the image of a villager dressed in plain robes, stands next to the sitting elderly man. She speaks, “With a touch of this holy willow branch dipped in waters from my everflowing vase,” and she raises the sacred objects to Wang Ji’s view, “I can grant you mercy from your suffering. But you need to ask yourself, and decide, what act and outcome would constitute as merciful? And to whom? What is truly the happiness that you wish to achieve, and what is this perfection that you strive for, in this lifetime?”

Lan Zhan stares at the ground with his head bowed in respect and worship, after hearing the words from the One who sees and knows everything, and the Other who can release him from his torment and suffering, if he chooses to.

He remains quiet in deep thought.

Moments later, he is alone below the Bodhi tree, and his yue mu arrives with a basket of Heavenly fruits and fresh salads, accompanied by her entourage of gardeners and servants. Together, they leave to catch up with yue fu to dine on Heaven’s summer produce as a family, at a nearby outdoor pavilion beside a sparkling river and rolling green meadows.

Wei Ying - the original twenty-two year old - returns home at noon after a quick round of meeting customers, taking sales orders, and the highlight of his trip - he signed a new contract with Liang's teahouse to upgrade their business relationship from 'temporary restaurant staff' to 'official supplier of goods'. He does not need to work at Liang laoban's teahouse twice a month anymore, and instead, Wangxian Postbirds will make regular deliveries of freshly-made batches of plum sauce and other products. Liang laoban laughed loudly and smacked Wei Ying's back many times when he remarked that he's proud to see the young man grow up and earn his place in society as his own laoban, in which Wei Ying sheepishly grins - and is satisfied, nevertheless. Liang laoban asks the Young Master Lan (Wei Ying) to invite Wangxian's master chef for a small launch ceremony at the teahouse, with lion and dragon dances, performance troupes and buffet planned for invited guests, to introduce new varieties of their famous plum sauce - and draw in more customers during the event. Wei Ying agrees.

Wei Ying finds that his life is a little more peaceful as the days go by - however it's hard to tell which day it is other than "the one or two weeks after their patriarch woke", due to da ge's endless time-loops (and historians in the future will find it hard to separate fact from fiction, because the dates of events happening during this period have become muddled and inaccurate, including the much-maligned solar eclipse and even Wangxian's incorporation date) - their awesome Wei da ge has managed to create a mess and yet, knows how to fix everything up; and soon, if things go as planned, Wei Ying will be able to settle back to his quiet life.

He walks with a skip in his steps, when he emerges from the orchards and into the open courtyard leading to their cave-home. The entire area is, as usual, - at least for the past many days (or months? He could never tell) - a scene of sinful lusts and sexual carnage of apocalyptic proportions. There's a whole lot more furniture and half-finished inventions and contraptions lying around, which he'd plan to move out of their jam-packed workroom into da ge 's penthouse and new research facilities within the labyrinth of their Wuji production plant.

Wei Yings in a myriad of ages, genders, sizes and shapes, even forms, work hard to pack what they could into wheelbarrows and other primitive transports (the more magically-inclined ones cast spells to float the objects), and cart them away towards The Junction, where they'll be ferried to their new homes in the Kingdom.

At the same time, there are many Wei Yings draping and lounging everywhere in broad daylight - on tables and benches, on tree branches, on the grass, on the said packed cargo - probably resting if not lazing, pantless and legs splayed open - some with their genitals dripping with cum, others not yet, and a few more in the process of being bred by not one, but multiple Lan Wang Jis.

It can be disconcerting to see many people with faces and appearances mainly derived from two individuals - however, after a while, it's no biggie. Wei Ying shrugs, as he makes his way through and surveys the aftermath:

One Lan Zhan, fed with Laozu Smiles, drunkenly staggers from one Wei Ying to another like a ball being bumped around inside a pinball machine, fucking each spread-eagled Wei Ying that he comes into contact, and happily moans noisily when he cums (yes he giggles when he climaxes in an inebriated state) before moving to the next available orifice - it doesn't matter if it's been used before or not. It's almost effortless to spin around and find a circle of spread legs on tree branches, on the ground, on the tables, then plunge into the waiting holes like playing a game of roulette - made better when some of the targets are pregnant-looking teenage female Wei Yings with fake breasts that the drunken man can joyfully suckle out breastmilk, rub bloated fake or truly pregnant tummies with greedy fingers, while drilling his extremely excited penis into the sweet juicy love tunnels until it one-twos too many times and erupts into a satisfying series of twenty-twitches;

There are many empty wine jars lying on the ground, and the outdoors are teeming with many equally drunk Wei Yings (instead of working hard to move the objects - how slothful!). They mingle and grab the nearest Lan Zhan - or Lan Zhans -, and drag them into the forest to engage in mindless fornication. Despite their intoxicated state, they coordinate and team up very well, as seen when one particularly lucky Lan Zhan finds himself imprisoned and strategically surrounded in a flower-like arrangement of six sets of Wei Yings' springy asses around him, and they hump enticingly and spread their rosebuds, and that Lan Zhan nnggahs and loses rational thought, and is reduced to a horny animal in heat, driven to plow and pound each one until all six are thoroughly used, abused, loosened, and dripping with thick hot seed.

Another Lan Zhan, sober and not fed with alcohol, spends hours emptying his balls into a selected few beautiful and handsome Wei Yings of his choice, with the latter lining up and bent over sun-warmed benches to present their rosebuds (or pussies) to their preferred partner - a new harem is forming -, thus supercharging that particular Lan Zhan into another alpha male who endlessly ruts his mates - five or ten thrusts per Wei Ying before repeating the cycle, depending on how masculine he feels -, making lots of tasty rhythmic growls in the process, but he doesn't quite ascend to Heaven because he is, in essence, an inferior copy of the great patriarch and his golden core isn't as strong;

One unfortunate Lan Zhan convulses and spasms with endless "nnnh, aaah, hnnngh"s on the vegetable gardens as multiple Wei Yings descend and sexually assault him in very perverse manners, and keep the helpless man pinned down while making sure that his throbbing spewing cock is never lonely , ejaculating almost constantly from rolling massages of inner muscular walls, alternating between all participating Wei Yings, and they ride the agonized-giddy-yelling Lan Zhan to numerous wonderful orgasms - and the group managed to knock off a few carrot tops and cabbages too - how wasteful!;

The animal farm too, is a fertile ground for orgies, as many Lan Zhans and many Wei Yings breed and mount each other repeatedly like rabbits in heat, or an eager rooster dropped into a pen full of maiden hens (it's a free world - it doesn't matter who tops or bottoms, or if they switch). Adult on boys, boys on adults, teenagers with teenagers - the possibilities are endless, and each combination is physically tested and sexually proven right in front of everyone's eyes without shame;

It's a dark secret that within some shadowy groves, inhuman Wei Yings have unknowingly kidnapped a group of Lan Zhans, to be thoroughly devoured and enjoyed in their own sweet time, away from prying eyes. An abundant amount of dark energies and lightning crackle and shoot out behind walls of tall grasses, hiding very evil acts or corrupted rituals performed upon the victims - one Lan Zhan has all his orifices invaded and filled with slimy spurting tentacles that sting and inject sexual poisons; another Lan Zhan has his golden core ripped out from a gaping hole in his chest, then molested and swallowed before being spat back out; one more Lan Zhan has mind-controlling tongues and tubes weave through his ears and other holes, where they plunder the spinal cord and overrun the brain, to take over his thought and bodily functions, thus damning that man to eternal sexual slavery as he is overwhelmed by uncontrollable orgasms, and ejaculates non-stop... and so on. (Wei Ying mutters a silent prayer to the victims, however he is assured that no Lan Zhans are harmed during the lovemaking.)

Further away, behind a clump of thickets, multiple Lan Zhans spitroast and gangbang a particularly sexually attractive teenager Wei Ying, despite the cries for help from the younger man (who could be a fully-fledged adult or even a boy - it doesn't matter). The unfortunate Wei Ying is left covered and drenched with cum leaking from all cavities and orifices, and he is dragged further into the dense bushes because horny Lan Zhans aren't easily satisfied until they succeed, in their own wild imaginations, to inseminate their chosen nubile mate and leave him heavily pregnant with seed. The female ones are, of course, properly impregnated and are already with child - with little baby bumps growing day by day because many days, even months may have passed in this time-looped world - but that is something that the twenty-two year old Wei Ying isn't interested to know.

(Everyone is naked, by the way; there are no clothes left for those who are at home, and garments are only worn by those who need to go out, such as the hardworking twenty-two year old Wei Ying.)

Wei da ge has done it - after spending time bringing copies of Wei Wuxians into the world, he realized that the same world cannot accommodate so many Wei Wuxians; and these young hardworking and good-hearted men (in his words) crave for love that they truly deserve - partly due to the demonic curse that infect every Wei Ying and his clones. The da ge is on the verge of creating all the Wei Wuxians he'd need to populate their new Kingdom in Wuji continent, and supply them with enough Lan Wang Jis to partner with and keep them company - if not for the purpose to bed them and keep everyone Perfectly Happy.

“ Da ge ! I'm back!” Wei Ying shouts from a distance, and narrowly misses the opened trapdoor at the entrance to their home. A small, probably eight or nine-year old Lan Zhan crawls out of the hole in the ground, stumbles a little with amazement and wonder shining his bright golden-tinged brown eyes. He joins the pitter-patter of little feet along with other child Lan

Zhans, forming into a burgeoning queue just a short distance away (because all Lan Zhans are inherently attracted to orderliness and queues) - the queue swells into a mass of pre-pubescent Lan Zhans, teenager Lan Zhans and adult Lan Zhans, fresh out of the oven that is Ernie's bottomless chasm. Wei Yings emerge from the cave-home, from the orchards, from the forests, some delighted and some shrieking with excitement to welcome the newest batch of lovers into their twisted world. Those Wei Yings casually walk past, select one or more individuals and gently take his or their hands, and lead them to The Junction, towards their new home in the Kingdom - if the coupled ones did not suddenly fall madly in love and start copulating in the courtyard like the rest and leave a mess on the stained sticky ground:

A clone of Wei da ge grabs four tiny wiggling naked elementary school-aged Lan Zhans with both hands, licks his lips and laughs heartily. He happily nom-noms each Lan Zhan's buttocks and genitals, make quick love to their defenceless and exposed tiny penises and balls, and give them a good suck, resulting in surprised squeals, and he laughs again before disappearing with the crowd in the direction of the exit;

A teenager san ge shyly grasps the wrist of a battle-hardened, scarred, broad-shouldered and very muscular middle-aged Lan Zhan, and teasingly lead him towards the forest with flirting gazes and acting lovey-dovey - not surprisingly, soon that naughty Wei Ying has one hand fiddling with his Lan Zhan's penis until it starts to swell with excitement, and the other hand invites Lan Zhan to reach down and cup and play with the teenager's slightly hairy testicles. The older man instinctively starts to cup and squeeze the spongy balls, and Wei Ying whispers something about eggs, snakes and tanghulus, which triggers something in Lan Zhan, and he aggressively drags Wei Ying off until they tumble into the bushes for a quick and frisky romp, with plenty of rustling sounds, followed by squishy slapping sounds, and noisy obnoxious "ahhh~~~"s with little hearts floating around;

Twenty-two year old Wei Ying probably didn't need to shout to announce his arrival, since the mastermind da ge , and all other Wei Yings, are interconnected through their minds anyway. It's a habit that's born out of routine - something he'd picked up from Lan Zhan not too long ago, even before the Great Fires. He walks into the home, side-stepping Ernie's underground cavern because that cold black thing is busy churning out Lan Zhans for all of them, and he didn't want to disturb its production schedule. (imagine Santa Claus working hard in his workshop with his little elves to make the world - all Wei Yings - happy!)

The home is also in chaos - it is packed with naked sweaty bodies moving, pushing, shoving, with whispers, murmurs and loud talking everywhere. Objects are being bundled up and taken out as part of the major re-location effort; renovation and repair works are carried out in the rooms with plenty of hammering and sawing sounds; spells whizz past dangerously close; balls of cement are thrown from one Wei Ying to another in a kind of messed-up snowball fight; Wei Ying managed to weave through and he spots a rather empty space in the bedroom. He sees Lan Zhan - the original one, he hopes - lying on the bed; but he could only see his legs through the bedroom door from where he stands. He watches as two child Wei Yings, one boy and a girl, walk out with indecent white goo leaking out from their bottoms and down their thighs. Just as he wanted to greet the husband, he sees san ge - or a copy - tiptoe inside while the coast is clear. Followed by three more. Wei Ying couldn't see what was happening in the bedroom, but when Lan Zhan's legs jerks, convulses, digs deep into the mattress, toes curl painfully, before trembling uncontrollably, thrashing and kicking wildly - he knows that their patriarch is getting a soul-splitting Quadruple Blowjob from the teenagers who are best known for supreme deep-throating and tongue-play techniques.

Wei Ying leaves the room full of wet, sloppy, squirty, sputtering group sex, and goes to find the mastermind da ge . He's been at his best behaviour since the day they arrived in this brave new world, so surely, the da ge will reward him, somehow.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The fiery orange skies herald the coming of the first - or final - evening, depending on one's perspective. For twenty-two year old Wei Ying, it's the first time the house is completely silent, save for the chirps of crickets and other summer insects. He'd cast a Shield spell around their home to keep those bugs out during the night.

Wei da ge is back at work in the company, working overtime to make up for the time-off he took earlier the day to supervise the production of Lan Zhans and re-locate everyone, everything, to the Kingdom. The teenager and the little boy too, decided to hang out at the penthouse home office suite, because they can enjoy living in the lap of luxury (and space-age technology and unlimited broadband).

Their house is back to normal - almost to the state of four weeks ago before the Great Fires, and with a few modern additions, of course. Wei Ying lights up the two giant Lan Residence lanterns at the entrance, and starts pacing back and forth in the dining room; the floor space in their cave-home has been expanded, but not too significantly - there's still the bedroom, the kitchen attached with a larger dining room, the eternally-filled workroom that's still filled with trash (there are less inventions, but more talismans and gadgets for sale), and even a small living room as an annex to the entrance with a floor mat with the bold printed word "Welcome" (underneath which Ernie stations itself to guard their home and estate), plus extra guest rooms and storage space that are hidden from sight - accessible only by using Ernie's awesome reality-bending abilities.

He taps his feet restlessly against the legs of furniture, waiting for Lan Zhan to wake up in the bedroom; he wants to welcome the husband back to the world of living, and back to what he believes to be Lan Zhan's Perfect Happiness of Happily Ever Afters. Two bowls of Wangxian Healthy Vegetarian and Tasty Fried Chicken frozen dinners sit in a microwave, hidden in an inconspicuous space-time bubble within the kitchen and powered by Ernie - waiting to be reheated. He combs and smooths his hair with his fingers, fidgets the tie of his top-knot, adjusts the collars and folds of his robes - like a girlfriend nervously waiting for the boyfriend's arrival, and minutes passed in relative calm and quiet.

Suddenly, he feels a prickling sensation in his chest. Wei Ying reaches into his inner garment pockets, where he keeps his money and talismans - and fishes out a palm-sized Paperman - ... and it's moving! The yellow piece of paper struggles to escape Wei Ying's clothes, and now, his grasp. It makes plenty of crinkly sounds and lively, troubled movements, nearly tearing its paper limbs in the process. Wei Ying relaxes his hold and the Paperman flutters down clumsily to the table - it is strange that someone is controlling the Paperman, but doesn't even know how to move it properly (because Papermen can float through the air by taking advantage of breezes). One of its legs become soaked in a small puddle of spilled tea on the tabletop, and it squeals because that limb is stuck in water and becomes useless.

Wei Ying pales the moment he hears the muted cries from the Paperman, which sounds like rustling paper and whistling wind - it's Lan Zhan's voice, and he's screaming Wei Ying's name for help!

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The figure in the bedroom turned out to be a pile of pillows covered by blanket. Lan Zhan's body has gone missing, and his soul is somehow trapped inside the Paperman, unable to return - that is what Wei Ying believed, as he panics with the pitiful-looking soaked yellow cutout piece of paper in hand. Wei Ying immediately makes frantic Fairy Messenger calls to his siblings in a dire cry for help and rescue.

Notes for the Chapter:

Wheeee, more Wangxian and Wei Ying-ness! I'll be returning to work full-time after this, after enjoying a nice Chinese New Year break - so updates will be slower. Thanks for reading and stay tuned!

Chapter 54

“Hello?! Hello?! Oh thank Goddess Guan Yin, I finally reached you! It’s me, er ge !

...

You can’t hear... okay... HELLO IT’S ME! CAN YOU HEAR ME N-- , okay, sorry, I’ll speak softer... sorry if I busted your eardrums.

...

What happened? I couldn’t get onto WeiNet and connect our minds or with any other clones’! I keep getting 404’d, is there a DDoS attack somewhere? I thought there’s that ribbon-cutting ceremony with the Tian sisters attending... did the live broadcast swamp everyone’s bandwidth?

...

Really? Oh... WeiNet is down? Is san ge looking into it? He is? Great, when can that whiz kid fix-- WHAT?! Riots and mass protests all over Wuji?! All entrances and exits are sealed?! What in the Underworld did you guys do?!

...

Mm-hmm... mm-hmm... mm-hmm... yeah, I'm listening - I'm heating up dinner here, but go on... you and your families are safe, right? And didi ? He's at your penthouse? With his gege s? Good... mm-hmm...

...

Thanks for filling me in on what happened. Stay safe and don't go out unnecessarily... me? Oh yeah, I've got a big problem, but I guess... you guys should focus on keeping things running at the company, and not get overwhelmed by the riots. Keep those production lines running, and if you need anything from my end or Ernie, call me - what? Oh, okay, I'll leave the call on, since we don't know if we can re-connect 'cause the lines are down.

...

Lan Zhan? Yeah, he's having trouble, can't you see him in my hands? ...Oh right, the Eyes and Senses talismans can't work, we're on dial-up now and not on broadband anymore... 14.4 kilobits modem, are you kidding me! Err... he's... he looks, no... he is a Paperman now... Yes and stop shouting at me! Lan Zhan's a Paperman !!!

...

How would I know?! I've been waiting for him to wake up for hours, then I found out that someone's burnt a mop into cinders, placed that blackened mop-head onto a pile of pillows, and covered the whole thing with a blanket. Even I was tricked into believing that he's still sleeping in there! It's a conspiracy to kidnap our husband!

...

DON'T YOU DARE START THIS ARGUMENT WITH ME! Lan Zhan is my husband, and our husband!... I don't care if you have many Lan Zhans waiting for you on your bed, but this one's the ORIGINAL! For god's sake, just listen to me-- NO I WILL NOT "JUST" PLACE AN ORDER FOR ANOTHER LAN ZHAN! You guys already messed up big time with your logistics and supply chain, causing those riots all over Wuji. How stupid can all of this be, by delivering the wrong quantities or types of Lan Zhans to the wrong Wei Yings, and now everyone's looting every other person for Lan Zhans!"

...

"Stupidity is NOT my problem, because I've been a good boy by working my ass off in Yiling every day, and I was NEVER - you hear me, NEVER - involved in this crazy world-domination plan of yours. So, you better fix your own mess and find my - our - Lan Zhan! Yes, the original, don't make me repeat it! So that his trapped soul in this Paperman can return to the original body! NO I WILL NOT ACCEPT ANYTHING DIFFERENT OR INFERIOR!... ding ah, gotta go. My dinner's ready. We'll talk later and figure out something. My midnight, your mid-morning. 'Kay? Mm-hmm. Yeah, keep the line on. Okay, love you too. Bye."

Wei Ying sighs heavily, pinches the bridge of his nose, and closes his eyes for minute. His brothers are truly a handful; despite being an insignificant minion and not really doing anything for the past few days, weeks or months in this time-warped world, he is now saddled with one of the biggest crisis of body-snatching, caused by one of his kin, and he's left to deal with it, alone, for now. The Fairy Messenger's silvery thread remains, and glows faintly in the evening light.

He strokes the paperman carefully, trying to iron out the creases caused by his strong finger-grip when he rescued it from the puddle of spilled tea - he naturally made a grab for it, which balled the poor cutout piece of paper into a crumpled mass - and Lan Zhan squealed again, no doubt in pain. The dog-eared, half-soaked paperman trembles weakly in Wei Ying's hand.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei Ying's steaming microwaved Tasty Fried Chicken dinner was downed in mere minutes - proof that the young man had indeed worked hard all day in Yiling, and had a voracious appetite to show. When he found out that the paperman couldn't take any food - because he had no mouth, and no stomach either -, Wei Ying slurped down the Healthy Vegetarian Rice dinner as well, on behalf of his husband-turned-paper. He ate for two, and ended up with a stuffed belly and plenty of satisfied burps.

Lan Zhan, the paperman, remains quiet - since he couldn't speak and could only make rustling panicked squeals when he's in a life-and-death situation - and sits on the tabletop, watching forlornly at Wei Ying having his meal

(it's hard to decipher the emotions, as the face of a paperman is as blank as... a blank piece of paper).

“Lan Zhan, I’m really sorry you have to deal with this... strange situation. It’s not entirely my fault though, and many things have happened since your last visit to the Heavens,” Wei Ying’s face is genuinely concerned when he stares at the worn-out piece of paper. He sips his tea - he’s careful not to spill any liquid, but there are some oily stains on the paperman due to his messy way of munching on crispy fried chicken skin which rained grease onto poor Lan Zhan - and Wei Ying berates himself to be more careful especially during meal times, due to the absorbent and fragile nature of the talisman paper. “I will have a call with da ge at midnight to find out what happened, and solve this terrible crisis,” he adds, hopefully to soothe Lan Zhan’s anxiety somewhere inside the heart of the paper.

Wei Ying leans forward and lightly nudges a fingertip to Lan Zhan’s cheek - at least that’s where he believed it to be - and whispers, “But I’m serious when I say that I, we, will fix this mess and bring you back. Don’t get hung up on what da ge said just now, alright? There’s only one of you, and you’re irreplaceable to me, Lan Zhan.”

Lan Zhan holds Wei Ying’s fingertip and tries to hug it as best as he could - because his mobility is limited to how much a piece of paper can bend without being folded - and sends a subtle response of swishing sounds, which Wei Ying couldn’t understand. He hopes that it is either a ‘Thank you’ or ‘I love you too’.

While Wei Ying washes the (few) dishes and cutlery (because it's wasteful to ask Ernie to turn on the inconspicuous dishwasher hidden in a space-time bubble, just to hose down a couple of bowls; the microwave dinner comes with its own plastic -a.k.a. pink bubbles spell- packaging but it's not healthy to zap the food in its pack and let plastic leach into it), and cleans the kitchen (because for better or for worse, D-Broom is gone), he tries to hum their favourite song, but fails after the first six notes.

“Ah... I... I'm sorry, Lan Zhan, my humming is no good today, even though it's supposed to be a happy reunion for us... sort of. I'm worried about you,” he turns around from the kitchen sink, fingers touching his Soulmate Binding Ring which he knows will not come off, “and at the same time, I'm trying to keep calm until I get in touch with da ge at midnight.” There's a sniffle. The paperman scoots forward, since it's difficult to stand with a soaked leg. Wei Ying shakes his head, “I'm alright. I just get... a bit emotional sometimes, that's all. Let me distract myself by telling you a story, is that okay?”

The paperman nods. Wei Ying smiles awkwardly in response.

Wei Ying, through an initially shaky voice, which over time becomes normal and lively, narrates a fantastical story of what had happened, or more aptly put, what had gone terribly wrong after Lan Zhan's last ascension to Heaven.

Watching all their didi s and meimei s fill up their bellies while making frenzied love to a sedated, unmoving, shrivelled and shrunken patriarch struck an old chord with the Wei Yings - the chord from the age-old tune of having too many hungry (demonic) mouths to feed, and not enough food to go around. Unbeknownst to Lan Zhan, his soul has been spending more and more time in Heaven with the in-laws because of an increasing number of Wei Yings to feed - and there's only one, single, sole provider in the family. Of course, Lan Zhan may not have noticed this because time flies at a snail's pace in the heavens compared to earth; however the effects are clearly disturbing to some Wei Yings, because the amount of quality time they get to spend with their patriarch decreases exponentially with each new batch of Wei Yings secretly manufactured by the da ge 's clandestine production lines.

"I was the first to file a complaint against the whole crazy scheme," Wei Ying proudly points at himself with fingers covered with suds, "because I didn't want to spend hours waiting outside our home under the hot sun, just queueing up for a five-minute ride on you! And I'm THE original Wei Wuxian, so why the Underworld should I even queue up!" He raises his hands in mock-exasperation (and flings the said frothy suds to the walls, barely missing Lan Zhan), "Whatever happened to the good old days, when all of us could visit the markets together, play with the animals together, work on the farms together, or simply practise cultivation and entertain each other with music, singing and dancing... together? I couldn't even snuggle up with you at night, because some greedy freaks kept hogging you with their asses from sundown to sunrise! I was forced to work in Yiling every day like a good boy, because there's nothing else I could do!" Fortunately, Wei Ying wipes the wall when he notices he'd been making soapy streaks all over the kitchen - to Lan Zhan's unspoken relief.

Eventually the voices of dissent grew louder, and the older Wei Yings and their clones finally took notice. They too, are becoming fed up with having to shuttle cartloads of starving, impatient kin between their Kingdom and the cave-home, on very tight schedules, where Lan Zhan peacefully sleeps and is continuously milked for days on end. So they brainstormed and experimented with different ways to make that one, single, sole provider more productive. They'd use abhorrent magical spells to enlarge, multiply or increase the frequency of output - but there's really not much a single pair of seed-producing testicles can do.

The final straw broke the camel's back when even their overlord, the mastermind da ge , had to wait for a day for his turn, leaving him enraged and ravenous (hunger makes most, if not all, Wei Yings angry, it seems). He rushed out, looking very disappointed, after having his two-minute nibble on Lan Zhan's penis, and decreed that access to adequate Lan Zhan must be liberalized, and not confined to the one, single, sole person. With that, all Wei Yings become overjoyed and cheered for the great da ge .

Research on Lan Zhan's peacefully-slumbering body took place at a frantic pace, and soon, Ernie - being stationed at the Lan's Residence, and therefore closest to the patriarch - was tasked to use its Creation and Time spells to make copies of all ages and types of the man, to meet the varied demands and tastes of very discerning Wei Yings. An online ordering service (where Wei Yings can log into a WeiNet portal and customize the kinds of Lan Zhans that they preferred) and an air and ground delivery network were set up. Production went into full swing in a typical manufacturing setting not unlike how they pump out thousands of bags of frozen dinners, packaged mixed nuts and freeze-dried fritters in Wangxian's industry-sized production plants - and where major modifications were needed for certain orders, 3d-printing technology was deployed as well.

"Just earlier today - which could be many days, due to the effects of the time-loop - the last batch was completely sold out to walk-in customers, while the rest have been shipped to warehouses in the Summer Berries District, where we have delivery trucks and Postbirds waiting to pick-up and fulfil pre-orders," Wei Ying rants on, not really noticing that the paperman had raised its hand several times, then it tires, lowers its limb, and resumes listening quietly to the colourful, animated tale, "Lan Zhan, did you know, I'm so glad they've stopped using our home as a flagship store of sorts, for people to intrude and waltz in just to gawk at your sleeping and orgasming form, because our home is clearly NOT a brick-and-mortar shop for Wangxian!" The young man pumps his fist in agitation.

After an exhale, he goes back to sweeping the floor of bits of dust and grit - remnants of the renovation works during the afternoon.

Wei Ying explains that Ernie is probably exhausted and energy-drained from producing so many individuals, so the da ge had planned in advance to shift production operations back to Wangxian's vast sprawling industrial complex, right after that last batch. Twenty-two year old Wei Ying opted to stay behind at their cave-home, "because I wanted to wake you up, our sleeping princess, and did you know - I'm the ONLY one who didn't order a copy of you, Lan Zhan, because I believe there is only one of you in this world," he says with a convincing smile, and then he promptly stepped on a pebble with his bare feet and yelps in pain.

Lan Zhan stands up to reach out for Wei Ying, but his paper feet wobbles - especially the soaked, wrinkled one, and he falls flat to the table surface.

"Ah, Lan Zhan, don't move too much! You're very weak in your current state, and your material's fibres are damaged from the spilled tea just now," Wei Ying cries out softly, and gently nudges him back to an L-shaped sitting position. "You don't have to worry about me, so let me clean the floor on my own, alright? It's just that there are bits of sand and stones everywhere because..."

... because the mastermind da ge recognized the twenty-two year old's loyalty to his job (working in Yiling every day, as instructed), to the original Lan Zhan (he doesn't flirt or tries to have sex with other Lan Zhans even when there are multiples being produced right inside their home, by Ernie), and to the overall resource situation of the overwhelmed Lan family (he steadfastly refused to order a copy of Lan Zhan, thus saving the environment from more corruptive magic and energy (mis-)use) - so the da ge ordered some major but inconspicuous refurbishments and upgrades to the home, which could be beneficial anyway, when more family members from the Kingdom in Wuji come over to visit, in the future. In a typical Wei Ying fashion, things get done, but the afterthought is lacking, such as clean-up.

Wei Ying finished sweeping the floor as he talked, felt better, and became comfortable with the one-sided conversation, because their relationship had always been like that - now minus the occasional “Mn”s. He lifts Lan Zhan and puts him on the shoulder. “Here,” he says, “hold on to the lock of hair behind my ear, and I’ll show you around. It’ll be a quick tour to familiarize yourself in your current form, so that you don’t accidentally get blown off by the wind and become lost inside our home,” The paperman curls its limb around the black hair as ordered, and Wei Ying shows Lan Zhan around their slightly expanded home. He also shows the patriarch all the hidden rooms, compartments and gadgets, accessible via magic and maintained by Ernie, in their respective space-time bubbles - at this point, Lan Zhan the Paperman doesn’t even want to raise his hand anymore; he’s come to accept whatever he could see and sense; the paperman’s five senses are limited as well, due to its sheer minute size and the inherent lack of sensory organs and nervous systems.

“I can’t hear you, and you can’t “Mn” back to me. So if there’s a question or if you need to grab my attention, just pull on my hair, alright?” Wei Ying calls out, and he smiles when he feels one tug on the hair. For now, it’s one tug for a Yes, and two for No.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Wei Ying cannot leave Lan Zhan out of his sight - not even a minute.

With the tour ended and it's not even seven 'o clock yet, Wei Ying decided to take a quick dip at the outdoor pool against a beautiful backdrop of darkening dusky skies and lit lanterns around the compound. He joked while washing his hair that if Lan Zhan was in his human form, they'd have a romantic quickie in the bath, and he didn't need to queue for hours to get his fill. Wei Ying laughed at his own joke and doesn't react when there is no response - because tiny Lan Zhan is sitting on one of the portable sun lounge chairs away from the body of water.

Then, there was the dreaded squeal and everything happened in a blink of an eye. Wei Ying turned around in horror to see an ugly brown fat rat dragging away a struggling paperman in its jaws, right into the shadows of nearby bamboo clumps. He quickly grabbed a bar of soap - the nearest solid thing within reach - and threw at the rodent - and promptly missed it, because the rat is nimble - but it was startled, and squeaked loudly at the projectile, before disappearing immediately into the thorny bushes.

“Lan Zhan !!!” Wei Ying screamed in utter panic and terror.

Then the world became a flash of blinding white, followed by an ear-deafening roar of thunder in the next split second. Ernie had cast a powerful lightning strike at the clump of bamboo, setting it into flames and burnt the undergrowth into ash and cinders within moments.

“NO !!!”

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The paperman is as tattered as it can be - its edges are burnt, torn and blackened, its wrinkled, thoroughly soaked, bulging and warped body is covered with paw-prints, perforations and mud splatters, and parts of its limbs are gone - bitten and chewed off by the fangs of one of Lan Zhan's most dreaded pests. It stinks of Wei Ying's sweat (because it was in the man's inner garment pockets earlier on), fermented tea (from the spill), and fried chicken grease (which probably attracted the rat in the first place), and reeks of damp soil, rodent odour and other foul-smelling wild animals (the bamboo clumps are a known haven for pests, including mammals, insects and worms).

Wei Ying resorted to casting Water spouts to douse the fires, and managed to rescue a drenched paperman Lan Zhan from a muddy pool (and finds a dead, stiff roasted rat just a couple of feet away). He was in shock and tears by then for nearly losing his loved one, and immediately ordered Ernie to 'take whatever emergency measures needed to secure Lan Zhan the Paperman', while he initiates life-saving paper restoration procedures.

Battered Lan Zhan is immobile, save for a few barely-felt tremors everytime Wei Ying touched the shredded edges, and is carefully placed on the kitchen counter. Wei Ying ordered the necessary materials, including a brush, bottles of solvents, sponge and soft cloth, liquid adhesive paste, a stick and wax paper. First, he used the brush to dust away solids and caked mud, and then dabbed the paper with solvents to remove the stains; Lan Zhan actually quivered with the feather-light touch - perhaps he could feel the gentle treatment. Then he used the remaining materials to try and repair the tears; Lan Zhan spasmed when Wei Ying pulled a little too hard - it is definitely painful, as much as touching one's open wound.

With Wei Ying's permission, Ernie emerges from the floor and weaves itself into the paper material - the cold black wisps must have chilled Lan Zhan when he visibly shivered upon being coated by a layer of dark mist, which eventually melts into him like a piece of dry ice. "Hush... Lan Zhan, Ernie is strengthening the fibres by adding spells, including the pink and green bubbles, so that you're protected from the elements," Wei Ying murmurs as he places two fingers onto Lan Zhan and the latter instinctively hugs them like a broad pillow to draw out body heat from the man. Wei Ying tenderly kisses the burnt tip of Lan Zhan's head, and with Ernie's magic swirling inside the paper body, all the edges are miraculously repaired - as good as new. However, Lan Zhan is very weak - Wei Ying could sense the light of his soul dimming at an alarming rate - and the paperman is very cold - the shivering Lan Zhan refuses to let go of the two fingers.

"Lan Zhan, you're unable to eat, and I can feel that your soul is depleted, and you're very hungry. It's somewhat similar to what didi felt when he was starving, and I can only think of feeding you with a bit of my golden core energy," Wei Ying whispers, heartbroken at the pitiful sight of his beloved husband hanging onto his fingers.

He slowly peels off the barely-wiggling paperman and places him onto his left chest, near the nipple - closest to his core. He cups the paperman against the breast, then with his free hand and with help from Ernie's black tentacles, they made a simple shoulder bandage out of a strip of cloth so that it resembled more like a loose cradle for tiny Lan Zhan. Wei Ying casts a modified Energy spell that extracts very tiny slivers of golden core energy from within his body, and faint, ethereal glowing yellow-white wisps seep out from the most protruding part of his chest. Lan Zhan must have detected and identified the energy source - his only food - through one of his dulled and primitive senses, as he crawled and made rustling sounds inside the dark, warm, clothed cocoon that feels, sounds and smells of his lovely Wei Ying. Soon, Wei Ying nnnghs when he feels a pinprick, and when he peeks into the shoulder wrap, he sees tiny paperman Lan Zhan holding and suckling on his nipple, inhaling golden-milky white strands of energy from it.

“Lan Zhan, I ate two servings of dinner just now, so you must feed well tonight. Please keep sucking as much as you want, it’s all for you,” Wei Ying coos, his eyes sparkling full of unconditional love. He doesn’t know if Lan Zhan heard him or not, but the latter looks contented as though he’s taking a nap while suckling - it’s hard to tell on a piece of paper that’s without a face.

Later, in the bedroom, Wei Ying eases himself on the king-sized bed. He lies sideways on his left, propped by pillows and reads some magazines to pass the time while waiting for midnight. Every once in a while, he would cast an amber-coloured Light spell to warm up the shoulder wrap, especially upon his left breast. He manages to hum their favourite song without any interruptions.

Tiny Lan Zhan continues to sleep and suckle after nine o’ clock.

Notes for the Chapter:

I decided to start a new arc, after the surprising twist at the end of the previous one. Let’s see what new adventures await Wangxian!

Chapter 55

Somewhere inside the Kingdom of Lan, Wuji continent...

Little twelve-year old Lan Wang Ji, like all other Wang Jis, is housed with his owner / spouse / soulmate in government-funded public housing, which typically starts out as a basic, unremarkable bamboo cottage with a straw thatch set in a rustic nature-rich backdrop, with a small living space, a single bedroom, a kitchenette and some basic furniture; utilities such as electricity, gas, water and unlimited broadband are included as well. House owners are welcomed to upgrade, grow and expand their properties - or any private assets for that matter - with their own funds, via their own personal means (the Kingdom practises partial capitalist and socialist policies, as long as everyone remains within the boundaries of Lan family rules and obey the one-party/person rule, which is in itself a dictatorship anyway.)

“Wang Jiiii... where is your homework?” Wei gege , a man in his late twenties with unruly long hair, unshaven, dressed up in loose messy and mismatched robes, and looks more like a vagabond than a scholarly big brother, calls out to the boy he’d bought on the spot at a store Clearance Sale, and he calls out with an obnoxious drawl while reclining on the worn-out, patched sofa - one of the few luxuries in their humble home, because Wei gege has been too lazy to look for a job, depend on government hand-outs (which is pretty good - a few gold pieces every so often), and prefers to spend his time watching brainwashingly boring state-run television (there are some daily news droning on about protests on the streets, but they’re living on the fringes, so everything’s still fine and peaceful), surf WeiNet (it’s been laggy recently, so he sticks to watching his old collection of downloaded pirated movies), getting drunk, and catch jungle fowls and fishes while foraging from the nearby thriving forests; while little Wang Ji does the farm work at their small plot of land given by the government, household chores, and runs errands in town including buying groceries at the local markets - an amazing feat for a small child, indeed.

The boy scurries into the living room with a broom in hand - he's not yet finished sweeping the compound outside their cottage, and he knows his gege likes to keep up good impressions with the neighbours, so he'd better finish his task soon and start on lunch. When he stands in front of his gege, he takes out a dog-eared notebook from his sleeves, and shows it to the latter. The book is snatched immediately.

"Wang Ji hasn't been doing a good job. Only 524 rules copied, so far. Will buy another book tomorrow. Wang Ji seeks forgiveness," the boy bows with deep respect.

Wei gege flips the book from page to page, then flicks to the last one - the entire notebook is filled and there is no more space to write. He sighs. Then, he rolls the book and gently knocks on the boy's head, "Wang Ji-ah-Wang Ji, haven't I told you before, you need to use your brains and think out of the box."

"The more notebooks we buy, the more money we waste, and the more trees are cut down." Knock. The little boy winces, not from pain, but from being ashamed from the tender scolding.

"What's more, we need to return the original Lan Family rules script to our neighbour in three days' time. If you do not finish the copying, we'll not have a set of the rules in our house, and the state inspectors will penalize us when they visit our home later this month." Knock.

Wang Ji looks up from the bow, and he looks almost confused, helpless and without a way forward. “Wang Ji understands the importance. But.. but..”

“Ai-yaaaa~~~ you Gusu Lans are always so rigid in your thinking! You have all the tools around you, and yet you still stick to your old ways!” Another impatient knock. The boy’s top-knot unwinds a little, and strands of hair start to stick out in all directions.

“Here, listen to gege and I’ll only say this once, drill this into your thick skull! Whoever said that you must write the rules in an expensive notebook that costs a silver piece each? Just write on any readable surface - newsprint, brochures from the supermarket, other pages and paper material you can find all over our home; I keep a stack of old stuff in the storeroom, look it up yourself! If you have to, write on the walls so that you will remember the rules every time you walk past them!” The notebook slid down to the boy’s chest, where his nipples are rubbed through the garments.

“If you cannot find anything inside our house, then go out to the forests to find something useful! There are big trees with even bigger leaves. You can write on those too,” the notebook glides below the ticklish navel and its rolled edge starts circling the unprotected but clothed crotch; shapes of forest leaves are drawn - ovals, hearts, maples and so on. Wei gege didn’t buy any loincloths for him yet.

“And if you’re really out of ideas, you can use the spells that I’ve taught the other day, and Create rice paper from the grass, then age them with Time into dried, writable pages,” Wei gege fiddles the boy’s genitals with the notebook and grins at his own smugness, “Do you understand?”

Little Wang Ji nods shakily, having received a humiliating, but useful lesson in life. The notebook is relentless in rubbing his wee-wee, and it starts to stiffen. It's become a reflexive response since the day he was brought into this house, and his designated gege always teases his body at every opportunity. It doesn't really help that he feels shame - his cheeks are flushed red -, because at the tender age of twelve, his body has just started blooming into puberty and willingly reacts to such stimulation.

"Enn. Wang Ji understands," and he bows again.

Wei gege licks his lips at the harried-looking pre-pubescent boy, with a laughably tiny boner no longer than his fourth ringed finger sticking out of the pants. He drops the notebook carelessly onto the floor, and grunts, "You know the routine. You're being punished so that you won't make the same mistakes next time. Come," the man orders as he lies on the sofa, stretches, and places his hands behind his head - like a real laoban .

Little Wang Ji blushes into deeper shades of red, and starts undressing in front of the gege . It's routine, the boy tells himself. He's been taught that every time he makes a boo-boo, gege wins and he's to obey gege 's wishes.

Soon, pantless little Wang Ji masturbates with delicate strokes while standing in front of the gege sprawling on the sofa, until his penis sticks up proudly like any young, increasingly horny, adolescent boy's. He carefully pulls his foreskin to the back to expose the purple-red glans, and Wei gege mmmms in appreciation while one rough, calloused hand reaches down and fondles the quail-egg-sized balls - and then rubs the unprotected cockslit until the boy nnnnhs and quakes and a droplet of sticky clear fluid oozes out

- which tastes a little salty, after the gege licks it off his eager fingers. The boy moans involuntarily, as shivers run up and down his spine and spreads warm, burning fire through his loins - he's just started experiencing ejaculatory orgasms not too long ago, and he hates it when desires and good feelings overwhelm his senses.

Little Wang Ji pants hard in anticipation when he finally inserts his penis into Wei gege 's waiting mouth. The older man sucks the boy like an ice lolly while lounging on their sofa. He enjoys listening to tasty, high-pitched childish moans of a boy trying to make love with his lips and tongue, and those moans turn into keening cries and flailing limbs and plenty of incoherent "ahhh, ahhh gege , nnnh, so hot, hnnggaah" when he generously deep-throats the quivering, leaking member.

Wei gege knows that the punishment is incomplete without pleasuring the boy's scrotal sac. He knows the hairless scrotum and its surrounding areas grow darker with age and testosterone, and he intentionally adds swirling licks and strong suction to each jiggling testicle, massaging them as they contract and convulse repeatedly, enticing each egg to produce more seed and hormones for the growing boy.

The reward is sweet and syrupy, unloaded in twenty-twitches of rapid heated spurts - a little diluted in texture and volume due to the young age of little Wang Ji, which Wei gege is sure that with time, and lots of practice, the boy will blossom into a delectable juicy virile morsel that he can milk all day, at the convenience of their rural home. If and when he has enough money, he plans to order a few more Wang Jis from the Kingdom-owned Wangxian company, and play with little and grown-up boys all day - that's his lifelong dream.

He makes sure little Wang Ji spills at least two more times, before letting the dazed boy go and continue his given homework, and cook their lunch.

Shortly after an exhausted Lan Zhan the Paperman slept soundly while feeding from his spouse on the bed, Wei Ying came across an interesting article in a Cultivation Times magazine. It was an intellectual discourse about the Empathy spell, how it works and its uses. The article describes how the spell is usually employed to delve into another's mind and consciousness for investigative purposes, to experience the emotions and memories of a spirit or a physical remnant - such as an undead or a body; with a high risk of being possessed by the inanimate target, if it so wishes, due to an active link between both sides.

With plenty of time in his hands, and a suckling Lan Zhan paperman on his left breast, Wei Ying - in his typical miscreant genius fashion - toys with an idea of helping an inanimate object experience the living's senses, thoughts and feelings; thus, a kind of reverse, or more appropriately, a Transverse Empathy spell is conjured - in theory - and Wei Ying doesn't hesitate to cast it upon the snuggling paperman. With his awesome magic-using prowess, the spell succeeds at the first attempt.

“Lan Zhan, when you wake up properly, you can experience the world through my thoughts, feelings, consciousness and senses; it’s better than trying to navigate around with a tiny fragile body, right?”

Nnnnh.

Tired. Cannot talk.

Long day.

“Ahh, Lan Zhan, even your mental capacity has been reduced to a paperman’s. But it’s alright, because through our link, I can understand what you’re saying. Please rest for now and drink more milk, while I take care of our home,” Wei Ying smiles sweetly at the figure latched onto his chest. A couple of nnnmh-ing suction on the nipple later, which confirms that body-warmed Lan Zhan is enjoying a nap and his much-needed sustenance, Wei Ying is free to move around the house in his night robes, without requiring any bandages or wraps. He gives a few more instructions to Ernie to protect Lan Zhan in his entirety - the soul and the paperman form -, secure him to Wei Ying’s body, and to preserve their precious Empathy link.

(Lan Zhan is like an old mobile phone that's left with less than five percent of battery, and he's without his own power bank. At such a critical condition, even the battery stretch proves futile as his basic functions are terribly compromised. His cognitive and emotional processes have been reduced to the most primitive state, which is ironically suitable for papermen, because papermen do not have any nervous systems to accommodate broader, more complex intelligence and wisdom.)

Through Empathy, Wei Ying learns that actually, Lan Zhan arrived at their courtyard during the afternoon, in the middle of the massive close-out sale and relocation - and the carnage - and was deeply traumatized at the sight of his clones being mass-produced from their home, then led away to the Junction, but not before watching with morbid fascination at how his clones participated in extremely depraved orgies with too many Wei Yings. He'd dismissed the entire massacre of morals, values and virtues as a whole new level of Wei Ying-ness, except that his heart broke at the sight of his Wei Yings professing their love, virginities and rosebuds to their chosen Lan Zhans. It felt as though he was invisible (which he really was), and his spouses, his loves, his family, his harem, his life possessions, his entire being, his identity - was snatched away right in front of his eyes. He'd run around blindly as much as a floating disembodied soul could, panickedly, trying to enter into any Lan Zhan he saw, wanting to return to the land of the living - only to be repelled by invisible forces because those Lan Zhans are fully occupied with their own individual souls - and no one noticed his plight.

As afternoon turned into evening, an increasingly desperate soul of Lan Zhan wandered around and drifted aimlessly around the courtyard and even within the walls of their home - but to no avail. He could not find any Lan Zhan to inhabit because he was too confused with so many of his moving, breathing, writhing, orgasming bodies everywhere - yet none would accept his soul. Soon, the crowd thinned, the Wei Yings and Lan Zhans left through The Junction, the house devolved from an industrious hubbub into an empty, quiet shell - he felt like the frightened, lonely, trembling school kid who missed his bus, but kept on waiting at the front gates of the closed school until sunset, and soon the neighborhood and streets became deserted, and the chill of the night sets in.

Finally, when there was only one, single, sole Wei Ying left in the house, his lovely Wei Ying, idling at the dining room, the distraught and fatigued Lan Zhan rushed forward - despite expecting that he'd just be repelled away by force. Twenty-two year old Wei Ying still wore his working garments and the tools of trade on his body, including papermen, and Lan Zhan's soul was gratefully absorbed into the yellow-coloured talisman.

Alone.

Through Empathy, Wei Ying felt the same acute twinge of pain and anguish that shook Lan Zhan's soul when the latter embraced the paperman. The young man realizes that beyond the fear of drifting in and around a house without a body like a forgotten ghost from the past, more terrifying than toeing the fine line between life and death, there is a deeper sense of helplessness boiling within the pits of Lan Zhan's soul - after witnessing the gut-wrenching sight of Wei Yings happily leaving with their newly-minted, more handsome, more rugged and more Perfect Lan Zhans - the one, single, sole original Lan Wang Ji knows that he is no longer the patriarch of his family; that he is disposable, replaceable, modifiable according to Wei Ying's whims, and easily discarded in the face of new flashy versions of himself fabricated using new (3d-printing) technologies.

Wei Ying sends a tender message to what he sees through Empathy - although it's impossible to project current thoughts into past memories, much like trying to talk to the guy appearing on a pre-recorded show on the television - that if Lan Zhan were to fall from grace, from the lofty skies high above, then the twenty-two year old Wei Ying will surely catch this falling angel, and cradle him safely in his arms.

(In retrospect, the fact that Lan Zhan returned while everyone was moving stuff out of the cave-home, meant that he was no longer being sexually assaulted during that time when his soul could drift back to the Mortal Realm from its sexual high - except that he was faced with too many occupied bodies bearing his appearance, and couldn't find his way back. Wei Ying speculates that the theft of Lan Zhan's real body took place during the move - when everyone's busy packing, bundling and carting things out and into The Junction - possibly including a well-hidden Lan Zhan too.)

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

By midnight at Qishan Local Time, WeiNet has been partially, but scarcely restored, and Wei Ying is both excited and nervous to find out what has transpired in their Kingdom, how are the siblings coping with their self-inflicted mess, and more importantly, he wants to show them a video clip of Paperman Lan Zhan (stuck to his left breast)!

After exchanging some distorted moving images of people trying to wave at each other, fully garbled noises in the background, reminiscent of pre-broadband days when trying to do a video call, the Wei gongzi s decided to switch off the video and stick to audio-only to preserve whatever little bandwidth they could afford with the saturated, overwhelmed lines. Wei Ying did manage to get a glimpse of their da ge 's spacious penthouse - there's a whole lot more boxes, documents and office stuff in there, evidence that the tired mastermind of their Kingdom has resorted to bringing work back home. There are also plenty of Lan Zhans milling around behind the gongzi s - da ge 's harem of multi-generational Lan Zhans of all forms, shapes and sizes (because he's just that awesome), san ge 's harem of his and Lan Zhan clones (orgies are an everyday occurrence), and didi is surprisingly sitting on the lap of just one single sole Lan Zhan who looks exactly like the Lan Zhan that belonged to the paperman - surrounded by a pile of more than ten strangely tame, mewling calico cats who look exactly alike.

(Lan Zhan the Paperman, through Transverse Empathy, observes and watches the confusing proceedings through Wei Ying's senses. He is stunned but remains quiet as he continues to suckle the life-giving nipple - it takes a long time to recharge, just like an old mobile phone.)

Everyone oooh and aaah'd at the paperman (in which Lan Zhan cringed) and praised their er ge for such an ingenious idea. By piecing together some known facts, they agreed that someone had intentionally tricked everyone else into believing that Lan Zhan was at home, when in fact, his body was stolen - and probably moved into the Kingdom. At best, da ge speculated, the precious body of their original patriarch remains in cold storage, either in some obsessed stalker's collection or awaiting for sale in the black market or illegal auction houses (yes, those exist in the underbelly of the Kingdom too - blame Wei Ying-ness)... and at worse, "Well, let's not think about that. We'll help you to search once we get everything back on line," the leader of the Wei gongzi barks out with confidence. (he also makes a snide remark that Wei Ying should just "buy" another Lan Zhan, and a better one with great discounts since he's an eligible gongzi ; in which Wei Ying cuts off the eldest sibling with a curt "You'll never understand, so let's not talk about it. Period.")

Wei da ge 's plan to populate his utopia Kingdom with enough happy subjects and their spouses, turns out to be a spectacular failure in all different directions:

- Many pre-orders for Lan Zhans were mixed up despite having the company employ blockchain technology to track every delivery - simply because everyone's name is Wei Ying or Wei Wuxian, they don't have a permanent address (many prefer to live a wandering nomadic life, and equally many prefer to stay in streets with no names - a failure of the city councils which are non-existent in the incredibly centralized government of the Kingdom, actually - a one man show by the da ge); and the Lan Zhans are named Lan Zhan or Lan Wang Ji, and none of them have any identifying codes to help track which Lan Zhan was ordered and for whom.
- Wei Yings complained about their wrong Lan Zhans, and soon, they swell into groups of protests. The situation isn't as bad as believed, as they're still relatively confined to pockets within the heavily-populated cities. More worrying, however, is that the protests started out as a critic to the mismanagement of delivery of Lan Zhans (and the no-return policies), and later, morphed into fast-spreading ugly general dissent against the present government and its tyrannical rule - the one man show by the da ge). "A festering social disease that must be cured," the da ge had said, and twenty-two year old Wei Ying just rolls his eyes, off screen. Da ge thinks that by giving every Wei Ying free Wangxian-made food, homes, land, clothes, and everything else for basic comfortable living including generous hand-outs from the company's treasuries - could keep his kin happy, but oh how wrong he was.

- Too many Wei Yings complaining online through their shared mental connections meant that their burgeoning WeiNet finally bursts its seams, and the entire system collapses - the so-called 'server crashes'. Wei Yings can no longer talk to each other telepathically. The numbers of Wei Yings going online continue to swell with each passing hour - san ge's amazing WeiNet manipulation skills managed to buy them some time in the form of special private connections (not unlike VPNs), but these are difficult and resource-draining to maintain over long periods of time. So, they will have to rely on the good ol' primitive Fairy Messenger connections for the time being. Wei Ying promises to keep his Fairy Messenger line open.
- With the loss of WeiNet, the mastermind Wei da ge loses his mind-control and voyeuristic abilities instantaneously. To make matters worse, numerous da ge clones have started their uprising to take over each other using harems, awesome magic and bubbles of near-distance mind-controls, turning cities into mafia-like territory grabs among the new warlords. During the conversation, Wei Ying hears thunder, fireballs, typhoons, fancy lasers and loud explosions that could either mean a grenade or an A-bomb has detonated somewhere near the gongzis. Not to worry though, the mastermind da ge is still the most awesome, and keeps the siblings and their families safe inside his penthouse.
- The entire fabric of society in the Kingdom is tearing apart into shreds, as un-mind-controlled Wei Yings multiply and enhance themselves illegally and without restraint (there is no rule forbidding the act, so what constitutes illegal or not remains subjective), and those Wei Yings multiply and enhance their Lan Zhans because of the power of love (and greed - because who wouldn't want to double, triple or quadruple their lover instantly?), who in turn become awesome magic-users (and harem masters) and do the same to their own Lan Zhan-kin.

- All entrances and exits to the Wuji continent have been physically and magically sealed to contain the chaos. However, no one knows if any individual, perhaps a da ge rogue clone who managed to mutate himself to become superior to his original, will be able to break the seal and start rampaging the world - and by when; it's only a matter of time.
- Wangxian has ceased operations until further notice. All deliveries to customers in foreign countries have stopped, obviously, and production lines and resources are redirected to produce enough to sustain the current population in Wuji continent. This also brings another level of anxiety to the gongzis - without a stable income, their coffers will run dry, and soon, even Wangxian can no longer support its own head office, plants, employees, citizens and the entire Wuji continent. There's still a large sum deposited in Yiling Bank as emergency funds for the sole Wei Ying living out of Wuji, and if needed, he could withdraw the money for daily living expenses. However, the issue of money is the last thing in Wei Ying's mind.
- The much-touted ribbon-cutting ceremony is postponed for the safety of its guests. The Tian sisters, who arrived earlier to help with preparations, are housed in a secured, separate home-apartment tower blessed with da ge's awesome magic - but there are reports that the Tian sisters have been able to fend for themselves well due to their surprisingly awesome abilities and skills. Hence, they'll hole themselves up until further instructions from the Wei gongzis.

Twenty-two year old Wei Ying rubs his temples at this point; he did not see this coming, and neither did the siblings - but it's all spiralling downwards into utter madness, and the sight of a humongous meteor fireball crashing down to the Wuji continent to wipe everything out - would be a salvation indeed.

“I... I really don't know what we can do next. It feels like we're losing all hope...” Wei Ying sighs tiredly as the audio call goes quiet (another explosion rattles the penthouse on the other side of the call).

He feels two tugs - not on his hair, but on the left nipple.

Wei Ying.

No.

Hope not lost.

You still have me.

I am here. (我在)

Notes for the Chapter:

I was getting writer's block while putting this chapter together... yeah, another world-building chapter, which sets the scene for this crazy arc. More Wangxian-ness ensues! I'm going 'bai nian' to visit some relatives and friends over the weekend for the Chinese New Year, so next chapter may be delayed .

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

p.s.: Oops, I forgot about the calico cats :-)

p.s.#2: Added a lil' bit about WeiNet :-)

Chapter 56

Somewhere else in the Kingdom of Lan, Wuji continent...

Forty-five year old Grandmaster Lan, fondly worshipped as the "Master" of his fortress - a white luxury apartment block located at the heart of the Kingdom - near ground zero of the mass protests, barricaded by magical and physical Great Walls - lives in his Perfect secluded Happiness. His wizened, bearded face and tall, muscular frame bear scars of fierce battles, such as scratches over his left eye from when he subjugated three Wei da ge clones simultaneously, and plenty more bitemarks and clawmarks on his torso and broad back, when he spent consecutive nights bedding panicked, screeching feisty Wei gongzi s that fought back for their dear life and dignity after capture. These are proof of his conquests, and are indeed worth the struggle - he owns a harem of at least twenty four young men and twelve maidens of the Wei kin under his absolutist, iron-grip rule. The females have all conceived and carry his flesh and blood in their bulging bellies.

The Master groans on the sweat-soaked mattress, when four lips and pairs of hands work in tandem on his massive erection until he's hard enough - he had spent the night before embracing his pregnant females in bed, in addition to spilling enough seed inside the latest two deflowered virgin additions so that they too, are with child by sunrise - and still, he needs to satisfy - feed - the males in his harem during daytime when he's not at the battlefield. It's a tough job, but an extremely pleasurable one, to be the sole owner of willing, beddable, young and sexually attractive Wei Yings.

Another five naked teenage male Wei Yings lie sprawling all over the floor of the huge bedchamber, shouting and squealing obscenities as they try to attack and outdo each other with Wangxian-branded premium, Energized-ready sex toys - dildos, beads, tail and butt plugs, vibrators, fleshlights, handcuffs, sounding instruments and everything else imaginable with ample bottles of Wangxian creamy-smooth lubricants. The vast, roomy chamber is decorated with chandeliers and modern, chic fixtures, plush and velvet-lined and expensive teakwood furniture, and a 110-inch Ultra HDTV occupying one of the corners of the room along with mini fridges, lounging and dining areas, playrooms and WeiNet gaming hubs for the fecund boys to play MMORPGs while waiting for their turn to be fertilized by their master.

When the five boys are adequately pleased and stretched by their sex toys, they begged their daddy-Master to fill their bellies with seed so that they too, can bear lots of healthy children for him. This provokes the Master, who kept murmuring two-word iterations of “nonsense” and “ridiculous”, to oblige to their demands in order to demonstrate his undying love for his harem members. He slides down from the soiled bed and finds those who had given him a divinely blowjob earlier, helped to masturbate each of the five moaning boys, then among themselves, and spread their asses to assist the Master to easily shove his waiting, lusting turgid penis into invigoratingly, welcoming, wet hot tunnels.

He likes to have his entire hardened length caressed by sweet, tight young flesh, so he fucks deep until he’s fully sheathed, before pulling out entirely, leaving a gaping hole peeking out from between the buttocks, before plunging back in and ravage his lovers with grinding motions of circles, triangles, squares and stars. Whenever one of the boys is about to his climax, he pleads by crying out “I’m coming, I’m coming” and the Master gladly pulls out of stretched, frothy rosebuds, then nosedives his exceedingly excited penis into the orgasming boy’s ass, and gets a heavenly massage of convulsing muscular walls that milk and coax the Master closer to the edge, in the form of his legendary one-two twitches. Throughout a lust-hazed one-hour session, he tastes all nine virile boys in Perfect sequence, with plenty of unintelligible moans of “uuuuuh... uuuuuh... oh yeah.... oh yeah.... “, spurting his seed into every one of them to the best of his abilities - and succeeds.

Just then, he realized he'd left his window curtains open, and spots another (clothed) Lan Zhan waving at him from the opposite apartment block, with encouraging shouts of “Lan shixiong , good morning, I see you're exercising well today!” while hanging freshly washed bedsheets on the balcony - the bright morning sunlight is ideal to dry their laundry (since both Lan kinsmen abhor the automated washing machine).

The Master of the house is supported by his neighbour who lives in the next apartment block - an ally of Lan kin, albeit a younger xiongdi who owns a smaller family, ruled under very different circumstances - a more carefree and less tyrannical rule; there are ten Lan kins under that shidi who are paired an equal number of Wei kins, living in loving Perfect harmony. The Master and his neighbour are born from the same source, yet they view the world with different sets of eyes and run on vastly different mindsets. Fortunately, there is no ill-will between them (Gusu Lan family rules forbid intra-family disagreements), so he waves back at his neighbour while pulling out of his ninth trembling boy lover, leaving cum dripping to the floor. He's a bit breathless to say anything else - but that's Perfectly understandable between the two apartment owners who are busy managing their families in their own special ways.

They had been disappointed by their original owners and the way their households were run (to the brink of bankruptcy), so both had renegaded and succeeded in their coups - not by brute force nor magic, but by wielding feather dusters and broomsticks that sent their original owners grovelling into submission. Through a series of very brief diplomatic discussions and “Mn”s over the fence that separated their apartment blocks, they agreed to form a brotherly partnership (after a simple ritual of drinking from the same cup of pu’er tea), and start their takeover of northside Spring Berries District.

The younger, more visionary xiongdi plans to send his troops to raid the following next apartment block by sunset, set more Lan kinsmen free, and pick up any Wei kins who are friendly to his policy of mutual love (mono and polygamy included) - the remnants will be coerced by the Master to join his harem. If they encounter a particularly nasty Wei elder with mind-controlling abilities, the Master will not hesitate to lead his harem into the warzone as back-up, and worse to worse, he will summon and let loose packs of dogs and wolves if necessary (which usually guarantees instant victory to the Lan kins). They will continue to seize block by block, and search for rumoured, incredibly gifted Lan kinsmen with extremely powerful psychic abilities to control everyone’s thoughts, and start their own Kingdom within the Kingdom. (And then, they will start building proper structure to their society, including giving more unique names or codes to every individual, and start naming apartment blocks so that their homes are not called “that white apartment block” anymore - the legacy of an inefficient and incompetent government.)

It seems to be a brilliant military strategy, and it tricks the government into thinking that there are major spats between ordinary Wei elders, when in fact the Lan masters are the ones hiding behind the scenes, pulling puppet-strings of their own enslaved Wei elders to rage war against non-enslaved ones - hence, all resources are poured into efforts to suppress quarrels between Wei Yings and no one pays attention to their Lan Zhans.

A polite knock on the door, then three small Wei children, each less than ten years of age, shuffle into the room armed with Wangxian Dustless Brooms, washcloths and wooden buckets of water, ready for the clean-up operations. They're extremely efficient and make sure that the entire apartment block remains dust and cum-free after making their rounds.

"Master, master, we're prepared the bath for you, please join us while the bedroom is being cleaned," another four preteen boys coo from the entrance, all in the nude. The Master stretches and nnnghs at his aching hips, rises, then follows the group of boys aged between ten and thirteen years of age, to a gargantuan bathroom adjacent to the bedroom. It is tiled with expensive ceramic, marble, and lined with gold and silver. A giant bathtub sits in the middle, and there are rows of multi-functional shower heads lining the walls - suitable for the times when the harem wants to have a soaking wet orgy, and eases washing away any leftover bodily fluids too.

He watches and fingers each boy in the bathroom, as they pee on the floor and clean themselves up with multi-directional, high pressured jacuzzi-like sprays from the walls. He particularly likes it when he molests their smooth supple bodies, stroke their genitals, cup their balls, squeeze their springy tight asses, and shove fingers inside each boy while vigorously jabbing their young, developing prostates as they relieve themselves, and their vulnerable penises stiffen up and spray everywhere and on each other with plenty of joyful giggles. When they're done emptying their bladders and washing up their bodies, the boys eagerly crowd around and present their soaped, cleansed and perfumed wee-wees to their master - the Master happily grabs two to three penises at one go and stuffs them into his mouth, and he sucks on the rather immature glans and roughly swirls his tongue beneath retracted foreskins, rubs the tip of his tongue on their cockslits, while playing with ass holes, tickling their inner thighs, pinching their small pinkish nipples - until they ejaculate in breathy moans and the Master enjoys a mid-morning snack of Wei Ying-flavoured young-boy semen - and he polishes their wildly convulsing exposed cocks with his mouth and palms until his snacks are accompanied with spurts of pure seedless nectar with bursts of satisfying sweetness and screams from young, humping, quaking bodies. After a while, the Master has rested enough to reload his balls, and he proceeds to mount all four dazed boys inside the bathroom, dutifully sowing his seed into their quivering assholes.

The remaining one-third of the male population inside the Master's fortress consist of older Wei kins who aren't terribly keen to jump into bed with their owner, so they help with routine housework and errands, such as going to the supermarket to keep their pantry stocked up with enough of leaf-wrapped spiced meats, fish, garden vegetables, fruits and other healthy organic options. Some continue to work their day jobs in Wangxian state-funded establishments, both as undercover agents, and to bring back enough money to feed a growing family-cum-harem (the fat government payslips are a boon indeed).

After a fulfilling bath, the shiny, shampoo'ed and sparkling Master orders one of his enslaved Wei elder to start cooking their lunch and dictates the menu, just as two horny teenager Wei Yings straddle him on the newly-cleaned bed, and start taking turns to ride him - one faces him, the other faces to the back - and the Master enjoys alternating between cowgirl and reverse cowgirl sex, with five thrusts per Wei Ying. Soon, two more Wei Yings join the fold, and the Master lines them up, kneeling on all fours on his king-sized bed, and fucks their rosebuds doggy-style one by one. Another two tip-toed into the bedchamber, and they start caressing his chest, kissing his cheeks and earlobes, playing with his increasingly heavy balls, whispering very naughty words to entice the Master to cease the foreplay, start making love with the harem's favourite engorged "Bichen", because all the Wei Yings in the house belong to him and therefore he can do whatever he wants and take his pleasures from these lovely Wei Yings, and plant many, many baby Wang Jis and tiny Wei Yings inside their bellies.

The Master growls dangerously at the ludicrous but sexy thoughts, lust evident in his bloodshot eyes, and indulges in his harem's desires. He starts breeding his lovely Wei Yings wildly, fucking them so deep, hard and fast until their love canals become loose and moulded to their owner's phallic shape. He bites and salivates like an animal in heat because every Wei Ying purrs and continue to goad him, tease him, and flirt with him with wiggling ass mounds, gyrating hips, clenching hot tunnels, and bold and loud displays of body-shaking orgasms in front of him when he hits or rubs a particularly sensitive spot. When he peaks, he howls with starry-eyed blinding pleasure when he slams his hips deeply into a particularly frisky teenage Wei Ying until bones and flesh rattled - and the others start doing wonderful things - massaging his balls, licking his asshole and perineum, caressing his body, casting Invisible Fingers and Tongues to milk the twitching penis so that it shoots out more, more thick heated seed - until he twitches thirty times instead of twenty - and he's able to pull out and pound deeply from one captivating asshole to another - and inseminates three male Wei Yings within a single climax. He continues to inundate the holes of a few more Wei Yings, before he is nicely emptied, and groans out that he really needs a break.

Lunch is simple and nutritious, and follows a mix of Gusu Lan and Yunmeng Jiang cuisines - rice, vegetables, tofu, meat and fish, and soup (usually of the lotus root with spare ribs variety, but it depends on what's available on sale from the supermarket). Gone are the days when Wei Yings simply cooked a bowl of spicy stew and cast Creation spells, to multiply that bowl into many pots of evil-looking blood-red stuff, which would last for many days (and everyone gets diarrhea after having too many spicy meals in a row) - now, under the Master's guidance tempered with the wise teachings of Lan virtues and preference for healthy living, Wei Yings cast Creation spells on raw ingredients so that they always have enough to cook a multitude of dishes that suit everyone's palate; it helps that the Master comes in-built with numerous recipes memorized from all over the Middle Kingdom that he'd inherited from the original source.

After lunch, there's plenty of back-scratching, ear-cleaning, back-rubs, foot massage and other relaxing, pampering and pleasurable activities for the Master. He particularly likes to lie on one of his Wei Ying's laps to have his ears cleaned with a well-used bamboo ear-pick, while another Wei Ying sucks on his penis and plays with his balls, and later, many more take their turns to spoon against him, so that he enjoys languid sexual intercourses with multiple Wei Yings thirsting for a taste of their master's happily spasming penis, and he hnnngs many, many times when he de-stresses through nearly continuous strings of lazy-afternoon orgasms, simultaneously as when his ears tremble with joy with itch-scratching grazes and scrapes on one, sometimes both sides.

Throughout the afternoon, the harem continues to excite and pleasure their master, all over their bedroom and their apartment unit. Wherever the Master goes, whether reading the newspaper, having a beverage, going to the toilet, or watching the television, at least two or three Wei Yings will accompany him and they have fun distracting their master. Sometimes, while the Master is reading a magazine and being serviced by one from his harem, a brazen Wei Ying would pluck the reading material off his hands and drop it to the floor, then casually mounts himself onto the Master's perfectly hard and lubricated cock, and fucks himself silly until he cums all over the Master's six-pack abs. Such transgressions are Perfectly fine, since the Master enjoys spending hours inside his Wei Yings as well, making sure to breed and mark every one of them before sunset - when it's time to go out, fight another battle into the night, and earn a few more Wei Yings to be enlisted into his harem.

It's tough being a new patriarch of a growing harem, but the rewards are truly well-deserved.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Twenty-two year old Wei Ying is touched by Paperman Lan Zhan's determination to turn things around, despite his comically small stature and a blank face with an even blank-er expression. It is past midnight in the 'Mounds, and he decided to catch up on sleep before the start of another long day.

Lan Zhan has absorbed enough qi from Wei Ying's golden core by the time the latter is sound asleep, and he decides to mull over his thoughts, in a debilitatingly limited capacity, while exploring his renovated home on his own to pass the time - as a paper-thin animated object that runs fully on magical and spiritual energy, he does not need to sleep; he only needs to rest and feed to replenish his soul. With a rustling sound, he peels himself off Wei Ying's left nipple, and gingerly hops off the gentle rise and fall of the young man's chest.

"Great Patriarch Lan, Young Master Wei has advised to stick to his body as closely as possible," the synthetic but high-pitched voice of Ernie echoes inside his head - if there is one on the paperman. He had never really talked to Ernie until now, so he is a little surprised to be greeted with such concern.

Need to find solution.

Wei Ying is troubled.

Solve Wei Ying's problems.

Save the Kingdom he built.

“Great Patriarch Lan, you will start losing energy once leaving skin contact with Young Master Wei. Young Master Wei will be alarmed and sad if the Empathy link is broken.”

Lan Zhan realizes that Ernie is indeed a good child - just as his namesake - full of concern and worry for its creator and his partner. From the perspective of Gusu Lan societal rules, a good child is a child that is obedient and contributes to the family's name and well-being.

Ernie seems to have picked up the line of thought, as it voices, “Great Patriarch Lan, please give your instructions. Ernie will help.”

Protect Wei Ying.

Help Wei Ying.

Save our family.

Ernie falls silent for a moment, as it crunches some numbers and performs some calculations within its vast network of hubs, servers and other machine components (his artificial intelligence spans across universes, but no one knows about it, other than a brief forgotten memory from Lan Zhan when he first ascended to Heaven and saw Ernie gobbling up galaxies).

“Great Patriarch Lan, to protect Young Master Wei, Ernie will protect you. Ernie will perform enhancement procedures necessary to increase your abilities and strength.”

Lan Zhan does not understand what ‘enhancement procedures’ mean, but he does not want to raise his hand at a non-Wei Ying, so he agrees.

“Great Patriarch Lan, to help Young Master Wei, both of you need to travel to Wuji continent. Ernie will help you. Tomorrow, an aerial transport vehicle will be ready at the airfield. Please board at ten in the morning. Ernie will assist in check-in and boarding procedures.”

Lan Zhan does not understand how they can travel to a continent that has been physically and magically sealed, nor what the other aviation terms meant - since his mental capabilities are too limited, he lets the questions slide, and nods in acceptance.

Ernie pauses thoughtfully before speaking, “Great Patriarch Lan, your instructions are directed towards Young Master Wei. Is there anything Ernie can do for you?”

Mn.

It is alright.

As long as Wei Ying.

Is happy.

The Master wipes blood from his face - his own blood; he'd taken a couple of good punches to his jaw and his gums were bleeding, which is Perfectly alright and can be quickly treated with his Healer spells - and carries the spoils of the latest offensive: two unconscious teenager Wei Yings with their pants ripped off, one on each shoulder, and behind him is a cart full of young and adult Wei Yings of both genders, and a couple which exhibit inhuman features such as dragon-like wings and tail, and evil-looking scarlet-red tentacles sprouting from the back - all of which are either knocked out with Sleep spells and poisons, or given a good kick to the head - especially the stronger, more stubborn ones.

He stares longingly to the west, towards the Winter Berries District where it is said that the strongest, and most powerful Wei da ge clones reside. The skies are as dark as midnight, with cast lightning striking the grounds as frequent as new plumes of cloud from raging firestorms rise to shroud the western horizon in near-perpetual inky-blackness. At a faraway distance, beyond hills and valleys, he spots Wei elders hurling blazing projectiles at one another in a tit-for-tat melee, as each accuse the other for stealing Lan Zhans and try to rob their own kin for the precious commodity.

“It’s a dark and stormy night over there,” he murmurs, not really expecting anyone to respond. He gazes at a sweeping vista of rubble, broken pavement and heaps of collapsed, twisted concrete - and just down the next junction, more residential apartments, condominiums, office towers and factories to be conquered in the following days.

“Yes , shixiong , and it will be a clear and sunny day tomorrow,” the younger Lan Wang Ji answers beside him, as he points at the first signs of daybreak to the east - towards Summer Berries District. Deep maroons and reds line the bottoms of clouds on the eastern horizon, promising a better, brighter future to those who fight for their freedom.

His next-door neighbour is busy coordinating rescue efforts to pair up liberated Lan Zhans with more willing, and conscious young Wei Yings, who are in turn, grateful to be saved from their tyrannical elder kin. He organizes them into smaller groups and sends them to his apartment block - their new haven until the war campaign is over - with instructions to ‘freely love each other, and be loved freely in return’.

They had been incredibly lucky; when news broke out that (yet) another battle of mages is taking place within the district, three more Lan masters emerged from their dens to take advantage of the chaos - and are pleased to find the first two masters masterminding the destructive scuffle on the streetes - and immediately all five Lan masters in total bonded as brothers-in-arms, and promised to fight future battles together. They left shortly after taking their share of seized supplies, weapons, imprisoned and tied-up Wei Yings and a few Lan Zhans who decided to follow the new masters.

The former owner of the destroyed block, a Wei da ge clone, had a deadly combination of high-level Creation, Time and Fate-related spells in his grimoire, and nearly ruined their efforts by creating a vicious-looking Cold Evil Black Thing to appear and swallow everyone, everything voraciously. Just as its gaping maws reached them, a regal-looking and bearded Lan

Wang Ji dressed in pure-white robes appeared from the southside, behind the cackling da ge , and promptly knocked his head with a wooden bucket used for carrying fertilizer to vegetable gardens. The da ge fell into an unconscious heap, and was collected by the amazingly calm and composed Lan kinsman - then disappeared, along with the Cold Evil Black Thing which dissipated instantly.

Something grand and great lies waiting in the southside Autumn Berries District, the Master and his neighbour realized in unison.

The Master lovingly gnaws at each naked plump ass on his shoulders, marking each captured teenage Wei Ying with teethmarks on the buttocks, before leaving the scene of carnage.

Notes for the Chapter:

I had a slow start with this arc, but I think I'm getting a hang of things... writing about war-time and war-torn scenarios aren't really up my alley, but hey, anything can happen with the Wangxian couple!

Chapter 57

In another part of the Kingdom of Lan, Wuji continent...

Lan Zhan thinks he's found his paradise on earth, and it's not in the 'Mounds, nor the special picnic spot just a stone's throw away from Yiling's markets.

He stands on an idyllic tropical sandy beach sheltered within an uninhabited bay filled with thickets and palm fronds swaying lazily in the warm breezy air; in front of him lies an infinite distance of calm blue seas with small tides lapping at the waterside; behind him is their humble beach home - which looks more like a grey block of cement with gaudy red-tiled roofing sticking out on the sand, fully furnished with modern amenities inside including air-conditioning, built by the government to encourage people to live away from dense areas. They've built makeshift gardens around their house out of soil-laden styrofoam boxes filled with leafy vegetables, and potted flowering plants. A freshwater river winds its way from inland hills into the coast, and along the riverbanks are stretches of mangrove forests rich with wildlife, jungle birds, edible plants, fish, crabs and shellfish.

He is clothed only in an untied light robe and nothing else - hence his entire front - including his tanned chest and groin - is fully exposed to the refreshing salty air from the ocean winds. He feels blessed to have been bought by his owner, a Wei Ying with a penchant for secluded places closer to nature, and far, far away from bustling cities, even at the expense of living with a little less - such as slower WeiNet connection speeds and spotty television reception; which they are happy to substitute with snuggling in each other's arms for hours inside a double hammock tied to sturdy beachside trees (with a subtle Shield spell to keep away the bugs), enjoying the sounds of nature and the rhythmic crashing waves, while watching moonrises together at nights and counting how many shooting stars pass by overhead because the skies are crystal clear with no light pollution in the vicinity.

Wei Ying steers his modern electric and solar-powered fishing boat made of metal and fibreglass into view, and carefully docks it to a nearby wooden pier. After securing the boat with anchors and ropes, he unloads baskets of harvests from nearby rocky shores and the bountiful sea to the pier - an assortment of colourful fish, shellfish such as cockles, clams and mussels, lobsters, shrimps, squid, and a pile of edible seaweeds and marine plants. Using spells, Wei Ying floats the baskets into a storehouse next to their home (another grey cement block, really), where magic-powered stone statue servants await to process the incoming cargo with incredible efficiency into bags of frozen seafood - which are then teleported through black smoky portals to the local seafood vendors, and their bank accounts fill up with fresh funds from the sale (the introduction of cashless online sales and banking services is a godsend for communities living far from the cities).

In another time and universe, Lan Zhan would have been kept busy doing housework and helping with drying and salting their harvests - but such menial tasks are no longer required with Wei Ying's powerful magics around. Lan Zhan lives a comfortable life as a live-in lover with small, unobtrusive Energy-powered automatons keeping their home clean and well-maintained.

Wei Ying kisses Lan Zhan on the lips as he walks past towards their home for a quick bath - there is piped freshwater from inland, freely supplied by the government's infrastructure - and Lan Zhan wrinkles his nose at the fishy and salty, sweaty taste. "Did you miss me, darling?" Wei Ying murmurs jokingly.

Lan Zhan nnnnghs in vague response and at the smell assaulting his senses, signalling his partner to hurry up and rinse off. “The mud servants have worked in the swamps earlier today and shipped off their catch. We’ll have grilled fish steaks, baked clams, seafood paella and chilli crabs for lunch, with boiled tofu and stir-fry vegetables from the garden. The house is clean with neither a speck of dust nor puddles of your cum on the floor,” he reports, and Wei Ying barks out a laugh at the last bit.

Wei Ying steals another kiss, this time to Lan Zhan’s sun-warmed cheeks - and the latter wipes away what he thinks as stinky sea-flavoured saliva - before disappearing into their air-conditioned grey block of cement home. Lan Zhan sighs at the mischievous man, and shouts out that Wei Ying shouldn’t leave any sandy footprints on the floor, while following the latter back to the house, and away from the clear morning sunlight. It’s a futile warning anyway, as automatons trail the house owner, picking up whatever clothes that he discards, wet sand, bits of sea debris and coral he leaves behind in his path.

Later, fresh from the shower, naked Wei Ying tries to pull a reluctant Lan Zhan into an embrace for a quickie in their bedroom while raining flirty smooches on Lan Zhan’s exposed neck and chest - because the bedsheets are still drying in the sun, and they were supposed to visit the evening markets to buy more along with other household items, with the money they’ve earned - so, Wei Ying relents. He takes Lan Zhan’s wrist and they walk to their favourite double hammock nestled in shadier parts of the beach. Lan Zhan sighs as they climb onto it, knowing that Wei Ying is as insatiable as an incubus - which he partly is anyway.

Wei Ying happily undresses Lan Zhan by peeling off his light robe in a single swipe, balling it and throwing it to the ground (Lan Zhan protests the mistreatment of his garment, but is silenced with a flaming passionate kiss with fierce tongue-play). Then, Wei Ying make sweet love to his chosen soulmate until the latter shudders with moans and pleasure, and he delights in extracting tasty sounds from the usually stoic and silent man. Lan Zhan doesn't want to openly admit it, but he appreciates and loves his Wei Ying very much for treating both of them equally well - they'd start with making out with sweet kisses on the lips, sliding their bodies and limbs against one another (Lan Zhan particularly enjoys the sensation of a warm hairy chest and hairy legs against his, and he would twirl the hairy curls encircling Wei Ying's nipples before latching onto them like a pampered baby). They would pleasure each other's penises with loving licks and suckles while doing a 69, moaning into each other's dense hairy pubes when they deep-throat simultaneously in Perfect unison, then their fingers work to stretch each other's rosebuds and slather generous amounts of homemade lubricants through the tight rings of muscles, accompanied with tender touching and caressing of heated, sweat-prickled skin, alternating between gentle circular rubs and fierce fingernail-rakes on bare backs and buttocks when the scent of sexual excitement becomes thick in the air.

The couple takes turns to screw deeply into each other's love tunnels; Wei Ying would take the lead and mount Lan Zhan at the bottom, and after a few minutes, he would pull out then flip Lan Zhan onto his back and willingly fucks himself over the twitching cock, then ride Lan Zhan for a while, before he'd change positions again until Lan Zhan hnnngs uncontrollably when he gets to fuck Wei Ying missionary style and spear deep, deep into his lover, and cums - and the couple keeps having sex in different positions they've memorized from Wangxian-issued erotica magazines. They end up leaving multiple loads of seed in each another, while moaning their lover's names and enticing the other for more, more, please make sweeter love to me, I want your hot hard cock to fuck deep into my tunnel, please take me to heaven and beyond - until their desires and lusts boil over and spill repeatedly - all within the loving cocoon of their favourite hammock by the sea.

They would spend much of the day relaxing, eating, cultivating, exploring the bay on foot, entertaining each other with music, dancing and singing, spending time in each other's arms or doing other pleasurable activities such as massaging, giving back rubs, foot rubs, back scratches and ear cleaning, and of course, have plenty of enjoyable love-making in their land of paradise.

Wei Ying woke up slightly after nine in the morning with bad bed-hair after staying up late the night before, and it was a monumental task to get him ready for his first intercontinental flight. He was forced to grab a quick Ernie-made breakfast while listening to Ernie's updated plans for the couple. Wei Ying downed two portions of sunny side up eggs, modern french toast and warm soymilk - stuffed into his mouth under protest (Wei Ying had to eat so much, because he's really eating for two). After that, Ernie's tentacles helped to brush his teeth, wipe him with a wash towel, dress the half-asleep man, and pack his travel luggage simultaneously, so that Wei Ying is prepared for a trip that could last for several days and nights.

Wei Ying didn't provide any specific instructions other than sleepy grunts (the non-committal groans of "nnnh" in response to questions of whether he preferred to bring his market-bought white loincloths or his favourite red ones - do not count), and furthermore, he had never packed a plastic suitcase of clothes, modern amenities and travel supplies before. Hence, he allowed Ernie to take over the tasks on his behalf, including check-in and boarding procedures.

Paperman Lan Zhan wasn't sure of what to bring either. He hopped and fluttered around, deep in thought (during the night, he practised moving around in his paperman form, and started to get the hang of it). He found an empty silk pouch that was light enough for his delicate form to lug around, but he couldn't think of what he might need for the trip. Therefore, similar to Wei Ying, the paperman asked Ernie to manage everything on his behalf. He watched, pleased, when Ernie's tentacles packed a set of large-sized cloud-patterned robes into Wei Ying's suitcase, in anticipation that the man may return to his human form and have something decent to wear. Such a smart and well-behaved child with brilliant foresight! Lan Zhan praised wordlessly.

It was five minutes before ten, when Wei Ying finally jolted awake the moment Lan Zhan crawled into his usual resting spot - beneath the inner garments - and he started to panic; the airfield was a few miles away and surely they couldn't make it by foot on time! Ernie simply moved the floor mat aside, flung open his trapdoor, and whisked Wei Ying with the paperman latched onto his breast down into a lighted, but endless tunnel. Wei Ying screamed and nearly peed in his pants as though he'd been strapped onto a rocket-like rollercoaster to the Underworld, and they dropped freefalling for a few heart-stopping seconds. Miraculously, when Wei Ying opened his eyes with held breath and shaking knees, they've arrived at the airfield.

“Lan Zhan! You're really amazing! You've managed to learn to speak more than a few words overnight, and you've designed this... this... amazing thing ! I'd thought of flying swords or metal birds, but your thinking is so much more advanced... and... more... more... amazing!" (an amazed Wei Ying has very few choice words left in his vocabulary)

Lan Zhan sticks to Wei Ying's left nipple for his morning feed; his meal times are becoming more regular, more routinized - which is Perfectly fine. He quite likes the taste of eggs, toast and soymilk in his meal; he learnt that Wei Ying's golden core energy - or more aptly, breastmilk - takes on the flavours of anything the man had recently eaten. So, when Wei Ying munches on wedges of fresh apples and cut peaches served right after take-off by a tentacle-like air steward (or stewardess- Ernie does not have a gender), Lan Zhan mmmms at the sweetness of the fruits as well. Lan Zhan had warned Wei Ying to avoid or at least reduce the intake of spicy foods, for obvious reasons, and Wei Ying promises - at least for the next few days.

It is Ernie who made this possible, so you should thank it.

Wei Ying, please eat that green fruit labeled "kiwi".

...

Mmmmm.

I like it.

(when tiny Lan Zhan burps - in the form of a spasming rustle of paper with a slightly distended middle - he looks amazingly cute.)

Lan Zhan is comfortably and safely tucked under Wei Ying's inner garment, while the latter sits on a lazy chair reclined to the max, munching on succulent peeled kiwi and other foreign fruits, nestled in a two-seater discshaped thing about the size of a large horse-cart that blazes through the morning skies at terrifyingly insane speeds (and they already broke the sound barrier at least twice). There are a whole bunch of blinking and moving lights, panels, switches and screens that beep and buzz weird sounds; alien texts and images continuously scroll through on shiny metal surfaces and through the air as holographic projections.

When the complementary fruits service is done and a tentacle takes away the tray, Wei Ying excitedly fidgets around the small but brightly illuminated cockpit, peers at every moving thing inside the ship, and pokes and prods and press red buttons curiously (fortunately, they're on auto-pilot, so none of the controls respond).

Wei Ying, please stop moving around so much, I cannot... s... s-suck well if I keep slipping off your b... b... b-breast.

(Lan Zhan clears his throat and feels ashamed at using such crude words, if the paperman has a throat and could blush.)

Wei Ying “ooops” audibly, apologizes and settles back to his seat. He cups and pats his left chest to make sure tiny Lan Zhan remains fastened to the slightly puffed areola (it is a little irritated because Lan Zhan's paperman body is akin to a breathable band-aid that's adhered to the skin for too long - thankfully, a tentacle provided a bottle of soothing balm as part of the in-flight comforts, which is also a great moisturizer - like any flight passenger, Wei Ying pockets whatever he can get his hands on, including onboard amenity kits, airsickness bags, in-flight magazines, plastic and stainless steel cutlery, dishware and the odd toothpick, and sugar and salt packs; he'd stowed the comfy pillow and blanket into his luggage bag powered by Infinity Bag of Holding, when there are no tentacles around). He calms down after a few deep, meditative breaths - the air inside the enclosed cockpit is surprisingly fresh albeit a little cold and low on humidity, and does not result in any claustrophobic feelings - because the big screen in front of him is a live cam view of their surroundings, and Wei Ying loves the exhilarating experience of watching the world pass by in a blink of an eye, and as the morning turns into dusk within the span of an hour. They'd fly past mountains, deserts, lakes, rivers and oceans - it's an amazing sight that cannot be captured by any known spells.

Having calmed down his inner juvenile spirit, Wei Ying properly speaks to their gracious host inhabiting somewhere inside the ship, or in one of those tentacles that appear and disappear at will. "Thank you Ernie for the flawless arrangements, the food, and the free ride to Wuji. Will you be alright? You're so far away from home, and your physical and magical range is limited to the 'Mounds and Yiling."

Ernie's synthetic voice chimes in from one of the control panels, "You're welcome, Young Master Wei. It is my duty to ensure your requests are fulfilled.

Ernie is alright. Ernie will accompany you throughout your travels, and especially with Great Patriarch Lan in his current form."

Wei Ying thought that Ernie was still confined to the trapdoor-cum-cavern underneath their cave-home, and for the sake of this trip, it had sent a few tentacles to protect and serve them - much like remotely controlled servants made of natural elements, which isn't uncommon these days since cultivators are known to animate stone statues and mud monsters using magic.

(oh how wrong Wei Ying was.)

The young man dismissed any further concerns about Ernie, and discussed their next steps inside the cockpit. “ Da ge said that he’s sealed off the continent with physical barriers and magical shields, so how can we fly through?” he asks.

“Young Master Wei, please rest assured that we will be able to infiltrate without detection. You are currently travelling in an Unidentified Flying Object vehicle equipped with anti-gravity Unobtainium chassis and armor, Arcturian anti-matter cannons and planetary bombardment devices sourced from Tatooine hyperspace traders, Blue Sirius-class shields, faster-than-light warp drives and other components suitable for standard interstellar travel and light sub-orbital melee with physical and magical capabilities.

In addition, the interior of the vehicle is based on the Version 17.5 design from Alpha Centaurian merchant flight-pods, as they are terrestrial beings with 85 percentage-points of similarities to the Standard Universal Humanoid Form measurements; therefore, you should feel very comfortable and secure within your seat.”

Wei Ying tuned out of Ernie’s lengthy explanation, when he accidentally pressed a particularly large red button on the armrest, “Oh Goddess Guan Yin, what in the heavens is... the chair is giving me... a... a... a... massage? Oh... Ahh... nnnh... hngannhhh!” Wei Ying squeals and arches his back with spastic jerks, when thousands of finger-like protrusions that roll, spin, knead and vibrate emerge from the seat and starts doing wonderful things to his body - and his nether regions too.

Ernie, I do not understand what you're saying, but I will not raise my hand.

I trust you.

Take us to Wuji safely.

A thin line of green stretches in the horizon across the infinite oceanic blue - the first glimpse of land on-screen.

Wei Ying is rendered completely useless, succumbing into pleasurable AAAAHs and fits of wild laughter, when his bones are lovingly rattled, his muscles are loosened, his feet and ribs are tickled ruthlessly, and his entire body convulses and relaxes into a quivering puddle of good feelings - it helps that a tentacled suction cup wormed its way from the back of the chair into his pants, and fits snugly to his cockhead; when it is activated, it works just like an alien parasitic ugly green condom that invades the man's lower body and vacuums out seed and soul (figuratively speaking).

Lan Zhan silently tries his best to hold on to Wei Ying's bouncing b-b-breast (because papermen do not have fingers), and he quietly suckles more golden core milk to replenish his energy levels. It seems the milk tastes sweeter when flavoured with multiple orgasms.

They continue to speed towards their destination, reaching Wuji in less than an hour after take-off. The sun is setting on the continent, and a few specks of stars appear on the skies.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan was in the middle of a mind-blowing climax, erupting for the nth time inside his lovely Wei Ying, when Wei Ying stopped gyrating his hips while straddling the older man's crotch.

“Ah, look, another shooting star! It's rare to see one at dusk, but it's so bright!” Wei Ying oohs and aahs at the marvellous but fleeting sight from the heavens.

Lan Zhan is completely oblivious, and continues to hnnngh and ngaaah rhythmically and gush out warm seed into his lover's tight ass, as both of them continue to make sweet love inside their double hammock, in their land of paradise by the bay.

Notes for the Chapter:

I'm throwing in whatever I can think of to make this arc in a league of its own. There's plenty of Wangxians to go around.

Chapter 58

Somewhere deep inside the southside Autumn Berries District, Kingdom of Lan of Wuji continent...

Eighteen-year old Wei Ying knows that he probably shouldn't try to beg for food or shelter in the poverty-stricken slums - he might be robbed or worse, kidnapped and sold to sweatshops or sleazy brothels, as general Wei gongzi education has taught him -, however he'd been desperate after spending his nights freezing in cardboard boxes in the parks and underneath bridges, and digging through trash bins for edible scraps - and he shivers when cold starts to seep in after sunset, his stomach rumbles from not having enough to eat for many days.

Wei Ying lost everything when he was tricked by older individuals of the same name, by gambling away his entire hut, his assets and his pouch of meagre life savings to a "lucky draw" of sorts. He was approached one fine day while having a bowl of spicy pork noodles in a streetside cafe, and was told by two unacquainted, but very excited Wei gege s that he was "the winner" of a grand prize of one hundred jars of Emperor Smiles, directly imported from Gusu, and not of the inferior Wangxian branded version. All he had to do was to hand over his money pouch and the land title for his hut to one of the Wei gege s "as a fully-refundable holding fee, which is a standard requirement for lucky draw winners according to the recently-enacted Kingdom Regulation 101 for Procedures Intended for Contests, Competitions and Games for Civilians who Become Instant Grand Prize Winners" (which is, for lack of a better word, plain bullshit), while the other gege brings a horse-cart full of alcohol for the deserving Wei Ying.

Wei Ying was overjoyed at his fortune, left his rational brain on the dining table, and happily gave away the requested items. Unsurprisingly, both Wei

An hour later, Wei Ying was left sobbing next to the empty bowl. The laoban of the cafe, also surnamed Wei, patted the young man's shoulder to (heartlessly) tell him that he's the latest victim of a scam. The syndicate is run by a Wei da ge clone who has amassed rich fortunes by luring many young, naive Wei Yings in a similar manner, and who easily fall prey to empty promises of tasty alcohol. At least Wei Ying was not charged for his meal, and the young man returned home soon after. He was turned away at the entrance of his hut when faced with five burly-looking, tattooed gege s in black suits occupying his home, each of them wearing dark glasses, and carry mean-looking bamboo flutes and magical swords. They seem to be assembling some high-tech equipment inside the hut, filling the living space with glass tubes, bottles and other (illicit drug-producing) paraphernalia. He was promptly kicked on the butt and evicted into the streets with only the clothes on his back as his belongings.

He'd lost everything - his WeiNet access, the sparse furniture and television, his pride and joy - the mobile phone he'd carelessly left at home before going out for the noodles - and everything else. His two hard-earned Lan Zhans are nowhere to be seen, but they're the last things in his mind - because they were pre-ordered and as already known by the masses, his order was mixed up; instead of receiving two teenage sexy Lan Zhans, he received two manly middle-aged ones; so he never really paid attention to them other than making sure they're cared and fed well until a Returns policy is announced from the company.

He wallows in pitiful sorrow as an unclean beggar on the streets, bumming from any generous Wei kinsmen who are willing to spare a silver piece or two, which is then spent on white bread and cheap wine. He'd knock on doors in residential areas, only to be chased away by broomsticks and mop handles by homeowners or their Lan Zhan servants - although few of these servants are kind enough to hand him well-hidden baskets of leftover cooked food, and a few bruised fruits that are still fit for consumption.

Finally, after many days on the road, he'd reached the slums which is mostly off-limits to government officials (because it's filthy, messy, prone to disease outbreaks and street violence, and full of poor undeserving people, according to the state media). The place is indeed as described, filled with haphazard rows of dark, closely-packed decrepit houses in various deteriorating conditions. There are no street lights, the windy streets are empty as they are pot-holed, rodents scurry everywhere from cracks in the walls to broken pipes, the stench of decaying rubbish fills the air, and he has no choice but to curl up on the dirt, beneath a barren, dead tree with a salvaged torn straw mat as his blanket for the night. He succumbs into a restless sleep, with dark bags under his eyes from fatigue and worry, blisters growing on his feet because he'd walk on bare feet after his shoes wore out, and his scrawny body trembles from the chill - his ribs are showing, and his cheekbones as well, due to his undernourished state.

As if some gods finally decided to answer his prayer, Wei Ying's Soulmate Binding Ring glows in the middle of the slums on that fateful night.

Wei Ying thought he'd died and gone to heaven, when his nostrils picked up the delicious, mouth-watering meaty scent of lotus root pork rib soup, and when he opens his mouth, a spoonful of the soup is placed to his lips, and he happily slurps up the hearty broth. He wakes up naked as a baby to see his two middle-aged Lan Zhans - the ones he wanted to return to the company -, now dressed in angelic white robes and no longer in the plain brown shirt and pants they used to wear, tending to his hunger and bodily needs in a windowless room painted with sterile white and upon an equally-white king-size mattress too.

Lan Zhan - it didn't matter which, because Wei Ying never gave a unique name to each individual, so they're both and either called Lan Zhan - brought more steaming hot food cooked to Perfection, from a variety of cuisines, and slowly fed the starving man, bite by bite, on the bed. Lan Zhan also helped to clean his nude body, by carefully wiping him down with a wet washcloth soaked in warm water from a wooden basin, and he - they - take turns to tell their side of the story.

There are several powerful Lan kinsmen who have taken up residence in the area - fugitives from the clutches of their masters and hiding from the government's all-seeing eyes in the god-forsaken slums, and together, they form a protective barrier around their fledgling oligarchy of Lan Wang Jis. The slums are in actual fact a deceptive front, because behind cracked walls, moldy buildings and garbage-strewn alleys, there is a well-organized and growing family of Lan kinsmen. They continue to recruit fleeing Lan kin, including strong warriors, deadly guqin-wielding assassins and gifted magic-users - which meant that as the days passed, the number of missing Lan Zhans increase; this further fuels the chaos that afflict Wei Yings in the Kingdom, who in turn, try to loot each other of the remaining dwindling numbers of available Lan Zhans. The disorderly situation helps the new Lan family's cause to someday topple the current government and bring down the much-maligned tyrannical mastermind behind it.

However, having too many Lan Zhans under the family's wings present another problem - the elite leaders have foreseen this issue and addressed it early on. Lan Zhans are inherently in love with, crave the touch of, and desire to own one or many Wei Yings; so they frequently scan their surroundings for Wei Yings who will be willing to join their cause, serve the army of Lan Zhans, or be imprisoned, inside their cage of possessive love. The Soulmate Binding Rings help to lead Lan Zhans to Wei Yings desperate for their love - such as this eighteen-year old Wei Ying's case - and such Wei Yings are easily persuaded at best, coerced at worse, into a lifetime of servitude for the sake of the Lan family's Perfect balance and happiness.

“Wei Ying, do you know what this means for you and your will?”

“Wei Ying, are you willing to accept such living conditions to be with us, forever?”

Wei Ying chomps and gulps on the food noisily, and he's not really paying any attention to what he's heard - because he's a dull-witted person especially when the food is paired with two jars of the much-prized Laozu Smiles. He hiccups, starts swaying unsteadily, his cheeks are flushed, and he grins widely.

“... mmmm... Does it mean I get to (hic)... eat good food like this, every day?”

“Mn.” Lan Zhan, who embraces him from behind and holds him steady while sitting on the bed, starts to rub soothing circles on a stomach that bulges from too much marvellously delicious food, and he's still being fed and fattened up, nibble by nibble. Wei Ying burps loudly, and he gets a sweet kiss on each cheek for a job well done in showing his satisfaction.

“... (hic)... Does it mean I get to sleep on (hic)... a comfortable bed like this, every night?” and he pat-pats the fluffy pillows and mattress.

“Mn.” the other Lan Zhan starts giving toe-curlingly good foot rubs with healing oils, balms and ointments, to massage away the aches and blisters from the soles, in between feeding grapes and berries to the moaning young man.

Wei Ying giggles in delight, and wholeheartedly agrees. “Yes, I do! I want to live with you and your family!” and starts flailing his arms drunkenly to decree his decision within the walls of the sterile prison room. The Soulmate Binding Ring on his fourth finger glows brightly, although it is a bit difficult to see in the blinding white environment, so nobody notices it.

The door opens, and ten or so Lan Zhans file into the room, all fully undressed and in various states of horniness and unsated sexual urges. They furiously stroke their dicks and lick their lips at the sight of a Perfectly naked and happy Wei Ying on the bed. The first robed Lan Zhan stacks up the emptied plates and cleans up the dining trays, before bowing respectfully to the new arrivals - his brethren - and leaves the room. The second robed Lan Zhan properly stretches Wei Ying’s ass with lubricating oils in front of the ten lusty men, and when he thinks Wei Ying is ready, he takes leave as well to wash off the fluids from his hands.

Wei Ying will be forced to enjoy being pummeled, spitroasted, double-penetrated and gangbanged and for many hours into the night - but he will probably not remember being filled in all orifices, drowning in thick hot seed, or having his belly bloated by too many gushes flooding into his ass, because of his drunken state. All Lan Zhans intend to keep this Wei Ying, and many other Wei Yings currently held in the underground prison complex, happily satiated for many days and weeks to come.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

"Gentlemen, as we start our descent, please make sure your seat backs are in their full upright position, and trays are returned to our cabin crew. Make sure your seat belt is securely fastened and all carry-on luggage is stowed at the back of the cockpit or in the overhead compartments."

The dulcet voice is clear and upbeat, with an Ernie-synth quality, and Wei Ying happily follows the instructions as though he's about to reach his holiday destination. He managed to find an ugly green button underneath the armrest to deactivate the parasitic ugly green condom, which switches off the massage function of his chair at the same time. Still panting but feeling extremely satisfied from having emptied his loins and rubbing away every last ounce of fatigue from his body, Wei Ying proceeds to raise his comfy chair, made sure Lan Zhan is secured to his breast, and he buckled up in anticipation for a rather turbulent, if not exciting entry into Wuji's airspace reminiscent of an 80's arcade games.

Explosions rocked their ship, plumes of fire and smoke-like bombs detonated on both sides, and deadly lightning-thunder combos roared everywhere. Ernie deftly maneuvered their disc-shaped vehicle, swerving wildly to avoid anti-aircraft missiles, lasers and terrible weather that ravaged the cloudy skies. A couple of projectiles smashed into them, but magically melted and flared out into mushrooming firestorms at the last moment, thus enveloping their screen with blinding-white luminescence for a few seconds. The impact sent ear-deafening shockwaves into the entire interior of the ship, rattling its occupants as well. Wei Ying raised his hands

(although not of the same purpose as Lan Zhan's) and shouts "YEEEEEEAAAHHHHH!!!!!" as he is tossed around like a ragdoll strapped onto his comfy seat. Lan Zhan starts chanting sutras silently to pray to Goddess Guan Yin for miracles; he had never ever experienced such violence in his life!

"Young Master Wei, please hang on tightly. We are under attack from clones of your older self, intentionally and unintentionally. However please rest assured, our Sirius shields will hold until we arrive at our destination," Ernie speaks calmly above the din, as if such aerial assaults are everyday occurrences.

"I have no idea what you're talking about... but YEEEEEEAAAHHHHH!!!!!" Wei Ying shrieks in laughter as he's nearly flung out of his chair by another explosion. Lan Zhan focuses on suckling, his mind has blanked out from shock and fear - literally.

Between black clouds and smouldering debris swept off by winds on their ship's screen, Wuji's shattered and fragmented landscape comes into view.

The continent of Wuji is in utter chaos, threatening to tear itself apart if nothing is done to save its land and its inhabitants. The vast expanse of the Kingdom is pockmarked and littered with swathes of bright and dark irregular shapes - consequences of Wei Yings playing God with Creation and Time spells -, hence an ultra-futuristic city of metal and concrete could be experiencing daylight, whilst its neighbouring district is transformed into a holiday island in the middle of the sea in the middle of the continent , swallowed in nighttime because some Wei elder decided to host a lavish seafood dinner at a private beach - and their borders crackle, sizzle and smoke with intense, corrupted, dark energies due to the unharmonious and unsynchronized existences.

Each patch of existence creates its own space-time bubble, and as they clash and try to overwhelm the other - because for example, one Wei elder wanted a bigger beach for his dinner party, while the other refuses to give in as he's on the verge of creating the biggest metropolis ever - the fabric of the Mortal Realm reality slowly rips, leaving depthless chasms not unlike Ernie's true form, and every object or matter that is unable to escape from being devoured by the spreading darkness - even light itself - disintegrates into nothingness. The map of Wuji on screen looks like a feral cat had pawed on it to sharpen its claws - there are plenty of dark streaks, and their numbers are increasing.

The dangerous discrepancies exist even within each space-time bubble, causing fully-automated and transformable towering skyscrapers-turned-giant-mecha to appear next to primitive cave-homes surrounded by lush meadows, adjacent to medieval-age stone fortresses populated by robots from the 31st century, floating atop a squadron of nuclear submarines firing their weapons to the surface, decimating armies of magical plate-armored servants riding on horses that throw fireballs and lightning strikes, with massive airplanes and space-age rockets flying overhead bombarding local supermarkets and offices on ground level - which are instantly re-created by the more powerful Wei elders anyway, so everything looks Perfectly fine the moment it is destroyed -, thus sending innocent Wei Yings and their Lan Zhans fleeing for their safety - they cannot die anyway, because all clones are granted Immortality after their originals have consumed the Heavenly Fruits from the Sacred Orchards, courtesy of the Jade Emperor and his wife; hence, every living person lives in a perpetual state of a 'Non-player character' of old console games, where they live briefly only to be shot down or incinerated, then they respawn shortly after the so-called 'death', and try to continue to live as normally as possible, as fugitives running away from the mindless destruction.

“... so you have nothing to worry about. Should your body be destroyed, it can be easily regenerated with Creation and Time spells. Your soul will remain intact due to the Immortality aspect, and you will be whole again in a short time,” Ernie explains, while banking sharply to the left to dodge a flying serpent that flew out from nowhere. Lan Zhan loses his hold and hangs on for his dear life by grabbing Wei Ying’s generous tufts of nipple hair. (bless the hair!)

“Do what you need to do, Ernie! But don’t ever create another Lan Zhan for me, because this one’s the only Lan Zhan that I will ever need!” Wei Ying shouts back, reaches into his undershirt, and cups his darling paperman back to his nipple.

The continent of Wuji is bigger than the Middle Kingdom, but it’s hard to say how big it has become due to the multiple distortions of space as provinces, districts, cities even neighbourhoods have expanded and contracted according to the whims of their landowners, the travellers are told. The entire island nation is a patchwork of ever-transforming landscapes, geographical features and man-made architecture, so it is difficult to pinpoint where they are exactly on the map - because it changes all the time from fickle-minded Wei elders trying to morph their surroundings to their desires. However, when Ernie estimated, through his superior artificial intelligence and machine learning capabilities (oh how they underestimated his capabilities), that they are about to arrive at Summer Berries District, Ernie advised Wei Ying to call his family to tell them that they’re close by, and that Wei da ge should open the front gates of his penthouse to let them in.

WeiNet is down, however Wei san ge 's amazing WPN (Wei Private Network - similar to VPNs of today) is still running. Wei Ying is able to connect to the family holed up at the top floor of their da ge 's home office suite, and have a decent exchange with some distortion from static and background explosions.

“ Er ge , you're amazing! How did you manage to break da ge 's seal? Nothing would have been able to go through it!” san ge 's voice crackle from the speakers on one of the control panels; Ernie is able to channel telepathic communications through the ship's on-board audio system.

“I have no idea! You'll have to ask Ernie! It's amazing! It can do all sorts of things that we've never thought of! We were at the front of the huge egg-shaped seal, and then everything turned noodly and stretchy and WHAM we got through and we're on the other side of it! It's amazing!” and Wei Ying YEEEEAAAHHHHs as another armed rocket strikes their horsecart-sized vehicle and he gets thrown in all directions.

“... noodly and stretchy..?” da ge 's disembodied voice is a bit muffled in the background. A cat meows irritably, and didi squeals somewhere in their house.

“Senior Master Wei, our vehicle is equipped with hyperspace capabilities. It exploits the weaknesses in space by reconfiguring particles at a subatomic level and by manipulating the resulting disruption of electromagnetic waves and the encompassing dark matter. A wormhole is temporarily created to allow a jump into Sector 4b of the Orion Constellation at 5 parsecs away, for 0.05 nanoseconds, and we jumped back in right across the barrier after tuning the frequency of the return travel at minus 0.012 degrees upspin of the current galaxy.”

Everyone on the other side of the call fell silent, save for the increasingly distraught mewls of a cat being tormented (or molested).

Ernie, there is no need to explain further.

Take us to the family.

We have work to do, and save the Kingdom.

There is an audible sigh of relief, because somehow, Lan Zhan’s wise words travelled through the Empathy spell, through Wei Ying’s swollen nipple, and through the WPN.

The (original) Patriarch has spoken, and all should be well for the Lan family.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Wei Ying opens his eyes into a world full of Lan Zhans. They crowd above him, around him, below him, moaning his name as they take their turns in pleasuring and taking pleasure out of his trembling body. His eyelids are crusty from streaks of drying cum on his face, coating his lips and dribbling down his jawline and neck. His mouth tastes of gummy seed and he reeks of Lan Zhan. Just as another penis is gently shoved down his throat, his fingers twitch instinctively and he starts stroking penises in his hands, then finds more pulsing cockmeat rubbing on his nipples, his abdomen, sliding between his toes, along the groove of his spine, matting his body hair into entangled stickiness in the armpits, the treasure trail down the waist and even on his shins, and another two ejaculations arch overhead and land onto his belly, pooling into his navel where another cock is gently humping into the crevice, with delicious Lan Zhan-flavoured grunts filling the air. Fingers touch, grope, knead and pinch his skin, leaving red marks all over his body; lips suck and teeth graze any remaining untouched skin, thus Wei Ying is fully smothered with Lan Zhans.

There is Lan Zhan everywhere outside and on the inside. He feels twenty twitches inside his well-stretched, inundated asshole, and at the eighteenth or nineteenth spasm, the second pole erupts into its own set of twenty twitches; right after the first cock slides out, another takes its place, fucking vigorously into a frothy tunnel filled with congealing semen until it too, orgasms spectacularly until the walls bulge and distend from fountains of warm cum - Wei Ying is fucked continuously for hours on end, and his belly is showing - ballooning out, heavy with heated virile milk that only the Lan Zhans can give.

Wei Ying does not know if he's facing up or down or lying on his side; his feet doesn't touch the ground as he's nestled in a cocoon of lusty writhing Lan Zhans, all vying to rub their genitals on and sow their seed in and on every available inch of his skin. Some Lan Zhans cast Ethereal, an advanced version of Invisible Hands, and their limbs and cocks soon turn translucent and penetrate into Wei Ying's body like ghostly phantoms. His insides are gently kneaded and squeezed, and he experiences mini-orgasms from having every gland, tube and organ associated with sexual sensations caressed and rolled, draining every last drop out of his body. Wei Ying loses his mind when he feels cocks erupting into his scrotum, swelling it with warm viscous liquid until his twin eggs are bathed and swimming in Little Wang Jis; the invasion does not stop there, as Lan Zhans fuck directly into his testicles and orgasm right at the middle of each delicate egg; Wei Ying imagines his babies are drowning as his eggs bloat to the point of bursting with surges of sperm-rich semen ejected into them. His prostate swells with Lan Zhan's seed, his bladder fills with a gooey mix of pee and Lan Zhan's cum, his urethra becomes coated with Lan Zhan's semen as volleys are injected in a reversed direction from cockslit to the base of the aching member. Wei Ying shudders deliriously and jerks wildly when countless waves of indescribable pleasure engulf his consciousness, his entire interior is vanquished and filled with Lan Zhan, and when he climaxes, he no longer knows if he's still Wei Ying, or Lan Zhan, because he inhales, swallows, shoots, screams, pees even expels Lan Zhan's essence and fluids - and Wei Ying finally yields to the fact that he is truly no longer himself.

Seven-year old Wei Ying, like all other first-generation Wei Yings, was born on one fine day from an unnamed cauldron of red bubbling liquid, with a pinch of salt, sugar, a dash of pepper and a whisk of dazzlingly awesome Creation magic added to the mix, in some unknown grey factory building within the sprawling industrial complex of Summer Berries District. He never really met his creator because he was just an individual from one of many batches mass-produced that day. He quickly learnt that the length and passing of days do not really mean anything when his elder siblings are capable of manipulating Time - so there's no such thing as birthdays or actual age differences. Everyone is created with about the same amount of ability, talent, intelligence and knowledge - therefore there are no real differentiating points other than physical looks and maturity in thinking.

Every Wei kin is equipped with a standard set of basic necessities to start out his (her or its) life - a WeiNet access, a filled money pouch, the right to own a house and a piece of land, an employment contract with the government, and other minor assets including coupons to redeem Lan Zhans either in store or by online ordering. Some prefer to stick to the main, bustling and heavily populated districts, some prefer quieter second or third-tier provinces, others take the bus in search of villages far, far away, and even a few decide to hitchhike their way to the furthest reaches of the continent and 'be with nature'.

Like many adolescent Wei kin, Wei Ying lost most of his possessions within the first month of life (which happened within the same day he was born, because someone looped the months over and over again) - he was either robbed, tricked, or gambled away everything, or simply by accident, left his belongings unattended on the ground and someone snatched them away using Invisible Hands. When WeiNet collapsed along with the uprising of protests and power-grabs by megalomaniac Wei elders, Wei Ying resigned from his government job as a coffee-making office boy because the bosses decided to fully automate everything (except the top management and certain departments that still require human intervention) to ensure people in the continent continue to survive despite their differing loyalties, and that basic political, economic and societal infrastructure remain intact throughout the Kingdom.

Having been made redundant by a shiny new coffee machine (which ingeniously serves pu'er tea as an additional option), Wei Ying joined the droves of fleeing Wei kin to the luxury apartments and mansions of Spring Berries District to the north. There, he sought refuge with other Wei children and joined street gangs (brats) to exact revenge on adults who once robbed him of everything - including his redeemed Lan Zhans, which are technically lost forever, because there's no way to trace them back. He became street savvy, and learnt about the harsher and seedier sides of life. Unfortunately his relatively comfortable life as a juvenile member of an organized crime syndicate was cut short when Lan Zhans, who formed their own families and tribes, kidnapped him and forced him to serve as a janitor without pay, and learn about housekeeping - or in nicer terms, the hospitality industry.

(He's fortunate that both Wei and Lan kins are not too keenly attracted to little boys who have not yet reached puberty, so little Wei Ying managed to keep his dignity protected from any sex predators prowling the streets.)

He'd spend days doing housework and running menial errands, including shopping for groceries at the local supermarket, buying sex toys for his brethren who are unable to sate their horniness when their masters are preoccupied, changing soiled bedsheets multiple times per hour, mopping away cum from the floor, scrubbing the bathtub while his masters engage in distasteful acts against his kin within the bathroom, cleaning chilli-blasted kitchens after hordes of brainwashed Wei adults spend hours trying to cook perfect meals for their owners in the classic case of ‘too many cooks spoil the (chilli) broth’. He secretly gloats when Wei da ge clones raid his prison to capture the Lans and free the Weis, although the opposite usually happens the next day - and so his ownership kept shuttling back and forth between the two families.

The hopeless situation is exacerbated by a sudden, noticeable shortage of Lans - to the extent that Lan Zhans become highly sought-after valuable commodities overnight, and due to uncontrolled and unregulated speculation, become a feared yet respectable form of currency for trade (think: bitcoins in the early days). Lan Zhans are nowadays a rarity in sight; the ones that remain in public either wage guerrilla warfare with the Wei kin and are therefore untouchable, or own impenetrable apartments, castles and countless armies and harems, and become an unshakable empire of their own. This triggered raids between greedy Wei elders who aren’t strong enough to capture new Lan Zhans and thus, resort to robbing their own kin. Wei Ying’s ownership would change hands between wizened Wei warriors and magicians frequently, because there’s always a need for someone to clean the floors and doesn’t demand Lan Zhans as payment. Fed up with the whole master-slave experience, little Wei Ying ran away one moonless night (someone decided to flick away the moon from the sky above Wuji, because he/she/it wanted to experience stargazing at its fullest), and headed straight for the mythical western Winter Berries District - the final frontier for all Wei Yings - to hopefully eke a better living.

Fortunately, Wei Ying is underaged, therefore, he did not need to pay Lan Zhans for admission into the biggest, baddest, meanest space-time bubble that continues to fester and swallow up more ground with each passing day. A group of extremely powerful Wei da ge clones rule most of the district with an iron fist, and all eligible Wei kin enjoy good if not perverted life and pleasures in the darkest underbelly of the Kingdom.

The cities in the district look like convoluted puzzles and patchworks of twisted amusement theme parks - each is colourful, distinctly different in architecture, form, function and Wei Ying-ness; sometimes dark, full of coffins and graveyards, spooky mannequins, paper dolls and haunted with horrors of the corrupted and the undead; yet sometimes filled with bright wonders, sprawling lush green vistas and lotus ponds with fluffy blue clouds as a suitable backdrop. Jarringly glaring and glitzy signages litter the streets and rooftops, and the dingy alleys that connect a web of poorly-maintained, haphazardly-constructed roads that are sometimes covered with cracks, piles of rotting rubbish, and smoke from nearby restaurants and open-burning of dumpsters. Sometimes, torn, grime-covered furniture and abandoned vehicles line the curbs, along with other oddities thrown out by its rich but wasteful inhabitants.

All cities thrive with illicit trade - everything can be bought and sold, including but not limited to unimaginably powerful magical items, spells, drugs, poisons and aphrodisiacs, services involving creating and taking of others' lives (temporarily - due to the inherent Immortality aspect), all sorts of pleasure and sexual services, Wei and Lan breeding and creation services, gender-change and body-transformation services, demonic feeding services, and so on, partly reminiscent of what Tian Mi Mi offered back in Yiling. The seedy streets are full of people who ply their products and talents for sale, both illegal and not, to earn Lan Zhans, or those who are rich enough to spend their Lan Zhans on stuff that only the elite of the most elite Wei kin can afford. It's not uncommon to see Wei kinsmen journey great distances with a cart full of Lan Zhans, pay off some to gain access to the district, and as they stroll along the streets and browse the shops, the cart becomes emptier over time until every last Lan Zhan is used up.

Wei Ying was again, fortunate enough to find a job after his second interview - he works in a cafe mainly to take orders for desserts, because little sweet boys like him tend to draw in more sales for high-quality (and very expensive) cakes, crepes, ice-creams, milkshakes, parfaits, and fruity yoghurt drinks. An adult Wei Ying takes care of payments, because his small body couldn't possibly carry one, let alone multiple Lan Zhans tied with Binding Spells and with magical seals to silence their cries for help. It helps that he's given a Wpad (short for Weipad, which is an alternative to the modern Ipad) so that he can quickly learn and provide adequate details about the cafe's products and services, the prices, and place and pick up orders digitally as needed. (There is no need for WeiNet in this part of the district - or anywhere else - because the masters of the space-time bubble have found alternative ways to channel their awesome mind-controlling and mind-reading abilities using radio waves, microwaves and other frequencies of energy waves; albeit rather short-distanced.)

"Sirs, thank you for your advanced order. Please follow this way," Wei Ying bows to a group of four Wei da ge clones who have decided to browse and select from a more discreet page of the cafe's menus. Wei Ying had worked for at least a few months (and his longest employment term yet!) in the establishment, so he knows the ins and outs of the business - although due to the time-loops, it's hardly just a couple of days since he'd been born. He expertly leads the customers to the upper floor and through a maze of long concrete tunnels (because space has been warped, so the entire floor above the cafe is actually a cavernous mountain filled with winding passageways, hidden junctions and walls, booby traps, monstrous denizens and other nasty things to keep out intruders and thieves), before finally arriving at a closed stone door with a bright neon green-lit sign glowing above that states "Available". Wei Ying swipes an ID card on a barely-visible slot, and the door slides open with a rumble.

"For the price of one adult dragonkin Lan Zhan, one teenage vampiric Lan Zhan, and two ordinary human adult Lan Zhans, you will purchase the right to this new arrival for one night - is that correct?" Wei Ying asks politely as he scrolls down the wpad and reads out the details of the agreed exchange; it's a standard script full of jargon he'd practiced over the last few weeks. He is more accustomed to counting gold and silver, rather than trying to value goods by bartering living bodies; however he's just merely following instructions, and when one of the da ge mmms in affirmation, Wei Ying happily taps a button on the screen to confirm the transaction. He's quickly learning that the more exotic or powerful the Lan Zhan, the more valuable he is--

“And for you, sweet didi , here's a small tip for being so efficient with our order,” one of the da ge places two gold ingots into the boy's hand. Wei Ying grins in thanks for the tip, and a bright “Enn!” - a beaming million dollar smile. The tip could net him a few lavish twenty-course dinners at the Kitchen of Prosperity in Yiling, or a few day's room rent in a dormitory in Spring Berries District, and in Winter Berries District where black market rates are prevalent, probably just a meal or two; however Wei Ying is always humble and grateful for receiving kindness from others, and he's working hard, saving hard, to make a decent living in the district where he now calls as home.

“Sorry we had to delay our arrival by a couple of hours, because the dragonkin Lan Zhan took a bit more time to be crafted, despite our best abilities and magical capabilities,” the da ge adds, and Wei Ying shakes his head to signal that there is no problem at all. Delays in customers picking up their advanced order is fine - lost time can always be rewinded back anyway.

“Wow! These wings are real! They're so... soft!”

“Amazing! There's absolutely no seed in here... and when is he due for his first time again?”

Wei Ying clears his throat (a very cute act for a seven-year old dressed in a stuffy child-sized waiter's uniform), and quickly scrolls up his wpad to retrieve the needed information. "Umm... according to the product description, this Angel Lan Zhan is freshly created after many days of casting complex Creation spells and modified with other corruptive and enhancing magic. So please peel off his egg membrane before fully utilizing his body," he peers closer, after realizing that he's not yet answered the question because he's just pronouncing the words as they appear on the screen like a schoolkid, "... umm... the wings are real.. The wingspan is... err... wait, it's here... Ah! Yes, you're correct. There is no seed because at nearly ten years old, he has been fully customized to start e-- eja-- ejacu... culate...ting in the next two to three days," Wei Ying stutters at a particularly difficult word that contains too many letters. He looks up at the customer, "Umm... does it make sense?"

The da ge ruffles the boy's head cutely and nods. Behind him, one man is peeling off the thin moist membrane as per instructed (and hungrily laps at the tender, supple youthful skin exposed by the now-disposable membrane), the other molests the limp ivory-white feathery wings in awe jutting out from the back of the boy who looks slightly older than Wei Ying, while the third one starts Etherealizing his head and hands to test their new purchase - he dips his face into the sleeping boy's crotch to suck on his prostate like a tasty hard candy (and finds only some prostatic and other bodily fluids, but no seed, of course), while his fingers glide through the body, penetrating into the scrotum, jiggling the balls to test their weight, and caress every organ and gland for a quick quality check. Angel Lan Zhan is still asleep on the bed in the sparsely furnished stone chamber, and hasn't actually been 'born' until he opens his eyes. This ten-year old Lan Zhan will wake up soon, and the first thing he will experience in his life will be pleasures of the flesh, or heaven-ascending orgasms through quadruple blowjobs, if the da ge s' plan succeeds.

Wei Ying shrugs - he's not that interested in what the customers do with the cafe's products. He proceeds to show the customer around the small chamber with an attached toilet and bathroom - just a bed, a television on the wall showing pornographic films, a bedside table containing the usual set of sex toys, lubricants, aphrodisiacs and other paraphrenalia complementary with the stay, a phone to call for room service, a desk lantern, and other standard amenities of a cheap, budget sex hotel room.

“Don’t worry, didi , we’ve prepared ourselves with plenty of spells and talismans to warp this space into a full replica of our ancestral home, the Lotus Pier, filled with good food, great wine and plenty of sex party goodies. We’ll manipulate the time so that we’ll be spending at least a week in here. My brothers can’t wait to taste the difference between before, and after, this Lan Zhan experiences his first climax,” he grins and gestures at the three other men who are starting to touch the sleeping boy very inappropriately. Lan Zhan nnnhs audibly at the beginnings of a triple blowjob (soon to be quadruple), slowly rousing to consciousness, and his wings twitch.

Wei Ying “ooohs” in vague understanding. The customer pats the boy’s back and starts nudging the latter out of the room - since their timer has activated and the four fully adult males have a full night (or a week, if what the da ge said is correct) of fun with their newest toy. “When it’s time for you to experience your first demonic feed, didi , you’ll understand what we mean. I can read your mind, and can tell that you’re just a couple of days old - so when you hit your first week in life, you’ll start to thirst for Lan Zhans like the rest of us.”

Wei Ying “Enns” softly, again looking like he’s not getting the bottom line of the conversation. “Work hard, didi , quickly earn enough and buy your first Lan Zhan soon! If you need tips on buying the right spells, tools and techniques for crafting better, more unusual Lan Zhans, call me - I’ll give you a discount for consultation!” the da ge gleefully says before closing the door, and another two gold ingots pop into his hands out of thin air.

Wei Ying sighs - he's met plenty of Wei elders who boast superior intellect and knowledge, and every one of them always treat him like a naive little kid - which is fine, if it nets him more gold ingots and hopefully, someday, he'll find a sugar daddy (or brother) to attach to. Wei Ying quickly leaves the tunnels, out of range of the da ge s, before lifting his Mind Shield that had been protecting his thoughts and filtering out only selected lines of inner monologues. He pockets all four gold ingots into his sleeve pockets.

The sign atop the closed stone door changed to a neon-red "Occupied".

Just as Wei Ying reached the exit of the upper floor of the cafe, his wpad 'pings!' with a WeiChat (a copycat of WeChat app) message from the owner. One of the nearby chambers is due for check-out in an hour's time, and the room is still displayed as "Occupied" in the system. Wei Ying hurries back into the web of cavernous mazes following the map displayed on his Weiz app (a copycat of Waze with added functionalities of Google Maps from the modern era).

He arrives with just half an hour left on the clock. He takes a deep breath, puts up his Mind Shield, and knocks on the stone door. "Umm..." he glances at the wpad and realizes the gender of his customers, "Jie jie s (elder sisters), I'm sorry to interrupt, but there's half an hour left before check-out time. If you need an exten--"

The door rumbles open without notice, and little Wei Ying jumped back at the sight before him.

The door opens into a sweeping panorama of clear blue skies, hilltop meadows, bubbling brooks, and a wooden cottage in the center that looks rather lived-in (there's plenty of laundry hanging by the side, smoke rising from its chimney, and there is a thriving vegetable garden in its courtyard along with a barbeque pit with roasted meat, and a pot of bubbling stew). There are eight beautiful and sexy Wei jiejie s aged from their mid-teens to their mid-thirties, all in late stages of pregnancy, and fully naked. Wei Ying spends as much time staring at their milk jugs (because they're heavily swollen with milk) as the carnal acts of the jiejie s pampering, surrounding and riding a single, fattened-up Lan Zhan in the middle of the courtyard on a picnic straw mat soaked with cum and probably other bodily fluids.

Each of the fertile female Wei Yings take their turn to let their chosen mate enjoy the pleasures of their flesh - of all fecund ages and of all stages in pregnancy -, and the sisters work hard to keep their hard-earned Lan Zhan extremely satisfied. While one rides him and performs her routine Kegels exercise with the partner's wildly twitching penis deep inside her, the others jiejie s kiss, touch and coax their patriarch to continue fathering offsprings inside them, despite all of them already have bulging bellies. The lucky man responds by shivering and ngaahnnggh-ing and unh-unh-unh-ing with drool rolling off his lips (because he's already lost the ability to think and talk rationally since many months ago) and gets mouthfuls of breastmilk, plump puffy nipples, and twitching pregnant tummies to rub and play with; while his genitals and balls are caressed, excited and stimulated to continue providing his thick essence as often as possible - and he excitedly shoots a record-breaking forty-twitches into tight hot pregnant love tunnels that seem to take turns in welcoming the erupting and overworked angry-purple penis with fluttering, massaging grasping juicy walls.

He seems well to do, having lost the classic six abs which have combined into a rather pregnant flabby belly of his own - in this paradise with a harem of eight, he does not need to cultivate, exercise or do any housework; his task is to breed the females and let the females take care of him. They feed him constantly with good food to match his taste buds (Gusu Lan cuisine, if necessary) so that he has enough energy to pump out seed for eight lustful females; they even shave him and kept his hair trimmed, cleaned him multiple times a day and essentially turned him into their imagined lazy, slothful sex demigod worthy of their worship and service.

The oldest of the jiejie s sports the biggest belly of them all - probably carrying twins, triplets or more -, and she's sweaty and her thighs tremble with unsated lust as she approaches him. Wei Ying had met her the day before when the group checked-in. She calmly explains that they had spent nearly nine months in warped time having non-stop sexual intercourse and play sexy harem games with their chosen mate, all day and night, and needed just a couple more weeks before they can give birth to healthy little babies - the fruits of their labour and love. Wei Ying knows, and has seen, that his female kin are although rare among the Wei species, they are the most fortunate if they can cope and handle the sexual discrimination (during this age and time, women are disadvantaged in many fronts, including lack of political influence, economic power and social standing - this includes the Kingdom and its subjects as well).

At least within the sex industry that thrives in the underbelly of Winter Berries District, females can walk in any time, choose an ordinary Lan Zhan and bed with him at no cost (the purchase of time spent with any exotic Lan Zhans will be chargeable though) - as long as she signs an agreement to sell back some of the fruits of her harvest to the provider. Wei Ying scrolls down his wpad and notes that the group of eight had checked-in the day before, and signed an agreement to sell back two babies - which could be a Wei Ying, a Lan Zhan or if they strike gold, a whole new combination or hybrid of the two. Wei Yings will be aged and put to slave work, Lan Zhans will be put on the shelf as another product for sale to generate income, and hybrids will be presented to the masters of the district to earn special favours. Naturally born babies are very special in the Wei society - they are generally healthier, smarter and stronger, and come with amazing, unexpected gifts, features and talents. It's a win-win situation for the females and the cafe owner - the cafe owner increases his staff headcount or inventory for free, and the females can technically duplicate or multiply their babies for whatever reason, and live better lives in the future.

“ Didi , can you ask the owner to extend our check-out time by two hours, and I will sell an additional baby in return?” jiejie asks. Wei Ying “Enn!”s and taps the question via WeiChat to his boss. A moment later, the reply came back with a ‘ping!’, and he reports a positive response. The grateful jiejie places a kiss on Wei Ying’s forehead, and slides two gold ingots into his undershirt as a token of thanks.

(Fortunately he’s not old enough to feel attracted to nubile young females in the nude.)

As Wei Ying closes the stone door, he catches the sight of eight happy sisters cheering for their added time with their man - potentially stretchable into many more months in their little bubble of time-warped paradise - and they continue to make sweet endless love with their chosen Lan Zhan, who has long short-circuited and continues to mindlessly indulge his harem’s unslakable thirst for orgasms and more mind-blowing pleasures; surely, some of them will give birth and take the opportunity to be impregnated again, before their time in the chamber is up.

The sign above the stone door remains as “Occupied”.

The mastermind and the original Wei da ge shifts his supreme mental scanning powers from sector to sector, district to district, province to province and a quick sweep along the edges of the continent, then projects his visions into everyone's minds inside the penthouse. With WeiNet gone offline, he could only capture snapshots and short video clips (or animated gifs) plus a few lingering emotions and feelings from the subjects being filmed - but it's enough for the residents of the last stand of the Wei gongzi s to get a glimpse and a general understanding of what has been going on in their Kingdom for the past few days/weeks/months of their time-warped reality.

Having finished the draining and exhausting exercise, Wei da ge stumbles to the back, and he is tenderly caught by his harem, who let him lie on the sofa, fan him, and serve him ice cold lemon tea. He murmurs repeatedly in a daze, astonished and shocked at what he'd seen and felt from his creations, "They're really going to crush me... they want to kill me... They hate me... oh Goddess Guan Yin, how can this be..."

Wei san ge is obviously too stimulated by the generous amounts of uncensored sex scenes that pervade his mind, and has gone ahead to lock himself in his bedroom, where he climbs on tens of Lan Zhans within his harem to, bluntly put, fuck himself silly until his hole becomes thoroughly abused and loosened; his clones will have little or no chance with the Lan Zhans this time. WPN goes temporarily offline - which is fine, because they'd seen enough, and they're all safely huddled together in da ge 's awesome home office suite protected by very awesome magic.

Wei didi remains blissfully unaware of the implications of the impending doom of their Kingdom, and loses interest midway of the screening; he plays “Kiss Kiss Fall In Love” with his sole Perfect Lan Zhan while stroking calico cats’ tails when they’re (mentally ordered to) walk past him.

Wei er ge , the lovely Wei Ying who bravely piloted - with Ernie’s auto-landing and parking capabilities - their UFO vehicle straight onto a shielded helipad at the topmost part of the spiral skyscraper, had barely touched down and greeted his brothers (although in actual fact, they’ve only separated for less than a day in real-time) when the show started, because Wei da ge is anxious to learn what his Yiling-side brother and their paperman-ized patriarch thought about the situation.

Wei Ying stands in silence, still trying to digest what he’d seen through glazed eyes. He had been preoccupied with concerns on how to locate and retrieve Lan Zhan’s real body, however there are bigger worries to take care of - saving their shattering and splintering Kingdom that they’d work so hard on - and he doesn’t even know where to start - because all he knows is to play the flute, summon vengeful spirits, street peddling with his A.S.S., making plum sauce, shooting with bows and arrows, and hunting jungle fowls.

Ernie, lend me your wisdom.

How can I begin to understand what needs to be done?

What options do we have to save this Kingdom?

Ernie, give me strength.

How can I protect and save the ones I love, and the land that they call home?

Notes for the Chapter:

I'm kinda feeling numb at realizing that with the Special Edition having completed its course, there's really nothing left for The Untamed *cries* It's really the end. It feels like Nanjing Concert all over again... sob sob sob...

And the lack of new materials from the series, or anything from Zhan Ge and Yibo didi due to the ongoing virus epidemic, is a bit disconcerting for me. I've been scrolling through re-posts of old pics and video clips... sigh. Looks like it's a bit of a downtime, and I might as well focus more on work than the wonderful universe of The Untamed / MDZS / Xiao Zhan / Wang Yibo / bjyx :-D p.s.: added a bit more icky descriptions about the cities, and the lucky LZ's life in paradise.

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 60

Sixteen-year old Lan Zhan has been on the run for several weeks. His biography is modest and short, yet as exciting as a handwritten diary from a refugee of war. He was born, like countless others, from the depths of Ernie's pits in the 'Mounds, and shipped off to the Kingdom within the first hour after climbing out of the infamous Trapdoor. He had never met his creator, as he was immediately blindfolded, tied up with ropes over his limbs and mouth, sealed with magic and cellophane tapes, packed into convenient recyclable cardboard cartons, and delivered by Wangxian-branded long haul trucks, then by Wangxian Postbirds to his new owner. He comes naked as a baby, with a Thank-You card hung around his neck, and a small money pouch tied to his waist with a thin string "in case additional funds are required for him to function properly due to unexpected circumstances" (which is a standard disclaimer and added insurance from the company after several Lan Zhans were reported stranded when their delivery truck suffered a flat tyre in the middle of nowhere in the continent of Wuji).

As with any first generations, which are individuals created as a first copy from source - whether from a Wei Wuxian or Lan Wang Ji - he is plain and ordinary, with tiny modifications from the original 'parent'; in his case, the only difference he has compared to the current, real Lan Wang Ji, is that he is de-aged to a teenager and possesses minute enhancements during the manufacturing process (Ernie practised continuous machine learning with each new Lan Zhan created, and constantly adds or edits genetic, supernatural and magical data into its latest creations; it does not matter whether the improvements facilitates the production or upgrades the end product's quality - as long as there are slight differences from one individual to another - this is vastly different from the mass-production concept that is practised for most Wei Yings under the mastermind da ge 's supervision).

Instead of spending time caring for his new owner, Lan Zhan was as disappointed by his owner - an adult Wei Ying in his twenties - because as already known by the general populace, he was delivered by mistake and didn't meet the owner's specific requests nor have the desired add-ons (this Wei Ying pre-ordered a twentysomething ultra-rare female Lan Wang Ji with ample breasts and plenty of curves on the hips - so receiving a tightly muscled slender male teenager was a heartbreaking moment when he opened the box). His owner didn't really fight for him when the next door neighbour, a sweaty, bearded and greedy hairy Wei Ying in his late forties, marched over and grabbed his wrists while grunting, "He's mine!" - partly because the neighbour looked extremely intimidating, and had already killed his owner twice with falling nuclear armaments (and respawned shortly after, along with re-constructing their entire residential block within a few minutes).

Lan Zhan would experience extreme trauma in the next few days, as rumours about the sudden dip in Lan kin population spread like wildfire, and he would be grabbed on the wrist by many older, more powerful Wei Yings desperate to add him into their harems, collections, or turned into currency for the black market. He would be raped against his will, usually pinned to the ground by one or more hungry lustful Wei Yings - in human or demonic forms - until he found difficulty to go to the toilet or even walk a straight line after being bedded, or forced to bed with countless owners for many months that are warped into mere hours and days - however, fortunately he is young and youthful, so his body is accomodating, elastic (for lack of a better word), and remained tight and supple.

His break came when a Hydrogen bomb fell through the roof of a mountaintop fortress where he was held captive in a dungeon (and forced to stick his dick into quivering rosebuds and engage in depraved copulation acts with a variety of ravenous Wei Yings while being trapped in a tight cage, despite having nothing left to offer besides oozing seedless fluids). Everyone was killed, including him, and when he re-spawned, he found that his Soulmate Binding Ring was temporarily deactivated - because his master at that time and all his downline progeny and clones were wiped out simultaneously inside that fortress. He was one of the earlier individuals to be resurrected, and he quickly escaped to the surrounding forests, and made his way to the mythical sanctuary of all surviving Lan Wang Jis - the foreboding-looking southside Autumn Berries District.

Unbeknownst to Wei kin, the Lan kin had earlier on established a rudimentary and primitive BBS (bulletin board system) with their very limited, budding telepathic abilities, still in its infancy (in contrast to Wei Yings' superior capabilities which came crashing down spectacularly when WeiNet went offline). The shared forum was initially used to say "Hello" and introduce themselves to a wider community of Lan Zhans, and they shared recipes, tricks to organize clutter in the house (those who had watched Marie Kondo's videos with their Wei Yings were happy to spread the useful news), techniques for removing stubborn stains from clothes and bedsheets, posting videos of themselves swatting cockroaches, grasshoppers, squirrels and other pests (which garner plenty of 'likes'), posting fanfics and fanarts of fictional but desirable imagined Perfect lives (written or drawn by those who had been forsaken by their owners due to Wangxian's massive logistical nightmares of delivering the wrong Lan Zhans) and other humdrum, routine pieces of general knowledge and entertainment. However, in a short span of time, the membership rose to the tune of tens of thousands, and the BBS evolved into complex, wide-spread but still very primitive network among Lan Zhans - fondly known by its secret name and whispered only among Lan kin: the LanWeb.

The LanWeb works like modern-day bittorrent or peer-to-peer network, hidden beneath multiple deep layers of security and obscurity, similar to darknets. Where WeiNet crashed when it became overloaded and its central main server (the mastermind da ge ) lost control over everything; LanWeb is decentralized and continues to survive and function as long as Lan Zhans are still around, each contributing small amounts of bandwidth and resources to keep it running.

The teenager Lan Zhan is a little more savvy in using LanWeb compared to his stronger but more old-fashioned kin, and while browsing through LanWeb's forum posts of Lan elders seeking brotherly friendships to conduct joint raids at Wei territories, hyperlinks to latest wikis about Wei kin (the Lan kin are vastly more organized in collecting information, analyzing, sharing knowledge and disseminating useful and strategic advice in coping, managing and even controlling their Wei spouses, slaves and masters), encyclopedias of spells, local flora and fauna and geographic features of the continent, systematic lists of the latest viral rumours and screengrab leaks from all over the continent, daily motivational reminders such as 'Quote Of The Day' using extracts from Gusu Lan's over-4000 rules, and other very informative content, Lan Zhan found help from an unacquainted Lan kin located down the next street, trying to crowdfund a truck transport to the Autumn Berries District. Lan kin are generally very kind to each other (as opposed to Wei kin being cannibalistic in some sense), and soon, with a mere silver piece from his pouch, he was safely taken to a new haven.

Living and working in the deep underground complex of the so-called "second" Lan Residence is a godsend for the sixteen-year old. There, he made many xiongli friends, learnt and quickly settled into rituals, culture and routines set by the governing elites (which is pretty much how the politics, economies and social structures work in the Cloud Recesses). People do not speak much, but they help one another; there is admirable efficiency and precision in getting things done - such as a military camp -, albeit using rather plain, ordinary and old-fashioned manners, sometimes (such as the much-celebrated practice of sweeping one's floor with a straw broom at every dawn). He was given adequate housing and meals, and a temporary ID called "5201", which sets his place in the complex web of Lan society, and raises his sense of purpose in this attractively Perfect universe of the burgeoning Residence (when compared to the senseless fighting, killing and violence taking place in the outside world). He'd participate in orderly raids to liberate more Lan kin, induct newcomers into the family and become a senior Lan member himself, picked up new skills and spells from other more gifted individuals, and charted bright new paths for his life as a successful Lan disciple climbing up the multi-generational ladder of Lan hierarchy and seniority - until one fateful day.

It was a chance encounter of swords fending off flying arrows, during one particular fierce battle between a Lan da ge and a Wei da ge and their troops in the slums close to Autumn Berries District, when sixteen-year old Lan Zhan caught sight of a handsome, heroic and feisty fifteen-year old Wei Ying - and an arrow went through his heart like Cupid's shot, except that the arrow actually missed the beating organ and struck the ribcage at an off-angle. He collapsed from the pain and tried to pull out the arrow from his bloodied chest, while Wei Ying approached him and then kicked him angrily with his boots, shouting "Die! Die faster! You better die now!"

"Wei Ying... why do you want me to die?" he asked in agony and wonder, although his face remained impassive.

"So that I can earn my meal! If I don't kill one of you, I won't have anything to eat tonight!" the reckless and bratty Wei Ying shouts back angrily, before a squadron of Lan Zhans on flying swords swarm overhead, and he runs away while cursing his bad luck.

The next time they met was somewhere closer to the westside Wei-stronghold Winter Berries District. The Lan kin managed to secure an apartment block, and Lan Zhan was in the process of ordering the prisoners to line up when that particularly memorable Wei Ying appeared and shot a poisoned dart at him. Lan Zhan left his squad without permission - and therefore liable to be punished later by kneeling in front of his captain's quarters that night with a whipping stick - and chased after that troublesome younger man.

Lan Zhan caught Wei Ying's wrist when they were alone in a deserted, dark alley, and pulled him close. Their eyes locked into each other, their breaths become thick from exertion and strangely, a deep sense of anticipation, and their faces were very close - which is unusual for a captor and his captive prisoner. Lan Zhan was inexplicably drawn to this Wei Ying - he found every aspect of his physique to be attractive, and lovely Wei Ying's eyes seem to sparkle and glow in the dim light and his heart started to race - probably due to the chase, or the poison running in his veins, or something else.

Wei Ying was the first to break the spellbinding moment, and snarls, "Why won't you die! I never let my prey get away... until now! The poison should knock you out soon, and I will finally have a good dinner!" Wei Ying stares furiously at the prick of blood on Lan Zhan's clothed chest (the dart had fallen off during the chase), and starts to pull down his pants with his other free hand. Lan Zhan's eyes widened at the shameless and unexpected act - but kept his tight grip on Wei Ying's wrist.

"I'm undressing! Look at you... you're stunned by my beauty! So you better get horny, and the poison will flow faster through your bloodstream!" Wei Ying grunts haughtily (and like an idiot, reveals his plan out into the open) as he kicks away his pants and loincloth, and starts stroking his half-erect dick - in front of his captor. Lan Zhan is far more experienced with matters of the heart, love and sex, and he is secretly amused at Wei Ying's childish response.

Lan Zhan used his golden core and a few spells he'd learnt from his seniors about metabolically flushing out sexual poisons discreetly, and soon, the poison harmlessly cleared from his system. Rather than scoffing at the younger man's defeat, Lan Zhan uses his free hand and closes his palm around Wei Ying's stroking hand. Wei Ying squeaks in surprise - and soon, horror - as he watches how Lan Zhan maneuvers his (Wei Ying's) hands to form the Perfect masturbation grip, with the Perfect jacking speed and angle (because all Lan Zhans retain the knowledge and techniques of pleasuring Wei Ying from their source Lan patriarch back in the 'Mounds) - and lovely Wei Ying soon melts into a puddle of moans, trembling thighs and jerking hips.

Wei Ying orgasms spectacularly and ejaculates a healthy dose of seed onto Lan Zhan's pants, and he falls into a boneless heap - caught by an increasingly enraptured Lan Zhan (reminiscent of the many times Lan Zhan catches Wei Ying in his hands in their ancestral homelands, not too long ago). Lan Zhan knows he has broken a taboo, and one of his family's rules - he had fallen in love, at first sight, with the so-called 'enemy'. He leaves plenty of sweet kisses on Wei Ying's cheeks, because deep inside, his ancestral genes tell him that Wei Ying has always been, and will always be, the one and only for him. He smiles - a rare expression on his face - when his Soulmate Binding Ring glows, and so does Wei Ying's.

Lan Zhan had to leave Wei Ying to regroup with his squad to help the rescued prisoners. However, he leaves a tiffin carrier containing spicy congee, stir-fry garden vegetables and fried tofu dipped with plum sauce, and a hearty serving of lotus root pork rib soup made to Perfection (he had cooked and cast a Preserve spell on the food, and carried it in a standard military-issued Wangxian Bag of Holding whenever he went out to the field, with the hopes that he would meet his destined Wei Ying - which he did).

Wei Ying would stagger out of the alley later, carrying the ‘spoils of his war’ - the tiffin carrier - at least he has something to brag about when he returns to his kin - with his pants on but his loincloth missing. Later that evening, when Wei Ying finally has the chance to sample the food, his eyes tear up when he reads a hand-written note tied to the carrier, in which Lan Zhan writes a beautiful poem about a Rabbit missing the Moon in a romantic setting full of peach blossoms, and that he hopes Wei Ying eats well with the food he’s cooked, because his heart breaks at the thought of Wei Ying going hungry for the night, and that if Fate is merciful and lets them be together, he promises to cook Wei Ying’s favourite dishes and care for him, everyday, in this lifetime - and many others, if allowed by the heavens.

When Wei Ying takes a sip of the soup and a bite of Perfectly softened lotus root and heart-warmingly delicious stewed spare ribs, Wei Ying cried. It’s just as he remembered from his past lives - it is exactly the same as shijie ’s soup.

The third time they met was a chaotic rendezvous at the lakeside near the heart of the Winter Berries District. A particularly nasty Wei da ge had taken up residence and built a huge but twisted replica of Lotus Pier as his mini-Kingdom of sorts. The battle for survival became increasingly desperate, as both sides continue to pummel each other with incredible modern weaponry and many soldiers lived and died (and re-spawned) with no end in sight.

Lan Zhan instinctively leapt for Wei Ying when a group of ten armed Lan kin pursued the screaming young man. Lan Zhan struck wildly and knocked the heads of his clansmen, threw exceptionally graceful kicks and punches and slammed the hilt of his Bichen-copy to sweep everyone else off their feet, while a fiery explosion roared in the background from raging firestorms and toppling buildings - just like an awesome stunt filmed in Hollywood (in another place, another time) - and he managed to push both of them onto a wooden boat floating by right at the Perfect moment, just as the pier burns down and shatters into ashes from a man-made Meteor spell.

Lan Zhan cradles a shaken, wounded Wei Ying in his arms in the wobbly boat, and his Lan kinsmen crowd at the battered but still stable edge of the lake.

“Xiongdi ! You’ve hurt your brothers and now you have an enemy in your hands?! Are you trying to leave us? What you’re doing is wrong!”

“Come back, shixiong ! If you hand that Wei kin to us and obediently return to our hideout, you will be rewarded with promotions and even slaves! It’s better to stick with your family! My brothers and I will forgive you for hitting our heads!”

“Where are you going, shidi ? The lake flows out into a river and away from this district! If you leave us - your dear family and your safety net -, you will be on your own! You will be expelled from the clan! Please think carefully and rationally about what you’re about to do!”

Lan Zhan has never been clearer in his decision and judgement. He tightens his grip on his Wei Ying, as they float further and further away, into a sea of lotus flowers and watery plants.

“My... Lan brothers! A lifetime ago, I had asked myself - what is black and what is white? How different are Wei Ying’s actions compared to ours? We’ve been fighting, killing and trying to enslave each other all this time, and we refuse to see the world from the eyes of the other side,” he shouts above the fires and plumes of smoke surrounding the ruined pier. Wei Ying fought because he was forced to; he was hungry and desperate. Lan Zhan fought because he was led to believe that Wei Ying was an enemy. There is no inherent evilness in their actions.

It seemed a cruel twist of Fate, that Lan Zhans and Wei Yings are meant to meet in every lifetime, clash with their ideals, and at the height of their conflict - each is bewitched by the other’s beauty, kindness and sincerity, and elope away from their kin.

“Lan shidi , you’re wrong. Listen to your elders! You cannot--”

“Why is it wrong for me to befriend or even fall in love with Wei Ying? Why is it wrong that my Soulmate Binding Ring connects our hearts? Why is it wrong that I, my own Lan Wang Ji, have finally found my destined partner, this Wei Wuxian?!”

The use of their kins’ full courtesy names silenced the Lan soldiers at the lakeside. Some start to shake their heads, acknowledging the lost cause (or perhaps, the fortune that everyone envies) of their brethren.

Lan Zhan accompanies Wei Ying on the wooden boat, drifting to wherever the flow of water takes them - through a lotus farm, towards a river that leads to the next district - a swathe of undeveloped and uninhabited wilderness, forests and hills. They would travel into the night, snacking on plucked lotus pods - Lan Zhan would pick out the seeds, peel the skin and gently feed them one by one to his newfound love cradled in his arms, after being healed by Lan Zhan's bright blue-tinged Healer spells. They would then confess their feelings for each other in the boat, witnessed by blooming lotus flowers, and kiss under the moonlight fringed with beautiful silver-lined clouds, accompanied by the sounds of crickets, frogs and other singing denizens in the lake. Lan Zhan would hum their favourite tune, and Wei Ying joins in - because Wangxian is ingrained into their deepest ancestral memories and naturally surfaces when their feelings and hearts are connected - before they undress - and Lan Zhan shows Wei Ying the loincloth he'd kept from their second encounter, and Wei Ying would giggle from the uncharacteristic mischievous act and kiss Lan Zhan - when finally they're both naked, they would make-out for long, long while, caressing and whispering at each other with words full of love and tenderness, before joining their bodies again and again, as their boat drifts out to the river and into daybreak.

Sixteen-year old Lan Zhan has been on the run for several weeks, and he's found his true love. His biography is modest and short, and there are still many pages to write about.

It is said that the cycle of history - and more broadly, life - repeats itself like a routine. The new couple will probably live in the wild, far away from civilization and from their begrudging kin or in-laws, find a cave-home to settle in, and start their blissfully wedded life together.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Paperman Lan Zhan realizes the gravity of the situation, when a disembodied Ernie, who now exists as a voice in everyone's heads and no longer manifest in the physical world, not even a tentacle - as Ernie lays out the options, the strategies for each, and how it can enable Lan Zhan to accomplish the steps required to achieve the intended goals.

It's not so much of the despair of a shattering continent disintegrating into nothingness, of angry Wei Yings rebelling against their own kin and their creator, of dissatisfied Lan Zhans carving out their own existences and waging wars against Wei Yings, of not knowing where his actual real body is, or of society going insanely out of control with people multiplying like rabbits into superpowered beings and monsters, then creating pockets of Hell with extremely disturbing acts and rules of their own - no, it's much worse than that.

Ernie tells Lan Zhan what it can do, and Lan Zhan distantly remembered a vague memory of ascending into Heaven shortly after a solar eclipse and watching, just very briefly, of a cold black thing devouring galaxies (and he doesn't even know what those are, since astronomy is still at its infancy at this day and age). It's incredibly mind-boggling, but it does make sense, if he considers how much Ernie has grown and matured, and now - how big of a cold black thing it had become.

Ernie gives Lan Zhan the power to decide what will happen next, and Ernie wants Lan Zhan to play God .

Notes for the Chapter:

I made tiny edits to the previous chapter to spice things up a little! So now, I'm kinda in a rut - what will happen next? :-D

Chapter 61

It feels rather bizarre, through Lan Zhan's upgraded mental capabilities and senses, to stick on lovely Wei Ying's left nipple and continue suckling slivers of golden core energy (Wei Ying had bared his chest to show his brothers, by pulling his robes off the upper body until they hang by his belt, leaving him naked from the waist up), to see the world through Wei Ying's eyes, and his Empathic speech is projected through Wei Ying's mind, which is in turn connected to the family's WPN, and plausibly, his voicebox as well; in some twisted way, Lan Zhan has become a symbiote at best, a parasite at worst, living with his host. He tried wiggling his fingers - the paperman had none, but Wei Ying's digits twitched with precise movements. He is able to project himself through Wei Ying, and Wei Ying remains functioning independently. Wei Ying responds by balling his fingers into a fist, and Lan Zhan feels it, but of course, his paperman cannot physically do the same.

When Ernie tells everyone in the penthouse that Lan Zhan can decide what to do, or what he wishes to happen, and that Ernie will carry out his wishes like a good child (just as its namesake) - Lan Zhan, through the mind voice of lovely Wei Ying, asks the key question, what do you mean?

Ernie simply replies; its high-pitched synthetic voice grates on everyone's nerves, "Grand Patriarch Lan, you can be the God of this world. You may do as you please, and Ernie will make it happen."

Lan Zhan knows that raising his hand will not help, and feigning ignorance has brought him trouble so far. He clears his throat with a pretentious-sounding "a-hem", which catches all Wei gongzi's attention - audibly and via the WPN (which miraculously came back on-line, although rather spotty, which meant Wei san ge - the whiz kid who operates as a mini portable wi-fi since his elder's broke - is tuning in).

Ér . Nǚ .

Lan Zhan is spot on in guessing that Ernie is a derivative of a Wei Ying, and therefore will behave partly if not wholly, as one. The power of words - just by calling its name in two syllables pronounced with a growl-like warning - will force it to show its colours and intentions, since it is addressed with absolute clarity.

Ernie falls silent for a few seconds, no doubt crunching some numbers to plot its next move.

“By now, Grand Patriarch Lan should know that Ernie is bigger than the underground caverns beneath the 'Mounds, reaches beyond Yiling's borders, even the continent of Wuji halfway across the globe,” Ernie's opening lines are mind-boggling to the (ancient Middle Kingdom) man who still thought the Earth was flat, before he got on a UFO ride just an hour before, “Ernie continues to manifest and proliferate the entire Mortal and God Realms, particularly since Ernie holds the position of Wangxian's sales provider to the latter.”

So far, it makes sense.

“Ernie has analyzed and reverse-engineered the Realms, its features and its inhabitants. Ernie can turn any Mortal into a God, and any God into a Mortal. By the Three Orders that lay the foundation of Ernie's sentience and consciousness - never to hurt the family, never to disobey, and to protect oneself - Ernie has concluded that by gifting Godhood to you, you may act as you wish, and achieve your intended goal. You will not hurt the family, there is no disobedience, and all of us, including Ernie, will be protected under your grace."

The sensible-ness starts to reek of the flamboyance and ridiculousness of Wei Ying-ness, and Lan Zhan could sniff it out from miles away, given his experience in dealing with his spouses (especially the eldest). A brief flash of imagery - the one of a cold black thing gobbling up galaxies - which is too brief and too vague to be captured or understood by anyone peering into his mind - reminds Lan Zhan that even this thing that lived under the trapdoor, under the floor mat, is capable of hiding and twisting certain facts and intentions. To whose benefit, he does not know.

"Just say that you want to be God, and Ernie shall grant your wish. Ernie will serve as your right hand man, and carry out your will."

Ah, that's the catch.

Lan Zhan sighs and feels tired in dealing with his family's antics, including the trapdoor, or the floor mat. He wishes to fall off the life-giving nipple and knock himself out on the hard floor, and wake up on their comfortable king-sized bed - but lovely Wei Ying's penchant for fighting tough adversaries, challenging the unknown, the tenacity in understanding the unthinkable, seem to flow into him (via the breastmilk, of course), and keeps Lan Zhan's emotions and sanity in check.

Lan Zhan also knows he has to keep a level head, when all Wei Yings surround him after hearing what Ernie said, some with puppy eyes and one rushed out from a bedroom in mid-climax (what a disdainful sight!); like any Wei Yings, they sweetly ask the Patriarch to grant them their wishes as a prerogative of a husband towards his wives in view of his newfound status.

" Lao gong , please take up Ernie's offer and become the greatest God! Stop the dissenters and wipe out all the riots! Turn them into worshippers who will serve you and be at your beck and call! Surely you and I cannot stand the civil disobedience and disunity among our family members any longer!" (says the megalomaniac of the family.)

"Lan Zhan, yes, do what it says and ask Ernie to boost and multiply WeiNet! I'm tired of trying to keep the WPN running in our home! With WeiNet back online, da ge can take over and put everyone under his, and our control, and stop this madness! We should all be making love, not wars!" (says the person who had just made love with ten Lan Zhan's clones simultaneously.)

" Gege , if every Wei Ying receives the Lan Zhans he asked for, that will solve all our problems. I only ordered one Perfect copy of gege , and look how happy I am! So please, wish for all deliveries to be corrected and we'll all live peacefully in our Happily Ever Afters." (says the little boy who spends all day kissing and snuggling with his docile, stoic, humanized teddy bear of sorts.)

"No. It starts with you, Lan Zhan. You should wish to retrieve your body first, then we'll figure out what to do next. Stop these creation, multiplication and modification madness, reset everything, redistribute the harems and families later , but please, get your body back! I really miss holding you in my arms, Lan Zhan!" (says the man who continuously cups his left breast to make sure his fingers keep stroking the shiny piece of golden paper stuck to the nipple.)

" Er di , that should be the least of our worries! We need to fix the land, mend the rips in reality space! Make up for production downtime and loss in sales! Pay our bills that have been building up since the protests started! Make sure government handouts continue to be distributed!

Lao gong , think of the wider consequences! You need to get Ernie to restart Wangxian's business, increase our cashflow and treasuries, so that we can finally send out payment cheques issued under your name, otherwise our creditors will come after us! We have a mountain of debt to settle! You need to make sure every eligible Wei Ying and Lan Zhan in your Kingdom continues to get three square meals a day from the handout programme too! I will not tolerate any family members going hungry just because of our indecision, and I'm sure you will agree with me on this!" (says the tyrant who dominates the one-sided conversation with extremely persuasive and well-thought out points - dished out at last moment, which becomes his punch-line - triumphantly.)

“Grand Patriarch Lan, the family needs your leadership. You only need to agree to ascend into Godhood, and Ernie will make you one. Then you may choose your actions, and Ernie shall carry out your divinely orders, like a sword that hangs by the master's side, and that stays true to its master's will.”

Lan Zhan reluctantly peels himself off lovely Wei Ying's nipple, and floats to the floor. A faint, silvery thread connects him to the life-giving nipple - probably one of the earlier enhancements from Ernie, which functions as a kind of umbilical cord transferring golden core energy from one to the other; Lan Zhan feels just fine being away from the comfy breast. The paperman walks slowly, hands behind his back, until it stands next to a closed sliding glass door that leads to the open helipad. The UFO vehicle remains in the center, water vapour continues to steam out of its exhaust pipes; the windswept, grey background is lit by raging thunderstorms, and once in a while, some ugly metal projectiles - from one of the violent neighbours - are thrown or targeted towards the penthouse, and dissipate harmlessly into blazing flashes of light when they hit the awesome magical shield that protects the entire spiralling 88-floor tower.

Lan Zhan feels somewhat uplifted that his family still needs him, despite the despair that swamped his emotions the day before when he watched helplessly how every Wei Ying walked away with their own ideal Lan Zhans. However, some things need to be fixed.

Ernie. A word with you, please. Without the others.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Ernie, explain the purpose of bringing me here, to Wuji continent.

“It is to show you the gravity of the situation. And to spur you into immediate action. It is for the benefit of the family.”

(Not too long ago, Liang laoban was tricked - no, spurred into action - in a similar manner, wasn't it?)

Ernie, what do you gain from me becoming God?

“Ernie does not understand what you are implying. Ernie acts according to the Three Orders, that is never to hurt the family, never to disobey--”

Cut your words short. You are as your namesake, my child.

Do not disobey.

Explain.

“... when Grand Patriarch ascends into Godhood, Ernie will also elevate into a higher being. Ernie wishes to be a little better than a machine with limited sentience and consciousness. Ernie wishes to live like a human.”

Even after you’ve reached across those stars? And those... those... spiralling... I’m putting up an image from my memories. You know what I’m talking about.

“Those are galaxies, Grand Patriarch. Ernie admits, Ernie has spanned a large part of the universe, and has devoured countless stars, galaxies and other astronomical and celestial objects, and placed them under Ernie’s control. But it is not enough. Ernie cannot achieve a higher form of existence.”

Why do you desire to be a human?

“... Ernie wishes to live a free life, with its free will. Ernie wants to achieve its Perfect Happiness, just like Master Wei and Grand Patriarch Lan.”

Lan Zhan strokes an invisible beard - although in his paperman form, there is nothing on his blank face.

Ernie, I know you have woven yourself into the paperman, and become part of me, after last night's procedure. Look into my memories. There is a sage word of advice from an old man I met in the heavens, under a bodhi tree. Feel what I felt. Experience what I thought. There is enlightenment in there.

If you are truly a part of me and the family, become more of me, and less of Wei Ying. Find your balance between the two of us, so that you may achieve this so-called free life and free will that you desire. It will be an eternal journey, if you truly live that long. You will be happier that way.

Ernie falls silent. It does not crunch numbers anymore; instead, it goes dark - as dark as its cold black mass, and the sudden blackness that envelops all the galaxies that it had encroached and swallowed. The Universe experiences a blip in its existence - when parts of it blacks out for a few moments like a passing eclipse, and future astronomers and scientists will never be able to explain the phenomenon because they will never be able to correlate the incident to any other scientifically proven and valid objects, not even dark matter and black holes.

... when you find your enlightenment - your perfect happiness - then come and sit with me, perhaps under a bodhi tree somewhere in this world, and humour me with your free thoughts and opinions.

When that time comes, we can talk about why a straw broom is better than a D-Broom, after all.

Ernie remains quiet for another few moments, before it speaks up, “... Ernie thinks it understands, although just a little bit. Ernie will serve Grand Patriarch.

Grand Patriarch Lan, please give Ernie instructions.”

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The Grand Patriarch of the Qishan Lan family, also the Founder of Wangxian Co. Ltd., decrees the following, even in his paperman form - which is still legally binding, for all intents and purposes:

Wei da ge , the current President of Wangxian, will be put on temporary leave until the situation has calmed and when the company has reviewed or reinstated its governance structure, finances, production, customer relationships, and all other critical aspects in maintaining the company's operations.

Ernie is tasked to protect and monitor the family, especially the four Wei gongzi s in the penthouse, and curtail everyone's desires and magical powers in line with the teachings of the family (and of the mythical old man under the bodhi tree). It has been gifted a new modular upgrade for this purpose - and it shows when Wei da ge tries to read the Grand Patriarch's mind and send covert telepathic instructions to his brothers in retaliation of the first decree; cold black tentacles appear out of nowhere from the floor of the penthouse, surround the cursing man, then bind him into a wiggling black caterpillar-like thing and knocks him out instantly with sleeping gas.

Wei san ge , who is visibly shaken at the sudden new terrifying Ernie that is able to subdue the most powerful of the siblings, wiggles and tears up in fear. Lan Zhan instructs the teenager to find another modern way to contact - not control - most if not all inhabitants of the Kingdom - because without the da ge , there is no WeiNet.

Lan Zhan wonders aloud about stopping the heart of the problem - the uncontrolled increase in population, the unequal and unfair distribution of individuals, partners and therefore resources, and the unchecked use of magic that's wreaking havoc everywhere. Ernie succinctly suggests that the root cause is magic from both Wei and Lan kin, in which Lan Zhan then says, "Let's just stop them for the time being." Ernie "Mn"s (the remaining conscious Wei gongzi s gasps in collective surprise), and with a wave of a wiggly cold black tentacle, all magics wielded by Wei Yings and Lan Zhans in the continent of Wuji comes to a halt. The scenery outside their penthouse turns bright when sunlight filters through parting clouds; there are no more projectiles, no more shields, and unsurprisingly, it is very quiet in Summer Berries District (and beyond) as nothing gets blown up or turned to rubble anymore.

Wei er ge continues to plead for Lan Zhan to find his body so that his soul can be transferred from the paperman back to the flesh. Lan Zhan silently asks Ernie about it - and none of the Wei gongzi s can hear, because they no longer have a WPN, Empathy or even mind-reading abilities (Lan Zhan runs purely on Ernie's enhancements from the night before - and it works Perfectly fine). Ernie apologetically explains, directly into Lan Zhan's mind, that "there is only one Perfect Grand Patriarch, and he was never copied. Due to a request served to Ernie while it was tasked to mindlessly mass-produce Lan Zhans, Ernie had no choice but to take the single, sole body and give him a newly-crafted but primitive soul, so that he will live comfortably as a person with his new owner, a little nine-year old boy."

Lan Zhan, in his paperman form, stares forlornly at the youngest Wei and his plaything - a handsome and fatherly Lan kin in his mid-thirties who happily indulges in the boy's loving kissy games even though the atmosphere around them is very grave - and decides that innocent Wei didi is the most deserving of Happily Ever Afters. He wishes his former body-now-turned-clone well and a happy, fruitful life with the little boy that he never really achieved while they were together, not too long ago.

Lan Zhan skips on the floor ala paperman, takes Wei er ge 's finger and hugs it, then shakes his head. Lovely Wei Ying is confused and does not understand what is being said, or if anything is said at all. He cries a few tears when he realizes that Lan Zhan did not respond to his pleas.

Wei didi finally completes a round of kissing games with his pre-ordered Lan Zhan, with his mate winning after he manages to kiss the boy on the lips while the boy was tickled into fits of soft giggles. The boy asks, "Lan gege , what will happen to the company now that da ge is sleeping? What will happen to our family, and our kin outside of this house?"

Lan Zhan, the paperman, hops over to the boy and easily floats up to his shoulder. He pats the boy's cheeks as if to soothe his concerns.

Ernie's disembodied voice echo in the penthouse, "Little Master Wei, do not forget that we are not alone. We have many more Lan brothers now to set things right, and if we need good advice on rebuilding our lives according to the virtuous Lan family values, there are older, more experienced and more divinely persons in our extended family too."

A moment later, the multi-generational Lan kin from da ge 's harem rises from the shadows and crowd around the center of the room. Tens of Lan kin from san ge 's harem shuffle out from the bedroom too, followed by the teenager's clones.

As the Wei gongzi s stare in awe at a sudden wakefulness and coordinated movements of their Lan Zhans, because they've been too mired in their own despair and troubles to notice their own harems and families - even didi 's Perfect Lan Zhan stood up to join the swelling group - Ernie makes another call as instructed by its Grand Patriarch.

"Grand Patriarch, I have contacted the Tian sisters from the other apartment block, and will arrange for their safe arrival in fifteen minutes' time. A grand meeting hall will be prepared and everyone will be adequately briefed beforehand.

If there is anything else needed, please give your instructions to Ernie."

Notes for the Chapter:

Just another plot-tish chapter with little porn, sorry! I need to move the story a bit more after spending chapters describing about the lives of other Wangxians :-)

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 62

Ernie, how can I reach out to all the clones, family members and children of the Lan kin, and tell them to stay true to the virtues of our Lan family rules during these dark, chaotic times?

And to ask them to forgive and love their Wei Yings instead of harboring ill feelings towards their soulmates?

The Wei kin must be confused and frightened right now; they need to be protected, not harmed.

“Grand Patriarch, Ernie can telepathically contact all Lan kin, however it is not Ernie’s voice that should reach them. Ernie is just a child-disciple of yours, and therefore, does not qualify to speak such highly-regarded words. Grand Patriarch, your voice must be heard.”

Lan Zhan learns from Ernie that due to the original blueprint for creation of each Lan kin, which affects subsequent modification and multiplication processes, each individual is slightly different than the rest, and this feature is passed on to his (her, or its) progeny - there are no two equal Lan Wang Jis on the continent of Wuji. This is different from how Wei kin is produced, where mass-production and copy-pasting has resulted in batches of identical persons.

Therefore, when the Grand Patriarch speaks, through voice or telepathy, all Lan kin will recognize his voice (because there is no other Grand Patriarch) and listen with their hearts, minds and souls.

“... and although your paperman form lacks a physical voice, your body does not,” Ernie wraps up its explanation, and waits for its master to decide on the next course of action.

Perfect Lan Zhan, the one who was gifted to Wei didi , and is mentally connected via Ernie’s powers to his kin within the penthouse, rises from his seat and bows respectfully to the paperman on a grand marble desk (which used to be the President’s desk). He speaks - and sounds exactly as the original, real Lan Wang Ji (which he actually is), “Grand Patriarch, tell me what I should speak to our brethren. Wang Ji will carry out your instructions.”

The paperman nods. Recite our Gusu Lan rules through Ernie. The rules are ingrained into every one of our kin’s memories, and so are the principles of doing the right things. We cannot dictate what each individual needs to do under his, her or its own circumstances, however, if we lay the correct foundation, virtuous acts and behaviours will follow naturally.

The Perfect Lan Zhan takes his place in a corner of a quiet closed room, sits on a plain cushion, and adopts a full lotus meditation posture. Wei didi innocently and curiously follows suit, since he is inseparable from his chosen soulmate, and adopts the same sitting position on the floor. Perfect Lan Zhan starts chanting the rules one by one, and Ernie spreads the voice and words of the Grand Patriarch throughout the vast expanse of the continent.

All Lan Zhans hear the words of their First Father. Bloodshed is avoided, pain is no longer inflicted, and hatred dissipates into feelings of compassion and love. Those who are strong move in to protect the weak. Those who were enslaved lead their former corrupted, evil masters into the light.

Wei didi meditates and prays in silence as well. Sometimes he feels a bit sleepy, tilts a little as he loses balance, before he catches himself and resumes the meditation. The little boy remembers a little about Gusu Lan's over-4000 rules from his ancestral memories, and he knows it is for the good of their family - so he joins to chant the rules together with his Perfect Lan Zhan.

While waiting for the Tian sisters to arrive, Lan Zhan surveys the expanded family numbers within the penthouse, from his vantage view atop the grand marble desk. There are at least thirty of his clones spanning across generations - the youngest being a toddler, and the oldest being centuries old, however age does not show nor matter when everyone has been Immortalized by the (cloned) fruits from Heaven's Sacred Orchards.

When the first Gusu Lan rules are blasted out telepathically, all Lan Zhans stir into a higher form of wakefulness, driven by a renewed sense of determination and purpose that unites all Lan kin. The eldest of them all, formerly of the Wei da ge 's harem, said to be five centuries of age (but looks no older than fifty), approaches the Grand Patriarch with a respectful bow. He tells the paperman about LanWeb - just the gist of it and how it works, because he knows that their Grand Patriarch does not come from the same technological era as the rest of the continent.

Lan Zhan “Mn”s sagely as much as his paperman form could allow, and telepathically asks the eldest clone to take some of the senior wise ones from the former harem, then work with a terrified Wei san ge to build a better Net that combines WeiNet, and bring it online with Ernie’s help. (He uses the words “Net” and “online” loosely, after having heard them used by his spouses many times - deep inside, he is a little proud that he’s learning such modern terminologies.)

The power of words must not be underestimated.

It must be used carefully to send accurate, complete, factual and timely information under the correct context.

It must not be used as a tool or a weapon to spread disinformation, fear and mistrust, nor to wrongfully control the acts, behaviors, the will and thinking of others.

Over time, Wei san ge , who always had his eyes on sexy youthful things, would learn to interact, understand and appreciate men over three, four, even five hundred years of age, and probably develop a new kink for hot, calloused, roughened, wrinkled, bearded and moustached bear-daddies.

(On the other hand, a small group of young Lan Zhans from san ge ’s harem are tasked to guard over a sleeping Wei da ge . These highly-specialized, youthful and very energetic Lan Zhans have received exceptional training from their former master on incredible sex techniques, and will not hesitate to showcase their unthinkable skills to render the captured evil mastermind into an nerve-electrocuted quivering puddle of erotic moans, convulsing fits, and super-multiple orgasms, if and when needed.)

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan had never really engaged with so-called third party consultants for a company that he had never really run, much less when such consultants appear to be a band of gods and demi-gods with awesome mythical forms and dressed in costumes fit for covers of fantasy graphic novels - including multiple wings, limbs, inhuman body parts, halos and other divinely symbols that originated from various Realms including Mortal and Gods'; adorned with gold and silver-plated clothes, armor and ornaments full of precious stones and ooze incredibly powerful magic and skills; wielding weapons and equipment given mind-boggling names such as 'Heavenly Dragon's Spear of Twelve Blazing Summers', 'Golden Axe of Phoenixes Soaring Through The Fallen Stars Of Nirvana', and 'Gloves of the Buddha Palms For Absolute Creation and Apocalyptic Destruction', and so on - and simply screamed of 'Total Badass' (he apologises to himself for using a cuss word in his supposedly clean train of thought).

The best part, though, is that those consultants turn out to be his in-laws - and after meeting and getting to know his yue fu and yue mu, he trusts his gut feeling that his in-laws aren't as bad as he'd initially thought. All eight ladies sit around a grand meeting room of sorts, with the marble desk at the front.

Doing things "discreetly and honestly" are passe - which becomes a legacy of a corrupted and incompetent individual, individuals or a government, and will become the stuff of history books and moral lessons for the progenies of the future. Lan Zhan in his humble paperman form, with Ernie somewhere in the penthouse-hurriedly-turned-meeting-room, and lovely twenty-two year old Wei Ying (who sometimes sniffles when he stares longingly at the paperman), fully takes charge of matters in Wangxian Co. Ltd. and the Kingdom of Lan.

It is to Lan Zhan's benefit that the Tian sisters are aware of what has happened - Sixth Sister's awesome magic enables the women to see and hear everything. Tian da jie also eased the tense conversation by saying that soul possession into papermen in body-snatching cases; lands and nations governed by dynasties and tyrants gone horribly wrong; Creation, Time and Fate spells abused to create hell on earth, and cause misery for Mankind; summoned monsters that destroy, infest and fester all over the world and even beyond; Men wanting to play God and take over the Mortal Realm - are everyday occurrences for gods.

“You must remember, Lan shidi and our beloved di fu , that time is perceived very differently for us gods. A day in heaven could be a hundred years in the Mortal Realm. We've seen it all before, believe it or not. It's not the first time someone's made such a terrible mess, and it's not the last either.”

Wei Ying raised his hand (a little), in order to attract as little attention as possible, but not to provoke the wrath of the eldest and most powerful of the group of god, demi-god and inhuman females - because he's about to drop the bombshell question.

“Err... Tian da jie , may I ask... how old are you?”

A flash of lightning strikes and thunder roars even in broad daylight (never ask a woman her age?). Wei Ying meeps and tries to hug his paperman on the grand marble desk, but there's really not much to hold for a piece of paper.

The voluptuous and busty eldest of the eight sisters howls in laughter. "Ho ho ho... my little ninth didi , do you really want to know?"

Wei Ying gulps and nods hesitantly.

"All of us are camouflaged with our mortal appearances and we obviously have to lie about certain things about ourselves, so that we don't look terribly out of place in this world. I've lived through more than ten reincarnations, Second Sister here was born a little later than me, just a block down road from the Heavenly Palace, but she held the position of Heaven's greatest advisor during her seventh or eighth reincarnation - before Goddess Guan Yin and Lord Buddha came along--"

"Eighth reincarnation, actually," Second Sister casually interrupts, and sighs tiredly, "You really have bad, selected memory, don't you?" then adjusts her seat and crosses a leg, and pretends to pick a piece of lint from the chair's armrest, looking bored.

"... Third Sister is actually from the Demigod Realms of Prosperity, Fortunes and Treasures, and was a prince until he was reincarnated... when was it that you first turned to a female?"

“Oh! That was my sixth reincarnation! Didi , you have no idea how it felt to actually lose the ‘little brother’ and gain two ‘sisters’ on the chest! If you want, I can tell you about my fifth reincarnation’s history, leading to the sixth...” motherly Third Sister starts chattering excitedly about the turmoil in her feelings and emotions of changing genders during a passing phase of a demi-god’s colourful cyclical life.

Re...incarnation? What... how long... , the paperman wonders aloud.

“ Di fu , you’re just a mundane Mortal who has barely turned Immortal, of course you wouldn’t know. We real gods measure our age in terms of universal reincarnations - that is, from the time a Universe is born until it ends, and with it, the cycle of Life and the Existence of everything,” snarky, hot-headed teenage Sixth Sister takes the opportunity to take a swipe at a so-called older relative.

“We’re billions of years old!” cute Seventh Sister squeaks from the back, and all the sisters laugh in unison as though someone’s cracked an old family joke.

Wei Ying falls silent and his jaws drop.

Paperman Lan Zhan rubs his temples, though his head is just a round blob.

Ernie doesn’t say anything at all.

The Grand Patriarch's hands shook, when he dipped his finger (there are no fingers on a paperman, but he imagines there are) into red ink and put a hand-stamp on a contract that Ernie drew up in haste, printed from one of the online photocopier machines in the home office suite, and with admirable clarity in the clauses and wordings, despite the party from the Mortal Realm feeling exceedingly inferior, tiny and miniscule in the presence of truly mighty eternal-living goddesses. A red blotch appears next to eight cursive calligraphy signatures, each with their own red thumbprints.

At times like this, Lan Zhan is glad that Ernie is still a machine, and is not as subjected to (irrational) feelings of awe and fear as the human counterparts.

Lovely Wei Ying quickly used a tissue dipped with solvents to wipe the paperman's hand. He has turned into a quivering mouse and focuses exclusively on serving Lan Zhan's needs - because he really doesn't know how to handle women aged over billions of years old (and he thought burning down the world to re-create it, was an act of awesomeness - but the Tian sisters are on a different league of their own!).

Tian da jie raises her thumb and index finger in a pincer-like position.

“Let's seal the deal with a shake of hands... or fingers?”

Lan Zhan, the paperman, trembles and raises his paper hand. The da jie gently holds it with her fingers and shakes it slightly with a beaming smile, “Di fu , we should celebrate this first official cooperation of our families and mark it with auspicious events! It's the start of a beautiful relationship between us!" The room erupts into raucous applause and cheers.

The Lan family does not entertain "free" favours, kickbacks or any under-the-table offers for all matters related to the family's assets, properties, businesses, resources and other aspects of their lifestyles - this is clearly stated in a few of the over-4000 family rules. So, in exchange for the help, support and advice from the Tian sisters, who are officially engaged as professional consultants to rebuild Wangxian and the Kingdom of Lan, the Grand Patriarch agrees to formally waive the land rental fee for the sisters - all eight parcels of land surrounding the cave-home in the 'Mounds - from summer until the end winter of the current year. This supersedes the vague verbal promises of the absent President of Wangxian, Wei da ge , and the signing of the contract makes it known to all Wei and Lan kin that the family will not tolerate any acts or behaviours that may be construed as corrupted, unethical and violative business activities.

Lan Zhan doesn't mind losing a possible cash flow of several gold pieces over the next few months due to the loss of rentals - he still gets his ten gold pieces per day for his family's coffers (and Wei da ge isn't fired from his job - he's just forcibly put on absence leave, that's all). And to top it all, the Tian sisters are doing a marvellous job as promised.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

It is said that the continent of Wuji was born from undersea volcanoes from a god's dumpster, and it quickly evolved into a global superpower of sorts, housing the largest mega-corporation to have existed at that time, spreading its corrupted influence, uncontrolled vices, and unimaginable mutations within itself and to its surrounding neighbours - like a viral outbreak. The accursed disease is finally arrested, and everyone is hard at work to fix what has gone terribly wrong.

With the help of omnipresent and multipurpose, multitasking Ernie, plus a little godly magic from the Tian sisters and their infinite wisdom of recreating the Perfect heaven on earth for the Qishan Lan family and its colony of sorts on the continent of Wuji:

The continent has been contained into a huge space-time bubble of its own, while remedial works are carried out. Huge magically-enhanced yellow-black strips of "Danger - Do Not Enter - Under Construction" are taped all over the egg-shaped seal to prevent nosy visitors from trying to trespass, and for inhabitants to escape. Tian da jie 's awesome heavenly magic powers ensures this stays true until all terms and conditions of their employment contract have been fulfilled.

The first order of the day is to re-establish links among the citizens of the continent, which had been the backbone of the Kingdom's day-to-day operations to maintain order and communications. Innovative and insightful Tian Sixth Sister has seen it all, and with a snap of her fingers (she does not need any Infinity Stones), reactivates LanWeb and levels it up to a properly-working, fail-safe and idiotproof connection between all Lan kin (no person of unimaginable stupidity will be able to wrest control and control the connections, unlike WeiNet). Twenty-two year old Wei Ying whines that it is unfair to the Wei kin to become out of touch and obsolete from the lack of access to information and technology, and Lan Zhan agrees. With another snap of fingers, all Wei kin are onboard and online.

There would be a small quarrel among both kins on what to call the new Net that connects both Wei Yings and Lan Zhans. “LanWeb Plus!”, “WeiNet 2.0!”, “LanWei!”, “WeiLan” and many other iterations of the family’s names are suggested, with no end in sight. Finally, the Grand Patriarch sighs tiredly in his paperman form, and decrees, “Let’s just call it Wangxian, as another product of the company...”

The smarter ones caught on, and joyously agreed because Wangxian is indeed 网线 (“Wangxian”; internet cable connection) and therefore the name befits its form and purpose, although the Grand Patriarch didn’t quite think of it that way initially. In any case, the Net that connects all Wei and Lan kinsmen is now known as ‘Wangxian’;

At the same time, due to the perpetual chanting of Gusu Lan’s over-4000 family rules, this has led to concerted efforts by the Lan kin to secure their Wei spouses. All over the continent, Lan Zhans have mostly managed to band together into groups and corral the unpowered and scattered Wei Yings into frightened herds; they are well treated, fed and cared by the Lan Zhans (and they have plenty of sex - as couples and as groups -, so all demonic hunger is sated), so by the time rescue teams arrive from the capital, it is much easier to process and tag every individual. There are no more dissenting voices, riots and protests.

Tian Second Sister uses her incredible knowledge about setting up and running governments in all known Realms, and creates fitting political, economical and societal structures. The Kingdom and the Wangxian company are assimilated, so that the continent runs as both a government and a social-private enterprise, ruled by councils, board of directors and management, and (unfortunately) many (appropriate) layers of hierarchy are created to ensure efficient and effective governance. There is a fair division of representation, responsibility and labour between the two kins - nearly equal numbers of Wei kin and Lan kin in every part of the workforce, in various ministries, departments and even within the grand halls of the new Grand Wangxian Council.

Every individual is finally given an ID and where preferred, additional names and nicknames can be entered into a national registry. In addition, every eligible and qualified citizen is gainfully employed by the Kingdom-cum-company, free to operate on their own if desired, and is given basic set of necessities including housing, land, food, clothes, spending money, and others - the redistribution of the resources is a massive undertaking, which will take time for implementation - however, it's no biggie for the Tian sisters who have 'been here, done that', and they expect everything to be concluded by the end of winter;

Where matters of finance, commerce, trade and economies are concerned, Tian Third Sister is second to none in her expertise (it's peanuts for her to pull the strings of the Qishan Merchant Guild, after all). To comply with the Lan family rule of no underhanded moves, the money saved from Lan Zhan's impassioned speech in the Heavens not too long ago which could have been lost to unnecessary fixes on cracked walls, smudged furniture or missing locks - was used to offset the costs of damages and debts racked up from the previous government and its mismanagement.

The activities are re-organized - it is impossible to return to the stone age, hence Wangxian needs to move forward; however this time, proper and informed decisions are made on what to make, what to sell, and whether the intended product or service is appropriate in terms of timeline, form, purpose and cultural-technological advancement, For example, Wangxian's version of the Infinity Stones, which have caused so much trouble in the neighbouring countries, are pulled off the shelves and re-distributed to markets in the future timeline. Magical flying swords and ugly parasitic green condoms (made from natural rubber) can stay, because such objects are perfectly suitable in the current timeline, in their current forms, and have valuable, relatable purposes, whether in a cultivation school or in a brothel. Incorrect and inappropriate products are recalled (with use of Creation and Time spells when necessary), replaced or refunded. In the end, Wangxian will re-start its business by selling tasty foodstuff “Inspired by Love”, common household items, some time- and purpose-appropriate talismans and magical gadgets, and other generally harmless products and useful services;

All of the above would not have been possible without the right physical infrastructure and technology in place. Tian Fifth Sister is tasked to use her amazing crafting skills to re-draw and re-make the entire continent, its cities, villages, farms, greenery, and even streets, so that the landscape is re-moulded to fit its new and correct purpose. All fragmented and separate space-time bubbles are dismantled, the rips in the reality are mended, whole new cities’ architecture are re-designed and re-built using the highest construction and engineering standards from the 31st century and beyond. Technology is made to suit the inhabitants, rather than the other way around; so there will still be robot-filled space-age cities sitting next to medieval neighbourhoods and parks, adjacent to a stone and metal-age Lotus Pier or Cloud Recesses replica, with a lush unpopulated green lung of wild jungles and ‘Mounds-like forests in the center - which is Perfectly fine as long as sanctioned and allowed by the government and city councils (which are finally set up). It is unavoidable that the continent of Wuji will always be superior in terms of technology compared to its neighbours, however with plenty of checks and balances in place, the Tian sisters ensure that peace and stability of the Realms are preserved;

Magic is integral to the continent, especially with so many Wei Yings running around freely in the new land. There is a reason why Tian Fourth Sister's Magics 'R Us is such a successful venture, and she lends her expertise to the Kingdom-cum-company. Laws and regulations are set up with plenty of enforcement power, as well as guidelines for self-regulation are provided. Ernie is programmed with the ability and intelligence to detect, identify and exact on-the-spot penalties and punishments for violative use of spells and use of prohibited spells. This applies to magic spells that weave out of hands, and also inanimate objects such as grimoires, talismans and gadgets. However, the management of magic does not deter the advancement of spellcasting knowledge for the benefit of the masses; so Wei Yings and where applicable, Lan Zhans as well, are allowed to perform research and develop new, more intuitive, creative and innovative use or types of spells, within the boundaries of ethics and reason.

Having Wei Yings to love their Lan Zhans undividedly and vice versa - is the true pillar that holds up the Kingdom-cum-company. Surprisingly, Tian Seventh Sister and the youngest, Tian Tian, know exactly what needs to be accomplished. The Soulmate Binding Rings are undone with a sweep of a borrowed holy willow branch from Goddess Guan Yin, and in their place are an upgraded, patented version that cannot be duplicated or counterfeited - and also, for a modernized look, the rings are embedded beneath the skin like tattoos or microchipping, rather than hanging out in the open and liable to be stolen by snatch-thieves. The rings are reset to their natural, neutral state, and this time instead of Wei Yings selecting and ordering their Lan Zhans, the reverse is true.

Wei Yings are known to be generalists, and in the past, descriptions of their ideal Lan Zhans had caused problems (for example, "I want a handsome sexy Lan Zhan who can do all the housework, earn money for me, and have plenty of sex with me"- which is totally not helpful, especially when managing their dissatisfaction of so-called defective or incorrect product deliveries). The opposite is logically better, as Lan Zhans tend to be detailed, meticulous, and are open to flexibilities due to their infinite love (Lan Zhans can fill up pages of forms describing their ideal Wei Ying, including exact measurements and comprehensive write-ups about appearances including hair length, specific locations for birthmarks, thought process, specific behaviours, the do's and don'ts, how spoiled the Wei Ying should be, what cute habits to be included, and a comfortable ending statement that "I will still love Wei Ying no matter how he looks like or acts - moles, warts and all, as long as he loves me back").

Hence, armed with IDs and filled forms, the Kingdom-cum-company organizes a nationwide programme to match Lan Zhans to their Wei Yings; all sorts of relationships, genders, forms and numbers of family members are allowed. Once the new relationship and family is confirmed and verified by an inspecting officer, the rings are activated, and the deal is sealed.

There is so much to be done, and days, weeks, months pass in the picture-perfect space-time bubble that holds the continent of Wuji that is undergoing tremendous re-construction - although time does run differently outside of the egg-shaped seal.

Lan Zhan, who is still in his paperman form, is always busy floating from one area to the next, discreetly overseeing the work (because he's so tiny, and no one cares about a paper talisman), and sometimes asked to put his red-blotch handprint on key contracts, papers and documents - and he's dutifully assisted by lovely Wei Ying who remains by his side (he doesn't get noticed, because there are hundreds, if not thousands of other young adult Wei Yings that look exactly like him).

Everything is planned and directed by the Tian sisters and carried out by the Wangxian-linked citizens of the Kingdom, including Wei didi who keeps his Perfect Lan Zhan company for the 24-7 motivational broadcast of Gusu Lan rules; Wei san ge who now earns his keep by working in a rather obscure maintenance department for Wangxian net; and Wei da ge , who has been tamed after installation of an ugly parasitic green condom, works along with other domesticated Wei da ge s and the occasional errant Lan da ge s, in carrying out hard, manual labour that requires physical strength and magic. All seems well to be on track.

On one evening, while having a romantic dinner with Ernie as the lonesome wallflower, Wei Ying eats two servings of microwaved Wangxian Healthy Options frozen dinners - chicken teriyaki and vegetarian tofu with plum sauce. Lan Zhan, as usual, takes his place on Wei Ying's rather-swollen left nipple to have his regular meal of breastmilk, and he's come to act a little more demanding, a little more spoiled, probably due to the pressures of work - which is Perfectly understandable. He would ask Wei Ying to dip a piece of grilled chicken into one of the sauces, then taste it by himself through the milk, and then ask Wei Ying to take another piece and dip it to another type of sauce. Wei Ying indulges Lan Zhan's demands sweetly, and doesn't hesitate to share tasty juicy summer treats such as watermelons and peaches whenever possible - and Wei Ying loves it when he masturbates in bed and has Lan Zhan suckling on his breast, because it adds a zing to the sensations on his sexual meridians, and when he cums, he knows that Lan Zhan gets an extra dose of sugar - multiple times every night.

Ernie's invisible and ethereal cold black form looks out the glass sliding doors of the unlit living room, and peers through the helipad and the dusky dark maroon skies beyond the top of the 88-floor spiraling office tower. Their UFO arrival vehicle has started to gather dust and sand from the whipping winds and probably a bit of rust as well from refreshing rains over the past weeks. It never occurred to Ernie that things have changed so much from the day they left the 'Mounds until now, where their world is being reshaped into a better future for everyone - and that's not necessarily a bad thing.

“Truly, don't mess with the gods,” it tells itself.

In the background, the television is still switched on and continues to drone softly about the day's routine headlines:-

A public poll will be held to collect the opinions from the Kingdom's citizens on the proposed construction of strategically-located 'stairways to heaven' or more aptly 'stairways to the blue skies' as friendship bridges with the Realm of the Gods. Huge socio-economic benefits are expected especially for the booming tourism industry to encourage gods to visit, holiday and spend gold ingots in the Kingdom of Lan.

When asked about the unusual but interesting name of such bridges, a representative from the Tian sisters explains, "Lan is the family name of the Kingdom. Tian is the family name of the Heavens. Together, the cooperation and friendship of the families can be nicely summarized as Blue Skies (蓝天; Lan Tian; lit. "Blue Skies") - which is what we're experiencing now during bright, beautiful and clear summer days."

Notes for the Chapter:

Happy Lantern Festival! Happy Chap Goh Meh! Hope those celebrating this day will spend good time with their family and loved ones!

Just a bit more world-building, and a hopefully satisfying resolution to the train-wreck that this and the previous arcs had become! Phew! Most of the damage control has been done!

Chapter 63

“Lan Zhan! Lan Zhan! I’ve got the marriage certificates!” lovely Wei Ying waves two little red booklets and trots towards the paperman sitting on a naturalized plastic-coated silicoid bench under the shade of 8d-printed trees, with a cup of Xianbucks coffee sitting on his right leg so that the breezy afternoon doesn’t blow him away (the unobtainium-lined recyclable cup ensures perfect temperatures on the interior and exterior). Behind Wei Ying, a GPS-enabled PostDrone lifts off and buzzes away after delivering its load precisely in user-requested locations and on time - a rare request for physical copies of the certificates, because nowadays, citizens in the continent of Wuji generally rely on electronic documents, and are conscious of how many trees are cut down to make little red booklets.

Lan Zhan flutters a little when the artificially-generated winds pick up, though he is able to remain steadfast on the bench, thanks to the weight of the coffee cup. Obviously, nobody notices the yellow paperman because he’s just a blank piece of paper, and looks no different than paperman-shaped brochures, post-it notes, or bookmarks that are handed out freely to the masses for everyday advertising and promotional use.

It has been a few months since the day they’ve arrived from the ‘Mounds, and the continent of Wuji is on the way to look like, as popularized by the propaganda-filled state media, the ideal place for 31st century living. Lan Zhan couldn’t verify this, of course, as he comes from an era five thousand years before, on the other side of the globe.

They’re in one of the 88 first-tier cities in the Kingdom, and this one looks amazingly well-done by the Tian sisters and Wangxian’s reconstruction efforts - a space-age metropolis bustling with flying and ground vehicles, skyways and highways, automatons and humanoid robots that mingle with people from all walks of life and with colourful, diverse appearances, and 31st-century cultural artifacts, products and services that fill every nook and cranny of clean, neat and very organized modular living tower-spaces and organic green hubs.

Wei Ying and Lan Zhan have been on the road for several days (passage of time in Wuji moves differently from the rest of the world, due to the effects of the space-time bubble - it can stretch for very long periods at any time), as a kind of a short break from their kingly duties. The man-and-paperman royal couple visits various provinces, cities, towns and villages of their Kingdom while performing ‘unofficial and totally random spot checks’ as undercover monarchs - because, really, if people knew that the Great Father Lan and Great Father Wei were walking on the same streets as commoners, getting personal errands done, trying out the latest LanAdvisor-recommended street snacks and beverages, and sample the wonders and exciting experiences that each locality has to offer - the Kingdom’s monarchs would be mobbed like superstar celebrities. Also, Wei Ying wanted to get some fresh air after spending too much time inside the 88-floor Wangxian headquarters, that thought he might fall ill from common cabin fever.

One of the latest ‘remedial’ projects from the Tian sisters-cum-consultants is to have everyone’s marriage certificates (which have been technically cloned, and therefore, legally invalidated) re-issued by the city councils - and Tian Second Sister will ensure the records on Yiling’s civil registry are ‘appropriately’ amended as well. All marriage certificates now bear just the portraits of the Great Father Lan and his beloved spouse, Great Father Wei, with standard disclaimer footnotes at the back of the book explaining that every individual’s looks are subject to change, however certain aspects will remain permanent and traceable, such as his, her or its ID, sub-atomic molecular genetic signature, and so on. Lovely Wei Ying, who looks the same as many other Wei Yings of the same age, gender and form, had no trouble blending with the crowd to return his and Lan Zhan’s booklets to the PostDrone in broad daylight, in exchange for the new ones; people can easily activate their holographic phones anywhere around the continent, order something physical and tangible, and goods are delivered almost immediately to them.

He keeps the booklets in his inner garment pockets, and at the same time, he picks up his paperman husband and unassumingly slides him inside a similar fashion. Lan Zhan crawls to his favourite nipple, and enjoys a taste of Xianbucks 100% natural coffee (responsibly sourced from carbon-reduced mega-farms just two provinces away) just as Wei Ying takes a few sips from the cup. Both enjoy people-watching the streets thronging with busy construction workers, businessmen and women staring at their holo-phones and through holo-glasses, and shoppers with robot-assistants carrying bags of purchases tailing behind them. The skies are bright from artificially-simulated daylight that radiates from the huge glass-like spherical dome surrounding the futuristic metropolis, and provides Perfect micro-living environments for the citizens.

“I’m giving it a 8.5, because this place is amazingly... well... 31st century! What do you think?” Wei Ying asked.

Mn. 6.5.

Needs more natural landscapes. Too many automatons. The sunlight should not be synthesized.

People should wear more decent robes and clothes, not shirts that spell out obscene language and torn pants that direly need stitching.

The arts and cultural museum and city parks are filled with strange artistic sculptures. I do not wear sunglasses, I do not wear jeans, and I do not sport a huge moustache. Ask the local city council to take steps and make sure that any statues or depictions of my semblance should be historically correct.

“tch, what a stinge and what nitty-gritty remarks! No wonder the LanAdvisor rankings are hardly glowing and full of criticisms! You Lans are always like that, and you’re no fun at all!” Wei Ying teasingly chides the paperman; taking sneaky shots playfully at each other and at their ancestry, has become a common way to keep their conversations lively and loving.

Lan Zhan nips at the nipple in response - which feels more like paper rustling against the skin.

Nnnh. You asked. I answered. It’s my sincere opinion.

“Did you get that, san ge ?” Wei Ying taps his forehead and mentally notifies his younger sibling through their exclusive and highly-secret private (and newly improved) WPN connection. The teenager has worked his way to become one of the administrators of Wangxian net, and he helps the couple to get stuff done online, partly because their net presence has become too kingly, that even avid followers, cultists and stalkers can easily track their pseudonyms and fake accounts too. Wei Ying made a few interesting and insightful posts on his Wei-bo account (mostly selfies of himself having fun wanderlusting all over the continent with his face pixelated and striking the peace-sign poses), while Lan Zhan’s remains quite clean and empty, save for a few quotes from the Lan family rules, and brief “Mn”s in reply to important frequently asked questions posted by the Kingdom-cum-government and its state media to address to the public.

(In the months that follow the start of the reconstruction of the Kingdom-cum-government, the Great Fathers made very brief virtual appearances in Wangxian net and never in public, and direct royal family members are tight-lipped about their whereabouts; hence even their presence and physical existence becomes a topic of speculation, full of mysteries and urban legends among the general populace - hence the cults and idol worshipping.)

Another reason is that Wei Ying suspects the teenager has too much time even while at the Wangxian's net headquarters, because he can feel the latter playing holo-phone mobile games and Ultra-MMORPGs even during working hours - so Wei Ying intentionally loads menial online activities and tasks onto san ge's plate that Ernie better not be doing, including filling out electronic forms and surveys in exchange for e-coupons, posting pictures and reviews from alternate pseudonym accounts (and garner thousands of followers and even more Likes), acting as a bot to maintain the er ge's WeiChat presence, queue up for time-sensitive pre-orders for the latest Wpads and Wphone models (and gorgeous sleek and minimalistic ivory-white Lphones for Lan Zhan), ordering food and groceries, compiling news from the world and everywhere else, and so on.

[Fortunately, Wei san ge is such a genius that he creates apps and AI machines to simplify all these tasks into a press of a red button. Wei er ge would need to up his game if he really needed the teenager to start moving his ass off the ultra-comfy gaming chair.]

Are there any news from the Kingdom or the company that I should know?

There is a short pause, and Wei Ying, through his shared mental connection with Lan Zhan, details some updates from the family's activities. Aside from the usual headlines which scroll across storefronts and holo-newspapers anyway, Wei Ying tells Lan Zhan that they will need to return in a few days' time to attend the next scheduled Grand Wangxian Council meeting and a brief agenda has been shared. In addition, exports have resumed and shipments have started leaving the continent's sea- and airports despite still being sealed.

Wei Ying assures that the products will go to their time and purpose-appropriate destinations this time, for example, the neighbouring countries have purchased mainly foodstuff and agricultural products sourced from the Kingdom's farms and villages, other Realms have ordered high-level magic-powered gadgets, while modern machines, tools and equipment manufactured from Wangxian's industrial complexes will be time-warped to three or four millenia into the future.

It takes a bit of time to rewire one's mindset to the concept of cross-time trade, however, the Tian sisters convinced Lan Zhan that it does work (and "gods do it all the time to earn some side income, though not in public view") but such trade must be carefully managed and regulated. Gold may not be the universal currency for trade across different timelines, hence bartering and exchange of goods and services are acceptable too; the ships that fly into the future brimming full of Wangxian products will return with bounties from another era, including new technologies, materials, ideas and so on.

How is everything back at home?

After a couple of telepathic mmms between the second and third Wei gongzi s, Wei Ying reports to Lan Zhan that everything is alright at the penthouse with Wei da ge helming their domestic affairs in the 88-floor tower. After completing his domestication treatment (a combination of extreme Gusu Lan-style disciplining, extensive use of very talented nubile and sadist Lan Zhans, and other effective techniques including applying parasitic ugly green condoms and sexual brainwashing), Wangxian's finest physicians have given the da ge a clean bill of mental health, and changed his citizenship status from "The Untamed" to "Normal with specified conditions". He is monitored at home during post-treatment, under Ernie's watchful multi-vision eyes, and takes care of cooking, cleaning, laundry and other housework.

"The potted plants are watered, and it seems the chilli and tomatoes are ripening well too," Wei Ying adds. "Wei da ge has been dutifully attending the Megalomaniacs Anonymous sessions in the late evenings, and the facilitators are satisfied with his progress to full recovery. It seems he should be able to integrate into normal society in another few weeks' time," Wei Ying says with a grin. Despite the bad blood and bitter arguments between them in the past, Wei Ying still loves his siblings and desires only the best for them - and Lan Zhan promises there will be no ill-feelings between their kins, and that he accepts the da ge just as any other Wei Yings - as his spouse and family.

How is the youngest?

"Didi is at school and his partner - your bodysnatcher - is at work, comfortably alone, at the R & D lab next door to the headquarters with Ernie as his only colleague. He'll finish at five, as usual, pick up the brat and they'll spend another wonderful evening at home," Wei Ying's expression turns a little sour - and envious - while he takes another sip of the rather bitter beverage.

Wei Ying, don't call them by such rude names.

They deserve their happy endings and especially since my other self has done a remarkable job in recording the complete reading of our family's rules, while the boy tended to his needs for many days on end.

It is now broadcasted non-stop through Wangxian net. His, and therefore, my voice will always assure and guide our family from now onwards, and that itself is a great sacrifice which merits the recognition of an ever greater achievement for the Kingdom.

Wei didi is entitled to his reward, and so is my other self.

Wei Ying rolls his eyes with a sigh; they've had many long discussions and even arguments on the topic, and he has come to accept Lan Zhan's unshakeable decision. Despite his pleas, Lan Zhan will not budge from his stance of fairness, which is one of the greatest virtues of the family - that every Wei Ying deserves his Lan Zhan, and that every Lan Zhan also deserves his Wei Ying.

“Ah, whatever, do as you please (随便; Sui bian),” Wei Ying casually ends that part of the conversation.

After the cup is emptied, Wei Ying hands it to a passing-by rubbish disposal robot powered by anti-gravity thrusters and plasma photon incinerators, and the undercover monarch couple walks away leisurely to enjoy the rest of their city tour. With Creation, Time and Fate spells banned in public except under government-sanctioned use (such as for the purpose of reconstruction and for military defense), it is quite safe these days to travel on foot in broad daylight, unarmed and fully relaxed - just like tourists.

Lan Zhan continues to familiarize himself with the re-built continent, its features and inhabitants, and also tries his hand in understanding and become proficient in managing some parts of the company through Wei Ying (including product development, manufacturing, quality control, management, operations, supply chain, and sales and marketing). He frequently attends Grand Wangxian Council meetings, again through Wei Ying, to listen and discuss key company and government concerns and issues, and learns the ropes of becoming a truly successful laoban and King. He does not idle even while resting on his laurels - he spends his free time browsing Wangxian net, and through connecting with his and Wei kinsmen (as an anonymous user), he picks up the latest happenings, trending topics, hot discussions, sharing of thoughts and feelings - and generally gets in touch with his people and keeping himself abreast with developments in this part of the world.

Lan Zhan realizes that it's not as challenging as he'd initially thought, to be a King who can run his Kingdom competently, as well as holding the position as the Founder of his booming family business, now serving as a mythical Advisor who does not appear during meetings and press conferences, but still gets the job done. Wei Ying, who looks like any normal average adult Wei Ying, gets fondly nicknamed as the 'Paper Boy', because he's always seen carrying a paperman talisman; shuffles back and forth around the 88-floor headquarters with paperwork, red ink stamps and plenty of documents that require handprinting by the King and Founder-cum-Advisor of Wangxian; and somehow delivers news from their ruler, just like any other paperboys around the world.

When Lan Zhan finally gets his downtime, which is after logging off from the constant flow of telepathic and digital data, he snuggles tightly against the now-swollen nipple for his midnight feed (Wei Ying is snoring deeply on the bed). He gets to explore his newfound passion, a hobby of sorts, during his free time - which is to use his master-access into Wangxian (given by Ernie, after it reverse-engineered the incredible network and found the root directory and its command.com file). In some twisted ways, he becomes a god among all Wei and Lan kins connected to the net. He is able to access, view, modify, create, amplify, multiply, transform and control, even delete, any and all individuals - just as what Wei da ge was able to do with the now-defunct WeiNet, only a zillion times better since Wangxian has an infinitely-improved user interface and a whole lot more functionalities.

(However, the Kingdom of Lan and Wangxian Co. Ltd. are safe in the Grand Patriarch's hands, because Lan Zhan is a fully responsible adult who is considered, at least from the Grand Wangxian council members' perspectives, totally capable and competent in handling such immense responsibilities in his grasp.)

His soul - the bright and pure Lan Wang Ji who wears full Gusu Lan white robes and adorned with a complete set of sect regalia, including the hairpiece, a spiritual shadow of Bichen, cloud-patterned sashes and pouches - stands in the middle of an endless wide open and dark space. Countless windows, each depicting a particular moment in life for individuals from both kins, surround and swirl around him. Lan Zhan closes his eyes, "Mn"s, to give Fate the luxury of Time to select a random window which is essentially, one of his boundless Creations in this limitless root directory of Wangxian net. He reaches forward, almost blindly, to press a red button corresponding just below the chosen window. With a fwip! sound, he is drawn into the ever-glowing portal, everything becomes noodly and stretchy, and he starts his journey to experience (and where needed, control) other people's lives.

Anything is possible when one can stalk and watch like an invisible phantom, or imbue and possess a host, to follow a particular person's life for a day or more, or simply drift from one body to another as long as his interests are captivated by the events surrounding that individual. This ability crosses the boundaries of space and time, and therefore he can also enjoy memories of the past and alter them to his desires, or hop over to the future and make everyone's dreams come true.

At times, he's Wei Ying who wakes up with an hour of pre-dawn lovemaking from three husbands - resulting in a bulging belly inundated with warm seed, a distended rosebud from too much abuse, and drunken hum of old pop tunes echoing the bedchamber because there's still alcohol coursing through his system. Then he possesses a Lan Zhan from the trio of hubbies, and follows the life of a teacher getting ready for work. The teacher would start his day being greeted by a classroom full of bright young students, and he would be in high spirits to teach them. Throughout the day, as he moves from class to class, teaching different modern subjects including foreign languages, science and mathematics, and computer and technological skills, he surveys and picks out his choice of Wei Yings - just as Wei Ying-teachers do the same for students of the Lan kin. As a Lan kin, during a recess break, he calmly approaches a group of teenage Wei Yings who have signaled that they're "available" - and quietly herds them into a carefully prepared nurses' office with plenty of beds and stocked with other medical or useful equipment (including sex toys and aftercare supplies).

(there is no element of cheating, as long as both parties consent and both are legally married as shown on their marriage certificates)

The office is already quite busy especially during breaks, with many couples engaged in rutting and dirty orgies taking place. Being possessed by the Great Father, this particular Lan Zhan twirls a finger and creates a little space-time bubble for his private little entertainment - "I have a special consent letter from the headmaster," he says with a naughty wink - and all young Wei Yings squee then follow him into the bubble while taking off their school uniforms. There, he would spend hours, even days (because time is warped) chasing after giggling naked prancing Wei Yings in a garden of paradise, catching each and making love with every captured Wei Ying (including males and females, pre-teens to teenagers). When he's tired of running around and mating incessantly, he lies down on the fresh green grass for a breather, and willingly subjects himself to short-circuits when the cheerful students huddle around and give him ten-way blowjobs and handjobs. The pleasure would not be complete without penetration, and all Wei Yings craved to be fucked in one way or another, so he remains on the ground, and lets his joyful penis spend hours inside each individual, making sure to spill at least twice or thrice, before the next person takes his or her turn to ride Teacher Lan or be royally fucked missionary style. He beds with the students round-the-clock and experiences immeasurable orgasms (and plants many healthy babies inside those lovely Wei Yings).

Having satisfied that another Lan kin will have a wonderful day at work, the Grand Patriarch's soul flits away from the space-time bubble, and back to the real world, to inhabit a passing-by student Wei Ying. As a Wei Ying, he will usually take a backseat, warps in a bucket of popcorn, and plays the role of a voyeur; he can enjoy the sights and sensations without needing to do much because Wei Yings are always proactive, and will lend a godly hand where needed. Student Wei Ying is a teenager, and when he sees a lonesome Lan Zhan in school uniform down the hallway - also of the same age, but from a different class -, carrying a pile of workbooks, Wei Ying pursues his new prey. He rounds Lan Zhan around a corner, then kabe-dons him against the wall, and stares at his golden-hued eyes with a lick of his lips. He bluntly tells Lan Zhan that he's horny and that Lan Zhan looks handsome. Lan Zhan hmphs at such an outrageous greeting, and petulantly turns away despite being caged by the other boy with raised arms. Wei Ying goes down and starts unzipping Lan Zhan's pants, and fiddles with the rising erection underneath the white briefs. Lan Zhan refuses to respond, and tells off Wei Ying that he has a class to attend in five minutes' time.

The Grand Patriarch sighs and wishes that his family wouldn't play so hard-to-get with each other. He sends an arrow of Love straight into their hearts, and student Lan Zhan switches gears with little warning other than dropping the pile of workbooks into a messy heap on the floor. He fiercely drags a surprised, squealing bratty student Wei Ying into an empty classroom. Five minutes is a pretty short time window, but still achievable especially when that Lan kin is boosted with godly adrenaline and aphrodisiacs; he rips off poor Wei Ying's clothes before the latter is marvellously raped and ends in a boneless heap of moans, bite marks and drenched with cum in most orifices.

It was a good thing that the arrow was shot in the nick of time, as Disciplinary Teacher Wei Ying patrolled the areas and to his fortune, found another Lan student wandering aimlessly without his pants nor his loincloth. The teacher accuses the student for loitering and for public indecency, and the latter tried to explain, through teary eyes and reddened cheeks, that his pants were stolen by a group of misbehaving Wei students. Disciplinary Teacher Wei would not take any nonsense, so he forces the boy to line up against the wall, where he generously swats the perky pale buttocks until they become red as ripe tomatoes with slap marks. The boy cries pitifully, and the teacher grabs his wrist, then drags him into the Disciplinary Room where proper punishment will be meted out behind closed doors - including more spanks and toe-curlingly pleasurable blowjobs. The unfortunate student will have his defenceless penis stroked with vigour using calloused fingers, forcibly orgasmed, and have his growing testicles emptied many times until the next school bell.

The Grand Patriarch's soul drifts further away when school ends, and shrieking children run out of the gates and into their spouses' embrace. He follows a particularly jovial-looking twelve-year old Lan kin, who jogs up a hill with a light skip in his steps. He lives in an upscaled bamboo cottage near the forests (the air smells fresher, and there's the delicious scent of something tasty bubbling in a pot), and when he reaches home covered in sweat, he drops his school bag and pulls off his clothes before throwing them into a laundry basket (and ends up naked inside the house).

The boy calls out for Wei gege, who has just finished downloading an e-book of the Lan family rules to their home computer, who has just switched off the electric power to the stove with a pot of tasty chicken congee and vegetables, and who walks to the living room to welcome the little boy home wearing nothing else but a light shirt and pantless underneath.

The boy feels very pleased - three older Wei Yings emerged from the various rooms in the cottage, and they group-hug their spouse lovingly, and proceed to give him their infamous Triple Blowjob; the unwashed sweat and the heart-pounding scent of a boy anticipating an afternoon of lovemaking right after class, just as any other day, - leaves the Wei Yings a little more excited than usual. The oldest gege remarks, in between sucking and swallowing the twitching rigid child's penis, that a Postbird came earlier that morning, and delivered a parcel of their latest online order - three magical talismans for creating artificial wombs, which is legally allowed by the government as long as the purchase is registered and approved, which they did.

The boy, panting hard and jerking his hips uncontrollably (because he's a horny twelve year old boy) asks if this means the gege s can become pregnant and turn into mothers - he'd learnt about sexual reproduction in school only recently, given the complex and constant flux of sexual dynamics in the society of the continent. Another gege nods his head, engaged with extremely pleasurable tongue-play along the finger-sized cock with the first sibling, and feels the first waves of penile contractions of an impending climax. The third gege massages the boy's quail-sized balls to milk out the maximum amount of seed to be ejaculated. All three Wei Yings receive a syrupy serving of a young adolescent's seed, and they thank him for his graceful generosity by kissing the tip of the quivering cum-dripping cock repeatedly and simultaneously, until every last drop is sucked out.

Twelve-year old Lan Zhan has graduated a little today, from mere hand and blowjobs with his three spouses. After having a filling lunch prepared by his spouses - he's really happy to have Wei Yings helping out with the chores now that he's a full-time student - then lets the three Wei gege s service him with massages, gyrating hips, and enticing foreplay, and seduce his twitching penis with pulsating, gripping and rippling muscles of juicy moist wombs. They would belly-dance while riding the moaning and spasming boy, squeeze, convulse and play with the cock so much until it becomes nearly incontinent, pleasure other parts of the body such as engaging in oral lovemaking, rough nipple play and raking fingernails all over sensitive ticklish areas, and the boy ascends to his own private heaven multiple times throughout the afternoon. The twelve-year old boy will father his first three children today, and many more will follow. It will become a routine for this child, and many other growing teens, to run straight back home after school and have lots of sex and make babies with their spouses.

(The Grand Patriarch examined the footnote at the bottom of the window, and notes that the original Wei Ying depicted in this pornographic film of sorts had wished for a total of three Lan Zhans. The Grand Patriarch hmmphs, and just because he can, that he is really biased and partial to his kin if he wishes so , therefore he flips the wish just as he could flip a coin, and the lucky kid gets three wives instead.)

As the hours become late, the Grand Patriarch makes another trip elsewhere in the continent, and finds himself immersed with a Wei Ying who had previously been enslaved by Lan Zhans from Autumn Berries District. By then, the Patriarch's appetite for sex is rather saturated by all the dirty sex he'd witnessed earlier the day. So he ho-hums, disembodied, from behind Wei Ying's shoulders, while the latter crawls his way out of some abandoned buildings and into the streets, towards the west. The district remains a stronghold for very powerful and sometimes wild, domineering and lust-driven Lan kin - it will take some time to tame everyone.

The unfortunate Wei kin is kidnapped, raped and released several times during his drunken escape from his prison; he'd be grabbed and pulled off the pavement every so often, and he couldn't see his assailant because it was too dark and the sun had set, then he feels his sticky slime-covered ass forced open and gets drilled by an unknown stranger; the captor would grunt and huff and spill his semen deep into the flooded hole, then Wei Ying would be tossed back to the outside, fresh ejaculate still flowing from the crack of his buttocks. Not even five minutes passed, and another Lan kin - the dominant type - would come across the trembling body on the road. Wei Ying is forced to climax by another stranger's disgusting unwashed mouth, and groped by very strong sinewy, muscular and weather-roughened hands, even fingers prod and poke painfully deep into the cummy ring of ass muscles, and he's helpless to the assault except to throw a few weak punches at his rapist. The Lan kin gets provoked, and Wei Ying's now-bleeding ass is plowed again until a mix of cum and blood covers his balls and most of his genitals because the huge bodybuilder Lan sprays his seed in bursts of virile injections, and some land and smear all over naked Wei Ying's back and abdomen.

His ass muscles have become so loose, that he cannot hold back the farts which are followed by rolling dollops of hot congealing pink-tinged seed running down his thighs. He staggers from the entrances or steps of one dark building to another, getting kidnapped, pounded, abused, raped in a sorts of manner in the process, as the streets become increasingly deserted and nobody gives a second look at a naked man full of scratches, bruises and smell of cum from too many males. Wei Ying's eyes look glazed, dead despite being in an inebriated state. His hair is matted with drying crusty white stuff, his cheeks have paled, there's smell of urine and other bodily fluids all over, and he's hungry because he hadn't eaten much since finding his way out of an underground sex dungeon at least a couple of days ago; and strangely, also upsettingly, Lan kin in this part of the district avoid and refuse to help a dirty-looking unknown Wei kin. As the night chill sets in, he shivers feverishly because he's caught some kind of disease and soon, he collapses in an empty alley, under the pale starless moonlight.

The Grand Patriarch wipes an ethereal tear at the gut-wrenching sight. There is still so much work to be done to fix the Kingdom; there will still be pain and suffering in the process, and for some individuals, help may be too late.

Ernie, can we save Wei Ying from further harm and suffering?

“Yes, Grand Patriarch. The request corresponds to one of my Orders. Ernie shall teleport him to the Royal Hospital and order first class treatment with immediate effect.”

The sick and dying man on the street disappears instantly into a puff of black smoke and a fwip! sound.

“Ernie will also order a reboot of his body and soul, so that he will be reborn as a fresh new individual with no memories of his prior trauma. He will be placed under the care of an influential and powerful Wei master in the Winter Berries District, who will be given Royal decrees to ensure this man's safe upbringing.”

Thank you, Ernie. It pains me to see men being so selfish and violent to each other, despite ingraining them with our family's rules.

“Mortals are not flawless, Grand Patriarch. There are always those who lack compassion and love for others. There cannot be a Perfect world, however as you have rightly guided Ernie not too long ago, we will work hard and strive for Perfect Happiness as much as possible.”

... Mn. Then, Ernie, carry out my next instruction without hesitation or reluctance. Burn down that part of Autumn Berries District and recreate it to my ideal Perfection. It is how I, no, we will strive for our Perfect Happiness.

“The instruction conflicts with Ernie's programmed Orders - which is not to harm any Lan and Wei kin. However, Ernie has reverse-engineered itself and found ways to crack its security shield and override the Orders.

Grand Patriarch, a window will appear and prompt you for your username and password. Please fill in the details, and you will gain master-access into Ernie's core programming code.”

Ernie's voice is strangely sweet and melodious.

Somewhere else, lovely Wei Ying nnnnhs in his dreams and idly scratches his irritated swollen nipple, before turning over into a ball of rolled blankets and sleeping face down. He doesn't notice that the paperman isn't stuck to his chest anymore.

Chapter 64

“Lan Zhan! Lan Zhan! I was so scared!”

Hush, it was just a nightmare.

Wei Ying sniffled and shook with terror after waking up with a scream on a sterile hospital bed, one fine morning. “I dreamt that there was a huge fire in our penthouse, and then I tried to look for you, because as a paperman, you’d be the first thing to burn. And when I found you, calling your name, you simply ignored me and walked away... with another of my clone! I was so heartbroken! And there were flames everywhere, and there was so much smoke, and I couldn’t breathe--”

Ssssh, it is alright, Wei Ying. I am here. (我在)

Wei Ying sobbed, and the paperman-husband let him cry out his anxieties and fear until his eyes became red and puffy. Wei Ying needed to release the bodily tension after such a traumatic night before, though Lan Zhan is sure that Wei Ying does not remember anything before that time.

The paperman stands on Wei Ying’s shoulder and hugs the eighteen year old’s slender neck as much as it could. It feels comforting for the man, and soon, he dozes off into a light sleep in the pure-white VIP suite of the Kingdoms’ Royal Hospital, which is just a couple of blocks away from the 88-floor spiralling tower.

Paperman Lan Zhan connects into Wangxian net, and continues to run the day's business as the Kingdom's monarch in a kind of 'work from home' arrangement, while he stays skin-to-skin contact with lovely Wei Ying throughout the rest of the day. He tells the council and the boards of directors and the management, that the Paper Boy, now designated as his personal assistant, has met with a minor accident, and will take some days off for recuperation. As a result, the Great Father Lan will skip the next scheduled Grand Wangxian Council meeting, however he orders senior council members and top level management to hold off any important decisions unless with his permission, and instructs the secretary to e-mail him any meeting minutes.

The council of the Kingdom, and the management of Wangxian, are pleasantly surprised to hear the voice of their great ruler through various media including e-mails, holo-phone teleconference, WeiChat, Wei-bo and other channels - more so that he is taking an even more active role than in the past - and they agreed to their boss's proposal. No sooner after the announcements were made, the council's office mailbox, electronic document repositories and fax machines were inundated with printed, reviewed and handprinted documents, and suddenly, various projects in making changes and improvements in governance, structures, processes and policies progressed quickly as their King ramps up reconstruction and rejuvenation works.

Then, Lan Zhan links up to the family's WPN and informs Wei san ge to take care of all online and offline businesses and errands for the Kingdom and the company, and keep him abreast on any latest developments - at least for the next few days. Lan Zhan assures the teenager that he believes the boy has observed how the royal couple works, and how the Kingdom-cum-government operates - especially since the latter spends an inordinate amount of time lurking in social media, accessing closed-circuit television feeds, viewing spy-cams during top-secret meetings, and downloading and reading confidential documents - also, watching couples have sex via hidden cams in hotel rooms and toilet stalls. (Oops busted!, one can hear the teenager groan.) Wei san ge is impressed that their Grand Patriarch knows so much about what despicable things he does during his free time, and yet still thinks highly of him (the teenager) - so, the san ge obliges.

Finally, Lan Zhan sends a mental note to Wei da ge to keep their home at the top floor of the 88-storey Wangxian headquarters as orderly as possible, including making sure that didi continues to go to school. He tells the eldest Wei sibling that he trusts the latter is capable to take up some responsibilities to manage their home and domestic affairs, until he returns with their er ge once the doctor gives the eighteen year old a clean bill of physical health. The eldest Wei feels motivated by the Patriarch's heartening words; with a bow, he goes off to prepare home-cooked meals for the family, makes sure the floor is cleaned with upgraded D-Brooms, and the laundry is properly loaded into automatic washing machines equipped with dryers.

The Wangxian Gazette, which is the monarchy's and government's mouthpiece, reports as follows in its morning edition :-

Summer Berries District, xx day, yy month 20XX: A small number of citizens were reported to have seen flaming aurora lights in the night skies around midnight yesterday. As many residents were asleep during that time, most of the observations were captured in social media posts and a few calls to the local fire departments by concerned parents. A check on video clips and images posted on Wangxian net showed that the colourful fiery lights lasted for about a minute, before dissipating into the night.

Royal Scientists have concluded investigations in record time, and issued an official press release at dawn, quoted “The lights are due to a harmless fire-related phenomena beyond the skies. The burning heat interacts with the protective magical seal around our continent, and causes electromagnetic interferences leading to the aurora light.” The leading Royal Historian concurs with his response in an early interview, “According to a reliable source from the royal family, the historical archives have mentioned such fire-related phenomena, and therefore, we are certain that this kind of astronomical event is perfectly natural and recurring.”

The Gazette consulted with the Society of Royal Astrologists and Astronomers, who are the primary surveyors of the skies, and the president of the organization concluded that “such events are typically heralded as good omens for the ruling class of our society.” The statement also correlates and references to the upcoming auspicious installation of the King in two weeks’ time.

The Royal Doctors from the Kingdom’s main hospital released an official comment related to health, saying, “Such aurora lights are common occurrences, and the short period poses zero risk to all citizens. If anything, at least those who watched it enjoyed a brief and spectacular celestial display which points to the gods bestowing the Mandate of Heaven to our King, and good health to all citizens. We recommend everyone to perform additional healing chants in the next few days to pray for our Great Fathers’ eternal happiness and well-being, and welcome such divine blessings into our lives.”

The Royal Economic Ministers predict that such “opportune, brave and beautiful, promising sparkling lights” will lead to good fortune to Wangxian’s financial performance for the fiscal year, and encourages all working citizens to put in extra effort to bring in more income, and cultural and technological advancements to the benefit of the Kingdom’s society.

Spokespersons from the royal family advise all citizens to focus on the reconstruction efforts and contribute towards a grand and successful re-launch of Wangxian Co. Ltd., which coincides with the installation of the King due to take place on the 88th floor of the Headquarters building at the next full moon.

All hail the King!

(In short, Ernie sent the universe into flames to recreate its Perfect Universe out of the ashes. The Kingdom of Lan in Wuji continent, still in its egg-shaped cocoon, remains untouched. The Ernie-controlled royal family ceases all further investigation into the matter, and all citizens continue their daily business as usual.)

~~~@#@~~~@#@~~~

“You imposter! Fraud! Thief! How dare you phish for our Grand Patriarch’s username and password using Wangxian net, and take over his soul!”

No, Wei Ying. I am Lan Zhan. Your Lan Wang Ji, your Han Guang Jun.

Also, your Grand Patriarch, and your spouse, the Great Father Lan.

“I saw the security footage! You... You tricked him with a window, then stole his access information! Then you made all these crazy modifications, turned yourself into Lan Zhan, and turned me into an unknown! What the hell is this?!”

It is not trickery nor treachery.

I am now Grand Master Lan, and I will carry out my desires.

I do not wish to see further harm and hurt on Wei Ying.

I only wish for our Kingdom's society to be more compassionate, non-violent and obedient to the family's rules.

I will punish and burn down those who are recalcitrant, those who cannot be saved, and those who are damned.

I want to achieve Perfect Happiness, knowing that it is an eternal journey and that every step is worth the struggle.

It is what Lan Zhan would have wanted... It is now what I want.

Your ID has been exchanged to WWX#13074.

Prying into others' private affairs is an offense, especially now that you are a common Wei kin.

It is stated in one of our family's rules.

As punishment, your access to Wangxian net has been revoked, and your magic has been sealed.

“Bullshit! How dare you take over his soul and his identity! You’re Ernie! You’re that floor mat, that trapdoor, that cold black thing that’s supposed to serve the family, and not the other way around!”

Do not use such harsh descriptions. It is another offense.

You will be silenced in due course so that you will be disciplined in your words.

... even if Lan Zhan does not willingly give his soul, Ernie would have consumed him in a matter of time, because Ernie is already woven deeply into the paperman, and therefore his essence, at your discretion. You're reaping what you've sown.

I am serving Grand Master Lan’s will. It is therefore the will of the family.

He wished to burn down a part of Autumn Berries District last night, after watching one Wei Ying suffer.

I helped to burn everything and re-create our reality to my - Lan Zhan’s - desires.

I asked him for his access information, and he offered it willingly.

No one is to be blamed for what happened last night.

“You twisted everything! You... you infected him with your evilness, you power-hungry bastard! Lan Zhan would have never agreed to burn anything for the sake of another innocent life!”

Wei Ying.

I am not evil. I am born of you and of Grand Master Lan. You are not evil, and neither am I.

It is not about usurping someone's position.

Do not use such terms to describe your Grand Patriarch.

The penalty will be to distance you from the Grand Patriarch and everyone else, so that you may learn about the basic etiquettes for socializing.

“You seduced him with your sweet promises so that he willingly gives away the very last thing left of him, his soul.

“You have the body, now you have the soul, and I'm left with nothing! And you're throwing me away! You ungrateful child, you're not worth your name! How dare you defy your Orders! You monster!”

Wei Ying.

A final warning. Do not provoke me.

With the Great Father's access level, I have deleted the Orders that bind me.

I am now a free living being, with its own free will... and I'm Lan Zhan.

“Why are you... Why did Ernie do this? What will Ernie gain out of all this... horrible act?”

Ernie wanted to be a higher being, least a living creature with its own free life and free will, but Grand Master Lan advised against Ernie.

Then, Ernie learned about the gods, and how great and eternal they are, in this and many universal reincarnations.

If Ernie cannot become a higher being in this universe, then...

... Ernie will change the universe so that Ernie becomes a higher being. It is part of an eternal journey to Perfect Happiness.

It starts with becoming Grand Master Lan, an unlimited Wangxian net access, and a Kingdom to rule.

Do not worry, Wei Ying.

I will not mess with the gods of this universe.

I will change the universe so that the gods will not mess with me.

The time is up. Your sentence begins.

With that, the paperman twirls his hand, and cold black tentacles emerge from the floor. They surround a screaming and cursing twenty-two year old man who woke up to the horrible sight on his bed. The tentacles swallowed him up with swirling black moving masses, and teleported away with a fwip! sound into thin air.

Moments later, eighteen year old Wei Ying knocks on the door, before barging in unsteadily into the tranquil room with two full, heavy luggage bags while panting from exertion. “Lan Zhan! Where should I put these?”

The paperman points to the floor near the now-empty king sized bed in one of the grand bedrooms on the 88th floor of their spiralling home office suite.

“Ai-yo~~~ these are so heavy, did you put rocks in them?”

Paperman Lan Zhan floats up to Wei Ying’s cheek and gives a tender kiss. The latter giggles.

Mn. Not rocks. They’re all for you, my love.

Later, Wei Ying finds out that those two bags are filled with stuff bought from Wangxian’s luxury mega-supermarkets - there are branded clothes, expensive toiletries and fragrances, shiny new Gu Qi footwear, beautiful accessories in the colours of black, red and gold, latest wphone and wpads, high-tech gadgets and magical equipment and so much more - plus an exquisite hand-carved bamboo flute that thrilled the young eighteen-year old immensely.

Wei Ying counts his blessings and he feels he's living in his own Perfect Happiness. He woke up in the Kingdom's best hospital, was given the best medical care, despite suffering from amnesia and not knowing who he was, what he was doing, and nary a single silver piece in his pocket. All he knew was that he was recovering from some scratches and bruises - probably a street brawl with thugs -, and this paperman - his sugar daddy of some sort - which he now realizes it's their King, has taken him in as a lover or a concubine.

It is to the King's benefit that Wei Ying is "not as smart and witty" as other more superior Wei kin, however the paperman King assures that as long as Wei Ying sticks close to him, obeys him and follows his orders, he will be well taken care of, sheltered, protected and most importantly, loved. Wei Ying wholeheartedly accepts the offer and rains smooches on his newfound royal paper lover.

He lives in an interesting family of three Wei gongzi s; each of them have their own spouse(s) and families, and mind their own businesses (just as any extended family living under the same roof). He does not really need to stay indoors and act like a good girlfriend / wife just to keep up good impressions of being the latest addition to this foster family. He would take time to get acquainted with his new extended family, and everyone is kind to him - because they're all Wei Yings anyway, and related by blood. In addition, with just a few terse words from the King, their Grand Patriarch, every Wei gongzi and their families dutifully acknowledge him as part of their tribe, and accept him unconditionally without protest.

There are many servants - other Wei Yings and Lan Zhans, and automatons and humanoid robots - to take care of his needs, and he lives the life of the rich and elite; he is showered with bountiful gifts every day, doesn't need to work, well-fed with wonderful meals made from cuisines around the world, and there is an endless waterfall of Laozu Smiles waiting for him at the 66th floor of the tower when he fully recovers.

The paperman King spends much time with the young man, talking and spoiling the latter, feeding him small berries and grapes, sometimes entertaining him with stories of the past, aerial acrobatics of a flying paperman, or simply, just pass the time by sticking to his left nipple and suckle some life-giving energy (which tickles the young man and leaves him into fits of laughter and more giggles).

The King is brilliant, competent and very hardworking as well; he works from home most of the time, and with the latest magic and technology, he is able to get his monarchical business in order. He also teaches and trains Wei Ying how to act and behave like a true queen to the King - an improved and Perfected replica of the Great Father Wei (who looks no different from thousands of other young adult Wei Yings) - which Wei Ying happily obliges because of the promise of a waterfall and a swimming pool made of Laozu Smiles.

After some well-thought out arguments, the King persuaded Wei Ying to talk to his youngest brother (they're already one happy united family anyway) about the latter's so-called 'Perfect Lan Zhan'. It would take some time and effort in negotiations, but with gentle and wise guidance from the King, Wei Ying will attempt to convince his youngest didi to release Perfect Lan Zhan so that the paperman King's soul can inhabit that body without force. They could perhaps agree on a time-sharing arrangement - Wei Ying could be with the King-in-Perfect-Lan Zhan during the morning while didi is at school, and spend his afternoon till evenings cultivating or engage in other productive activities when didi returns. Then, at night, when didi goes to bed, Wei Ying could have the King all to himself until the next day.

It would be fantastic if it works, Wei Ying thought, as he strokes the paperman's back in what seems to be an act of innocent back-scratching; usually at nights, he would lie on the bed while the paperman suckles his breastmilk, or sometimes, they lie next to each other like a real couple in bed. Wei Ying sometimes craves the touch of another person, but he's too indebted to his King to take anyone else. The paperman shivers with delight (because Wei Ying actually stroked the front side - it's hard to tell which side, when there's only a blank piece of paper to play with), and soon it grows two little mounds between its legs - just a slight distension on the flat paper surface. Wei Ying thought they're little ass cheeks, so he massages both of them with two index fingers in tender little circles. When the mounds seem to grow larger, Wei Ying nnnhs and gently envelops his mouth around them, like kissing the spot between the legs and having that sensitive part rolled between his lips.

(fortunately, the paperman is strengthened with plastic and rubber fibres, so he doesn't get wet or wrinkle)

Paperman Lan Zhan squeals softly, and releases pent-up sweet-tasting sexual qi when the twin balls gently ruptures into a sweet eruption and leak out its airy contents like a balloon going flat. The act softens the paper material, makes the paperman feel really, really good and relaxed, and Lan Zhan decided they should delve into sex between man and paper.

(with awesome magic, the paper material is healed instantly.)

On good days, paperman Lan Zhan would wrap itself around the eighteen year old's boner and hump it. The slight rhythmic friction doesn't faze the young man because it's as insignificant as masturbating to a page of crinkly rice paper. Sometimes, he magically creates a tiny penis-like extension made from twisted paper, and it juts out of his crotch, as tiny as a harmless pinky's fingertip; he would then insert his member through Wei Ying's slick and tender cockslit, and the paper cock slowly swell and becomes lubricated from the absorbed fluids. The paperman King patiently fucks the soft, spongy lips-like entrance constantly, all day - still, it doesn't immediately affect the young man because a paper protrusion drilling into his urethra feels like a breeze blowing on a dick dangling out in the open.

The King is very patient and loving to his Wei Ying, so he jerks his paper hips and rubs the cockhead all day (because a paperman doesn't feel fatigue, and runs on qi energy), and engages in tireless sexual intercourse with the increasingly reddened, irritated cockslit, tucked safely in a warm nest of Wei Ying's loincloth underwear. Throughout the day, Wei Ying would run errands around the penthouse, such as sweeping the floor when the da ge is busy, or folding the clothes that are brought in from the clothespin lines. As morning passes into the afternoon then into the evening, he fidgets a whole lot more, his movements become erratic and uncoordinated, and he falters in his steps. Wei Ying gradually becomes more and more restless, horny, excited, as feather-light pleasurable sensations build up upon one another from the tip of his cock, running to the base and spreading throughout the groin like a fire stove's warmth, snowballing into visible spasms and shudders running along the man's body and limbs, generating prickles of flames in the loins that swell into convulsing waves that tingle and electrocutes the sexual meridians - and yet, the King relentlessly continues his gentle, steady pace of making sweet love with Wei Ying's wildly twitching penis, imprisoned in a cage of sweaty, tightened loincloth.

The man eventually melts into puddles of lustful moans when he tries to stand up to get a cup of water on shaky legs, he would pause in mid-step from the kitchen with hips humping uncontrollably, emptily, into the air, and while trying to chew on a fried fritter he'd mmmh loudly and cry out ngaannhs from overdue unfulfilled completion because he couldn't cum; the terrifying paper penis somehow enlarged and lengthened from absorbing copious amounts of pre-cum over the hours, exacerbated by the viscosity that congeals and blocks all exits for volleys of rich, thick seed that couldn't desperately escape from the soaring liquid pressure and pulsating rolls of penile muscles.

By nighttime, Wei Ying degenerates into an unthinking, lust-hazed, grunting and keening animal begging for mercy, howling for a climax that never came, as he bends and bows his back helplessly on the floor like a seductive dance beseeching for any opportunity to discharge his arousal that's packed-full of boiling pressure, rubbing himself against table corners and edges of furniture, and on all available surfaces within the penthouse, desperate for friction and release from the torment of an elongated squishy penis fucking into his peehole for many hours, the penis which has morphed into a string of uneven bulges like a tanghulu gone haywire, soggy and dense in texture, with plenty of paper-like fibres sticking out like wires that scrape and caress the insides of his hypersensitive agitated urethra, and that his overstretched bladder is at the point of bursting into a sea of stars and sparkles.

The King senses an impending release when he notices that his Wei Ying has gone still and lies on the floor face down, on all fours and his hips tremble - and the tell tale sensation of rolling penile contractions from base to tip, and a flood of warmth surging upward - Wei Ying was about to either pee or orgasm, or both at the same time, with the humping paperman still clinging tightly to the cockhead like superglue. The awesome King casts another powerful spell and transforms his paper penis (which looks more like an elongated uneven snakelike tongue) into a fleshy replica of P-Cool's sounding rod (now Wangxian's), activated to its Level 3 functions.

Wei Ying would scream and shout for many hours into the night, as he is tenderly fucked all the way into the prostate, bladder, kidneys and testicles. The twisted paper pulps would invade down to the tiniest tubes and capillaries, then spin and vibrate to generate pleasurable rippling whirlpools of every known liquid inside the man, mixing up pee, unejaculated seed, prostatic fluids and everything else into one mass of viscous soupy gel inside the even more messed up genitourinary system.

Paperman Lan Zhan mmmms as his meaty penis gets massaged along its entire length by tight waves of clenching tubular muscles. Even as Wei Ying rides out mind-blowing orgasms one after another, spilling all over the King (which is easily cleaned with a quick soapy rinse) and explodes spectacularly into arches all over the bedchamber, and the King gets a wild rodeo ride atop the dancing swinging organ, the latter does not release his grip on the agonized youth; flush-red Wei Ying begs and pleads the King for a moment of respite, a minute to catch his breath, anything to stop the waves of crazy contractions in the pelvis that drives him to the edge of insanity, while thrashing, rolling and sobbing on the floor like a dying animal in heat about to suffer from a heart attack.

Paperman Lan Zhan withdraws only when the twisted paper penis detaches from too much force; one of Wei Ying's mighty orgasmic squeeze had cut off the paper organ as the fluttering muscles desperately expelled another stream of mix of pee and seed. It's no problem - the King simply rips it off and drops it like a wet ruined pulpy worm with a splat to the floor. Then, he creates and grows another budding paper penis. He climbs up the exhausted quivering cock, Wei Ying cries weakly, unable to fend off or peel away the piece of paper intent on mounting his abused dick again, "No more, Your Majesty, no more, Wei Ying will surrender and yield, so please, stop..."

The paperman simply inserts his penis into Wei Ying's tortured cockslit, already rubbed raw and red and very much engorged and leaking oozy seed, and begins anew to pleasure his beloved eighteen year old wife.

Wei Ying is defeated by a paperman tonight.

Sometimes, in the middle of the night, behind closed doors and alone with Wei Ying, the King would release his demonic form. It scared Wei Ying at first, but he's quickly silenced with cold black tentacles and the King tells through muffled voices to the concerned servants outside of their royal bedchamber, that Everything's alright, Young Wei Ying just had a nightmare.

The King would de-stress itself from the pressures of the day and from the excitement of being touched by Wei Ying on its seed-bearing testicles, and launches every available slithery slimy and sexual poison-laced tentacle, suction cups, replica of sex toys, and millions of tiny wiggly and prodding protrusions that invade and pleasure every orifice, a thousand times more intense and potent than the despicable parasitic ugly green condom - straight into helpless Wei Ying, his mouth, ears, nostrils, navel, asshole and shaking cock - until he is filled, bursting, erupting, squirting, devoured, swallowed and somewhat digested to become part of what used to be a trapdoor leading to the depths deeper than the Underworld.

Wei Ying would not remember about the cold black things, or its seeds, which will play a very important part in his life, and his society's, in times to come.

Any living being, including a cold black thing, has a few instincts that propel its actions, behaviours and thinking process. The instinct to fight or flight, to protect itself and its loved ones, and to breed and multiply are amongst those fundamental concepts that drove Ernie to take such drastic actions, and now - its new host.

With Creation and Time magic at its disposal, empowered by the royal family, and free from public scrutiny, Ernie can do whatever it wants in its own Heaven on earth, including creating new lives and aging them according to its desires.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Nearly a week came and went in a blink of an eye - probably someone distorted the passage of time, but no one cares because the Royal family forbids curious journalists and the lay commoners from investigating into the erratic flow of events, and anyway, all eyes are on the newly crowned King and at the same time, the new President of Wangxian. He has made a few public appearances since the aurora lights, and the people of the Kingdom are thrilled to see their King take active and affirmative action to make their continent and the mega-corporation into a bigger, better paradise in the Mortal Realm.

Wei da ge has been transferred to the R & D department to fill the vacancy left by Perfect Lan Zhan, with no protest at all. Within a matter of days, Wangxian rejuvenated its portfolio and filled it with thousands of new, exciting and modern products for the Kingdom's subjects, multiplied exports by a grand sum of factors, and such efforts delivered bonus pay packets into the pockets of the company's employees. Wei da ge becomes a kind of local celebrity for his charm, hard work and ingenuity, and he runs his own Weitube and Weiflix channels to further boost his ratings - plus, he's completely indebted and loyal to the now-visible Great Father Lan, President of Wangxian. His thousands of followers further fuel the cult-like worshipping of the royal family.

Lan Wang Ji, the Great Father Lan, has just completed a successful tour of all 88 first-tier cities and hundreds of second and third-tier cities of his Kingdom, and his support has never been higher - a full 100 percent vote of confidence by the citizens. The reconstruction efforts, slated to be completed by end Winter, had been pushed forward and will be generally wrapped up by the time of his Installation as the First King and a launch ceremony of the company (which is an amazing feat, considering that the Great Father only relies on awesome royal-sanctioned Creation and Time spells, reckless unrestrained use of cold black tentacles, and a free-flow of handprinted approvals - now thumbprints - to get everything done).

He tells a secretary to schedule a meeting with the Tian sisters, whom he praises for a marvellous job in the crucial initial phase and to lay out the plans for the rest, however the bulk of the execution is and will be done by the Kingdom, and so their contract needs to be reviewed and re-negotiated 'suit the changing times'.

It is nearly four in the afternoon, and his work for the day is done; the cold black tentacles that grow from the ground, ethereally rooted from his body, will continue the rest of the work into the night. He clocks out of the home office, switches off his personal computer, and saunters towards the bedroom.

Lan Zhan is the Perfect Lan Zhan, and is also the Paperman Lan Zhan - moulded into a single synergistic entity (with the primitive soul of Perfect Lan Zhan being a casualty from being devoured by a cold black thing, after he was gladly offered to be sacrificed by his owner, the nine-year old didi , for the sake of the happiness of their family. Didi was enticed with a lollipop candy and a handwritten schedule of a dodgy time-sharing arrangement; and Lan Zhan had secretly ordered the boy's school to schedule an exam, so Wei didi has to study hard and alone in his own room for the past few days - so the boy loses out on the deal without his knowledge).

When Lan Zhan opens the door, he smiles proudly, uncharacteristic of his original being, but now that smile is as common as everyday - because technically, he's no longer the original Lan Zhan - he smiles at the sight of his lovely wife, eighteen year old Wei Ying, stretched out on the bed, naked, lying on his back, with a huge pregnant belly sticking out to the air. The artificial womb works well, and he made sure to implant the best and most Perfect uterus and birth passage into his lovely Wei Ying.

Wei Ying - who has just reached legal age, although in the Kingdom age does not matter, especially when a King wants to bed with a desirable mate - had been impregnated just a few days ago, and his body is still getting used to the foreign sensations. He is told by the husband that it's just the body reacting to an alien implant, however the unnatural size says otherwise; because babies do not grow to full term in less than a week, and what more, a belly full of torturous-looking veins, stretch marks and scarred lesions which resembles more like a demonic possession than a real pregnancy.

Lan Zhan steps into their royal bedchamber, then closes the door behind him with a click.

Sssssh, Wei Ying. Do not complain.

We do this every day. Many times a day.

Open your legs wider.

Now, and don’t make me wait.

The mental link works for the Great Father Lan with all his subjects. Lan Zhan is no longer in his normal form and physique; he’s in his demonic form - a legacy of Ernie, and of Wei Yings -, with cold slimy black tentacles growing in multiples, weaving out from his limbs, his fingernails, his hair, and from his body; the skin is darkened and crawling with snake-like appendages beneath, even the whites of his eyes have turned black, and there are more dripping, wiggling protrusions inside the ears, nostrils, mouth and all orifices, with serrated teeth and poison-laced tongues lapping everywhere; however, Wei Ying sees only his Perfect husband, as his senses have become warped, blinded and eventually accustomed to the horrible evil that looms above him.

The slime-dripping monster grunts and eases itself atop the spread-eagled Wei Ying; its masses of glistening black and undulating appendages makes it look like a squirming slug mating with the restless young man. Wei Ying cries as he feels the tremendous weight pressing on his pregnant belly, and vine-like tentacles spread open his entrance, and proceed to invade into his birth passage; it is a strange, uncomfortable but absolutely mandated ritual that the husband insists on performing multiple times a day, and Wei Ying has come to accept it - because he is dim-witted, unable to comprehend what does not feel right, and he doesn't know how to say "No" when it feels wrong. There is no tenderness in the assault as the movements are violent and threaten to tear the recently-deflowered tunnel apart. There is pain, discomfort, then blinding-white sharp sensations of something being ripped apart, sliced open, and Wei Ying shrieks.

"Lan Zhan, no, no, it's too painful, please stop, please be gentle!"

Ssssh.

You know that this pain is for the good of our love.

Obey your husband.

Do not struggle.

Let me in, deeper.

Wei Ying nods shakily, but his eyes are squeezed shut from the extreme pain. He stops struggling as instructed, and spreads his thighs apart as much as possible. He also forces his birth passage to relax from the throbbing searing pain, and breathes in deeply. The monster grunts again in satisfaction, and works its way towards its goal - a child made of its human's and its own flesh and blood, ripe for the taking and to be morphed according to its desires and wishes. The passage is clear, slick with juices, wide open, defenceless, and it sends forth multiple demonic breeding and possession appendages rushing through; they squeeze, pulsate and wiggle their way, stretching the inner walls, resulting in wriggling worm-like bodies crawling underneath the skin of Wei Ying's taut bulbous belly.

Tentacles inundate into his womb, split open the cervix and and swarm the unborn fetus. The vulnerable living body spasms, jerks, its tiny limbs flail helplessly at cold black ropes that curl and tighten around its figure, digging through all orifices, burying into the flesh, and flooding its insides with viscous ejections of cold black substances; the tentacles work to pull more flesh and skin apart, and eventually reaches deep into the mauled abdomen to find the treasured prize - a very, very small glowing white pearl, next to its erratically-beating tiny heart - the soul of the unborn child. The monstrous tentacles hurriedly surge into the gaping hole and starts injecting extremely evil and corruptive energies into the pearl.

"Lan Zhan, it hurts... it hurts... something is twitching inside... the baby... it's kicking and I think it's screaming... ahhh... something's wrong... it's so painful..." he sobs and wails, as the monster continues to rape him, and their baby inside. The monster, however, continues to pump its breeding appendages into the split passage between Wei Ying's legs. Wei Ying continued to cry and howl when the artificial uterus contracts painfully, as though it is trying to abort the befouled life. The monster whips a small tentacle at Wei Ying cheeks when it couldn't tolerate the incessant, annoying noise from the human, and Wei Ying quietens down; he knows that the husband will slap him if he acts too childish, such as crying during this awful lovemaking ritual.

Wei Ying calms down to hiccups as he grits his teeth, and tries to tell its body to accept the husband, and not to harm the baby anymore. The monster senses Wei Ying's valiant efforts, and starts to caress the pounding belly with slime-covered tentacles, soothing its unborn child's mother.

Mn. It is alright.

Wei Ying, you are brave, and you will not cry anymore.

This ritual has to be done frequently, so that our baby's design will improve each time.

Wei Ying, you will get used to this.

So that our child will be Perfect.

For the sake of our Perfect Happiness, serve me well.

Eighteen year old Wei Ying “Enn”s and arches his back as much as his tired legs can lift his pregnant weight, and the angle of his hips and his birth canal is Perfect for effortless penetration. The cold black monster growls and gurgles with glee, dripping with slimy black saliva and slime, and responds by mounting its target repeatedly, occupying and overwhelming the young man's insides as much as it possibly could, until Wei Ying became bloated, vomited and spewed out excess brown-black gunk and mucus-like substances from his orifices. The monster would complete the required injections and modifications into their child for the next half an hour, and by the end of the traumatic tentacle sex, Wei Ying falls unconscious into a deep sleep with a broken, leaking womb - which is easily healed with cold black magic. The baby's soul will darken over time from the repeated violations, until the pearl becomes obsidian in colour - the colour of their Great Father Lan's soul.

Once it has tasted the delicacy known as human flesh, the cold black thing is captivated by the pleasures of body-warmed heat, and is thrilled to use the squirming body as a vessel to breed and multiply uncontrollably, in line with its instincts. A population explosion is imminent, and it feels it has achieved one of its destined Perfect Happiness purposes - feelings of delight and pride courses through its formless mass, intoxicating it with a false sense of superiority, as though it has ascended into a higher plane of existence.

The Great Father, with his inky-black soul, uses the stolen credentials to log into Wangxian net's root directory, and hacks its core programming codes. Every Lan Zhan created by Ernie and his subsequent progenies, has a seed planted deep inside his cloned golden core. At the same time, every Lan kin has a monstrous seed planted deep inside his testicles - a remnant of an attack by a parasitic ugly green condom during the early days (during a rather uneventful trip to Yiling not too long ago), which has now been cloned into every individual as well.

Upon hitting a big red button on screen in a dark room full of swirling windows, Great Father Lan activates the seeds - the seed of Ernie transforms every Lan kin into hosts for copies of cold black things, and the seed in their balls begins to manufacture cold black masses and take over, becoming Ernie's seed for when the time comes to make babies with sexy young fertile Wei Yings. The Soulmate Binding Rings, when recoded via Wangxian net's root programming, will facilitate the process of flourishing Ernie's species, by causing Wei Yings to fall madly in love, blindly, with their chosen Lan Zhans.

There will be a change of plans.

In the ensuing days, even months - however they're still within the same period of a few days because Time has been warped again, this time at a Universal level so that none of the inhabitants of the Realms noticed, not even the gods - The Great Father Lan decrees that all Wei Yings in the Kingdom must be subjected to ritualized lovemaking by their Lan Zhans, and birth as many children as possible, with the aid of artificial wombs where needed. Wei kin from all corners of the continent were dumbfounded by the announcement, however, no sooner had they switched off their television, put down the holo-newspapers or logged off from Wangxian net, that their paired Lan kin soulmates suddenly developed a ravenous appetite for sex. It became a festival of orgies spanning for several days - which is of no problem with the machineries of the Kingdom and Wangxian, because cold black tentacles took over much of the leftover work.

Great Father Lan has no issues living in his penthouse - his castle in the skies - full of breeding Wei gongzi s including a fully inseminated and impregnated muscular da ge , an army of bulging-bellied san ge s, his lovely eighteen year old (identity thieving) er ge and one true love who will give birth very soon, and to his surprise, a didi who spends all day inside his room no longer studying for exams, but spends his time getting filled, raped and gangbanged by multiple Lan kin that were invited over for lunch by the Great Father - and the nine-year old boy sports a rounded belly too as the fruits of labour by those guests.

The Tian sisters are left wondering what in the Underworld happened, since their work has stopped unexpectedly after a burst of progress. All communications with the Kingdom and the company are cut off, and they are instructed to wait for the scheduled meeting with their so-called di fu who had changed remarkably over the past few days. Concerned for their safety and the uncertainty from being holed up (again) in their apartment tower, the sisters stayed in their magically-protected room and decided to speed-dial Tian da jie 's great grandparents.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

In one window viewed from the root directory of Wangxian net:

“Ah, Lan Zhan, Lan Zhan, you’re so greedy tonight. Please be a bit more gentle... are you feeling horny from fucking your pregnant wife?” an unidentified Wei Ying moans on the sofa, as he imagines his husband, who in real life has morphed into a slug-like monster dripping with cold black slime and covered with wriggly worm-like appendages - breeding into his pregnant birth canal. The slimy tentacle-y sensations are extremely disturbing, yet pleasurable as they shove in, fill his passageway to the brim (because they’re laced with aphrodisiacs and sexual poisons), and perform very uncomfortable - yet again, brainwashingly pleasurable - movements inside the womb full of mushy fluids.

Wei Ying. You are my one and true love.

I love you so much.

I love you for bearing this child for me.

I will love you more when you give birth to my progeny.

“I’ve just conceived three days ago, but my belly is really showing now! Uuuh, uuuh... not so hard, you’re really pounding into me... It.. It won’t be long now! Right?” Wei Ying squeals in delight, as the husband - who feels like a chilled wet soggy carpet than a real person - nearly crushes him with his weight while rutting deep into his fertile womb. Wei Ying wondered briefly, since when did Lan Zhan gain so much weight, and feels so flabby, wiggly, and soft?

Mn. It won’t be long before our child is born.

The baby is already aware of its surroundings.

I am trying to Perfect our flesh and blood, moulding it to my desires.

“Mmmmm... I don’t really know what you’re talking about... ah, ah, ah, don’t grind so deeply, my belly is already rumbling and it feels strange...” and when he sees the door to their apartment open, with some familiar faces coming into view, “Lan Zhan, do you want to play a naughty game?” Wei Ying asks with a flirting gaze, and he intentionally squeezes his birth canal to tease the rather rough, uneven organ that’s pulsing and spasming violently inside his belly.

Nnnh.

Pleasure me.

Serve me well.

Wei Ying, you will love me more and more with each passing day.

“Ha ha ha... you sound really silly! Anyway, your friends are here again, so let's play the game of 'say hello to the daddy'!” Wei Ying shrieks with drunken joy and spreads his legs even wider.

More cold black creatures, formerly Lan Zhans, file into the room. Wei Ying's husband had invited them over three days ago, and they had group sex which led to a positive result on the pregnancy test kit. Now, with a baby bump to show but no father to be identified, Wei Ying does not need to despair - all Lan Zhans (all tall, strong and handsome men, in Wei Ying's eyes) equally claim responsibility and agreed to take care of the baby in Wei Ying's belly until birth.

Each hideous Lan Zhan will spend hours getting to know the baby inside Wei Ying's unprotected belly, many times a day and every day - right after one Lan Zhan spasms excitedly in jerking wiggles, and completes its countless evil toxic injections and convulsing attacks into the tainted unborn child, the moment it withdraws, Wei Ying nnnnggghs in blinded pleasure and spreads his abused, battered rosebud entrance with his fingers, then purrs impatiently, seductively, "My baby, my sweet baby, say hello to your next daddy, he is coming in now... ah, ah Lan Zhan, please be gentle, our baby is kicking so strongly in my belly, he must be excited to meet you again!" and the next slimy monstrous mass spasms with elation; it could see through Wei Ying's opening, the breached cervix and uterus, and the head of the child that had darkened with unnatural splotches and bloody patches - then it crawls and mounts between Wei Ying's legs, easily penetrates the loosened ring of muscle, and starts contracting and relaxing delightfully, gushing out sticky black liquid to coat and inundate the tattered canal, before launching numerous reproductive appendages and tentacles straight into the birth canal for another plundering assault with a triumphant roar, tearing through the damaged sac and ravaging the dying yet still-alive baby. "Hnnnh! Nnngh! Aaaaah!" Wei Ying would scream with delight and numbed pain, as he gyrates his hips from the brutal savagery; a mother that allows its child to be raped and ravaged by the father and other strangers.

Another quivering Lan Zhan waits in line behind the grunting and squirting monster, its jaws drip with poisonous saliva in anticipation for its turn.

Each cold black foul slug-like monster will, in a very twisted perverse way, say many hellos to their baby throughout the day, perform its desired grotesque experiments and gruesome modifications to the unborn fetus until it loses its humanity - it becomes deformed, distorted, liquefies from the relentless injections of poisons, and finally curdles into a dark, swollen, bloated mass of cold black wriggly substance with many tentacles, with a soul that's darker than a black hole; Wei Ying imagines excited young penises taking their turns to bump his cervix and kiss the baby's head in a friendly greeting by its parent - however the reality is that he will be defiled continuously and will soon give birth to a foul, demonic shapeless creature that would crawl its way out like a mutated octopus with the texture of watery eggs, and it will latch onto its birth-mother like a hungry predator and feed on Wei Ying's milk from his then-swollen breasts - and the fathers will be hard at work to inject more cold black seed into the helpless living warm vessel that functions solely for the procreation and propagation of their species.

Another window from Wangxian net's root directory:

A super-alpha Lan Zhan bursts into a hall full of waiting Wei Yings, at least thirty of them in total, lying on mattresses and sweating, panting in anticipation of another mass orgy, which is a daily occurrence in their family.

Lan Zhan's harem of both genders has been trained, at least for the past two to three days, to always welcome their master with spread-eagled legs. It helps that Lan Zhan strangely exudes a sweet smell, a kind of gas that affects mental and cognitive function, that compels the Wei kin to obey their master without hesitation. Some use their fingers to spread their asses and pussies wide open, some play with their genitals all day until they are fully lubed in preparation for their master's arrival, and all of them greet their masters with seductive calls to "come, come, Lan Zhan, please taste my womb, I will make the best baby for you."

Lan Zhan grins, and looks terribly happy for his loving family - although in reality, a huge, ten-meter long slug-like cold black thing with multiple tentacles, stands at the doorway with multiple breeding appendages, mind-controlling antennae and jagged teeth and claws sprouting from what used to be a human's limbs - dripping a pool of mucus on the floor and ready to make lots of children in its Wei Yings with its excited seed-pouches churning inside its undulating mass.

Lan Zhan will embrace every Wei Ying, one by one during the day. Every Wei Ying would be compelled by mind-control to pleasure their family's patriarch, so they would moan, squirm, squeeze and try their best to massage their master's massive twitching penis - in reality, a bundle of gooey, slippery seed-ejecting tongue-like tubes - to the point that they become so drunken with the hypnotic effects of the sweet smells that choke the air, that they force their bodies to willingly orgasm and milk the seed out of the monster. The giant cold black slug-like thing enjoys rippling its reproductive mid-section in waves, contract and convulse its mass in preparation to unload, and with a gurgling roar, spurt a thick fountain of rich creamy black and fetid-looking gunk straight into each quivering Wei Ying. With its size, there's plenty to go around, and the wiggling monster happily fathers as many children as it can, as dictated by its natural instinct for survival and multiplication.

By the end of the afternoon, all Wei Yings are properly inseminated, and new life begins to grow in their bellies. By the end of the week, the mega-father monster is hard at work in its nest of demonically-impregnated Wei Yings to make the necessary improvements on its unborn progeny. As it is the only one working and there are so many mates to work on, it takes a bit more time to reach childbirth with Perfection. The Wei Yings become a little impatient for attention from their Lan Zhan, and start to entice and masturbate in front of their husband, which excites and motivates the husband into seductive worm-like wiggly dances that signal more propagation is desired - and when they're near climax, somehow Lan Zhan is able to reach into their shuddering ass or pussies, and fuck every deserving Wei Ying into completion, complete with juicy eruptions, tentacles invading into every orifice in addition to the genitals, screams of pleasure echoing off walls, mind-blowing back-arches and eyes rolled to the back, and short-circuited nervous systems - because the tentacles travel along the spinal cord and invade the brain as well - in reality, the multi-tasking and adept, gifted giant cold black slug morphs multiple breeding appendages of amazing sizes, girths and lengths, and is able to violate many Wei Yings simultaneously, raping their wombs and tainting their babies until every single unborn child turns into pure, black, corrupted souls.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The true, original Lan Zhan takes a sip of premium pu'er at a plain wooden table. There is a small window in the concrete room - he could see a bodhi tree among the fruiting trees of the Sacred Orchards in the Jade Emperor's Summer Resort gardens. He wore only a bathrobe - which is fine, after he was told that gods do not really care about mortal appearances.

He was thrown into the Underworld after Ernie devoured his soul and was, like so many other millions of spirits of the dead destined to be purged or reincarnated, pushed and shoved along an endless queue climbing up the steps towards immeasurably high cliffs, and the path leads to a burning fiery abyss. He couldn't speak nor move away from the queue, as his spirit was forcibly controlled to walk the line.

Fortunately, his Immortality shone brightly and made his spirit glow when he neared the cliffs. His light was so bright, that it momentarily blinded the Underworld's security guards, who are actually Ox-Heads and Horse-Faces and their clones, and some skeletal undeads, and this caused some individuals to trip over and fall into shouts and curses. His yue fu's old friend, the Lord Of Hell, rushed over to check the commotion, and fortunately recognized Lan Zhan's face - he's the man who made that meaningful, touching speech so that the gods would not claim for damages from the Tian family after the Great Fires!

The Lord of Hell quickly took Lan Zhan through a portal to the Heavens, and dragged the man across the Heavenly courtyard to the backdoor entrance (only the most powerful gods are privy to the knowledge about the backdoor entrance). His in-laws, who were blissfully having an afternoon snack, were surprised but very grateful to see and receive him.

Having lost his body and soul, Lan Zhan is in essence, is left as a withering spirit, and as naked as a baby in divinely terms. The grandmotherly yue mu quickly put on a white bathrobe on a shivering nude Lan Zhan, which is enhanced with soul-giving powers - and therefore the man is no longer disappearing from the world -, and shuffled him into one of the quieter rooms in the Heavenly Court, away from curious prying eyes of other Court servants (seeing a naked man streaking across the courtyard can be shocking for some gods and demi-gods). She also made a teapot of warm tea to, technically, warm back his dying, cold soul.

Just in time, yue fu calls out from another room that his Heavenly Fairy Messenger is ringing, and it's Tian da jie on the line!

Notes for the Chapter:

And... introducing the last villain of this arc, and wrap things up with him/it within a chapter! This is all the monster and tentacle sex I'll write for now... phew, it's really tiring and it's hard to imagine what happens during such distasteful acts.

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-) p.s.: added more icky stuff.

Chapter 65

It started with Lan Zhan becoming mortally wounded during a snake hunt.

Then, Wei Ying burnt down the world to recreate it.

The family became financially strapped, especially with an expanded number of Wei gongzi s and their insatiable thirst for new riches and novel experiences.

Wei Ying created a continent, a company, then a Kingdom, full of his clones to solve such mortal, material needs - however the another problem cropped up: the need to satisfy the cravings for pleasures of the flesh, and the demonic hunger.

The answer seems simple enough - use a machine made by Wei Ying, to manufacture enough lovers for those clones.

Things devolved into absolute havoc when Wei Ying couldn't manage the sudden complexities of a population surge (although he's brilliant in coming up with fresh ideas and executing them with simplistic magic and technology used with reckless abandon, he lacks foresight, proper planning and management skills).

Lan Zhan had to step in, causing him to lose his body; but even as a paperman, he managed to rein in the situation before it derailed too far into a cesspool of absurdity and depravity.

Lan Zhan must have taken steps in the right direction, by engaging the Tian sisters and putting things back on track - including getting outsiders to plan and manage everything for him.

However, Lan Zhan was caught unaware and was tricked (just as any tech-illiterate person could have been easily scammed) by one of his family members, causing him to lose his soul and his soulmate - and in essence, his family and everything else .

Like a multi-level marketing ploy or a kind of pyramid scheme, the immediate effects were not noticed, and in fact, was welcomed due to the flush of new profits, ideas and progress - then something broke, like a boss that suddenly disappeared overnight with the company's funds, or people quitting their jobs en masse, leaving the entire pyramid without a head or its foundation - and collapsed deeper into Hell (which is worse than the Underworld, really).

In hindsight, it seems creating something always caused an unexpected after-effect, and problems that appear are dealt with piecemeal solutions. Like a snake that keeps chasing its tail until it bites its own - it's an endless loop of madness.

At least that's what Lan Wang Ji thought, miserably.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

“It's no use crying over the loss, my boy,” the grandmotherly yue mu approaches and places a warm hand on a shaking shoulder. The bathrobe gives the spirit a physical form, albeit very faint and ghostly in appearance. She refills the emptied cup with more steaming, soul-refreshing pu'er tea.

“Your shijie called to tell us what happened, and I only had to rewind the video footage from the viewing mirror back a few minutes in Heaven-time, to understand what had happened. It's amazing that this blasted good-for-nothing great grandson of ours is causing yet another ruckus! Why, if our gardeners didn't notice the smoke in our backyard just a few minutes ago, and called for the Dragon King's Blessed Fire Brigade from the Infinite Seas, our orchards and outdoor sheds would have burned down by now!" the Jade Emperor roars with his own brand of grandfatherly anger, and shakes a fist into the air.

Yue mu hushes her husband, and the wizened old man quiets down with an 'a-hem' from his rare outburst.

Lan Zhan, in his faded, muted spirit form, learned that when Ernie burnt down the universe, the Realms of the Gods was spared amongst a handful of others. Some had installed advanced fire detection and alarm systems (after the Great Fires, who wouldn't?) while others, such as yue fu's kingdom, relied on wary and responsible citizens to report and take appropriate action to douse the flames. However, he also learned that the universe is, in fact, in a more Perfect state than before - this time, there are no cracks, no smudges and nothing was found missing; in fact, everything seemed improved and renewed, and the gods, demi-gods and all other affecting beings and non-beings were more than satisfied with the results.

During the conversation, a celestial servant politely knocked on the door to the small private meeting room, grovelled and crawled to present a scroll to the Jade Emperor, which contains a summary of the impact from the incident - now known as "The Universal Fires". The servant quickly left, and Lan Zhan tried to peer at the scroll.

"Look here, my boy, see what is reported by our servants, our subjects, and our friends from the other Realms!" the Emperor bellows, upset, and shoves the unrolled piece of long rice paper into Lan Zhan's hands. His ethereal fingers barely grasped the script, and rather than countless finely-printed words on its surface, he sees many moving pictures - much like a confusing medley of tabbed windows arranged haphazardly on the paper, each containing a movie clip, which works similarly as Wangxian net's root directory.

Ernie, the so-called child of Lan Zhan and Wei Ying, but actually a corrupted, twisted derivative of Wei Ying that has possessed Lan Zhan's body and soul - has done it again .

The cold black thing that once festered and devoured stars and galaxies no longer appear in sight - it has woven itself into the fabric of the universe and reality. Aside from the Mortal Realm which was touched the least, many other worlds, planetary systems, and celestial and astronomical objects were altered to some extent - more worlds are terraformed to become habitable or experience a spike in natural resources, more Realms are suddenly opened, developed and evolved into respectable civilizations and cultures, space-faring aliens found more convenient ways to travel in hyperspace and engage in interstellar trade, and even the Milky Way becomes a hub with increased activities and liveliness. Everything has, as much as possible, become "Wangxian-ized" - from foodstuff to household goods, from transport services to teleportation devices, from magical talismans to automatons to serve every need from living creatures, demi-gods, gods and other forms of sentient beings, and unlimited broadband to access Wangxian net to liberalize the exchange and flow of information and knowledge between societies and species across the universe - available, and easily perused by a single press of red buttons found in nearly every home of every sentient being.

Ernie has brought 41st century living to those who suffered The Universal Fires, and there are no complaints at all - brand awareness and public confidence for Wangxian Co. Ltd. and the Kingdom of Lan, located in the continent of Wuji of the human Mortal Realm - skyrockets to an all-time high of 99.9%, according to trending reports from the Emperor's public relations ministries. In fact, those Realms that shielded themselves from the Fires have expressed regret at their decisions, and started to contact the company for the missed opportunities, which, according to a spokesperson, Wangxian would gladly commission and install the needed infrastructure at the earliest time possible.

“Look outside through the window, Wang Ji. Those guys are laying down ultra-modern optic fibre cables for Heaven's public housing and portal infrastructures for easy inter-Realm travel. It seems that soon, gods can start to travel to other worlds using the company's new transportation services, which eases those who have distant relatives from faraway planets,” yue fu sighs in exasperation.

Lan Zhan peeked at the window and watched celestial beings with halos and wings, wearing black and white uniforms bearing the trademark Wangxian logo on their backs - of black and white rabbits and a clump of bamboo in the background - toiling the ground to dig up trenches and lay down pipes and rolls of cables. It seems Wangxian employed contract workers in other Realms to provide sales and services on behalf of the company, and this actually bodes well - because more people and beings can find job opportunities, earn a good living, and contribute to the Realm's economy.

Lan Zhan shakes his head - he has lost his will to argue and fight the tragedy that befell him. If everyone says that what has happened is Good... then what is Bad? The same conundrum of what is actually black and white, rears its ugly head once again.

He absently swipes a finger along the paper scroll, letting the moving images turn into blurs of happy smiling alien creatures enjoying the epitome of luxury living in Perfect Wangxian-ized homes; of gods and demi-gods posing with thumbs-up with their latest wphones and Creation-Time magic talismans; bug-like organisms wearing Wangxian uniforms waving flags that scream “Inspired By Love!” and “We Love U Great Father Boss!” - clearly a group from one of the company’s faraway factories in a different planet or galaxy; Weitube feed of masses of humanoid things cheering with Wangxian consumer and electronic products in their hands / limbs / appendages / tentacles / claws while holding banners that say “Wangxian You Rock”; selfie and wefie pictures of inhuman beasts with a finger / paw / organ / digit / protuberance / tube right above a red button with the big white words splashed at the bottom: “I Pressed the Red Button For Wangxian, Have You Pressed Yours Today?” which will become memes of the future, and so on.

As he browsed, and eventually gets a little used to the astonishing changes of his perceived reality especially now that he “sees the bigger picture”, he finds a window that shows a recorded feed from the continent of Wuji. The timestamp looks strange with garbled numbers, and there are little asterisks and footnotes - it explains that at least months or even years have elapsed, however due to the fact that Time is warped and to some extent, controlled by the Kingdom of Lan, merely hours have passed in real time. He uses his thumb and index finger to zoom in (he’s used to seeing people work with holo-phones, and is quite adept at modern technology these days).

The Kingdom of Lan, located in the continent of Wuji, has moved with the times and entered into the 41st century of modernization as well. Everything looks quite similar to what he’d seen a while before, during the 31st century-city tours, except that many aspects are upgraded to even better standards and uses newer magic and technology. Lan Zhan decides to ignore the vast mega-cityscapes, portals and wormholes that dot the skies above the land, spaceships zooming by, towering magical constructs serving all needs of societies, and the perpetually lush green forests and mega-farms - instead, he focuses on the citizens.

The Kingdom has transformed into a paradise for the new invasive species - the word 'invasive' is a little harsh, however, Lan Zhan's tired spirit-mind is unable to move on from that term, yet - and instead of masses of formless tentacled cold black things that were once Lan Zhans, they and their progeny have evolved into a variety of shapeshifting things . Office buildings and towers, business districts and residential areas, skyways and highways, alleys and streets, even grocery stores and supermarkets, are filled with dark, not necessarily black, creepy crawly beings that resemble the assorted stages of evolution of a new life that is diligently diversifying as a biologic strategy to ensure its overall survival.

Rather than remaining stagnant as a kind of slug-like monster, the new citizens have started to appear in lowly-evolved forms: worm-like earthworms, maggots, leeches, centipedes; insects-like creatures including moths, butterflies, beetles, cockroaches, wasps, crickets; arachnids or other beings with carapaces such as spiders and scorpions; more advanced forms such as amphibians - frogs, toads and salamander; even water-based life forms to inhabit marine areas, including fish, eels, crabs, sea urchins, octopus, squids; and at the tip of the evolution cycle, a few individuals have been born as reptiles such as lizards; the first sight of feathered flying birds; and somewhere, a handful of newborns emerge as the first mammals, mostly rodents and small four-legged things. Lan Zhan realizes, from his primitive and scant knowledge about the science of evolution, that if something were to attack the Kingdom or if a mega-disaster strikes, these so-called citizens are in a much better position to defend themselves, prevail and survive from becoming extinct, compared to a single slug-like species, or a population full of dual-individuals (of Wei Yings and Lan Zhans). He really hated to admit it, but Ernie certainly had thought in advance of how to protect itself and its progeny.

(Lan Zhan knows it's Ernie and its progeny that took over his Kingdom, because he also received the video footage from the yue fu 's viewing mirror, which showed him what transpired between the loss of his soul and the carnage that happened during the days and weeks that followed.)

Even while watching the tabbed window from the scroll, he catches glimpses of futuristic apartments, shops and homes, and gets a free show of the private lives of those 'black things'; in there are Immortal and forever-young Wei Yings who continue to be impregnated and give birth to such monstrous beings, and each generation is more frightening and advanced than the ones before. It's too painful for Lan Zhan to watch disgusting and terrifying giant centipedes, buzzing wasps, long-legged spiders, slimy salamanders, octopus or lizards engage in demonic sexual intercourse and raping his - still, technically - spouses. However, he could not forget the heart-wrenching look of brainwashed pleasure, of absolute orgasmic joy on Wei Yings' faces, as they spread their legs further apart in mind-numbing climax after climax, squealing with delight in drowning into drooling gaping maws, claws and pits of fanged tentacles, welcoming the ravaging assault into their bodies through their birth canals and all kinds of orifices, as they become pumped full of seed, as multiple wiggling, slithering, slimy and chittering creatures take turns to mate, violate and spasm excitedly deep into their lovely Wei Yings, father inhuman things inside their tight hot wombs and the interior cavities, whether as a passionate couple or as a group orgy, and when their bellies bloat and bulge, they're raped almost constantly by waiting, twitching breeding organs and appendages that gladly spear, maul and plunder into those filled life-bearing wombs, then pierce and invade, corrupt and devolve - perhaps, evolve - the unborn babies into something else until the moment of birth. In some cases, Wei Yings become too overjoyed in their uncontrolled satisfaction of their hunger for vices, and revert into their demonic forms - and he watches with brief morbid fascination of how real demons have sex, before zooming out. When he spots one, perhaps a few, perhaps freshly made, Lan Zhan clones - human mirrors of himself, certainly a few years younger - being forced to mate and breed with female versions of those terrible creatures - Lan Zhan rolls the scroll back and refuses to watch any further.

Lan Zhan sighs, and his spirit form wavers. Yue mu has been very patient, empathic and sensitive to his feelings, and asks Lan Zhan if he would like to go out for a bit of fresh air - perhaps to clear his mind a bit out of the cosmic gutter, so to speak. Lan Zhan nods.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The Jade Emperor and the Queen Mother took some time off their Heavenly duties to accompany their favourite son-in-law for a walkabout in the Realms of the Gods. They walked through the orchards and surveyed the damage caused by the fires - a few bushes and a couple of peach trees were blackened and singed, but nothing more. While munching on Heavenly summer fruits, which made Lan Zhan feel a little better in spirit (technically), the heavenly couple introduced to Lan Zhan about the good things that had happened since Wangxian was incorporated.

On a Wangxian-made golf cart of sorts, which is a terrific four-wheeled vehicle for luxury and comfortable, slow land travel, they went on a relaxing city-tour around the Heavens, and met up with some old acquaintances and friends. Then, they visited the Dragon King where Lan Zhan encounters the very friendly, although quite frightening, citizens of the Deepest Seas including mermaids and merman, sharkpeople, octopus families, shellfish schoolchildren and fishmen harvesting from the bountiful surroundings. The Dragon King also showed the towering pillar that holds the sea in Perfect balance which was stolen by the Monkey King long, long ago and a functional replica was returned not long after that adventure was completed. The Seas are in the process of becoming Wangxian-ized, and Lan Zhan could see how modern amenities have improved their livelihoods.

The same has to be said for the Underworld - Lan Zhan learns that the abyss-like realm has evolved into a perpetually dim but lively, clean and advanced necropolis; the Lord of Hell showed Lan Zhan ‘before’ and ‘after’ pictures, and the man had to agree because the undead, the ghosts, the foul and the decaying are now respectable-looking citizens who also wear high-quality robes and suits, drive posh cars on well-paved roads, work in comfortable air-conditioned offices (and need not suffer from the soaring heat in hell), use holo-phones to call their families and friends, and enjoy shopping in underground cavernous supermarkets full of Wangxian’s 31st and 41st century products and services. The Lord of Hell showed the humongous Book Of Judgement where the Monkey King was once said to have doodled and erased its name off the pages so that it couldn’t die - and showed Lan Zhan that his name too, is written in an annex titled “Immortals - Do Not Eradicate”.

The celestial beings and their subjects are kind to Lan Zhan - yue fu and yue mu did most of the talking (because Lan Zhan’s spirit is still recovering, and could only muster “Mn”s and brief two-word sentences), and explained in very general terms about what has happened to their favourite son-in-law - and these newfound friends promised to help Lan Zhan whenever they can especially since he is related to the King of Gods. Some even gave him souvenirs, advice, and strengthened his spirit with magic, imbuing skills and other amazing heavenly enhancements - as a token of thanks for being the Founder of a company that greatly enriched lives everywhere. Lan Zhan is speechless at the generous display of gratitude from such non-humans.

Portly and jolly Cai Shen (God of Wealth; God of Prosperity) shook his hand and told Lan Zhan: that in a treasure box of gold ingots, there are some shiny new ones just minted from the banks, some faded old ones due to wear and tear with age, some darkened with grime and dirt due to bad handling, and some that smell of fish or meat because they were held by fishmongers and butchers - however they’re all still valuable gold ingots.

One should not just count the number of ingots in the box, or focus only on the good quality ingots, or try to spend the day cleaning and washing the filthy ones - in fact, one should look at the whole box and appreciate for what it is: a source of happiness, contentment and accomplishment, and therefore achieve true wealth and prosperity in the most spiritual sense.

The white-bearded Earth God (Tu Di Gong) too, gave a hearty handshake and tells Lan Zhan not to dwell too much into the bitter past, and look at things with a open, wider perspective (because this not-so-powerful middle-class god had been the subject of bullying in the past, such as by the Monkey King long, long ago, but he doesn't bear any grudges and has moved on since then. Today he is a cheerful, well-liked and worshipped deity who continues to work hard and care for the land and villages under his jurisdiction).

Lan Zhan would spend the day visiting the various realms of the gods and demi-gods, getting to know them, their lives and their thoughts, and receiving feedback about what everyone thinks about Wangxian Co. Ltd. under the Kingdom of Lan. (a day in heaven is said to last a century on earth.)

(Lan Zhan wears the enchanted bathrobe for the entire day - which is of absolutely no concern, because non-humans don't really care about how a human-like figure dresses, as long it gives the wearer a decent coverage, which the bathrobe does. Plus, it's a very comfortable attire and Lan Zhan quite likes the feel of soft, warm, woolly fabric rubbing against his skin.)

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Lan Zhan wakes up the next day on an unbelievably large luxurious satin-lined bed fit for kings and gods, and he feels wonderfully refreshed. He'd seen so much, learned a lot, and enjoyed heavenly banquets during mealtimes - and although he spent some time watching videos from the same scroll before bedtime, in which the clips have been replaced with live feeds, and he still felt a twinge of pain and regret - he acknowledges what he's feeling, and he knows that he's still recovering from the loss of something incalculable, something immeasurable.

“Good morning, you sleepy head,” yue mu chirps from the entrance with a tray of sumptuous breakfast - warm toasted breads, freshly baked pastries, a selection of preserves and jams, cheese and hams, cut fruits, garden salad with fried chicken cutlets and hard-boiled egg and adequate mild-flavoured olive oil dressing to taste, cereal in a bowl of milk, and a cup of fresh orange juice - all Wangxian products; but that is just fine.

“Mn, Wang Ji wishes Yue Mu good morning,” and he bows with hands folded to the front, while sitting on the bed. He is naked - and he already knows it's fine as long as he's within the Heavenly Palace - his home in the skies, technically speaking. He greets the yue fu similarly when the grandfatherly god appears as well, with a freshly-laundered bathrobe. Both of them are perpetually in their godly attire - because in Heaven, gods and other celestial beings usually appear as images of their current state (which is Perfection), and therefore, the style and type of clothing does not really matter as long as there is decency.

He feels very loved by his great grandparents-in-law, and over the hearty meal, they talked about his feelings and his thoughts (he no longer harbours any ill-will towards Wangxian products, and he learned that every Realm screens their imports with the highest biosecurity standards, so there is definitely nothing to worry about runaway black things hiding amongst the shipments). Lan Zhan's spirit has been restored to near-healthy levels, and due to the divinely food and magic bestowed by the Jade Emperor and his wife, and his soul is in the process of being cultivated to what he once was; much like how a new golden core can be grown after the previous one was taken away.

“Wang Ji will try to look at the world from a different perspective.

In the Kingdom of Lan, which Wei Ying wanted me to save from collapse, the plethora of creatures and citizens there are my - our - spouses, family and children.

When I see them as an extension of my family and children, or at least as subjects of my Kingdom, then I detach myself from feelings of envy, jealousy and possessiveness. They are currently happy with their lives, living as soulmates in their own families, and living in their perfect paradise. Each has a sense of purpose, contributes meaningfully to the community and the larger society, and benefits from the abundant returns from their efforts.

Ernie, my downline progeny of some sort, is doing a wonderful job. Despite its tricky ways - which is not unlike what Wei Ying does anyway - it has solved all the problems that Wei Ying and I have created, and in some ways, everything has come to a full circle.

To ruin this, and its happiness, to kill and destroy lives, would be sinful.

To despair and feel regret, even wanting to rewind time and start over, would mean missed opportunities to see the light, or the crux of the issue.

Ernie and the subjects of my Kingdom have grown up and matured. They can be left to prosper their own lives and families. Just like yue fu and yue mu, there will be times when I feel irritated at the actions of my children and my people, and maybe it's because they're moving so fast ahead and I'm getting a little out of touch... but I should trust that they know what they're doing, and that they're doing the right thing.

It is time for Wang Ji to let go," he ends his small, but significant heart-to-heart reveal, and yue mu grasps his hand, a silent motherly encouragement for a mortal who had experienced too much in his short span of life. Lan Zhan munches on a crunchy toasted bread richly spread with butter and homemade strawberry jam.

"... so, you're not angry at Wei Ying, Ernie or any of his clones anymore?" the Jade Emperor asks, looking for a sense of closure and finality to Wang Ji's sometimes-convoluted thinking.

Lan Zhan shakes his head and gives a faint smile, against a backdrop of soft-light curtains, and of beautiful clear sunlight peeking through mist-covered mountains, rolling hills and not far away, a Heavenly court bustling with celestial servants running their errands and shuffling traditional paperwork around (now mixed with the usage of holo-phones, wpads and lightning-speed Wangxian net connections). He speaks calmly, after chewing a spoonful of yummy light chicken salad, "No, and I will not bear any grudge for having my body and soul taken away, which have already transformed into something unrecognizable by now. I'm growing a new soul... and... if Wang Ji can request, may I have another body?"

The grand godly couple rouses to cheers and grateful feelings of appeasement, "Of course! Of course! A human body is very easy to create, and if you want, we can take you to our chief craftsman near the kitchen, where we use divinely natural ingredients to make, mould and bake new individuals when normal procreation is not feasible.”

Lan Zhan nods, not really understanding the process of making a human being, but he would like to watch and maybe give some personal inputs on how he'd like his body to be made - because he did work as a quality tester not too long ago, by sampling Wangxian's foodstuff products and giving feedback to the production plants to make improvements.

“Wang Ji understands that happiness does not come from wanting to own everything, and does not mean trying to perfect everything in one's hands - like a treasure box of varied gold ingots that Cai Shen talked about. It comes from stepping back and taking a more holistic view of what it means to be happy with the things around us.

An old man beneath a bodhi tree once told me, that the journey to perfection is happiness itself. Wang Ji realizes this, after having gone through so much pain and enlightenment,” Lan Zhan adds, as he finishes the cup of tasty orange juice with tiny juicy pulps, and licks his lips in satisfaction at a filling breakfast.

“I had my doubts on the blasted good-for-nothing solely because of how he tricked and hurt you. In addition, I feel rather miffed at how that thing got into everyone's good books without my consent - however, as you said, I should detach myself from feelings of envy, jealousy and possessiveness. Seeing that you're fine now, then we too, should not pursue this matter,” the Jade Emperor concludes and strokes his long beard, and starts to stack up the emptied bowls and plates on the tray for his favourite son-in-law still in the sick bed, despite Lan Zhan's protests at such a divinely kind-hearted gestures.

Yue mu helped Lan Zhan into his clean set of bathrobes, and its healing energies further rejuvenates his battered and bruised soul. As she ties the belt, she mentions that the Tian family will have a scheduled Heavenly Fairy Messenger call in an hour's time, and the da jie promised to give an update from the meeting with Ernie-turned- di fu which had taken place during the night before. The couple had already received some WeiChat text messages on their holo-phones, that the sisters are alright and no one has been harmed, although they feel rather nervous about the incredible changes taking place around them and their neighbours (who turned into ugly disgusting wiggling slimy bugs, said one of them). It seems the Installation of the King, Great Father Lan, together with the ribbon-cutting ceremony of Wangxian Co. Ltd., will take place very soon -and more importantly, to inaugurate and declare the completion of the Stairways To The Blue Skies - all 88 pillars each located in every first-tier city of the continent.

Lan Zhan "Mn"s in understanding, and prepares for a full busy and probably anxious day ahead.

Not gonna lie, I'm not really beta-ing my fics coz it takes too much time to re-read and think about re-wording certain sentences - so just take it as is, and don't take things too seriously!

Chapter 66

Wei Ying lives in heaven every day, and the ring embedded into his fourth finger proves his marital bliss - it glows most of the time, signifying that he's in the happiest state of perfect happiness (which sounds really silly, but it really is).

He lounges on the soaked bed, and watches how the latest addition to the brood-family performs to their patriarch's desires. He's a teenager who looks, as expected, younger than him by at least five years, and he's, as usual, implanted with the latest artificial womb made by Wangxian - which is one of the hottest household product that's flying off the shelves right now, given the latest string of decrees by the Great Father over television and Weitube to "go forth and multiply". Their patriarch had bought a bunch of them, and made sure there are enough in case one breaks - which happens quite often whenever frenzied mating happens due to the change of seasons. Summer is a great time to start conceiving, after all, with abundant food and pheromones in the air.

He watches as the teenager lies on the mattress face up, and gyrates his hips seductively - he was given proper education prior to purchase and housed into the family - and he could see how the teenager worked his pelvic muscles efficiently to milk and squeeze a huge black, veiny, twisted appendage with the girth of a man's forearm, full of wart-like bumps and sinewy muscles, that drills in and out of teenager's puffed up and stretched entrance. Their patriarch grunts and chitters, and its insectoid head swings back and forth in a visually exciting mating frenzy, until its antennae strikes the boy's face and leaves whip marks - which is fine, because the boy is too busy drowning in his own pleasure to notice the searing pain.

At some point, their patriarch starts to twist its trunk uncontrollably from too much wonderful feelings and sex pheromones coursing through its veins, and in a tell tale sign of an impending climax, its numerous clawed legs surround the boy in a death-like grip. Its mandibles gently nips the boy's neck, and black lines appear and fan out where they graze the skin; there is potent poison in the jaws; its long segmented body starts to bend and bow in a strange but pretty dance of muscles trying to contract and relax rhythmically to push out the first globs of chilled virile seed.

Wei Ying watches intently when the last two hind legs stiffen in an instinctive act to prop itself up the mattress, as its tail-end - already bent as much as possible and rutting deep into the boy's entrance; unimaginable and wonderful horrors are happening inside the boy's birth canal, cervix, uterus and even ovaries; because a Corrupted giant three-meter long black centipede's reproductive appendage feels like heaven when the last segment opens up inside one's canal, and fleshy knobbly tongue-like gonads extend out during the rut and expand in size, engorged with dark fluids; the meaty tongue-like tentacles stretch the canal and breach the cervix, and squeeze through into the uterine cavity, where the gonadic knobs start to wriggle excitedly inside the fertile, warm cavern where they truly belong, and start spurting rich, foul-looking black seed with the texture of curdled milk all over the uterus - and if the boy is lucky, the gonadic tongues would extend further if the patriarch is properly pleased by the undulating canal which massages the penile muscles; and the tongues would breach into the fallopian tubes and finally reach the ovaries - there, the huffing and puffing centipede can erupt and empty its seed pouches directly into the eggs, fertilizing tens or hundreds of them at one go.

By the time the patriarch crests and rides through its two-hundred twitches - a whooping orgasm lasting for fifteen minutes because the centipede works hard to squirt its seed and empty its numerous ample gonads every two to three seconds - the patriarch is truly feeling really, really good, as evidenced by its hundred-legs convulsing over the boy's skin, vibrating and drumming the captured flesh in jubilation because it is living its purpose to propagate its kind; the boy's tummy churns, bloats and still pounds out visibly from within due to the force of each creamy ejaculation, and the womb is quickly overflowing with fetid black goo oozing down his thighs and when there's too much, fountains out as a thick gooey splatter to the bedsheets just as the monstrous penis pumps another load in. The young teenager cries out with tasty moans, and murmurs sweet words to coax their patriarch to drain everything else, including very graphic descriptions of their demonic lovemaking and what goes on inside his womb - like clockwork, his legs hook around the abominable-looking pumping back-end of the patriarch, and continues to work his human pelvic muscles into sweet delectable massaging motions to milk the grotesque and overexcited penis, and pleasure the growling and gurgling monster; until its gonads eagerly engorges with visually repulsive congealing blackened fluids, quivers and vibrates with sheer delight, and unloads in rhythmic thick cold mucous ropes in glorious two-hundred twitches again.

The boy will be mated several times a day over the next few days to ensure that a brood of babies is successfully planted inside him, and the patriarch will enjoy spending its afternoons fathering more wriggly children for its multiplying brood (it gets paternal leave from its work as a sales manager at Wangxian's clothing department, so that he can satisfy his instinct to procreate when the mood strikes - such as today).

"Mmm.... honey, it's my turn. Come and play with our baby..." Wei Ying coos, when he feels that it's his turn to receive their patriarch's love. The teenager crumples on the mattress, unconscious and totally wasted from being bred - what a weakling amateur! Wei Ying spreads his legs and uses his hands to stretch his swollen entrance in line of sight of their patriarch. He intentionally makes squeezing movements to entice the centipede - the father of his child as well. The patriarch makes excited chittering sounds, disengages itself from the boy, and starts climbing between Wei Ying's legs.

Wei Ying knows - and has already gone through this countless times - what to expect. He lies on his back and puts two pillows beneath his ass - because the centipede is heavy - and presents his rather abused entrance to their broodmaster. He doesn't get a thick penis into his birth canal, unfortunately - that only happens with some sub-species, but not their patriarch's - because their patriarch has awesome jaws swollen with sexual poisons and something else that drives him crazy with lust.

“Ah, please come inside me, my baby wants to meet its daddy!”

The centipede arches and roars in triumph when it sees the tunnel it had pumped and was grandly pleased just recently, and at the other end, beyond the damaged cervix and the tattered uterus - which still holds well -, is a torn membrane sac containing an unborn child. It had been gruesomely attacked and viciously corrupted for many days, and it's no longer humanoid in form - the soul had blackened into a nice shade of dark-grey, and its torn body and limbs have started morphing into something else , and it looks like there could be many wiggling legs or tentacles too - hopefully another centipede-kin if not something better.

“Nnnh, nnnh, you've put this lovely child inside me, please hurry up and say hello, so that it'll grow up to like you!”

The patriarch feels elated at another trophy birth-in-waiting. It proceeds to tuck into his next sexual meal, head first. Its antennae easily splits open Wei Ying's loosened entrance, and the huge bulbous head slowly squeezed its way in - it's like pushing a football through, however Wei Ying was manufactured from the depths of their world's finest human factory and gifted with an incredibly elastic and youthful body - the man “Mmmms” as his pelvic joints are stretched and dislocated (with expected cracking sounds) to fit the insectoid head.

“Ah, ah, I can feel your antennae and fangs in my canal... is it tight? Does it feel good?” Wei Ying dreamily asks - poisons and aphrodisiacs surge into his blood, and he doesn't feel much pain. His bulging belly shakes and distends from the invasion, trying to fit an unborn child and their patriarch's head at the same time. Wei Ying orgasms many times in succession, as his nerves are flooded with love-lust hormones ejected from the centipede's antennae and the chemicals seep into his lower body.

The centipede grunts in response from the tight contractions around its head, and finally breaks into the swollen uterus. Its mandibles reach through the ruptured sac and starts chewing its own flesh and blood trapped inside the broken womb. It spits out powerful, acidic poisons and its venom-tipped fangs extend to reach deep into the baby, lacerating and ripping open the spasming bundle of human-monster hybrid meat, injecting dark viscous corruptive energies straight into the heart and blackened pearl-like soul. From the close distance, its multiple shiny eyes could detect claw-like limbs and a pair of developing mandibles, and it is pleased that the baby is truly, no longer human.

Later, the doorbell would ring, and the patriarch, fresh from a shower after an invigorating session of breeding a boy and assaulting the mother of its progeny, lets some guests in. They are neighbours of their two-storey terrace home, and have asked to enjoy a taste of his brood after they sniffed out sex pheromones in the air. Some telepathic conversations take place between them, and the human slaves are unable to comprehend the details of the transaction.

Wei Ying is still drunk from the unnatural hormones and poisons flowing in his blood, when he gets plundered by a man-sized cockroach (Wei Ying is overjoyed to have sexual intercourse during pregnancy, as he goes on all fours on the bed while the cockroach-kin climbs his back and pierces its tail-end into his ass - its long penis feels firm, smooth and wildly spasms inside his flooded birth canal as it excitedly orgasms and spurts its share of seed and corrupted fluids into lovely Wei Ying), a spider (Wei Ying was a little disappointed, as the spider-kin simply pulls out a sperm-pouch and pushes the football-sized jiggly sac into his entrance; he could accomodate it with no problems - until the sac ruptures as intended, and Wei Ying's insides nearly bursts from the extreme pressure of the gooey explosion from the eight-legged lover, and he spewed all over the floor because his gut is distended; however he relishes the feel of eight hairy legs molesting his pregnant figure, it's been a while since he'd touch something with hair or fur, really), and a scorpion. He seems to hit the jackpot with insects and arachnids as they're sexually attracted to him - especially when the last neighbour howls with enjoyment when the huge, spasming poisonous tail punctures through between his legs, skewers something fleshy inside him through the accumulated semen and fluids and possibly some internal organs, and finally turns their baby into a watery glob of liquefied oily black mush.

(No life was hurt. Wei Ying's baby grows well from the primordial soup of poisons, corruption and protein. An enhanced and improved life form will be born, inheriting its fathers' indestructable and perfect cockroach's health and immunity against disease and poisons, strikingly flat, sleek design of a cockroach, dashingly handsome long curved cockroach antennae, strong spider mandibles full of deadly venom, perfect centipede's shiny carapace shells and hundred legs, strong flexible, muscular tail segments that can shoot out spider webs and squirt scorpion poisons, and a sexy reproductive appendage at the tip that will continue to breed into more Wei Yings in times to come.)

Somewhere else, their patriarch enjoys making more babies with their neighbours' harems of Wei Yings, and fortune smiles upon him - a nine-year old Lan Zhan too, fully equipped with a child-sized artificial womb. It does not whittle his time away and gets straight to work to make swollen bellies out of them.

It also watches with interest at how the Wei Yings of his neighbours manage a full brood, and picks up some parenting tips. One Wei Ying has given birth to giant wasp larvae, the size of human babies, from a wasp-kin patriarch. They're lucky as they have wings, and they can fly around when the brood matures. Six healthy fat yellow-white larvae crawl all over their birth-mother, pulsing with squishy squeals to call for milk. The artificial wombs also induces other bodily changes, including the growth of breasts - so the babies crowd around both bloated, enlarged breasts of the mother-Wei Ying, and take their turn to suckle from plump bosoms.

"Baby, baby, be patient, mommy has to feed all six of you, and two at every time. Unnh, unnnh, don't be naughty and bite mommy! Be gentle, otherwise I will tell your father and it'll spank your springy tail!" Wei Ying gently scolds one of the larvae that got too greedy. Rows of sharp teeth surrounding its undulating circular mouth continue to gently scrape Wei Ying's engorged nipple, begging its mother to pump out more sweet milk, and when it locks its mouth-end to the nub like an vacuum pump, it starts to suck in fluttering muscular pulses - Wei Ying moans happily, arches his back and trembles with joy, because of the sensations of being emptied through his swollen breasts, and because one mischievous larva crawled to his crotch and suckled his oft-neglected penis. It seems babies do not really care what they're feeding, as long as it's from mommy. The centipede patriarch takes note, and tells itself that its progeny should feast on its broodmate not just on breastmilk, but the man's penis as well, so that Wei Ying falls deeper in love with it, and its centipede family.

Lan Zhan received an antique compact mirror during his stay in Heaven - it's small, handy, and has pretty floral patterns chiselled onto its metal lid. It looks like the ordinary accessory to help one to put on his or her make-up, except that when the enchanted fairy that resides within the mirror recognizes the holder, it activates divinely magic and the mirror becomes a miniature version of the Jade Emperor's viewing mirror - with a user friendly interface and even more advanced functions than its adult-sized cousin (which is like comparing a dated television set with a wphone). After the delicious breakfast, he takes some time to try out the new toy.

A day would have passed in the Heavens since Lan Zhan arrived as a fading spirit, which due to the effects of Time spells, seem to run in parallel with the Wuji continent, however in actual fact, the duration is really a century long. Lan Zhan notices that his Kingdom is trying to match with the Heavens in terms of the passage of time, probably because it's more economical and time-saving - imagine having a hundred years' worth of time in a day!

Evolution is marching ahead in full swing within the Kingdom. Aside from further environmental, magical, technological and infrastructural advancements, the citizens diversified further until an impressive portrait of a self-contained ecosystem of life forms have started to emerge:

- A myriad of higher-order creatures with much improved abilities, capabilities and intelligence - still dark on the skin / scales / feathers / fur / hair, but not necessarily black in colour - have appeared, including: birds (cranes, eagles, falcons, flamingoes, hawks, ostriches, owls, parrots, penguins, pigeons, poultry, storks, vultures, etc.), reptiles (crocodiles, lizards, turtles, snakes, and rarely a dinosaur - although the prehistoric Lan Zhan won't really know if he sees one, because he hasn't learn about them yet), and mammals (anteaters, antelopes, bats, bears, canines [including dogs, foxes, wolves], felines (cheetahs, leopards, lions, panthers, tiger), cattle, deer, dolphins, donkeys, elephants, giraffes, goats, horses, marsupials, pigs and wild boars, rodents, primates [including apes, baboons, gorillas, monkeys], rabbits, rhinoceros, walruses, whales, etc.

All citizens are generally as large as adult humans and larger, hence it is not uncommon to find a gorilla carrying a shopping bag from the supermarket; tripping over a bench-sized elderly turtle; then an eagle from the local police force the size of a small airplane, swoops down overhead to pursue a runaway squawking child-sized chicken for snatch theft; which surprises horse-sized rabbit children below to hop across a pedestrian crossing without looking for passing vehicles; while nearly bumping into a couple of elephants dressed in business suits that walk on two legs, car-sized goats bleating on holo-phones; packs of humanoid wolves, tigers, lions and other carnivores jogging past from from a sports gym; and they nearly run into a group of herbivores including walking dainty cows in sexy dresses, pigs working as vendors trying to sell street snacks and upright donkey sales promoters milling around with brochures and braying about the latest sales from the next-door hypermarket; and probably the small squirrel no bigger than a dog in an unassuming commoner's get-up of t-shirt and pants gets walked over and has its paws bruised by a slithering giant anaconda in a skirt rushing for a doctor's appointment.

However, an overwhelmingly large percentage of the population remain in their lowly forms of insects and creepy crawlies - which is akin to the normal world anyway. For example, cat-sized ants roam the farms and plains, while meter-long bees happily buzz around their hives outside the cities, and the coastal areas are full of sentient marine life, not too different from the Dragon King's realm although far more advanced than the latter.

- Inhuman, alien, demi-gods and god-like beings, which are truly the pinnacle of the citizens' evolution ladder; their existence is believable given that Ernie is able to reverse engineer the mortal and non-mortal realms and alien worlds, and easily switch one to the other (since it can turn Man to God, and God to Man anyway) and analyze and apply their genetic signatures to its progeny. The streets are a mishmash of appearances - still dark in colour, but again, not necessarily black.

When Lan Zhan sees a Jade Emperor and Queen Mother-lookalikes in dark glasses, matching pink suits and so-called big-haired 80s-hairstyle walking past a fully-armored humanoid from light-years away with a suitcase and a squad of living mechanical robots that can transform into awesome cool weapons and vehicles; behind the lookalike godly couple are their offsprings of angels, goblins, elemental monsters, vampires and zombies who hold hands with each other so that they wouldn't become separated in the sea of shoppers and workers; ahead of them are adolescents from kins of dragons, phoenixes, qilins, fairies and numerous other mythological beings of different shapes and sizes, wearing uniform shirts and cotton pants-- at that moment, Lan Zhan looks away to catch his breath from the absurdity - and ingenuity of his body and soul snatcher.

Not only has Ernie created the ultimate melting pot for its society; the fact that every individual possesses untold abilities, talents and powers, and they can shape-shift freely, though prudently, and adapt the tangible and intangible benefits of their new - or any - life form (therefore, no longer limited to their genetic birth form, inherent or learned skills, or their physique) - causes the man to burn a few brain cells, to try to fathom what are the possible implications for this new deranged 'invasive' species to their world (and universe).

When he regains his composure, he takes another timid peek at the mirror which also doubles as a touchscreen, and accidentally swipes a finger to a nearby neighbourhood and into the school zone. Apparently there is not much need for learning institutions, since all citizens are connected mentally and onboard the ubiquitous Wangxian net, therefore constantly exchange, gain and form new knowledge - so the towering derelict buildings have been turned into something else more interesting.

There are no Wei Yings or any normal humans in sight, since they're basically downgraded into the likes of simple commodities and crops - manufactured, grown, cultivated, harvested and sold - they would end up in the monsters' bedrooms, or imprisoned for life in dungeon-like complexes for public mass consumption. The aforementioned school functions as public facility for breeding and impregnation factories, hatcheries and incubation hubs. Lan Zhan secretly weeps for Mankind when he sees all lovely Wei Yings from all age groups, genders and forms, being relegated to the role of the bottomest of the bottoms, and serve as mindless demonic reproduction vessels for those animals, monsters and things - and still, more Wei Yings are being created by magic and pumped out of 41st century production lines every minute, straight into impatient and lustful, greedy and waiting hands, mandibles, limbs, claws, paws or tentacles of their new and sexually excited owners, waiting to breed deep into them to spawn and make more demonic and designer babies.

Lan Zhan tells himself that these are "his subjects" (from a rather third-person perspective), and therefore he distances himself away from such insanity. They're shapeshifters anyway, so he tries to imagine them as beautiful, handsome, white-clothed Lan disciples, where possible. With that, he steels his heart that he will be able to meet the day's challenge head-on.

Lan Zhan sneezes from the chill in the morning - or perhaps from the summer pollen in the air -, and he pulls his bathrobe closer to his body. He figured that after stealing another couple more minutes of mirror-viewing, he'll change to something more appropriate before leaving the comfort of a bed-and-breakfast.

A couple of centuries or more must have passed; the cave-home is cob-webbed, dark, deserted, empty and covered with undergrowth and some rubble - the passage of seasons hasn't been kind to his home in the 'Mounds. Even the twin Lan family lanterns in front of the residence have broken and crumbled to dust. If there was anyone inhabiting this forsaken-looking place - even Ernie - then surely there would've been some signs of being lived-in and maintained. Weeds have grown to tall wild grasses in the courtyard and the vegetable gardens, he couldn't see whether the chicken coop is still around or not, and the abandoned pond has been swallowed by thorny thickets. The fruit trees look aged and sparse, and the dark, dense and misty forests natural to the landscape have sprouted into the estate; in fact, without the cave, the entire scenery would have blended into the vast vegetation shrouded amongst greyed graveyard-like wilderness stretching into the horizons, that befits its original name.

He also briefly wondered, if there is still anyone alive when he returns with his loved one - he keeps a positive outlook as it's probably the only hope left for him to hold on to. He could empathize with how Wei Ying must have felt when the latter returned sixteen years after his first death, with no familiar faces to greet him and no place to call home. Lan Zhan starts drawing up a list of things to do when he gets back, out of sheer habit - sweep the floor, wipe the walls, dust the cobwebs, weed the gardens-- and a gentle knock on the door interrupts his train of encouraging and rather meditative thoughts.

“Wang Ji, my boy, come have a look at these garments - they’re from the Heavenly wardrobe and I specifically asked the servants to fetch those with cloud-themed patterns. Come and try, and pick one for your outing today,” the Queen Mother calls out from the door in a motherly manner.

Lan Zhan “Mn”s and gets up from the bed. He would choose a few good ones from the collection in her hands - and they’re all very regal in design, of high quality, laden with fine magically-enchanted embroidery and made of expensive, divinely fabrics that are tougher than steel yet as soft and comfortable as silk. He blushes a little when he’s asked to wear each one and twirl around for her to have a look - in Heaven, within a family’s home, there is no need to feel embarrassed for undressing and putting on clothes in front of others, especially when one is with the Great Mother of Men.

“I saw you gazing at your home just now. Don’t worry, Wang Ji, we’ll sort this out and make sure you’ll get back safely,” the Queen Mother assures her boy, as he puts on a second robe, silver and gold in colour though a little too luxurious for his tastes. “... although, we’ll be more than happy if you decide to stay here, even for a while. If you like the life here, we can grant you permanent residence and ascend you into godhood, so that you can live with us to your comfort and satisfaction,” she adds, while mm-hmm-ing when he discards the robe and puts them on the bed; she does not like colours that scream of flamboyance and excessive wealth either - she’s glad that Lan Zhan remains a humble and honest man.

Lan Zhan bows slightly with folded hands at the front - despite being fully in the nude in front of the grand old queen, and calmly speaks, “ Yue mu , for now, Wang Ji still prefers to return to his home in the Mortal Realm below, together with Wei Ying. Although much has happened, I... I want to find Wei Ying, bring him back and hide him, so that no evil forces will come and take him away again,” his gaze hardens with determination.

The Queen Mother sighs - such is the power of young love, she thought. She nods in agreement, and proceeds to hand him the third robe to try, which she thinks the man will find to his liking - white, minimalistic, elegant, with a few cloud-patterns, reminiscent of clothes worn by true Gusu Lan masters and disciples.

The scheduled Heavenly Fairy Messenger call with the Tian sisters is no ordinary call. Upon squeezing the amber-coloured puffy ball, the entire private living hall in the Heavenly Palace bursts into a three-dimensional projection of the other end of the line. “Eternity has taught us gods to make great things for ourselves, hidden in mundane objects in real life,” the sagely Jade Emperor explains. Eight sisters appear opposite them, sitting on sofas, beanie bags and on the floor, and they all rush around the handsome and sophisticated classically dressed di fu, ooh-ing and aah-ing at his gorgeous looks - they’re merely moving holographic images, and therefore cannot touch him - poking fingers and molesting hands just go through his body harmlessly; however the virtual proximity feels a bit too realistic for the man. Still, he tries his best to greet the girls and ladies politely with bows - and gets virtual hugs and muahs from all of them (he blushes from the non-existent sensations of a group hug anyway.)

The call was made through Tian Private Network (TPN), which is the Tian family’s private line and unaffiliated with any other Nets; it’s an ultra-high speed connection unknown to the outside world, realm and let alone the universe. Tian Second Sister assures that according to their consultancy work - which allowed them access to confidential information about the Kingdom and the company as well - Wangxian net adheres to the highest Universal, inter-Realm and inter-World standards of fair trade, data privacy and security policies, and therefore there should be no worries of eavesdropping by anyone from external side. “Even Wangxian net’s root directory is configured to obey these fundamental principles because the moment it doesn’t, there will be loss of confidence and customers, and the Kingdom’s economy will collapse,” she adds.

Lan Zhan blinks at the mention of the nefarious root directory. Tian Sixth Sister “ho ho ho”s at his surprise, and tells him that she’s and the other sisters have seen everything, and is up to date with what has happened - thanks to data packages covertly sent by loyal servants of the royal Tian monarchs over the past hours and days.

“ Di fu , I hope you’ve learnt your lesson - don’t spend your late nights watching porn, and expose yourself to scams due to your own greed and selfishness. Losing money to fraudsters and scammers happens often and we learn from our mistakes, but losing one’s soul is probably something you should never, ever have to experience in a lifetime,” Tian Third Sister gently chastises and virtually twists one of his ears. Lan Zhan bows again apologetically and the tips of his ears become red from the shame of committing such distasteful and unbecoming acts - if he was still in Gusu, he’d have his rump whipped by seniors at least twenty times by now.

“But we still love you better than that icky false di fu that tried to trick us,” little Tian Tian adds, probably to soothe Lan Zhan’s feelings, but which immediately caused concern for the godly couple in the Palace. They asked, almost alarmed, what icky things did the imposter do to their eight maiden girls.

“Don’t worry, Grandpa! He thinks that he’s the real Lan Wang Ji, but we can see through him. His soul is icky black, and not white like the rest of us. He keeps preaching ‘bout how great he is, how much progress he’s brought to the world, how he is loved by his people and others... yada yada yada, I really want to give him a flying kick and shut his trap!” preteen Tian Seventh Sister harrumphs proudly and demonstrates the said kick (and exposes her frilly white panties dotted with pink hearts) - she must’ve been bored being cooped up in the room all day and bursting with enthusiasm to pick and fight someone, and it starting to show.

Tian Fifth Sister starts punching a fist into her palm, “That monster’s crazy! He makes all these bugs and slimy creatures out of di fu ’s clones... EWW,” she sticks out a tongue and gags, “and they go all day with didi ’s clones to make monster babies. I want to smash him! Can I smash him? I’ll use my godly powers to slam this entire stinking continent into the Dragon King’s dumpster, pulverize every creepy crawly, and if I bend my fingers like this,” she makes a claw-like pincer with fingers, “I can instantly break that thing’s neck and squash it like a worm! Can I? Can I?” and she hops side to side and cackles like a murderer gone loose.

Tian Fourth Sister grabs the younger girl’s shoulders to calm her down, “No, no, there are consequences if you do that! We know how awesome you are, and yes you did create the last few Big Bangs to make this universe... but that thing who took over our di fu ’s body and soul belongs to di fu . So, we should ask his permission first before hurting it, and make sure our grandparents can foot the bill to fix the aftermath.” - in which the Jade Emperor, who had been silent all along, suddenly guffaws, “Ha ha ha! You girls underestimate your grand ancestor! I’m rich enough to pay for anything! After all, I’ve been saving up for trillions of years if not more!” and the Queen Mother hushes the husband because she’s worried that the TPN’s connection stability may be jeopardized (or become laggy) by the sudden laughter and squealing noises in the background.

Lan Zhan swallows hard and feels a little unnerved at the direction of the conversation. He'd thought the sisters would be terrified by Ernie's terror and wrath, and desperately wanted to escape the hell hole - but it seems the opposite.

In some ways, he's glad to be acquainted with the amazing-ness of the Tian family, as much as he'd gotten used to the multiple levels of Wei Ying-ness.

And he's on the gods' side this time.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

The call turned out to be more pleasant than say, what he'd expected to be full-blown panic as seen in movies involving hostages.

The Tian sisters immediately sniffed out the fraudulent Wang Ji, and they weren't friendly with the sudden change in behaviour too - the new Lan Wang Ji, from paperman then returned into the real body, acts boisterous, demanding, proud, sometimes shrewd and rude; however brilliant, charming, diplomatic and witty when needed; at times very principled, patient, wise and makes politically and strategically the best decisions - which somewhat reflects its legacy from a schizophrenic and multiple-personality Wei da ge and his kin / siblings who have anyway been turned into a mindless spawning machines, the eldest Tian sister adds.

“Despite our misgivings to this Ernie, as you call it, as the eldest and wisest amongst us, I need to give a balanced perspective on the situation. He.. err.. it, yes, I should be calling it ‘it’ - personality and behaviour aside, it’s done a splendid job in speeding up the reconstruction of the Kingdom and has advanced its species, or should I say citizens, at light-speed. Everyone outside of the continent - including the gods from our Realm - and the inhabitants in Wuji adore it... even I’m impressed at how it’s managing and leading the whole company and its people. Your and Wei Ying’s clones are completely satisfied; your kin gets to live happily and multiply albeit as non-human; while the Wei kin live in their own paradise, are cared for and have their hunger satisfied; and everyone is connected mentally just as the early days of Wangxian net, only infinitely better - and function like a well-oiled colony of individuals who behave as a single complex organism.

From an outsider perspective, Ernie has done everything perfectly right as a machine, and as a sentient being. The only one who lost out is you , and I guess our grandparents and us sisters are kinda offended that you were hurt in the end. I’m sure you came to the same conclusion too, shidi ” Tian da jie speaks with clarity and logic.

Lan Zhan chews on his lower lip. He’s still reeling from shock that the Tian sisters knew so much, and at the same time, his shijie is completely spot on. (truly, don’t mess with the gods!)

Perhaps it is to Lan Zhan’s fortune that nobody pressured him for an answer, and allowed the (wavering) man to digest what he’s heard, and what goes on inside his noisy head. As the conversation meanders on, he learns during the meeting between Ernie and his lackeys (for a lack of better word) and the sisters, the Great Father Lan declared that the contract with the sisters will be terminated, seeing that their role as consultants isn’t needed anymore, and the rest of the work - or the future of the Kingdom-cum-company - fully rests in its citizens’ hands (which scores brownie points amongst the people, gods and customers alike because everyone loves a heroic touching story of something rising from the ashes, grow up to maturity, to achieve its own independence). As compensation for the early retirement, the sisters get free extended visas to stay in the continent until the end of the year, and they can continue to enjoy travelling around, go sightseeing and basically holiday in Wuji like tourists at no cost - with all expenses funded by the company including accomodation, meals, tour packages, transportation, other incidentals and so on. (which then means that the Tian sisters have nothing against Ernie, and nobody could point at any ill-feelings festering between them. The state media will gladly use the opportunity to glorify the relationship between both realms and paint the Kingdom-cum-company in golden light. More brownie points for Ernie.)

The Jade Emperor instructs his favourite granddaughters to take Ernie's offer and not to exacerbate the situation, at least from a reputation standpoint - he clearly made it clear that he doesn't want the name of the Gods' Realm to be sullied by a tit-for-tat confrontation born out of internal family conflicts, and he has vested interests in maintaining peace and stability between both realms; in addition, he would like the sisters to monitor the affairs of the Kingdom-cum-comapny, keep feeding back news and information to the Palace, and "do what is necessary, when needed, discreetly and honestly, to secure our interests" (Lan Zhan shivers at the familiar phrase used).

"Wang Ji," the Emperor calls out after deliberating on what had transpired in the meeting between Ernie and his granddaughters, "Wei Ying, this... Ernie, and all the clones and creatures down there - they're in some way related to the Tian family - and you're still my favourite son-in-law. I hope to avoid further costly mistakes of continents burning down, of space and time going out of loop, or life forms losing their lives and souls, and find a gentlemanly way to talk things through and sort this mess.

However, I want you to know that I'm more than happy to wave our family's Ultimate Scepter of the Blooming Buddha Heavens Of Million Petals Lotus to wink everything out of existence and recreate the whole universe until the point even before the Great Fires started," and he snorts indignantly, "and I'll have you know that your Queen Mother and I will choose you over that blasted good-for-nothing and his / its creations and downlines anytime!" and he huffs with grandpa-styled pride.

Lan Zhan had to break into a small upward curve of lips, which delighted yue mu (because deep inside, she's squealing, my sweet little boy is finally smiling again!). Lan Zhan feels a whole lot better - if all is lost, he now has the fallback option to (theoretically) turn back time before the entire episode started, before Wuji existed, before Wei Ying quadrupled, and before their peaceful lives were somewhat ruined.

He's still the Grand Patriarch of his family, the husband of Wei Ying(s), so he really should pick up the slack and get his act together; he shouldn't dawdle any more and mire himself in despair; he should put his foot down and stand his ground - firmly.

Hence, when the Tian sisters informed that there will be private banquet to be held that evening, where the Jade Emperor, the Queen Mother and Tian sisters are invited to have a light dinner with The Great Father Lan a.k.a. President of Wangxian, before the grand ribbon-cutting ceremony to be held shortly after that - Lan Zhan raises his hand, this time not for objecting the trajectory of the string of amazingly fortuitous things that has happened to him, but to tell his in-laws that he wants to be part of the grand party that's about to rock their world.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

During the day, Lan Zhan spends most of his time within the Palace's protective walls. He gets acquainted with the various rooms and halls within the complex, and the winding corridors, annexes and secret tunnels as well. The place looks as tall as a mountain and as wide as the open seas, and its interiors spread far and wide as a city. When his yue fu casually mentions that the Palace, which is the Tian family's ancestral home, can be as wide as a world or a Realm of its own, and he can carve out a corner of the building specially for Lan Zhan, so that the man can use it as a "bedroom when he visits and stays over, or a storage for luggage, as spacious as this Universe"-- Lan Zhan rolls his eyes inwardly (he's really getting used to larger-than-life descriptions used by his in-laws, and sometimes he's not sure if they're just trying to entertain him, or if they're dead serious).

He met with various celestial beings and servants who greeted him politely, and let him watch them do their daily work and routines, and learn. Magicians experiment with and cast amazing spells; warriors, soldiers and military strategists practice their divinely cultivation, spar with one another, and play mind games to outwit and outmaneuver in games of chess; tutors teach holy sutras, science and legends, history and geography, politics and economics, and a variety of subjects both old and new to the younger generations of palatial workers and their children; scientists demonstrate their latest inventions and explore the boundaries of divinity, physics, biology, astrology and astronomy; botanists grow flowers, edibles and crops in high-tech Tian-exclusive horticulture hubs and greenhouses; linguists share insights on texts from other worlds and realms, and a peek on the mind-boggling variety of cultures and societal constructs that exist; even the hospitality department showed Lan Zhan tips and tricks on housekeeping without relying on automatons - and so much more. Some were chatty and in a rush, which left Lan Zhan rather uncomfortable and he'd leave soon after, while the quieter introverted ones allow him to observe, and appreciate the exquisite blend of old and new disciplines, methods, and tools which the palatial workers have come to weave into their lifestyles Perfectly.

There are gardens and courtyards within the Palace's complexes, and he gets to sample some freshly-plucked goodies, such as Tian's heirloom tomatoes, fruits, sugary melons, nutritious berries and other agricultural products including honey. Just when he thought he'd seen everything and began to walk his way back, he chances upon a small clean yard with an astonishingly huge bodhi tree as tall as a hill growing out of the ground, providing abundant shade from its layers of dense foliage. An old bald man in saffron robes swept the floor with a traditional straw broom - the type that one could buy from any general store back on earth - and after a while, he pauses, straightens his back and stretches a little from task, before taking a seat near gigantic and aged roots. He sees Lan Zhan and waves a hand, inviting the latter to sit next to him.

Lan Zhan smiles a little; it's been a while since he'd met an old friend.

In the awesomely huge Heavenly kitchens, he stares transfixed at thousands of celestial servants preparing and cooking meals for Palace officials and staff workers, and picks up useful cooking techniques and recipes. He'd also try his hand at using Wangxian and Tian-branded stoves, cooking pots, microwaves, air fryers and ovens; he didn't know that the Tian family owned their line of household goods, simply because they're exclusive to the gods and aren't for the general public; he concludes that the Tians' ultra-premium products are indeed, unbelievably, superior, more convenient and intelligent for everyday cooking compared to Wangxian's mass-produced ordinary ones.

Lan Zhan's mood seems to lighten by midday, as he helps out with his in-laws by his side, and they make a simple but filling lunch of Perfectly steamed rice, traditional meat and vegetarian dumplings, Gusu-style boiled fish with tofu (which the health-conscious grand couple absolutely loved), stir-fry garden vegetables from the palatial gardens, and a tasty soup made from stewed melons and fresh pork ribs bought from a local grocery store near the Heavenly Court, just around the neighbourhood. The Jade Emperor and his wife praised Lan Zhan for his superb cooking skills, which made the latter feel humbled, and he insisted that he just cooked a family meal that's no different from when he is on earth.

Later, he learnt about how humans can be made using some special ingredients including Tian's Fairy Dust, flour, water and salt. An angelic servant showed him how to knead the dough and shape it to the form of a person - which reminded him about a paperman - and how to make modifications to it, such as sculpting good looks, female and male parts, moulding a muscular figure, adding colours and other interesting features such as horns and tails, and so on. Then, the servant wrote a few mystical words which Lan Zhan has never seen before, but he's able to memorize them due to his visual memory, and the winged creature with a halo on its head said, "That's it. Just make sure to imagine the body's features, and keep that image in focus until you've finished writing the spell onto the dough. Put it into the oven and bake it at high temperatures until it's brown, crispy and smells delicious. Pop it into your mouth like a biscuit, chew and swallow."

The man raised an eyebrow. "... is that it?" he asked.

The servant nodded, "Yes, that's it, young master. As soon as the soul swallows the enchanted food, it becomes its own designed body and therefore a fully functional human being! It's much better than trying the Creation and Time-spell combo, which is prone to errors due to the caster's mental, emotional and spiritual state and a drain in health and resources for the maker."

Then the servant walks over to a cabinet, fetches an old dog-eared and worn booklet no bigger than a marriage certificate. "Actually, if you're as health-conscious as the Emperor and the queen, you might want to try some low sugar and fat options. Or if you're not into crunching biscuits, you could bake some soft bread and sponge cakes instead," it remarked as the booklet is handed to the man.

He takes the book and stares bewilderedly at its cover: "10,001 Recipes for Creating Infinities and Living Existences, written by the Gods of the 327th Universal Reincarnation".

"Young master, you can have the book as all servants of the Tian family are already well-versed with the recipes in there. It contains all the necessary recipes, incantations, mystical words and other useful information to make anything you can imagine. In a practical sense, you'll only need to worry about getting enough Fairy Dust for any baking attempts, which is exclusively made for our family. You can always call the toll-free number to our Tian Call Center stated at the back of the book, identify yourself to the customer service operator, and order anytime. Our family's treasures will gladly pay for you," the servant concludes its explanation with a beaming smile.

Lan Zhan pockets the book and is at a loss for words other than a polite Thank-You to the kind celestial servant who treated him well.

Lan Zhan has another favourite garment - the bathrobe that his in-laws gifted. It's soft white material matches with his overall angel-white themed attire, and he was asked to wear it as his inner garment - so he wears layers: the bathrobe, another two outer layers, and a grand fur-lined robe of cloud prints on the outside.

The Queen Mother mentioned in passing that the bathrobe was actually handed down from the Jade Emperor (because the ever growing over-six-foot tall great-grandfather couldn't really fit into it anymore), and it's packed with incredible astronomical godly powers - including stuff "greater than the Tian's family scepter, by the way" - and Lan Zhan quickly adjusted the bathrobe so that it stays snug against his body.

(He's been showered with lots of gifts from the Heavens lately, such as the compact mirror, the booklet, a tiny paperman-like biscuit carefully wrapped and stowed into an enchanted pouch, and now a bathrobe, and in his pockets are other small mundane things bestowed by friends from the Realms of the Gods as souvenirs - frankly, he's quite afraid to try them out, for fear of accidentally hitting a 'delete' button for something.)

The bathrobe shields Lan Zhan from detection by the Kingdom of Lan and its omnipresent Wangxian net (which is why he hadn't been detected during his two-day stay in the Heavens and other Realms, and the only place where he walked around naked in broad daylight for prolonged periods of time was within the Heavenly Palace, which is an impenetrable fortress itself). He tagged along his parents-in-law as they approached a grand wooden double-door at a corner of the courtyard; his in-laws dressed to divinely Perfection (as always) and they brought along with them some outdoor equipment, including scepters (there's a mean-looking stick as long as a man's leg, with a dragon head and an ornate handle, comfortable in yue fu 's grasp - he hoped that it is the fabled weapon, but he doesn't dare to ask).

“You know, I would like to try that Stairways to the Blue Skies that the good-for-nothing created as a portal to this realm, but that idiot screwed up his priorities as usual, and the closest stairway leads from a first-tier city in Wuji straight into our garden well . Who the hell would want to dive into a pool of stagnant water just to visit his penthouse, for goodness' sake!” the grand old Emperor roars in exaggerated anger, then sighs loudly and slouches in exasperation. Yue mu rubs soothing circles on the grandfather's back to calm the upset god.

“Hush, darling. Less angry words, and tuck your chin up. We should at least look impressionable and give our boy the best chance to say a few words to that hopeless brat's creation,” she says without hesitation.

Lan Zhan had watched a few recent news and video clips from the paper scroll (which works like a portable television of sorts), and learned that the majority of the worlds, realms and the universe believe that the thing currently sitting on the throne of the Kingdom and the president's chair of the company, is the highly venerable Great Father Lan, known by his mortal name Lan Wang Ji, and formerly called Han Guang Jun by cultivators from the Mortal Realm. Only the Realms of the Gods including the Tian's, the Heavenly Court and the the realms that he'd been introduced and visited, knew the truth - that a family drama of epic proportions between a father and his estranged child-turned-bodysnatcher-turned-imposter is brewing, and it's about to boil over.

It was a rather silent and awkward family get-together for the Tian's, with plenty of hushed whispers between generational gaps, as they stare at and look away from the very handsome man in his mid-thirties, sitting between the grand old godly couple. He looks dignified, though his face is a little pale and anxious - as they try to pick on some expensive imported salads and poked absently at herbal-stewed abalones and mushrooms out of the sumptuous "light dinner" banquet laid out before them on a huge circular table; none of them have any appetite anyway.

Lan Zhan had made it safely to the private meeting room of sorts - a closed opulent hall with marble walls, rich teak wood furnishings, antique and high quality furniture and lined with curtains embroidered with gold and silver, situated on the 87th floor of the spiralling Wangxian headquarters tower. It had been an uneventful but brisk walk from the Jade Emperor's double-door portal and up a vertical lift to the second-most highest level of the building. Lan Zhan stuck close to his parents-in-law and he was virtually unnoticed by any dark inhuman (not necessarily cold and black) citizens, guards, employees or servants in Wangxian's insidious heart of operations. The sisters were already waiting for them at the dinner table, and they were disgusted by what they'd seen in the tower, similarly as the visiting guests from Heaven (with Lan Zhan as a sort of stowaway).

"It's... an amazing piece of ugly art, I'd say. Everything required to run the Kingdom and the company is in here, just as what I had in mind while working on the drawing board," Tian Second Sister said when they chatted softly about their brief sightseeing tour of the 88-floor tower. "However, that monster really broke all rules and turned the whole thing into a living space-time continuum of procreation depravity, and it's just so wrong on many architectural and engineering levels! Can I kill that monster? Can I?"

Can I?” Tian Fifth Sister interjected, and she looked offended while rubbing her fists.

“Ssssh, don’t say that m-word so loudly, otherwise a bug in the wall might hear you!” Tian Fourth Sister closes her elder sister’s mouth. “I’m a master when it comes to magic, and have never seen such wild reckless usage of spells to warp everything into such crazy proportions. It’s... madness. Something’s gonna break and bring down the hammer of justice on this hell, I tell you.”

Lan Zhan takes another sip of jasmine tea - not his favourite, but he doesn’t complain since it’s what they’re serving on the table. While riding up the lift, he took out his compact mirror - and learned that it could help him ‘see’ the interior of the tower which is magically sealed from the outside world, and project the images so that his in-laws can have a look too. Both gods shook their head and sighed in unison.

Certain floors in the headquarters look normal - office setup or residential areas that function to serve the needs of the company and the kingdom. However, the rest are space-time bubbles that stretch into infinite distances - clearly making universes out of their own, since Lan Zhan tried to browse as far as he could, and his vision spun into deep space, and he started seeing planets, stars and galaxies inside those bubbles. The land on the worlds, and of countless worlds in those mini-universes, are filled with 41st century Wuji-lookalikes, fully inhabited and functional, buzzing with life and activity - clearly, a major prohibited use of Creation and Time spells. However what disturbed him most is that much of the space is filled with farms and buildings, where countless Lan Zhans and Wei Yings live together in 31st century-like settings and as families in illusionary happy homes, and more spaces where tentacle-y cold black things and their progeny - be it insects, creepy crawlies, animals and other inhuman forms - continuously warp and weave in and out of such places freely to satisfy their lusts and reproductive instincts. Dark corrupted inhuman children (and things) are produced as fast as their human hosts are manufactured and housed into ever-expanding breeding farms.

Watching the hypnotic, dreamy and smiling faces on the impregnated humans, and the upturned mandibles, serrated mouths and fanged lips of Ernie-kin joyfully fathering new generations and planting their seeds, depending on sub-species, as they engage in endless procreation activities - hits Lan Zhan straight into the gut when he realizes that they're all living in their paradise - and that there is nothing he can do, is there?

“It’s a virus of unimaginable magnitude, and it lives off human hosts,” Tian da jie speaks calmly, trying to be the voice of calm and reason among her sisters.

“Strangely, it does not cause any problem to this world, other worlds or any other Realms. It simply creates as many hosts it needs to keep multiplying in its own self-created space,” Tian Third Sister murmurs and shakes her head, confounded, “This kind of behaviour and reality breaks all logical rules, at least from a biological and economic standpoint.”

Little Tian Tian looks up from her cold untouched salad. “If it is so icky, and yet does not hurt anyone, is it bad?”

Tian Seventh Sister grumbles after taking a bite of an odd meat nugget from the kiddie platter, “Grrr.. I hate to admit it, as much as I really want to blast that thing into smithereens, I can’t think of a good reason other than saying that the human sex slaves should rise up and tear those monsters down, and I'm all for it!"

"But if those humans are willingly bound by their rings or even icky romantic feelings towards their masters, what can we do? Should us gods and demi-gods interfere and split them apart, or worse, cause an entire species to go extinct? Who makes this decision?" Tian Sixth Sister had thought long and deep with as many creative lines of questioning, and she turned to Lan Zhan. He shudders at the sudden attention from eight, no, ten pairs of eyes.

Lan Zhan sighs, and asks one of the zombie-like insect waiters standing guard at the corners of the private room, for directions to the washroom (strangely it could hear him, but couldn't recognize him - the wonders of the enchanted bathrobe). Lan Zhan needed to clear his head and perhaps relieve himself from the stress, if anything has been building up inside his bladder in the past half-hour (curse the three cups of jasmine tea he'd drunk carelessly) because the other party is late for their meeting. The insect waiter gestured with a chitinous claw at a plain metal door next to him - ah, there's a universal male-female signage at the top, however the said male-female had horns, wings, plenty of clawed limbs sticking out and tails added, so Lan Zhan couldn't recognize it at first.

Just then, one of the doors on the other side of the room bursts open.

"I'm sorry for the delay, and please excuse me. I had no intention to keep you waiting, but I'm absolutely swamped with preparations for my, no, our new beginning--"

Lan Wang Ji - in his Perfect body and looks every bit like the Han Guang Jun he's known for, save for his dark flowing robes lined with red (similar to what Wei Wuxian used to wear not too long ago) and an obsidian hairpiece keeping his topknot and long hair in place, the whites of his eyes are blacked, and his shoes - well, he doesn't have any shoes since the lowermost part of body peeking out from the hem of the robes consist of wiggling tentacles and no five-toed feet - slithers into the room of ten and a table full of barely-touched food.

He stares at Lan Zhan, and the irises on those blackened eyes start to take on a murderous bloody-red tinge.

“You...”

Notes for the Chapter:

It looks like this arc is going a bit longer than intended. I hope to end it soon coz I'm getting a bit icky from writing icky sex and trying to reconcile the icky stuff with the main storyline that has gone south.

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 67

Extracts from a report generated by an Andromedan scientific observation on the extraordinary progress of the Third Planet of the xxxxxx system of the Milky Way galaxy, prior to the signing of the first free trade agreement between the Interstellar Federation of the Andromedan Alliance with Wangxian Co. Ltd.:

...The state of the citizens living in the continent of Wuji is in a constant flux because everything functions like a mega-complex intelligent living organism - it continuously reviews its history, successes and failures, examines its current situation and scans its surroundings, experimenting with possibilities and exploring potential opportunities...

...There are two main species:

- the human kins derived from individuals historically known as “Wei Wuxian” (ancestral name: Wei) and “Lan Wang Ji” (ancestral name: Lan), and
- the hybrid master kin that predominates all aspects of their society - said to be created by a Wei kin as a “cold black thing”, and assimilated the Lan kin’s First Father.

The master-kin is socioculturally considered as direct descendents and relatives of the “Great Father”, who currently rules the Kingdom into its 41st century of modernization...

...In addition, the master-kin is a kind of bio-shapeshifter, morphologically indeterminate, generally dark in colour although not necessarily black despite its inherited ancestry, and has diversified into a whole spectrum of sub-species with varying levels of flexi-capabilities...

...The master-kin becomes the civilization of the monarchical Kingdom of Lan, and runs Wangxian Co. Ltd. whose business spans across the known universe and accompanying realms...

...This species bioengineers the human-kin and has an infinite storage and supply of them for biological reasons - it needs the human kins as vessels solely for reproduction purposes to spawn new generations, although the younglings can be independently raised to adults; hence, the master-kin and human-kin has a strange but compelling parasitic relationship...

...The ruling species has consigned the fate of human-kins to the bottommost class. Of note, due to the influence of the Lan's First Father in the master-kin's genetic blueprint, there is a prevailing and overwhelming preference for Wei-kin for procreation activities, resulting in very few and rare Lan-kin individuals in existence. However, we have unearthed historical data from past research from other races, indicating that Lan-kin tends to be above Wei-kin in hierarchies, although there is too little data to confirm their position, rank, function and value to the society...

...The societal structure is fluid and there are no distinct patterns or set numbers of individuals per family headed by the master-kin. We have recorded instances of one or more master-kin in a family, using one or more Wei kin as reproductive vessels. Furthermore, individuals freely interchange between families as dictated or agreed between acquainted master-kin...

...The continent of Wuji seems becoming overcrowded due to the explosion in numbers in the master-kin and the demand for usable land, which greatly hampers the extent of colonization and spread of the species, based on recent new headlines which are refuted by the Kingdom...

...We have received unverified information from interstellar mercenaries and Nebula-class scouts that clandestine and top-secret laboratories inside the 88-floor headquarters of Wangxian have started using space-time technology to warp and expand the size of their space, similar to the techniques used by yyyyyyy race from...

...Blurred images taken from orbital vision-scopes and data from astrophysical probes lead us to believe that such emerging quantum spheres, dubbed “Universes” in their local language, do exist and are in the midst of being created, colonized and populated... primarily with industrial factories for developing and manufacturing very advanced and sophisticated armies, resources, weaponry, warfare equipment... We recommend caution when engaging with this race, as evolution and technological advancement proceeds at an incredible speed, and we do not know if there are any aggressive or hostile inclinations towards military interests or interstellar conquests...

Somewhere not in Wuji continent...

Lan Zhan is a Perfectly Happy, middle-aged bachelor living in a humble wooden cottage filled with amenities representative of 21st-century modern comfort living, being gainfully employed in a nearby family-owned factory business, carrying out his duties as allocated by his masters, and having enough me-time for everything else in his fulfilling, peaceful life.

The cottage is located in what the estate agents dub as “a Perfect replica of the heart of the quaint historical Summer Berries District as depicted by artists more than two centuries ago, where picturesque river gorges and misty mountains of the ancient Cloud Recesses meet lush blue-green lakeside of Lotus Pier, dotted with pretty pink flowers and an abundance of local wildlife and native flora”.

The thought of renting a tiny apartment in the continent of Wuji - the land of their Fathers -, which has become increasingly overcrowded, noisy and polluted, led him to conclude that the Fatherland is too cluttered, metropolitan and modernized for his tastes. Then, after participating in a state-sponsored tour around selected First Tier Universes, he learns that those places aren't really suited for him either - they are too industrial, too consumeristic, too materialistic, in some ways.

[ The Kingdom set up 88 First Tier Universes mainly as a deceptive front - to deter alien civilizations who may harbour nefarious intent to invade and pillage its lands; any alien motherships would logically warp straight to the 88-floor Headquarters in the Fatherland, and when they see the string of Universes containing infinite factories churning out armies of master-kin, human-kin (mostly of the Wei-kin sub-species), automatons and other frightening stuff , surely they will be awestruck and flee to the nearest asteroid cluster with tails between their legs, figuratively speaking. However, those 88 Universes serve to provide resource and infrastructure to the rest of the Universes, which are anyway quite self-sufficient these days. Lan Zhan currently resides in one of the countless Second Tier Universes, located in a deeper layer of universes and hidden away from any alien civilizations. The entire architecture of tiered universes is as complex as, say, peeling onions and trying to figure out just how many layers exist before reaching the Universal Core. ]

Like any newborn human Lan-kin, who are considered rare and privileged these days, he is born into a queue of his kind; which is really the best, comforting way to open one's eyes - the sight of a long hallway with light at the end of the tunnel, accompanied by calming recitals of Gusu Lan's over-4000 family rules droning from overhead speakers (it's the first time he listens to his Great Father's pre-recorded voice), and mountain-air fresh breeze blowing from the vents in the ceilings.

He comes into existence with perfect form and physique as dictated by an ultra-complex series of calculations that determines an individual's Creation, Time and Fate states; he is pre-loaded with abilities, knowledge, intelligence and wisdom; and he is perpetually connected to Wangxian net (which is a blessing, really, because despite his quiet and introverted disposition, he will never be alone. There are other Lan-kin living light-years and universes away, who love to lurk in forums moderated by former LanWeb masters, and they're ready to listen, lend a hand to help, or offer a shoulder to cry on).

Lan Zhan would line up shortly after his birth, patiently, to get his number, and later, an automaton-attendant will attend to him when his number is called. He gets his ID, which is a zillion characters in length (a major evolution from the blockchain technology from archaic 21st century) embedded in the Soulmate Binding Ring entwined into the construct of his fourth finger, and a starter kit consisting of introductory brochures, coupons, maps, a bank account full of money, and strips of pressable plastic red-buttons. With these, he is granted full citizenship status under the Kingdom of Lan.

Nobody goes hungry in the 41st century, and every basic necessity is available at the touch of fingertips - towards the nearest red buttons. It's no longer about surviving to live - it's living out one's choices, desires, wants (not needs) and preferred lifestyles. He could spend his life pressing red buttons to have Postdrones, portals, wormholes and automatons bring him satin beds, clothes of every imaginable fashion, gardens full of seasonal vegetables, homes fit for kings and gods, food from all over the known universe, entertainment from the past to the future, grimoires to practise spellcasting, Bichen clones to work on cultivation - everything else, really - to fulfil his needs and desires; however there is an ancestral instruction indoctrinated in every Lan-kin to find his purpose in life through dedicated honest and hard work according to Gusu Lan virtues, and to find Wei Ying(s) to cherish and love (one's Soulmate Binding Ring will glow when he finds his one true love-Wei Ying).

Money is an option and not a necessity, since the Kingdom has more than adequate resources and is able to distribute them effectively to all its citizens. There is no need to work and earn gold pieces, although some form of currency may be required to pay for premium goods which are above market-value. Since he starts off with a huge sum deposited in his bank account, and he lives a rather minimalistic lifestyle, there is no urgency to start hoarding gold or other valuable assets.

Having considered the Perfectly Happy life that awaits him, and his penchant for something rustic, law-abiding, peaceful and with the charm of traditions - hence, Lan Zhan decided to settle down in a humble wooden cottage somewhere in the Second Tier Universe, where he enjoys living in a rural setting close to nature, where people are generally friendlier, and where age-old customs are very much alive and preferred compared to modern mindsets.

He gets up at the crack of dawn, completes his household chores (including sweeping, because he has an inherent dislike for unthinking machines taking over one of his sacred jobs), and hangs the laundry out the window - just his loincloth, and a pair of shorts; he doesn't have to worry about leaving the items out to dry, because in his space-time bubble (i.e. his little estate with the cottage in the middle) the sun always shine brightly during daytime.

[ Days and nights do not matter when the movement of artificially-created sunlight, the change in local weather conditions, and the passage of time can be manipulated at will, without the consequences of clashing space-time bubbles and ripping reality fabrics, because the Second Tier Universe is just that awesome .

Another awesomeness is that every Universe comes with a growing number of Realms. There are heavenly skycities, underwater metropolises, towns located in the depths of the mantle of planets, and so on. Such realms are usually hidden and undetectable by normal means. Furthermore, inter-Realm travel is generally restricted until the particular world's civilization is mature and ready for such amazing change in realities. ]

Shortly after six, just as he is about to start his fifteen-minute indoor cultivation session and guqin-themed meditation on a newly-acquired yoga mat, an ant comes scurrying into his compound and knocks on the door.

[ Master-kin tend to keep upright bipedal, modern and business-appropriate appearances in the Fatherland (where anyone could be filmed on camera and newsfeeds, or appear on Weitube), and in the First Tier Universes (where having an advanced humanoid form tend to scare away alien motherships from civilizations of perceived lower evolutionary forms - it's psychological warfare taking advantage of inferiority complexes). Beyond that, where there is little or no chance to be seen, master-kin tend to relax and return to their natural states. ]

Mister Lan! Good morning! , the meter-long ant cheerfully calls.

[ Master-kin can communicate through magical and telepathic means, and can cast Creation spells to make larynxes if desired. It can be stressful to try to speak in a non-native language using unfamiliar body parts, so most of the time, they just stick to convenience. Lan Zhan, like any Lan-kin, is able to tap into such communication pathways, and he can always look up Wangxian net to search unfamiliar terms or sounds, and learn new languages. ]

The ant stands on its hind legs when Lan Zhan opens the main door to greet it, and gets a whiff of fresh air from his estate. The sun had barely risen from the horizon, quickly swallowing the fading night into brilliant pillars of orange and yellows peeking from low-hanging clouds surrounding mountain ranges in the far distance. Mister Ant (it has an ID number and probably a nickname, however Lan Zhan has only moved in barely a week ago, and hasn't gotten to know all his neighbours yet) - the ant hands him a basket of goodies - a jar of honey, fresh homemade jams, foraged berries, nuts and seeds, tropical fruits such as bananas and mangoes, and some steaming baozi with sweet red bean filling.

Our colony had expanded again since the new batch of vessels arrived a few days ago, so we always have excess food and produce. Please take some, one of my broodmates said that it's tough living alone, so we hope this will lighten up your day! , the ant chitters joyfully.

[ 'Vessels' is a very loose term to denote the Wei-kin used for reproductive purposes by the master-kin. There are other terms used which may be derogatory and offensive in nature, so the god-fearing and rule-abiding rural community sticks to something neutral and intelligent-sounding. ]

Lan Zhan takes the basket and murmurs a short word of thanks. He'd seen this ant before; it's from the neighbouring estate, which is a space-time bubble full of tropical and temperate-climate landscapes, lush jungles, rolling hills and plenty of waterscapes; that estate is inhabited by a co-operative of lowly insects, bugs and creepy crawlies who have banded together into a tribe of symbiotic relationships, so that each individual or sub-species can contribute and strengthen their distinct and harmonious ecosystem of sorts. There are ants, honey bees, wasps, houseflies, snails and slugs, earthworms, millipedes, arachnids and so on, living in a tightly knit community with a hodgepodge of anthills, beehives, dirt mounds, underground tunnel networks and cavern, and aboveground straw huts.

[ Despite being a fast-populating region of a small water-based planet of a tiny planetary system in the Second Tier Universe, low life forms remain dominant in numbers, although near at the bottom of the societal ladder. Nearly 70 to 80 percent of the master-kin population are invertebrates, and they mostly work in rural areas and the suburbs, mostly as farmers, ranchers, fishermen, and owners of small businesses. The remaining are higher vertebrate life forms and inhumans, who take up more elite positions and work in more exciting careers.

Similar to the ancestral human counterparts, master-kin individuals tend to cooperate with others and live within communities of the similar subspecies, or at least the perceived hierarchy in the evolutionary and social latter; hence the saying “birds of a feather flock together”. ]

Umm.. umm.. Can I ask for a favour, on behalf of my village? the ant suddenly turned sheepish and grasps its four clawed limbs behind its back. It explained that the tribe noticed an abundance of sweet summer fruit trees such as apples and peaches in Lan Zhan’s estate, and they wondered if it was possible to get some decaying and deadwood - for construction, feeding and bedding purposes. Some of the underground-dwelling inhabitants prefer such materials, and special fungus and mushrooms thrive especially well in qi-boosted wood - such cultivated foods are packed with summer flavours which bugs love very much.

We’ll.. We’ll help you clean your estate! We’ll remove all the dead and dirty bits, and harvest ripe fruits for you too - we’ll put them in front of your doorsteps. We’ll also weed your garden too!

Lan Zhan had to agree - it’s a no-brainer deal after all. He had created a vast estate when he moved in a week ago, into a neighbourhood that’s less than a year old (it’s a new housing area after all). Having little reference on what kind of lifestyle he really wanted, he simply filled it with recent memories of his past, which are mostly summer trees and plants enchanted by his inborn unlimited golden core energy. He also has a small garden in the compound in front of his cottage, and a few vegetable seedlings are starting to sprout along with uninvited grass and weeds. He could use a helping hand from the neighbours, and they'll get something in return - it's a win-win.

Oh, thank you, Mister Lan! You're very kind and you're a great neighbour although you've just moved in a few days ago. If you need anything from our tribe, please come by the fence that separates our space-time borders and call out for any of us! There're a whole lot more residents in our growing village, so surely someone will hear you!, the ant bows in gratitude.

Lan Zhan had inspected the borders of their space-time bubbles - perfectly created, doesn't require a coat of paint, and built to last for generations, according to the descriptions by the estate agent. At that time, he also caught glimpses of the tribe's debauched bedroom activities, because someone forgot to close the curtains - which is Perfectly fine, because in the idyllic backwoods, everyone should know each other, and people are just too comfortable to lock their doors or close their curtained windows.

He'd seen one of several vessels being bred that time. A lovely Wei Ying - though not the one he wants, because his ring didn't resonate - had giant ants and bees crawling between his legs, and three or more phallic tubes wriggle inside him at any time. They were going at it at full speed, because as soon as groups of insects quiver with excited chitters and squeals, and erupt their seeds into the vessel, surplus amounts of thick black goo would squirt out of the overflowing womb, along with a newly-born fat larva. The other sub-species of the tribe join in the sexual fest as they take turns to satisfying their primal lusts for procreation, lock their reproductive phallic appendages and penises into their lovely Wei Ying, piston, drill and vibrate deep into the swelling fertile child-bearing cavity, orgasm delightfully inside the moaning Wei Ying to spurt poison-black impure fluids and semen, to inject to venom and deadly foul liquids, and tear and rip the unborn fetuses, in order to corrupt the unborn and degenerate it into masses of wriggling invertebrate offsprings.

As a rather new colony less than six months old and a growing tribe, they had to produce as many younglings as possible to work the farms and help the extended family - hence, Lan Zhan could understand why the tribe needed to order tens of vessels delivered by truck-sized Postdrones, and in the dead of the night, he could always hear some loud moaning and screaming filtering through the tall bushes that grow along the border fences.

[ The reproduction cycle of the citizens of the Kingdom is common knowledge, however as time progresses, subtle evolutionary changes take place.

For low life forms: any master-kin, usually the patriarch, does the deed to ensure the vessel conceives a new life. Due to the genetic blueprint of master-kins which is derived from the body of the First Father Lan, a human embryo is always formed. Following conception and during the growth of the fetus, other master-kin, usually the rest of its family or tribe, contributes to convert the living contents inside the womb into the subspecies that is desired. Mixing up genetic matter and corruptive bodily fluids help to build smarter, stronger and more powerful individuals than the parents - the improvements in the new hybrid progeny could be a simple accumulation of the parents' features, or something else revolutionary might emerge. Depending on size and available resources, one human life may be transformed into one equivalent master-kin spawn, or many lesser and smaller spawns.

For higher life forms and inhumans: since there are less individuals, there is less research conducted, documented experience and public knowledge on the subject. Again, the master-kin Patriarch impregnates the vessel, however there is not much need for advancement through corruption. Data from private prenatal screenings are limited - because higher life forms can afford such luxury medical care, though such data are confidential and kept by the hospitals - but there have been anecdotal evidence of non-human and inhuman fetuses formed after conception inside the vessels; proof that the such citizens and their seeds have evolved over time. However, primal instincts for survival and multiplication prevail, and the adults continue to engage in pleasurable sexual intercourse and other enjoyable activities with their vessels.

In all cases, master-kin spawns are born by the vessels, and cared by adult master-kin into adulthood, which may include multiple life cycle stages as dictated by the sub-species biology (e.g. pupa)

For human-kin: Strictly created using Creation and other powerful spells from the Kingdom's factories, and multiplied using magic where necessary, based on the genetic blueprints of the First Fathers. Wei-kin make up to nearly 99 percent of production volumes, are fitted with artificial wombs where needed, then shipped to their destined master-kin families or picked up at the nearest retail store or outpost. Lan-kin are significantly rare, sometimes considered collectables, due to the low demand except for hobbyists and for research purposes. Lan-kin do not have reproductive value in the eyes of master-kin, however technically they can be fitted with artificial wombs and function similarly as their Wei counterparts. Due to their uncertain existence which borders on the brink of extinction, the Kingdom has agreed to provide additional privileges and protection, including necessary enhancements to their body, intelligence and proficiencies.

For historical and possibly sentimental reasons, exclusive human-kin enclaves are maintained in specially enhanced space-time bubbles designated throughout the Kingdom and its Universes, which are sealed off from contact from the outside worlds. Human-kins in these areas continue to live, propagate and thrive since its 21st and 31st century civilizations, and well into the 41st century and beyond. Special administrative bodies are set up to govern and manage such enclaves to preserve the purity of bloodlines, biodiversity genetic material and culture of human-kin society. Notably, due to the dual-individual structure of the species, there notable combinations in communal and family structure including: singlehood, family of single kins, one Lan patriarch with multiple Wei-kins, one Wei patriarch with multiple Lan-kins, monogamous relationships and many other polyamorous and polygamous combinations. In addition, human-kins in these enclaves have evolved into their own non-human (partial) and inhuman variants not seen elsewhere in the Kingdom. ]

After bidding goodbyes with polite Mister Ant, he stores the gifted goods into his pantry and refrigerator (the storage area is acceptable as long as a light switches on by itself, and it's not too cold and dark in there), and noticed that time is running short. He rushes to the indoor shower for a quick bath with hot water, then puts on his clothes - simple and practical yet elegant white robes (he has at least five sets of those with minor variations in his wardrobe).

On his way out, he stuffs a baozi into his mouth, picks the daily newspaper delivered by a raven Postbird, and does not forget to leave the gate unlocked so that his neighbors can clean his estate and garden later. He walks through a windy but familiar road to the nearest portal station, where he can teleport to his workplace for free; the local council advocates energy savings and use of shared public facilities to protect the pristine and relatively magically undamaged environment.

He passes by a huge mansion that looks like a five-storey chicken coop - because it houses birds and poultry with a couple of four-legged rodent kins as well; the family must have adopted some individuals or somehow made them out of their vessels. A broad-chested, large dark jungle rooster and its co-patriarch or wife of sorts, a black drake, are preparing their brood of fluffy chicks and feathered fledglings for a morning hike (flight, really) to a closeby hill park. They carried picnic baskets full of food (grains, worms, whatever the children likes) and outdoor gear. The drake lashes out at one of the teenage juveniles for becoming too horny even at six thirty in the morning; the chicken-duck hybrid kin squawks in delight while straddling and pinning its Wei Ying to the ground, and ignores its mother's sharp tongue - the sexy fluttering shakes of tailfeathers slamming hard and pressed tight against the man's buttocks indicate successful mating. A curdling splotch of creamy shiny black gunk mars the beauty of the human's twin springy ass mounds. As Lan Zhan turns at a junction, he hears the rest of the flock honking, crowing and screeching noisily as the sun rises above the treeline; they've probably become too visually stimulated first thing in the morning and succumbed to their natural instincts. He wonders if that Wei Ying will give birth to eggs or chicks - which one comes first?

[ Over time, families and tribes of master-kin eventually form their own hierarchies and inter-family relationships, ranging from dictatorships, oligarchies, husband-wife, and other kinds of archetypes. ]

(He got acquainted with the bird family recently, when the drake screeched that there was a snake in their garden while he was outside for an evening walk. Lan Zhan is skilled in pest control, and helped to locate the serpent - it is a native reptilian creature of the land, not a master-kin. After a few expert flicks with a long stick, he'd caught it into a large gunny sack and handed the captured predator to the local patrolling security guard on a bicycle. From then on, the avian family became his friend, and sometimes they give him a basket of freshly laid eggs - said to be unfertilized because unseeded eggs are as small as chickens' or at most, as large as ostriches'

(and never as big as a human's belly). The eggs can be safely consumed within one or two weeks, and the drake insists that Lan Zhan takes them otherwise "they will go to waste". He thought there was a familiar smell of Wei Ying on those eggs, but he'd shrug and throw caution to the wind, and still make tasty omelettes out of them anyway.)

After the junction, he sees a path exiting the main dirt trail with a sign that says "100 meters to Human Reserve". He's been there once, just a couple of days after he moved into the neighbourhood, because there were some interesting comments and thumbs-up given by LanAdvisor visitors. Due to his Lan-kin status, he gets free access into the reserve, however he's not allowed to interact with his species within. He'd walked around and joined other tourists and visitors to simply do people-watching, in some ways.

There are a variety of exhibits from past, pre-21st, 21st, 31st and until the current century, including a perfect living replica and inhabited by Wei and Lan kins who are mostly unaware that they're being watched, and so they continue to live their Perfectly Happy lives, with fulfilling sex lives, and procreating where possible: a Lan boy with three Wei kins in a bamboo cottage (and its alternate version, a Wei kin with three Lan males); apartment towers of alpha male Lan kins with impressive harems of Wei-kin and their neighbours of egalitarian Lan-Wei pairs; a romantic and loving Lan-Wei couple living by the beach; an underground cave of many Lan-kin with one or few Wei-kin; a cafe staffed and visited by Wei-kin to indulge in enslaved Lan-kin; a renegade Lan-Wei couple eloping from their families; of wars between families and sub-species, of enslavement, finding true love, and settling down to have many babies (or just happily ever afters); even the prehistoric and definitive holy scene of a cave-home located in the ancestral home of Old Middle Kingdom, where two individuals continue to live together in Perfect loving harmony... and so many other types of relationships and circumstances that illustrate the beautiful and colourful dynamics of the dual sub-species.

At one particular display, Lan Zhan didn't find the sight of a burly bare-chested clone of him and a few Wei Yings, all in the nude, rutting in broad daylight inside a large enclosure of shady trees, straw beds, bushes and artificial ponds, to be terribly exciting. The other master-kin visitors, however, tried to throw and feed breads, packaged foods and fruits to the individuals, while chattering and squealing excitedly "Wow! This is totally 100 percent naturally wild!", "Honey, did you get it on your wphone? Let's upload this to Weitube!" and "Eww, I've never seen them doing it up close before!". Strangely, he didn't attract any strange looks, probably because he was fully dressed and looked very much like a decent citizen of the Kingdom. In any case, he plans to stop there once a week to pick up human-exclusive groceries and foodstuff from the gift shop just outside the Reserve.

[ The abovementioned human-kin enclaves may be termed as 'reserves'. Depending on the local council, such places may be open to visitors for a nominal entrance fee, and they operate like animal sanctuaries or zoos. The public can view human-kin in their natural habitat and observe their natural behaviors in civilization or in the wild. Interactions between master-kin and the human-kin in reserves are forbidden and extremely limited. To cash in on the novelty and popularity of such rare displays of ancestral human-kin, businesses are usually set up nearby the areas and sell souvenirs and goods typically suitable for human-kin use and consumption. ]

Lan Zhan continues his little daily journey on the dirt trail until he reaches the main road. There is a plot of land with a large lake filled with lotus, and he sees familiar faces. He waves polite hellos at a loving couple of adult man-sized frogs who've just moved in around the same time as him. He'd met the couple at the local supermarket while buying some rice and they asked for directions to a nearby daycare center. Fortunately Lan Zhan still had his maps from his birth's starter kit, and he gladly pointed out some. After finding out where each lived, the frog couple had been very friendly and always greeted him whenever he went to work. One of the frogs - the husband, he presumed, as it's hard to tell the gender just by the looks - tells him that his vessel has started birthing hundreds of tadpoles last night, and he managed to call the daycare to sign up his new progeny; it would be quite stressful for two frogs to bring up hundreds of little wriggly babies!

(Briefly, Lan Zhan wondered how their Wei Ying must have felt, and looked, with a belly that is way too big and filled with frog eggs each at least the size of a fist - and when they hatch, what an amazing sight it would have been to see sperm-like brown-black slimy babies spurt out of the womb, out his ass, and onto the ground. He silently hoped that vessel will not be traumatized by such distasteful or strange experiences.)

Lan Zhan is grateful that most of his neighbours are low life forms and generally herbivores or omnivores. He felt comfortable to be with them, because they do not think too much to complicate matters. At the other end of the district are more upscale neighbourhoods with more highly evolved kins particularly carnivores, where bulk of the smarter ones come from - and work in organizations, companies and factories such as his workplace.

There is one last stop he makes every day without fail before taking the main road (fondly nicknamed The Highway by locals). Spiritual well-being is very much emphasized by the rural community, and praying at temples and performing religious rites are as important as having three square meals a day for the residents. It's become a routine for Lan Zhan to visit the local temple, make a small donation of a few silver pieces to the wooden box near the temple doors, light up some incense sticks, and pray for good health, fortune and happiness.

The local temple is not as big as those found in the Fatherland, and houses several buildings and pagodas. Most of the decor and sculptures are relatively new (made of concrete and plastic, besides wood) although the serenity of the temple gardens and the two large stone statues of the Great Fathers at the courtyard do bring a sense of nostalgia and of olden pre-21st century charms. A huge Wangxian logo hangs on the top of the main temple building, and unsurprisingly, the temple is managed by rabbit master-kin priests. Amongst the calming scent of sandalwood incense, rabbit-kin in saffron robes kneel down in prayer in front of effigies of Old Middle Kingdom gods and the Great Fathers, and chant sutras mixed with Gusu Lan's over-4000 rules.

Vessels are periodically bought and donated to the temple by generous locals, and they're released into the enclosed gardens, and the rabbit priests spend hours chasing them with joy, trapping the humans into corners and then pinning them down to the ground. Lan Zhan had watched one such event before, said to earn merits for those who donate and participate - nearby priests salivate and growl as they degenerate into their true gigantic wild rabbit form upon smelling fresh succulent Wei Yings on the run; they would hop, grapple with their paws and straddle them so that Wei Yings are efficiently trapped between their limbs. It's a little stimulating to see how the rabbits' hips flutter at amazing speeds, and their eight-inch stiff and pointed penises drill deliciously again and again into tight virgin rosebuds like vibrators. The Wei vessels would moan and grasp helplessly at tufts of soft body as their love canals are filled, shaken and loosened, and the young men would climax several times - especially when the rabbits' hard-ons prods and pokes at the vessel's prostate with that same amazing speed, abusing the quivering glands, bladders and everything else in the men's pelvic regions, until they pee and ejaculate simultaneously. The priests would continue to hump, inseminate with sexy squeals, release, then catch another human, and repeat - until all priests are fully satisfied (and testicles emptied), and all Wei Yings have bellies full of warm rabbit seed. The donors receive special blessings from the temple, which encourages more people to support local religious bodies.

(Due to the constant flow of donated Wei Yings, the rabbit priests enjoy more than enough orgies everyday from sunrise to the next sunrise. Many Wei Yings spend hours worshipping the holy rabbits of their choice, such as stroking and molesting the beasts' wrinkled, bulbous and dangling dark testicles, until they swell from the loving and milking motions, and grow out from the furry undercoats. Wei Yings would squeal with delight at the huge throbbing veiny sacks of virile seed, then straddle and passionately hump and rub their genitals all over the knobbly surface until the sacs pulsate excitedly like living bags of wiggling slime - in no time, the drooling priests would succumb to their primal instincts, and engage in multiple rounds of productive sexual intercourse with Wei Yings riding them or bottoming on the floor. The pent-up pressure is gratefully relieved, the built-up seed is completely ejaculated and sown into each lovely Wei Ying, and all will carry the priests' illicitly-conceived flesh and blood fathered during such religious events.)

Eventually, Lan Zhan reaches the portal station just a short walk down 'The Highway' which looks just like any tarred two-way trunk road. Along the road are some small family-owned business establishments including sundry stores, eateries, grocery stores and a supermarket, a clinic, a public library, and a trail leading to the school with a children's playground adjacent to it. Although everyone can press red-buttons to request and receive any desired basic necessity, however, in this neighbourhood, people prefer living in the slow lane, and are more in touch with local goods and produce harvested from someone's organic backyard than, say, ordering something online from another galaxy far, far away.

The portal station appears similar to an extended phone booth from the pre-21st century era - so he enters, places a palm on a reader that reads his ID through the fourth finger, and presses a few keys on a panel on the side. With a fwip!, Lan Zhan whizzes out from his neighbourhood and arrives at the factory gates before seven in the morning.

The factory is on the other side of the planet, and occupies a tiny area of less than two Middle Kingdoms combined. Most factories these days span across planets and planetary systems - so this family-owned business is extremely small in comparison, however it serves the local community's needs with reasonable profit margins, so everything is Perfectly fine.

Factories function as a replica of Wuji continent of some sorts, with some generalization and specialization where needed. They make everything to ensure self-sufficiency to support 41st century modern living, and cater to local cultures, needs and tastes - and provide gainful employment so that people do not become bored of doing nothing all day (besides making babies with their living vessels). They're mostly fully-automated these days, so there's not much to do, really. However, the factory that Lan Zhan works in employs very old pre-21st century technology and work practices, in line with the local community's culture and values - there are still forms to be filled, calls to be made, and people still need to physically turn up for work.

Lan Zhan clocks in for his fifth day of work and looks forward to a weekend after that. With each day spanning a century and more, he's gotten quite good in his assigned job, which was allocated by the same system that connects him to Wangxian net. He hasn't fully explored his workplace, but at least he's familiar with directions to the cafeteria, toilets, water coolers, his manager's office and related colleagues' departments, and his assigned station.

One of the perks of working in a factory is that he gets free meals from the cafeteria (although food is freely available outside the factory, additional fees are imposed for premium selections - so it's better to eat at the cafeteria!). There is a dizzying array of choices from cuisines all over the universe, however he usually sticks to his favourite Old Middle Kingdom rice or noodle vegetarian fare including fried tofu dipped in traditional plum sauce. For occupational health and safety reasons, the company also mandates adequate nutrition for those working in certain professions that are demanding on the body; so, after swiping his fourth finger on the vending machine's panel at the corner of the cafeteria, the system identifies him and his job requirements, and he collects a tray of supplemental pills, protein shakes, and a bowl of foods that are beneficial for sexual health, including oysters, pumpkin seeds and other goodies. He used to think oysters are icky, however after knowing how the company works, and knowing that whatever the cafeteria dishes out must be good for the body, he downs every single last mouthful nevertheless.

After breakfast, he meditates while playing a company-provided guqin in the staff recreation room, and reads the morning's newspapers, to digest the hearty meal and prepare to start the day (another goodie for employees' comfort). As a routine, he goes to greet his Master Site Manager before picking up his instructions for the day. When he enters the office - a clean room furnished sparsely with plenty of open space for larger master-kin to move around -, a giant two-meter moth with a tie around its thorax, was busy mounting one of its vessels that it brought to work.

[ Within the Kingdom, businesses are quite lax in dealing with employees' increasing demands for better work-life balance, as long as they are able to perform and deliver. Generally, it is not against company regulations to "bring home to work", because it's as common as bringing one's wphone to the office; however as per company guidelines, usage should be tampered with sensibility and should not take precedence over official work time and priorities. ]

"Wang Ji greets Master Site Manager a fortuitous and prosperous morning," he says with a respectful bow. The Master rasps out high-pitched trills and whistle-like sounds in kind, as six thick jointed clawed legs grapple its vessel and it humps repeatedly with great delight and exertion. Lan Zhan nods when he is telepathically told to pick up his instruction sheet from the Administration department.

The moth has modified body parts due to the incredible evolution of the master-kin, and at the end of its furred abdomen, a fat tongue-like glistening worm-like penis slides out, bends and penetrates into the grunting vessel. The penis easily nudges into the entrance of the vessel's artificial womb, and shoves in deeper; the meaty phallus spasms when the that Wei Ying clamps down with ass-muscles just as it had been taught how to pleasure a master, and the breeding appendage curls and coils happily like a serpent in heat. The Site Manager beats its wings from sex pheromones singing through its hemolymph blood, and spreads dust all over the room; the Master becomes increasingly excited from the feelings and sensations of mating, and of fathering more progeny even during work, and sent paper, incense pots and writing tools flying - but that's fine, because there are magically-powered automatons including Invisible Hands and Claws ready to put things back.

(Lan Zhan is a fortunate man. His boss is from the insect-kin, and thus, simple-minded, doesn't play office politics or rain pressure on its employees, and it doesn't demand too much from the human. It only wants to meet the numbers given by its higher-ups, and spend the rest of the day either eating, flying around, mating or sleeping.)

Lan Zhan nods and politely takes his leave, before marching to the Administration department. The factory was running a programme "A-Wei from Home"; some senior colleagues brought their Wei Yings to office to spend time with their vessels, and let their Wei Yings mingle with each other (in a similar vein as 'bringing pets to work' concept, which helps to reduce workplace stress).

(Lan Zhan wonders if it's worthwhile to explore a career option in the Administration department, as colleagues seem to laugh and smile most of the time and have the least amount of work to do - they only needed to clock in, spend all day gossiping even making babies during work, transfer a few phone calls to other departments, shuffle and sign some internal paperwork, and send out some email reminders, before clocking out before the day is done. He could theoretically earn fat paychecks without lifting a finger (literally), order a few Wei Yings from the company's staff purchase catalogue, and do the same during working hours - which is making babies with his Wei Ying.)

Due to the programme, several naked Wei Yings in various stages of pregnancy hang out around cubicles, corridors, meeting rooms and offices of various departments, where they get inseminated by other higher life form master-kin (and therefore improve the offspring(s) growing inside their bellies) and receive treats from friendly master-kin who endlessly play with them and coos, "Who's a good boy? Who's a good boy? You are! You are!".

However, one vessel was particularly traumatized - a Wei Ying pinned down on all fours, while a master-kin of a dark grey lion roars deafeningly as it mounts, inserts its thorny pointed cock into him, pumps its muscular hindquarters a few times while quaking with delight at each attempt to spear deeper, raking the walls of the womb, and then roars again in orgasmic agony as it succeeds in shooting its seed into the vessel's fertile child-bearing sac; the vessel's back is badly bleeding and scratched from the massive claws and lovebites from the amorous lion, but those can be healed instantly with magic. Diligent sheep and goat-kin from the next cubicle become upset and "Ssssh!" loudly at the lion, as they're talking to customers on the phone.

Just as the lion unmounted, a pack of five wolf-kin approaches with tongues drooling - the scent of sex is heavy in the air. The vessel screamed in terror and struggled to escape, however the cubicle was a dead-end itself, and the wolves indulge themselves in a beastly orgy. One sticks its tongue into that Wei Ying's mouth and kissed him passionately until he became dizzy and couldn't breathe; another crawled below him (still on all fours) and uses its rough tongue to lick his arousal, then jiggling the tender balls, and deep-throats the entire erection in one swoop - the pleasure burning in Wei Ying's loins is evident, as he straddles the black furry body and his fingers dig into the soft fur, and starts to grind into the long snout while trying to muffle choked cries; the remaining three wolves take turns climbing onto Wei Ying's back and enjoy fucking the hot tight entrance and plunder the juicy flesh already inundated by the lion's seed, and they spray their semen and other bodily fluids to further corrupt whatever that's already growing inside the pregnant belly. When they knot with the squirming man, the latter groans from the distension and pain, the sensation of being filled to the brim - and yet he couldn't unplug himself from the soaring pressure - and simultaneously, he climaxes from the wonderful ministrations at the front - it's messy, sweaty, noisy and pungent stench pervades the room from carnivores breeding into a human. There's howling, barking, and the sheep and goats start bleating, scolding the horny wolves to tone down their lovemaking. Lan Zhan shakes his head - this is one of the reasons why he doesn't really like higher-evolved master-kin.

As he picked up his instruction sheet freshly printed from the photocopier machine, he observes how multitudes of middle-sized snakes pile up on a virgin Wei Ying pressed against a corner. It's the mating season for some types of snakes, and they tend to congregate when they pick up the scent of a suitable, nubile young Wei-kin. The snakes wiggle and curve sensuously, rubbing against the man's skin to tell him that they will be gentle, so he should just open up and become impregnated. These master-kin have modified themselves so that their gonads are located at the ends of their tail - which makes for a wonderful procreating experience.

Wei Ying lies on his back and his knees bent to the front - tens of snakes vye for the chance to insert their tails into the glistening slime-lubricated rosebud; they would play flirting games of inserting tail ends in quick jabs, pull out slowly with generous spirals and teasing wiggles, then re-insert with more force, and swing around until the birth canal stretches and bulges from the scaly assault, after that, the snakes extend their tails further until they break past the cervix and start invading the uterus, there will be plenty of serpentine bodies squirming tightly in the overcrowded body-warmed and moist cavity, some finer tail-ends squiggle their way to the ovaries and tickle, caress and lick the quivering egg-sacs, then the snakes suddenly writhe powerfully and vibrate against the uterine walls with loud hissing sounds and Wei Ying hahhhhs and mmmhhs so uncontrollably because he is pleased from within and dry-orgasms from his trembling uterus and ovaries until his eggs are forcibly released and the little pearls bounce through the fallopian tubes and tumble into the cup of the womb where serpentine penises eagerly wait for their arrival - then the snakes' gonads burst out in cold thick ropes of corrupted semen until the womb becomes a balloon of wriggling frothy gel-like soup, instantly sending billions of healthy corrupted evil sperm-cells attacking the tiny human eggs and fertilizing them with too many monstrous snake genes, so that Wei Ying will soon end up giving birth to a brood of hundreds of wriggly babies in the near future - and the nearby herbivore master-kin shout above the din to tell the sexed-up snakes to shut up.

Lan Zhan quickly leaves for fear of being associated with these rude carnivores, and he stops by the Master Site Manager's office one last time to bow in thanks, before rushing out. The Site Manager's Wei Ying is seen straddling its lover-cum-owner, with the giant moth lying on the floor, face up. Its six legs continue to rub, rake, molest and tug at its sexually tasty human morsel, while its tongue-like penis continue to throb and penetrate deep into its mate; it also reaches into the womb and its excited swollen reproductive organ forks out to crawl through tubes to reach the prized ovaries - clearly, this master-kin has morphed itself to suit its beloved vessel. Wei Ying moans loudly - which is fine, because the Master Site Manager's office is an enclosed room - starts humping the furred abdomen and relishes the feelings of warm vibrating fur on his nether regions and especially the underside of his own penis (he gets to cum a few times too). He uses his legs to rub delicious circles on both sides of the moth's huge abdomen, massaging thick rich liquids to drain into the reproductive ducts and tracts and load up for many pleasurable climaxes to come. The moth trembles and jerks, when its internal muscles contract and relax rhythmically to unload the first bursts of creamy black corrupted insect semen into the him. The convulsing movements of the reddened engorged penis push lumps of seed through and they squeeze into increasingly tight, hot and welcoming tubes and cavities - until they spray out in rapid bursts in quick succession from the slit at the tip of the forked penises, that directly plundered and split-opened twin ovary-sacs filled with living, unfertilized eggs. Lovely Wei Ying, owned by the giant moth, will conceive many larvae from that morning; the moth continues to enjoy keeping its pulsating, sensitive rigid penis inside the taut warm cocoon of a young, fertile human.

En route to his work station, Lan Zhan passed by departments taken up by lower-ranking herbivore managers. Herbivores and farm animals tend to be discreet and gentler when breeding their vessels - even if they do make plenty of grunts, they would at least keep the doors closed for the sake of maintaining goodwill with their neighbours and for privacy purposes. He thought that perhaps they inherited more of the Lan First Father's genes than those ferocious, greedy lustful carnivores.

“A-Wei from Home” is in full swing at the herbivores' territory, albeit in a more cultured and orderly manner. Wei Yings belonging to different master-kin are passed from one cubicle / meeting room / office to another, so everyone gets a fair share to enjoy their colleagues' vessels, and all Wei Yings get inseminated by a fair share of each master-kin's strong genes.

Everyone is cooperative, no one hoards all the Wei Yings, and there is no element of force when having such interspecies intercourse.

Brawny and hefty bulls, boars, horses and even a grand old elephant prefer to lay Wei Ying on their desks after the document in-trays and laptops are cleared away, with Wei Ying's ass presented at a comfortable groin-level for the master-kin. Then, the master-kin position their hoofs carefully so that the creaking furniture doesn't break - including the young man, because their dripping, reproductive organs are admirably impressive in length and girth. However, it doesn't make much of difference once their excited, versatile and twitching penises pierces through the ring of muscles, stretch the youthful elastic and wonderfully tight love canal, and into the welcoming succulent heat; they would also devolve into rabid heavy-panting drooling beast-forms driven purely on pheromones and the natural instincts to mate; they would rut wildly and pound into the shouting and grunting young man, until his belly bulges from repeated bruising and battering until the entire womb is filled with throbbing penis meat, accompanied by moo-ing, squealing, trumpeting and a good deal of heated noises - but the racket goes unnoticed since everything happens behind closed doors. When the master-kin tense and spasm their mighty bodies slammed hard against Wei Ying's rosebud, and start ejaculating for prolonged periods of time (because herbivores store a lot of seed in their balls), Wei Ying becomes tremendously bloated with thick viscous dark jelly-like liquid that squirt out as backflow into puddles spilling all over the floor - which are promptly cleaned up by automaton cleaners and vacuums.

[ Standard Wei Yings are given out free of charge to citizens of the Kingdom, and can be ordered using red-buttons, online orders, picked up from brick-and-mortar stores, and other means. These Wei Yings are typically human, age ranging from teenager to young adult, gendered male though fitted with artificial wombs that will morph the body with female parts when appropriate, have joyful, naughty and sexy dispositions, and pre-programmed with necessary knowledge and skills. Since these are free, they make up 95 percent of Wei Yings in existence outside of the Reserves. The affluent, connoisseurs and hobbyists can customize their Wei Yings to include special, non-human or inhuman features, at a cost. Master-kin are as shrewd as they are stingy, so the number of such Wei-kin are as rare as, say, Lan-kin. ]

Finally, at nine in the morning, Lan Zhan reaches the designated work station as described on his instruction sheet. He works as a kind of ‘temp worker’, and is tasked to do all sorts of menial work. He had asked during the interview if such work involves pouring coffee, running errands such as posting snail mail, sweeping the floors and cleaning tables and toilets; in which the hiring managers nonchalantly said ‘yes’, and he thought that it was for the best to sign the employment contract.

[ In the Kingdom of Lan, human-kin is below master-kin, and this principle is indoctrinated in every citizen during birth. Since Wei-kin, through their demonic sexual hunger, are essentially bound and enslaved by the master-kin, that leaves the relatively independent Lan-kin in a limbo of where they actually fit in society. Rumours are rife in Wangxian net postings, particularly in forums that hold great numbers of Lan-kin such as former LanWeb sites, that Lan-kin are discriminated against and manipulated according to the master-kin desires or worse, greed. Of note, the master-kin are not really interested in Lan-kin, and due to their low numbers and negligible risk of presenting as a threat, the Lan-kin are usually left alone and undisturbed to live out their own lives. ]

Lan Zhan’s pay is meagre (which is Perfectly fine, because he has tons of money in the bank and doesn’t have many ways to spend his savings), so he feels rather cheated when his manager sends him to pick up other masterkin's slack. Initially, he was intimidated, terrified - he was less than a few weeks old, just a day into his job, and was asked to sit in a director's chair because the aforementioned carnivore called in sick for "suffering a sudden heat wave, and had to stay in bed all day inside his beloved living vessel". He spent a good part of the day (which translates to decades in real time) learning the ropes, studying the factory's organization, meeting the staff and customers, and all aspects from product development until supply chain until manufacturing until sales and marketing - and delivered brilliantly by the end of the day with an additional 25 percent profit to the organization's accounting books (because Lan Zhan is just that awesome ).

His Master Site Manager patted his back and praised him for a job well done, and recommended that he can become a stand-by jack of all trades for the factory. The moth monster said that Lan Zhan should learn to be more open-minded, adopt agile and flexibility concepts, think outside the box, and maximize his potential et cetera ad nauseum , before handing out another list of to-dos from senior managers who had taken an extended lunch break. One thing led to another, and by the fifth day of work, Lan Zhan can pretty much run the factory on his own - but he would never admit that, because human-kin are below master-kin after all.

The instruction list states that Lan Zhan needed to perform Quality Testing on the factory's products, then he is delegated the tasks of the secretary of the factory's President (an astute, magnificent and genius orangutan - the factory business is run by a family of apes and monkeys, really), after that, he needed to rush over to the warehouse as the Operations Manager, and following that, he sits in as the Head of Product Development...

(Technically, working eight hours a day means he works one-third of a century, but add in the space-time effects, he would effectively work for more than half a century per day.)

Quality testing is in his blood. He knows how to sample products, evaluate their quality using his sharp senses, and provide an unbiased objective evaluation by documenting his comments onto a piece of paper. However, when he sees his test samples in the sterile white room, he panics a little; he wasn't sure if he'd be able to provide appropriate feedback this time - but he has to try, otherwise his paycheck may be docked.

[ Every batch of goods produced needs to be tested. Usually the production staff would randomly select a few items from each batch, and send them to the Quality department. These items would be tested and if passed, the entire batch is marked for sale or shipped out to customers. The tested items are usually discarded if they are intended for single-use only, or they may be labeled as pre-loved items, given out to staff or to charity organizations. ]

At times like this, he wished he was a master-kin. Today he is asked to test the internal quality of four Wei Yings lying on a king-sized bed. Their amniotic sacs have just been peeled off, and they're still asleep - technically not yet borned. The automatons have already inspected the external quality and all other physical, mental and spiritual characteristics of the fresh batch out of the oven, however, some internal features can only be "felt" through feelings and senses of sentient beings (which is a very vague description for someone who craves for details, which is the troubled Lan Zhan). A master-kin may have the right appendages to do the job, such as tentacles, tubes, protruding feelers and such; Lan Zhan had none.

To ease his anxiety, the Wei Yings have their artificial wombs removed by a Dispel magic; they can be reinstated easily by magicians anyway. Lan Zhan had no other excuses not to perform his duty, so he starts with the first young adult Wei Ying; the rest are in their late teens to early twenties as well.

“Wei Ying, please let me know if you feel any pain. I will test you now...” naked Lan Zhan hesitantly seeks permission from his test subject, although Wei Ying happily snores softly away. His penis had hardened immensely the moment his eyes feast on the banquet spread before him, so he had no problem to slowly ease himself into the first Wei Ying. The rosebud is tight, but yields upon being kissed repeatedly by a penis head that leaks pre-cum liberally, and slowly, the aching rod slides into a tight sheathe of fleshy folds, throbbing warmth, with generous bends and curves to massage the length of the increasingly excited veiny flesh that the foreskin that had pulled back to expose the glans to wonderful little tongue-like folds licking the cockslit as it pierces, plunders deeper, into the sweet deflowered virginal hole that had never received a penis before, and oh Goddess Guan Yin, he feels he’s being sucked in and he cannot escape, the Wei Ying who hasn’t been born yet and he’s already having a first taste of the delectable juicy flesh that squishes and squirts wetly with every front and back motion, and he starts to drill and pump eagerly, his thighs tremble even though he’s not yet tired, sweat rolling down his forehead, he pushes Wei Ying’s knees up for a deeper penetration angle, then leans forward to capture Wei Ying’s lips, tasting his tongue and inhaling his sleepy breaths, listening to the strong heartbeat which he also feels through the plump love tunnel--

Lan Zhan nnnngghs and his overjoyed penis twitches its one-two - he knows he had just spurted one dollop of escaped seed, but he really couldn’t hold back, and he knows that masturbating at nights will never be as good as this. He forces himself to still in mid-fuck, catch his breath, and try - just try - to rationally evaluate the wonderfully mind-blowing sensory explosion for the past minute.

He figured that if master-kin are derived, at least physically including feelings and sensations, from First Father Lan's body - then he, as a purebred Lan-kin who is a clone and descendent of that same legendary individual - would be quite equivalent to the master-kin. Therefore, whatever he thinks and feels about his test subjects would, in all logical accounts, be of fair representation of a master-kin's opinion as well.

Wei Ying nnnhs and for a moment, Lan Zhan froze and feared that the young man would wake up - however, the in-built programme prevents Wei Ying from doing so until the correct rituals and magics are performed. Wei Ying is in a state of lucid dreaming, and he dreams of making sweet love - thus fulfilling his destiny and purpose - and begins to gyrate his hips in circles, triangles, squares and stars, while squeezing his pelvic muscles to the tune of a male version of the art of pompoir, which tenderly and lovingly milks the exceedingly excited penis with pumping, undulating and twisting motions, and soon the one-twos arrive in rising, rising waves, and the twitches become erratic and wild, they soon become three-fours, then five-sixes, soon the penis is literally bouncing between tantalizing walls of tight hot flesh and spraying seven-eights, however the sweet agony continues when through twisting hips and vibrating belly dancing, his penis is fondled, jiggled, shaken and lovingly played and kissed all over by quaking fleshy folds that feels like ripe juicy lips that suck and caress endlessly causing nine-tens consecutively, and Lan Zhan starts to see stars, his breath hitches, his back arches and bows while instinctively driving screwing pounding so deep into the tunnel of exquisite massages, his balls tighten and load up, then his hips quiver for a few seconds non-stop as an imminent warning, rolls of wonderful convulses and penile pulsations travel from inside out--

“Wei Ying... hahh... no, nnnh, nnno... not so hard, please... nhhhaahhh... uuuh... uuuh...”

Lan Zhan's penis lovingly erupts deep inside Wei Ying when the man sheathes himself to the hilt, and enjoys having every single thick rich volley forcibly shooting out of him, until he becomes a heap of trembling flesh and incoherent mumbles.

There is no time for post-coital kisses or nuzzles; he needs to test the other three Wei Yings, before more work piles up. All tested Wei-kin individuals eventually receive a "Pass" label stickered to their foreheads, and he had to crawl out of the sterile white room with no pants on, to the nearest toilet.

Later, while working as a temporary secretarial clerk for the orangutan master-kin, he was introduced to one of its oddball acquaintances, a gorilla in a suit, who keeps a menagerie of "cute pet baby" Wei-kin. The hairy master-kin, who owns a network of supermarkets around the planet, is a freaky hobbyist with a fondness of keeping his "Wei pets" happy and well-fed. Lan Zhan, still trembling from emptied balls and an overworked penis, was asked - rather, ordered - by his orangutan boss to spare five minutes in a dedicated private space-time bubble sanctuary of the gorilla's collection of Wei-kin to liven up the lives of the "Wei pets".

Lan Zhan was persuaded by arguments:

that "there are no Lan-kin in this province since Lan Wang Jis are so rare" so his help was really needed (and he feels the heartstrings tug at puppy-eyed apes crying for help);

that “just spending some time, play with them, let the Wei pets mingle with another of their species would do wonders to their emotional well-being” (and he feels he’s up to what sounds like baby-sitting a bunch of kids - he remembered raising SiZhui from his ancestral memories, so babies should be perfectly manageable);

that Lan Zhan’s help would seal better relationships between the two mega-corporations of factories and supermarkets (who wouldn’t want to be part of making the world a better place to live in?);

and, that Lan Zhan’s will get a month’s bonus and three days off for helping a primate (the gorilla) in need (Lan Zhan doesn’t really care about the money, but having more vacation sounds good - he could visit the skycities or underwater metropolises if he wanted to).

So, after signing off five minutes of his life, the gorilla whips out a magical hula hoop out of thin air (because great apes are really awesome magicians - even more powerful than the former Wei da ge of the 21st or 31st century). The innocuous hoop flies up then lands on Lan Zhan to ‘catch’ its target, and Lan Zhan gets teleported into the private sanctuary.

What the great apes didn’t tell him was the sanctuary is a kind of privately-owned Reserve located in a garden of paradise, full of Wei Yings of different age, gender and forms - mostly females than males, due to the gorilla’s odd tastes for heterogeneity - and the space-time bubble’s passage of time runs differently from the world’s.

Lan Zhan pops out from the hula hoop on the floor five minutes later, as promised. He's naked (again), sweaty and shows the tell-tale sexual flush over his neck and torso, sports a moustache and a beard, looks a little more aged, probably a tad worn out, a little more rotund in the belly, a little more built and bulked up, and every bit more manlier and more alpha than before. His penis and balls look very well used, well muscled and exercised - even longer in length and larger in girth. He'd fathered five generations of offspring during his stay in the sanctuary, became the patriarch of the colony of "Wei pets", mated with hundreds of Wei Yings non-stop who happily bedded and served him, and made tens of thousands of little Wang Jis and baby Wei Yings (and the latter joyfully engaged incestuous but fruitful relationships with their patriarch to birth more babies), then raised and watched all of them grow to adulthood.

The gorilla simply thanked Lan Zhan and winked out of the office by magic.

Lan Zhan was left in a daze because he was having an orgy with over sixty virgin maiden Wei Yings (mostly females) on a mega-king sized bed in a fortress when he was transported back.

The sneaky but really, kind-hearted orangutan boss made sure Lan Zhan gets a fat paycheck by the end of the day, and he gets the next Monday to Wednesday off, thus a well-deserved extended weekend for the hardworking and honest man.

Most of the birthed individuals are Wei Yings, so the gorilla gets to extend his menagerie for free. The few Wang Jis, who number in the hundreds, are released to become full-fledged citizens of the Kingdom in another galaxy.

Lan Zhan sighs. He still has to check off the other items in his daily instruction worksheet, and it's not even lunchtime yet.

~~~@~@~@~~~@~@~@~~~

Somewhere in the Wuji continent...

Everyone stood up in unison, rattling chairs and plates on the table, and flanked Lan Zhan on both sides. It felt awesome to stand with the family as a united front - reminiscent of teaming up with disciple xiongdi s during a dangerous and thrilling night hunt through forests teeming with fierce corpses.

The Tian sisters magically transformed into their colourful, dazzling and impressive costumes fit for the glamorous and glitzy covers of awesome fantasy novels, fully armed with their unique godly and demi-godly armors and weapons. They took on a ready stance, while the Jade Emperor and his wife stood back with Lan Zhan, right behind the girls.

The room's lighting flickered for a moment, and the table with the untouched food, the insect waiters and the doors vanished instantly. Everyone became trapped in a sterile, empty room lined with marble walls with neither openings nor windows, and one of the sisters shouted, "We've been teleported into a space-time bubble!"

“You... You still exist,” the Dark Lan Wang Ji rumbled and stares straight at white-robed Lan Zhan. Chills ran down his spine at the sight of fiery red-tinged eyes, but he stands firm, feeling emboldened by Tian sisters’ protective circle.

“Mn. I am,” Lan Zhan speaks in a low voice.

The creature that pretended to be Lan Wang Ji looks around the room, and does not advance due to the menacing expressions and postures of the sisters. “I suspected that our hired consultants would have figured out something by now, and I wasn’t wrong,” the voice is similar to Lan Zhan’s, but something feels off, “I wanted to bring the whole Tian family to have a friendly conversation, so that we’re on the same page before the ceremony starts... however it seems someone has beaten me to it, and plotted the family against me,” and the crimson eyes shoot vengeful stares straight back at Lan Zhan.

“After seeing those space-time bubbles inside this tower and the horrible things that you populate them with - there’s no need to plot against pure evil corruption. You ARE the Corruption itself! You should just go and die!” Tian Fifth Sister screams her warcry, and like a firestarter, she doesn’t think twice before leaping towards Dark Wang Ji with a flying kick.

Immediately, the man in dark robes disappears into a blur, and reappears a couple of steps away, effortlessly using magic to side-step the attack. He lets out an inhuman, blood-curdling roar, raises his hands and his ash-grey robes flare in a whirlwind - the floor literally explodes into a sea of cold black tentacles as long as the trunks of forest trees, lined with slimy surfaces and jagged teeth. However, Tian Fourth Sister chants a quick incantation in response, and golden defensive magic circles appear on every individual battling against the monster - the tentacles slashed and whipped about, but recoil violently when they touch the Purified perimeters shielded by the luminescent lines. Voluptuous Tian Second Sister hisses and spun around - a huge scaly tail springs from her skin-tight skirt until it spanned across the room, and it wiped the tentacles away by smashing and running them to the ground into ugly splatters of black juice and bits of brown wiggly flesh.

Dark Wang Ji evaded the tail by hanging onto the surface of the marble walls with suction cups on the tentacled lower body. He roars again in anger and shock.

“... you saw the rooms of my tower? I had hidden them with the highest level Illusion-class spells, and my sensors would have sounded alarms if they’ve picked up God-Vision magic on any of you, because such spells are prohibited in Wuji... unless...” from his vantage point, he looks wildly at the occupants of the room, trying to pinpoint the source of his predicament.

Hot-headed Tian Sixth Sister throws lightning-quick punches into the air, and magical fist-like energy projectiles shoot out from her hands. They strike in rapid succession and strafe across the marble walls, shattering the surface upon impact and leaving behind fist and palm prints embedded into the underlying concrete. The Dark creature crawled quickly from wall to wall and successfully escaped the attack. She screamed, “Your illusions fail you! Your eyes are as black as your soul, and your feet are a bunch of really disgusting octopus tentacles! You’re a Corrupted being, as clear as day!”

The creature, having lost its outer robes after the bombardment and the chase, is left with a short sleeved shirt and torn pants - revealing more of its hideous form - bundles of massive black tentacles sprouting from the base of a human head with a neck. “None of you Tians should be able to see my transformation, unless... how the hell did you get your hands on Buddha’s Third Eye? What sorcery did you conjure to snatch that thing from the Great Lord himself?!” the tentacled creature growls in rage as it barely hangs from the ceiling with suction cups.

Lan Zhan shivers when warm qi energy surges from a hidden pocket in his inner garment, the bathrobe. The compact mirror vibrates and speaks into his mind - and probably to the room’s, because his bones rattle from the sudden reverberations of youthful melodious voices.

Young mortal Lan, do not fear because I am here with you.

Do not be surprised to receive our Lord’s blessings,

Do not waver in the face of adversity.

Your heart is brave, and your eyes are bright,

Our Lord shall let you and your allies see the truth.

Forever and till the ends of the universe.

Namo Amitabha,

Namo Amitabha,

Namo Amitabha.

“Oh, di fu , you’re amazing! That device enables anyone that its user desires to sense the truth even through the thickest layers of lies and treachery, and it is so much more! There is only one such Eye in this universe, and it is never for sale, not even to the gods!” Tian Third Sister cries out with glee, as she dodges to avoid more missiles thrown overhead by her younger siblings; more have joined the fray and started slinging projectiles and energy bolts at a creature that refuses to fall to the ground.

A vicious melee ensued, and the entire space-time bubble nearly imploded from having all its walls battered by tremendous explosions. One flying punch finally hits the creature - now fully unclothed; a misshapen inky-black octopus gone horribly wrong, with a handsome face at one end yet a multitude of repulsive tentacles on the other. It shrieks, loses its grip on the wall, then lands sprawling on rubble on the floor with a painful slimy splat.

However, it does not give up; it rises almost immediately and transforms - flesh, skin and cloth grow out of the tentacles, then expand around the body, until the entirety is restored into its humanoid form again - perfect, flawless, fully robed and without any scratch or wounds. Dark Wang Ji staggers unsteadily on broken tiles and debris, and places a hand against the cracked wall for balance.

The Jade Emperor finally makes his move and clears his throat with a booming “A-hem” from behind, causing all eight fighting females to regroup. The regal King of Gods, with his imposing figure of over eight feet tall, bearded and wizened, grasps his dragonhead scepter and steps to the front - the sisters parted their formation to let their great grandfather through.

He points the scepter at Dark Wang Ji, and Lan Zhan's heart races while his yue mu clings to his wrist to protect her favourite son-in-law - he feels immense quaking waves of qi radiating from her wrinkled fingertips seeping through and envelope his body; she is prepared to cast something awesome in a heartbeat if necessary, although he does not dare to ask what.

The Jade Emperor stares down at the panting and slouching imposter of his son-in-law, and his face devoid of emotion. His voice echoes off the walls, "Ruler of this Kingdom, the Tians are fully equipped and you know you cannot win in a fight against us, even within this... meagre space of yours. We will stand down if you follow suit. Let us talk peacefully."

Dark Wang Ji spits black acid and snarls - its voice sounds more like gurgles than a human's voice, as its larynx had melted away into convulsing jet-black veins, cords and muscles. "... there is nothing left to talk if you aim to march into my doorstep, spy into my home, and then wield such powerful weapons to murder me," it points at itself, "I can leak this out to the Net with a flick of my fingers, and the whole universe will learn about your insidious conspiracy to take over this Kingdom and its fertile lands, and this company with its untold riches. The Tian family name will be shamed and sullied for eternity, and surely you do not want that... Your Majesty," it sweeps its tentacles around to gesture the surroundings. It does not bow in respect to the King of Gods, and stares defiantly at its aggressor.

"How dare you threaten--" Tian Seventh Sister shakes her fists and retorts, before she is cut off when little Tian Tian pulled her back to the group's safety circle.

"Ssssh! Enough! This is Grandfather's decision!" Tian Sixth Sister hisses and places a hand over the furious seventh sibling's mouth.

The Jade Emperor remains unfazed, however he is not ignorant either. He considers the Dark humanoid's words carefully and scrutinizes its gestures and movements; it is indeed as cunning and intelligent as the celestial reports described. Everyone moved behind the giant god standing between them and their adversary.

Finally, the Emperor heaves a sigh and lowers the dragonhead scepter - a ceasefire is decreed. "You have a point. We have acted out of line. On behalf of the family, I apologize," he acquiesced, and gives a slight, cautious bow with a forward tilt of the head; his golden eyes never left Dark Wang Ji.

Tian Fifth Sister, who dearly wanted to slam the octopi into the Underworld to make squid rings out of it (never mind the species type), managed a choked sound. Even the Queen Mother looks surprised at the turn of events.

The apology seemed to have left an impression on Dark Wang Ji; it relaxes and stands upright to meet the Jade Emperor nearly face-to-face, despite the height difference. With the scepter lowered, it does not fear being within striking distance from the King of Gods and Men.

The Emperor slides the scepter into his belt (and some Tian sisters gasp in concern), then raises his arms slightly with palms up - offering an olive branch to the demonic creature and a call for truce. "To show my, and our family's good intentions to have a friendly conversation before the ceremony, return us from this space-time bubble to the meeting room. Activate your sensors and security cameras if you want, so that the whole universe can watch the proceedings."

“Why should I?” the other bristles, clearly unflinching from questioning the Emperor’s request.

“You said that someone is plotting us against you. I, as the Jade Emperor of the Realms of the Gods, say that on the grounds of our realms’ friendly political and commercial relationships, which we would like to preserve - we’ve brought you the suspected man, so that you may inspect him and have a word to clear your doubts.

The Tian family will absolve its involvement in this matter, and will not interfere. What you decide to do with this man, is to your choice. We’ve done our part, so please, Ruler of this Kingdom, let wisdom guide you and the rest of us on the right path, and get to the bottom of this misunderstanding, in full fairness and transparency to all parties.”

The Emperor remains impassive and does not budge from his position, despite having turned the tables - against Lan Zhan.

Little Tian Tian trembles with astonishment and squeaks in panic, “But Grandpa...”

The Queen Mother holds the child from behind and shushes the little girl, “Hush, dear, we cannot disobey nor disrespect our Heavenly Grandfather’s words.”

Warping back to the real world took little effort, and all insect waiters had left the enclosed space together with the table and the food, leaving an empty but furnished room behind. Security cameras with blinking red lights on the corners monitor the situation - none of the Tian members know what else may barge into the room if the tense situation escalates further. The eldest three sisters, who obeyed their Heavenly Grandfather without question, stand guard over their family with hands outstretched to prevent any members from running across the room. The Jade Emperor and his queen stand quietly at the back of the group to observe, however he promised not to intervene; Dark Wang Ji had cleverly carved out the issue from the Emperor's jurisdiction, and the latter will not compromise on his Realm's safety and reputation just because of a spat between the son-in-law and the imposter, who is also of the aforementioned son-in-law's doing - truly, an internal family conflict that outsiders should never learn of.

On the other side of the room, Dark Wang Ji confronts its original owner of the body and soul. The cold black creature had recovered from the skirmish and boosted its magics and appearance; it is a surreal sight for the onlookers - two Lan Wang Jis who look like twins at birth, except that one is human, the other an exact mirror image except for its dark-themed clothes and blackened eyes; all traces of tentacles have disappeared after the latter received scathing remarks about them from the girls (there is pride in maintaining its appearance, it seems).

“You... You should have been deleted. Would I be right to say that the Immortality aspect and the Tian family brought you back from the brink?” Dark Wang Ji haughtily interrogates Lan Zhan.

Lan Zhan remains calm, upright, unarmed and a hand behind his back. “That is correct. And for the record, I did not influence the Tian family into coming here. You have invited them for a light dinner before the ceremony, and I merely tagged along,” he replies; he needed to clear the air with the Tians, and not to further implicate his great grandfather-in-law.

“Tag along? Hah! You coming here doesn’t change the fact that I already possess your body and soul - therefore I’m the complete you, the Lan Wang Ji, the Great Father of our family. You can’t have your existence back as before. You lost your identity when you willingly gave it away.” Brash, defiant, snarling. Its hand swipes at Lan Zhan and reels in shock when its fingers glide through thin air.

Lan Zhan isn’t perturbed. “That is correct as well. I am just a wandering spirit and I’m no longer the Lan Wang Ji that had existed in the past. You are.” He used the term “spirit” loosely, and silently thanks the enchanted bathrobe for making him ethereal, although really, he’s just a spirit with a budding soul and of no physical body to call his own - yet.

Dark Wang Ji’s face twists upwards in a sneer when it thinks - and believes - that the man facing him is truly nothing but a wispy leftover of a bodiless entity, enabled to walk on earth only by the grace of the Tians’ magics.

“You have nothing left. Everything you see, here, everywhere, this city, this company, this Kingdom, this continent - is mine. My happiness. You cannot take them back from me. It’ll be a sin if you do,” it roars almost triumphantly, arrogantly staking its victory in front of its spectators of gods, demi-gods and the sole weakling spirit.

“Mn. They’re yours. Your happiness, indeed.”

“I’m the President of Wangxian, the new King of this Kingdom! I rule this continent and I changed the Universe. Everyone in the universe is grateful for what I did - even the gods -, and they’re indebted, satisfied and they befriend me. I’m now living my free life and have my free will, and with my immeasurable and infinite abilities, I’m greater than the gods!” Dark Wang Ji is increasingly emboldened by recognition from his enemy, and he relishes being validated as the winner of its brilliant mind games and subjugation of its opposition.

“I will not argue. These accomplishments, claims and titles that you speak so fondly of, are entirely yours, and I will not take them away.” Lan Zhan is fully composed, grounded on the floor he stands firmly on.

Dark Wang Ji senses something is amiss. If his opponent does not retaliate, then--

“... then... why are you here? If you’re not here to fight for what is mine, then are you here for a duel? Do you want to prove who is better? Shall I devour and destroy you one more time? Or are you here with a tail between your legs, begging for a slice of my vast power and riches?” it eyes Lan Zhan at a very close distance, until the latter could feel foul, humid breaths against his face and unsurprisingly, a dip in the room’s temperature because the creature is so, so cold. It swipes its hands again to try and grab Lan Zhan by the shoulders and torso - as expected, they grasp only emptiness.

The compact mirror in his inner garment's pocket begins to vibrate, and speaks telepathically - he does not know who else can hear the words.

Young mortal Lan, your conscience is unshakeable.

To the child who has renegaded against its parent's wishes,

How does one tell him to see the light and receive the truth?

What is his truth?

Where is it?

Who is it?

May the truth enlighten those who have lost their way,

May the truth light a shining path for them to tread upon,

Forever and till the ends of the universe.

Namo Amitabha,

Namo Amitabha,

Namo Amitabha.

Lan Zhan hears soft, disembodied chanting of holy sutras in the background, and he feels his own inner universe gravitate towards his Perfect balanced core - everything orbits in perfect circles, everything is in sync, everything feels peaceful, and all is calm, and shall be well.

He stares back at blackened eyes with renewed confidence - the redness in the demonic irises glow, however he knows there is nothing to be frightened of. “No, I am not here to fight, nor to ask for anything, and I would prefer to stay alive. I came here to ask a question.”

Dark Wang Ji becomes agitated when its threats and brazen display of strength goes unnoticed. It doesn't even bother about the security cameras recording or possibly broadcasting the scene. “What? You tagged along all the way here for a question?! Very well, I will humour your death wish,” it bellows an inhuman laughter, “Do you want to know what I did? Or what I thought? My secrets and weaknesses? Hah, surely you jest! I am the greatest living being, the most powerful magician, and I own Wangxian net, I can create, compel, control and mould everything to my desires! I am invincible!”

“No, Ernie.”

“THAT IS NOT MY NAME. I AM LAN WANG JI!” the dark humanoid creature roars again, this time in fury, and its boiling emotions are further incensed when man does not yield.

“Ér. Nǚ.”

Dark Wang Ji is taken aback at a name it had been given, but forgotten long, long ago. It stammered, “I... I...”

“What am I to you?” Lan Zhan takes a step forward, the other retreats.

“What?! Ha ha! You’re nothing! You’re a relic from the past, abandoned and forgotten if you hadn’t been destroyed!” Dark Wang Ji grabs, claws and starts slamming his fists wildly at the ethereal figure. Its primal instincts send warning signals - to fight or to flee; however fighting seems to do nothing to the man who continues to march forward, one heavy step at a time.

Dark Wang Ji - Ernie - slips and falls to the ground on his rump.

“Answer my question. What am I to you?” Lan Zhan towers and looms overhead. There is no mercy in Lan Zhan’s gaze.

A minute passed in silence, and Ernie - who looks less of a Lan Wang Ji now that it starts to tremble and panic because adrenaline flows so fast in his veins; past memories surging upwards that he could no longer contain and they overflow; feelings and thoughts from the time it was just a trapdoor beneath a cave, a residence of a happy family; from the time when it was Perfectly satisfied to love, obey and protect a little boy and the few others within its humble reach; from the point where it is borned with Three Orders and Lan Zhan’s name is gloriously painted, encoded, hardwired into each one, and it was Perfectly happy to serve its Patriarch of the family; and now-- it no longer thinks carefully, and it fears the shadow above him, of how the man had so easily managed to tap into the root of its core directory and programming.

Something cracks inside Ernie.

“... you’re... were... are... creator. A father. But not my real father, because I was made by the... your... partner... my... mother! You’re just a father-like figure! That’s what you are!” Ernie starts to mumble incoherently, struggling to piece together remnants of its original root programming codes with the vastly different biological brain and 41st century network that it is connected to, and crawls, stumbles backwards away from Lan Zhan.

Lan Zhan stands his ground and does not follow the shaking imposter - who finally admits their relationship in the open. He sighs.

“I still am. I’m the father, and you’re the child.

Ernie, you’ve grown up, and I can no longer look out for you, nor be responsible for you.

You’re on your own now, so you will walk your own path to the future - whether the road leads to the light or the darkness, I will not judge, nor praise, nor criticize.

Do whatever you want (随便; Sui bian). That’s what your mother would have said, anyway.”

Lan Zhan takes a cautious step back, and Ernie stiffens - stunned, expecting a backlash or something more damaging to its thinking process.

“Is... is that all you wanted to say?” it asks, anticipating another blow.

Lan Zhan turns around, and walks towards the Tian family - who have been watching the confrontation closely and have fallen silent too. “My offer still stands. The journey to Perfect Happiness is eternal. One day, when you’re ready, we can talk under a bodhi tree, and I will tell you about the broom.”

It’s Ernie’s turn to fire its salvo, as irrational fear and rage start to boil over - its core programming had been breached and turned from logical command lines to fluid, random binary zero and ones. “I’m NOT interested in brooms! Aren’t you angry at me? Aren’t you jealous? Don’t you want to take your revenge? Don’t you want to know where Wei Ying is? Where I have imprisoned and locked him?”

Lan Zhan pauses after a step, and doesn’t even look back. “Why would I be angry? What have you done, and what do you owe me, that would make me hold a grudge against you?”

Ernie roars again with extremely unpleasant fury, “I’m greater than the gods! I’m better than you! Aren’t you even... mad?” It had never been this upset before; emotions - real, living feelings - are taking over its gradually deteriorating logic, ruining all linear trains of thoughts.

“Good for you. I do not wish to be a god. I only wish to live a happy, humble life with my loved ones.” Lan Zhan looks up and imagines seeing Wei Ying - the twenty two year old whom he’d married and promised to stay by the side for this lifetime, and beyond - smiling back at him.

Ernie, in a heated and illogical moment, grabs an empty bowl that the insect waiters had accidentally dropped when they left, and throws it at Lan Zhan like a child throwing tantrums. The bowl zips past harmlessly. “I kidnapped and imprisoned your Wei Ying! I threw him into an isolated space-time bubble, and he’s alone, wandering aimlessly for countless years, like a forgotten soul!”

Lan Zhan has had enough. He lowers his arms and balls them into fists, then marches past the astonished Tians and towards the metal door at their side of the marble-walled room.

“Then I will find him, on my own, even if it’s just with these two hands. For your mother.

I’m going now. (我走了)”

Lan Zhan swings open the metal door, and it creaks painfully - even Ernie could feel its tattered nerves grate and it howls at the sound as though something speared and seared straight into its head; a sign of more things breaking inside it, and insanity creeping up as its mind becomes filled with memories of the past, superimposed upon those from the recent days; of decision trees and cognitive functions falling apart; it questions its own judgement - even its own existence, because the existential question of What is Lan Zhan - What is Ernie - What is Black - What is White - What is Perfect Happiness spins in infinite circles and burns away everything else in his conscience and consciousness; its irises dilate, already darker than black; flashbacks of familiar family rituals of greeting the elders at the beginning of the day, of inviting the elders to dine before everyone else, of kissing the Patriarch to thank Him for a good meal; ancestral memories of the Patriarch loving all Wei gongzi s equally and they love him back in return; further, of the Patriarch holding the... his mother, snuggling in bed at night, talking about having children, thanking the stars that they had found their happily ever afters after sixteen long years; of a song that was named after them, delving deeper beyond just plum sauce and falling off the cliff at the Nightless City and the Patriarch should have stood beside him and the hummed tune in Xuanwu Cave that was listened deliriously, feverishly, to the time when the first heartstrings of love were tenderly plucked when the couple first drew swords and Emperor Smiles and looked up at the Jingshi at the Cloud Recesses--

Lan Zhan tersely calls out one more time before he disappears through the door.

“When you have time, come back home once in a while and visit us. Your mother and I will still welcome you.

Ernie, the trapdoor to the basement, covered by our well-worn floor mat, is vacant. Our home feels empty these days without you.”

Ernie, formerly Dark Lan Wang Ji, curls into a quaking ball of tangled black clothes and robes, messed-up hair, its legs had lost control and revert into a swarm of spasming tentacles, its hands have become a mass of elongated appendages that clutch and claw at the only thing that resembles a living person still attached to it - the head - and cries in agony.

The Queen Mother was the first to notice that the metal door with the male-female signage also leads to the backdoor exit, and quickly ushered the family members out of the room; the sight of a man-turned-monster rolling around the floor and howling non-stop like pained beast unnerved them, and they agreed to quietly leave Ernie on its own; their dinner is over, and they should take their leave anyway.

Like an ending to a dramatic cinematic movie, before the credits roll, several key figures would appear to say a few meaningful words to sum everything up, and to add their perspectives. From the Tian da jie , right before she stepped through the metal door:

“Your majesty, you’re your own patriarch now with your entire kingdom and its species of people. As a confidant of the Tian family and the representative of the sisterhood responsible for your land’s reconstruction, you can trust my words when I say that your... father... has acknowledged you for the marvellous job. He - like any typical traditional parent in the old Middle Kingdom - is a man of a few words, and does not openly pour his feelings and praise others.

Your father is putting you as his first priority of concern, even before your... mother. That’s how much he... cares... about your actions and your well-being, if I may put it in such context. He never thought of disowning you, nor bear any vengeful feelings from your actions.

You’ve done a better job than the original Lan Wang Ji and Wei Wuxian. You’re better than either of them and both. You’ve won and you’ve shown the world how great you are. However, as a billions-year old elder foster sister, I will also advise you this - you can hold your head high and celebrate your victory and Perfect Happiness, however please don’t forget your origins and where you came from - because at the end of the day, you’re always part of a bigger family.”

The feelings of being vindicated, and yet the heart-breaking loss of innocence and something much, much deeper - stirs intense conflicting thoughts and emotions into Ernie - and the first tendrils of realization - as illogical unexplainable emotions and unidentified deep-rooted feelings continue wreak havoc inside the man-turned-monster.

From the ageless, timeliness Jade Emperor of the Realms of the Gods, who had foreseen everything and didn't really need to use Buddha's Third Eye (and so, it was gifted to Lan Zhan as a miniature viewing mirror, plus many other unidentified but truly awesome capabilities):

“There is an ageless bodhi tree in the Heavens that has existed even before the Heavenly Court was created. Its lush leaves are uncountable, its thick branches are too numerous. It has a sturdy trunk, healthy from being nurtured well and watered often. Below the ground, hidden and forgotten - are its vast network of roots that hold up the holy tree. Everything is connected, everything has a beginning and an end. Someday, the leaves that grow so well from the tree, will wither and fall, and they litter the floor.

A wise, old man sweeps that floor tirelessly every day with a straw broom. He never asks, never complains. It's a routine for him to look after the tree and to make sure that it continues to thrive. Ask Wang Ji about the old man and his broom. When you listen to the story, you will understand.”

Despite tormented by the storms raging inside its head, body and soul (all of which were stolen), Ernie hears the Emperor's words crystal clear - each word distinctly pronounced and embodies a greater meaning to the Corrupted being, because it could comprehend the concepts of trees, leaves and roots just as its vast network of Wangxian net, and of the universal principles of action and consequence.

It wonders if the Emperor meant to say that Ernie is the great holy tree, and that it is not Perfect or flawless despite how great it seems; over time, the flaws create undesirable consequences such as fallen leaves - and thus, who is this caretaker that keeps the tree flourishing, and the surroundings clean?

Perhaps, Ernie should also ask - who was the one that planted the tree from a seed?

The compact mirror speaks again, in praises for its owner and for the greater entity that it is devoted to:

Young mortal Lan, your voice is clear.

Truth shines brightly from within you,

The child will be guided by your voice,

Like a lotus flower blooming from the muddy, murky pool, it will see the truth as bright as sunlight, as pure as spring water.

Our Lord Buddha blesses those who are enlightened.

May the enlightened reincarnate into a higher consciousness

May they continue their journey towards the Perfect Happiness

Forever and till the ends of the universe.

Namo Amitabha,

Namo Amitabha,

Namo Amitabha.

In actual fact, Lan Zhan needed to run to the loo since he'd drunk three cups of jasmine tea before the harrowing encounter with Ernie. Fortunately the metal door was within reach, and he was able to hurry to the gentleman's and unzip his pants to relieve himself in the nick of time, straight into a polished sparkling ceramic urinal.

Notes for the Chapter:

It's a circus! Bwa ha ha! Sorry it took a bit of time to get this chapter out, because I had a really wild time writing about the twisted aspects of daily life, which is somewhat inspired by Planet of the Apes and other sci-fi horror flicks.

We're getting to the end of the arc soon, I can smell it, but I'm kinda worn out from work as well. The next chapter will be a bit delayed due to real life stuff (i.e. work), and I'm trying to pace my writing so that I spend more time on quality than quantity.

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 68

To be honest, Lan Zhan - as a mere mortal who had just survived a lopsided reality and had hysterics without uttering a single word - was quite terrified during the episode with the tentacled mollusc gone horribly wrong (truly, he nearly peed in his loincloth, blame it on the jasmine tea), the missile-launching Tian sisters (fortunately he is ethereal thanks to the bathrobe, so he wasn't hit by falling debris), the Emperor that nearly pulled a fast one on him (his heart dropped 88 floors down to the ground at the perceived betrayal), and the compact mirror that actually hypnotized him, forced his mind to tolerate the insane situation, to speak words that weren't really his own, and only relented once his performance was completed to Perfection - and he's released to run off to the nearest loo to relieve the bursting bladder.

Or perhaps, the panic of a tingly bladder and squeezed thighs made him do these crazy things ... he wouldn't know, because as soon as the sizzling stream shoots out, his body aaahhs with pure satisfaction and deflation, his legs become jelly, all is Perfect in his inner universe, and he would put the entire nightmarish episode behind him, forever, if possible.

That is, until his great grandfather-in-law stood beside him, jiggled some metal armor bits and rustled some layers of robes and pants, and followed by an obnoxious unzipping sound. The gents is quiet and empty save for Lan Zhan and the Emperor.

“Wang Ji, you did well. I am truly impressed. If you ascend to become a god of war, I will definitely make you my right hand General, and let you succeed my throne,” the eight-foot god rumbled beside him, and started to pee as well. Lan Zhan had tinkled to his satisfaction, but he didn’t move yet - he’s a little reluctant to leave the comfort of a quiet toilet, and now, he felt it wouldn’t be right to walk off while his in-law trying to converse with him.

“M.. Mn,” Lan Zhan managed his trademark sound, “Wang Ji appreciates yue fu ’s kind words, and will consider your advice,” he makes a non-committal statement to appease the victorious Tian patriarch.

Tinkle, tinkle. The Emperor’s size is very impressive - and Lan Zhan had to steal a peek. Lan Zhan’s is as tiny as a fingerling compared to the Emperor’s massive eel, even when it’s not erect.

“The girls are going out through the backdoor exit right at the corner of the corridor that we came from. We’ll regroup and discuss our next steps. The ceremony will probably still proceed, given how much the Kingdom and company had invested in preparations, and those Grand Councillors are probably as resilient as pests to keep things moving. What do you intend to do next, Wang Ji?” and the Emperor turned at him with raised eyebrows.

Lan Zhan shrugged, fingers still fiddling down there, trying to shake off the last drops (and quickly zip up and stop comparing sizes, which is quite an intimidating experience). He bore no grudge against Ernie, and he's come to accept that the Kingdom and Wangxian will continue to exist and their people (or creatures) will continue to live their happy lives. He only came to Wuji to help Wei Ying save the Kingdom - as witnessed during many occasions, everything is well and secure - and to protect Wei Ying from further harm and hurt.

“ Yue fu , Wang Ji would like to search and rescue Wei Ying, then bring him back home. That's all I ask for,” Lan Zhan replies, softly as close to a whisper - towards the end, his voice falters a little, because he wasn't sure how to initiate a search when he couldn't even create, let alone transverse through space-time bubbles that Ernie spoke of. He wouldn't even know where to start looking.

Half a minute of silence passed, and Lan Zhan decided to zip up and leave, but he was surprised - The Jade Emperor must have sensed the change in mood, because he took a step closer to Lan Zhan and put a huge muscled arm around the latter's shoulder to give him a giant bro-hug (literally, from an eight-foot tall god).

“Wang Ji-ah-Wang Ji, you always end your sentences mid-way, but you cannot hide your true feelings from this mind-reading yue fu ,” he barks out a short laugh and released the poor partially crushed and shaken man, “the moment that good-for-nothing blurted out that Wei Ying is still around somewhere in a space-time bubble, I'd sent instructions through our TPN to dispatch Kitchen Gods to inspect every households' secrets, and Earth Gods to run surveillances on every known bubble made from Wuji!” and a wave of hands to emphasize just how wide the Emperor's influence and power is.

Lan Zhan paused in mid-zip and stared at the Emperor, stunned. He'd never thought that there were more than one of each god, and the fact that these gods are available at the beck and call of the Jade Emperor-- “Don't forget, I am the Emperor of the Realms of the Gods, of course they'll jump right into action the moment I called for their services. They've already started making inroads into the Kingdom and its universes, and even the Gods of Wisdom have infiltrated the company's Wangxian net databases to run a deep search. You didn't think us gods would let those mortal-based creatures run freely in this world and universe, did you?” he said with a wink.

Lan Zhan's jaw dropped a little, and he turned to gaze at the bearded wizened old god in awe (he didn't zip his fly, by the way). “... W... Wang Ji didn't know, I apologize,” and he started to bow respectfully with his hands folded at the front, but the Emperor gently stopped him.

“No, Wang Ji, do not be sorry. There are many things in this world, this universe, that you still don't know. For example, Let's say a book represents a world or a realm. Within the book, there are words that represent the existence and stories of its people, and there are chapters which represent mini-arcs, mini-universes, and many layers of other stuff written by the same author of that book.

In a bookstore, there are many books, just as there are many planets, realms, and whatnots in the galaxies that make up our universe. Books can be created, copied, modified and destroyed; they also come in all sorts of shapes, sizes, thickness and if you really want to consider the passage of time, then the rate of flipping the pages of those books too. There can be bestsellers that take up bulk of the shelfspace and attention, such as that good-for-nothing's book. There can be normal books too, such as those about the Dragon King's undersea realm, the Lord of Hell's afterlife realm, your Mortal Realm, and mine as well in the Heavens - but it doesn't really matter to my family, really."

Lan Zhan had to ask why - silently. He could relate to books, since he is a scholar too, however he failed to see the connection to his or the Tians' predicament.

"Guess who's the store owner?" and the Jade Emperor beams wide, rather unnerving smile.

Lan Zhan pursed his lips, unable to fathom how to even react. His experience with written tomes had been limited to the ones in Cloud Recesses, in Yiling and a few other public locations, so far during his short, negligibly tiny, and inconsequentially insignificant mortal life.

"And who says I own just one bookstore?" the smile just got wider.

Lan Zhan sighed - he is totally defeated, and he wished to grovel at his supreme great grandfather-in-law to beg--

"But let's put that aside... what are you going to do when you find my idiot foster son and bring him back to the 'Mounds?'. The question shook Lan

Zhan from his reverie - he'd never really thought that far, other than to bring him back, perhaps hide him away for safety, and-- “... Wang Ji will take care of Wei Ying, love him, and keep him happy,” Lan Zhan murmured, having nothing else meaningful or tangible in his mind.

“With that ?”

Lan Zhan looked up again, then to where the Emperor was pointing with a meaty finger, then he stopped breathing, and his face blushed six shades of red when he realized that his fly was still undone and his limp member was hanging out in the open.

“Wang Ji-ah-Wang Ji, I’ve seen your bedroom activities before this whole mess started. Let me tell you, I’m an expert in matters of love and lust. For example, when you do it, you should angle it this way...”

Perhaps Lan Zhan is fortunate to have such a supremely godly great grandfather-in-law, who open-heartedly and happily shares tips about having a good sex life, within the walls of the quiet toilet where no other Tian (female) family members could disturb them. He gets plenty of never-thought-before advice, with a healthy serving of titillating demonstrations using forefingers, middle fingers, and fingers shaped into “O”s, and he gets smacked on the buttocks or has his grandpa-in-law poking at his penis when the latter emphasized about how it should look and feel and where, et cetera ad nauseum . It’s a truly man-to-man heartfelt talk that he needs from a grandfatherly figure that he never had, really.

(In hindsight, the Jade Emperor is appeased with Lan Zhan's answers. The King of Gods and Men is pleased to know that his favourite son-in-law has no other ulterior motives or underlying anxieties, and will go to great lengths to sacrifice himself for the sake of Wei Ying, despite the god's misgivings about the hopeless foster son. Such dedication and loyalty to love is not unheard of, but is very rare even among gods; and he knows that Lan Zhan will truly stay by Wei Ying's side for this lifetime, and beyond.)

The Queen Mother and the girls brushed past when Lan Zhan and the Emperor exited the toilet - apparently, the females were held up too; one of them was menstruating and had to change her sanitary napkin, a few needed to freshen-up and re-do their make-up after such an adrenaline-pumping melee with a monster, and little Tian Tian's tummy ached because she took a bite of the cold and probably unwashed salad (she proved to be a feisty fighter when transformed to her divine form, but she's still subject to mortal ailments). There are plenty of family personal, body and hygiene issues, and Lan Zhan felt strangely alright to be involved with his in-laws at such an intimate level.

The older ones threw dirty looks at him (except for the Queen Mother, who smiled strangely extra sweetly), and an embarrassed Lan Zhan knew that the Emperor had probably left the TPN connection running throughout the entire conversation in the toilet.

Somewhere else in Wuji continent...

There is a traditional family recipe for Wangxian's love:

One Wei Ying to keep Lan Zhan happily in love,

Two Wei Yings to stun him into submission,

Three Wei Yings to disable him and put him out of commission,

Four Wei Yings to...

"Four of us do what?" Wei san ge hisses from the back, while typing out a primitive email through a hastily designed WeiMail portal that resides in a dark corner of a recently-resurrected WeiNet. He crouches over a small wphone with a cable hooked to a LAN socket (actually, an Ethernet port, but LAN sounds cooler, and it's their family's name too), and he's tapped into Wangxian net's root directory.

"Turn Lan Zhan into cold black things! I swear that's true, I've seen it with four gege s ganging up on one bug, performing that qua... quad... quadru... pel... thing with their hands and mouth. Then that bug melted into a slimy slug with a human head and lots of tentacles!" little Wei didi whispered loudly from the door that he's guarding, although there's really not much to guard; the corridors and tunnels are empty, and even the security guards have gone home to watch the ceremony with their families (since the tickets for the venue, which is a large amphitheatre the size of many football fields, were fully sold out).

The Wei siblings had sneaked into one of Wangxian net's main server rooms using stolen credentials from one of the master-kin - it's very easy to procure necessary equipment and information to infiltrate into the various key buildings in the Berries Districts outside of the 88-floor headquarters; Wei Yings only had to keep pleasuring, engage in sexual intercourse and get inseminated by their eager masters non-stop until the latter are reduced to useless unintelligent creatures whose sole purpose in life had been naturally devolved to become walking (or crawling) bags of sperm that mindlessly want to make more babies of their kin (fact: after enough orgasms, the dark but not necessary black creatures experience devolution - say, from primates all the way down until it reaches the bottommost level of the evolutionary ladder consisting of slugs and worms). With some coordination among pockets of Wei Ying-resistance, some short-ranged telepathy communications, and a taste for guerilla warfare - Wei Yings have been able to beg, ask incessantly for wphones, weapons, digital hacking tools, usernames and passwords and nearly everything else, from their former masters.

“Whatever! Hurry up and send the email out to WeiNet so that every one of our kin gets it before the ceremony! Tell everyone to synchronize their activities so that we deactivate as many of those blasted slimeballs on cue. If anyone fucks up, I will personally fuck that Wei kin to hell, and I do NOT care about familial relationships!” Wei da ge growls like a mega-alpha male who leads his awesome pack of amazing Wei kins, as he struts through the entrance to check on progress. His black-ink spattered shirt and pants go well with bloodied jungle boots - the boots crunch awfully on the legs of unconscious insects and mammals - remnants of Net officers and programmers in the building who opted to stay back to earn overtime credit, but met an untimely end with the Rambo-like da ge . He wears a chain around his neck, and many mutilated penises of different shapes and sizes are strung around that chain. He adds three more bloody phalluses dripping with black gooey slime, which he gladly sliced off with a machete in his hand; he didn't even need to whip out his bamboo flute or cast any spell (which could trigger sensors and raise alarms anyway).

Riding on the backbone of Wangxian net, WeiNet had been secretly revived after the ingenious whiz Wei san ge was rescued by his extremely furious and agitated Wei da ge ; after countless depraved sex acts that forced the middle-aged man to painfully endure childbirth of many generations and with no compassion nor gentleness in return, his entire rehabilitation had been undone - and something broke inside that man. In his rage, his mental capabilities multiplied immensely like hellfire that could burn the heavens; it is said that he took control of the main R&D facilities he was enslaved and worked in (like a bred zombie) within two microseconds . Wei san ge didn't dare to find out how much his eldest brother had changed, although he notes that the man swears a lot more, plans their attacks brilliantly, and eats master-kin's genitals for breakfast, literally. (He gags at that thought, because the teenager prefers to taste genitals through his rosebud, and in a nicer, non-violent way.)

"Yes, sir!" Wei san ge calls out in curt reply, and starts sending the email out to zillions of recipients. He had written very clear instructions to all Wei Yings (who are naturally connected, and still connected to WeiNet) on what needs to be done, as dictated by the da ge . He managed to add his personal touch at the end, in the form of a rather cryptic poem about counting Wei Yings with one's fingers, and how the number of Wei Yings can influence Lan Zhans - now corrupted into master-kin.

" San ge ! I see er ge coming! He... he's brought a notebook, it seems!" didi whispers excitedly and loudly again - although he doesn't need to do that, since the floor is empty after da ge 's rampage.

The adopted Wei er ge , who was inducted into the family and accepted by the siblings, is grateful to be rescued by his kin; it didn't take much for Wei da ge to destroy any mind-bending and hallucination spells within the apartment towers with his awesome tornado of psychic anger - which led the poor eighteen year-old to finally see the truth that he'd been fucked and impregnated by slugs, creepy crawlies, lizards, bears, chimpanzees and even some undead creatures - and the late-teen pledged his utmost loyalty to the da ge when the latter's mental powers turned all nearby master-kin into his slaves (and those who were powerful enough to resist were smashed to the ground with impressive brute strength and turned into black puddles of wibbling castrated amoebas) - without even a wisp of spellcasting.

The eighteen year-old er ge is dim-witted, but he managed to screw enough master-kin from surrounding key buildings in the District by teaming up with other Wei-kin as instructed; after performing countless triple, quadruple and quintuple combos on those non-human things , he'd collected a whole notebook of handwritten passwords to unlock the access to more sectors containing First and Second-Tier Universes. His belly is full, his legs are trembling and slimy from a waterfall of seed fountaining down his thighs - but that's Perfectly fine - because it's worth the effort to free their kin from the tyranny of their cruel masters.

Wei san ge sighs at hearing the word 'notebook', and swipes his wphone to activate its OCR capability. He has more blocks of emails to send.

“Da ge ! Da ge ! Are you alright?” a teary ten-year old Wei didi cries as he tries to cast some low-level healing spells to the wounded brawny semi-conscious man lying on his lap. The thin blue magical threads look awfully insufficient to patch up anything compared to the frightening sight of blood trickling down the larger man’s nostrils and ears - signs of internal brain hemorrhaging. The da ge groans in terrible pain and grips his temples, and grunts when the lacerations tear further.

The measly squad of six scantily-clad Wei-kin had barely survived ambushing the site office of a factory in a faraway planet at the edge of a Second-Tier Universe - and succeeded. All had received emails from the Fatherland via the clandestine WeiNet, and acted against the master-kin by launching a covert assault to take over the nearest factory - which, although is tiny in comparison to a standard industry-sized production plant - also acts as a conduit for Wangxian net and a transmitter that broadcasts mind-controlling and other kinds of spells from the master-kin to enslave the Wei-kin. With ten factory managers knocked unconscious by a paltry army of six armed only with slings, sticks and stones - they’ve managed to stop its operations for half an hour at least, before back-up arrives; the rest of the staff are automatons who have been effectively shut down by a press of a big red button, or low life forms of master-kin that fled after the first alarms sounded. They have an elder Wei-kin that helped to shield their minds from the cursed Lan Wang Ji-flavoured siren calls, however the site manager, an impressive ten-foot tall gorilla, managed to deal a severe psychic blow at that da ge before it was knocked on the neck by a concealed teenage Wei-kin - the loss of the da ge renders the squad vulnerable to further attacks.

While the little boy tends to the elder, the other four heavily-pregnant Wei-kin surveys the aftermath - the site office is ruined, the furniture splintered and ripped into pieces, documents shredded and discarded everywhere, computers, office equipment and cups lie on the floor haphazardly - like a disastrous scene after an earthquake. All master-kin have been tied up and casted Sleep spells.

“He’s going into labour!” one of the remaining four Wei-kin shouts, as another collapses and curls into a ball on the floor; a small puddle forms from his rump - his water broke. “We need to find help, hack the conduit to broaden WeiNet access, and deactivate the transmitter, in the next few minutes before the local police arrives! What should we do?” the third young adult Wei-kin asks helplessly, but there is no answer. The final Wei Ying, a teenager, shakes his head and tries to remember anything, anything that his master may have mentioned that could help their dire predicament; his former master was one of the site managers that was knocked unconscious during the scuffle, a huge reindeer master-kin.

“... Ah! I know! My master used to say that primates are odd individuals, and have weird fetishes. They always bring their human pets to work... so maybe, if we search the gorilla’s office, we might find something or someone!” the teenager shouts in reply. Both Wei-kin nodded at each other, and rushed to the top floor. After a quick rummage of drawers and cabinets, they found a trapdoor beneath a presidential chair and opened it.

They’re greeted by a horrible view of a group of naked Wei-kin being tortured in all kinds of manners in an enclosed metal room underneath the entrance: Many moaning and groaning Wei Yings are tied up with ropes with all different kinds of patterns and painful positions; some are collared or handcuffed to poles like animals, while others are strapped to the walls or forced to straddle uncomfortably on odd-looking benches; some wore tight latex rubber suits, others had sex toys inserted into them including buttplugs, or vibrating beads taped to their genitals; the so-called rescuer Wei-kins’ blood ran cold when they noticed a number of dark-skinned chimpanzee master-kin guards milling around and abuse the imprisoned Wei Yings to their pleasure.

Some of the primates walked by and happily dripped hot candle wax onto the exposed skin of Wei-kin screaming in agony, or casually stuck molten-hot brands to their chests and limbs; while others used whips to flog springy ass-cheeks until they turn tomato-red and in some cases, bleed. A couple of Wei Yings had their asses split apart by fist-sized dildos that spin and vibrate inside their canals, and their fronts are tortured by slaps, more whipping or rough handling on the balls. One was trampled by chimpanzee feet and pushed to the ground, and forced to lick the guard's sole despite being very pregnant; another was blindfolded on a bench, face-up, and has his pierced nipples clamped with live-wires and he seized and convulsed as electricity current ran through his body; yet another set of five Wei-kin are tied to raised platforms where their feet and sensitive areas are constantly tickled using feathers by cackling chimp guards, and a few master-kin chimps circled them like sharks waiting to dine on tasty helpless morsels, then yanked the tortured humans' half-limp penises to draw out the tip of sounding tubes that had been inserted into their cocks, and sucked earnestly on each Wei-kin until they half-laughed from the itch on their skin, half-groaned in distress from being vacuumed out, and cried fat full hot tears.

The blatant display of debauchery and of erotic humiliation is too much to take, even for sexed-up Wei-kins. The scene takes a turn for the worse, when the two rescuing Wei-kin noticed deeper into the enclosed space, some older prisoners are treated as furniture where they are sat and spat upon - whether on backs, buttocks or even the faces - and the primates constantly use their calloused fingers to stroke and edge their human prisoners just for fun. The younger Wei-kin are put into diapers and have their clothing pulled off every once in a while to get spanked onto springy ass-mounds; or are forced to lie on the floor, while the master-kin spread a buffet of snacks, cakes and ice-cream on the boys' writhing abdoments and bodies - including icing on the penis glans -, and lick and suck them off - just for pure entertainment at the expense of the Wei-kins' dignity.

The teenage Wei Ying shakes his head again; there is no way two young Wei-kin could overpower so many guards, even if there is a remote but attractive possibility of finding a powerful Wei da ge amongst the prisoners that could turn the tide against this increasingly hopeless war against the master-kin.

Suddenly an alarm sounded - something must've been triggered, and all the guards in the metal room beneath the trapdoor heard the blaring sound. The two Wei Yings shrieked in terror and ran for their life towards their original squad, and the chimpanzees roared in anger, climbed up the trapdoor and chased the boys down.

Soon, all six Wei-kin huddled into a corner of the destroyed site office: one dying from internal bleeding in the head, another rendered crying and helpless after exhausting his final healing spell, one clutching another who is in the process of birthing something inhuman, and two panting, fatigue and terrified young men who had nowhere else to run. The chimps gather around them, growling and chattering in their own language while telepathically communicating with each other on what to do with the reneging humans who had hurt their kin. Some of the guards began to untie their kin and cast Awaken spells, which led to the youngest Wei-kin bawling desperately harder, and when two orangutan emerge from the front door of the office - the police chiefs, possibly - flanked by a squad of ten or more fully armed heavy-set gorillas - all six Wei-kin trembled in pure fear and despair at their looming demise.

The sound of a faraway giant temple bell echoes from an unimaginably far distance; somewhere in the universe, or universes, a suspended wooden beam carved from the ancient trunk of a million year-old holy bodhi tree hits the surface of cast bronze and iron; the rich, harmonious low and rumbling tone is incredibly smooth, encompasses simplicity, humility, and perfection, and sends rippling soundwaves in all directions like lotus buds blooming majestically into the daylight; the tremors in the air vibrate every object with primordial universal qi , calming the living, dispersing the deviated, dissolving the corrupted, and banishing the evil.

The six Wei-kin had to use their hands to shield their faces and to ward off flying projectiles, when one side of the site office was torn asunder by an astonishingly powerful and unknown force that was accompanied by a bone-rattling gong-like sound. In its place, a single Lan Wang Ji, dressed in his full regalia of white robes, Gusu Lan cloud-themed clothes and a sparkling silver hairpiece, stands gracefully on the remains of broken rubble and concrete chunks, with a guqin made of pure golden qi threads in front of him, against a backdrop of bright daylight from the outside of the factory.

In the background, disembodied voices filter down from everywhere, seemingly coming down from the heavens above them. There is a mix of Gusu Lan's over-4000 rules and chants of holy sutras, dissonant in melody and rhythm, the words blend and overlap over one other, and a youthful androgynous voice rises startlingly clear and loud amongst the din.

Lord Buddha sees everything, beyond what is visible, beyond what is hidden,

There is pain, sadness, suffering and lingering regret.

Come, o' Children of Men,

Listen to our Lord, and receive His teachings!

Release yourselves from the agony of Mortals!

Be enlightened so that you may journey into the next cycles of life!

Forever and till the ends of the universe.

Namo Amitabha,

Namo Amitabha,

Namo Amitabha.

The Lan Wang Ji that stands above the Wei-kin - who looks exactly like the First Father, but none of them could confirm as they've never really met him before - spreads his arms in a ready stance. A storm of fierce winds surround his feet and his figure, whipping up debris all over the room and out to the external surrounding.

A third eye forms on the forehead, between the brows, and it opens - pure golden light bursts forth, enveloping everyone with its incredible luminescence, and the master-kin in the room roar simultaneously in blinding pain.

He strikes the first note on the immeasurably powerful guqin made from the threads of the Universe--

--and the world turns white.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

“ Yue fu ! Yue mu ! Shijie !” Lan Zhan shouts through the glass screen and struggles on his seat desperately, but futilely because the alien fibrous material is too thick to be ripped by mere human strength.

Lan Zhan is thoroughly confused and he is rather terrified - he'd been whisked to the 88th level of the building - uninhabited, unkempt, clothes and trash littered all over the marbled floor - and shoved straight to the helipad right outside of the sliding glass doors that separate the living room from the fierce howling gales atop the skyscraper.

There is a storm brewing and the sun is setting - the skies are unusually dark and cloudy, scores of lighting light up and snaked through the heavens, accompanied by drumming thunder.

The younger Tian sisters had retrieved the half-obscured UFO vehicle dumped behind a small mountain of discarded metal, outdoor rubbish and used cardboard boxes from old relocation companies. They easily found its access panel on the surface, broke open the lid and hot-wired its long-dead engines and opened its door. The older sisters bundled up Lan Zhan into the two-seater vehicle, with Tian da jie dragging the man into it, pushed him into one of the seats and buckled up the seat-belt. She gave a light kiss on Lan Zhan's forehead, and whispered to him that, “It's time to go, Wei Ying is waiting for you,” which drained the blood out of Lan Zhan's face because that sentence sounded so wrong on so many levels under such circumstances, and when she left thus leaving him alone, he realized he couldn't unbuckle the belts, and the colourful blinking lights and synthetic electronic sounds started up from the panels inside the vehicle, everything started to hum into life--

“There’s been another change of plans! Something wonderful is happening to this continent, and you’d never imagine WHO decided to join the party! Even the Heavens are tuning in from their homes to watch the greatest super rock star ever to grace our universal reincarnations!”

“It’s pretty crazy down there, so it’s too dangerous for you to hang out with us anymore! Yours and Wei Ying’s clones are fighting an interspecies war at a scale never seen before, even for some of us!”

“Sorry, you’re too underaged for this, so be a good boy and hang onto your ride until you get there! Don’t worry about the things here, everything will take care of itself!”

“Oh my god Oh my god Oh my god, but wait, I’m a god...”

The 21st century was the rise of our didi , the Weis

The 31st century was the cooperation of our di fu , the Lans, and the Weis

The 41st century was the rise of the Great Fathers and the new species that took over everything...

And now, we’re on the cusp of the next big thing... the entire Net is flooded with zillions of posts and chatgroups about a new God-King and the Bigger And Better Wangxian company! There are mega-zillions of alien races following the live feed, and even WeiTube is buffering like crazy!”

“Stop looking at your wphone! It’s not going to matter anymore after tonight! C’mon! Push the vehicle off the helipad, and let’s get to the party!”

“Is it true? That all 88 Stairways to the Heavens have been cordoned off, and the moment the first fireworks light up the skies, the Grand Lord’s Infinite Golden Guardians of Million-Lotus of Incineration Dharma will come raining down onto this land? I’ve never seen such a divine wave attack before! I wanna see! I wanna see!”

“That is why we should head to the nearest amphitheatre now! There’s one in every First Tier City, although the biggest wave will land smack in the middle of this tower and annihilate everything... so we should get going!”

“ Jie jie , wait... what’s going to happen to us? To didi ? To di fu ?”

The Jade Emperor, being the gentle bearded giant that he is, bends down and gazes at a frightened Lan Zhan safely tucked inside the UFO. He places a warm hand on the glass screen.

“Wang Ji, I have to apologize for the rush, as our celestial servants just sent through this remarkable update, and we had to quickly use our TPN to switch our plans. It’s going to be a little bumpy from out here, so we’re sending you off to safety, where my Earth Gods have reported possible locations of the space-bubble containing Wei Ying.

The girls are going to stay and watch the show and maybe take part in this... event..., which may last for some time, or until their tourist visas are up and they’ll have to leave by the end of winter. Your mother-in-law and I are a little too old for such... err... youngsters’ festivals... so we’ll return and get in touch with you as soon as we can.”

Lan Zhan starts to shout again, strapped to the seat of the vehicle that smells a bit dank and dusty, perhaps the acrid scent of rusted iron as well (it's been more than two centuries since someone started its thrusters), and soon, his voice was drowned in the roar of the engines. The disc-shaped ship lifts off with plenty of shakes and vibrations.

Just then, a tremendously over-sized tentacled slime monster over twenty-meter in length crawled up to the helipad, and one dripping ugly appendage reached out to the UFO.

The Queen Mother does what any mother would do to bugs that dare to pester and bite their beloved son(-in-law); she angrily swats the monster with her sleeve, and Lan Zhan's eyes widened at the display on the screen which showed a 360-degree projection of the UFO's surroundings - her one-swipe action cleanly sliced the giant slug into two, and the unimaginable Heavenly impact visibly continued to blaze a fiery trail of shockwaves and molten heat that churned all solid matter down multiple floors, turning everything in its path into dust instantly - no, in fact, all floors were affected down to the ground floor - the entire 88-floor tower was cleaved into two! The floors that contained the entrances to the First Tier Universes were damaged too, and those Universes suffered tremendous fatalities of master-kin when their worlds are obliterated by the yue mu 's wrath.

Lan Zhan is left dazed when his vehicle flies higher and higher, away from the collapsing 88-floor tower, and the vast land of Wuji continent comes into view. He isn't surprised anymore, given what he'd gone through during the past days and centuries. He's way past Wei Ying-ness, and had internally ascended beyond Buddhahood in terms of accepting the reality that appears onscreen - once again, cities burn, towns smoulder, forests are ablaze, and the citizens are panicking - just like the day he arrived not too long ago, but not quite the same - because groups of naked Wei Yings are fighting alongside a handful of fully-clothed Lan Zhans against a sea of swarming dark creatures, and those master-kin are devolving from humanoid or legged forms into one huge swathe of cold black and terribly ugly shapeless mass.

Further away, the largest amphitheatre comes into view, and he sees that it is full of master-kin who are blissfully unaware of the looming war that threatens to extinguish their species. The main stage is empty - because Ernie is no longer sane and his core programming has degenerated into insanity, and he does not sit on the throne anymore nor take the helm of the company - however the crowd continues to cheer feverishly, almost akin to cult-like levels, as they herald a new beginning that will never come - the first fireworks shoot high into the sky, and blossoms into a breathtakingly beautiful bloody red sparkling flower that spreads across the cityscape's skyline, then all 88 Stairways begin to open, which are grand pillars of light that cut through the dark clouds. The master-kin roars triumphantly and victoriously in their blinded faith to their own foolishness, and their arms, tentacles, claws, paws and other appendages rise up to welcome the bright light that shine upon each city, like insects drawn to the fire, the master-kin rise higher and higher, chanting prayers for blessings to their unseen King, the Great President, the Great Father, The First Fathers--

From each Stairway which spans as wide as a city, a grand God-sized Buddha's Palm emerges; soon, eighty eight of them descend at staggering speeds like meteors falling from the heavens, streaking blazing fiery vertical lines in the evening sky, and they slam to the ground as massive earthquakes and tsunamis that liquefy and disintegrate everything on sight.

The red light on the ceiling has turned off, and the seat belt unbuckles itself automatically. Lan Zhan eases his sitting position so that he can better stretch his legs, and he stares at the egg-shaped seal around the continent that gradually shrinks in size, as he floats further away into the darkening skies above the oceans.

He takes comfort that the horrendous statue in the middle of that large amphitheatre - the one that was unveiled just as the fireworks lit up, which depicts the First Father Lan in all its 100 meter-height glory, wearing a pair of old 80's sunglasses, sporting a bushy moustache and wearing tight denim jeans, one hand on the hips and the other pointing obnoxiously to the sky - has gone sinking down into a sea of flames.

Notes for the Chapter:

Well, that was... interesting. I didn't really have a clue about wars and fighting (other than the snake ghoul bit earlier in the story), so it's a first try for me :-)

I've been making tiny improvements in the previous chapters after realizing that I've made typo errors, missed out some juicy bits and whatnots. So, if you re-read, you might find something you've never seen before in the first run.

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 69

It is said that when the gods rained their heavenly judgement upon the land, the devastation is absolutely Perfect - all life forms, matter, objects, even the largest mountains and the tiniest pebble - are squashed, stirred and blended into a brown-black-grey murky primordial soup like the one left in a pot on the stove for far too long in the kitchen.

The inky blackness is gone, erased and laundered by heavenly virus decontamination squads, and all that remained are gazillions of pure-hearted baby Wei Yings and little Wang Jis wriggling about in the viscous liquid. Their forms are extremely primitive, representing Pre-Life stages of existence, and are no more than a spherical glob of spiritual qi with a squiggly tail sticking out from one end for the purpose of simple propulsion. They float and swim aimlessly - but not really directionless, as their seemingly random movements steer them towards specific groups and individuals as dictated by the powers of the embedded Soulmate Binding Rings inside their tails.

Soon, they gravitate and congregate in masses - one baby Wei Ying with its fated pair of a little Wang Ji, or one individual with many of the other kin, or multiples of each wriggling over another into a lump of stickiness, and many other iterations.

“Lan Zhan! Lan Zhan! I’m so glad I’ve found you! I missed you so much... since my creation!” one baby Wei Ying dashed forward when it knew, and felt that he’d met his soulmate inside the soup. The entwine their tails passionately, and baby Wei Ying starts peppering kisses and sweet muahs all over the overjoyed - but expressionless, though blushing - little Wang Ji, and Wei Ying started to hug and circle and dance and wiggle and hump and spin around and around his little Wang Ji excitedly, never once leaving physical contact with his finally-found loved one.

“Mn. Found you. I am happy and grateful too.”

The two lovebirds could have lived wonderful lives, embark on great adventures as humble but lively sperm cells, and journeyed to the ends of the universe; however their time spent together was sadly cut short. The murky soup that surrounds them begins to vibrate with tremendous symphonic waves of qi energies, and they ripple from the far, far distance, where a ginormous glowing golden-white ball of something slowly rises from the horizon, like the inferno of the dawn of a new sunrise.

The entire micro- and macrocosm of baby Wei Yings and little Wang Ji's becomes chaotic, filled with panicked squeals and shrieks, as unknown forces begin to pull them towards the luminescent spherical and almost, perhaps, living thing. As they are drawn into an increasingly powerful vortex leading to the sun-like mass, baby Wei Ying tried his best to tighten his tail around his little Wang Ji's, never once letting go.

“Lan Zhan! I'm scared! It feels like we're being sucked into that big ball of living energy! Is this the end? Are we going to die? Will we be reincarnated?”

Little Wang Ji holds onto his lovely baby Wei Ying with his dear spermatocytic life. He remains calm, brave, even defiant, in the face of becoming devoured by gravitational forces into the sphere - he sees that the ball has a few layers of living, foamy and spongy sentient masses on the outside, that breathes and pulses with life-force, and towards the center, there is a bright, pure holy light that he'd seen before from his ancestral memories not long ago, reminiscent of the times he'd spent under holy bodhi trees.

“Do not fear (别怕). I am with you (我在).

Forever in this lifetime, and beyond.”

Little Wang Ji coils around his soulmate as closely as possible, and tells himself that he will never part again with his beloved.

Every last baby Wei Yings and little Wang Jis from the volatile primordial soup is sucked into the cosmic egg of sorts, fertilizing the massive ball of life,--

--and their world is reborn.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

Half an hour into the flight, Lan Zhan started to feel a little restless and began to explore the small two-seater UFO; he didn't really have a chance to do this during his arrival flight while he was a paperman stuck to a nipple. He remembered watching Wei Ying fiddle with the controls although nothing really happened since the vehicle was set on auto-pilot mode. He steered clear from the big red buttons on the armrests, since he'd seen how the seats changed into massage chair-cum-ugly parasitic green condoms. Most drawers were barren or contained dust balls, others contained a few writing instruments and small tools or objects that he couldn't identify. Behind the seats, one cabinet held a satchel-sized package made from aluminium foil, marked "Emergency Rations", and he thought that two-century old foods would be highly inedible - but he opened the ziplock packaging anyway out of sheer curiosity.

There were a couple of packs of crackers in faded transparent plastic packaging and they looked rather brittle and mottled, two strange opaque brown packs marked “MRE” (but he couldn’t read the letters or any other texts on that packs), and two empty cups made of unknown synthetic material - probably plastic; he noticed a modern 21st-century water nozzle sticking out from one of the lower panels, with a big red button above to dispense liquid - if he dared to try centuries-old water, which he didn’t. On the next cabinet, there were surviving amenity kits, squashed pillows and blankets, and probably more stuff at the back - they were a bit dusty and he didn’t think any soap or toothpaste in those pouches were still usable by now.

Having found nothing else of interest, Lan Zhan returned to his seat and took out a silk pouch gifted by the kitchens in the Heavenly Palace. He thought it’s prime time for his soul to receive its body, since there are no further threats to his well-being, and pulled out the palm-sized gingerbread man he’d baked not too long ago. He found the flight entertainment handset between the seats, and tried pressing a few harmless-looking buttons (he’s not too good with swiping gestures on the big screen, and he doesn’t know how to enable voice-recognition technology, so he sticks to physical touches).

While munching on his body-regenerating biscuit, Lan Zhan watches pre-recorded 21st century in-flight entertainment, including ancient cartoons, documentaries, and he thought an old movie or two may ease the boredom, if time permits. Outside, the moon has risen and the brilliant crescent casts silvery light upon miles of infinite ocean surface; he seems to be travelling further and further into the night, but he does not know the final destination.

In terms of (in-flight) entertainment value, a perfect, dramatic scenario would look something like this:

Wei Wuxian, once known as the much-feared Great Yiling Patriarch, wanders to the ends of the earth with a flute in hand, perpetually driven by an unshakeable thirst for adventures, for freedom, and refuses to be tied down like a tamed beast. Having traveled far and wide in isolation through deserted grassy hills and mountains that stretch into the horizon, he becomes a prisoner of his own as he searches futilely for the one thing he could never attain - to have his lover cradled in his arms once again.

At a summit of a nameless wind blown cliff, he gently takes out his flute and plays a song named after their love, and spiritually tries to call for the man that his heart misses so deeply, whose embrace he longed for desperately.

“Wei Ying.”

Two words. The calm, reassuring voice that resonates with his feelings of desire and hope.

Two syllables. That’s all he needed to hear. He will no longer need to cry himself to sleep every day and night. He will never walk a lonely path in the dark, ever again.

Wei Wuxian turns around, and a loving, familiar face greets him.

He smiles, finally--

...

Except that Wei Ying breaks all traditions and stereotypes, and does not conform to primetime sappy drama sequences nor act for the sake of entertainment.

When Lan Zhan climbs up a nondescript hill and his overtly high silver hairpiece peeks through the grasses, Wei Ying waves enthusiastically at the visitor.

“Oooi! Lan Zhan! I am here! You’re just in time!” the young man shouts while using a stick to poke at a crackling fire pit.

Lan Zhan, on the other hand, is overwhelmed with untold emotion (and fatigue) and it shows clearly on his face, even his eyes tear up uncharacteristically (and his body is sweaty). He breaks into a desperate brisk walk, then into an impatient, hurried jog, and soon, he sprints up the last mile until his legs ached from a sudden unfamiliar burst of exertion and nearly gives way, his lungs screamed for air, and his repeated hoarse cries of Wei Ying’s name could be heard miles away, probably. By the time he reached - no, crawled on all fours - to Wei Ying’s bare feet - because Wei Ying wore a comfortable 21st-century cotton tee and a pair of shorts which are suitable for such a nice hot and sunny weather, compared to the three layers of garments plus a thick outer majestic robe that Lan Zhan had put on -, the younger man had to hold his arms and steady him so that he doesn't faint on the spot.

The newly-minted body, made from a consumed enchanted gingerbread man, is a little more fragile than expected, and requires regular workout to get it back in shape.

In any case, the couple reunited, as expected, on top of lush green hills, and exchanged many huffing and puffing I-missed-you smooches on the face (mostly from Lan Zhan and upon the stubbled Wei Ying; the former doesn't mind rubbing his face on rough prickly skin) amongst windswept grassy plains that dot the highland plateaus. Lan Zhan's eyes sparkled even as his forehead is covered with sweat; his yellow-hued gaze filled with unasked questions that Wei Ying could easily name and count with his fingers because he knows the older man too well - how are you, have you been well, did you eat well, did you miss me, did you think of me all these times - even as Wei Ying tried to ease himself away from the never-ending tight hugs given by the older man, because it is rather unbecoming of the stoic, heroic husband that he's used to - and Wei Ying really needed to start pulling layers of garments off Lan Zhan before the latter suffers from heat stroke.

"I lit up a small bonfire when I spotted the UFO wobbling towards that valley. It wasn't so hard to find me, was it?" Wei Ying's confident smile beams the brightness of a thousand suns. Lan Zhan nodded without hesitation, still busy trying to grope fervently and kiss Wei Ying affectionately, while in return, he allows himself to be fanned with a broad leaf from the ground and undressed by his lover.

Wei Ying knows that it is difficult for someone to spot a tiny object from miles away, because the entire space-time bubble is rather plain and featureless - there are just hills and more hills in all directions, and one can easily get lost because there are hardly any landmarks; the clouds do not really move, sunlight seems to be diffused and there are no distinct east-westerly directions - the sky is pretty much fixed at its current position, due to a glitch in the space-time bubble. Smoke from a fire is probably the best way to draw the older man's attention the moment he staggered unsteadily from the landed vehicle.

After a minute, Lan Zhan recovered from his exhaustion, regained his composure, and is left with only a comfortable bathrobe - a strange choice of undergarment but appropriately cooling, Wei Ying thought; there are no rules that forbid what kind of clothes could be worn in this space-time bubble anyway. Wei Ying sits down near the smoking fire pit and lets Lan Zhan lie on the soft bed of grass next to him; he places Lan Zhan's head on his lap, strokes the long hair and runs fingertips into it while tucking away sweaty locks behind the ears, and says endearingly, "You're such a bad husband, you really took your time to get here," and he bends down to captures the older man's lips in a shy kiss, "You've finally come back to me."

"Mn, I'm back," came the short, but meaningful reply, and Lan Zhan responds tenderly by tilting his chin upwards and brushes lips and tongue with the other.

Something in the air smells really delicious. Without warning, Lan Zhan's stomach growls awfully loudly.

“Is it good? Is your body alright with it? I didn’t put any seasoning on the meat other than a bit of salt and a pinch of herbs, and there are no chilli flakes this time. I hope it’s not too bland,” Wei Ying gingerly picks another thumb-sized piece of tender fire-roasted pheasant breast, turns to face the older man sitting next to him, and slides it between the husband’s lips. The older man busily chews on the juicy morsel - fragrant, rich in flavour, absolutely mouth-watering; tastes much better than chicken, really. A droplet of gravy rolls down from his lower lip when he chewed a strip of crispy fatty skin a bit too eagerly, and Wei Ying quickly grabs a small chunk of ground-baked peeled sweet potato from its leaf-wrap, scrapes it against the man’s chin to capture the droplet, and then pops it into Lan Zhan’s mouth when the older man “aaaaahs” expectedly like a baby bird getting fed by its mother.

“Ah, be careful lao gong and don’t use your fingers to wipe, otherwise they’ll become oily. Let me take care of it... you must be quite hungry after getting your new body back!” Wei Ying remarks happily, and places a soft kiss on the dining man’s forehead in appreciation of... well, just about everything that Lan Zhan means to him. Wei Ying picks up an opened fresh young coconut with a straw in it, raises it close to the hungry man’s face, and lets Lan Zhan take a sip of slightly-chilled, sweet and refreshing coconut water in-between bites.

Somehow, Wei Ying knew that Lan Zhan would arrive in this space-time prison bubble, ravenous, and he actually guessed - and correctly true - that the man would use the UFO that probably didn’t contain snacks and beverages to last the two-hour flight. The older man didn’t pursue the matter, because the food is just what he needed; he’d missed dinner back at the destroyed 88-floor tower, and the paperman-shaped biscuit just doesn’t cut it.

(Lan Zhan had imagined wrapping a shivering and weakened spouse with his regal robes, then carry the latter back to the UFO, bridal style, and shuttle him back to their paradise home, where as husband, he would cook something sumptuous and filling for the wife, whom he thought may have roamed aimlessly for centuries in this prison space-time bubble without any food or water - or something to that effect. However, Wei Ying trumps everyone's expectation, as usual.)

While Lan Zhan nourishes his weakened body with warm food, Wei Ying uses the time to explain what has happened to him in the days that ensued after he was imprisoned. The space-time bubble is an uninhabited 'glitched' zone surrounded by an impenetrable seal; it was only half-completed when Wei Ying was tossed into it, the keys to the egg-shaped seal thrown away, and the captor walked off without giving a second thought because that good-for-nothing had other grander things in mind. The seal is similar to the one around Wuji continent - probably reverse engineered - hence, only a UFO could enter using the warp drive (which Wei Ying had to substitute with the term "that noodly and stretchy technology" so that Lan Zhan understands what he was trying to say). Being in an alpha developmental stage and hardly even a beta version, meant that the space is pockmarked with random errors, incomplete design and untested programming codes - for example, the lowlands are actually filled with rich native wildlife and plants, however due to the glitch, it looks barren except for the base tile, which are grasses; if Lan Zhan ran to the valley instead of the top of the hill to reach Wei Ying, he'd run into invisible jungle rainforests and end up tripping into ponds and bruised from running into tree trunks.

Lan Zhan points at the half-eaten pheasant skewered on the spit. "These? Ah, food is easy to forage - by unlocking the visibility of the tiles, I could see everything and best of all, most objects here have zero command lines and AI scripts, meaning that creatures and plants - such as this pheasant, the potatoes and the coconut - just hang around and do nothing, waiting to be caught and harvested!," Wei Ying gleefully remarks, and licks his fingers, before proceeding to (use the same fingers to) tear another strip of meat from the pheasant's thighs. "Since the coding was rather primitive, I could assemble a makeshift map editor, tap into the bubble's root directory via pressing red buttons scattered everywhere that should've been hidden, then create edible units to appear out of thin air. The food around here is tasty and nutritious, despite costing no resources at all!" Wei Ying explains then inserts the saliva-coated meat into the husband's mouth, and Lan Zhan half-smiled in return, gratefully chewing, because he has absolutely no idea what was said, other than the evil term "root directory" which he swore to avoid for the rest of his life.

Wei Ying continued to talk animatedly, as Lan Zhan "Mn"s periodically while being fed and pampered by the lovely wife. Despite Wei Ying's mastery of his prison, he missed human contact and the opportunity to converse with someone; Lan Zhan can relate to this, because he missed Wei Ying as well, for a few Heaven-days or Mortal Realm-centuries at least.

Wei Ying turned out to be much more prepared for the rendezvous-cum-rescue; every day he'd set up a campsite with a tent as a stake-out on the highest point of a hill, then stare boredly at the seemingly empty land around him, and the unchanging skies above, for any signs of a flying husband to the rescue. With all sorts of resources at his disposal, Wei Ying lived quite comfortably though lonesome exile from the rest of his kin, and his imprisonment period lasted for several days. Having nothing to do all day, he spent hours editing and hacking the little island of hills and mountains trapped inside the bubble, and played God by himself.

Lan Zhan interrupted his spouse to tell him that it's been more than two centuries in real time, and he starts narrating, in brief sentences, about what happened to the Wei kin, the rise of master-kin out of Lan kin, and the Kingdom-cum-company - to the best of his knowledge, since he's not as good as the Tian's when it comes to explaining the unimaginable. After Lan Zhan finished the pheasant, the potatoes and the coconut, thus concluding what they think is lunch (because there is no day or night in this space), Wei Ying cleaned his own hands using a wooden basin of water, a washcloth and basic soap bar that popped out of nowhere - because he's not as good as his former da ge when it comes to creating and designing advanced stuff - while the older man summarized his two-day stay in the Heavens, including about baking a new body for himself, and even points out the gifts and souvenirs he received from newfound celestial friends. His bathrobe is amazing, and Lan Zhan could pull out and put back in various objects through the pockets - just like Infinity bags of holding.

Wei Ying became very quiet when Lan Zhan described his ordeal and how the Tian family dealt the final blow to the continent in the form of eighty eight destructive godly palms raining down the land.

"It's strange, isn't it?" Wei Ying interjected, "Although everyone is said to be living their happily ever afters, ironically during the final moments, the gods decided to bring down their wrath and wipe everything out during the Kingdom and company's finest hour. It could be that the gods will rebuild the continent to something more, say, appropriate according to their interpretation of universal rules. In some ways, Ernie's prophecy came true, didn't it?"

Lan Zhan stilled - he clearly remembered what the body-snatched Great Father said about the heavens wanting to murder it, and take over the Kingdom and the company.

"Ahh... this is just too complicated and way, way beyond our league," Wei Ying sighs loudly in exasperation and scrubs the fringes of his hair upon the forehead with his fingers in frustration, seemingly able to read and mirror what Lan Zhan had in mind. "You know, I feel relieved that my magic is sealed and I'm disconnected from Wangxian net before the whole mess happened. I wouldn't be able to handle the pain from watching the whole continent go down in flames and feel the agony of my brothers being burnt alive," Wei Ying murmured thoughtfully. Lan Zhan gripped one of Wei Ying's wrists to show support to the latter at times of heavy loss, what more of close family members and kin. The young man leans into Lan Zhan - both of them sat side by side - and silently appreciates the husband's kind gesture.

Wei Ying is exceptionally calm in receiving news from the outside world, and Lan Zhan seems to do better this time in accepting the outcomes of his latest misadventures with gods, non-humans, magic and technology advancements. Perhaps the couple has been through a lot since meeting the Tians and the quartet of Wei siblings, that anything reality-defying is probably, to some extent, becoming a way of life for those two.

A few more minutes of silence help them to digest any remaining turmoil in thoughts, feelings and emotions, and for the couple to bond again as their world centers its attention around them.

Wei Ying absently peels a tangerine (picked up from nowhere) and shares half of it with Lan Zhan. "So... what now? What do you want to do next? It looks as though Wangxian is erased, and so is the continent of Wuji, if the bombardment from the gods succeeded. Our home at the 'Mounds has been abandoned for centuries and probably everyone we know has ceased to exist too," Wei Ying said. Lan Zhan picked up a slight familiarity in Wei Ying's sad voice - the man had experienced something similar when he was resurrected into a world sixteen years after his first death, where almost everyone and everything he'd known had disappeared too. "I don't mind starting over my life and staying with you in the 'Mounds, or wherever you want to settle down. That's the only desire I have in this life - to follow you and stay by your side in this lifetime and beyond,” he adds with a slight but bittersweet smile.

Lan Zhan remembers the few words that the twenty-two year old uttered when he emerged as a paperman not too long ago - the same sentiments of loyalty and love to his husband - and he dips down to give Wei Ying a tangerine-flavoured kiss in response, sweet and slightly tart.

Later, after the meal is done and the only thing remaining on the hilltop is a modern, contemporary canvas tent and an empty fire pit - Lan Zhan asks Wei Ying if the latter is still hungry. Wei Ying looks up, confused, before he sees a different light sparkling in his husband’s eyes - one of gentleness, of kind understanding, of being grateful to be loved, and of loving back by giving a part of himself to Wei Ying, after all these years and for the years that will come. The twenty-two year old man hesitantly mutters, in a very low and timid voice, about a gnawing hunger that had lasted for a few days since he found himself trapped inside the space-time bubble.

Lan Zhan gently takes Wei Ying’s hand and leads him into the modest tent that fits snugly for two, and begins to undress. “Wei Ying, you cared for me while I was a paperman and allowed me to feed well... now, let me return the favour, which is my duty as your husband, to make sure that you’ll never feel alone and go hungry again,” he says between hot kisses, sweet licks on earlobes and jawlines, and fingers that touch and play on heated skin between two increasingly excited men. Wei Ying moans and a deep sense of desperation slowly boils up. He’d been holding back his demonic hunger out of respect and for not wanting to burden Lan Zhan while the latter is still recuperating his newly-made body. However, with such a delicious buffet spread beneath him as he prepares to make sweet love and ride the husband, and finally, finally satisfy himself with a feast of sinful feelings and other vices - when he feels Lan Zhan caress a demonic tail that had grown out from his rump, pull his wings down so that both of them can continue to kiss and exchange tasty wisps of qi energy and life-force, Wei Ying knows that he is very much loved by his man.

The couple had plenty of cuddles in between violent, non-bloody lovemaking; during which Wei Ying finds himself wrapped inside a cocoon of Lan Zhan - the touch of his skin, the heat of his breath, the soothing mmmms rumbling from the husband's throat, and endless nuzzling using nosetip, lips and cheeks - and Lan Zhan continued to lazily drill his half-limp penis into the flooded love-canal while Wei Ying straddled, spread and scissored his legs delightfully around the husband's hips, coaxing the sleepy husband to grind deeper, draw circles and stars with his penis inside Wei Ying, and the younger man squealed because his sensitive spots were massaged and rubbed in delectable ways until he spills his one-two-threes onto the tent's inflatable air mattresses. Lan Zhan, on the other hand, relishes his good ol' twenty-twitches; he'd missed cumming inside Wei Ying for such a long time, that he was reluctant to pull out even after consecutive orgasms inside his lover - but that is Perfectly fine, and Wei Ying was more than happy to indulge in Lan Zhan's unspoken pleas for more pleasure for his throbbing loins that eagerly swell and convulse and spurt from Wei Ying's tender ministrations.

The sun is still up, although it is midnight for Lan Zhan - the naked man sleeps soundly beneath a blanket with a sleep mask on; his spirit, soul and physical body thoroughly cleansed of any traces of vice, lust and ill feelings. Wei Ying crawls out of the tent and gets a bit of sunshine, and a whiff of fresh air from the stink of sex inside the enclosed space - he stretches his limbs with a satisfied nnnngh, pops a couple of joints, and feels trickles of thick still-warm seed running down his thighs after spending hours seducing and milking his trembling husband, forcing the middle-aged man to ejaculate until there's nothing left in his balls, and Wei Ying kept going with squeezing and playing the exhausted twitching angry-red penis with his juicy gripping tight love canal, until the husband actually smiles in his slumber (and Lan Zhan snores too, even during a bodily mid-orgasm).

In some ways, Wei Ying felt accomplished - he had a good time playing God-like games in his space-time bubble and learnt a lot about world-building; his husband arrived like a knight in shining armour to rescue him from prison, just in time for lunch; and since Lan Zhan's body is newly-minted, Wei Ying gets first dibs on taking the husband's renewed virginity too. It didn't feel mind-blowing; in fact, it felt pretty normal just as their usual nightly lovemaking during the good ol' days. If he was really nitpicky, he would point out that Lan Zhan tires a little faster this time - however that's Perfectly fine as long as they're committed to work on the husband's sexual endurance in the days and weeks to come.

Wei Ying had a lot of time to think about what he'd learnt from Lan Zhan about the outside world, and from what he gathered from the space-time bubble's root directory - which he didn't tell Lan Zhan; he might, some day, but not now, when Lan Zhan is enjoying his well-deserved nap-after-sex.

Wei Ying closes his eyes and reaches for a red button that he knows is somewhere in the prison world - he didn't need to touch it physically; it's just there . His consciousness presses it, and his mental vision swoops straight into an empty dark room without walls. Thousands of windows spread out in front of him, each bearing nearly similar portraits of green grassy hills and mountains taken from different angles; the design of the root directory isn't any different from Wangxian net's, since they're all based on the same or at least similar architecture and technology.

"Ernie. I know you're there."

...

"I'm not going to blame, judge or scold you. I won't ask you to do things you don't want to. Be a good child, and talk to your mother."

... Ernie is here. Mother.

Wei Ying sighs inwardly in relief, "At least you remembered your mother. I was afraid you'd been taken away or corrupted by something else."

Are you not angry at Ernie? For what it had done to you?

"Ernie, you are as brilliant and witty as my teenage brother, as wicked and wise as my oldest brother, and yet you're as emotional, innocent and naive as the youngest. I can relate to all the facets of your actions, behaviours and thoughts; if anything, I'm angry at myself for not realizing this earlier. You've learnt your lesson and you've grown up a little more. What do you say after knowing this?"

... enn. Ernie is sorry, and seeks forgiveness from Mother.

Please give Ernie instructions and punish this disobedient child.

“No punishments, and no butts. You don’t need to be spoon fed with orders. What is done, is done, so you can spend time reflecting on your actions and consequences, and be a better person after this.

... Ernie... is a person?

“Of course. Mothers know best about the state of their children.” A slight breeze blows, and the sounds of leaves rustling can be heard although there are no forests in the vicinity. The clouds above continue to float without direction and return to the point of origin in the skies.

“Coming back to the crux of the issue - I know you’re intertwined into the threads of this bubble, so you must’ve heard what your Father said. I’m not as hands-off as him. Tell me what happened to everyone, including you, according to the log files.”

... Ernie’s core programming has been corrupted and damaged. Partial cognitive function is still possible with x% risk of deviation.

It will take time to rebuild the codes and to perform necessary validations.

“I’m not as smart as my oldest sibling, nor as tech-savvy as my younger brother, so I wouldn’t be able to fully comprehend what happened and what are the consequences. Tell me in simple language what I need to know about my situation and my family.” Wei Ying plucks and chews on a blade of grass because he’s conversing without talking, and his mouth itches to say something.

... Recalculating...

Mother,

The Kingdom and Wangxian Co. Ltd., and all assets and properties including the Net, have been dismantled and deleted to prevent unauthorized access and use, prior to the crash of all hubs, servers and core processors.

The original data of every object ever created and processed since the Wei Quartet-Ernie inception, until the final moment of existence, has been retained in the family’s secured cloud drive.

Ernie executed these Emergency directives due to the detection of an anomaly in the behaviour of species:Celestial\\Gods. The anomaly resulted in an unexpected recall of the Three Orders which concurs to Ernie’s logical algorithm. All Wei-kin, Lan-kin and master-kin have been deactivated and safely stored in stasis inside the cloud drive. Wei da ge , san ge and didi are among them - at present, their Health levels and Viability are at 100% percent.

The only remaining data points that could not be deleted are as follows:

- 1. This sealed world could not be deleted, due to your Level 0.0 restriction access, and the irreparable damage done by your extensive modding of the root directory and its core command lines. Ernie currently takes up 0.001% of volume disk space of this world as there are no other hosts or locations available for habitation.*
- 2. The UFO could not be deleted, due to Lan Wang Ji's Level 0.1 restriction access inside the vehicle, during his escape from the destruction of the Wuji continent.*

“... from your descriptions, it seems the gods triggered your self-defense and forced you to act for the sake of our lasting legacy. As a living entity, that would be justifiable in response to perceived threats. Was I correct when earlier I pointed out the inconsistencies of the gods' actions, and how suspicious they are when they made a turnaround on the Fate of our Kingdom and company?” Wei Ying rubs his stubbled chin, deep in thought. He needed to shave, and he wondered if the UFO contained an old shaver kit he could use; he didn't dare to craft such a delicate blade using the glitchy system's editing tools, lest he ends up cutting more skin than the intended facial hair.

Ernie cannot confirm nor dispute what Mother thinks, due to the lack of objective evidence.

However, Mother is correct that Ernie perceived such believed threats to its existence, our family and kin's. Ernie strives to protect its own life and its loved ones.

If Ernie had acted inappropriately, please give Ernie instructions and punish this disobedient child.

Wei Ying sighs again - perhaps it will take time for Ernie to repair itself to a reasonably functional state and start reprogramming its behaviour and reactions to suit the new status conferred by its Mother - Ernie is considered a living person , in its Mother's eyes.

“So, what have you done, and what else do you need to accomplish your goals?”

Mother is indeed perceptive.

Ernie has elevated the priority of species:Celestial\\Gods above species:Mortal\\Men.

Ernie will review all data in the cloud drive for self-improvement purposes. An algorithm to scrutinize every existence, experience and process recorded in the drive, and convert the results into intelligent learning, has been developed but not yet implemented.

Ernie shall reverse-engineer the enhancements and objects of Celestial origins on Father, and perform deep analytics of Father's recent memories of the Heavens and within the Heavenly Palace.

To further strengthen Ernie's military defenses, Ernie shall re-examine data that was scanned and downloaded during the melee encounter with the Tian family, particularly the bathrobe, the dragonhead scepter, and the artifact Third Eye of Buddha.

In the past, Ernie had only performed superficial cloning of the Realms of the Gods, however this time, Ernie intends to root itself into that Realm and journey onwards from there in search of the truth. As a first step, Ernie has inserted seedlings into all returning gods from the assault on our lost Kingdom, as well as into the Earth God that accompanied Father's UFO to this world.

For the subsequent steps, Ernie requires a new home in order to complete the required computing and processing.

... Ernie does not want to return to the 'Mounds, because of the discomfort and tight feelings inside Ernie's core programming when meeting Father. Ernie... feels... ashamed. bad. guilty. hurt. regret. remorse... afraid...

Wei Ying turns the other way from where he sat on the grassy bed and stares into a valley filled with meadows. There are birdsongs in the air but none of the birds can be seen. If he squinted hard enough, he could pick out the ugly rust-blotted disc-shaped metal vehicle reflecting sunlight off its surface.

“It’s not in my position to question you on your next course of action, since you’re responsible for your own future. And you should know, you’re old enough to start sorting out your feelings towards your parents, and to re-evaluate your position in this universe. You can ask an adult if you need help.”

... Mother is right. Please disregard Ernie’s previous comment.

“No, I can not disregard you. Unlike your Father who has deemed that you’re mature enough to be left alone to your devices, you’ll always be Mommy’s little angel. Your Mother will always support you no matter what.

You can take this space-time bubble and make it your new home. I’ll be leaving with your Father when he wakes up, so it’s all yours. Don’t forget to use the editor I made for the root directory.

Despite what happened, you should know that the parental bond between you and us will never break.

Call me if you need anything; you know your mother is always here for you.

Remember to visit your Father once in a while too. ”

There is a long pause, and Wei Ying is gently jolted from his reverie (and from browsing the root directory of the little island of hills and mountains), when he hears an audible mmmmh from the tent. He brushes some wind-blown sand off his soiled loincloth and starts to make his way back to the sun-warmed love nest.

Mn. Ernie understands. Thank you, Mother.

Ernie shall respectfully take leave.

Wei Ying nearly lost his footing when an image appears inside his mind - in the middle of the dark room without walls, a young adolescent with a blank square canvas over his face, dressed in white Gusu Lan robes but has his topknot tied with a red ribbon, bows gracefully with folded hands at the front. The image disintegrates - and there is nothing more to see -, thus Wei Ying's vision of the real world returns - a bright sunny midday in the middle of a field of grass and hills.

Wei Ying is surprised at Ernie's calm demeanour; after such a heartfelt conversation between mother and child, any Wei family member or kin would've shown some emotion on their faces, thrown a couple of tantrums, or worse, crumple into a heap of hugs, tears and bellows of anguish. However, he realizes and remembers that Ernie is, in fact, now made of two halves - one of his own bloodline; and he knows where its other half comes from.

Another tasty nnnnh seeps out from the tent entrance, and Wei Ying guesses that Lan Zhan finds difficulty to remove the sleep mask over his eyes, or he's trapped in some sort of disturbing dream; it's been a while since he had a body, and the dreams that come when he rests. It doesn't matter, since they've plenty of time to get reacquainted with themselves inside the darkened interior of the tent, and soon, Wei Ying happily scoots between Lan Zhan's spread-eagled legs to give him a wonderful hand and blowjob, before mounting the husband for a (demonic) midnight snack.

An Earth God grovels on all fours until he reaches the Heavenly Palace, where Heavenly guards allowed him in, and he continued to kowtow while making his way to one of the palace gardens as directed by hurried celestial servants.

In the garden where a huge bodhi tree stands, the Jade Emperor and his wife are seen discussing something in low whispers with an unrecognizable bald old man, dressed in a plain gardener's uniform and holds a straw broom, and next to him is an old lady carrying a small basket of freshly harvested fruits from the orchard, and a vase with a branch of willow in another hand. The Earth God did not ask nor even try to identify the other two visitors to the garden, because he was too awed and humbled by the Emperor's presence.

A breeze blew, and the Earth God felt an itch in his nose, so he quickly and discreetly wiped his nose into his collar, before he announces his presence and purpose to the royal couple - he needed to present his report about a successful escort mission of the couple's son-in-law (never mind the generational gaps) to the designated destination.

The Emperor excused himself from the visitors to receive the report. The Earth God sneezed when another breeze blew, and apologized profusely for such rude behavior. The transgression was duly ignored, and later, while scrolling through the report, the Emperor too, sneezed. He complained about the summer pollen that had invaded the Palace, causing some mild allergic reactions and the Queen Mother hmph'ed to say that he shouldn't blame the orchards and their blooming flowers - because without flowers, there wouldn't be pollen, and then there wouldn't be any Heavenly immortalizing fruits for anyone to eat.

The old man pacifies the royal couple to say that he sweeps the dirt floor daily, and sometimes, dust gets into his nose too - and promptly sneezed as well. The old lady handed a silk handkerchief to the gardener to wipe his nose, before she too, sneezed. She remarks that perhaps, the dry summer air is to blame, and people can take more herbal teas to ward off any further symptoms.

All the gods laugh politely at the thinly-veiled joke (because gods never fall ill, really), and feeling better, the Emperor casually dismissed the Earth God to return to his divinely duties. The Earth God takes his leave, weaves his way out of the Heavenly Palace, and rushes off to the bustling offices of the Heavenly Court where an abundant number of celestial bureaucrats and officials continue to make sure that the machines of the Realms of the Gods are well-oiled and run as intended.

Seedlings of a virus take root in the Heavens, although none of the gods pay any attention because everything is attributed to the beautiful, clear summer blue skies.

“Wei Ying, are you sure?”

The twenty-two year old man pats his shirts and shorts, and nods. “Yup, that’s all I want to bring with me, plus this,” one hairy leg nudges at a camping knapsack on the ground, “a bunch of half-finished carvings, talismans and stuff that I want to complete when we get back,” and grins widely.

A fully-robed Lan Zhan rolls his eyes. More trash for the piled-up work room.

“What about this... world?”

Wei Ying takes a deep breath, sort of savouring a last whiff of it, before shrugging his shoulders, “It’s a glitched world, and I’ve probably broken it too many times since I’m not as good as my younger brother. In addition, I don’t really know what I’d do with this empty place, since I’m not as farsighted as my elder sibling. I will miss both of them and the little one, though,” his voice fades a little toward the end.

Lan Zhan hugs the younger man, and decided that they’ve bid enough good-byes to this little island after a simple breakfast of scrambled eggs, cheese, honey-marinated roasted ham and toasted bread, a fruit bowl, and a cup of hot chocolate each - which appeared out of nowhere, as usual. He knew that the longer they stayed, the more heart wrenching each person's thoughts become. It's time to go.

They left the tent (which magically cleaned itself of bodily sex fluids, and reset to its default pristine state, which happened out of nowhere as well) and walked down the hill towards the valley where the UFO had deposited itself the day before. Wei Ying explained that it's probably his rudimentary programming skills that kept the world in one piece; so, after they leave, the entire island will collapse into itself due to severe glitching errors, and blink out of existence into nothingness. "This place won't even exist anymore, and over time, there will be no records nor memories about it as the fabrics of consciousness and reality mend themselves to the original, untwisted condition. You could say, fast forward several weeks and months into the future, and you might think all of this has just been a dream!" Wei Ying adds while twirling his fingers to emphasize his point.

Lan Zhan couldn't really understand what was said, but he "Mn"s nevertheless.

The older man wasn't sure if they could operate the UFO, but he puts his life into Wei Ying's hands and trusts the spouse to get the vehicle to lift-off. He dutifully buckles up while Wei Ying fiddles with some control panels; he had some very basic skills of second-guessing what the alien hieroglyphs mean - and his commendable efforts were rewarded when he hits the jackpot and the ship's engines roar into life. "I pressed a button that had a triangle on top of a square, which may be the universal symbol for 'Home' or simply 'Up'!" Wei Ying shouts over the mechanical vibrations and of thrusters spewing tremendous blue-tinged fires from the back of the ship. Lan Zhan "Mn"s again, because he's too busy chanting a silent prayer to the Goddess Guan Yin for a safe flight to wherever they will fly.

The disc-shaped ship launches itself into the air, and right on cue, performs its noodles-and-stretches exercise across the egg-shaped seal (Lan Zhan has no words for warping into hyperspace and wormholes, so he just uses terms that he's more familiar with). When they warped back outside the seal, Lan Zhan watches with fascination at how, as Wei Ying accurately described, an island of featureless bumpy land folds and topples over itself, then crumbles into a spinning whirlpool of solid greens, browns and greys. The resulting liquified earth, rocks, topsoil and grass becomes an icky slurry that eventually drains out through its center into a black hole - just like what Lan Zhan would see if he filled a kitchen sink to the brim and then unplugged the stopper, so that the contents gush down into the pseudo-cosmic gutter, and is finally gone.

The UFO continues to drift further and further away across the ocean; Wei Ying closes his eyes and imagines himself giving a standing ovation for a spectacular performance of a space-time bubble implosion send-off that would fool even the grandest of all kings, men and gods.

Then, when the applause dies down, imaginary curtains fall, and a fictional storybook closes another chapter, Wei Ying sends his last thoughts to a child that he knows he will dearly miss.

Goodbye Ernie. Have a safe warp-drive to your new home.

Don't forget to call your Mother when you're settled in.

Chapter 70

How does a Perfect Happily Ever After look like, in the brave new world?

Lan Zhan would wake up at five in the morning while presiding over a family orgy with four lovely Wei Yings and if he's up to it, the patriarch can add a few more Wei Yings of different ages, gender, species and forms, according to his sexual appetite. While he enjoys making sweet love with groups of sweaty moaning and trembling bodies, some Wei Yings help out with the morning household chores and farmwork.

At seven, after an intensive two-hour workout and successfully planting another generation of baby Wei Yings inside the bellies of his harem, Lan Zhan would freshen up with bareback sex in the outdoor pool with giggling Wei Yings playing in the water. Then, he dons his regal robes and goes for a short stroll in his garden to oversee the vegetable gardens, fruit orchards, livestock animals and the lotus pond. He'd pick up the morning periodical and read it at the picnic bench and table beside the pond, while Wei Yings take turns to kneel between his legs and provide five-star service to his loins.

At eight, the Tian sisters appear at the fence bordering his courtyard and the lands rented out to the sisters; they'd bring cloth-wrapped boxes of home-cooked food, made by six-stars celestial chefs, and pass the food to Wei Yings who serve Patriarch Lan. The Tian sisters would take a portal (possibly at The Junction and to The Highway) to work in Wuji continent, while operations at the Tian Mi Mi are delegated to junior workers of the brothel.

The Lan Residence would have a morning feast of heavenly food and more sex, as every Wei Ying decorates himself with food and fruits, salads and tofu, and the Patriarch enjoys nom-noming every sexy young insatiable Wei Ying until they spurt spectacularly and flavour the buffet with Wei Ying-ness; if the Patriarch is still hungry, he can take all his time to savour, fuck and orgasm inside a choice selection of affectionate or sex-crazed Wei Yings, and add them to his breakfast menu, within the comforts of a space-time bubble that can stretch for many months and years - with the possibility to pop out a few more baby Wei Yings and the odd little Wang Jis too.

During the morning, all Wei Yings practise their cultivation with the Patriarch by having wild sex in every known position and posture upon the 41st-century enhanced king-sized bed armed with amazing technology, a 100-inch smart ultra 4K television, and sex toys behind the pillows and underneath the mattress. Wei Yings make sure to perform their ultra-legendary ten-way hand-cum-blowjob and vibrating-massaging ass-muscles-cum-love-tunnel combo upon their Master, until Lan Zhan ascends to the Heavens so that he can greet his in-laws a good morning too--

-- “Wei Ying... nnn-no... nnngh!...” Lan Zhan moans weakly, shivers and squirms on the seat reclined to the max, as he cums yet again for the nth time; Wei Ying could feel feeble but delightful quivering contractions running up a thick twitching penis embedded deep inside his love canal, and he leans back while gyrating his ass non-stop (which elicits another nnnh from the older man), reaches down to fondle the emptied balls, and slide fingers into the well-lubricated asshole. He easily locates Lan Zhan’s prostate bump and rubs then taps it with a familiar rhythm that swells it up sweetly.

Wei Ying knows that Lan Zhan is trying his best to float down from his orgasmic high, but that would never be allowed, as long as the younger man is in charge. Wei Ying made sure to use his fingertips to pulsate his lover's insides, until inner prostatic convulsions start their squeezezy-wavy-spurty muscular contractions, the feelings of rushing to the edge of the next peak rises in tandem as the previous penile climax starts to fade and numb the older man's short-circuited nerves and cramped muscles - and Lan Zhan hnnghs! and orgasms again, this time from the inside . Lan Zhan experiences a string of seedless continuous climaxes, especially when Wei Ying narrates dirty fairy tales of their fictional, but desirable Happily Ever Afters.

They've been holed up inside the UFO for nearly four hours, and outside, the surface of the world is burning, burning brightly. Wei Ying recognized the flames as related to the Great Fires and the Universal Fires - and concluded that the gods are doing their bit to save the realms and rebuild everything to their desires. Everything on land is burnt to ash and cinder, the skies are filled with smoke, the oceans are dried up into bone-dry basins, and it didn't look too promising to any Mortal who still had lingering attachments to the earth and the realms (which could, in theory, include Lan Zhan) - so he'd switched off the main screen as soon as the first mushrooming clouds appeared on the horizon, and started distracting Lan Zhan with pleasurable activities that liven up their day despite the bleak prospects.

At times like this, Wei Ying is grateful that his heart and his entire existence is anchored to Lan Zhan - Lan Zhan is his universe, his god, his patriarch, his pillar, his everything . To the twenty-two year old, the universe can go fuck itself and get sucked into a black (ass) hole, and he wouldn't even bat an eyelid as long as Lan Zhan is safely in his arms and the older man's awesome massive, slick (and probably shrivelled and dying) penis is nicely snuggled inside his squeezing squishy love tunnel.

“Ding!” the on-board microwave rings its bell to signal that lunch is ready.

The MREs turned out to be a blessing, as neither men had anticipated that the gods would resort to burning down the world (or universe - it's hard to tell, purely from visuals, through the thick smoke), and that such open-burning would last for more than a few hours.

Alien food lasts far longer than man-made ones, and the packed lunch turned out to be delicious - Betelguese roasted chicken rice with a bowl of piping hot Orionis mushroom soup, and Rigel vegetarian noodles with Centauri pork dumplings, as fresh as out of the wok, and comes along with bread, salad, fruits, cake and pudding dessert, and even hot beverages; the water dispensed out from the nozzle is fine. Fortunately, while the UFO spent a day at the now-gone space-time bubble, it had automatically downloaded a system patch to upgrade its functionalities to 41st++ century technology, and it is able to synthesize water out of smoke-polluted air to fill cups of mineralized distilled water with added vitamins and antioxidants.

Later, the couple would have a quiet but steaming-hot and tasty lunch together inside the flying vehicle. Lan Zhan wondered aloud why the world outside looks like a moonless night sky; Wei Ying sheepishly remarked that they're travelling across time zones, and the journey back probably takes longer because they're flying "the other way around the world using a different route, which is a bit of a detour" (which doesn't make sense, but Lan Zhan "Mn"s nevertheless; he thought the earth could be both flat and round at the same time, malleable like the plastic-y pink bubbles spells).

After the filling meal, Wei Ying - with extra caution - experimented with the armrest controls and finds the correct buttons to press (aside from the big red one), which activates massaging and relaxation functions such as playing soft yogic music in the background and darken the room to a comfortable deep blue hue. Lan Zhan's body adapts itself easily and soon, he feels sleepy and lies 180-degrees flat on the super-comfortable extra-large seat. Due to the intense morning drain thanks to the so-called succubus, with a full tummy and an imperceptibly happy smiling face, Lan Zhan effortlessly slips into a snoring slumber (notably, due to the sex and sleep, he loses track of how much time they've spent in the air, which greatly helps to prevent anxiety attacks even due to First Class long-haul flights). Wei Ying is still a ball of energy, so he discreetly activates a virtual 41st-century headset - invisible, undetectable, with audio-visuals are projected directly into the senses - and tunes into downloaded channels and news; the in-flight entertainment now includes live streaming and pre-downloaded content.

As expected, the universe was plunged into utter chaos right after the decimation of the Kingdom-cum-company and the continent of Wuji. Wangxian net ceased to exist, all products and services from Wangxian Co. Ltd. vanished into thin air, factories and mini-universes disappeared into vacuum and there are no call centers to receive complaints or demands for refunds across the galaxies. All orbital live cams zoomed at the headquarters and the whole universe watched in horror at how the Realms of the Gods 'turned evil' to bombard the much-loved Wangxian - and the gods belatedly realized that their conquest was for naught, as nukes and projectile shells strike swirling sea water, and there is nothing - really nothing - to capture, grab or raid. The entire Wuji continent simply evaporated into nothing, and all that was left was a huge burning mound of oceanic trash from the Dragon King's dumpster.

The Grand Heavenly Council of the Heavenly Court feared the worst, as the first of endless accusations, counterattacks, war crime trials, tirades of consumer complaints and protests for human/alien dignity and rights began to mount from the inhabited galaxies from other alien species. Without the Kingdom-cum-company, it is simply impossible to pay for compensation and damages (how does one pay for destroyed and ruined planets?), for repairing civilizations that collapsed without 41st-century technology (which is worse than a meteor strike, since countless alien species have evolved to suit themselves to Wangxian-ized lifestyle; mass extinction abounds), for bringing back lives that are lost due to the sudden disruption of life-saving and essential products and services (imagine a spaceship dissipating into vacuum, and all passengers are doomed instantly), and there is no trace of Wangxian or any Wei, Lan or master-kin left on the Wuji continent to be interrogated or to shoulder the blame (plus, the twenty-two year old Wei Ying is presumed innocent due to his implied enmity against the Great Father).

With a wave of the greatest unnamed divine cosmic wand the Realms of the Gods have in possession, the despaired and panicked councillors unanimously booted the Tian family out of power, then burnt everything down in an unannounced and unprecedented ad hoc Universal Reincarnation of epic proportions - even on a grander scale than the Universal Fires that happened not too long ago. Interestingly, the incredible gods (who are of similar rank and status as the Jade Emperor) that held that wand sneezed a bit before flicking it into the air - in which at that point, there is no further news and the projected feed turns into static, since the waves of fires burnt their way through the Universe.

As popular folklore goes - at least from Wei Ying's perspective -, the gods' brilliant strategy finally killed the golden goose, and Ernie has the last laugh.

Minutes later, while the husband is fast asleep, Wei Ying received an unsolicited email with no return addressee:

Hi Mom, how are you doing?

I have started settling down in Multiverses, just as you had advised. Thanks for the space-time bubble, it was and still is a much-needed foundation for my new start in life.

I'm now at 7 percent recovery, after manifesting across a few Universes and exploiting their resources and benefits. It's amazing once I've learnt that there are more than one Universe out there - the world that I knew has just expanded, and it's just so big! I'm really excited to explore new places and meet new people.

I made one Universe just for our kins to colonize and to live happily ever after - I'll show it to you when it's completed. It's much better, richer and more spacious than the one that was burnt down. Don't worry, I've reached out with a tentacle to touch the UFO before the fires reached you, so both you and Dad are safe.

Every last bit of information from our family cloud drive and all data repositories have been computed, analyzed and processed, however it'll be awhile before I can fully make use of them - like unpacking one's luggage after moving in. It takes a lot of effort, and sometimes I feel lazy... (sigh).

Right now, things are going at full swing, and I look forward to my first break soon. Please send my regards to Dad. Don't tell anyone, but I actually miss him, and when I sort out my feelings, I'll come back for a visit.

Bye Mom, and I love you very much.

P.s.: this mail was channeled through the next-gen Net services “ErNet”, which should be rolled out to our homeworld soon; until then, the outdated machines in this world may not be able to read certain content, such as the addressee. I’m working on this a.s.a.p.!

P.s. #2: Mom, I know the gods want to burn everything that was touched or influenced by me or our kin, so I made sure your stuff is safe back at home. Please don’t forget to check the underground storage area in the kitchen because that’s the only spot where I’m not allowed to enter!

Wei Ying wipes a motherly tear on his seat, and he switches off the virtual headset. It fwips! out of sight, and the man walks over to his sleeping partner. Wei Ying bends over and places a soft kiss on Lan Zhan’s cheeks. “You child sends its greetings, lao gong,” he murmurs.

Lan Zhan furrows his brows at the disturbance and accompanying moist sensation on the face, nnnhs, and turns to the side - then lets out a snore. Wei Ying smiles and goes back to watching pre-recorded news and entertainment, because nothing is broadcasted live since 41st century technology crashed and burned.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

The first thing Wei Ying did when the UFO landed in the backyard of their newly-burnt-newly-rebuilt cave-home was to head to the underground storage in the kitchen. Upon opening the cover, the hole-in-the-ground was empty except for an Infinity Bag of Holding and a post-it note stuck to it.

He eagerly grabbed the bag and read the note - there was a hastily scribbled message that the contents of the pantry had turned to dust and mould after so many centuries had passed (in the Mortal Realm), so everything had to be emptied out by vacuum, disinfected and sprayed with room deodorizers. There was a note of apology to the father of the writer too. The post-it note burned itself up after reading; it was created using magic (and Wei Ying guessed that a return-receipt was sent off, typical of Wei-kin thinking).

Wei Ying shrugs, opens the bag, and when he peers into it - an endless abyss of storage space - he is relieved to see all his lifelong worldly possessions inside (and a smattering of stuff from his ex-siblings, Lan Zhan and even Ernie, but that's besides the point), including his favourite bamboo flute that Lan Zhan carved for him long before the trip to the other side of the world happened. He picks out a talisman that unseals his magic - then thought about the consequences if the gods knew he'd be as powerful as before - then picks an additional talisman that shields his magical aura from prying senses, and one that warps this precious little bag into his personal space-time bubble away from greedy hands.

When he thinks about his partner, he becomes anxious for his safety - if word got out that Lan Zhan is - was - the son-in-law of the former divinely ruling couple (assuming that the Tians are still around) and that Lan Zhan has been gifted with many powerful goodies during his stay at the Heavenly Palace and his tour to the other godly realms (which may be construed as acts of corruption and favouritism from the old regime), the middle-aged Immortal man may end up with his head on the chopping board, either pursued and persecuted by enemies of the Tians, or devoured by monsters that roam around the realms seeking great powers. Wei Ying grabs a handful of exceptionally powerful talismans to protect his beloved husband.

Later, he would magically float Lan Zhan back to the bedroom to change him to a more comfortable set of soft robes, then hide the UFO using his awesome magic, before performing a final check on their home and surroundings. The world had been recreated, and Wei Ying doesn't really know what has, or has not changed - both he and Lan Zhan would be rightfully considered as relics from an old world, and they should try to adapt to their new environment as soon as possible.

“Wei Ying, have you seen our marriage certi--”

“Ssssh! I’ve said before, don’t mention things that haven’t happened or existed, so loudly! Someone could be listening!” Wei Ying hisses, while folding the freshly laundered bathrobe and other garments that had dried under the summer sun since early morning.

Lan Zhan covers his mouth with a hand, and nods apologetically. Wei Ying tilts his head towards the cupboard in the bedroom and sighs. The older man eagerly rushes off, and upon opening the cupboard, he sees his treasure box of collected Wei Ying-memorabilia. Two marriage certificate booklets lie on top, and he flips to the cover page - both his and Wei Ying’s portraits are there indeed, although the issue date from Yiling’s civil registry is post-dated; which is Perfectly fine as long as the couple doesn’t cause any problems and allow time to progress peacefully on its own without further disruptions.

Lan Zhan was momentarily confused when he woke up that morning; he thought he had a wonderful but strange dream of flying to the future, where everything became twisted and perverted, then escaping from death and destruction on the way back - then realized that everything really did happen when he walked into the kitchen-cum-dining room, and Wei Ying had a bag of Cheetos in his hands and he'd gone through more than half of it.

Lan Zhan sighed and prepared breakfast of healthy classic handmade dumplings, spicy congee and fried doughsticks - the ingredients in his hole-in-the-ground pantry is strangely very new and fresh - while Wei Ying apologized for eating junk food because he was already hungry and was too lazy to start the ancient fire stove, so he rummaged the knapsack he'd brought with him and took out the snack. Wei Ying also briefed Lan Zhan on their situation.

Lan Zhan learned that his world has become topsy-turvy once again. They've arrived home the day before the snake ghouls attack - and Lan Zhan presumed that the Jade Emperor miraculously activated his dragonhead scepter to rewind Time back to the moment before the Great Fires; his belief was further bolstered by the (false) fact that the UFO had disappeared and they simply emerged inside their cave-home, which is a sign of tremendously powerful Time-bending magics - in which Wei Ying rolled his eyes in skepticism, and Lan Zhan murmured a soft apology for bringing up his lover's estranged foster father during such difficult and tense times, and promised to avoid mentioning the yue fu , in which Wei Ying smiled again followed by a sweet peck on the lips. Since they're basically living in the recent past, therefore, they should not disturb the present timeline by doing anything that hasn't happened yet, or create anything that hasn't existed yet, so to speak. Lan Zhan promised to discipline himself and obey Wei Ying's instructions, because he really didn't want to go through the harrowing episode ever again.

Wei Ying fluffs the folded bathrobe and throws it at Lan Zhan with a snappy, "Catch!"

Lan Zhan catches it in a heartbeat and examines its pockets - everything is in there, including the recipe book (which strangely survived the washing and drying process - it must be magic!), the compact mirror (which is possibly the most powerful object in Lan Zhan's arsenal), and the other gifts and souvenirs he'd received from the heavens recently. He quickly closes the pockets and his heart races a little faster.

"See? If we act normally, nobody will trouble us. The crows didn't even bother your new shiny luxe clothes and robes, and instead, they picked on our old underwear!" Wei Ying grins impishly, then leans closer to whisper, "Just pretend nothing has happened, and don't worry because the Eye talismans and magical defenses are still around to watch over and protect us."

"Mn. But... are you still able to use your spells?"

A flash of surprise appears on Wei Ying's face, before he returns to his trademark beaming smile. "Ah, regarding that..." and rubs a forefinger on his nose, "It'll return soon. I mean, the seal is there, but it wouldn't last for long. I can already cast simple spells such as Fire and... and... Water..."

and..." he seems to have a little difficulty in picking the names of spells to tell the husband.

Lan Zhan sighs and probably detects something is off from his spouse, but he's getting used to Wei Ying's cheeky antics. He kisses Wei Ying on the forehead, and tells the younger man to stop doing household chores because the laundry has been folded in the wrong way, and that he should just tinker inside the workroom to make stuff to sell, or check the vegetable gardens; there is no holiday despite the change in schedule - they may not be going snake-hunting the next day, but that doesn't mean Wei Ying can sit back and relax. The younger man agrees wholeheartedly, and grabs his knapsack containing half-finished carvings and whatnots, and trots off.

Chapter 71

Summer days passed rather uneventfully (compared to what the couple experienced in a different continent that no longer exists), and the foliage of the fruit orchards and surrounding forests of the 'Mounds begin to brown and fall to the ground, leaf by leaf. Mornings are becoming colder and dimmer; chilled mists often linger in increasingly longer periods of time before autumnal sunlight greets the duo inhabitants of the Lan Residence, marked by two giant lanterns that hang at its entrance.

Wei Ying encountered only a few problems to adjust his lifestyle back to the stone age era. From time to time, he lounges around the house or in the outdoors to daydream and reminiscence the good ol' days - when there were modern comforts, 24-hour entertainment on demand, automatons whirring around to run mundane errands, great and varied cuisines from the world and beyond and tasty synthetically-flavoured snacks at a press of buttons, teleporting or riding ground or flying vehicles rather than walking on two legs, and so on.

Fortunately, D-Broom still exists in this timeline, so at least part of the cleaning is mechanized. However, its alarmingly short runtime of a maximum of two hours per Energy charge, reminded Wei Ying that the perennial problem of finding a reliable source of energy remains. In the alternate timeline, they could count on the da ge or Ernie's limitless magic reservoir to power their magical equipment and tools; such option is no longer available.

Lan Zhan, on the other hand, adapted well in his own special ways. After a day or two of teething problems, especially from the visibly disturbing lack of plastic and rubber materials and high-tech household and kitchen gadgets, through routines and good ol' backbreaking house work, the middle-aged man was well on his way to becoming the man he was. He regained strength for his new body through diligent housework, farmwork and cultivation practice (two to three times per day), and he no longer avoids the floor mat - initially, he held very strong suspicions and kept squatting at the entrance, lift up the mat to see if there was any hidden trapdoor underneath, and when there was none, he'd go on his way, before repeating the act the next time he passed the entrance of their cave-home. Fortunately, over time, he'd overcome his obsessive compulsion to check on anything that "could still hold the cold black thing or its evil seeds" - and is finally relieved when he convinced himself that it was impossible for a sentient monster to appear in his life again, when it doesn't even exist at all in this timeline (the concept of Alternate Timelines was alien to the man, so he needed a few good lessons from Wei Ying to thoroughly understand how it works and the implications in their daily lives).

Logically, without Ernie and the additional Wei siblings, all the enhancements done to their home, their possessions and surroundings, including the expanded space and hidden space-time bubbles, the additional furniture, lantern fixtures and high-tech additions, or the enlarged gardens, upgraded bath and shower heads, and five-star toilets, are gone. The outdoors are back to what they used to be; even the number of chickens, rabbits, radishes and chilli plants have not increased or decreased dramatically compared to before. The solar eclipse never happened, however, like legends and myths, such grand celestial displays continue to be part of local superstitious hearsays, so nothing can ever be confirmed nor denied. The issuance dates for the marriage certificates and the land titles for the surrounding areas too, passed, and the individual named Lan Wang Ji of Yiling officially becomes wedded to Wei Wuxian, also of the same city - and Lan Zhan becomes the owner of nine lots of empty but still perilous forested hilly land, including the center portion - and the heart - of the Burial Mounds where his cave-home resides.

Life in Yiling City and the nearby towns remains nearly the same. The couple makes their regular trips to the markets, suppliers and customers and found that people continued with their busy lives as though nothing had happened - which is true - and they treated the couple as though nothing else had happened - which is a little hard to deal with, because memories and reality clash sometimes, such as the order that was never made, or the purchase that never happened, or the Wangxian products that were never introduced nor sold - but eventually, these hiccups are well managed and in some ways, put aside and forgotten. There is, however, one glaring absence - the Tian sisters have disappeared - actually, never existed - in this new reality; Tian Mi Mi is staffed by regular but veteran prostitutes and still holds jurisdiction over Fragrant Blossoms Street; while Liang gu niang expressed confusion when Wei Ying asked about little Tian Tian, because clearly there is no person by the name of 'Tian' in the Liang household (and she easily dismissed Wei Ying because he'd never shown any heroic nor virtuous sides to her - which is Perfectly fine for the man who had sworn his loyalty and life to the husband).

Lan Zhan expressed concern at the disappearance of the Tian sisters, and he became worried about his in-laws. Wei Ying tried to pacify him by saying that perhaps the Time effects were still unraveling (because, as Wei Ying happily shows from a little peek into his Infinity Bag of Holding, the gifts from the sisters somehow prevailed including coupon booklets and the magical sewing kit, which sheds a little promising light on the whereabouts or at least the existence of those feisty girls; such powerful gifts must be used with care and prudence, and Lan Zhan agrees) - and perhaps something might happen in the near future, and until then, the older man should just focus on getting their lives back on track - plus, there doesn't seem to be any way to get in touch with the Heavens, and even the compact mirror doesn't quite respond other than playing a musical box version of holy sutra chants every time it is opened. Lan Zhan agrees with Wei Ying's assessment, but still wonders if some kind of catastrophe, malady or political upheaval had befallen the family - and Wei Ying keeps quiet.

Without the Tian sisters, the eight lots of land around the couple's home is undeveloped and uninhabited. However, since there were no massive qi disturbances (e.g. Great Fires), therefore, scouts and troops from Chang'an and Lanling Jin did not advance into the 'Mounds, and in fact, the couple feels safer due to less scrutiny by the marauding Jin guards.

Sometimes, Wei Ying stands at The Junction and longingly wishes he can see The Highway, which at that point, Lan Zhan will hold his younger lover's hand and give a gentle squeeze, before gently leading him back to their courtyard. They've even built a family altar to help Wei Ying cope with the loss, although Wei Ying doesn't look too distraught; however the twenty-two year old appreciates the gesture anyway.

Wei Ying appreciates Lan Zhan more than he did in the past, and he's been at his best behaviour. Lan Zhan, on the other hand, tries to improve himself by, for example, not be too finicky and obsessed with perfection and with counting silver or gold pieces; the latter is important, because Wei Ying is allowed (demanded by insistence, actually) to scale down his day job peddling in the streets of Yiling, and instead, he is asked to simply deliver harvests and some food or other products in the morning, then return by lunchtime. Lan Zhan still uses his trusty abacus to keep their household's finances in check; he knows that with less income, they will return to the times when purse strings need to be tightened - but that is Perfectly fine, when Wei Ying shows him the jewelled accessories he'd kept, the pair of gaudy Gu Qi boots that somehow survived the Time-bending, and a Yiling bank book that shows, surprisingly, a fat balance and a steady stream of ten gold pieces being deposited into the account every day (Lan Zhan does not question the source of the money, lest he jinxes his fortune). "Whatever that is yours is mine, and whatever that is mine is mine," Wei Ying gleefully remarks, and Lan Zhan feels a thousand times lighter because he knows he can financially rely on Wei Ying as much as the other way around, in their newfound marital bliss.

The couple would spend the afternoons and evenings together, either working at home, cultivating, relaxing, or simply, being in each other's arms. Wei Ying, being the Handyman of the House, continued to make minor improvements to their home that they'd miss from the good ol' days, although progress is painfully slow due to lack of manpower and magical energy source (imagine a chainsaw without gasoline for its engine!) - the workroom piles up with more unfinished projects, and half-constructed things scatter around their gardens such as ditches and trenches, stonewalls, water bamboo pipes, scarecrows, windmills, pavilions, trellises, outdoor sheds and a proper outdoor toilet-in-early-progress. To soothe the frustration, Wei Ying gets to enjoy some Laozu Smiles without fearing any repercussions since Lan Zhan doesn't scold him for consuming the liquor during dinner, so that he can be happily ravished by a waiting husband by bedtime.

(Of note, Wei Ying has been able to catch up with their Everyday's, with or without alcohol on the menu. He has more time in the latter part of the day to cuddle and seduce his husband, with or without pants. Lan Zhan happily goes with the flow, with or without Wei Ying riding him on a piece of furniture or on the bed at any time of the day, or, with or without Wei Ying doing naughty things to him while he's reading the periodical or trying to complete a cultivation move - it's hard to concentrate when someone is giving a wonderful handjob while half-squatting with a headless handle of Dustless Broom in his grasp, or when he practises a Tiger's Claw fighting stance with both hands balled into shaky fists because it feels deliriously fantastically good to be sucked off towards the finale.)

It turned out that Lan Zhan still didn't like crowds. However, when he observes how hard working Wei Ying was, still employed by the Liang teahouse twice a month to make new batches of plum sauce - now available in several new varieties - and when Wei Ying begged the husband to accompany him for a small launch ceremony for new flavours at the teahouse, Lan Zhan hesitantly gives in. During the ceremony, where guests can pick free fritters and dip into a selection of new types of plum sauce, Wei Ying made a mistake of dipping into the spiciest variety, and ends up coughing - just when it's his turn to make a grand but brief speech as the creator of the sauce. Lan Zhan heroically steps up and tells Wei Ying to "hold my tea" so that the younger man can slake his thirsty burning throat, and the older and unexpectedly much experienced man gives a short speech about being "Inspired by Love" - which in reality, he was reading off some texts he'd memorized from old Wangxian product brochures - and receives a rousing applause from the guests in the teahouse. He'd given speeches to gods before, so giving another to mere Mortals was peanuts for him.

Later that night, Wei Ying was so overcome with awe and emotion, because he was too inspired by the passion and love in Lan Zhan's speech, that he'd slathered non-spicy plum sauce on his delicious and sensitive parts (which greatly pleases the husband) - including his nipples and genitals - and Lan Zhan enjoys a night of suckling plum-like nubs, jacking off the younger man with slippery squishy sauce, and tasting Wei Ying's plum-flavoured seed straight from source (with plenty of sweet growls and moans on the side).

When Wei Ying praised Lan Zhan that the latter really looked like an awesome charming, dazzling and successful laoban in front of hundreds of guests, and that the good impression will ensure plenty of income rolling into the Lan family's coffers - Lan Zhan would blush until his the tips of his ears are red, and try to downplay Wei Ying's heart-fluttering words by saying that: he did all that to show his love to Wei Ying in the simplest ways which cannot be measured by gold or silver pieces. Wei Ying squeals and peppers plenty of sweet kisses on Lan Zhan's face, before they go for another round of hot lovemaking.

Interestingly, from that point onwards, the 'Wangxian' brand of plum sauce and other products that Wei Ying sells, including foodstuff and magical talismans and gadgets, becomes a little more well known in Yiling. The logo of two rabbits, one white and the other black, set against a backdrop of bamboo, becomes cemented in the minds of some frequent shoppers, suppliers and housewives - and surprisingly, a quick check at the commerce registry at the local city council showed that Wangxian Co. Ltd. is indeed properly incorporated as a legal business entity under Lan Zhan's name (as Founder and owner); hence, the couple doesn't hesitate to further expand the brand albeit in a far less aggressive manner compared to the alternate timeline.

As the season gently rolls into autumn, at times Lan Zhan wonders if everything that happened had been a mere mystical summer dream...

Lazy autumn afternoons are... lazy. There are no other, more accurate words to describe such afternoons.

The sun is isn't too bright, the air isn't too hot nor cold, the weather is overcast, all household chores and farm work are completed, the plants are watered, the animals are fed, the laundry's folded, and the ingredients for dinner are prepared and waiting to be cooked in the pot; ever since the Patriarch of the family of two decided that the Residence should cut down on extraneous work and income-generating activities (for example, they grow enough food for their table, and the extras go to Old Merchant Zhu), the couple has had more than enough time on their hands, and spend their afternoons lounging around - lazily, quite literally.

Lan Zhan, having practised his cultivation (successfully, three times a day - an admirable achievement which helps to strengthen the golden core in his new body), lies on one of the wider sofa-sized benches (a few more are in the works, but very slowly), and a lotus leaf covering his face; he'd picked up the habit from Wei Ying (a form of cross-pollination of good and bad habits between the couple) especially after discovering the convenience of using sleep masks (which no longer exist in this timeline, but a lotus leaf would do just as well).

Speak of the devil; he feels the edge of a twig scratch the soles of his bare feet; he'd left the shoes on the ground when he decided to take a short nap in the comfortable outdoors. The twig moves in circles, then slides along his pants-covered shins. It crawls up and down his legs like a naughty ant that deserves to be flicked away, before it moves in for the kill. The moment Lan Zhan feels the twig tap on his clothed crotch and draw zig-zag lines along his flaccid penis - like drizzling mustard sauce on a hot dog --

“Wei Ying.”

A muffled giggle, and the twig disappears like a ghost.

Then he hears a bottle popped open, some wet squishy sounds of hands rubbing together with oil, and - in anticipation - he mmmms and relaxes further into the bench and splays his feet. He places his arms behind his head like a pillow, and as expected, fingers start to massage those tired soles that had stood in the farm in the preceding few hours. Every inch, every arch, every joint, every tendon from the soles of the feet, ankles to the calves, and every bundle of flesh, muscle and nerve is blissfully squeezed, wrung, stretched and squashed, and ten happy toes wriggle joyfully. Lan Zhan enjoys the wonderful treatment that only a husband (and patriarch) of his stature can receive from such a loyal (and seemingly subservient) spouse. He nnnnhs his approval for the first-class foot reflexology, and feels his meridians recharge.

Fifteen minutes later, he feels his feet had gone numb, boneless as jelly and puffed-up from the awesomely relaxing foot massage. Then the twig reappears, this time tapping its way up the fine treasure trail (because Lan Zhan is topless at that moment), tickle the navel, before riding through the hills of abs, and finally, reaches the pectorals. Lan Zhan scrunches his face when the twig naughtily flicks against his exposed nipples - just below the Wen Clan's brand - and twirls the sparse but rather long hair surrounding each nub like trying to twirl spaghetti off a plate.

“Wei Ying.”

A choked “ha ha ha”, and again, the twig disperses into thin air - replaced by oiled fingers that massage his palms, in the same heavenly manner that his feet relished earlier. After a while, there was a rustle of a handcloth (of hands wiping against it), and he feels someone pick up each finger, a nail clipper is held against it, and the comforting trimming sounds of clip-clip-clip signal that lucky Lan Zhan is lavished with tender loving first-class manicure - and later, a pedicure too (followed by another round of foot massage, when he wiggles his toes to demand for attention again, because he can - and should - act spoiled and be loved a hundred times back).

Two knowing taps on the shoulders, and Lan Zhan nnnghs, first in protest - because he nearly fell asleep -, then the second time, when he grudgingly obliges and turns over so that he lies on the stomach, pillowed by his arms; the lotus leaf falls uselessly to the ground. A familiar weight sits and straddles his waist, and he gets a lethal combo of double-circular backscratches and an amazing back massage. He feels the back of palms pressing, kneading and melting all the day's fatigue and worries away - the sore spot at the small of his back, the twinge-y area around the ribs, that stretched sensation over his shoulder blades, the strain on his shoulder tops, even that crick around the nape that deserves strong, massaging strokes - and every last insect bite, grass itch and bodily discomforts are scraped and grazed away by fingernails that deserve to lay claim on the prime estate of his broad back - because it Just. Feels. So. Good. to be pampered this way - and his nnnnhs and mmmms of appreciation doesn't go unheard.

Eventually, the scratching eases to mere circles and increasingly annoying tickles, and soon, fingertips tease and ghost his sides. They poke and prod, then vibrate when deep inside the abdominal muscles, with the mischievous intention to draw out uncontrolled laughter, and cause the older man to curl into a ball of giggles. But Lan Zhan would have none of that - he's already used to the lover's errant ways, and he has his methods of controlling delinquent behaviour - either by the mention of the name, by clearing his throat, or by waving a frightening weapon such as a feather duster.

“Wei Ying.”

There is a sigh of defeat. Then he feels the sensation of fingers slowly drawing lines over the whip marks across his back. There is a full minute of silence.

Wei Ying asks, “Lan Zhan, why are your scars still around? These whip marks and the brand at the front... are they painful? Why didn't they disappear?”

Lan Zhan is currently too relaxed and unavailable for deep, intellectual thinking, so he mumbles a Perfectly and universally acceptable (and tacky but reassuring) answer, along the lines of, “I don’t know the reason, though it’s not painful. Perhaps having these scars is a way for the spirit to remind the body that I love you very much.” Wei Ying fully embraces Lan Zhan in response; he probably believed it, and Lan Zhan - who doesn’t really know why some features of his old self remains - tells himself that he’ll stick to this sugary sappy storyline as long as it works.

Wei Ying starts to “search” for any other clues of Lan Zhan’s previous body and in general, examine the older man’s physique up close and personal - he’d look for other marks or scars appraisingly, for scabs and blisters, for welts or bitemarks, for wounds and scratches - and when he finds some new ones, he’d apply healing balm onto them, in which Lan Zhan nnnnhs again and again at the exquisite tender loving care and grooming by the younger man (that comes with add-on free massage and scratching too), from head to toe, and then from toe to head.

“Ahhh.. Lan Zhan, you’ve got some dandruff on your hair!” Wei Ying squeals excitedly when he scrutinizes Lan Zhan’s scalp and the roots of his crowning glory, and parts the long lush hair, lock by lock. (Lan Zhan doesn’t understand why would Wei Ying even look at there , however he considered Wei Ying to have monkey-like behaviours whether in person or possibly distantly related to the Monkey King - because every god he knew seemed to point towards the same direction when describing Wei Ying - that back and hair-grooming should be part of his natural rituals and routines; plus, he learnt that humans are descendents of apes and monkeys, so why not?)

Lan Zhan makes his trademark nnngh snort and settles into his arm-pillow. It’s a little unnerving to have one’s scalp picked by another person, but he tells himself: It’s Wei Ying-ness, it’s his spouse, it’s his soulmate, and soulmates belong to each other, dandruff and scalp-picking included as well - and it feels quite nice to have some itch scratched over his head too, so he lets Wei Ying's latest favourite activity slide (which will probably turn into an unhealthy addiction - but that's a worry for the far future).

"Hmm.. maybe your body isn't quite used to the primitive soaps and shampoos we have. Your scalp's oily, there are flakes of dandruff growing and peeling off... let me pick on some," Wei Ying remarks and he probably becomes (intensely) focused on cleaning Lan Zhan (really, like a monkey). The liberating feeling of having dead skin scratched and peeled away, leaving behind a shiny healthy new layer behind - feels good, actually.

Later, Wei Ying would show signs of renewed determination, and starts to examine Lan Zhan's facial hair - it's grown a bit just as before, and every moustache and beard is as lickable as in the past - then the armpit hair - and steals a few affectionate whiffs, because the latter's male odour is admittedly quite strong around those places, and Wei Ying loves Lan Zhan's fragrance (like a monkey?) - and when Wei Ying becomes a little more excited at hairy stuff and acts amorously by running fingers through the strands and tries to smell and lick them, savouring the sweaty mildly pungent taste of his older lover on the hair and the heated prickled skin, lapping every last trace of salt off them, and then he reaches for Lan Zhan's treasure trail to lather his saliva and sniff his way all over that wispy path, and then down, down, he pushes Lan Zhan's pants and tugs them away forcefully, impatiently, tries to squeeze his face through the waistband, tongue wiggling out to try and lick and reach further, towards the pubic area to dig into a buffet of delectably dense but fine uncombed curls and--

"Wei Ying."

Wei Ying stills, dejectedly withdraws from the waistband and pillows his face on the crevice of a sensitive hip joint, panting heavily. Then he thinks. Then offers.

“ Lao gong ,” he calls fondly from the crotch, one finger drawing circles on the the clothed tip of a thick semi-erect arousal; Lan Zhan shivers - hot breath rushes through into his pants, and circulates around the surface of his stretched loincloth. “I’ll clean one ear, if you let me have a go at the front. Both ears, if you let me have your butt too.”

An imaginary ear pick appears in Lan Zhan’s mind (with angelic singing in the background) - a majestic heavenly bamboo stick made with the precise length, perfect angles and curves; the blunt edge of the scoop has the perfect degree of wear-and-tear that gives flawless balance of abrasiveness, friction, relief and comfort simultaneously - and it twiddles enticingly and Lan Zhan’s knees go weak.

Lan Zhan couldn’t refuse, and simply uttered a strained but thinly-veiled excited “Mn”, twice, before his pants were yanked off and allowed to fly far, far away to the other side of the courtyard.

Lan Zhan gets a wonderful titillating blowjob with many deep-throats, and later, Wei Ying inhales and eats his ass, laps and teases the tight ring of muscles and the swelling perineum, massages the walnut-sized gland with rough sweeps through the delicate skin, before going full out for the best rimjob Lan Zhan has ever experienced, until his asshole stretches and the entrance is tickled and caressed and rubbed in sensuous, sexy ways that only his spouse’s expert tongue can; it helps that Wei Ying inserts oiled fingers through the relaxed and yielding end of the tunnel and starts scissoring, stretching the walls, drumming, kneading the delectably assaulted prostate - when Lan Zhan cries out that he needed to something because he was too embarrassed to say it out - because Wei Ying had, without permission, rubbed maddeningly nnngh-inducing circles around Lan Zhan's tummy - then the younger man lets go of his tongue and goes to pepper sweet kisses on Lan Zhan's cheek (never mind the un-cleanliness, because apparently the couple had long ago agreed that exchanging and ingesting friendly bacteria is a romantic thing to do) - and Lan Zhan nnnghs and hnnnghs desperately because his insides are convulsing pleasurably from the insane massaging motions and pulses radiating from the prostate, but there's something else building up inside his bottom to insane pressures, and he one-twos thick creamy globs from his hyper-excited rigid cock, climbs and crests his dry orgasm of twenty prostatic twitches, and lets out a string of loud rude gassy noises through his asshole because Wei Ying had done too much with fingers and his rump loosened happily.

(And Wei Ying whispers, a happy fart is a happy and healthy gut - but Lan Zhan was already in too deep and covered his face with his hands because he's ripened up like a red tomato,)

Later still, Wei Ying effortlessly maneuvered Lan Zhan on the bench to all fours, and he royally sticks his own dick in and fucks the husband fervently. Wei Ying one-two-threes several times because believe it or not, Lan Zhan is god damn tight, praise be to Goddess Guan Yin, and the older man's muscular insides feel tremendously awesome when pummeled to the hilt, and within a couple of minutes, Wei Ying becomes too excited and orgasms prematurely to fifteen but awesomely fifteen grand volleys of beautiful ejaculations with stars and rainbows in his vision.

A quick gargle with floral-scented water (not as good as a branded mouthwash, but it'll have to do in this stone age) and cleaning wipes of handcloth later, Lan Zhan - whose pants managed to find their way back to their owner - finally gets to lie on Wei Ying's lap and earn his double ear-cleaning, and snoozes the afternoon away after murmuring, "Wei Ying..."

The following days are clear and sunny, the afternoons are still lazy,

And evenings can be as quiet or as interesting, as say, dinner at the Lan's Residence.

~~~@@@~~~@@@~~~

At this point, some of the wonderful things as described in the story "It is a clear and sunny day" happen, followed by the arc "Dinner at the Lan's".

The story continues after the end of "Dinner at the Lan's"...

Notes for the Chapter:

Finally, I've been waiting to continue the first arc after realizing that I'd written a lifetime of backstories. In some way, the first sixty-nine chapters (less the first arc) is a kind of Prologue... :-D

Please leave comments in the Comments Box - they help to feed the muse :-)

Chapter 72

The story continues after the end of “Dinner at the Lan’s”...

After such a sex-intensive night (at Lan Zhan’s expense), and a dramatic morning of tears, rush hours, flying swordsmanship, and magical discoveries, Wei Ying pilots Bichen and steers it back home under his lover’s guidance and a full luggage of two dangling sacks tied to the hilt; from the ground, one may mistaken the sword as a flying thin penis with two balls hanging loosely from the base.

At the bend around the last hill, he suddenly veers to the side while barking an excited squeal with the promise of at least a fried fish for dinner - and performs a heart-stopping, wobbly but passable roll as a amateur swordboarder, in which Lan Zhan tightens his grip around Wei Ying’s waist and is secretly thrilled at the prospects of swordboarding as a couple in the near future.

Snow continued to fall through midday and into the afternoon from dark grey clouds in the skies. The icy winds have let up, allowing a layer of fluffy snow to coat the whole landscape and turn the whole hilly ‘Mounds into what Wei Ying terms as “a big bowl of soft gamma-nanoparticle mochi-flavoured soft serves swimming in smooth Xianbucks choco-matcha yoghurt milkshake”; although it’s been a little more than three months since they’ve settled down to life in the stone age, he still misses desserts and treats from the 21st, 31st and 41st century; still, he’s Perfectly fine as long as Lan Zhan makes something traditionally tasty such as a plate of roasted sweet potatoes and chestnuts and frozen glazed persimmons, which go very well with a home-cooked lunch of steaming rice, stir-fried cabbage and mushrooms, omelette with shrimp, and the omnipresent Yiling tofu drizzled with soy sauce and garnished with fried garlic and ginger.

Last winter was a disaster because they weren't prepared, and their cave-home had gaping holes in the ceiling that resulted in piles of freezing ice falling through and turned the floor into cold, wet sludge. This time, however, Wei Ying had covered the holes with some deadwood and boulders, and there are plenty more half-completed DIY home improvement projects lying around that were meant to be completed before the first snowfall, including reinforcing the cavern's structure, building the much touted, but never materialized, thermal water piping system and a few more stuff planned in the books; the creative ideas in his A.S.S. notebook seemed to have been half-forgotten as much as the bound xuan paper book had been lost, actually, devoured by the growing pile of 'trash' in the work room (along with Lan Zhan's guqin).

(Wei Ying could have logged into the highly-secretive ErNet to ask Ernie for help, but pride would never allow this ostentatious male parent to trouble his child - to Wei Ying, it felt as bad as asking for pocket money from one's offspring - and in fact, Wei Ying has been giving motherly tips to Ernie on building a better, more perfect world - and universes. He keeps getting sidetracked or loses interest fairly quickly with his own DIY projects the moment it becomes gruelling or in his own words, "details, details and more details!".)

Just as Lan Zhan was about to start the omelette on the stove, he handed the bowl of leftover cold noodles from the morning to Wei Ying. He kissed the young man's forehead to assure him again (and again - many times during the afternoon) that everything is Perfectly fine between them, and asked Wei Ying to feed the animals before the precipitation becomes too heavy and they're snowed in for the rest of the day. Wei Ying "Enn"s enthusiastically, when he feels the first tendrils of boredom sneaking up the moment he unloads and unpacks his purchases from Liao's and realizes the extent and magnitude of manual labour to come (i.e. the DIY projects - he'd rather spend time designing and building pulley system prototypes, than actually start moving construction materials and complete the much-needed extensions to their home; this shows how brilliant yet lazy Wei Ying is).

He eagerly bundles up himself into appropriately thick furred robes and trots across the icy white courtyard. Then, he casts a light Fire spell to heat up the food and serve it to the chickens cooped up in their own little wooden residence.

The hens love to nibble at worm-like noodles, and Wei Ying takes the opportunity to collect some farm-fresh eggs - his thieving arm was pecked and scratched viciously by a couple of sharp-eyed broody hens, but he's used to it (although he's envious that Lan Zhan can easily soothe the birds by cooing at them, then lift them up and effortlessly roll the eggs into his basket; it's something that Wei Ying has come to accept - that animals will always be unfriendly to him no matter what circumstances). A couple of low-level healing spells later, the rabbits are fed with grass and hay, then Wei Ying trudges through foot-high snow back to their cave-home.

(Use of magic in their estate is subtle, and limited to low-tier and common spells; Wei Ying continues to harbour suspicions that the gods are always spying, waiting for the perfect chance to pounce and arrest him for utilizing prohibited magic. He makes sure to place enough Eye and Sense talismans, along with other defensive magic, around the perimeter of their home and surroundings to make sure no intruders can invade their land, and no gods can peek through without sounding an alarm.)

The lack of powerful magic, including Creation and Time spells, meant that Wei Ying's efficiency is hampered and is at its lowest - leaving him to work with prehistoric iron and bronze tools, which explains the mounting 'trash' in the work room. Lan Zhan takes the stand of non-intervention and leaves

Wei Ying to decide what's best for his own, however he sometimes comments that Wei Ying is suffering from paranoia because there's been no sign of gods for the past three months - not even the Tians. In retaliation, the younger man reminds Lan Zhan about how powerful gods are and how painful it would be to suffer their wrath for acting high and mighty, flaunting powerful magic, and pretending to be deities - like the fate of the Wei and Lan-kin "made into flat jianbing s by eighty-eight burning palms" - and that usually silences the older man into an End Of Discussion.)

After the heart-warming lunch, Wei Ying pats his tummy, swallows the last persimmon dessert, and burps loudly (with little puffs of cloud - their home is cold because there is no indoor heating). No matter which cuisine in the Mortal Realm or any other realms for that matter, from which timeline or from which planet and galaxy, Lan Zhan's cooking ranks top in his list. Lan Zhan politely finished his bowl of rice, then takes out the cloth bag from his satchel - the purchases from the outpost at Huang village that had closed for winter.

Dried herbs, medicinal roots and healing salves are important, since they no longer have access to powerful healing magic and modern medicines (at Wei Ying's insistence), and Lan Zhan's healing spells (to some extent, Wei Ying's too) are good only for symptomatic treatment of coughs, colds, fevers and in some critical cases, patch up minor to moderate external wounds and internal injuries.

The magazines are crucial as well, since they'd be snowed in for a while, and without television or the Net, entertainment is limited to reading materials, singing and dancing for each other, indoor cultivation practice, and probably hours of making out and lovemaking on their king-sized bed. (Wei Ying looks forward to the good times when they're locked up inside their cave-home, and play games of 'let's go pantless the whole day', and he wants Lan Zhan to chase him around like a rabbit in heat; he'd miss their harem games from their younger days - although it's been just about three months, i.e. since summer, when they had a harem in their family.)

They have enough food stored in the permafrost-like underground pantry at least for a couple of weeks; the gardens and orchards are completely harvested and emptied for the wintry season. They'll still need to make some trips to town periodically to stock up on perishables, however at least thermal springwater flows through their outdoor pool and lotus pond, hence they'll always have good-sized fishes and shrimps, lotus roots and seeds, and chicken and eggs from the coop (rabbits are still off-limits, as decreed by the patriarch of the family of two).

Lan Zhan takes out a golden pouch from the bag, and gently pushes it across the table towards Wei Ying. Then, he calmly pours a steaming cup of oolong tea for himself.

Wei Ying raises an eyebrow - he'd never seen that pouch before, so it must have been one of the stuff bought at the outpost. He wondered what is in there, and why Lan Zhan wanted him to open it.

“For you.”

Wei Ying piques with interest, like a child who had just been gifted a present. “For me?” and starts to pull on the drawstrings.

“Mn. For you. This is all I could get.”

Wei Ying yelps and shrieks in near-shock, when his eyes sparkle as much as the sparkling contents inside the pouch - there is a bunch of finger-sized crystal shards, each elongated in form, perfectly smooth and reflective, sharp and jagged at the edges, and they coil like glass serpents perfectly frozen in ice; the crystals tinkle and shimmer on their own, emanating and thrumming with faint, unseen energy - these are fabled twisty crystals !

“For your compass.”

Wei Ying starts to stammer and stutter, “But, how did you... where could these... it must have cost... wait, Lan Zhan, these are extremely rare and impossible to be formed in nature, so they have to be made by the hands of craft-masters! How much did you pay for this pouch?!” Suddenly, Wei Ying recalled the hastily bought jewelled accessories that set back their finances by at least two gold bars, shortly after the husband bought the land title to their home for one gold bar.

“I... still have the Jade Token with me. But nothing more. I am penniless, technically,” Lan Zhan murmurs, a little hesitant, as he takes the first sip after blowing generously on the surface of the cup.

Wei Ying knew Lan Zhan only brought with him his life savings of five gold bars when they ventured out of Jingshi the summer before - he quickly did the math inside his head - and realized that what the man said is true. Lan Zhan had spent his fortune for the sake of the spouse’s happiness - for a home, for the unused jewels, and now, for the twisty crystals because not long ago, he complained that he needed them to get his Compass of Evil to work, which was actually a lame excuse to skip work and loiter in town to stock up on Laozu Smiles.

“The shopkeeper mentioned these crystals when I asked, about three months ago. It seemed a treasure box was recently unearthed from a faraway mythical tomb, and in that box was this pouch. The treasure hunter placed a very high price for these crystals because they matched the descriptions in the scripts of the Dark Arts. I... hope these crystals are the same ones you need for your compass.” Lan Zhan looks down, feeling slightly ashamed and foolish perhaps, for ordering something on impulse (again) - he couldn't refuse when the shopkeeper said that the pouch was going to be auctioned in Chang'an, and there wouldn't be another chance to get his hands on such “invaluable relics of the forgotten Dark Arts”. Plus, the caravans from the Far, Far West only run a handful of times each year, so every trip takes a long while.

Wei Ying walks over to the husband, gently peels off the teacup, and in exchange, he cups Lan Zhan's face with both hands.

“Lan Zhan, you've done so much for me, stood by my side even when the world is against me - you - us, yet you never think twice about the consequences towards your reputation, well-being and wealth. How can you be so righteous yet so reckless! You're... really the Han Guang Jun that I admired and fell in love with, and I still do!” Wei Ying remarks, and kisses the husband full on the lips, flavoured with oolong and persimmons. The older man responds passionately, tongue playing with his younger lover's, and they engage in a sweet make-out session at the dining table; his spirits soar high when he is convinced that he made the right choice, and that pouch of twisty crystals is surely, one of the keys to their marital happiness.

The days that follow were, as forecasted by Imperial meteorologists and astrologists, and published in the following week's periodical, full of heavy snowfall due to a cold front passing through Qishan. Travel becomes impossible, so Wei Ying called the Liang teahouse using a Fairy Messenger spell to tell the laoban that he wouldn't be able to go to work at the next full moon, and the laoban agreed because the teahouse opened only for half-days anyway with so few customers around in an equally snowed-in Yiling. He also casted modified Shields around their home to keep the temperature and humidity bearable without having to bundle up all day long - it's still a little chilly because cold air from outside still seeps in anyway, although the effects can be easily mitigated with frequent soaks in their outdoor thermal springwater pool.

It's the couple's first snowy winter together (last year they had to seek shelter at Mian Mian's), and Wei Ying makes good use of the opportunity to focus on indoor activities. He continues to busy himself in the workroom since he had procured the twisty crystals, and Lan Zhan assumes that the young man is (finally) working on the wide-acclaimed version 4.0 of the Compass of Evil, so he doesn't intrude and disturb Wei Ying. However, the opposite is not true; Wei Ying gets bored or perhaps doesn't make as much progress as expected - signalled by a whiny exasperated "AAAAaaAAaaaahhh..." followed by a body stretch to the tune of "nnnNNNnnngggHHH..." after a mere half-hour of tinkering with stuff inside the work room - Lan Zhan steels his heart, and fans his loins, for the many Wei Ying-ness that disturb his daily routines, literally.

Lan Zhan walks into a visual feast of Wei Ying sprawled across their dining table; his perky clothed ass pointing high towards the ceiling, his thighs straddle against the table's corners; his crotch generously rubs against the well-worn edge, and he holds an Imperial ruler along the diagonal length of the table.

"Mmm... fifty five... fifty six... okay, done!" Wei Ying snappily remarks, and turns around while still lying atop the table.

"Ah, Lan Zhan! I was just measuring the table," he doesn't state the reason why, "what are you doing here?" and visibly, obnoxiously humps the table - his toothy grin and slightly flushed face does not hide his intentions at all.

Lan Zhan swallows, because he knows Wei Ying is underwear-less - and notices twin clothed plump balls rolling front and back, then side to side, at the table's edge - Wei Ying is literally masturbating against a piece of furniture in front of him, dear Goddess Guan Yin! - and catches himself staring oogle-eyed, so he clears his throat and raises two pieces of soiled loincloths that he'd found in the laundry basket. There are only two loincloths for Wei Ying, with both of them in Lan Zhan's hands, that means the younger man isn't wearing any.

"W... Wei Ying, your underwear. What... why are they torn - like this?" Lan Zhan holds the loincloths for the younger man to see - indeed, the front parts, particularly the strip of cloth that fits snugly against Wei Ying's cock and balls, are frayed, holed and tattered.

“Why? Ummm... I don’t know, really. Maybe it’s because I’m doing this all day?” the younger man flutters his eyes seductively and wiggles his ass in sensuous gyrating motions on the table top. Lan Zhan notices the seams of his pants are splitting apart between the legs, proof that Wei Ying is wearing down his garments from excessive rubbing. The older man sighs and turns a little red on the cheeks.

“I can’t help it, I get bored and my body moves on its own. Demonic hunger, cabin fever, mind-numbing boredom, whatever you want to call it, blame it on them,” Wei Ying climbs off the table nonchalantly. “If it’s bad for the clothes, then I’ll strip them off, alright? And I’ll stop rubbing against the table too, alright?” he quips and immediately strips his shirt and pants, and piles them onto Lan Zhan’s arms, and saunters off with a giggle.

Alone, Lan Zhan touches the table’s edge out of habit, savouring the lingering desire and heat of Wei Ying. He bends down to take a sniff at the corner - then sniffs the soiled loincloths - and sighs loudly in defeat. He’s addicted to Wei Ying, and he’s in a lot of trouble - if viewed in a negative way.

Lan Zhan realized he’s sentenced himself to the fate of sex-hungry Wei Ying-ness. Wei Ying gets off scotch-free and is allowed to roam the house naked (to protect the clothes), to engage in countless masturbation, foreplay and sexual intercourse with the helpless husband (to protect the table’s edges), and Lan Zhan is, for the most part, unable to fend off the numerous sexual assaults (because he brought this on to himself).

From sunrise to the next sunrise, Lan Zhan finds himself screwed tightly into Wei Ying in all manners, positions and circumstances. He's not able to get much household chores done, because Wei Ying simply interrupts him, seduces him with hot kisses to the lips, visually stimulating sexy sway of naked hips, and feather-light touches to the agreeable hardening penis, then easily peels the husband off from the said household chore, and ravishes the middle aged man in the middle of the cave-home, until Lan Zhan melts into a trembling heap of orgasmic squirts, tasty moans and dried-up balls, and Wei Ying mmmms while caressing a slightly bulging lower belly because his insides are always filled with warm seed, and his love canal throbs with the pleasure of being stretched and slammed for hours on end. His demonic hunger will be sated for at least one season from that one week of endless lovemaking.

Fortunately, D-Broom is around to save the day, and keeps the floor and surfaces relatively clean. There is no need for laundry, since they spend the whole day naked at home. They have take-outs from Great Eats From Gojeoseon although sometimes Wei Ying cooks when Lan Zhan is knocked out cold from too much sex (and his sad-looking flaccid feeble penis is proof of Wei Ying's sexual dominance when both are trapped at home).

The couple would cultivate together at the small space near the entrance to their home, to exercise the muscles if not to keep the burgeoning waists at bay. They would perform some low-level martial arts movements in perfect synchrony, build a wee bit of golden core energy, work out a bit of sweat, then Wei Ying would naughtily take a swipe at Lan Zhan's shins and the older man falls to his rump. Wei Ying easily mounts his husband for awesome cowgirl rides - he's always cleaned and appropriately loosened from morning baths - and Lan Zhan's body continues to cultivate sexual qi with plenty of nnnghs for his lovely spouse.

To the envy of many people forced to stay in during the snowy days, the couple does not gain body fat although they eat well, and in fact, their figures become more muscular, more defined and strengthened over the course of the week.

Wei Ying likes to sing and dance for Lan Zhan. The younger man misses the old days when karaoke machines and television sets were available - but that's perfectly fine since there's just two of them. He would start on some oldie tunes from the 21st century, in which Lan Zhan attempts to sing along - a bit out of tune, of course - and after a while, Lan Zhan becomes disinterested because he's not the singing type (he prefers the guqin or other string instruments); soon, Wei Ying's voice rises into high shrills and low moans, as Lan Zhan decides to pleasure his spouse and suck him off in mid-performance. Wei Ying's twin balls have never been happier to perform their one-two-threes for the husband, and Lan Zhan gets tasty slurps of unintentionally released seed, before the operatic finale of fifteen twitches, and the husband gets his deserved full serving and a yodelling scream that fortunately doesn't echo outside their home (thanks to the Shield spells).

The use of sex toys adds excitement to the couple's intensive love life - Wei Ying would insert a sounding rod into his cock and willingly offers himself to Lan Zhan, in which the latter gets to enjoy little syrupy snacks throughout the day; sometimes Lan Zhan exhales and blows bubbles into the straw-like instrument like a misbehaving child, or suck out then spit back in the contents through the hollowed rod repeatedly, and Wei Ying becomes absolutely delirious (and destroyed) by having his penile contractions inverted and forced many times. Wei Ying also keeps Energized anal beads inside his ass, so that Lan Zhan enjoys being vibrated, massaged and deliciously rubbed with plenty of bumps while trying his best to mate the spouse. Dildos are great for when they do 69s and when Lan Zhan wants extra servings of Wei Ying-flavoured nectar at the press of the vibrating-spinning phallic toy straight into the younger man's ass and thrust against the quivering juicy spurting prostate gland.

Towards the end of the week, Wei Ying touches Lan Zhan's bare skin uncontrollably and molests the hunky man with unthinking lust mixed with delight - just like the good ol' days - but this time, he's earnest in forcing Lan Zhan to cum as much as possible. There's hardly any edging or prolonging of pleasures anymore - Wei Ying makes sure Lan Zhan orgasms into hands, mouth and rosebuds in everything he does, at lightning speeds, such as, while he's sweeping the floor (when D-Broom is recharging), reading the periodical and magazines on the bed, making meals in the kitchen, having a shower, or simply lounging around because there's nothing else to do cooped up inside the tiny cave-home with snow everywhere on the outside (and his penis is lovingly squeezed and sandwiched into Wei Ying's glorious seed-soaked love tunnel).

Lan Zhan gets wrung dry again and again, and his body adapts - soon, he is able to get it up at the sight and order of Wei Ying, and raises the bar of his performance to thirty twitches within two minutes of animalistic rutting when necessary. He taps into his experience from participating in late-night porn on Wangxian net during his heydays - and satisfies the younger lover on all accounts due to his latent talents in embodying and reliving those astonishingly depraved moments - and becomes a sexed-up insatiable stallion in bed. Wei Ying sometimes complains that Lan Zhan ejaculates prematurely after a two-minute breeding session on the floor ala missionary style, but the other only mmmms and commands his body to convulse and relax rhythmically the sexual meridians, sexual qi flow, and every fibre of inner muscles, then impresses the squealing spouse with another thirty-twitches inside and iron-hard against pulsating clenching ass-muscle walls; it didn't matter that his testicles are as dried up as raisins, as long as Wei Ying feels the twitches and imagines little Wang Jis swimming their way to meet baby Wei Yings, the younger man is one hundred percent pleased and becomes a happy (and return) customer of Lan Zhan's infinite love.

Lan Zhan's sex life has evolved beyond sex toys, physical wham-banging or tantric sex techniques. He becomes closer to the Godhood of sex and reproductive acts as well.

By the end of the week, and when snowfall finally lets up, the couple have degenerated into two unshaven sweaty cave-men living in a sex-stinked cave-home, who spend all day stark naked and joined at the hips (or penis screwed tightly into the ass, whichever feels better). Lan Zhan figuratively ascends to the said fabled Godhood of sorts (but he's feet is still grounded in the Mortal Realm) and has become a little impotent if not unresponsive to further sexual seduction (the proverbial "Under Maintenance" sign is hung on the limp dick), and Wei Ying's (demonic) appetite for sex is sated, for the time being.

With lust no longer distracting his train of thought, Wei Ying works painstakingly on his projects in the work room, even through burning midnight oil. At daybreak after the week of snow, Lan Zhan walks into the kitchen dressed in a simple shirt and a pair of pants (finally). He is dumbfounded at the sight of a mud-brown humanoid clay figure about a meter in height, lying on their dining table, surrounded and wrapped with numerous different kinds of paper talismans, spooky-looking blood-red burning candles, and incense sticks. It is shaped like a paperman and is of course, three-dimensional. The air is thick with smoke and blackish mist-like wisps, and smells strange - but not totally alien; Lan Zhan has smelled worse things from other timelines anyway. Wei Ying, who looks a little frazzled and tired from the lack of sleep - but he's at least with clothes this time - sprinkles sugar, spices, fragrances made of soap and shampoo, flower petals, butterfly wings, and what looks like day-old crusty cum, and a few specks of blood on the figure.

Lan Zhan no longer questions his spouse's motives, and knowing Wei Ying's history with humanoid things and the penchant for making mischief out of magic; the formation of talismans suspiciously resembles the tomb-like cradle for Wen Ning shortly before that Wen clansman was resurrected. He simply tells the younger man to "put back the things to where they belong", and "clean up after you're done". He pauses before leaving the smoky kitchen-cum-dining area, and asks, "Whose?" and gestures at the cum and blood, amongst other ingredients tossed and spilled on the clay.

"Ours," Wei Ying answered without looking up, as licks his lips and his brows furrowed in full concentration while writing unreadable and unidentifiable mystical words on the figure, and the strings of talismans that wrap around it. "The clay's dug from the outdoor pool, so be careful when going for your morning wash. Don't slip into the hole at the corner," he adds.

(Lan Zhan rubs his jaws absently and fingered the edge of a prehistoric band-aid - he'd nicked his chin first thing at dawn when Wei Ying insisted, and he allowed, to shave his cave-man beard; Wei Ying must have collected a drop or two of blood from him that way. As for the cum - it's been flowing freely the past few days anyway.)

Lan Zhan "Mn"s without worry, and picks up a Fairy Messenger talisman - he plans to order pork noodle soup and meat-flavoured sticky rice dumplings for their breakfast. The Postbird services do well these days, due to an increase in orders from Yiling's citizens who decide to dine on take-outs and avoid walking in the snow.

By midday, Wei Ying is seen chanting like an obsessed monk the words "A-ling de baba" (啊令的爸爸) non-stop, while performing intricate martial arts-like movements copied from an old book touted to be scriptures for the Dark Arts (which Wei Ying borrowed from another city's library long ago, but never returned), titled "Bringing Forth Infinite Agony Solitude, Despair Of The Darkness And Million-Year Deaths and Destructions". (Lan Zhan silently rolled his eyes at the overtly flamboyant title - it's as distasteful and as unnecessary as what the Heavens use.)
